Fishville Mayor Is "Lazybones"

Mayor Hawthorn of Fishville working at the pursuit of laziness.

By NEA Service.

FISHVILLE, La., April 24.—Since this town admits, even brags that it is the laziest place on earth, it is fitting that its mayor, Ed Hawthorn, should claim to be the laziest man on earth. Hawthorn has been loafing since 1913, a 26-year sista. He is mayor, not by virtue of a political campaign—that would have been too much trouble—but merely by general acclamation.

Under his leadership, Fishville has reversed the familiar chase of all cities for more and bigger industries. Industry is outlawed. Before he saw the great light, Hawthorn used to be a sawmill man. His first act on coming to Fishville was to resolve to do no more work. His second was to open a general store.

Work? Not for Hawthorn. He lets his customers wait on themselves, and even make their own change. They watch each other, Hawthorn says, to maintain the honesty required by this ingenious system. The wholesale grocery people co-operate, too. They just come and look over the stock and ship in what's needed. No involved transactions, no work. This idyllic system eliminated as a plague-spot of ambition Fishville's only large business enterprise.

Having achieved a sort of perpetual motion in the store, Hawthorn now devotes himself to sitting in the sun, fishing, visiting friends, and maintaining a mild vigilance against any intrusion by energy or work.

This is easy in Fishville, and Hawthorn insists that he has not exerted himself in 20 years. His worst experience came in 1931 when he dreamed he was cutting down a tree. That was awful!

Fishville, a small community of summer camps on the banks of Big Creek near Alexandria in central Louisiana, has been a center of laziness since 1820. And Mayor Hawthorn, though he turned to the lazy life only in 1913, carries on the tradition nobly. But not too aggressively—that would spoil everything!

Jews of Palestine Strike as Refugees Deported at Haifa

HAIFA, Palestine, April 24. (AP)—Police fired into the air Sunday to disperse crowds watching the sailing of 270 refugees who were refused entry to the Holy Land because they had no passports.

Jews proclaimed a general strike here as a protest against deporting the refugees to an unknown destination on the steamer Assimi. Its captain has been released from serving a sentence of nine months in jail for trying to smuggle the refugees into the country.

Another party of 218 Jewish immigrants, including fifty women and ten children, who allegedly had entered Palestine illegally, was found wandering along the coast Saturday between Jaffa and Gaza. All were arrested. They said they had been put ashore from a Greek steamer which sailed immediately.

Sixteen Jewish youths were injured with police dispersed demonstrators marching to the district Governor's office in protest against the order deporting the refugees. The Haifa Jewish Community Council cabled Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and President Roosevelt, asking them to use their influence to see that the refugees received humanitarian treatment.

Jewish authorities were highly incensed at the government's action in reporting the group, one official saying, "The right of sanctuary for refugees is one of the highest principles for all civilized governments."

FDR to Ask Merger of 6 Aid Agencies

Barkley Declares President to Offer Measure Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Apr. 24 (AP)—Senator Barkley, democratic leader, said today President Roosevelt would send to congress tomorrow a proposal to overhaul completely federal relief agencies. Barkley said the six relief agencies would be merged into a new and unified system under the bill.

Agencies that would be affected include WPA, FWA, CCC, NYA, bureau of public roads and the public building division of treasury.

Odessan Released After Man Slashed In Altercation Here

C. E. Trammell, Odessa, was released under $750 bond on an assault with intent, to kill charge this morning following the alleged slaying of John Satterwhite in the justice of peace court this morning.

Justice of Peace J. H. Knowles declared this afternoon that Trammell, formerly a Midland cafe operator, had filed suit against Satterwhite and writ of garnishment against the Olsen Drilling company, employer of Satterwhite, for seven dollars, plus court and attorney's fees. He said that shortly before the trial was scheduled for hearing, at 10 o'clock, the plaintiff and defendant got into an argument that was culminated by Trammell slashing Satterwhite across the throat with his knife.

Satterwhite was taken to a hospital for treatment, later being released. Trammell was placed under arrest and released a short while later when bond was made.

Relative of Local Woman Succumbs

Accompanying the body of her cousin, Ronald Robinson of McCamey, who died in a San Angelo hospital Saturday night, Mrs. Bill Collins left San Angelo last night for a funeral service for Robinson which will be held probably tomorrow afternoon. Doyle Robinson, McCamey, brother of the deceased, also accompanied the body. Mrs. Collins will be gone about 10 days.

MASTERTON WELL MAY OPEN ORDOVICIAN POOL IN PECOS

BY FRANK GARDNER.

Greatest stir of excitement in West Texas in over a year was seen today as a wildcat in the Masterton area of northern Pecos showed oil and gas on a drillem test and indicated opening of a new Ordovician pool.

The prospective discovery, Anderson-Prichard Oil Corporation and Monte Warner No. 1 M. I. Masterton is reported to have gone out of the Permian at 4,544 feet, logging about a 10-foot section of detrital, then entering the Ellenburger, lower Ordovician, at 4,554 feet, datum of minus 2,129. Some geologists are calling top of Ellenburger all the way from 4,545 to 4,560 feet. It was believed that the Simpson, middle Ordovician, had cut out entirely, although some green shale, typical of Simpson, was noted in cuttings from the detrital zone.

Drilling ahead to 4,595 feet in Ellenburger line, operators stopped to take a 45-minute drillem test from 4,465 to 4,595. During the test,

Ex-King Alfonso to Be Returned Property

BURGOS, Spain, April 24. (AP)—The Nationalists government acted Sunday to restore to former King Alfonso XIII and all his relatives to the fourth degree the private properties they owned in Spain before the Republic was proclaimed on April 14, 1931.

(The degrees of lineal consanguinity are reckoned as one degree for each person in the line of descent, exclusive of him from whom the computation begins.)

Generalissimo Francisco Franco ordered all forfeitures of their holdings erased and declared null and void the action of the constitutional cortes which deprived Alfonso of his private patrimony.

The action was taken through a ministry of finance decree which applied to every class of property formerly owned by Alfonso and his relatives.

Alfonso, whose reign began May 17, 1902, left Spain on April 15, 1931, the day after he had signed a manifesto giving up the throne but renouncing "none of my rights."

U. S. to Barter Wheat, Cotton For Tin, Rubber

LONDON, April 24. (AP)—Ambassador Joseph Kennedy was reported authoritatively today to be arranging a deal whereby the United States would barter about 10,000,000 bales of American cotton and more than 100,000,000 bushels of wheat to Britain for a supply of rubber and tin.

State Officials on Board to Lease All Public School Land

AUSTIN, April 24. (AP)—With but one dissenting vote the senate today sent the house bill creating a board composed of the governor, attorney general, land commissioner for leasing free public school lands.

Execution of two men at the state penitentiary Sunday caused a brief uproar in the house today.

