State to Pave New Southeast Road 8 Miles

Contract to Be Let February 21, Says Bid Advertisement

Bids will be opened February 21, and contract let, for constructing 7.764 miles of caliche base and double asphalt paving on highway No. "F," leading southeast from Midland toward Garden City, according to advertisement of the State Highway Department in this paper today.

Grading, drainage and fencing of the right of way has been completed by Midland county a distance of seventeen miles, to the Glascock county line. The 7.764 miles represent the first segment, no definite date having been set for contracting the construction of the next ten miles. However county officials are hopeful that it will be included in an early appropriation.

Right of way has been secured for the road in Glascock county, according to advices here, with expectation that the construction will be continued rapidly to the southeast, giving an extension of highway 151 which has been completed northwest of Midland to intersect highway 58 and eventually will be built to Kermit.

Scale of wages for workmen on the new project are included in the department's advertisement for bids which will be opened at 9 o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, February 21, at the Austin offices of the State Highway Department. Plans and specifications may be obtained from resident engineer, S. C. Daugherty, at Stanton.

San Antonio Mayor Freed of Charges He Misused Funds

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 7 (AP)—In a turbulent courtroom scene that saw the judge driven temporarily from his bench by cheering, screaming spectators, Mayor C. K. Quinn, leader of Bexar County's political machine, Monday walked out of court freed of charges he misapplied public funds in the Democratic primary in 1938.

Quinn, beaming after District Judge R. D. Wright of Laredo dismissed indictments against the mayor and two city employees, L. P. Bishop and E. Neil Campbell, proudly announced he again would be candidate for mayor of San Antonio. He has held the office since 1932. Judge Wright held Mayor Quinn and his aides could not have misused $3,497 of public funds last July to pay some 400 political workers because the mayor does not have custody of public funds by virtue of his office. The court ruled that no criminal offense had been committed.

The indictments against Mayor Quinn and his two followers were in connection with alleged increased payrolls during the week of the Texas County Democratic primary. Maury Maverick, former congressman and implacable foe of Mayor Quinn, went down before Paul Kiday, brother of San Antonio's chief of police, Owen Kilday, in that election.

When the judge's ruling was given from the bench, bedlam broke loose in the courtroom as spectators screamed, applauded and stamped their feet. The crowd got out of hand and two balliffs escorted the judge to his chambers, where he walked several minutes before returning to the bench and dismissing the charges against Bishop, director of personnel in the municipal health department, and Campbell, municipal timekeeper.

"I'm not acting on a technicality," Judge Wright said in dismissing the indictments. "The trouble with this indictment is that another grand jury and the so-called proverbial Philadelphia lawyer could not make it any better than it is."

Concluding the "city depository is the legal custodian of the funds," Judge Wright suddenly announced "the motion to quash will be sustained."

Safety Council Will Hold Meeting Tonight

Members of the Midland Safety Council will meet in regular monthly session at the chamber of commerce office in Hotel Scharbauer this evening at seven o'clock, several highly important matters being scheduled for discussion. A full attendance of members is urged by Mrs. Don Sivalis, president.

Mooney Still Craves Freedom

For the 22 years symbolized by these pictures of Tom and Rena Mooney, prison bars separated them. Today, within a few short weeks of liberation, for which Mrs. Mooney fought untiringly, Mooney wants to let the divorce court make the separation final, thus adding a dramatic post-prison chapter to the American "Dreyfus Case."

Boy Scouts to Get Special Awards at Lions Club Meet

Eighteen Midland Boy Scout members will receive special awards at a Boy Scout Court of Honor ceremony staged at the regular weekly luncheon of the Midland Lions club in the assembly room of the Midland county courthouse Wednesday noon, the entire club program to be devoted to Boy Scouts. The ceremony, the first ever held before a Midland service club, will mark the inauguration of National Boy Scout Week, February 8 to 14, in Midland. The program is being arranged by John P. Butler, Lions club program chairman, and Rev. John E. Pickering, court of Honor chairman of the Midland District, Boy Scouts of America. Other Scout officials and club members will participate in the special program. Club officials today urged a full attendance of club members at tomorrow's luncheon.

Boy Scouts who will receive awards at the ceremony are: Bobby Park, Bert Allen Streeter, Wilford Lester, Billy Preskitt, John Sindorf, Bobby Stallworth, Roger Sidwell, J. C. Hejl, Homer Norman, Kenneth Taylor, Fred Arnett, Bob Dozier, Fred Gordon Middleton, Howard Ford, Mann Rankin, Clayton Upham, Wayne Lanham and Goodrich Hejl. The above list was announced this morning by Scoutmaster Buster Howard.

House Denies It Is Being Hostile To the Governor

AUSTIN, Feb. 7 (AP)—The house of representatives denied today it was "in open rebellion" against Governor O'Daniel and put itself on record as being friendly to the governor.

Sponsors of the resolution, adopted on an oral vote, said they wanted to correct an impression among the people that the house was hostile to the governor.

Meanwhile, the governor disclosed he was preparing "three or four" more messages to the legislature.

The messages, date of delivery of which are uncertain, will convey the governor's ideas on some consolidations which he thinks will be beneficial to agriculture, recommend elimination of many special funds in which the state keeps its money, and advocate abolition of the death penalty.

Attack Intensified Upon Appointee of Amlie to the ICC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7, (AP)—Critics of Thomas R. Amlie, president Roosevelt's nominee to the Interstate Commerce Commission, intensified their attack Monday after Amlie had defended himself with a denial he was a Communist and a statement he believed firmly in democratic principles.

Luther M. Walter, a Chicago transportation attorney and co-trustee of the Chicago Great Western Railway, appeared before a Senate Interstate Commerce Committee subcommittee to declare that the Wisconsin Progressive was a "plain political upheaver" bent on destroying the profit system.

"I can't believe that the President knew what this man believed in," the witness said. "He never would have sent his name in had he known."

William D. Carroll, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Wisconsin, Amlie's home state, said "we believe the President has not had all the facts and we are here to give all of them from writings and speeches of Mr. Amlie."

Carroll asserted that Amlie was "one of the most radical men in the state," adding:

"Mr. Amlie's views on public ownership of the railroads and scrapping of charges he was Communist for service on the ICC, which is supposed to be impartial."

Amlie, appearing at the opening of the hearing, read a statement replying to charges he was Communist. He said:

"My differences with the Communist principles are fundamental. I would differ with anybody who espoused such principles, whether he called himself a Communist, a Republican, a Democrat or a National Socialist. Because of my unshakable faith in democracy and democratic procedures, I have fought vigorously to maintain democratic principles in every organization which I have been connected, and refused to tolerate the slightest leaning toward dictatorship and direct action, whether from the right or left."

Richardson Wildcat Indicates Northeast Spread Hockley Pool

By FRANK GARDNER

Mile and a half northeast extension of the Slaughter pool in southwestern Hockley was indicated today as S. W. Richardson No. 1 A. E. Co. showed saturated and porous lime in cores from 4,900 to 4,936, present depth, where it last was reported coring ahead. Poor recovery was being obtained of cores, it was reported. No. 1 Coe is located 440 feet from the south and west lines of labour 33, league 39, Maverick county school land, a mile and a half northeast of Richardson No. 2 Sue Alice Slaughter, large producer.

Southern Yoakum's Denver pool was credited with another flowing producer in Humble No. 5 H. O. Wooten, with potential of 746.08 barrels a day after acidizing with 7,000 gallons at 5,130 feet. It topped the pay at 4,930. Oil tests 34.8-gravity, and gas-oil ratio is 497-1.

