THE FORECAST
West Texas: Fair, killing frost tonight; Tuesday fair, warmer.

VOLUME X (AP MEANS ASSOCIATED PRESS) MIDLAND, TEXAS, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1938 Number 209

Entire State Held in Grip of Winter

WARMER WEATHER FORECAST IN AREA

By Associated Press.
No part of Texas today had escaped the first wintry invasion, accompanied by snow, sleet, hail and frost. An inch-deep blanket of snow overspread the plains around Lubbock, where an 18-degree temperature was recorded. Snow there and in many points of North Texas was the earliest November fall in weather bureau history.

Childhood had an inch of snow and 22-degree weather. A heavy rain soaked farmlands and ranches of every section excepting the North Panhandle and upper Rio Grande valley, averaging two inches in some sections. Brownsville reported 48-degree temperature while San Angelo recorded 30 with killing frost.

The first freeze of the winter hit Midland last night on the heels of a stiff north wind, rain, sleet and snow. The mercury tumbled to 25 degrees in the early hours of morning but had warmed up to 45 degrees at noon today.

The mercury stayed around 40 degrees throughout most of Sunday and started dropping last night about 7 o'clock when a north wind struck. About two hours later, rain fell for a few minutes, then sleet for approximately 15 minutes and snow fell for about one hour.

This morning, a thin layer of snow covered practically the entire town. However, it melted rapidly as the sun came out and temperatures started rising.

The freeze was not believed to have seriously damaged late feed that has not yet been harvested due to the short duration of it. Fairer warmer weather has been forecast for this area tonight and tomorrow. Reports indicated that the snow and cold were general over this area. Odessa reported sleet and snow with below freezing weather, as did Stanton.

TORNADO WINDS HIT WEST COAST
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7. (P.)—Wind, whipping the Southern California coastline today at velocities reaching 70 miles an hour, left in its wake damaged orchard crops, wrecked small boats and battered communication lines.

Odessa Football Player to Recover From Broken Neck
ODESSA, Nov. 7 (Special).—Russell (Easy) Wilkins, member of the Odessa High school football team, who received a broken neck in the game Saturday with Austin high school of El Paso in the border city, was reported out of danger today.

Wilkins received his injury on the second play of the last half of the game. He was immediately taken to a hospital and physicians said the break was clean and that recovery was almost certain. However, he must remain in the hospital for at least six weeks, it was reported.

The Odessa team was in its worst physical condition of the year in being defeated, 39-0, by Austin. Halfback Caudle was able to play only a part of the game because of an attack of nervous indigestion and Lineman Webb was not able to play at all because of a throat infection.

Midland Couple Returns From Trip
Mr. and Mrs. W. Ily Pratt returned Saturday from a 10-day vacation trip to the gulf coast and other places in Texas.

They visited in Galveston and Houston, finding the weather pleasant and the blooming hibiscus shrubs one of the noteworthy sights of the cities.

They went to the gulf by way of Austin, visited Port Arthur, and returned by way of Bryan, where they visited their son Bill in A. & M. college.

They also went to Stamford, their former home, before returning to Midland.

Negro Sentenced to Life for Murder
BAIRD, Nov. 7. (P.)—Lennie Mitchell, negro, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the slaying two years ago of City Marshal Chester Hutcheson of Merkel.

Congratulations To:
Mr. and Mrs. Doyle

Fruit, on the birth of a daughter in a Midland hospital Sunday afternoon. The baby has been named Lona Ione.

Free 6 Months

With two and one-half years of a 25-year sentence served, Phil Kennamer, son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, is pictured leaving state prison at McAlester, Okla., to begin a six-month conditional parole. Judge Kennamer told prison officials his son's mother was seriously ill. In a sensational trial at Tulsa, young Kennamer was convicted of killing his friend, John Gorrell.

Judge Gives CIO Right to Work In Jersey City

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 7. (P.)—Federal Judge William Clark, putting into effect his decision upholding the right of CIO and allied organizations to function in Jersey City, signed an injunction today granting them a privilege to hold meetings in the streets as others are allowed to do.

Clark, neither in the decision of the injunction, upset a city ordinance requiring a police permit for a public meeting.

Jewish Youth Shoots Nazi Embassy Aide

PARIS, Nov. 7. (P.)—A 17-year-old Polish Jew, declaring he had come here to avenge countrymen expelled from Germany, today shot and gravely wounded Ernest von Rath, 32, secretary of the German embassy.

The assailant, giving the name of Herschel Grynszpan, was captured by embassy attaches and surrendered to police.

Von Rath, nephew of the late Roland Koester, former German ambassador to France, was taken to a hospital where bullets were removed from his abdomen and shoulder. Two shots were fired.

C. C. Committeemen Meet in the Morning

Members of the retailers' committee of the chamber of commerce have been called to meet at the organization's office in the Hotel Scharbauer at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Discussion of the holidays to be observed for the remainder of the year will be held. A full attendance has been urged by manager Bill Collins.

Don't Miss It
Starting today, The Reporter-Telegram will publish a picture story of "The Citadel," adapted from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film of A. J. Cronin's famous novel. Pictures are by Frances Barbour. Don't miss the fascinating story of the young physician in a South Wales mining town and the struggles and hardships he undergoes before he finds his true place in life. The film will be at the Ritz this month.

Two Parties 'Set' on Eve Of Elections

Republicans Claim 6 or More Senate Seats Will Be Won

By Associated Press.

Oratory of an exciting election campaign faded into the background today while party workers took over the task of getting the vote out tomorrow.

They wanted to obtain a record "off-year" turnout of more than 40,000,000 voters.

Not even the most optimistic republicans hoped to overturn the huge democratic majorities in the senate and house. They forecast democratic losses of six or more senate seats and 75 in the house.

Texas may vote from 7 a. m. until 7 p. m. but can't purchase beer

R. W. Hamilton, chairman of the county democratic executive committee, today urged a heavy vote in the general election tomorrow by all Midland county voters, pointing out that the number of delegates allowed Texas at the national democratic convention next year will depend upon the number of democratic votes cast Tuesday. Interest in the democratic national committee has been heightened by the possibility of a Texan, Vice resident John Garner, being the democratic nominee for President.

or whiskey in an inn, hotel or package store between 7 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Chairman John L. Lewis of the CIO urged labor's millions yesterday to vote for "proven friends" of the New Deal's social legislation.