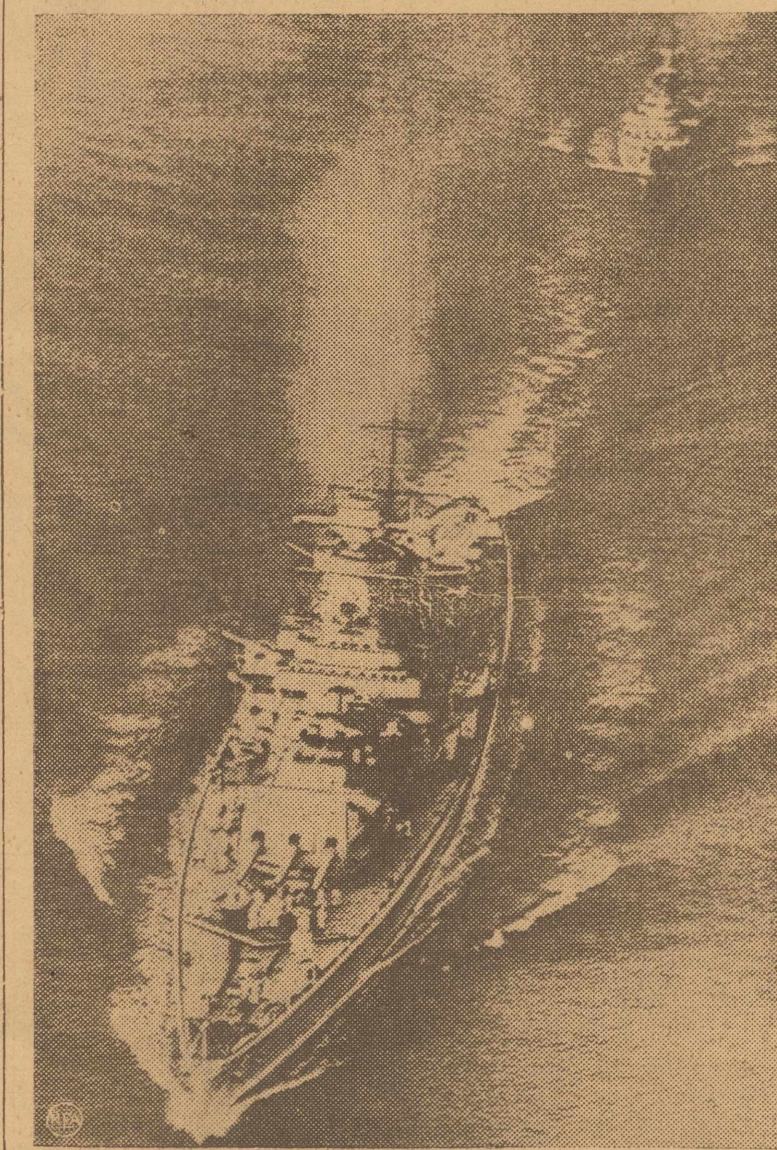

Representative Roy Baker, Sherman, asked the house to urge the board of pardons not to permit executions hereafter on Sundays but a flurry of discussion his resolution was sent to committee.

16 Additions to the Church in First Day Of Revival Sunday

In the revival services at the First Baptist Church yesterday there were sixteen additions to the church, ten of these upon profession of faith and for baptism.

The pastor announced that there would be services twice each day for the next week. The service for this evening is "The Wreck of Sin," and for Tuesday evening "The Slavery of Sin." The pastor's subject last night was on "The Traps of Sin," also as follows: The story was taken from that of the Prodigal Son. The subject of the discussion was Rotten Living. Return to Religion Is Urged By O'Daniel in His Broadcast

AUSTIN, April 24. (AP)—A plea for religious revival to cure a "state headache" was sounded by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel in his Sunday morning radio broadcast from the mansion.

The state's chief executive called on his audience to "get religion," saying only through that medium could the people hope to achieve prosperity.

"History proves that it takes depression to bring people to their knees," O'Daniel said. "Ever since the records have been kept statistics show that a period of prosperity always follows increased church membership."

Once more, an overflow crowd was on hand at the mansion as the governor pleaded for everyone not now a member of a church to join one. And he urged all those "who have religion" to practice a little harder.

"You know, folks, I actually believe that what we need in this world today more than anything else is a big revival," said the governor. "We used to have them every once in a while in the little town of Arlington. Not many people would go the first few nights, then everybody would get to talking about it, and more folks would start going."

"After a while the meanest boys and men would sneak in. And a lot of them would get converted, and we could all notice that the town and the country all around for miles had less meanness going on and less trouble after we had one of those old-fashioned revivals. And that proves that they did good, and I would like to see a lot of them going on all over Texas."

Only once did O'Daniel mention politics in his thirty-minute talk. Near the close of his speech he said he felt "confident" the legislature would solve the pension problem this week.

Advance Ticket Sales for Legion Play Are Pushed

Advance ticket sales indicate record crowds will be on hand Thursday and Friday nights when the American Legion presents its home talent play, "Mystery at Midnight."

Members of the Woods W. Lynch post of the Legion here have been actively conducting a sale of the tickets and freely predict a complete sellout for both nights.

The play is being given here by the legion in order to raise money for the next portent of the continent's fate.

But behind the scenes there was a struggle between the Rome-Berlin axis on one side and the British-French partners on the other to line up Europe's smaller powers.

Gathering fuel for his Reichstag speech, Hitler has asked most of Europe to "small states" in effect, "are you afraid of me?"

He received discreet diplomatic replies, most of them negative, from all except Rumania. She was reported authoritatively here to have answered that she failed to see "how anyone could feel secure in Europe at the present time."

The axis efforts to swing uncomfortably-placed Yugoslavia into its line-up seemed to have progressed as a result of talks in Venice, Italy, between Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Alexander Cincina-Markovich.

A communique issued at the conclusion of their two-day conversation said it had been agreed "to deepen the faithful collaboration existing between the two states and between Yugoslavia and Germany in the political as well as the economic field."

Nazi Envoy Will Return "Very Soon"

Nazi Diplomatic Victory Boasted of By German Chiefs

LONDON, Apr. 24. (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today there was "no special significance" in the return of British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson to Berlin.

Chamberlain explained the ambassador had been called home originally to report on German annexation of Bohemia and Moravia and after a short leave had been instructed to return to Berlin.

Chamberlain added this action did not mean Britain was recognizing Nazi annexation of Czechoslovak territory or Italy's conquest of Albania.

Return to Berlin by British Ambassador Henderson was followed today by an official disclosure the German Ambassador to London, Herbert von Dirksen would go back to his post "very soon."

Von Dirksen was recalled to Berlin soon after Henderson was summoned to London. Henderson's return to Berlin was deemed by the average German to constitute a triumph of German diplomacy.

LONDON, April 24. (AP)—Britain returned her ambassador to Berlin Sunday sooner than he had been expected in what was reported unofficially to be an effort to placate Reichsfuehrer Hitler before his vital speech next Friday in response to President Roosevelt's peace appeal.

At almost the same time, Rumanian Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu arrived from Berlin to open important talks. Britain and France have pledged their support to Rumania in defense of her independence.

Tall, elegant Sir Neville Henderson left London six weeks after he had been called home from Berlin "to report" on Hitler's dissolution of Czecho-Slovakia. Hitler called home his ambassador to London, Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, the day after Britain's action.

Although declining to state exact reasons for speeding up his return, authoritative sources emphasized that Britain still is pursuing "with vigor" her program of lining up nations in what they called a "peace bloc."