On the east edge of the Denver field, Magnolia has staked location for No. 1 R. M. Kendrick, 330 feet out of the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of section 825, block D. J. H. Gibson survey. It is a quarter-mile north of Sinclair Prairie No. 1-A Kendrick, which is rigging up standard tools after setting oil string of casing.

Honolulu and Cascade today announced location for No. 2-721 Willard, in the southwest extension to the Bennett pool of Yoakum. It is 1,320 feet from the north, 2,200 from the east line of section 741, block D, offsetting Mabre No. 2 Willard to the east. Two miles northeast of the Bennett pool, Shell No. 1 Waples-Platter Company cemented 13-inch casing at 280, five feet off bottom, with 125 sacks and is standing while cement sets.

Former Lawyer Here In New Organization

Formation of a new law firm at Fort Worth by Oliver W. Fannin, former Midland man, and Judge Joe G. Montague, formerly of Fort Stockton, has been announced here, their advertisement appearing in this newspaper. Fannin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Fannin, is a graduate of Midland high school and the University of Texas, formerly served as county attorney here and in Martin county and for fourteen years has been in the firm of Bryan, Wade, Stone and Agerton at Fort Worth. Judge Montague recently moved there, having been name attorney for the cattle raisers' association. With them is Wm. L. Wise Jr., son of one of the Gulf Oil Corporations' attorneys.

Out-of-Town Visitors Present at Revival

Forty-four out-of-town visitors were present at the revival services at the Church of Christ Monday night, Minister Harvey Childress reported today.

With good attendances at the services, he said that the meeting is going forward successfully under direction of Evangelist Falvey Conley of Burnet who is preaching.

Mr. Conley's subject for tonight will be "Rebuilding Jerusalem."

Services each evening are at 7:30 o'clock and in the mornings at 10 o'clock.

ITALIANS TO QUIT WHEN WAR OVER

Fuel for Fires of Senate Debate

Flames from this Douglas U. S. Army bomber, which crashed in test flight over Los Angeles, ignited furious Senate debate over government armament aid to European nations. The crack-up revealed Lieut. Paul Chemidlin of France was a passenger on the plane, inspecting it as preliminary to French purchase of fighting airships. Pilot John Cable was killed, Chemidlin escaped death.

Storm Troop Chief Inspects Frontier

ROME, Feb. 7 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's storm troops chief started Monday on a tour of Italian Libya's frontier with French-controlled Tunisia while the Fascist press warned Britain that rejection of Italy's "natural aspirations" would result in a "violent situation."

"The British government," said Il Giornale d'Italia after Prime Minister Chamberlain had reaffirmed Anglo-French solidarity in the House of Commons, "knows very well that Fascist Italy intends to pursue her natural aspirations to their just realization."

"It is possible then to suppose the government, and Chamberlain in particular, contemplate the alternative of a violent situation and collapse of all British home and foreign policy."

The press also displayed ill-feeling toward Britain—for the first time in weeks—over London's "cajoling" reaction to Premier Mussolini's reported determination to keep his soldiers in Spain until the insurgents had won a "political" as well as a "military" victory.

Chamberlain's speech was not published here today but diplomats, regarded it as the strongest British support given France since the World War, felt certain it would be badly received and possibly end the era of good feeling towards Britain which followed Chamberlain's visit here Jan. 11-14.

Viktor Lutze, the Nazi storm troop chief, is to be the guest of Governor Italo Balbo in Libya.

The trip will take Lutze to Gadamah on Libya's frontier with the French North African protectorate, Tunisia, which Fascists covet.

Pneumonia Fatal to Small Midland Child

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon at four o'clock at the Ellis Funeral Home for Elizabeth Jean Culp, seven-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Red Culp, who died Monday afternoon of pneumonia. Interment rites were to be held at Fairview cemetery.

The baby is survived by its parents and a five-year-old brother.

Radio Education Is Slated at University

AUSTIN.—Nucleus of a collection of manuals, scripts and other materials on radio education has been started by The University of Texas.

Courses on radio education will be given in the summer school of 1939 by A. L. Chapman, graduate of the University, who is spending the current year in study at eastern universities and broadcasting studios as holder of a General Education Board fellowship.

Probably forming a strong radio education library, a number of special bulletins from the United States office of Education, Ohio School of the Air, the radio division of Ohio State University, and the public schools of Chicago and Cleveland has been added to the textbook and curriculum collections of the University School of Education.

Staying Home Always Is "Dumb," Declares Author Lecturer

BY KATHLEEN EILAND.

Having talked to Mrs. Anita Willets Burnham, one understands how she could write "Round the World on a Penny" and, moreover, how she could travel just that way! Tremendously alive, brown eyes clear and interested, movements quick and energetic despite her silver hair, the author whose book is the seventh edition is amusingly outspoken, humorous, and eternally youthful in her outlook and comments on life.

Mrs. Burnham is a houseguest of her daughter, Mrs. Ed DeLoach, at whose home she will be presented by the Modern Study club in a lecture Wednesday afternoon at a tea.

"Doing what can't be done is the glory of life," she quoted when the difficulties of traveling on a limited purse were hinted.

"Round the World on a Penny" (it might have been a shoestring, she explains) is the story of the travels of the Burnham family consisting of the Midland visitor, her husband, and four children (one of whom is the present Mrs. DeLoach). Told with humor and a shrewd eye to the practical hints which can smooth the way of the wanderer, the book takes up first the first journey of the family—a year and a half sojourn in Europe.

This was accomplished when the four Burnham children were under 14 years of age and the baby only nine months old. She admits that the baby was a little young for such traveling but they got along nicely.

Each member of the family in rotation cared for the baby a day. One of the sketches in the book (it's illustrated by 70 and in the latest edition, more, drawings by the author and members of the family) shows Mrs. Burnham on a day when it was her turn to care for the baby. She is shown seated busily sketching, while one foot rests on the baby carriage, so placed that the painter might give it a push when baby grew fretful.

"Don't Take." At the close of the breezy recital of this journey, the author has appended a list of "Don't Take," "Do Take," and "Extra Truths."

Among the "Do Takes" she advocates taking along a family as one can thereby get rates. Among the "Don't Takes" is the warning not to carry trunks and not to carry an American yardstick (in the form of American prejudices and hard-and-fast beliefs) abroad. This, she points out, is a very common failing of American tourists and one that should be done away with.

Among "Extra Truths" is the hint to always drink by lifting the cup with the left hand when dining in restaurants. This is in order to drink from the fresher side of the cup (it's so—figure it out for yourself).

The next journey of the clan Burnham came several years after the European tour and took them round the world.

Take the Family Along. Mrs. Burnham is in favor of traveling family style. If a woman has her family with her, she points out with triumph, she is "always at home."

But as to staying home always—"staying home is dumb" is her belief. She doesn't want to be always on the go, like a gypsy, but a trip (See AUTHOR, page 6)

Bombing Plot Heard By British Chiefs

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—A Bow Street court hearing produced a description Monday of what appeared to be the biggest plot to force the British out of Ireland since the anti-British violence of the twenties.

Twelve persons accused of complicity in a wave of bombings and sabotage which has swept Britain since mid-January were held for further hearings Feb. 14.

They hardly had left the courtroom when a mysterious voice warned officials the Bow Street police court would be blown up.

Police instituted a roof-to-roof search for explosives every half hour. Other police guarded residences of the British royal family, public buildings and vital services named as targets for bombs in the alleged plot.

The story of the alleged plot to shatter British morale by widespread and continued sabotage was related by the prosecutor at the Bow Street hearing.

