Pneumonia Season Starts This Month

AUSTIN, — "Though pneumonia may and does occur at all seasons of the year, the winter months see the With relatively few cases during the summer, an increase in pneumonia is observed with the advent of Fall. usually quite noticeable in Novem ber, which continues through December, January, February and March before the number of cases again declines to the "warm weath-er" level. The time is therefore quite short before the beginning o the so-called "pneumonia season," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health

"Lobar Pneumonia is an infectious disease. In well over 90 per cent of the cases it is caused by one of the thirty-two types of the pneumonia germ. Against some but y no means all of these varieties of the pneumoccus, serums have been developed which have proven extremely beneficial in the treatment of pneumonia cases caused by these particular types. In order that best results can be expected the serum must be given early. "Another remarkable advance-ment by medical science in its struggle with pneumonia was the perfection within the past several years of a method of quickly identiying the type of pneumoccus caus ing the illness in each individual case. Thus progress has been made but we are yet far from the goal.

"Consequently, the necessity of persons developing their natural defenses against all infections including pneumonia, is just as important and essential today as it "After all, many cases of pneumonia get their first start by way of a lowered bodily resistance which provides a fertile soil for the pneumoccus germ to produce the disease

"Regardless of the scientific progress thus far made, and regardless of the possible extension of their progress in predisposing causes will always remain the same "In many cases a cold is pneu-monia's forerunner. If one reason-

Farm Cash Income Shows an Increase

Farm cash income in Texas during September rose substantially over the preceding month, but the increase was less than the usual seasonal gain. As a result the index of farm cash income dropped more than three points from August to September. In comparison with September last year the drop in farm cash income was considerably more abrupt-from 83.4 a year ago to 66.3 during September of the current year or 25 per cent.

The computed farm cash income. exclusive of government subsidies, representing about 90 per cent of actual farm cash income was $75,-667,000 in September, compared with $100,957,000 during the corresponding month last year. During the base period upon which the index of farm cash income is computed (1928-1932) the average September farm cash income was about $114,-189,000. For the first nine months of the current year farm cash income as computed by this bureau was $274,648,000, compared with $368,331,000 during the corresponding period last year, a decline of more than 25 per cent.

The current relatively unfavorable showing of farm cash income Texas is mainly the result of the decline in production and price of cotton. Since this crop dominates farm cash income during this season of the year, unfavorable comparisons are expected to continue through October and November at

Adapted from the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture by FRANCES BARBOUR SYNOPSIS: Andrew Manson (Robert Donat) a brilliant young doctor, comes, with his wife Christine (Rosalind Russell) to London from the mining town of Aberalaw, South Wales, He continues with his research but is influenced by Freddie Parker, a society doctor, to take on a fat, easy practise in the West End. One day his friend Denny is run over. In the hospital Andrew sees him die, victim of a bungled operation by one of his "quack" colleagues. NOW READ THE LAST CHAPTER - BELOW

"It was murder."

"Forgive me, Denny."

Still in a fog, Andrew comes out of the operating room. Ivory is not a surgeon, he is a common butcher. Rumpled and haggard, Andrew wanders through the streets until he comes to his office. Then he looks at the Zeiss microscope that Denny had given him for a wedding present. Solemnly, he vows to be worthy of it.

For a whole week, Andrew stays away from his friends, even from Christine. But he comes to breakfast one morning, feeling refreshed, reborn. He must start over again with the ideals he once had. The answer is the form of a repull check from Miss. there in the form of a small check from Mrs. Schmidt. She begs him to take her hus-

"I hope—it's not too late."

"That lung must be drained."

Andrew rushes to the hospital and makes tests. Then he becomes enraged when he discovers the negligence of Dr. Thoroughgood, another fashionable West Ender. Quickly, he removes Schmidt to a private hospital and in a few months the man is cured. But Andrew is called before the Council for unethical procedure.

". . . I will work for the benefit of the sick . . ."

Refusing to defend himself, Andrew speaks bitterly of the evil practises of modern medicine. However, his fiery words save him from being struck off the rolls. Now, he and Christine plan their clinic. It is to be named after Denny. Very softly, Andrew repeats his Hippocratic oath and vows never again to forget it.
