Tick-Tock

Have you heard about the home of Charles S. Mills, of Cleveland, O.? Mills, it seems, got interested in clocks a few years ago and started collecting them. He didn't put them away in glass cases to spend the rest of their lives silently staring, but saw to it that they were kept in running order. And he kept them running.

He has 125 of them now. He has cuckoos and grandfathers and music-box clocks and practically everything under the sun, and they're all running under one modest roof. It takes an hour and a half to wind them all, if the winder gets around fast.

When the story about Mills and his clocks reached this office it seemed like a charming idea at first—having a house chock-full of continual ticks and tingles and chimes—but then, after a little meditation, it appeared in a new light.

Twenty-four hours a day of insistent reminders from 125 time-pieces: "You're getting older—life is slipping—you haven't done it—everything passes—one more month to meet that note . . .?"

Ginners Over State Are Aiding Farmers

COLLEGE STATION.—More than 20 regional meetings have been held this season by ginners in the interests of more careful handling of cotton on the farm and at the gin, and 14 additional meetings are scheduled, according to F. E. Lichte, ginning specialist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. The meetings have been attended by 2,800 ginners and other representatives of the industry.

Texas has been making considerable headway in increased plantings of quality strains of cotton, but this is a slow process," Lichte said. "Quality cotton is on the way back, but in the meantime we can improve the quality of our cotton tremendously by proper handling.

"Picking the cotton clean and dry is the responsibility of the grower. Most ginners, by the use of improved equipment and cleaning machinery, are doing a great deal to maintain quality.

"Sometimes it almost seems that each new advance in ginning equipment results in more careless handling of cotton on the farm."

Modern equipment will provide higher grade lint from damp or moderately trassy cotton, but no machinery has been developed that can dry wet cotton or glean roughly harvested cotton to give lint equal in quality to that ginned from dry, clean-picked cotton, Lichte warned.

Already 550 of the 12,700 gins in the Cotton Belt are using the driers developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Of these, 273 are in use in Texas' 3,564 gins.

The ordinary temperature of the drying air should not be over 100 degrees and even in the case of very wet cotton, air-temperature should not exceed 200 degrees. Excessive temperatures, Lichte pointed out, injure the cotton fiber.

Brother, Sister to Meet After 30 Years

LLANO. (AP).—A newspaper story of the 90th birthday anniversary of Mrs. J. M. Sutton of Llano led to contact with a brother she had not communicated with in more than 30 years. C. N. Carmichael, 80, of Batesville read of his sister's birthday and in that way learned of her whereabouts, he wrote to her and they are planning a reunion. Mrs. Sutton, a native of Alabama, has lived in Llano since 1900.

Bear Raid

Real Russian War Would Place Big Jap Cities at Mercies of Bombers

Sore Spot in Russo-Jap Relations

This map shows why Japan and Russia are willing to chance a general war by fighting in the Possiet Bay region. Rastin has been developed at great expense by the Japanese as a port to rival Vladivostok. New railroads connect Rastin with upper Manchukuo to form an outlet for produce. Russian occupation of hills around Chungkufeng would put Rastin within artillery-range. That is why Japanese fight desperately to prevent such occupation. The border lines in the triangular area where Korea, Manchukuo and Siberia come together have always been disputed. Possiet Bay is potentially valuable as a naval base, and occupation by the Japanese of the narrow coastal strip would, as the Russians see it, menace Vladivostok. The small inset map locates the area shown in the large map on the eastern coastline of Asia.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—A real Russo-Japanese war, if it should come, will likely produce the most spectacular, effective aerial bombardment and combat yet seen.

Tokio, as American army officers see it, would become the first capital of a major power to suffer a severe aerial bombardment.

It is less than 700 miles from Russia's Vladivostok to Tokio. Experts who believe Tokio would be a prompt objective also envision suicide squadrons of Japanese taking off with loads of explosives and flying madly into Russian air fleets.

News of darkening of Japanese cities confirms belief that Tokio and other large centers are vulnerable.

WHAT MAY BE IN THE RUSSIAN MIND.

Diplomats and military men have supposed that the Changkufeng fighting would be kept localized, on the theory that Japan wants no war because of her Chinese involvement and that Russia has too much to worry about in Europe. This is mere deduction. Aside from general background, all the State, War, and Navy Departments know is what they read in the newspapers—meaning the official versions from Tokio and Moscow.

Several bizarre theories as to the "real reason" behind the out-break have gained wide credence in Washington. But the best Far Eastern experts are unwilling to go beyond suggesting as possibilities:

1. That Russia has sought to diffuse Japanese military energy and take heat off the Chinese. Chinese resistance might suddenly collapse—as Ethiopian resistance to Italian troops did—and Russia may have been warned of such a likelihood.