The alleged plan, designed as "S," was attributed to the outlawed, British-hating Irish Republican Army. It gave details of an ultimatum sent to Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax threatening active intervention in Britain's military and commercial life unless British forces were withdrawn from Ireland. Bombings began Jan. 16.

The prosecutor said the plan was discovered in a search of the home of Michael O'Shea and declared that among other things it proposed legitimate destruction or sabotaging of airplane factories or stores of vital importance to the rearmament of Great Britain.

O'Daniel Suggests Naming Committee To Study Prisons

AUSTIN, Feb. 7 (AP)—Governor O'Daniel today recommended the legislature appoint a committee to study operation of the state prison system "from a business standpoint" and make recommendations on how convict labor may best be employed and the business management system improved.

The governor in his message suggested the committee be composed of the chairmen of the house and senate committees on penitentiaries, two business men appointed by the lieutenant governor, two appointees named by the speaker of the house and two named by the governor.

The governor noted management of the prison system had long been a subject of debate and investigation. He said it appeared to him there was two distinct phases of the problem needing study, humanitarian and business sides.

Insurgent Victory Is All Wanted

France and Britain Favor Recognizing Regime of Franco

ROME, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Italian government has disclaimed to Great Britain any intention of keeping Italian troops in Spain after a final insurgent victory. It was reported today in political circles.

Foreign minister Ciano was said to have assured Lord Perth, British ambassador, that authoritative editor Virginio Gayda did not express the government's viewpoint in saying Italians would remain in Spain until "complete political victory" had been won by the insurgents.

In London British foreign office officials said Britain and France were considering recognition of the insurgent regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco as the sole official government of Spain.

Spanish insurgent authorities said France had not yet been asked to recognize the government.

British officials said, however, that unless the Franco regime is recognized soon Germany and Italy will be asked for aid in rehabilitating Spain.

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Spanish government was reported ready to surrender its remaining one fourth of Spain last night upon obtaining from the insurgents little more than "moral guarantees."

The Spanish government foreign minister, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, conferred with the French ambassador to Spain, Jules Henry, and the British minister, Ralph Stevenson, in the police station at Le Perthus. From other diplomats it was learned they had discussed the possibility of a government surrender to insurgent General Franco and an end to the two and a half year old civil war.

All of Catalonia having been abandoned to the insurgents, events moved swiftly. The meeting, concerning which all of the principals remained silent, had been arranged earlier by Premier Juan Negrin, who later returned to Spain.

From diplomats it was learned Negrin's stand, which only yesterday was that the government would fight to the bitter end in the Madrid-Valencia "island" in central Spain, had changed during the day.

The government was represented as willing to surrender upon receiving only these guarantees: 1. No reprisals against government leaders who would fall into insurgent hands as a result of mass surrenders at Madrid, Valencia, Alicante and other centers of government resistance.

2. Formal assurances by General Franco that all Italian and German influence would be banished from Spain by the insurgents.

(Several weeks ago Gen. Franco announced no foreign power would have a voice in the affairs of a victorious insurgent Spain.)

Immediately after the Le Perthus meeting, Henry and Stevenson telephoned their foreign offices. It was assumed that the British foreign office would communicate with Gen. Franco immediately.

President Asks 725 Million for New 'Emergency'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt told congress today an "emergency" exists in relief and asked "immediate consideration" of an additional appropriation of $725,000,000 for the WPA during the next five months.

This figure represents the cut congress made in his request for $875,000,000 to carry the WPA from February through June.

The White House earlier today announced the president had signed the $725,000,000 bill passed by the house and senate.

Throwsters and Dingmen

It's been noted before that modern industrial life is pretty complex.

But a little industrial item the other day called attention to just how complicated things are getting. It was to the effect that the Wage-Hour Division of the Department of Labor had refused an application by the Throwsters Research Institute to employ learners at lower than minimum wages.

Throwsters Research Institute? Throwsters? Never heard of 'em!

Well, it seems that a throwster is one who twists and otherwise prepares certain threads for knitting and weaving. It involves soaking, winding, twisting, reeling, doubling and splitting warps, spooling and quilling and skeining.

It's like the dingmen. These auto-factory employees rated a great deal of space in the papers without most people knowing what manner of men they were. (They hammer out certain shapes in the body of a car.)

Which all goes to show how complicated industrial civilization is. Men and women work, and make a living at jobs whose very names are a complete puzzle to others.

"Beloved Creditor Dies"

Man bites dog. Beloved creditor dies. Both are news, and the newspaper which displayed the latter headline had a good sense of news values.

The "beloved creditor" of the story was Joe Hess of Danville, Ind. He kept store in Danville, and throughout the depression he extended credit freely, never dunning anybody.

A year ago when Joe was about to lose his store to HIS creditors, who were less lenient than Joe, fellow merchants staged a "Joe Hess Day" at which people who felt their debt to Hess paid as much as $15 for a pair of cotton socks, just to help out the man who had helped them.

Somehow it is harder to forgive our creditors than to heed the injunction to forgive our debtors. Man is just built that way. When the necessity is past, and the creditor has saved us with timely help, then dislike of paying back begins. Ask any doctor. Ask the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. Ask the man who owes one.

• SO THEY SAY

The Bar and the Public

(Austin American-Statesman.)
Three far-reaching steps now undertaken seem to disprove the cynical old adage that you can't look to the lawyers for legal reforms or remedying defects in judicial procedure.

One is to increase the rule-making power of supreme court in procedural matters to free the public from unnecessary penalty of technicalities and delays in court matters.

Another is a step toward the pre-trial procedure that disposes of a great part of civil litigation without elaborate trial and numerous appeals.

The third is toward creation of an all-inclusive state bar, given legal status by a general law, with the handicaps that have defeated former efforts stripped from a new bill now before the legislature.

A minority of Texas lawyers labored faithfully in carrying along the Texas Bar Association and its efforts to elevate the profession and to make valid the claim that the law is a living, growing thing, capable of meeting the changing, evolving conditions affecting the life of a people.

Now, so far as the legal profession is concerned, the all-inclusive bar bill would integrate the efforts and force of all members of the profession.

The former plan to put power into hands of a committee of a state-created organization to disbar members has been remedied to leave that serious proceeding to the courts, where it belongs. Prohibitive fees, formerly sought to be levied upon the country lawyer, are obviated in the new bill.

Senator Van Zandt and others in the senate, Rep. Jeff Stinson and others in the house, are sponsoring the all-inclusive bar bill, a measure supported by the Texas Bar Association and expected not only to effectuate better things for which the bar leaders have striven, but in general to protect, safeguard and serve the entire people.

Any Objection to This Guy Being Dropped?

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — If you want to talk to "Cotton Ed" Smith about King Cotton (and he is always ready to do that) you have to sort of follow him around his office as he talks, because he gets pretty worked up about the subject.

They don't call him "Cotton Ed" for nothing.

While the Senate fixes its attention on foreign affairs, rearmament, relief and the innumerable aspects of economy, Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina renews his vow to do something for the cotton grower.

That something needs to be done is perfectly apparent when you look at the figures.

During the last 10 years the annual consumption of American cotton has run approximately 12,500,000 bales, slightly more than half of which were taken by export trade.

Last year the American cotton crop was 12,000,000 bales. In addition, when that crop was harvested there existed a holdover of 13,500,000 bales from previous crops.

"In other words, in the last 10 years we have lost in actual money a billion dollars a year. And what does that much money spell in terms of the ordinary use of cash in the form of credit? Ten times that."

