Third String Pups Play Friday Night

Seminole Club to Give Opposition To the 'Nubbins'

The Midland high school "Nubbins" third string football team members, will get their second test of the year here Friday night at 7:30 when they tackle the Seminole Indians.

The Nubbins, coached by J. C. (Big Jim) Moore, lost their first game of the season last week when they were on the short end of a 27-0 score with the Rankin high school first team but are expected to be quite a bit improved in the go here.

At the same time of the Rankin game the boys had been playing together only about three days and only had about that many plays in their bag of tricks.

The brunt of the offensive work in the Seminole game for the Nubbins will probably be carried by Fullback Williams, a boy who is not eligible for the first team. Williams has shown that he can use a pair of wide shoulders and stocky legs to the best possible advantage in spitting a line and is a fair punter and blocker.

School officials have announced a charge of 10 and 25 cents would be charged for admission to the game.

Bears Preparing to Meet Okla. Aggies In Wichita Falls

WACO. — The Baylor Bears, over their first hurdle with Southwestern last week, turned their attention to their battle with the Oklahoma A&M Aggies in Wichita Falls Friday night.

Aiming at their perfect record of not having lost a nocturnal game in the history of the school, the Bears are not expected to have very much trouble with the Aggies who were handed a 27 to 7 setback at the hands of Arkansas the past week.

Coch Morley Jennings was highly pleased with work of his sophomores in their opening game and is expected to give them plenty of service before they hit their conference schedule the week following the Aggie tilt.

Defensive play was the thing that Jennings talked the most about. At the beginning of the fall training, the Bear mentor said that the team would be a great defensive aggregation and in the opening game against Southwestern, the Bruin forward wall allowed the invading Pirate eleven but 24 yards from scrimmage and at the same time stopped the Southwestern backs for losses amounting to 31 yards during the encounter.

Heading the list of prize sophomores is James Witt, halfback from Bryan who led the ball carriers in the first game. A hard running back who can also pass and kick above the average, Witt carried the ball 16 times for an average of six yards a try.

For the first time in several years, the Bears concentrated on a running game instead of their aerial tactics in Jennings determination to weave a strong ground attack to go with the Bear's overhead play and at last week's contest the ground game accounted for four of the Bruin's five touchdowns.

Frog Coaches Work To Improve Ground Gaining Tactics

FORT WORTH. — The T. C. U. Horned Frogs are on the run! Not FROM the Arkansas Razorbacks but THROUGH them (they hope).

Disappointed in their running game against Centenary, the Frogs are working earnestly and diligently all week, trying to perfect a ground attack that will go against Arkansas.

Then, too, Coach Dutch Meyer is looking for a cure for the "goal line jitters." Penalties and fumbles at critical moments cost the Frogs better than 100 yards, deep in Centenary territory, in their first game.

On the defensive side, the Frog strategy staff, is working particularly on ways and means of stopping Razorback Kay Eakin's tosses.

"Eakin is carrying on in the air right where Sloan and Robbins left off," was the report the Frog scout brought back.

The T. C. U. coaches are reasonably well pleased (as pleased as coaches ever permit themselves to be with a tough game coming up) with the Frogs' passing and kicking, as illustrated in their first game.

The Frogs passed for a 500 figure against Centenary (12 out of 26) and kicked for a 41-yard average.

The booting is in the hands (or should it be, feet?) of Sophomore Connie Sparks. He was master of the situation all the way in his first time out, and if he lives up to that promise Coach Meyer can be happy about the punting for the first time in two seasons.

Saturday's game will mark the sixth consecutive year that T. C. U. and Arkansas have led off in conference competition. The other five teams will be busy with intersectional affairs.

Aggie Defense Not Suitable to Norton

COLLEGE STATION. — Although his Aggies swamped Texas A. and I., 52-0, this past Saturday, Head Coach Homer Norton was not pleased with the way the Cadets functioned on defense and plans to drill on that phase of play this week. "Offensively we did about what might be expected in a first game," he said, "but defensively we

H-SU Cowboy Back Grooms for Centenary

W. J. Ford, 190-pound sophomore fullback from Wheeler, Tex., is expected to spearhead the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy attack in entertaining the Centenary Gentlemen at the annual H-SU homecoming, in Abilene, on Saturday night, October 1. Ford, successor to Ed "Catfish" Cherry, Shamrock powerhouse, cuts a few capers in cowboy regalia, with ten-gallon hat, chaps, and spurs added to cleats, before getting down to more serious business, as Coach Frank Kimbrough drills his cowhands for what looms as a major early season battle for West Texas grid fans.

can stand a lot of improvement." "On first thought, most anyone would say we have a very strong team because we won by 52 points, but when it is considered that A. and I. was in bad shape physically and short on reserves for important positions, it can be seen it was not that we were so strong as much as that they were weak. At times they had a starting tackle and a starting guard shifted to the backfield. This weakened their line and at the same time did not give them a strong set of backs. They deserve credit for the showing they made against us," Norton said.