2. That Russia desired to test Japanese reaction and find out how weak or strong Japanese resistance would be.

3. That Russia, believing the point of maximum Japanese weakness may have been reached, prefers to strike before Japan can consolidate her position in China. At any rate, Russian troops moved into previously occupied territory of great strategic value and Japanese fought to drive them off. The Changkufeng hills dominate Japan's Tumen railroad, which runs into Manchukuo from the important new Korean port of Rastin. The Rastin-Tumen route is Japan's shortest route for getting troops and supplies into Manchukuo.

TREATY? TREATY? WHAT TREATY?

Mention of the alleged treaty with China on which Russia bases claim to the disputed territory brings skeptical grins from State Department officials, who never heard of such a treaty. They haven't even a map bearing the name Changku-feng—and they have many exhaustive maps. To Japanese questioning existence of the treaty, Russia says: "Ask the Chinese." Japan warning on China, won't.

One of the less screwy-sounding theories circulated in Washington says Japan attacked Russians in a major engagement at behest of Germany, as a prelude to a widely-feared German invasion of Czechoslovakia this month.

While renewed Berlin verbal blasts against the Czechs might back up this theory, cagey diplomats here say Japan wouldn't stick her neck out just because Germany asked her. But they say many Japanese militarists would take on both Russia and China.

When Midland people decide to do a job, agreeable or disagreeable, they do it. And right now they are responding admirably to the campaign for cutting weeds on vacant lots, cleaning up the town for the rodeo. Any way you drive, you see the men with the hoses busily slaying the rank vegetation. The burning of weeds late every evening should dispel mosquitoes for the rest of the summer. Keep up the good work, folks, and we will have a pretty town when the rodeo visitors come.

This donkey ball game proposition, which is supposed to have come up again today, is bad business. All I can say for the Lions who signed up the jack-asses is that they certainly crave punishment. Surely the officials who booked the donkeys must not have played in those two games a year ago. The only people who possibly could get any benefit are the spectators, because it's unhandy to slide into first base on a jack-ass.

Elliott Cowden, just back from Hawaii, and George Glass, who will return soon from the Canadian Rockies, are on the rodeo parade committee. Between them, they probably will have people wearing grass skirts and snow-shoes. But Hilary Bedford should be able to effect a compromise; he being the other member of the committee.

Claude Duffy insists that he does not have hay fever and does not like to cut weeds. He may be different on the first count, but he's like everybody else on the second.

When the water hazard evaporates from the golf course, there ought to be some more sporting news besides hard, soft and donkey baseball.

Had you ever thought of Jack Bodkins as resembling Mr. Miquetoast, that timid soul? Well, with weeds higher than your head on the vacant lots near him, he timidly approached some little weeds about two inches high on his own side of the street and pulled them up by the roots.

Cotton Council Launches Work

MEMPHIS (UP).—Cotton men who formed a national council to get the industry out of the red, develop new uses and expand the domestic and world markets, have outlined five objectives:

- Find proper and greater markets for cotton.
- Maintain research activities for new uses.
- Obtain favorable legislation.
- Advertise extensively the known uses of cotton.
- Increase foreign cotton shipments.

At an organization meeting in June, which was attended by several hundred farmers and traders from seven southern states, Oscar Johnston, Mississippi delta planter, was elected president of the National Cotton council.

First Unified Group. In accepting the post, Johnston pointed out that previously there had been no group to speak for the industry in obtaining legislation and working for new markets and uses.

"There is no one in Washington accredited and authorized to speak for cotton," Johnston said. "There has been no concentration of effort in behalf of cotton producers. When legislation affecting them comes up in congress, legislators have no one to consult to get the real views of the producers." Johnston said the council would perform that function. The organization, he said, will have national headquarters in Washington, state organizations in cotton producing sections, county sub-divisions and community groups.

Not Confined to Legislation. "When we do this we will have the voice that we need so badly not only in legislation but in other affairs. The voice of cotton has been as soft as its lint and as low as its price. We must speak through a megaphone if we are to be heard."

Johnston is former head of the cotton division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

He said lack of foreign markets was the most serious problem facing cotton farmers and added that the crop would stage a comeback "only through the development of reciprocal trade relations by which consumers of each nation may freely trade upon an economically sound basis."

The cotton council, he said, will serve as the voice of the cotton farmers. It will urge congress to continue the reciprocal trade policy and will oppose tariff bills "which thwart trade."

College Friends Are Honored at Afternoon Party

Introducing two former college friends, Mrs. Bud Taylor, who recently moved to Midland and Miss Mary Seidel of Brenham, Mrs. J. R. Crump entertained with an afternoon bridge party at her home, 708 N. Main, Tuesday, at 2:30 o'clock. Since the honorees and hostess were schoolmates at Texas Christian University, the college colors of purple and white were used in prize wrappings. Zinnias were house flowers.

In the four tables of bridge played, high score prize went to Mrs. Geo. Bennett.

Guest gifts were presented to Mrs. Taylor and Miss Seidel.

A salad plate was served at tea time to: The honorees, Mmes. Bennett, E. H. Powers, F. I. McConnell, Frank Miller, W. C. Cremin, Ralph Geisler, Tom Sealy, D. L. DelHomme, S. P. Hazlip, T. R. Parker, S. M. Laughlin, Dick Hardy, Tom Pollard, W. L. Haseltine, and the hostess.