Senator Smith, incidentally, is the dean of the Democratic side of the Senate. He has been here 30 years, and proudly remarks that if he lives out his present term, just begun, he will have served longer than any other senator in history.

FOREIGN MARKET IS BIG "IF"

HE scoffs at current predictions that the foreign market cannot be regained. American upland cotton, he says, is uniformly the best grade of cotton of that particular variety in the world. By experience, practice, soil and general conditions, he says, America is better prepared to produce cotton than any other country.

After lengthy consultations with other senators from cotton states, Senator Smith has drawn up a bill which he will try to drive through this session of Congress.

He would try to clear away the tremendous existing surplus by converting half a million bales of it into cloth for distribution to the poor, by using around a million bales in experiments designed to uncover new uses for cotton, by having the government move into the market some 2,500,000 bales a year, and by permitting cotton growers who raise less than their AAA allotment to buy cotton from the surplus at 6 cents a pound. This, he believes, they would be able to market at a profit.

In addition, he would fix cotton price adjustment payments, so as to assure the cotton grower a price of around 12 cents a pound.

But the important thing, the Senator feels, is to regain the export market. If that can be done, the cotton belt faces a brighter future; if not, ...

Texas Today

Shark fishing, thrilling deepsea angling within the budget of the average man, may receive national recognition this summer.

Bob Russell, veteran Port Arthur big-game angler who for the past decade, has championed shark fishing as one of the most exciting sports, has persuaded a manufacturer of fishing tackle to offer, for the first time, large prizes for the biggest "sea tigers" landed with regulation equipment.

Abhorred by non-professional fishermen until a few years ago, angling for the gray monsters increased in the eastern waters of the Gulf the past two summer to the point where its popularity threatens to rival the annual hunt for mackerel and tarpon.

Due partly to the fact that he seeks only that species, Russell holds the shark championship of the Port Arthur section of the Gulf coast, having landed two of the monsters measuring more than nine feet, and weighing 400 pounds each.

Many other enthusiasts, however, have caught several six and seven-footers, and an increasing number agree with the veteran that no other Gulf fish approaches the shark in ferocity and stubbornness, and resulting sport.

One nine-footer, for instance, put up a two-hour battle displaying every conceivable trick, including rushes at the anglers' boat.

Considerable difference exists between the sort of fight put up by sharks and the battle made by tarpon. The latter fight the hook, making huge, beautiful jumps to shake it loose, but put no great strain on tackle and have been landed on light rods and lines.

Sharks, however, favor "power plays"—long, fierce rushes that result in more of a "man-to-man" battle—along with sudden rolls, twists and turns that demand considerable strength from the angler.

The small "black-tip" shark argues a bit like tarpon, with a twisting spinning leap that brings shouts of admiration from even hardened commercial fishermen.

Two points, however, may make shark angling one of the most popular water sports in the country. The brutes are more numerous, at least in Gulf waters, than any other fish approaching their size and the comparatively simple tackle needed brings their snaring well within the reach of the chap who has been scared away from other big-game angling by costs.

Details of the contest are to be announced as soon as judges have been selected and rules completed.

This is not a fish story, but the tax it puts upon credibility gives it kinship.

Carl Pittman of Henderson, who vouches for it, often makes trips to the surrounding country searching for old stamps and books hidden away in farm houses in the hills. On one such trip he began talking to a Rusk county farmer about his crops, his family's health and generally economic conditions, finally turning the conversation toward stamps.

"Stamps?" the farmer asked apparently puzzled, "what do you mean by stamps?"

Pittman explained that stamps were bits of engraved paper bought at postoffices and placed on letters to be sent through the mail.

"Well," the countryman responded, "I never heard of such a thing."

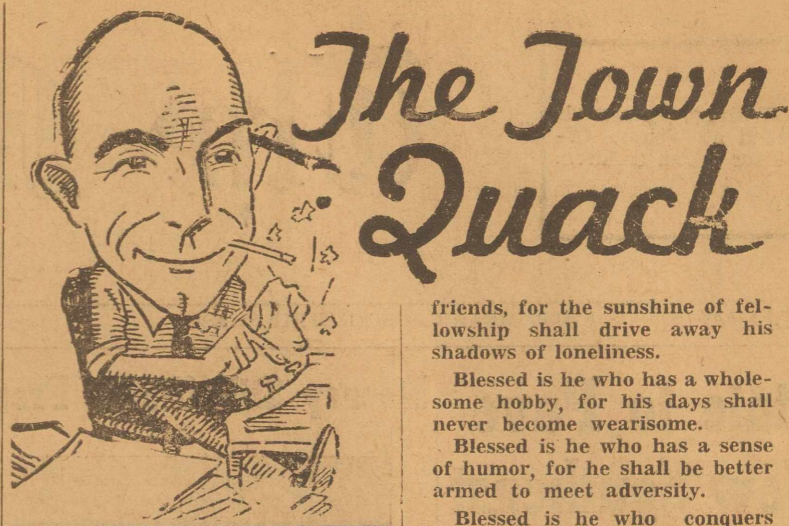

Dr. O. M. Ball, professor emeritus of biology and curator of the museum at Texas A&M College, recently completed the second volume of his professional paper, "A contribution to the paleobotany of the Eocene of Texas." With the first volume, issued in 1931, the work occupied the major part of Dr. Ball's time for the past 25 years.

The new books is divided into two sections, part one describing some florules from Wilcox, or lower eocene group of Texas, mainly from the clay pits near Athens. Part two deals with florules from the Jackson, or upper, eocene group, discovered near Huntsville.

The volume describes 68 species of fossil plants, including 31 new types uncovered by Dr. Ball. Of the new types, 13 came from the lower eocene and 19 are entirely new to Texas.

In addition, three new cretaceous types are described and represent the oldest known flowering plants in the world, Dr. Ball said.

The findings indicate, Dr. Ball said, that the climate of Texas has varied little over the past 10,000,000 years. His studies show that the types of plants found were suited

EVERYMAN'S BEATITUDES

Blessed is he who has a whole-some hobby, for his days shall never become wearisome. Blessed is he who has a sense of humor, for he shall be better armed to meet adversity. Blessed is he who conquers prejudice, for his world shall be unlimited by boundaries. Blessed is he who has integrity, for he shall know the contentment of self-respect. —John H. Lamy, Van Wert, Ohio.

The more I receive correspondence from my supporter Hired-Tired-Fired, the more I wonder who this good-egg is. Ordinarily I have very little curiosity about one who uses a pen name, but this contributor has access to some wholesome philosophy and makes use of it. He hasn't wasted a stamp on me yet, because I have reprinted everything he has sent in. His latest consignment, received this morning, shows that he knows good philosophy when he finds it. Don't fail to read the fourth beatitude three or four times:

Blessed is he who has time to a climate of a middle or southern temperate zone and the temperature may have averaged about two degrees warmer than at present. Indications also are there was somewhat more rainfall countless centuries ago as the plants show they were adapted to a moist, subtropical climate. All of the plants described grew in Texas long before the era of man, which has been fixed at from 500,000 to 1,500,000 years ago. Some of the plants described date back 130,000,000 years, the scientist said.

Dr. Ball dedicated the second volume to the late Dr. Mark Farricus, who worked with him on many of his field trips for more than 30 years. Both books are issued in the form of bulletins of the college and are available without charge.

Original Longhorn Cattle Said Black

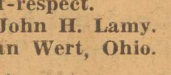

AUSTIN. — The famed Texas Longhorn has a "black past," J. Frank Dobie, University of Texas English professor and Southwest lore expert, informs readers of the January Southwestern Historical Quarterly issued here.