Observers, however, expressed belief he might give the German chancellor assurances that Britain planned no "enforcement" as Nazis have charged. They said Sir Neville also might in form the fuerher that Britain was ready to talk things over generally and try to persuade him not to be too vitriolic in his reply to President Roosevelt.

Informed sources in Berlin have indicated Hitler would turn down the President's appeal in an address to the German Reichstag next Friday, called especially to hear his reply.

Europe's anxiety was noticeably relaxed over the week-end as most signs pointed to a wait until Friday for the next portent of the continent's fate.

But behind the scenes there was a struggle between the Rome-Berlin axis on one side and the British-French partners on the other to line up Europe's smaller powers.

Gathering fuel for his Reichstag speech, Hitler has asked most of Europe to "small states" in effect, "are you afraid of me?"

Rip Smith Plays on Winning Polo Team

Rip Smith, polo player of Midland, held down the No. 4 position on the winning team of a round-robin tournament at Lamesa Sunday afternoon. Other members of the winning foursome were Bryan Fulkerson at No. 1, Gus White Jr. at No. 2 and Elmo Smith at No. 4.

Smith played his chestnut mare, Spot, on which he won first prize in the playing polo class at Albuquerque horse show. He also played Sonny Flynn's chestnut horse, Shorty. Marion and Sonny Flynn accompanied Smith. He will go there Sunday afternoon for similar games and said he hoped to have two of the team in action here at an early date.

Stasey in Center, Bolk in Right.

League President Milton E. Price has announced umpires Ray Fritz and Dave Smith for the game.

Fritz was a member of the league umpire squad last year.

While the Midland and Big Spring squads are doing all possible to come through with a victory here tomorrow the same kind of battle will be enacted by the other six clubs of the league.

At Lamesa, the Lamesa Lobes and the Abilene Apaches will be fighting it out. The Lubbock Hubbers and the Clovis Pioneers will tangle in Lubbock and the Amarillo Gold Sox and Pampa Plainsmen will meet in Amarillo.

As the season gets underway all clubs can be found with the same battery: "Stop Lubbock." The Hub city team walked off with the pennant last year and has already been installed as the favorite this year.

Although Lubbock pitching is admittedly weaker than last year, and no one has yet been found to capably play shortstop, the overwhelming power of the team has made it the favorite to come through with a second championship.

The Midland line-up will probably be Kerr catching, Piet pitching, Vlascek on first, Petzold on second, Malvica at short, DeNeff at third, Everson in left, Glowicka in center, Mort in right.

For Big Spring it will probably be Rego catching, Soden or Trantham pitching, Webster on first, Saporito on second, Capps on third, Decker on short, Marshall in left,

All Midland stores will be closed from two until five tomorrow afternoon, giving all baseball fans an opportunity to see the first game.

Manager Jimmy Kerr has announced that Joe Piet, young right handed hurler, will be on the mound for the Cowboys when the game gets underway tomorrow. Piet has shown more ability than any other hurler on the club so far and the Cowboys will attempt a win in the first game, banking on him to come through.

On the mound for the Barons will probably be either Johnny Soder or Clarence "Pea Vine" Trantham, both winning hurlers with the club last year.

Managers of both clubs—Kerr of Midland and Tony Rego of Big Spring—will be making their debut in the league. Both have served in the Texas League and both are catchers. Kerr will be behind the

Slowly We're Getting Up Steam

By WILLIS THORNTON.

Given a bare breathing-space between European crises, American business seems in a fair way to get on its feet.

Reports for the first quarter show definitely that money is being made, business volume is better than in 1938.

Here are a flock of first-quarter business reports noted more or less at random from the pages of financial journals and corporation reports:

Retail sales of new cars and trucks in the first 10 days of April are 46 per cent ahead of the same period of 1938 . . . the first quarter is 58 per cent ahead. . . A big tractor company reports $100,000 more profit for the first quarter of 1939 than in 1938. . . A nation-wide building-supply house made $125,000 in the first quarter against a loss of a quarter-million in 1938. . . the first four railroads to report indicate a big improvement in traffic in March as compared to January and February. . . the auto tire companies unanimously report more sales than last year, and one big one which took a whacking loss in 1938 is out of the red for the first quarter of 1939. . . the biggest electrical equipment firm reports orders 5 per cent over 1938, and made correspondingly more money. . . Air line travel is 25 per cent above that of 1938's first quarter.

In fact, the aggregate profits of the first 66 industrial companies reporting for the first quarter of 1939 show combined net income of $41,799,456 as compared with $29,944,931 in 1938, an advance of almost 40 per cent.

The motor industry led the way up out of the depression of 1933; today it leads again, and waits only for followers. American Telephone, for instance, has said it will spend $320,000,000 on new plant. The Class 1 railroads have this year put in service almost 1000 more new freight cars than last year.

Gradually the thought is dawning in the United States: the European crisis is a chronic crisis. You might almost say that Europe is now governed by crises.

The whole world can't simply sit back and hold its breath just because Europe is having a crisis. Life has to go on, and business has to go on, crisis or no crisis.

American business is, we believe, gradually realizing this, and is preparing to dig in and scratch once again. Nobody any longer expects a phenomenal boom this year. But every sign now points to a gradual up-grade that will mark substantial progress beyond the late but not much lamented 1938.

A Quiet Spectator

On Kill Devil Hill on the seacoast dunes of North Carolina, is a monument. It commemorates the first flight of a power-driven flying machine carrying a man.

Little groups of people visit the historic spot, and hear a guide tell the story of how the Wright brothers became the first men to fly.

The other day such a group visited the spot. One of the spectators was a quiet, unobtrusive man who looked on with interest but said nothing.

He was Orville Wright. Drawn irresistibly back to the scene of his triumph, Wright nevertheless preferred to remain unnoticed.

Orville Wright doesn't talk much these days. But we'll bet he thinks a lot of what mankind has done with the invention presented to it by the quiet Wrights.

It is not Orville Wright's fault that man has been able to do no better with this priceless gift than to make it an agency for the efficient butchering of innocent women and children.

Controlling the Waters

Because there are not at the moment under way many spectacular river dams which catch the public imagination as did Norris or Boulder dams, you don't hear much about river control.

But the long battle to make the unruly waters serve man instead of threatening him is still going on. In 1938, federal appropriations of $386,500,000 were made on 63 authorized projects, and as many as 459 projects are in the survey stage or farther advanced.

This summary by the American Public Works Association shows that the flood control and water conservation problem is being consistently followed through. This program is not confined to the big spectacular projects, but is a continuing battle which will go on until the river systems of the country are harnessed for maximum service to the people and minimum danger.

Beyond party, this program is one to which the American people has been long committed, and one which will carry through to completion.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON

Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam is spending $75,000,000 on the National Youth Administration in the current fiscal year. Right now Congress is being asked to make it $125,000,000 for next year.

And if you want to know why the increase is being asked, Aubrey Williams will be glad to tell you.