G. A. Sponsor Is Honored With Shower Wednesday

Members of the Girls' Auxiliary of the Baptist church complimented their sponsor, Mrs. Chas. Skinner, with a shower at the weekly meeting of the group in the church annex Wednesday. Gifts including handkerchiefs, perfume bottle, and a picture were presented to the honoree.

Pillow cases on which the girls have been working were completed and will be presented to the Orphans' home. Next time the girls will start on napkins.

Present were: Mrs. Skinner, Evelyn Jean Brittain, Imma Tunnell, Annie Lee White, Dorothy Shelburne, Lena Fay Shelburne, Anita Tindie, Wanda Lee Tindie.

Couple Is Honored At Shower Given Wednesday Evening

Mr. and Mrs. Laymoine Jackson, who were married recently, were honored with a shower at the home of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Jackson, 712 S. Pecos, Wednesday evening.

Gifts were presented to the couple and a refreshment course was served to those present.

Among those attending were: The honorees, Stella Cain, Annie Weigart, Mrs. C. A. McKinney and C. A. Jr., Katy Belle Richters, Pleas Richters, Mr. and Mrs. Melvie C. Ray, Mr. and Mrs. D. Branch, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Jones, Mrs. Bessie Rotan, Mrs. Iva Rotan, Mrs. Rosa Rainis, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Tunnell and children, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Dunn, Mrs. John Woods and daughter, Jennie L. Fall Chic Is in the Bag... But Carry a Roomy One

Enormous is the word which best describes the new handbags that smart women will carry with their fall clothes. Expertly designed to look large but not clumsy and to hold all necessary makeup as well as other odds and ends, they will charmingly accent simple dresses and offer an interesting contrast to tiny hats. The chic, roomy model at left is a shining example of the new trend. It's completely in tune with the charm of Louis XIV era which is widely discussed right now. It's made of "worked" leather which was created by a famous maker of smart purses. The leaf design, pressed into the leather, gives an applique effect. The bag is shown with a small velvet hat and suede gloves—both in a matching shade of warm rust.

The smart roomy bag of smooth black calf, above, will go nicely with any tailored street costume and would be a great comfort to the traveller. A wide gusset, so cleverly concealed that it doesn't mar the shape of the bag, allows plenty of room for letters of credit, a passport, adequate makeup and lots of papers. The body of the bag and the flap are lined with one piece of leather. A gold button makes the snug fastening.

A lovely halo hat with a jewelled ornament, a practical but utterly beautiful bag in rust antelope and matching antelope gloves, make the attractive fall accessory ensemble, at left. The bag has capacious portfolio-like compartments that the business woman or a fall traveller would find pretty handy.

FEMININE FANCIES

By KATHLEEN EILAND

Much is written and spoken concerning the fact that women are not accorded equal treatment for equal ability and performance in the business world. We have waxed rather heated on the subject at sundry times. But there is another side to the charge of injustice as there usually is.

A woman columnist in the East has presented the man's side of the discussion very neatly. She acknowledges that women may not be given the wages and accorded the recognition they should have for the work they do—but she reminds us that women are intruding in what is traditionally a man's sphere when they enter business and may expect to be treated with something less than welcome. And she aptly points out that in woman's sphere—the keeping of a home and the cooking of meals—men are treated quite contemptuously and shown slight welcome when they lay claim to being able to do such things.

"Sure, women are treated like children in the business world, but men are treated like halfwits in the home," she concludes.

attitude of superiority. Considering which, perhaps some of us should not say quite so much about the mistreatment of women in the business world.

Kitchen stoves become more and more complex as manufacturers strive to make them suit the needs of modern living more fully. Recently we saw a gas range which included two unusual features—a fireless cooker and a grill which could be manipulated without stooping.

What would have been one burner space was occupied by a deep insulated well, arranged so that it could be pre-heated, the gas turned off, and food cooked in the retained heat just as in a separate fireless cooker.

A generous space, rectangular in shape, provided a metal surface for cooking hot cakes on top of the stove or making toast in the same way. Beneath this, a grill with indentations for draining the surplus juices, supplied a perfect place for preparing the sizzling steaks that men delight in. A slight lift of the hand brought the grill up to a convenient height for tending the meat, or lowered it for cooking. No bother of stooping and dragging things in and out of the oven half a dozen times while one's spine threatens to acquire a permanent curvature.

Even cooking, too, was done by pre-heating and then turning off the gas.

Such a range is a far cry from the open hearth of grandmother's day. And an object lesson in why Mrs. 1938 should be glad she is living now and not one hundred years ago!

Co-Ed Graduate Tries Rime in Job Hunting

BERKELEY, Cal. (U.P.)—A 1938 co-ed graduate of the University of California overcame the job-finding handicap of having a diploma by inserting the following want ad in a newspaper: "College grad, young and gay. Likes to play, but must make hay. Will mind the baby, sling the hash. Most anything to earn the cash."