He spoke while the national political campaign entered its phase. Tomorrow the nation will choose 35 senators, all but three members of the House of Representatives, and 32 governors.

In the outcome, many expect to find important signs—indicators of what the people now think of the Roosevelt administration and hints of what may happen in 1940, when a President will be elected.

For, obviously, the New Deal and its policies are the first issue of the campaign, and, in addition, numerous keenly fought local election battles involve the political ideas of men frequently mentioned as Presidential possibilities.

Lewis' direct entry into this situation was a surprise to some students of politics. Between the labor leader and the White House things have not always been serene and peaceful. He once denounced the President's action in criticizing both employers and labor at a time when the CIO was engaged in one of its most controversial strike situations. And at the same time he warned "labor's so-called friends" that there would be a reckoning on election day.

Pemberton Speaker at Garden City Lodge

Dr. L. B. Pemberton, Midland dentist, was speaker at a meeting of the Garden City Masonic lodge Saturday night, the occasion being the official visit of Roy McKee, district deputy grand master. Others from Midland attending the session were C. E. Nolan, R. A. Whitson and Horace Newton.

Welles Declares U. S. Will Defend All The Americas

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. (P.)—Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State, gave the world fresh notice last night the United States was preparing not only to defend itself but to aid in keeping the entire Western Hemisphere safe from any threatened attack.

In an address prepared for broadcasting over a nation-wide network and to South America, the State Department official appealed for inter-American solidarity at a time when "the doctrine of hatred is threatening civilization."

"Territorial integrity and individual liberty may depend upon continued close relations between the American republics," he said.

"As a nation," Welles asserted, "we will assure ourselves that we are in a position to defend ourselves from all aggression from whatever source it may arise, and to be prepared to join with our fellow democracies of the new world in preserving the Western Hemisphere safe from any threat of attack."

NLRB Official Is Declared Author Communist Book

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. (P.)—J. B. Matthews told the house committee investigating un-American activities today that David Saposs, identified as chief economist of the labor relations board, was the author of a text book used in a communist workers school in New York.

Matthews, describing himself as an independent writer of Washington and New York, testified earlier he and Heywood Brown, newspaper columnist, formerly were "closely associated in five communist united fronts."

Judge Sarah Hughes Gives Impression of Sincerity, Justice

BY KATHLEEN EILAND.

She looks like her picture published in The Reporter-Telegram Friday and she talks as all the stories about her fearlessness, quick-thinking, and colorful personality would indicate—that in three clauses is the impression made by Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas in a brief interview during her visit here Saturday.

Hearing her express her beliefs decisively and honestly, one understands the reputation she has gained for impartiality and clear-cut intelligence on the judicial bench. Yet somehow, no matter how weighty the subject discussed, the brown-haired little judge does not lose the appeal of genuine womanliness. Friendly, with the charm that comes of liking people, and quick to laugh, she gives the impression of wholesomeness, sincerity, and brilliant mentality.

How It Began.
She was asked the timeworn question that every public celebrity is asked dozens of times, what caused her to enter her chosen profession.

A certain amount of hero-worship must be in the soul of the level-headed little jurist for she admits that she had a cousin several years her senior who was studying law when she was quite young. She thought the cousin just about perfect and decided she would like to practice law also.

She did not achieve her present successful niche in the legal profession at one leap. Neither did she enter the profession in that way. After graduating from college, she taught school for two years and then, to help pay expenses in law school, became one of the policemen of Washington, D. C. Reminded (rather perky perhaps) that she looks too small to be a policeman, she explained that she did not carry a gun.

In her senior year at law school, in the District of Columbia, she married her classmate, George Hughes of Palestine, Texas, who brought his bride back to his native state. The two set up a law office in Dallas and little "Miss Sally" as she is sometimes called, was launched in her chosen profession.

The next exciting step up was when she was elected to the legislature. During two terms and part of a third (she was appointed to the district judgeship early in her third term), she won a name for herself in the Texas capital as fearless, clear-thinking, and on occasion (Judge Hughes) Page 6

Denver-Bennett Link Test Tops Solid Lime High At 4,560 Feet

By FRANK GARDNER.

Reported topping of solid lime high structurally by John E. Mabee No. 1-D Coline Oil Company-N. W. Willard, Yoakum wildcat a mile and a quarter southwest of the Bennett pool and four miles northeast of Denver pool production, featured today's developments in the North Permian Basin.

No. 1-D Coline-Willard, located 440 feet out of the northeast corner of the west half of section 741, block D. J. H. Gibson survey, topped the lime at 4,560 feet, datum of minus 1,004, which is said to be normal compared with west-side producers in the Bennett pool. It also is 102 feet higher than the solid lime top in Shell No. 1 J. M. Ruyts, drilling wildcat a mile and a half to the east, which topped it at 4,650, datum of minus 1,106. Drilling in the Mabee test this morning had passed 4,598 feet in lime.

Shell No. 1 Ruyts, in the northwest quarter of section 743, is drilling at 4,922 feet in lime. T. P. No. 13 Bennett, a pool well, is drilling at 5,115 in lime, while the company's No. 14 Bennett cemented 10-inch surface pipe at approximately 300 feet with 175 sacks and is standing. Honolulu No. 5-678 Bennett is drilling at 4,335 feet in anhydrite.

T. P. No. 1 Hall estate, northeast edge Denver well, stopped drilling at 5,130 feet in lime and is running tubing.

Tops Delaware Sand.
Delaware sand was topped at 5,135 feet by Ohio Oil Company No. 1 Popham, southern Reeves county wildcat, section 18, block 54, township 1 south, T. & P. survey. At last reports the well was drilling ahead at 5,140 feet in sand, with no shows logged. It had topped Delaware black lime at 4,940 feet.

In western Pecos, Humble No. 1 A. H. Robertson was coring below 5,303 feet in search of top of Delaware sand. After topping black lime at 5,251, it was cored from 5,290 to 5,303, recovering 13 feet, all black lime.

PitzPatrick et al No. 1 Dyer, western Ward Delaware test, was scheduled to resume drilling at 5,145 feet today after an overnight shut-down. It was making an estimated 1,000-2,000 cubic feet of gas, having logged increase at 5,143, where slight show of oil also was found. First gas in the Delaware sand, struck at 5,132, had decreased to about 800,000 feet daily when the increase was encountered. The well topped black lime at 5,080 and sand at 5,110 feet. It is in section 135, block 94, H. & T. C. survey.