Coal black cattle, clean-limbed and white horns, were the early—and expensive—ancestors of the Longhorn, according to Dobie. He further pointed out that the black cattle have modern counterparts in some bull rings today. The plainsmen, he said, described these

Here's Quick Relief for RASPY COUGHS DUE TO COLDS

FIRST—put a small lump of Vicks VapoRub on your tongue and let it melt. The medication bathes the irritated membranes as it trickles down your throat—bringing comforting relief—where you want it—when you want it.

THEN—melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Breathe in the vapors for a few minutes. As these vapors work their way down through the air-passages, they loosen phlegm and ease the cough.

PSST—TELL YOUR MAMA TO MAKE WAFFLES IN THE MORNING!

An open letter to my young friends

Hey, kids! Just ask your Mama to let me bake waffles for your breakfast tomorrow. I know you like them, and your Mama knows that waffles cooked to a golden crispness are easily digested. Also tell your Mama that she can use her electric waffle iron to make many kinds of waffles, for lunch and for the evening meal. I like to make waffles, and my wages for cooking a waffle are less than the cost of the butter spread over it!

February Is Bargain Month For Furniture Buyer

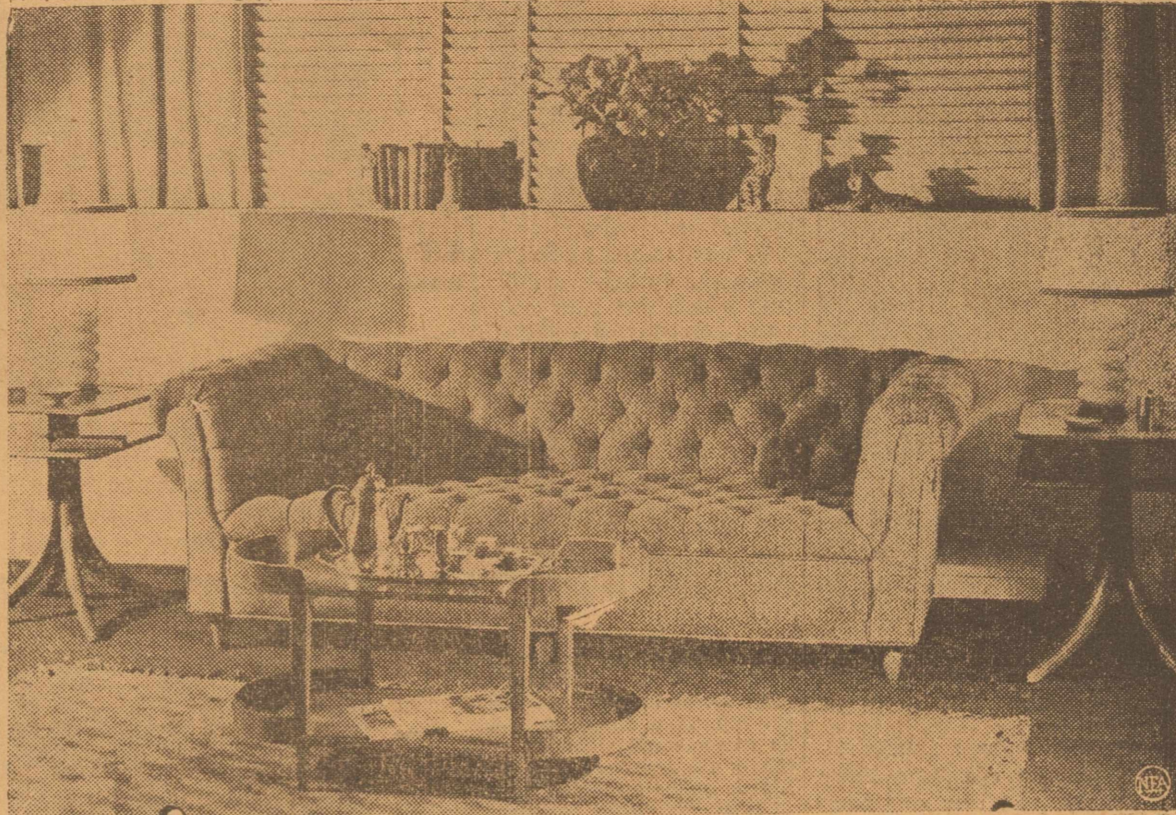

By MARIAN YOUNG NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK.—Whether you want to refurnish completely a room or two, replace a few old pieces or merely add a new coffee table to your present decor, this is the time to do it. Smart shoppers buy furniture in February—the month of furniture sales.