PARKS HURLS CARDINALS TO 12-4 VICTORY OVER PIONEERS

CLUBS WILL WIND UP SERIES WITH GAME TONIGHT

With a couple of St. Louis Cardinals scouts looking on, the Midland Cardinals did an about face last night and evened the series with the Clovis Pioneers by copping a 12-4 decision.

The Pioneers couldn't do anything right last night, making seven errors and giving the Cardinals the majority of their runs. Pitcher Watkins, a six-foot, seven-inch righthander, hurled fairly good ball for the losers, giving up nine hits, but his infield mates killed all chances of him winning.

Howard "Bardo" Parks was on the mound for the Cards and pitched seven-hit ball. Five of the Clovis hits and all the runs coming in the last four innings.

The two clubs meet tonight in the final game of the series, and it will likely be either Warren or Soule on the mound for Midland and Nelson on the mound for Clovis.

The local Cardinal management announced today that the three Lubbock-Midland games scheduled here for Friday, Saturday and Sunday had been transferred to Lubbock, making the next home appearance of the club after tonight come August 24.

The Cardinals jumped off to a three run lead without the aid of a hit in the first inning last night and after that it was just a matter of how large the final count would be as they scored in all except three frames.

The Cards got one run in the third, two in the fourth, two in the seventh and four in the eighth. "Spanky" Ballinger with a home run and a double led the Card hitters, while catcher Stuart of the Clovis club was coming up with the same average. Stuart's homer came with one on to account for half the Clovis runs.

Cochrane Declared Victim Of Unappreciative Owner

By HARRY GRAYSON
 Sports Editor, NEA Service.

Baseball is big business. It no longer is a game. If any additional proof of that were needed, it was furnished by the summary dismissal of Gordon Stanley Cochrane as manager of the Detroit Tigers.

Highly commercialized as the dodge is today, an owner has a perfect right to hire and fire whom he pleases, but under the circumstances the abrupt way in which Mickey Cochrane was turned out was outrageous.

Walter O. Briggs, Sr., the automobile body builder who came into the sole proprietorship of the Detroit club upon the death of Frank J. Navin, called Cochrane a "victim of baseball." Actually, Miracle Mike was a victim of an unappreciative and non-understanding magnate.

The Detroit Baseball Co. itself and Frank Navin practically were broke when Harry G. Salsinger, the sports editor, advised Navin to purchase Cochrane from the Philadelphia Athletics and make him manager in 1934. Briggs loaned Navin the $100,000 which Connie Mack collected for the fighting Scotch-Irishman, considered by many to have been the greatest catcher of them all.

The deal turned out to be one of the best in history.

Cochrane took a club which was rated rather mediocre... a club that hadn't been in the first division in a half dozen years... a club suffering from a pronounced defeatist complex, and won Detroit's first pennant in 25 years. The Tigers lost a world series that went the full seven games to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Battling Bengals, as Cochrane called them and as they became under his guidance, repeated their American League triumph in 1935, and went on to beat the Chicago Cubs for the 35-year-old club's first world championship.

The wonder is that the Tigers weren't in a worse position in fifth place... 17 games behind the leading Yankees... when Cochrane was discharged.

Cochrane did more for baseball in Detroit than anybody since Tytus Raymond Cobb. The immortal Ty built Navin Field. Cochrane built Briggs Stadium, which the home of the Tigers became when Briggs spent $1,000,000 enlarging its capacity to 58,000 last winter.

NEARLY GIVES LIFE FOR CLUB.
 Tigers finished second to a super-collecion of New York Yankees in 1936, largely because a nervous ailment forced Catcher Cochrane to the sidelines.

They finished second to the same highly-gearred organization last year, after Cochrane all but gave his life to the club. His head was badly fractured when struck by a pitch thrown by Bump Hadley in May.

The only concrete reason given for the removal of Cochrane was that he couldn't inspire players from the bench as he did from behind the bat and in the batting order.

The truth is that what the club missed more than anything else, in a season of successive disappointments, was a catcher who could catch anything like Cochrane.

And how did Briggs or anybody else know how well Cochrane could direct operations from the dugout or the coach's box? The man was seriously ill during the greater part of 1936... in bed fighting for his life a good part of last season.

On the maritime front, passengers on the British liner Llandaff Castle reported an insurgent trawler fired harmlessly on the steamer in the Strait of Gibraltar.

This year, the club lost its pitching ace, Schoolboy Rowe, entirely, and Tommy Bridges and Elden Auker failed to come to hand. Vernon Kennedy bogged down after a splendid start. The Tigers had no catcher of real worth, and Chet Laabs failed to hit well enough to play center field.

The wonder is that the Tigers weren't in a worse position in fifth place... 17 games behind the leading Yankees... when Cochrane was discharged.

SETS ATTENDANCE RECORDS.
 Cochrane made Detroit the finest baseball city in America... established attendance records there.