Wasson West Extender.
Harry J. Brown No. 1 A. L. Wasson, extending the Wasson pool of northwestern Gaines a mile west, flowed 182 barrels of oil through tubing in 11 hours following second stage treatment with 3,000 gallons.

First was with 1,000 gallons. The well is being reacidized today with final stage of 5,000 gallons. Total depth is 5,010 feet.

Adams & Bradley No. 1 Ohio-Glenn Central, central Gaines wildcat seeking three-mile north extension of the Seminole pool, was scheduled to set surface pipe today at around 250 feet.

Magnolia and Atlantic No. 1 Havermyer & Jenny, on the northeast edge of the pool, is drilling at 4,500 feet in anhydrite and lime.

Texas No. 1 H. A. Boyd, southeast Cochran wildcat, is trying to force stuck drillpipe, bottomed at 4,320 feet in lime and anhydrite.

Snowden & McSweeney No. 1 Slaughter, east-edge test in the Slaughter pool of southwestern Hockley, is shut down after swabbing 103 barrels of salt water and 17 barrels of oil through casing in 24 hours. It is bottomed at 5,088, plugged back from 5,096 and has been acidized.

Means Pool Spread Southeast.
Humble No. 51 J. S. Means gave the Means pool of northern Andrews a quarter-mile south and east extension when it flowed 29 barrels of pipe-line oil hourly on gas-lift following second stage of 3,000 gallons. It had flowed seven and a half barrels of oil per hour after being shut in for three hours following recovery of load and acid water from first 1,000-gallon job. However, it failed to flow after being shut in for seven hours following the second treatment. Total depth is 4,512 feet in lime, and 2-inch tubing is set at 4,495.

H. C. Wheeler No. 1 White & Shelton, four miles west of the Means pool, is reported to have swabbed 33 barrels of oil in 24 hours after re-running 2-inch tubing to 4,811 feet off bottom. Before re-setting tubing, it had bled a barrel of fluid per hour, 90 per cent oil and the rest water. Hole has been given a 1,000-gallon acid shot.

Texas No. 1-H State, three and a half miles to the southwest, is drilling at 4,516 feet in lime, unchanged. It had tested two gallons of oil per hour at 4,486 feet.

In southern Andrews, Wentz No. 1 W. F. Cowden estate is drilling at 4,098 feet in lime, with no shows reported.

Great Western Producers No. 1 O. B. Holt, west offset to Rogers & Rogers No. 1 Holt, southern Andrews discovery, is drilling lime at 4,265 feet, with no shows logged.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

Speech Not Completely Free Isn't Free at All

By BRUCE CATTON.

It is only to be expected that the silliest of all definitions of free speech should come out of the bailiwick of Hague of New Jersey.

This definition was voiced by Col. Hugh Kelly, secretary to Governor Moore of New Jersey. Addressing a pro-Hague rally the other afternoon, Colonel Kelly declared:

"There is only one problem to free speech, and it won't take me 15,000 words to explain it. By free speech, the Founding Fathers meant a man should say what he wanted to in his own home, as long as he didn't propose overthrow of the government."

And somehow this reminds us of an anecdote handed down from the strait-laced 1880s, when a very prim and puritanical fresh-water college in the middle west had an iron-clad rule against dancing.

According to this story, the dean of women in this college was having a meeting with the matrons of the women's boarding houses; and one matron said that a number of the girls liked dancing because of its gay, pleasant rhythm; would it be permitted, after all male callers had left the building, for such girls to dance a bit with each other?

The dean pondered, then delivered herself solemnly. If any girl, she said, felt that she simply must dance—if the urge to express herself rhythmically was just overpowering—let her retire to her own room alone, lock the door and pull down the shades. There, in private and solitary splendor, she might legally dance to her heart's content. But not otherwise.

Between these two positions there is an amusing parallel.

The parallel lies not in the fact that each person contrived to take a ridiculous attitude, but in the fact that each one obviously had no use whatever for the activity under discussion. The 1880 dean clearly disbelieved in dancing, flatly, finally and completely; the New Jersey politician quite as clearly has an equally broad and uncompromising disbelief in free speech.

And while we have got past the time when all good people felt that a young person who danced was a young person whose soul was in danger, we still seem to have a number of citizens who entertain similar views about freedom of speech.

Not many people would go as far as Colonel Kelly, of course; yet his stand is simply the "I believe in free speech, but—" theory carried to its logical conclusion.

For the point is that if speech is not completely free it isn't free at all. Once you go beyond the ordinary restrictions which the libel laws and similar time-tested, fundamental statutes impose, you are heading straight for Colonel Kelly's goal. There is no valid halfway point.

SO THEY SAY

NO NEED FOR EXPENSE

(San Angelo Standard)

Prepared for presentation to the Legislature, according to a story from an Austin correspondent, are recommendations that will seek to change the laws touching adoption of children. The story said that the child welfare bureau, or whatever it may be called, had found that many adoptions had been and were being made not in compliance with the letter of the law. That district judges were lax in following the provisions as to length of time for investigation of the fitness of applicants to adopt children, and some other faults were mentioned.

The proposal, as set out by the correspondent, would place the investigations wholly in the hands of the Austin employees of the bureau. That would mean a large additional traveling and hotel expense incurred by investigators. The state spends too much already on traveling. There are too many traveling agencies and investigators and expenses.

Common sense would lead one to believe that local investigation of applications for adoption would be far better than those made by so-called experts from the capital city. Local people would be in possession of information that would never be given strangers, even though they came clothed with authority of the state. District judges, as a rule, are competent to handle adoptions, and as the judges would have to pass on all applications finally, it would seem to be an unwarranted additional expense to have a lot of investigators running over the state to do something that could be better done without their alleged training.

The law as it stands is ample. There is no need for the additional expense that would be incurred under the proposals that will be made.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The extent to which the European situation and the conflict between democracy and fascism is on the official mind crops out in every other utterance in Washington.

As President Roosevelt signed a proclamation reducing the postal rates on books to the rate for magazines, he observed: "They're burning books over in Europe. But as they burn them, we will extend the use of them."

Postage on books formerly was from 8 to 26 cents a pound, based on regional zones. Now books cost 1 1/2 cents a pound. Roosevelt was told that book sales would be increased by the lower rate and that half the population lived an average of 30 miles from any bookstore.

Congressman James M. Mead of New York, chairman of the house post office committee, and Attorney Morris L. Ernst of New York are chiefly responsible for the reduction.