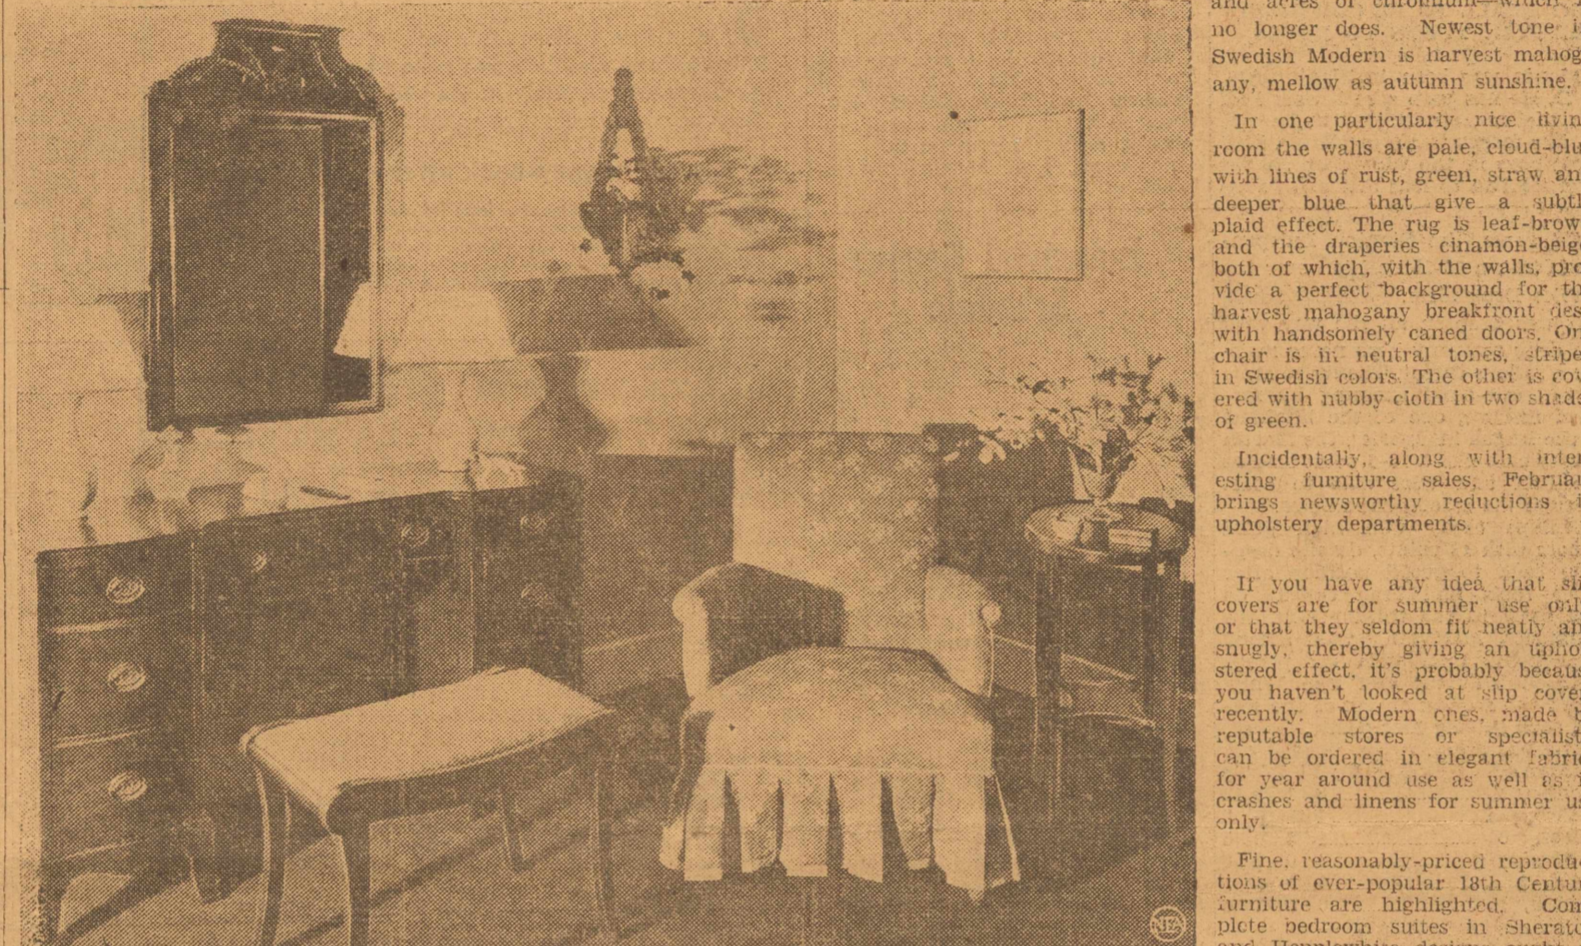

This year, there's an especially handsome array of stunning little tables, any of which will make a room not only more attractive, but a great deal more comfortable. The man who remarked that he'd rather stand than have to sit in a chair which didn't have a little table beside it had something there.

Furthermore, one prominent decorator maintains that no one can offer lack of space as an excuse for not having every chair in a living room placed within easy reach of a table of some kind.

In displays of modern furniture, Swedish Modern is widely featured. The better Swedish modern has a nice blend of grace, style and proportion so long hoped for by those who have liked modern furniture from the first, even when "modern" meant uncomfortable angles

Typical of the Swedish Modern furniture featured in February furniture sales are the graceful coffee and end tables shown beside a bluish-green divan. Draperies are pale beige over off-white Venetian blinds. The walls of the room are powder blue with lines of straw color and white in plaid design.

Among the less expensive reproductions of popular 18th Century furniture is this pretty group for those who like the daintiness of Sheraton and Hepplewhite designs. The rich mahogany tones stand out charmingly against the Wedgewood blue wallpaper with a classic white motif. The deep gray-blue carpet would harmonize nicely with pale green-gold satin draperies.

REINSTATEMENT IN NEW YORK ONLY WEIGHTY PROBLEM FOR DON MEADE

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

MIAMI, Fla.—Reinstatement in New York is Don Meade's only weighty problem. That would mean reinstatement everywhere, and Meade shortly will have to ride outside of Florida, where he was banned three winters ago for betting on other than his own mounts in races in which he rode.

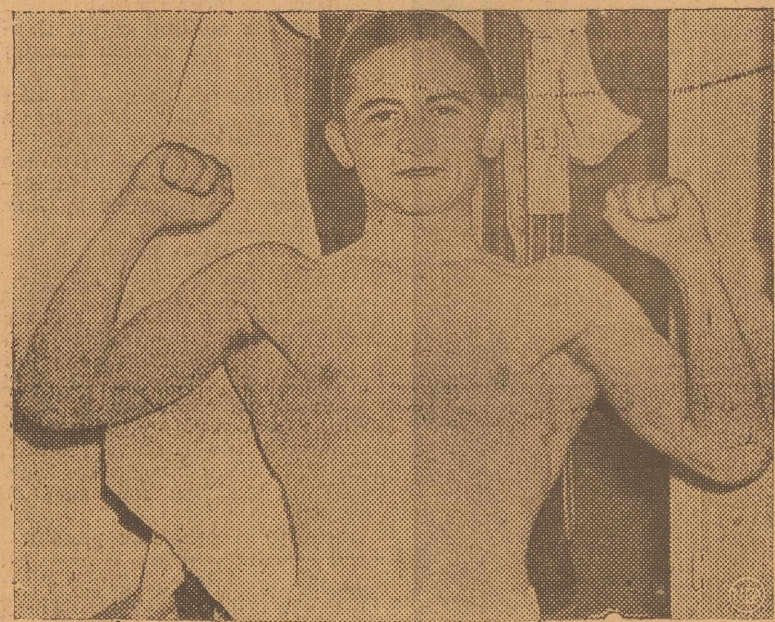

Meade's 43 victories in 21 days, a record for a complete Hialeah meeting, is one of the greatest riding achievements in history. The amazing comeback has the ideal build for a jockey. He is less than five feet tall, with short legs and arms and tremendously powerful shoulders.

At 26, an age when most riders have to undergo the physical and mental strain of reducing, Meade eats whatever he likes and still comes in at 108 pounds, which he believes is as heavy as he'll ever get. He says that when he first came around the race tracks he scaled just 68 pounds, and that the first winter he rode in New Orleans he had to carry two lead pads.

LIGHT WEIGHT ENABLES MEADE TO RETAIN KLICK

It was Meade's weight . . . or lack of it . . . that enabled him to return to the wars with all his former skill after an absence of two-and-a-half years.

Meade now is swamped with offers to ride the best horses. Charles S. Howard, who is fussy about picking a rider for Seabiscuit, tried to engage Meade to handle War Admiral's foremost rival in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, March 4, but the little South Dakotan declined because he is to be up on Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's Belmont Stakes winner, Pasteurized, in the $50,000 Widener Cup of that afternoon.

Don Meade

Meade is under contract to Geo. Odum, who trains the horses of Mrs. Stewart, Marshall Field, and R. L. Gerry. This assures him the finest mounts.

Meade is a broad-shouldered sharp-featured chap with eyes as brilliant as a hawk's, and deep-sunken. Something about him is remind-ful of Laverne Fator, a famous rider of a decade ago. Like Fator, Earle Sande, and ever so many knights of the pinksin, he hails from the northwest and had his early training on cow ponies and in quarter races at half-milers.

TOO SMALL TO BE COWHAND, DAKOTAN TURNS TO RACES

Meade was born in Plankinton, S. D. He has been a race rider half his lifetime, starting when he was 13. His father was a mechanic. Like most boys in the wide open spaces, Don learned to ride almost as soon as he passed the kiddie car stage. At 10 he was spending summer vacations herding cattle.

Too small to be a cowhand and fired with the stories of Fator, Sande, and the rest, he decided to be a jockey.

It was on half-mile tracks of Nebraska, Wyoming, and Oklahoma that Meade met Sam Orr, quite a noted developer of jockeys. Blanche Waston purchased his contract in New Orleans, but the rider had bought his own contract and was riding as a free lance when he signed with Tony Pelletieri.

It was while riding in New Orleans, a lucky city for him, that Meade attracted the attention of Col. Edward Riley Bradley.

QUICK THINKER HAS KNACK OF MAKING HORSES RUN

In May, 1933, shortly after Colonel Bradley took over, Meade became nationally famous by winning the Kentucky Derby on Brokers Tip. That Kentucky Derby will be remembered when most of the others are forgotten chiefly because Meade kicked a maiden home ahead of Head Play after beating the boy on the latter down the stretch.