The Tigers played to close to a million people at home in 1934, and to more than a million in '35 and '36. They performed before 1,200,000 at home last season, which was the best in that respect in either major league. Attendance has been correspondingly as good this year.

Yet Cochrane, the man who led the club out of the wilderness of the second division, wasn't even given an opportunity to resign.

scene after rain fell for nearly a half hour. Managers of the principals as well as Brig. Gen. Phelan, chairman of the state athletic commission, conferred with the promoter and agreed to the rearrangement.

Fewer than 5,000 cash customers were in the Pol Grounds when the shover added a final blow to the match, which already had developed into a financial flop. The advance sale was approximately $25,000.

Old Homestead Saved

The old homestead is saved... by a straight-shooter, a golfer, James Smith Ferebee, Chicago broker, is pictured getting his blistered hands taped during his to-the-rescue act. Ferebee played on a bet that he could shoot 144 holes of golf in one day with no 18-hole score above 95. He did it, and won his partner's half-interest in a $30,000 Virginia plantation and a $2500 side bet. He wore shoes—he's not coolie off in this picture.

TUCC Field Men to Be Available During Week as Speakers

ABILENE, Aug. 11. — Field men of the Texas Unemployment Compensation and of the Social Security Board will be available as speakers before civic clubs during Social Security Week, H. H. Rumph, district supervisor of the Unemployment Commission, said here today.

The governor asked Texans to participate in local observances and "acquaint themselves with efforts of state and federal governments to bring about a greater measure of security for the individual."

"August 14 marks the third anniversary of the signing of the Social Security Act," the proclamation reads, "the most significant national legislation ever enacted for the general welfare of the American people."

"It is well for the people of Texas to reflect upon the events of the past three years which have brought about a greater measure of security for Texans than ever before."

"Old age assistance has brought aid to needy old people, unemployment compensation has proved a boon to jobless workers, and humanity has been served through the extension of child welfare, maternal

First Invitation Golf Tournament At Odessa Aug. 19

ODESSA, Aug. 11. (Special). — The Odessa Golf Club is staging its first invitation golf tournament on August 19, 20 and 21st, the biggest affair of its kind in West Texas this year. An unusually attractive prize list is being arranged by George W. Elliot and A. B. Knickerbocker. The prizes will be offered for medalist, flight winners, runners up and consolation winners, with an equal distribution of values for each flight.

Principal entertainment features outside of the journey proper will be a big barbecue with all the trimmings at the Legion Hut on Friday evening followed by a lively Calcutta Pool. A dance will be given at the Hut on Saturday evening for visiting golfers and fans. Tom Pickering, Joe Pyron, Otis Cannon, L. L. Talley and Morgan Nell are in charge of these arrangements.

Friday will be reserved for out of town golfers and medalist play. Out of town golfers may qualify here on the preceding Sunday if more convenient. Match play begins Saturday the 20th and continues through Sunday the 21st with an 18 hole final Sunday afternoon.

Many of the leading golfers of West Texas are expected to come here for the three day meet and fans are promised some excellent club duels.

and child health, crippled children, vocational rehabilitation and public health services.

"We should consider further the fact that Texas is one of a small number of states which have not provided assistance to their dependent children and needy blind."

"Because of the social welfare of our people is a fundamental requirement to the material progress and economic development of our state, social security should interest every Texan to the extent that he familiarize himself with its every phase."

Examining the record of social security, Texans could find on the credit side:

A million workers covered by the State Unemployment Compensation law and approximately five million dollars paid as benefits to temporarily unemployed workers since Jan. 1. About 30,000 jobless men and women have been placed in employment by the Texas State Employment Service each month for the first six in this year.

More than $19,000,000 granted by the Federal government for the old age assistance program since payments first began to be made in July, 1936. Currently, more than 111,000 needy persons past the age of 65 are receiving monthly assistance checks, which averaged $13.74 during May, a monthly total of $1,500,000.

More than 1,620,000 social security account cards assigned to Texas workers, who by this means establish wage accounts and begin to build up credits in the federal old age insurance program. Already, $151,485.54 has been paid in lump-sum benefits to 5,168 Texas workers who have reached age 65 or to estates of workers who have died before reaching that age.

Maternal and child welfare programs, in which the federal and state governments cooperate to aid the individual by making available services instead of cash, have received from the federal government, during the past three years, grants in the following amounts: Child Welfare, $135,397.29; maternal and child health, $347,193.42; crippled children, $321,792.52. For the public health program in Texas, total grants of $780,664.20 had been received. Also 2,547 physically disabled persons were being trained and placed in gainful employment under the program of vocational rehabilitation. Much of this assistance went to or benefited residents of the rural areas of the state.

On the debit side, Texas had failed to provide funds for assisting the state's needy blind and probably more than 50,000 dependent children, although an amendment to the constitution for this purpose was adopted by the people in Aug. 1937, by a generous majority. Only eight other states do not have programs of aid to dependent children and the needy blind.