THREE TIMES AND OUT

One of the most gracious ladies Washington ever knew has left government service with the retirement of Miss Mary M. O'Reilly, assistant director of the mint since 1924. She is 73 years old and the only reason anyone knows that fact is that her third extension of service beyond retirement age has just run out. Three times—an almost unprecedented number—a presidential order extending her term was granted on Secretary Morgenthau's insistence that she was "indispensable."

Various political appointees have had the title and emolument of mint director. Miss Mary, however, has run the mint for more than 20 years. Correspondents and others who wanted to know about coinage always were sent to her. Foreign governments often consulted her. Her ability, poise and charm made her a favorite of high treasury officials through several administrations. "I am getting rid of 33 years' accumulation of useless papers," said white-haired Miss O'Reilly with a smile as she cleared her desk on her last day. "I am now in my seventy-fourth year and when a woman gets to be that old, she shouldn't think of doing anything strenuous. My plans, therefore, are to read and knit and munch apples."

Harassed Horan. Harold J. T. Horan, once an ace correspondent in Europe and now stationed in Washington, has returned from a European vacation with word that the job of being an overseas correspondent has lost its glamor in most foreign capitals.

Campaign Cognomen. Among candidates for the Nevada state legislature this year is one H. E. Hazard, nicknamed "Hap." His friends think he should have been long ago in Washington, where his name could have been appropriately tagged on many acts of congress.

The newspaperman who writes "Unfriendly" articles from Berlin is likely to have trouble getting milk for his baby, let alone official news, says Horan. Other forms of pressure are exerted. Much the same sort of thing applies in Rome and other capitals, except London and Paris. Correspondents who use the mail often have found their letters were tampered with before they left the country.

Prodigal Returns. Professor O. M. W. Sprague, treasury adviser who quit early in the New Deal on a violent disagreement over policy, is back in the fold. He was called in as a consultant by the temporary economic committee conducting the monopoly investigation. Sprague says the national debt can rise from its present $38,000,000,000 to 50 or 60 billion without disturbing government credit. But he warns that deficits can't go on indefinitely.

Has Tonsillectomy. Mrs. J. T. Conner underwent a tonsillectomy in a Midland hospital today. She is reported doing well.

Undergoes Operation. Mrs. Eden Smith underwent an operation in a Midland hospital today. She is reported doing well.

Scout Troop to Meet. Boy Scouts of Troop 54 have been called to meet at the scout hall tonight at 7 o'clock for a special meeting by Scoutmaster Buster Howard. The meeting will be featured by several games.

Too Big for Phone Booth. CLEVELAND (U.P.) — When 250-pound Henry Wolkensdorfer, 57, suffered a heart attack while in a phone booth talking to his wife, two police ambulance operators found it necessary to tear down the door to extricate him. He recovered.

special observance. These include: March 2 — Texas Flag Day. March 2 — Sam Houston Day. August 12 — Texas Pioneer's Day. Week ending March 2 — Texas Week.

November 3 — Father of Texas Day, honoring Stephen F. Austin.

Members of the legislature who will gather in Austin early in January for four months or more of law-making will not face the difficulties which beset those legislators who performed substantially the same duties in November, 1934.

Mrs. Ham Ward, senate custodian, contrasted the two situations in quoting from a little red book, "with the makers of Texas," by Bolton and Barker, known to thousands of Texas school children, present and past.

In the book a correspondent in Austin wrote to the Houston Tri-Weekly Telegraph: "The legislature is still in session, but there is some talk of adjourning in the morning. I paid a visit to the capitol this morning every man was hard at work."

"Many of the members have been destitute of specie since their arrival, an they find it inconvenient in this country where nothing but specie is taken. But a few of the more knowing ones brought along some articles that were scarce here for the purpose of exchange. "One man brought some tobacco; another a keg of nails. All these articles proved to be a good legal tender and the gentlemen have made some profits besides. So many brought tobacco that the market is now overstocked and that article is now very cheap in the Hill City. "Some of the members camp out in their wagons. It is ludicrous to see an eloquent representative in the senate chamber all day, minding up corn dodgers in camp in the evening."

The annual convention of the Texas state federation of women's clubs will be held in the senate chamber of the capitol, an unusual but not unheard of thing. A number of years ago the federation met in the chamber. The state state democratic convention was held there in 1924, following the nomination of Mrs. Miram A. Ferguson for governor. However, such large meetings in the capitol are rare.

Permission to use the senate chamber for the main business sessions and the hall of the house of representatives for conjunctive meetings was granted federation leaders by Lieut.-Gov. Walter F. Woodul, who is president of the senate, and Robert W. Calvert, speaker of the house.

Social gatherings will be at the federation's clubhouse, about a mile from the capitol.

Newspapers from 24 foreign countries are received at the University of Texas library. Three arrive daily from France, four from England, one from Germany and one from Austria.

In Texas' suit against New Mexico over use of waters of the Rio Grande have been stopped until it can be determined whether a new version of the tri-state compact governing distribution of such waters meets approval of legislatures of Texas, Colorado and New Mexico.

The new compact, adopted by commissioners representing the three states, will be a subject for consideration by the Texas legislature which meets in January. It probably will be presented by Frank B. Clayton of El Paso, the Texas commissioner.

Assistant Attorney General Grady Chandler, who had charge of the litigation, which began in November, 1935, when Texas sought an order of the United States supreme court restraining New Mexico from violating an agreement over use of Rio Grande water says that in his judgement the new compact will be as satisfactory an arrangement as possible to work out.

"I think it would be as good as we could hope to obtain by a court suit," he said.

Until the legislatures act, hearings before an examiner of the supreme court have been discontinued. A number had been held, the first in Albuquerque, N. M., in November, 1936.

"There never will be enough water from the Rio Grande to meet the wishes of everyone," Chandler said. "But that isn't the fault of anyone. The new compact is a compromise toward which every state made contributions."

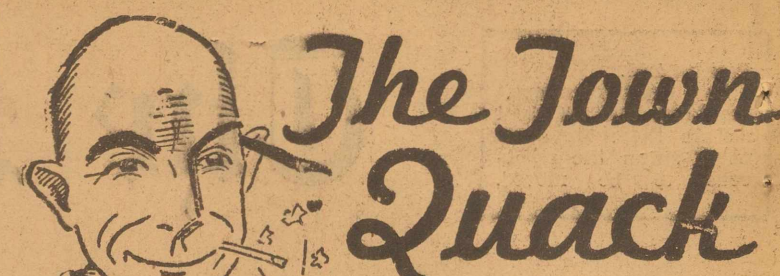

Senator-Nominee Doss Hardin of Waco, who has a twin brother named Ross in the House of Representatives, intends to do something if he can persuade the next legislature to go along with him, about court procedure in civil suits under which many special issues may be submitted to the jury.