While Meade rode for Colonel Bradley . . . from 1933 to 1937 . . . not a few critics said he was the best horse in the Idle Hour barn. Meade, whose stirrups are high because of his short legs, can rate a thoroughbred in front or come from behind. He is a powerful finisher. He's always perfectly balanced in the saddle, thinks and acts quickly, and is never upset.

Above all, Don Meade has the knack of making horses run.

Midland Drug Defeats Bulldogs To Tie for League Leadership

In one of the fastest and most thrill-packed games of the year, the Midland Drug team went into a tie with the Petroleum Pharmacy team last night by managing to hold on and get a 28-26 win over the Midland high school team.

The loss by the high school team virtually eliminated it from a chance at the first half gonfalon but it was far better in defeat than in a lot of victories.

The Midland Drug team could never get organized during the first half but at the end of the rest period they came back with a bang to overcome a 6-point deficit and go two points ahead before the period ended, they were able to stay even during the final period.

It was some sharpshooting by Jim Wilson and "Dub" Lynch during the third and fourth periods that sunk the high school boys. Lynch picked up eight points on four crisp shots while Wilson made three field goals, two from far out, during the final two periods. Coupled with his two field goals in the first half, Wilson gained high scoring honors with 10 points.

Individual stars for the losers were Coleman Collier and Gus Bryan. They tallied eight and nine points, respectively, and played bang up ball all the way through. Raymond Gee, high scoring Bulldog forward, was thoroughly blanketed all night, making only one field goal. However, he made five free shots after over zealous guards had fouled him.

The high school boys got off to a four point lead early in the game when Collier, then Bryan sank field goals. Wilson dropped one in for the pill rollers but Collier came back with another and the first quarter ended 8-3 in favor of the kids.

During the second period Gee picked up six of his seven points and field goal by Collier gave the Bulldogs a 14-8 lead at the half. Wilson and Stein picked up field goals and Zimmerman a free shot to get the other five points for the drugists.

It was in the third period that the Midland Drug quintet won the ball game. With Wilson and Lynch alternately hitting the goal, they tied the score at 18-18 and just before the period ended Stein dropped in a field goal to give the team a two point lead.

The Greathousmen managed to stay even during the last period but they had to fight off a rally that was stopped only by the timekeeper's whistle. They rolled up a 28-23 lead and with only a couple of minutes time left started stalling, only to see the youngsters open up an offense that did all but tie the score.

In fact, many of the fairly large crowd that saw the game thought the Bulldogs had tied the score as Gee unloosed one of his one-handed shots at the end of the game and the ball went directly through the bucket, but referee DeBerry ruled that the timekeeper had already signaled that the game was over.

In a rather drab affair that only set the stage for the thrilling MID-

MHS game, the Stanton Independents took a 28-15 decision over the Service Drug team.

It was Stanton all the way with the drug company boys never making a serious threat. Thanks to some superb one-hand shooting by forward Phillips, one of the brightest of the league luminaries, the Martin county club had a 19-5 point lead at the half and were able to coast through the second 20 minutes.

Phillips easily won high point honors with 13 points, despite dropping back to guard position after three fouls had been called on him early in the third period. His teammate, McElvain, was second high point man with six points. Wendell Williams and Bob White paced the scoring attack of the losers, each getting four points.

Your Federal Income Tax. No. 3
WHEN TO REPORT INCOME FROM SALARIES, WAGES, ETC.

Of the millions of income-tax returns that are filed annually, the vast majority are from salaried persons and wage earners whose income is derived from personal services.

In general, compensation for personal services should be reported for taxation purposes in the year it is received or unqualifiedly made subject to demand. Compensation credited to the account of or set apart for a taxpayer, without any substantial limitation or restriction, and which may be drawn upon by him at any time, is subject to tax for the year during which so credited or set apart, although not then actually reduced to possession. If the services were rendered during the year 1937, or even prior thereto, but the compensation was not received, or made unqualifiedly subject to demand by the taxpayer until the year 1938, the entire amount is taxable in the year received or made unqualifiedly subject to demand, when the taxpayer is reporting on the cash receipts and disbursements basis, which is the basis used by most persons in reporting next income.

The names of all employees to whom payments of $1,000 or over a year are made must be reported. The information return should be made on Form 1098, accompanied by transmittal Form 1096 showing the number of returns filed. These returns should be filed on or before February 15, 1939.

All of the various types of compensation, unless specifically exempt by statute or exempt by fundamental law, should be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income, such as salaries, wages, fees, commissions, bonuses, tips, honorariums, prizes, awards, retiring allowances for past services, etc. Where services are paid for in whole or in part with something other than money, the fair market value of the thing taken in payment must be included as income. Other items subject to tax are fees received by ministers of the gospel for funerals, baptisms, masses, and like services; executors' fees; directors' fees; Federal jury fees; and prizes received in contests of various kinds.

The salaries of Federal officers and employees are subject to tax, including the salary of the President of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office after the date of enactment of the Revenue Act of 1932, which was June 6, 1932. The salary of the Vice-President of the United States and the salaries of Members of the house of Representatives and the Members of the United States Senate are also subject to income tax.

GREECE MAY SIZZLE IN WAR'S SKILLET; KING PLAYS 'CASEY JONES' IN BULGARIA

Metaxas Can Really Be Mean; Germans Sail Hats Down Danube; You Can't Be Candid in the Balkans

Melanie L. Pflaum, famous woman journalist for many years resident in Europe, has just completed a trip through the Balkans which she directly in the path of German expansion. In five stories she tells what their people are like, what they are thinking about. Here is the third, on Greece and Bulgaria.

By MELANIE L. PFLAUM
NEA Service Special Correspondent.

ATHENS, Greece.—The Greeks are tired of war, but they don't see how they can keep out of one if it starts. That is why this small country has also joined the arms race, with 100 new planes and quite an army. It looks remote on the map, but Greece would be "in the middle" in case of European war. Crete and some of the Ionian islands would immediately become important naval bases, and both Britain and Italy would seek to use them. Corfu probably would fall immediately into Italian hands.

ways still thrive in Bulgaria. He gifts to the royal household in Sofia in honor of the throne.

That is why Greece is today a British "sphere of influence." It is the British who keep King George in power. The king and Dictator Metaxas are said to be bitter enemies. But the king fears that without the military support of the dictator he would lose his throne, while Metaxas feels that without the king and the British there would be a revolution. So they get along as best they can.

WHISPER WHEN YOU SAY 'METAXAS'

The name of Metaxas is mentioned, if at all, only in whispers. He is feared by all, hated by many. Critics are discouraged by Metaxas' whimsical habit of locking them up in cells filled with four feet of water, or causing less serious offenders to lie naked on blocks of ice. Though British influence is still dominant in Greece, German commercial penetration is greater this year than ever. Germany buys Greek tobacco, olive oil and fruits. In return the Greeks get imitation wool sweaters, harmonicas, cheap watches, fountain pens, and the Tyrolean hats with which the Balkans have been flooded this year. You can map German commercial penetration into the Balkans by following the trail of these hats down the Danube.

If Greece is dragged into a war, it will be done by northern Europe, not by her traditional enemy, Turkey. Improvement of relations between Greece and Turkey is shown by the evident and sincere sorrow expressed in Greece at the death of Kemal Ataturk. The work of Kemal in wiping out ancient enmities was well-known to Greeks.

In fact, in some ways Greece looks more like Turkey than Turkey itself. Ataturk did such a thorough job of modernizing in Istanbul that it were not for the mosques and palaces one might take it for a European city. But in Crete, for example, peasant women almost always have a cloth or scarf drawn over the lower part of the face, and the men wear a sort of turban.

BORIS IS TRAIN FANCIER

Of all the Balkan countries, Bulgaria immediately impresses one as the most progressive. King Boris, whose hobby is railroading, and who likes to drive the engine of his own train is apparently trying to modernize his country as fast as possible.

Bulgaria is the only Balkan country with a minimum wage, a fairly high standard of living, and a thoroughly modern school system. King Boris has a fine collection of all the latest types of locomotives, and a special strip of track on which to try his speed.

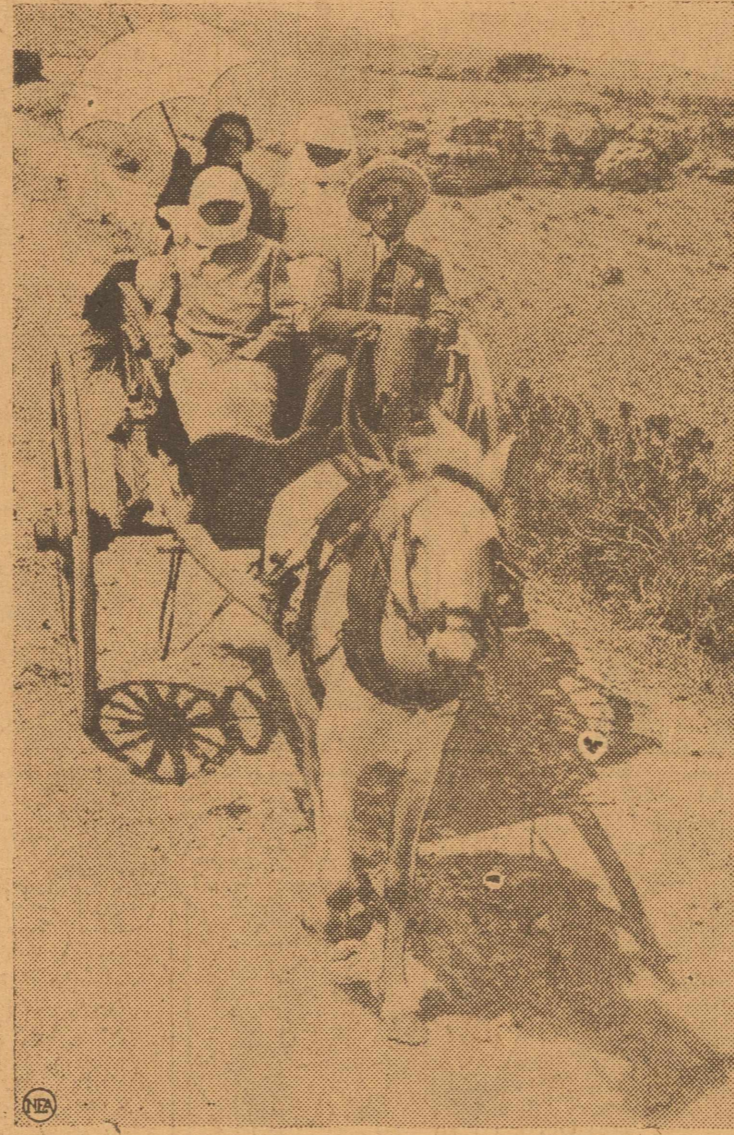

But this is one of the things you don't talk about. Bulgarians are sensitive about their king's hobby. In Rumania you do well not to discuss Madame Lupescu or Bessarabia. In Yugoslavia, Prince Paul's German leanings are not to be mentioned, nor is it well to discuss the fate of Czechoslovakia.

Ten thousand Yugoslavian students had been organized to fight for the Czechs, and the Yugoslavians see in the fate of Czechoslovakia a warning to themselves.

Thus it is well to travel in the Balkans with a sort of mental loose-leaf notebook containing topics not to be discussed. They range from those that will land you on the inside of a cell looking out to those that are merely unpleasant.

In Greece people find it unwise to discuss politics at all, and the only comment I could elicit from an Athenian student about King George was "Our king is not hated, but neither is he beloved." In a country where the government is threatened by possible revolution it is best to speak softly. In Greece there are two such possibilities.

There are the Republicans, followers of Venizelos. Many have been exiled to barren little islands of the Aegean, but each has a large and powerful family back in Greece waiting eagerly for the revolution. And Germany would like nothing better than a revolution in Greece that would oust the present every five or six years "to freshen up" as she describes it—well, that is her idea of what everyone should have.

Third-class passage trips she lauds. These are not the old steerage accommodations and are surprisingly inexpensive and acceptable for travelers, so that the average person of limited income is enabled, if he wishes, to see the world.

Traveling is not the only pursuit in which Mrs. Burnham is proficient, however. She is an artist, and in addition to painting while on her trips she teaches "off and on" in the Chicago Art Institute. She will probably teach there this coming summer, she said, although she has been away for the past year too much to teach.

She is a lecturer, too. She has spoken in New York and Boston and came to Midland from Houston where she presented a series of eight lectures. From here she will go to Los Angeles and other places on the Pacific Coast to deliver lectures. "Absolutely international," she described herself and chided a reporter for asking her which country she liked best in the world. "That's a dumb question," she said forthrightly. "Suppose some one asked you which of half a dozen good friends you liked best?"

One country is liked because of its gaiety, another because of its beautiful buildings and so on, and each country is disliked for some characteristic in the same way, she interpreted her attitude. If she had to live in one place for all the remainder of her life, however, she admits she would probably choose home.

Read Afterward. One other hint to travelers: Don't know too much about the place you are visiting. Mrs. Burnham prefers to read up about the places she visits after she sees them rather than before. If one reads about some wonderful old castle before starting out on a trip and then sees the reality, only a ruin, there'll be a feeling of disappointment, of let-down. But if one sees the ruin and then hears the departed glories of the place, one may build up the original beauty in his own vision.

Mrs. Burnham is not the only writer in her family. Her husband, Alfred Newton Burnham, or "Dad" as he is called in "The Burnham Bugle" the amusing and slightly Mad-Hatter Christmas greeting sheet of the family, has written a slim volume of verse entitled "Some Kiddish Rhymes." His talented wife and daughter refused to draw the frontpiece design and he did it himself, though not aspiring to be an artist. (A very good job of it he made, too).

The Traveling Cape

Mrs. Anita Willets Burnham is shown pictured above in the big black cape which she humorously advocates for all world travelers in her book, "Round the World on a Penny." Mrs. Burnham, here as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Ed DeLoach, 905 W. Louisiana, will be presented by the Modern Study club in a lecture on the subject of her book at a tea at the DeLoach home Wednesday afternoon.

Yes, one can well understand, seeing her vivid and determined personality, why Mrs. Burnham will always manage to see whatever part of the world she may want to see.

Any would-be traveler who is hampered by purse - limitations should hear her talk.

Fox Studio Opens New Office Here

The Fox Studio, 204 Thomas Building, is now open for portrait work, it was announced here today. The company has studios in Madison, Wis., Duluth and St. Paul, Minn., Boise, Idaho, and Cheyenne, Wyo.

The firm here will specialize in color work, using a process which brings out more of the natural color tones and gives softer effects, according to V. Parker.

From now on the photography of E. M. Fox will be featured.

"We hope to serve the community with popular-priced photography and make the town more portrait-conscious," said Mr. Parker.