High Praise Given to Profs for New Book

AUSTIN. — Praise of the highest order has come from critics over the country to Dr. Harry Estill Moore, assistant professor of sociology at the University of Texas, and his collaborator, Dr. Howard W. Odum, for their recently published book, "American Regionalism." In a recent book review section of the New York Times, a full page review was devoted to this book; the New York Herald Tribune gave it a complimentary review by Ed Angly, who, incidentally was a classmate of Dr. Moore's at the university but who at the time he wrote his review was unaware of the author's identity.

"This book, in my judgement, is one of the most important volumes which has appeared from the press of any company during the last ten years," Mabel Carney, professor of education, Columbia University, declared. "The whole idea of Regionalism will have profound influence from now on upon all phases of education and social work, not to mention business, politics, and all other aspects of life. Nowhere has this subject been so adequately and scientifically handled. . . . Lavinia Engle, Social Security Board, Washington, D. C., in a letter to Dr. Odum, said: "The book covers a field which has not previously been included in a single volume and which certainly is of vital significance to our field service. Indeed I feel that in addition to congratulating you on the book I should thank you for providing so useful a volume for use in the development of our regional staff."

"This is a very fine and stimulating presentation of points of view that are bound to be of increasing interest each year. The struggle for political units with geography or environment with all its implications is now well under way," was the comment of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president, Stanford University. "If this book is widely read it will do much to further that statesmanship which is required on the part of our public officials if we are to avoid many needless difficulties and disasters."

William Fielding Ogburn, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, said: "American Regionalism" is a distinguished work by the foremost leader in this field. The new transportation inventions means that the region is replacing the county and state as a basis for economic and social organization, and in some cases, political organization. The book is therefore both timely and important."

Lewis Mumford, whose new book, "Culture of Cities" has been hailed as a regional masterpiece, gave this praise of the new book: "American Regionalism" is a masterly synthesis. It brings together the main ideas that have grown up during the last generation of years, around the culture of the earth, and the basic natural groupings of political and economic and cultural communities. Within this wide survey, the contributions of geographer, anthropologist, economist, sociologist, historian and administrator are wrought together in a new pattern; that founded on the region. This is the first attempt to bring into focus the diverse rays that bring into the American regionalist movement. It should have a powerful effect, not merely upon redirecting the work of the scientific investigator and scholar, but in contributing to the practical embodiment of this new knowledge. These new attitudes toward measures for regional reconstruction and regional development, Dr. Odum's authority as a sociologist and as an exponent of the new regionalism of the South is doubly fortified in this important new work. It is a book not merely for the scientist but for the active administrator; and above all it is a book for the men and women who have begun consciously to think and feel and act within the pattern set by their region."

Irrigation of Straw Berries Paying Idea

COLLEGE STATION. — Irrigation of strawberries will pay dividends, J. F. Rosborough, horticulturist at the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, believes.

After the crop is harvested it pays to irrigate in dry periods of the summer and fall, Rosborough said in quoting tests made in North Carolina by the state and the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Engineering and Plant Industry.

In the tests, the plots that received 2 irrigations, totaling 12 inches of water during dry spells last summer and autumn returned $78 more profit per acre than nearby check plots. There was no irrigation before or during the harvest season this spring.

The tests bore out results of similar tests of the year before, when berries that received 4 inches of water in three irrigations in the summer and fall of 1937 produced 375 quarts of berries per acre over the yield of unirrigated plots.

In most sections of Texas, the usual practice is to let the vines die in the summer and to buy new plants in the winter and spring. A straw mulch, plus irrigation as needed, will enable the vines to go thru the hot, dry weather in good shape. This practice should result, in stronger, healthier vines for transplanting, in addition to saving the expense of buying new plants, Rosborough pointed out.

Rules for Girls at University Looser

AUSTIN. — It is a far cry from the restraining tone of student regulation when the co-eds at the University of Texas were under the first dean of women to present day modified rules that govern them.

Found recently among papers in a file of Mrs. Helen Marr Kirby, first dean of women at the university, was a leaflet published in 1900, setting forth regulations for approved boarding houses for girls. Girls dormitories were at that time unknown to the university campus, young ladies then living in boarding houses under the jurisdiction of university rules.

In interesting contrast to regulations under which University of Texas girls now reside is the stipulation in 1900 that "callers will be received twice a week, on Saturday and Sunday evenings from 8 to 10:30." Present rules allow guests in the university dormitories and boarding houses after 4 p. m. on all week days except Saturday, when the visiting hours begin at 2 p. m. and after 12 noon Sunday.

In 1900, girls attending university entertainments were bidden to return to their boarding houses by twelve midnight. An extension of 45 minutes has been made since then, and the present deadline is 12:45; however, on the Saturday nights when there is no university sponsored dance or social, the 12 o'clock mark holds. Week night closing hour is 11 o'clock.

The old pamphlet reveals that the arm of the first dean of women was extended to govern activities which are today left entirely to the discretion of women students themselves. It says: "Sunday excursions, dining unchaperoned at hotels or restaurants, and riding in buggies are altogether objectionable. Sitting on steps and lingering about gates with escorts is discontinued by refined society and should be avoided by university girls."

The leaflet reflects the youthful and experimental stage of co-education in the university. In an introductory paragraph Mrs. Kirby asks university girls by their conduct, "to help establish the success of co-education."

The fishmonger who sold bad fish in the Middle Ages had to stand in public with his malodorous wares suspended beneath his nose.

Long-Range Bombers Enable Navy to Maintain Active Patrol of "First Line of Defense"

By HAROLD KEEN, NEA Service Special Correspondent, SAN DIEGO, Calif. — With daily crises in the Far East drawing attention to the Pacific, aerial patrol of America's "first line of defense" in that area is rapidly becoming a reality.

Almost 250 long-range naval bombing planes will be at their stations by the end of the year. The U. S. navy for the first time is in position to guard the long sea lanes that mean so much to defense of the vital west coast area.

Mass flights of bombing planes in the course of routine delivery to Hawaii and Panama—distances of from 2500 to 3000 miles—show that navy flyers would be able to pick out any attacking force approaching the United States from the west long before it neared continental United States.

Stationed in Hawaii, in the Canal Zone, Alaska, San Diego, Seattle, and all other vital and strategic points, these giant air cruisers with a range of 4000 miles could maintain a continuous patrol if necessary.

An enemy naval force planning a military landing in the United States would probably have to base on either Alaska, Hawaii, or the Mexican coast near where President Roosevelt spent part of his fishing vacation on the cruiser Houston.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IN WAR.

Consider a hypothetical situation of an enemy fleet moving toward Alaska to establish a base there. If it were not for the air force, such a fleet might stealthily draw so near the coast that it would be too late for the American fleet to intercept them. But with the long-range bombers on patrol, the situation is different.

A squadron stationed at the new air base at Sitka, Alaska, would undoubtedly, while on a routine patrol flight, note the strange war craft below. The alarm would be broadcast immediately. Every unit of the U. S. fleet would spring immediately to action.

From the Sand Point Naval Air Station at Seattle, and from the North Island base in San Diego

Latest acquisition of the U. S. Navy for its Pacific Patrol is this "flying battleship" which has an operating radius of 5000 miles and can make better than 200 miles an hour. This PBV-type ship carries thousands of pounds of bombs and can defend itself from any direction. Note the barely-visible machine-gun turret in the tail of the ship, and the glassed-in operating turret in the front, which connects with all parts of the ship by telephone. Unique also is the ingenious arrangement by which the wing-tips fold down to act as pontoons and "brakes" on landing, but can be retracted to form the end of the wing, giving greater lifting power in flight.

harbor, more patrol bombers would dash north to aid the reconnaissance. Within a few hours, the fleet commander-in-chief would have before him information on the number, types, armament, and strength of the enemy vessels, their direction, probable speed, and apparent destination.

Decks cleared for action, heading for a known area where it could meet the enemy, the U. S. fleet would dash to sea.

DEFEND EAST COAST, TOO.

The concentration of the navy's bombers in the Pacific defense area does not mean that the east coast is left helpless against a possible attack from that quarter. Three times during the past year, a demilitarized plane of the exact type the navy is now using has been flown by private citizens from San Diego to New York or Miami, crossing without a hitch the 3000 miles of terrain where a naval plane could find few landings.

That means that in less than 20 hours after need was apparent, naval bombers could leave their west coast bases, cross the United States, swoop down in eastern harbors, refuel, and proceed out to sea on their mission of defense.

The navy already has tested four-motored "air dreadnaughts" with such cruising ability that they could speed from San Diego to Hawaii, continue 1250 miles beyond in search of an approaching fleet, reconnoiter, drop bombs, and return to Pearl Harbor without a stop.

PATROLLING THE "FENCE."

The "defense frontier" of the United States in the Pacific is the longest in the world. Draw an imaginary arc from the Aleutian Islands off Alaska to Hawaii, then pointing west like a crooked finger through Midway, Wake, and Guam, and then slanting back southwest through Pago Pago, American Samoa, and back to the Canal Zone.

That is the front line of defense, which the development of the navy's long-range bombers makes it possible to patrol. Without denying that the fleet remains the backbone of the defense, the cruising bombers give that fleet a nervous system and an extended vision that greatly enlarge its strength.

Lee Heard Watered His Cattle at Famed Reagan County Well

One Midland man was active fifty years ago at "Old High Lonesome," watering place to be commemorated in the thirty-fifth birthday celebration of Reagan county at Big Lake August 19-20. Lee Heard, retired for several years because of ill health was operating cattle there in 1887 with his brothers, Allen and Jack Heard.

Other cattlemen, using the open range and watering at "Old High Lonesome" windmill, were Gordon Stiles and Sam Murray, who built the windmill; John Munday, Tom White and Lee Whitley; The town of Stiles, former county seat of Reagan, was named for Gordon Stiles who now lives at Mobeetie. Murray lives at Sheffield.