"Submission to juries of cases to be decided on large numbers of special issues results in innumerable pervasions of justice," Hardin said recently. "Why, I have seen charges with as many as 100 special issues given to a jury, which is expected to arrive at the right answers in short order. Some charges would require at least a day for an expert lawyer to figure out, and some he probably would never understand."

Hardin said the charges should be simpler and of a general nature, in damage suits, for example, consisting merely in instructions to the jury to say whether the plaintiff was entitled to damages and, if so how much.

"The big insurance companies like charges with lots of special issues," Hardin continued. "Such charges have many holes in them and enable lawyers to beat around the bush."

"Sometimes the charges are so complicated jurors who want to give the plaintiff damages don't know how or think they have done so by the grown-ups to get too enthusiastic, thereby making the youngsters think the game is the most important thing in life. Football is just a part of what one gets in school and is badly over-emphasized. When a fine youngster like Wilkins sustains a severe injury, one which stands a chance to render him physically unsound for more than just his football days, it is easier to come back to earth and wonder whether the game is worth the price. At least, a boy doesn't have to be a football hero to be a potential top-citizen.

This winter snap must have set a record around here. Even Terry Elkin doesn't remember of as early a freeze or as early a snow as the sixth of November. When it freezes and snows before a frost, the weather man has got his signals mixed.

Service station employees over the city got called back on the job Sunday afternoon and night, trying to winter-proof the automobiles of owners who had planned to wait a while for the anti-freeze. Cars left out in the open, which were not drained or "winter-proofed," just naturally froze tight.

So much for football. A lot of papers are making too much over this game, just as some of them play up crime too highly. Football is a great sport, but it's easy for their verdict and find out they haven't."

Hardin said he would introduce legislation to abolish special issues and "give the little fellow in litigation a chance."

Gov. James V. Alford said the other day he would deliver a message on the condition of the state to the legislature soon after it convenes in January and at the time had not decided what he would say. Probably it will largely concern finances as many of his past messages have.

However, the governor admitted he didn't expect the legislature to be as interested in his remarks as it would be in those of the man who will take over the executive office Jan. 17, W. Lee O'Daniel.

"I like that idea advanced by someone," Gov. Alford laughed, "the one about ex-presidents forming a sort of advisory committee to the president. It might be applied to

Robert Howe Is Special Speaker At Senior Endeavor

"Forces That Make War" was the subject of study at the meeting of the Senior Endeavor of the Christian church Sunday evening.

John Pickering Jr. was leader. Discussing topics were: Billy Noble, Doris Lynn Pemberton, Rex Sackett, Paul Shipley, Elma Jean Noble, and Marvin Park.

Robert Howe presented a talk on his military experiences.

Song services and business meeting were other features of the evening.

Seventeen were present.

Junior-Intermediates

Mrs. Glenn Brunson presented the devotional following the opening song service at the meeting of the Junior-Intermediate Endeavor.

Taking part in the discussion of the topic, "Honesty," were Van Cummings, Betty Ruth and Eloise Pickering, Irvin Lee Reecer, Shirley Brunson, and Doris Howard, and Dale Mickey.

Following a business session, the meeting closed with the Endeavor benediction.

About 12 boys and girls were present.

FEMININE FANCIES

By KATHLEEN EILAND

There are some things we can reconcile ourselves to if we know they are inevitable. But cold weather isn't one of them. We've known all along these sunshiny days, with their pleasing warmth, would be gone with the wind sometime. But that doesn't comfort us one whit when we shiver forth to work, walking crunchily over snow that even SOUNDS cold.

Ordinarily we don't envy over-much those human birds of passage who summer here, winter there, and fit fitter and you in spring and fall. But a couple of genuine northerners are capable of convincing us that if ever we have all the money we need, we'll spend a sizeable part of it going south where it's warm in winter.

This Town Hall idea has our sin-

...cere approval. Midland has more cultural and educational advantages than does the usual West Texas town. Most citizens, especially the oldtimers, are proud (and justly, we think) of the musical elements here. But in one way, the town is lacking: There are practically no lectures available here. If an interesting visitor comes to town, he often speaks. But for the general public there is little opportunity to hear the kind of lectures that should be heard if mental activity is not to grow sluggish or non-existent.

The Town Hall, which interested citizen are now seeking to organize here, would remedy this lack by bringing nationally-known characters to speak before its membership.

If you want to keep abreast of current trends and enjoy listening to people who understand and explain them, then you are one of those who will want to join the organization and help make its creation here possible. Memberships must be acquired quickly, if a suitable series of lectures is to be

Attitude Toward Neighbors Subject Of League Study

Inez Pittman was leader for the Senior League study of the attitude of people toward their neighbors at the group's regular meeting at the Methodist annex Sunday evening.

Alvon Patterson and Lois Guffey made talks on the subject, Mary Ruth Roy read the selection from the Scriptures, and the leader read a poem as concluding number on the program.

Group singing was a feature of the evening.

About 20 young people were present.

After the program several officers of the League held a short business meeting with the president, Chas. Patterson, presiding.

Mrs. Leonard Sings Special Number for Naomi Class Program

Twenty-five members and five visitors were present at the meeting of the Naomi class at Hotel Scharbauer Sunday.

The class session was preceded by the serving of coffee in the Blue Room of the coffee shop. Special feature of the morning's program was a vocal solo by Mrs. J. B. Leonard, who played her own accompaniment.

Mrs. J. Howard Hodge taught the lesson on "Honoring Parents."

Mrs. L. H. Tiffin led the song service.

Offertory was played by Miss Frances Parham.

The lesson reading was presented by Mrs. Earl Griffin and the extract from the Scriptures by Miss Ruth Guy.

Representative of Cosmetic Line Here

Miss Mary Goodwin, representative of the Barbara Gould line of cosmetics, will be at the Midland drug store throughout this week, demonstrating use of the preparations.

Free makeup demonstrations are available to women of Midland if they will make appointments with Miss Goodwin by telephoning 258 or see her at the store.