Asked about the prospects for winning from Tulsa, the Aggie mentor answered that Hurricanes have two stars in Morris White, who is an ace passer, and Tommy Thompson, who scouts report is "double fast." "Those boys are liable to cause us a lot of trouble. On top of that Coach Vic Hunt takes delight in winning from Southwest Conference teams and the game at Tyler next Saturday looks to me like a close one."

Parents Often Promote Bad Food Habits of Children

Editor's Note: The following paper on "Good Food Habits" was presented by Mrs. E. H. Ellison at the weekly health program broadcast over station KRLH this morning. Source of the paper was the Kansas State Board of Health.

Does your child say "I don't like carrots," "I won't drink milk," or "I can't eat oatmeal?" If he does, it is almost a certainty that he has heard his parents or other members of the family say those same things. Children are great imitators, and that is precisely the manner in which early food prejudices are formed. These are incorrect and harmful food habits, and can be stopped as easily as they are started, when children are small. As they grow older, the problem becomes more difficult.

The first step in forming good food habits in children, is to prepare food that is good for them. Before a child is weaned from the breast or bottle, it is recommended that they be offered a little of a wide variety of suitable foods. These foods are ordinarily given and taken on with no difficulty, and the baby acquires a liking for many foods that are highly beneficial to him. His early life depends upon good, wholesome milk, and the habit of drinking milk should never be interrupted. This is true because milk contains so many elements essential to a well balanced diet, and makes up for many diet deficiencies present in the average meal.

Regularly in feeding a child is very important. A hungry child is bound to be cross, and the same temper will be true of a youngster who has over eaten. Feed your child at the same time every day and see that his hands are clean before he eats. Make the table attractive, seat the children quietly and serve each one a little of the food. Eat a portion of everything yourself and never express a dislike for any article of diet that is on the table. Never ask a child if he likes rice, or whatever is being served. His only thought is, "I am hungry—here is food—I will eat." If you present a question concerning the meal, he is as apt to have a negative reaction as a favorable one. And he will adore the attention he receives if he happens to make a negative statement. It is wise to omit all discussion of the food.

If your child refuses to eat, pay no attention to him whatever. Let him leave the table and go without his meal, but never feed him between meals. The chances are that his next meal will be very welcome. If he refuses the next meal, follow the same procedure. No child has ever missed two meals with any dire results. It will not hurt him to miss three meals. Do not be alarmed and make a fuss over the child. His behavior will be a certain bid for attention if you give him the center of the stage and make him the leading actor. However, if such distaste for any food whatever continues—call a physician, the child may be getting sick. Ordinarily, missing one meal will be sufficient to make the child willing and eager to eat, and no fuss about the matter, on the part of the parents, will make the incident readily forgotten by the child.

If you feed your child after he is two years old, you are training him parents is far from negligible. What do you do to make meal time a quiet, happy time? As we have said before, the first consideration must be the preparation of correct, wholesome foods. Mothers who are uncertain as to just what foods she should serve her family may obtain helpful booklets giving this information by writing to the Kansas State Board of Health. These booklets will be mailed, free of charge, upon request.

The table should be attractively set. No matter how plain or simple the table supplies are, if the linen is clean, the arrangement of silver, dishes, glassware and food is orderly and inviting, the whole family will eat the meal with relish and enjoyment, and will derive more benefit from the food that is consumed, than if the table is disorderly and unappealing even though the food itself may be wholesome.

Never allow dissension and argument at the table. Indigestion quickly follows emotional disturbances of any kind. Always allow plenty of time. It is typical of Americans that the breakfast is swallowed on the run, and therefore it is a meal of little value. Your child will follow the example of his elders in this respect too. He will gobble his food and run out to play or to school, and thus be robbed of a large portion of the nourishment he would have obtained from exactly the same amount of food, eaten in a quiet, leisurely manner.

In regard to a child's food habits, let parents bear in mind the fact that they are his teachers.

FEMININE FANCIES by KATHLEEN EILAND

The hooped skirt, the Jezebel frock, and the short white fur coat for evening wear are the three trends of the season so far as fashions go, a women's clothing retail merchant tells us. Most of the hooped skirt frocks may be worn with or without the hoops. Charming example of the new style is a black taffeta whose hooped skirt is looped up in front over crescents of white lace ruffles on a petticoat beneath. It needs only short puffed sleeves and a nosegay of pastel flowers at the décolletage to make it an enhancement of girlish winsomeness.

What's more, those of us who find it advisable to wear again this winter this blouse and that skirt and the other jacket left over from last year will find more-and-better colors edict something to rejoice over.

CONOCO BRONZ-Z-Z "Good little bunnies, both of you, to stop and look before leaping this road. Always play safe, because even nice long ears like yours can scarcely hear cars that are powered by Conoco Bronz-z-z gasoline. It certainly sets us a good example, the way it runs and runs without getting all used up." CONOCO FROM YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT