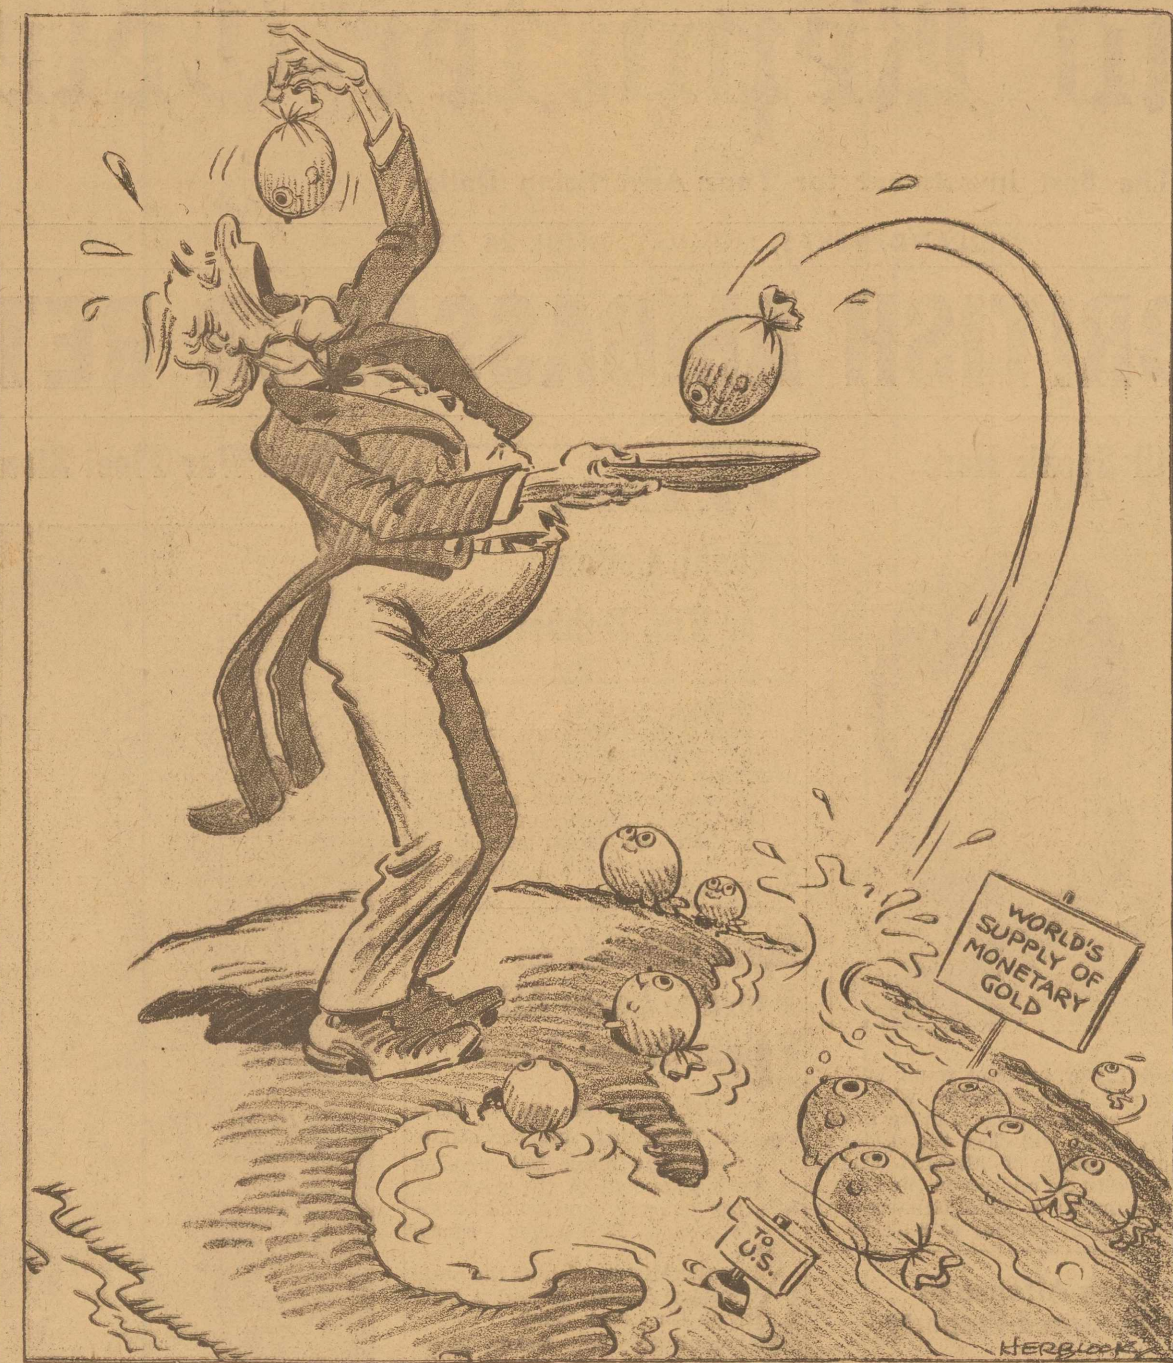

Mr. Williams is administrator of the NYA, and as such, has charge of the program by which the federal government is extending a helping hand to some 650,000 American young people. Sometimes the helping hand consists in keeping a boy or girl in high school, sometimes, in enabling a bright youngster to go on to college, sometimes in giving him a bit of a job, a little money to put in his pocket, and a chance to find out what he wants to do in the world and how he can fit himself to do it.

MORE KIDS NEED HELP.

BUT although this is being done for 650,000 youngsters, Mr. Williams

So You Thought It Was Just a Recent Craze, Huh?

Altogether, Mr. Williams figures there are between four and five million Americans between the ages of 16 and 24 who need that sort of help.

"We have no hope of reaching all those people," he admits. "If we get that extra $50,000,000, we could add around 600,000 youngsters, and give them some form of constructive activity and a chance to earn a small amount of money."

A little money goes quite a way in this business. NYA is today keeping some 275,000 boys and girls in high school, at an average cost of about $5 a month apiece. It is keeping 125,000 in college, at an average cost of around $13 a month apiece. And it is spending about $250 a year per capita to keep 250,000 youths busy on its work projects.

WHAT THE MONEY DOES.

IS all this worth what it costs? Well, for one thing it is enabling 400,000 youngsters to continue their education. It is giving a quarter of a million more the experience by which, later on, they can get jobs and become self-sustaining.

The material it is working with is pretty high grade, too. Currently, for instance, 88 per cent of the NYA students are among the top-ranking students in their respective schools.

Perhaps it is a general recognition of that fact that has spared the NYA much of the criticism that is visited on so many other New Deal projects. Mr. Williams likes to tell about a recent visit to a big eastern university. He asked the president of the institution to introduce him to "the cruelest reactionary on the faculty."

The president took him to a Vermont-born cattleman who taught in the college of agriculture, and Mr. Williams asked the man what he thought of the NYA work as he had seen it.

"Well," said the cattleman, "I've no use for you. I think you're just another Washington crackpot. I don't like Harry Hopkins, and every time I think of Franklin Roosevelt being trusted with a $5 bill I think, 'God save the republic!' But I hope you keep on with the Youth Administration program."

TEACHERS STRONG FOR PLAN.

INCIDENTALLY, Mr. Williams says that the country's educators are the stoutest defenders the NYA has. Partly, no doubt, this is because the program has been kept flexible and decentralized.

Some 1600 colleges and 24,000 high schools are co-operating in it. In each case, the local college or school authorities are in complete charge. They select the students and provide the work by which the students earn the money which enables them to keep in school; the NYA simply pays the bills.

mobile back across the Rio Grande ferry that was in operation at that time.

As usual, a long line of automobiles was heading for the small ferry. Said the sheepman to the goatman, who was driving the stranger's automobile:

"If you don't get to that ferry ahead of all these cars, I'll brain you with a club when we get back to Texas."

The goatman stepped on the gas and the new automobile leaped ahead of the other cars.

At the ferry, the goatman forgot how to stop the automobile and the three and the automobile shot across the ferry into the Rio Grande.

When the tourist sobered up, two ranchers and a flock of men were hauling his automobile from the muddy river. The machine was practically ruined, but the ranchers, who were sobered by their bath, also, paid for all repairs on the machine and sent the stranger on his way.

That's why the border is still an interesting place. Quien sabe?

Cowpunchers found a garden spot on the ranch the other day that they did not know existed. It contained palm trees and spring water and was hidden in a canyon.

Good roads in Mexico, especially the highway to Mexico City, are proving worth their weight in gold to the Southern Republic. In the tourist season, there is an average of 15,000 Americans a day in Mexico City. Even if they get 4.00 pesos for one of their dollars, the Americans still drop plenty of coin with the Mexican merchants and hotel men.

The railroads, buses and airlines are offering the American tourists attractive rates and the flow of sightseers southward is mounting daily.

The Mexicans are learning too, that it pays to give the tourist a break.

Practically every tourist returning to the United States reaches the border with money enough for bridge fare across the Rio Grande.

While the dyed-in-the-wool tourist is venturing farther into Mexico each year, border residents still whoop-it up at the border town bars.

Some time ago two Americans—a sheep rancher and the other a goat rancher—were making whoopee in a Villa Acuna, Mex., saloon when an inebriated American started homeward in his new automobile.

First complaints about Forest King's proposed removal from Stanton to Midland were heard during the week end. A group of horse traders expressed the following objections: (1) He wants cash boot on every trade. (2) He won't give boot. (3) He has a per cent on his trading stock on account of the business he's in. (4) He trades too fast for slow witted horse traders. (5) He won't sell on a credit.

Now if I want him to know I heard any of that, I'll tell him myself.

Engagement of Miss Perkins Is Announced at Party Here Saturday

To announce the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Louise Adele, to Mr. James Richard Brooks, Jr., of Muskogee, Oklahoma, Mrs. John Perkins entertained a group of friends of the bride-elect at her home at 1909 West Brunson, on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

The reception suite was decorated with white spring flowers and ferns, emphasizing the chosen colors of the bride, white and green. Bridge was played, with Mrs. Roy Beckmann winning high score, for which a chop set of handmade aluminum, by Connie, was given. Out prize was a set of ash trays by the same artist, and was won by Miss Dorothy Henderson.

A refreshment plate was served carrying out the color scheme of green and white. Plate favors were tiny calla lily boutonnières in which were concealed the announcement of the approaching marriage, which will take place on May 6th.

The list of invited guests included: Misses Helen Fasken, Frances Gillett, Georgia Goss, Dorothy Neuhardt, Evelyn Haag, Edna Mae Elkin, Flo Marie Robertson, Jessie Scott Price, Virginia Boone, Mesdames Kathleen Speed, Nancy Rankin Maloney, Tom Sealy, H. L. Straughan, W. P. Z. German, Jr., Don Thompson of Odessa, Bill Dougherty, Robert Muldrow, Tommy Henderson of Odessa, Kenneth Starnes of Odessa, Robert Turpin, Ed. M. Whitaker, Jack Walcher of Rankin, Maurice Hixler.

Designed by Jeanne Tete, it's trimmed with a frothy veil, also in navy green, and a cluster of white lilies, the most fashionable flower at the moment.

Plans Made for District Meeting Of Young People

Junior choir members met at the Presbyterian church at 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon for practice under direction of Mrs. Frank L. Elliott, going immediately into the Young People's meeting thereafter. The choir will sing at the Sunday school services on Sunday, May 7, it was announced and will also sing at the district meeting of Presbyterian Young People opening here at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of that date.

Bill Ferguson, presiding at the Young People's meeting, reported on the council meeting recently, announcing that Lynn Stephens had been elected to represent the Midland group at the district meeting; that blue and white had been selected as the Midland organization's colors; that Helen Armstrong had been chosen to appear before the Presbyterian auxiliary this afternoon and ask that the auxiliary serve refreshment at the district meeting; and that Mary Jane Harper and Lois Mae Lynch had been appointed as the reception committee for the meeting.

The evening's program was in charge of Lynn Stephens, chairman of the social service committee. He conducted a Bible quiz with Billy Noble, Wayne Lanham, Doris Lynn Pemberton, and Elma Jean Noble representing the visitors and Walter Johnson, Steve Stookey, Lois Mae Lynch, and Mildred Braden representing the Young People's group.

FEMINE FANCIES

By Kathleen Eiland

We've just been reading a United Press dispatch quoting a hotel executive on the contribution of America to European cooking. And it gladdens our heart to get away, for once, from the plaint that only Europeans know how to cook correctly and have some one who is supposed to know loud American cooking.

Especially are we glad to hear the executive say that "Corn on the cob is one of America's finest contributions to the culinary art." We agree with emphasis. No matter how difficult it is to eat with the proper grace and nonchalance, we still maintain that corn on the cob, dripping with butter and liberally sprinkled with salt, is something to make ambrosia look insipid.

Cornbread he lists as another contribution of America to the world of food abroad. And cornbread is something else for one who is hungry to dream about. There are varieties and varieties of this but personally, we choose the kind mother used to make. Its only ingredients are boiling water, salt, meal and a pinch of soda. Shaped in oval pones, smoothed over with drippings from bacon and cooked until brown, it is fit for any table.

Now what got us started on this harangue about food? After eating as much breakfast as we did, too. But we must quote the expert, Alfred Fries, on this definition of what the American man likes to eat (all brides-to-be take note):

"The American man (de-clare Mr. Fries) wants a simple meal with plenty of fresh vegetables. He wants his tomato juice ice cold, not lukewarm. He likes spinach plain, not creamed, and his lamb chop broiled. And he wants it without benefit of 'goo'."

We wonder if that last sentence is not particularly significant. Men seem to like plain foods that do not disguise their character under various creams and sauces, et cetera. Wonder if a good many women don't keep their husbands vaguely dissatisfied with their meals by adding a lot of fussy dishes that the girls at the bridge club adore?

Mrs. Haseltine Reads Comedy for Play Readers Club

Mrs. W. L. Haseltine read the drama at the meeting of the Play Readers club Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wallace Irwin, 215 Tennessee.

She chose, for her reading, the play "Lightnin'" by Bacon and Smith which has been received this year by Fred Stone. It is a comedy, but not one of the modernistic ones, and centers around the lives of a family running a hotel on the California-Nevada line. The proprietor is the title character. Club members present were: Mmes. Elliott H. Barron, W. H. Bryant, De Lo Douglas, W. L. Haseltine, Jack Hawkins, Wade Heath, J. Howard Hodges, Chas. L. Klaproth, W. L. Miller, W. T. Schneider, R. D. Scruggs, W. B. Stone, Bernard K. Buffington, and the hostess.

Travel Kits Should Have Items for Cleansing Skin

By ALICIA HART NEA Service Staff Writer

Cleansing cream or a liquid cleanser if her skin is oily, hand lotion, soap that will lather in hard water and a tiny manicure kit are just about the most important cosmetic items for a woman to take on a trip.

There are beauty shops galore in the average town either here or abroad, of course, but travel being what it is, you'll be surprised at how seldom you find time to get into one. By all means take a manicure kit, containing enough equipment for a home manicure. And be sure there's a bottle of polish to match that which your own manicurist put on your nails before you left home. Otherwise, you won't be able to do neat little repair jobs when the polish chips or cracks.

If you have cleansing cream afternood at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. W. Nelson Jr. will be cohostess.

SATURDAY Study Hour will be held in the children's library at the courthouse Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. J. L. Greene will show pictures of Yellowstone Park.

Midland county museum in the courthouse will be open Saturday afternoon from 2:30 o'clock until 5 o'clock.

Bright Prints Add Zestful Note of Seasoning To Style Menu Spring

By ROSETTE HARGROVE NEA Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS—Prints are the seasoning of spring fashions. They contribute the note of the unexpected, of color and also of ingenuity. They are not expected to be taken seriously, but no summer wardrobe is quite complete without at least one little number in print.

Designs in prints are marvelous this spring. They have gone from the more sober, conventional dots, stripes and floral patterns to the highest flights of imagination, including Jean Cocteau's design which makes one think of Fourth of July fireworks.

Even the old classics have renewed themselves. Take dots, for example. They are as old as the hills, yet they have taken on a new lease of life, disposed in stripes and borders, or a combination of both or, again, alternating with flowered patterns. Stripes are cutting all sorts of capers too. Vertical, horizontal, wavy or asymmetrical like a barber's pole, worked in chevron effects, they contrive to look essentially 1939. The great novelty of the season, though, is the combination of solid stripes and floral garlands.

One of the most spectacular of the new prints is this Molyneux design of American, English and French cigarette package wrappings in their original colorings. The coat is a simple, straight model of navy wool, and the hat is a large, paillasson straw sailor.

TWO BOWS FOR THE DUCHESS

The Duchess of Windsor chose this summer day ensemble from the collection of Mainbocher. The slightly gored coat is of navy lightweight wool. Blue and white surah starts as a bow at the neckline and continues down to the waistline where it ties in another bow at the back. The lining of the coat and the dress are of the printed surah, the dress following the lines of the coat.

Typical events are especially favored for prints. Mr. Chamberlain's hat and umbrella, comic strip characters and others vie with ultra-modernistic arabesques and floral designs reminiscent of water-colors. Flowers range from demure Victorian posies combined with black velvet and lace masks to enormous sprays of lilac or some other blossom, spreading over all of one yard of fabric.

Tiny, unsophisticated flowerlets vie with strong, forceful sunflowers from Van Gogh's masterpiece, while "jewel" and "embossed" designs, usually worked in braided effects, are way up forward among the novelties.

Lelong chose the sea and its flora and fauna as the leit-motif of both his general line and his prints this season. This resulted in crested waves, conch shells, fish and a host of other designs.

One of the most flattering evening wraps in the newest spring collections is an elbow-sleeved, rather long bolero made entirely of soft hackle feathers. These are nice in black or in white or you may have one dyed to match a favorite evening gown.

Cash and Gems In Legal Tangle Of "Ma" Barker

JOPLIN, Mo. (U.P.) — The estate of the late notorious outlaw, Fred Barker, and his mother, "Ma" Barker, is still in litigation.

Both Fred and "Ma" Barker were slain by Federal agents in Florida in 1934. They left $24,000 in cash and diamonds.

This money is now sought by George Barker of Joplin, the elderly father of Fred and one-time husband of "Ma" Barker. The Citizens National Bank of Fort Scott, Kas., which was once robbed by Fred Barker, also is seeking the money.

ARCHER WILHELM MAKES WILLIAM TELL LOOK LIKE A BEGINNER WITH TRICKS

By JERRY BRONDFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer

CLEVELAND. — Ken Wilhelm makes William Tell look like a green hand.

Wilhelm shoots an apple off a boy's head with a bow and arrow while lying on his back.

"And some day, mister, I'm goin' to bag me an elephant. Yessir, first chance I get I'm headin' for Africa, and I won't come back 'til I get an elephant."

The bow is only a primitive weapon at best, but handled by this slight, 145-pound man from Barstow, Calif., it becomes one of the most deadly instruments imaginable.

A pleasant, sandy-haired outdoorsman, Wilhelm has no peer at sending an arrow for amazing distances. And he probably has few equals when it comes to unerring accuracy.

Until a year ago he used his bow merely for hunting. But his skill was too uncanny to remain in obscurity. In a year's time he became the world record holder for distance. He made a movie short. He appeared at the Cleveland sportsmen's show.

Ken Wilhelm was the first white child born at Mackey, Idaho. That was 35 years ago. Mackey then was in the heart of a Blackfoot Indian reservation. It was only natural that he came to know the bow and arrow.

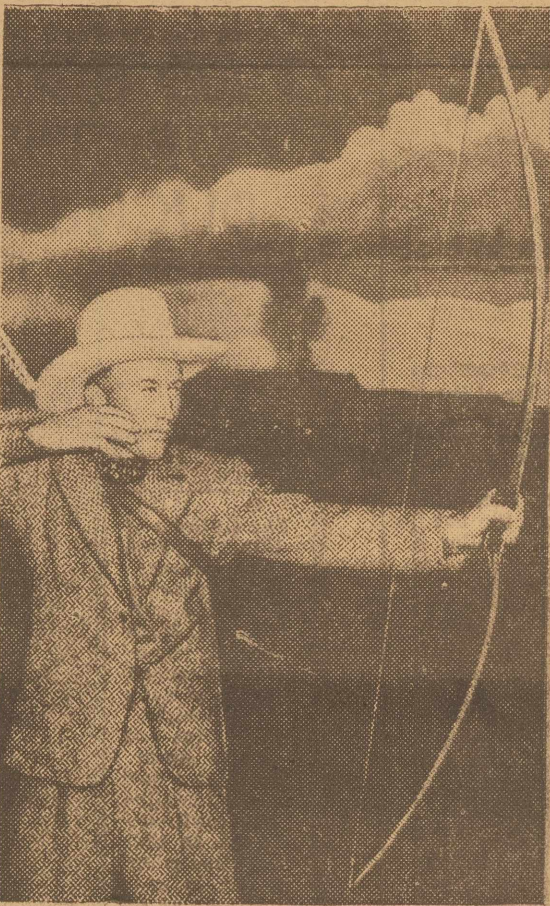

He took a foot bow with a 250-pound pull and shot an arrow 756 yards, or 100 yards farther than ever attained by the Turks of the middle ages, who were considered the greatest bowmen.

He next amazed experts with an 846-yard effort, and a short time later released an arrow that traveled 903 yards—more than half a mile.

"It isn't so much strength that counts," he says. "I'm not as strong as a lot of experts, but I guess I've discovered the perfect way to release the arrow."

Wilhelm has bagged deer, elk, bear, wild boar, lynx and coyotes with his bow. As far as anyone knows he is the only white man ever to have bagged a mountain goat the same way.

"I'm going to use my 250-pound

Ken Wilhelm makes William Tell look like green hand—

foot bow on the elephant," he explains. "I'm going to be hidden—maybe in a tree, or on a platform, or in a ground layout of some sort."

"I'm going to have Mr. Elephant stalked until he's maybe 60 feet away, and then I'm going to let him have it. And that steel-tipped arrow is going to bring him down. I don't care how big or tough he is—the flesh isn't made that'll stand penetrating power of an arrow shot from that bow."

Wilhelm's trick shots are so dangerous that Dr. Paul Klopstick, chairman of the Archery Association of America, asked him to refrain from executing them. Dr. Klopstick didn't want others encouraged to attempt such feats.

At 30 and 60 feet... depending on who is on the other end and the locale, Wilhelm shoots a cigarette out of a girl's mouth, penny match boxes off her ears and head, puts arrows through an ordinary bracelet held in the mouth, breaks balloons tied to a girl's body while the girl makes a flip in mid-air, knocks small corks off the ears, and even one solitary match that is laid flat on top of a curl.

"At 30 feet, the person holding the target hasn't time to move," Wilhelm explains.

The bow and arrow is becoming increasingly popular. "In the hands of an expert it is much more accurate than rifles used in the Civil War," asserts Wilhelm. "California alone has opened five new bow and arrow hunting preserves. It's just the thing for a thickly populated state. Bullets go wild because hunters are a greater distance from their prey. But with a bow you've got to get close enough to see and know where you're shooting."

With his brother, Walter, also a crack shot with the bow, Wilhelm conducts a garage, filling station and dude ranch in the middle of the Mohave desert.

Ken Wilhelm is not a professional showman, but he's far from being a novice with a bow and arrow.

Roland Young Gets Chance at Fighting

Every man's dream came true recently for Roland Young. He got to sock a fellow twice his size whom he disliked very much, without any fear of reprisal, and he got to dance with a partner who didn't step on on his feet, fumble, trip or cause him any trouble at all.

Young's dream fulfillments came on the set of Hal Roach's "Topper Takes A Trip," the hilarious comedy now showing at the Ritz Theatre. As the title character, the actor has a hate for a fortune-hunting nobleman, played by Alexander D'Arcy. He also has a yen for Constance Bennett. It's because Miss Bennett, in the role of Marion Kerby, has the ability to "demonstrate" herself, that Young had the time of his life.

During the course of the action Young hit D'Arcy sixty or seventy times, and the latter had to take it. His hands weren't exactly tied but they might as well have been. Complete, in her phantom state, would pull his dinner jacket down over his shoulders every time he tried to

Railroad Soon To Link Galais With Baghdad

ISTANBUL. (U.P.) — Realization of Germany's pre-war dream of the Baghdad railway — a dream which by reason of its threat to British, French and Russian interests helped to bring about the World War—is in sight.

By October of this year it will be possible to travel by rail through Galais to Baghdad without change except that entailed by crossing the Bosphorus — and if ever the dream of a Channel tunnel is realized, through from London.

The line from Tel-Kotehek, the existing terminus of the line through Turkey and Syria, to Sabuniyeh, is ready for operation. Soon the road will be completed as far as Mosul. Then will remain the final link from Mosul to Baiji, the existing terminus of the railway from Baghdad.

Thus will end a 50-year struggle to construct a rail link across 500 miles of desert to link Baghdad with the European railway system.

ST. CLOUD, Fla. (U.P.) — The international doll house — "doll heaven," somebody called it once — boasts one of the largest and most varied collections of dolls in the country.

Mrs. Jack Baughman is mother to the dolls, which she has gathered from all over the world and exhibits in this little Florida catfish town. She has hundreds of the little figures, filling cases and lining the walls of her international doll house.

Some are exhibited in miniature displays, such as "Innocent Nell" of the old melodrama who is shown in an old-fashioned bedroom with a tiny maple dresser and cross-stitched sampler and rag rug. Beside her is the bedroom of a modern girl with latest design furniture, including a cigarette tray and a miniature radio.

A few of the dolls are old and valuable. One is labeled an "Italian Lady of Quality." Her clothes embroidered with gold, were copied from a painting by Pisanello, 15th century artist. She wears a girle and neck piece of rubies, emeralds and diamonds.

An odd pair is Amanda Buxton and her son, Ezra. Their entire clothing consists of 10 pounds of metal, ivory and bone buttons — all colors, sizes and shapes. The collection shows the progress of doll-making since time began. The dolls represent many

MIGHTY SHASTA DAM WILL BE SECOND LARGEST IN WORLD

BY JOHN RICE
NEA Special Correspondent.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Shasta dam, second largest in the world, will hold back enough water to flood the entire city of Chicago to a depth of 35 feet.

But that is not the purpose of the tremendous barrier being erected across the Sacramento river in northern California. When completed, in five years, the project will solve five great problems. It will:

- 1—Provide a vast new supply of power for irrigation and industry.
- 2—Decrease Sacramento river floods which annually inundate rich valley farmlands.
- 3—Furnish unlimited fresh water to regions where the original supply either is exhausted or rapidly decreasing.
- 4—Regulate flow of the Sacramento river, thus preventing salt water from seeping into fertile delta regions.
- 5—Stabilize and facilitate navigation on the Sacramento river which already ranks sixth in America in volume of traffic.

HIGHEST WATERFALL

The cost of the mighty structure is estimated at $170,000,000. The sum of $35,939,450 has been allotted to Pacific Constructors, Inc., a 12-company syndicate which underbid competitors. Another $65,000,000 will purchase materials, clear the reservoir site, re-route telegraph wires and main line railroad tracks, and install hydro-electric generators. The rest of the money will be spent on the smaller Friant dam, on far flung canals and irrigation pumping systems.

Enormous as this sum sounds, the Bureau of Reclamation of the United States Department of Interior which is building the dam, estimates the entire investment will be returned in less than forty years by water sales alone.

When completed Shasta dam will be 500 feet high, 3500 feet long and will contain 5,000,000 cubic yards of concrete. Though not as high as Boulder dam nor as long as Grand Coulee dam, Shasta will be the greatest overflow-type dam ever built, and will control the water supply of an area as large as England.

Water roaring over its spill-way will form the highest man-made waterfall in the world as it tumbles a sheer 480 feet to triple Niagara's mighty fall, and to develop 515,000 horsepower from huge generators.

Notice is hereby given that there has been filed in the office of the County Clerk of Midland County, Texas, by O. D. Dillingham, a person engaged in the dairy business, the following names, tradenames, marks and designs used by him for advertising purposes or upon his milk bottles:

"It tastes better"

That the words used inside the oval besides the above word "Creamery", are "Milk", "Ice cream", "Ice", "Butter", and "Produce". And "It tastes better" under the oval as above.

That the colors used in billboards, posters and signs as follows: Background in "Banner" orange; letters Ultramarine Blue; oval is Ultramarine Blue inset with letters in white.

In testimony whereof, witness my hand and seal, this 7 day of March, 1939.