"Old High Lonesome" served as headquarters for a group of young independent cattlemen who had pooled their herds and ranged them together. At one time the combined herd numbered more than 100,000 and the cattle roamed the open range between the Colorado and Rio Grande.

The young ranchmen did well and developed large herds under their own brands and paid pro rata expenses of operation according to the number of cattle owned.

In the winter of 1893 the combine experienced a big "die-up" and the following spring lost 15,000 head of cattle. The group split up, each ranchman going his own way.

Pioneers recall at the time the group split up antelope and buffalo flourished and used "Old High Lonesome" as a watering place.

Gaming Equipment Seized, 5 Fined

Texas Rangers swooped down on a local tavern Tuesday night and confiscated a quantity of gambling equipment.

The raid was conducted under the supervision of Ranger Capt. Mamie Gault, veteran member of the ranger organization. Equipment seized in the raid was taken to Big Spring for temporary storage.

Charges of gaming were filed against five persons and all paid fines in justice of peace court. Those fined included Ray Roberts, Ed Moore, E. N. Woods, C. S. Beckler, J. R. Scott.

crooner, and other Hollywood notables will be aboard the special chartered airliner, which will arrive here early next Monday.

Governor Allred of Texas, Governor Tingley of New Mexico and perhaps Governor Lloyd Stark of Missouri will attend. W. Lee O'Daniel ("Pass the Biscuits, Pappy") has been invited.

Among the bands and delegations from the Great Lakes to the Pacific coast will be the famous Killies of Oklahoma City.

"Old Southwest Days," an historical spectacle, described as a million dollar show for 50 cents, will be the big feature of the celebration.

Colorful costumes, elaborate electrical effects, stupendous stage settings and a cast of more than 1,500 will be used to tell the Southwest's story, through which will be woven interesting incidents in the career of Will Rogers, once a cowboy on the plains of Texas.

Dignified business and professional men of Amarillo are in colorful cowboy costumes for the celebration. Those who are not get "dunked" in a cattle tank until they admit they're "all wet" and start wearing "loud" shirts and 10-gallon hats.

Demand for tickets to the spectacle has been so heavy in Amarillo special sections have been ordered set aside each night by Carl Hinton, national president of the highway association which planned the celebration.

Even the buildings in Amarillo have been dressed in holiday attire for the three-day fete.

Besides the parade and show, there will be a free barbecue Tuesday evening for old settlers of the Panhandle-Plains, polo games and cowboy pony races at 3 o'clock each afternoon on the Tri-State Fair grounds.

"WE'VE TRIED THEM ALL BUT PREFER DWIN FOR OUR OWN USE"

150,000 GROCERS CAN'T BE WRONG

Grocers, restaurants, hotels and other handlers of food, know insect killers. It is truly significant when such a great number of them select DWIN for their own use. Surely, there must be good reasons why grocers and other food handlers select DWIN in your best guide to adopt DWIN for your own use.

AS FRAGRANT AS FLOWERS IN MAY

Do as the grocer does — use DWIN in your home — (and in your garden) — to kill insects. Your grocer knows that DWIN is effective, pleasant to use — that it will not harm food or injure fabrics. "As fragrant as flowers in May" DWIN leaves a delightful floral fragrance in rooms. Buy it in the green can from your grocer, drug, hardware or department store. Try a can today.

water and is now standing while cement sets. It had swabbed only one-quarter barrel of oil per hour, out 10 per cent with basic sediment and salt water, after acidizing with 2,000 gallons as 5.150.

Arrangements have been made to deepen a short distance in R. H. Gill No. 1 Gulf-S. J. Dixon, Yoakum test two and a half miles northwest of the Benett pool. This morning, it was drilling at 5,009 feet in lime, with 950 feet of sulphur water in the hole. The well had topped water at 5,434 and was making two barrels an hour when it shut down for orders at 5,505.

Shell No. 3 Roberts, in the Roberts area of Yoakum, is unloading hole after acidizing with 3,500 gallons at 5,156 feet. It flowed 12 barrels an hour for five hours after first 1,500 gallons, a decrease under the 17 barrels an hour it made naturally.

Martin Test Abandoned.

W. D. Anderson No. 1 J. R. Vance, Martin wildcat, has been abandoned at total depth of 4,005 feet in lime. Depth at that point was corrected from 3,985. The well filled 400 feet with sulphur water in 24 hours, encountered from 4,000-05.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Your Money's Worth At Your Hotel

Hilton Hotel guests usually pay less than guests of other first-class hotels. You are never charged extra merely because the hotel is first class.

When you pay two dollars for a Hilton room, for instance, or 50 cents for a meal—you know you are not paying for anything you will not get.

The sense of well-being that goes with staying at the Hiltons—that costs you nothing.

This thing of minimum cost for maximum quality and service is a fairly new idea—introduced to Texas by the Hilton Hotels.