Special offers are being made on certain of the Barbara Gould products and free prizes will be distributed with purchase of some of the cosmetics.

Flame-&Gold Allure

Sophisticated to the nth degree and even more alluring than more daringly cut evening gowns with nude décolletages, is this stunning creation in flame and gold lame. It has a slight train, draped bodice, low neckline, long, fitted sleeves, and it was shown at a preview of formal fashions that will be seen on society women and debutantes at the opening of the National Horse Show.

brought here. From the list of available speakers, we'd say it is worth any one's five dollars (even if it means going without some new article of dress) to hear the lecturers who would be brought here by the Town Hall.

Probably it is just another example of the triumph of comfort over vanity. Sweaters are usually vetoed for our personal wear as not being flattering enough for our appearance. But since last night's snow, we've decided that in a contest of warmth versus looks, warmth has the advantage. We have a sneaking feeling that the next addition to our wardrobe (if and when there is an addition) is going to be one nice, wooly, toast-warm sweater.

Guess we're just one of these weak sister who can't sacrifice our feelings even to appearance.

Colorado Hunter Gets Deer With Record Horns

Running Shot At 240 Yards Lands Prize

By ROSCOE FLEMING
NEA Service Special Correspondent.

DENVER.—Lawrence Roe is king of American hunters for this season and probably many to come.

"Dutch" Roe went hunting and knocked over the only buck deer he saw with a running shot at 240 yards.

The deer had the third widest horn rack of any mule-deer ever killed on the North American continent, the widest of any brought down this season.

Only for the fact that monarchs must battle to keep their thrones, Roe's kill would set an all-time world mark.

The spread measures 46 1/2 inches, but about four inches of a lateral point on the left side was broken off in battle. A Denver taxidermist is going to re-secure that point and give the head its original spread of about 50 1/4 inches . . . by far the widest ever recorded.

A deer killed in the Kaibab National Forest of Arizona and one brought down in Utah each had a spread of slightly more than 47 inches. The largest head brought in previously this season measures 47 7/8 inches. It is owned by a Pennsylvania collector.

The Colorado head has 24 points . . . 11 on one side . . . 13 on the other.

It is estimated that the animal would have scaled 410 pounds pig-dressed, or with the entrails removed, which would give him a weight of considerably more than 500 pounds alive.

HUNTER ROE WAS AFTER MEAT FOR THE WINTER.

Roe resides at Allenspark, a vacation and lumbering village that nestles 8600 feet up in the Roosevelt National Forest near the flank of Long's Peak on the Continental

Here is the third widest rack of horns on any muledeer ever killed on the North American continent . . . 46 1/2 inches . . . 24 points . . . 11 on one side . . . 13 on the other. The big fellow was brought down by Lawrence Roe, right, with a running shot at 240 yards in the Colorado Game Refuge.

Divide, 75 miles from Denver.

Roe wasn't interested in a record head. He was interested in meat for the winter, and in any kind of a head at all for his father.

He took his old 54 model, 220 caliber gun and with E. R. Rouse, a neighbor, drove across the Continental Divide into the Hot Sulphur Springs and State Bridge country of the western slope. They remained there until the 10-day season was almost gone, but the weather was so warm that the old men deer stayed up in the high forests.

With only two days of the season left, Roe and Rouse drove across the North St. Vrain Highway into what used to be part of the Colorado State Game Refuge. The refuge used to extend several miles farther east down beyond the foothills into cultivated country . . . almost to the towns of Longmont and Loveland.

But the Game and Fish Commission got tired of getting big bills for deer damage. Last year the boundaries of the refuge were hauled back well into the mountains. It was in this region that the big deer had made his home for 12 or 14 years.

BINGS DOWN DEER WITH 240-YARD RUNNING SHOT.

"I saw where the big fellow came down to get a drink," says Roe. "I could tell by his tracks that he was pretty big. I saw that he had gone off up a trail that led to a low sap in the hills about half a mile away. I stayed about 100 yards above the trail . . . upwind.

"When I came over the gap, I saw him. He was lying in a little open glade . . . a little more than 200 yards from me. I took my time and shot, but it was lowball, and I hit him high. He didn't much more than crease him. He was up and gone.

"I tried a running shot as quickly as I could slam another cartridge up from the magazine. I paced the distance later. It was about 240 yards, and I got him right through the neck.

"I'm pretty hefty and used to pitch lumber around, but I couldn't even stir that fellow. I only had my hunting knife, so out the head up as close as I could, and took the hind quarters."

Most regions of the United States still have their deer-hunting seasons to come, but it is unlikely that anyone will match Roe's deer this season or for years.

That Old Man Winter Is Here Again

The first blizzard of winter wasn't fooling when it swept across Minnesota, Wisconsin and northern Michigan, paralyzing transportation and communication. This scene near Prentice, Wis., shows broken telegraph poles and wires down along the snow-covered highway. Snow was eight inches deep in some sections.

Stanford Basketball Team Will Be Seen In Film at Yucca

The famous Stanford basketball team which brought three successive national championships to Palo Alto will make its local screen debut next Wednesday at the Yucca theatre, when Paramount's gay new college comedy-romance, "Campus Confessions," opens there.

In fact all my life there has scarcely been a day when I have not been torn between duty and desire. And so if love didn't lead me each Lord's Day to His house, duty would drive me there.

The Lord's Day is precious to me because it brings before my eyes the first appearance of my Lord after His resurrection. The early apostles met on the first day of the week to pay their homage. Can I do less? If I did, I would see His accusing finger pointed at me, and I would know I had failed Him.

PROCLAMATION No. 18647 BY THE

Governor of the State of Texas

To All to Whom These Presents Shall Come: The Congress of the United States of America having enacted Public Law No. 501, which was approved on May 13, 1938, making "November 11 of each year" a National Legal Holiday, dedicated to the cause of world peace . . . such being a public holiday hereafter "in the same manner as New Year's, Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, and Christmas"; and

The American Legion—an organization composed of American citizens who received an honorable discharge from the armed forces of the United States of America engaged in the World War which terminated soon after the signing of the Armistice between this Country and our Allies, and the Allies of the German Empire which became effective November 11, 1938—has called upon its membership of approximately one million in 11,458 communities in the United States and abroad to cause to be set aside the week of November 4-11, 1938, as "AMERICAN LEGION WEEK" in commemoration of the enactment of said law, the signing of the Armistice and the 20th anniversary of The American Legion, during which week its members are requested to arrange "Home Products Dinners" in their respective communities, featuring products of the State, inviting all World War Veterans to join and other citizens to participate, thus calling attention to the varied resources of our State in agriculture, stock raising, and the like, and at the same time focus the attention of the American Nation upon:

The "Peace Through Preparedness" crusade of The American Legion "For Enduring Peace";

The observance of National Education Week, which The American Legion has sponsored jointly with the National Education Association since 1921 for the purpose of raising the educational standards of our native-born, approximately two million of which become of voting age each year, and assisting the foreign-born to better assume their duties of citizenship; the necessity for eternal vigilance if our Country is to be saved from the onslaught of subversive groups;

The militant campaign for aid to dependent children; The child welfare, public health, highway safety, unemployment and youth activity program designed to minimize juvenile delinquency;

Twenty years of unrelenting effort in behalf of rehabilitating the disabled, adequate care of the widows, orphans and other dependents of those brave men and women who paid the supreme sacrifice;

And varied community service activities in time of disaster and other emergencies.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JAMES V. ALLRED, Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby set aside and proclaim November 4-11, 1938, as

AMERICAN LEGION WEEK IN TEXAS

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto signed my name officially and caused the Seal of State to be impressed hereon at Austin, this 29th day of October, A. D. 1938.

JAMES V. ALLRED, Governor of Texas.

3 Conference Games On Southwest Slate For This Week-End

FORT WORTH.—For the third successive Saturday three conference games are on the grid schedule next week-end. T. C. U. meets Texas in Fort Worth, A. & M. entertains Rice at College Station, and Arkansas comes to Dallas for an encounter with S. M. U.

Ray Blades Named Cardinal Manager

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7. (AP).—Ray Blades, a veteran of the St. Louis Cardinal farm system, Sunday was named manager of the St. Louis National League club for 1939.

Cadets being tough on their home sod.

Arkansas took the Mustangs by two touchdowns last year in Fayetteville and their attack is being doped to do just as well this. S. M. U. could beat Texas only 7 to 6 while Arkansas took the Longhorns 42 to 6. The signpost certainly reads "Razorbacks."

Local Chairmen for TCU Homecoming Saturday Chosen

FORT WORTH—Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Cassidy of Midland have been named as local chairmen for the annual Homecoming of Texas Christian University next Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11 and 12.
Class and group reunions, a general luncheon Saturday noon for all exes, the T. C. U.-Texas football game that afternoon, and a dance at the Casino, Lake Worth, are the high points of the program announced by Howard Carrell, general homecoming chairman.
"Indications are that we will have the greatest crowd in the history of T. C. U. football homecomings," reports Roy G. Tomlinson of Fort Worth, state president of the Alumni and Ex-Students' association.
Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy are two of 75 local chairmen appointed by President Tomlinson, to serve at various points throughout Texas in urging the T. C. U. exes to return to the campus for homecoming.

State Building Shows Increase

AUSTIN—Increased activity in building and construction in Texas during the months of July, August, and September is reflected in the establishment of a particularly large number of firms manufacturing lumber, mill work, roofing, brick, and other building materials, it was pointed out by Mrs. Clara H. Lewis, editorial assistant of the bureau of business research, University of Texas.
"The next largest group of new

Warning on Proper

Endorsements of

U. S. Checks Issued

Warning to business institutions concerning the cashing of government checks without securing proper endorsement has been issued by Joseph L. Brownlow, United States Secret Service agent, through Postmaster Allen Tolbert.
"The United States Treasury Department is now issuing a large number of government checks which will ultimately be presented either to merchants or to banks in the ordinary course of business. We call to the attention of the public at this time the absolute importance of requiring most positive identification of the persons presenting these checks. Assuming that a government check is payable to one 'John J. Doe' it becomes of great importance that no other person than 'John J. Doe' endorse or negotiate such check. If the person presenting the government check is not personally known to it is important that whoever identifies such person also endorse the government check for such purpose; this latter person should be reliable and financially responsible," Brownlow said.

"The suggestion is made that business establishments adopt a definite rule requiring every employee to initial all government checks tendered to them regardless of the fact that some person, other than the first employee, is charged with responsibility for 'OK-ing' such checks. This method will assist in later identification of the check and transaction in the event of claim or controversy.
"The government reserves the right to come back on the endorsers at any time—often many years after the transaction has occurred—hence this warning notice is more significant than for other types of checks which are usually cancelled and returned by the bank monthly or at short term periods.

"This information is released in order to call attention to this type of transaction which might otherwise not receive special attention.
"Do not cash any kind of checks for strangers, more particularly government checks. Demand and receive positive identification at all times before you extend such accommodations!"

Great Britain Is Caught Between Arab "Devil" and Jewish "Deep Blue Sea"

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON.—The dilemma of the man in the classic story who stood between the Devil and the deep blue sea is as nothing today compared with England's task, situated between Zionist Jews and Arab terrorists in its mandated territory of Palestine.

Whichever way the British cabinet decides to jump, it will be in trouble. Englishmen promised the Jews a home in their land of origin. But Englishmen also promised much to the Arabs. Now those two promises are clashing.

Under the watchful eye of a British soldier in the background, Arabs of the village of Hebron, in Palestine, are forced to remove a rock barrier placed across the road by a guerrilla band of their revolting countrymen. General harassment of this sort plus a rapidly mounting casualty list from violent Arab raids has forced Britain to put a major punitive force in Palestine.

The easier path for England would be to hand the mandate for Palestine back to the League of Nations. But that it will never do. Palestine means a lot in the British scheme of things. Palestine has excellent harbors for the British east Mediterranean fleet. The oil tank lines which pipe rich oil from the fields of Iraq end up in Palestine, where the oil is pumped into ship heading for England. Palestine, too, is a stopping place for commercial airplanes enroute to India and the Far East and an important base for military planes. England therefore has no intention of seeing this important little country fall into the hands of Mussolini or Hitler. England will stick, regardless of the cost.

In the meantime, it is employing 18,000 troops, 6000 police and increasing numbers of fighter and bomber planes to put down the Arab terror.

At one time the English thought they had found a solution in thus: The Arabs: "England has broken its promise to us about Palestine." The Jews: "England as a state, made the promise to the Jews. Only some army officers, without backing of their government, made the promise to the Arabs. The war which broke Turkey, has given the Arabs Iraq, Arabia and Transjordan lands enormously larger and richer in resources than little Palestine." The Arabs: "The Jews, with their money, are buying the choice lands and making Arabs poor and landless." The Jews: "Fifty-three per cent of the 320,000 acres we hold have been bought from absentee landlords and 25 per cent from rich Arab landowners. Much of the land we got was barren and was made fertile only by our labor."

That Arab rebels are no respecters of persons is evidenced by numerous attacks on British officials. So the Governor's residence at Hebron, Palestine, is, as shown above, heavily fortified with sandbags.

The Arab: "Even with immigration of Jews restricted partially, the Arab majority is apt to be swamped and become a minority."

The Jews: "In 1918 there were in Palestine 55,000 Jews, and 500,000 Arabs. Today there are 400,000 Jews and 900,000 Arabs. By our labor and by our modern methods we have shown how things can be done. In spite of the vast areas in other Arab lands, Arabs have moved into Palestine in swarms, having learned their agricultural and industrial lessons from us. In 1918 there were 6000 acres of orange groves. Now there are over 32,000 acres. In 1920 Palestine exported

1,000,000 cases of orange and grapefruit. In 1936-37, it exported 11,000,000 cases."

In the meantime, the Arabs openly admit they are employing terror "because that is the way to win things from England." It is strongly suspected that German and Italian money has its part in financing the uprisings. Hitler recently sneered at England's failure to settle the Palestine trouble. England has been slow to take too drastic action, because of the millions of Moslem subjects in its empire.

First and second prizes will be awarded. There will be no entrance fee. Sandwiches and other refreshments will be sold during the evening. The public is invited. The Halloween carnival held at the schoolhouse drew a good-sized crowd and was a success financially, sponsored by the PTA.

D. Montgomery and Mrs. Henry Locklar.

Everyone had to enter the house through the "Den of Horrors" and then went into the dining room where Halloween games were played and ghost stories told. A large crowd attended.

The race for new members in the Cotton Flat Sunday school ended with the women in the lead. The men, who were losers, entertained the winning side with a steak fry at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Merritt. Forty-nine persons were present at the supper.

They were: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Franklin and family, Joe Franklin of Big Spring, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Eckert and family, Misses Clara and Elsie Campbell, Andy Campbell, Glen Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Mat Koen and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Hines and family, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Merritt and family, Gerald Hyde, Thomas Padock, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Locklar and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Merritt and family, Mrs. G. Lear and family, Mrs. J. L. Locklar, Miss Elsie Zinn, Miss Lucille Wilmet, Rev. Boyd McCallion and family, Miss Christine Moore, Miss Myrtle Franks, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. casation caustic-tongued. Then Governor James V. Allred appointed her district judge at Dallas and so excellently did she fill the place that when she came up for re-election, she was returned to the office with an overwhelming endorsement from her fellow lawyers in Dallas.

But such facts are matter of common knowledge. What are some of the personal beliefs and ideas of Mrs. Hughes? (She is, thank goodness, not career-woman enough to object to her own legal title). Hard Work in Law. As to the opportunity which law offers to the women as professionals—The law is overcrowded, Every young lawyer, she explained, has a difficult time to succeed. He must work hard to achieve success. And for a woman, it is even more difficult to attain success.

She believes that there is no particular type of law practice especially suited to women—that a woman should follow her own inclinations in what kind of practice she wants to do. All Are People. "I'm a great one for feeling that you can't divide people into men and women," she said. "Every individual has his own particular inclinations and these inclinations are independent of his being a man or woman."

Of course there are qualifications for being a successful lawyer. First and foremost of these, the would-be lawyer should have a good education before attempting the study of law. Next he must have a logical mind, be willing to work hard and long hours, even be willing to give up pleasures in order to finish a case. He must have a sense of justice and fairness. And he must have a high standard of ethics.

As to the special goal of women in politics, she is of the opinion that there are "so many problems in obtaining full opportunity for women," an organization that is strictly for women would do well to make the obtaining of such their aim.

There are, of course, she continued, general economic and government problems but women should join with men in the handling of these.

The fiery quality of the dynamic woman judge comes out in her assertion that "I don't mind talking on controversial subjects. In Dallas recently, she has been surrounded by the furor raised on the question of the Armistice Day parade, though she raised the disturbance unintentionally.

She is strongly in favor of the right of women to serve on the jury. The two rights of citizenship are the right to vote and the right of jury service. If a woman has only one of these rights, then she is only half a citizen, Judge Hughes declares convincingly.

For Jury Service. She quotes various arguments against jury service for women: That women can't be away from their homes; that they might have to spend the night in the same room with jury men; that "the courthouse is no place for a woman," that women haven't the business experience needed for jury service.

Sarah Hughes has a ready answer for all these arguments of her opponents—and convincing ones they are. To mention only one, the last: "Most men are not versed particularly except in their own line of business," she observed. On a jury one needs to be of average intelligence and women have proved they possess this qualification. On her own side of the question, she contends that jury service brings women into closer contact with their government. And that it gives them contact with different classes, thus broadening and deepening knowledge and understanding.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling germ-laden phlegm.

The Medical Profession has for generations recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other

"I'm anaemic—got to have red meat y'know."

"Er—good morning, Miss."

"More hot water. Some cold water, too. Quick!"

"One more minute—then light the fuse."

At the age of twenty-four, the brilliant Andrew Manson (Robert Donat) accepts the first appointment of his career in the poor mining township of Blaenelly, in the South Wales mountains, as assistant to Dr. Page, an invalid. He is grimly amused when the vulgar, miserly Mrs. Page puts him on starvation rations.

On the street one day, Andrew meets Christine Barlow (Rosalind Russell) the local school teacher. He passes on but vows to know her better. His first case is puzzling but when he consults Philip Donny—a city surgeon who has come to Blaenelly to forget a faithless wife—he learns that his patient has typhoid.

Denny is all for dynamiting the foul sewers so new ones will be built but Andrew refuses. One night he is called out on a childbirth case. The baby is stillborn but through the night Andrew works over it frantically. He is rewarded by a low wail. The child lives. He has won. At last he can call himself a doctor.

Andrew's triumph fades however. Passing a house he sees a "wake," symbol of another typhoid victim. The local hospital facilities are inadequate and the authorities indifferent. That night he and Denny go out to dynamite the sewers. Denny waits in a doorway for Andrew's signal. Read the next dramatic episode.