Susie G. Noble,
County Clerk, Midland County, Texas.

Artist's conception of Shasta Dam and power plant when completed.

This enormous power output — about a billion and a half kilowatt hours annually — will be transmitted 200 miles to Antioch, Calif., the power load center. The greater part will be used for pumping water through both Sacramento and San Joaquin valley irrigation systems, while the surplus will be sold in central and northern California.

FLOOD CONTROL

SECOND function of the dam is to control annual floods. Chief cause of these floods is melted snow from the slopes of the Sierra mountains swelling the Pitt, McClellan and Sacramento rivers. Shasta dam will lie just below the confluence of these rivers, nine miles north of Redding, Calif.

When spring sun melts the snow, waters of the Shasta reservoir will back up 35 miles in rugged Sacramento canyon. Enough winter flood waters will thus be stored to insure a steady flow in the Sacramento river during the dry season, and irrigate lands where original water supplies are no longer adequate.

For almost 75 years experts have sought means to irrigate large areas in the southern San Joaquin valley. Here once fertile lands are becoming useless as individual water supplies are exhausted. During the last 20 years ground water levels in some countries have fallen from 20 to 200 feet.

Thus huge San Joaquin valley with almost a third of the state's farmland has only 5 per cent of the water supply, while comparatively small Sacramento valley has 34.3 per cent of the water.

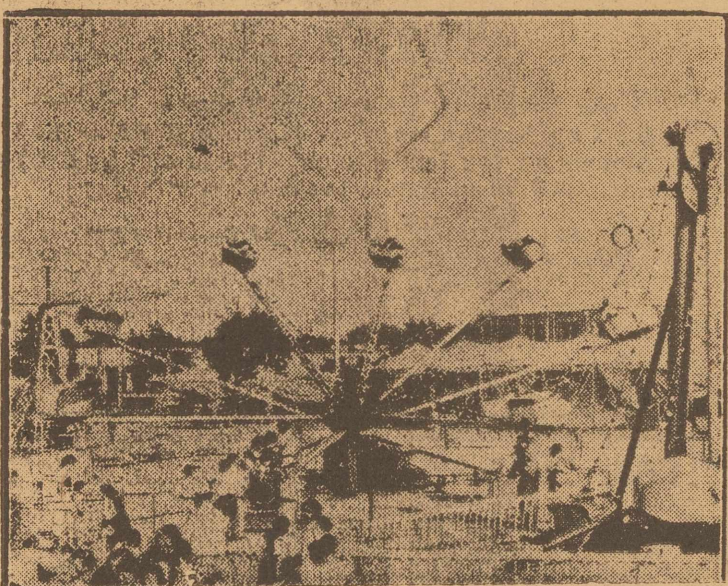

According to present plans the reservoir at Friant, Calif., 300 miles south of Shasta dam, will store enough water of the San Joaquin river for irrigation purposes.

Regulation of the flow of the Sacramento river will make water available for this purpose. It will be diverted into the San Joaquin valley through a delta cross canal.

During recent dry seasons, as the river has fallen, salt water has flowed from San Francisco Bay into sloughs in the delta lands of both the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers.

This salt water has endangered more than 400,000 acres of California's richest farmlands. Steady flow of the rivers will safeguard the supply of fresh water.

Farm Security May Prevent Sacrifice To Pay Farm Notes

Congressman R. E. Thomason has been advised by C. M. Evans, regional director of the Farm Security Administration, that distressed farmers may be aided by that agency to prevent necessity of selling livestock and farm products at a loss in order to meet land note payments. The self-explanatory letter from Mr. Evans is quoted here-with.

An agreement has recently been entered into between the Farm Security Administration and the Federal Land Banks of Houston and Wichita, whereby delinquent Federal Land Bank borrowers, who reside on their farms, will be referred to this Administration in order that we may have an opportunity to extend the benefits of our program to these distressed farmers. As you know, many of these borrowers are experiencing a great deal of financial difficulty, probably due to the fact that it was necessary for them to sell the majority of their livestock and other holdings during the last few years in order to meet their annual land notes. This, together with deflated prices in farm products and the constant cost of subsistence items, has left them in a position of decreased net income.

It is contemplated that the Farm Security Administration can be of assistance to several hundred farm families in your District in this manner, by means of standard rehabilitation loans for the purchase of additional work stock, subsistence livestock, and other farm necessities — capable of increasing annual income, supported by a revised farm and home management program for each individual. This, together with the expected saving to be effected by stressing a live-at-home program for each family, is expected to enable them to meet their annual land payments and thereby avoid foreclosure. The Federal Land Banks have further agreed to a reasonable extension of time, to be determined in individual cases, to permit our Farm Debt Adjustment Section to assist these borrowers in consolidating and amortizing all of their indebtedness, whereby repayment can be made on a yearly basis within their calculated income.

This phase of work will be a function of our Rehabilitation Program, assisted by our Farm Debt Adjustment Section, who should be commended for their efforts in instituting this agreement with the Federal Land Banks. As previously stated, this will affect several hundred farm families in your District, and it is believed this information will be of interest and benefit to you in replying to the inquiries of your many constituents.

Revival

are easily imagined. The one sure thing, was that whatever route he took and whatever the development might have been they led the young man to the hog pen.

All men do not have the same weakness, but that makes no difference; a man in prison is in prison just the same, whatever route he might have taken to get there. The man in the hog pen is there regardless of the road which he came. A man in hell suffers all the torments of hell who come by the same road. All sin courses are downward and have for their ultimate end in this world the hog pen with its filth, stench, vile odors, disgrace and shame; and in the next world hell with its eternal sufferings.

The devil knows what to use to test you at your weakest point. He invariably covers up his traps and beautifies them. We who can remember the saloons of pre-prohibition days, know that the saloons had the best corner, the most brilliant lights, the softest music, the most highly polished rails, and the finest mirrors. The poor victim never knew they had an ugly and hideous sight until he was trapped in body and soul. The devil never shows the ugly sight at the beginning. The pastor mentioned three or four traps in which men and women are caught.

1. Strong drink. The man or woman who deals in strong drink in any manner will find himself or herself emmeshed in a trap of hell with such a trap almost impossible to escape. Deal with it as you will; drink it; sell it legally or illegally, the result is always the same—a trap of sin and hell.

Band Members Back After Santone Trip

Members of the Midland high school band are back in school here after witnessing in San Antonio last week the Annual Battle of the Flowers, in which 40 high school and college bands participated.

Because of a technicality, the Midland band was prevented from participating in the contests but all members reported a thoroughly enjoyable trip.

Band Director M. A. Armstrong today said some of the high-lights of the trip included the band contests, in which at least two all-girl bands and several girl drum corps participated, the three-hour parade of all contesting bands and the crowning of a queen of the show.

The Crane band was the only West Texas band entered and captured first place in class-C division contests.

In speaking of the band parade, Armstrong said each float represented some individual musical number.

Many of the Midland students visited the three airports in San Antonio and several took airplane rides. Other students spent much time in visiting the parks and various other spots of interest.

The band members this week are preparing to enter the national regional music contests in Abilene Friday and Saturday.

amusement, it has no right to be called that now. The changes were called against the Dance; 1. It has wrecked so many young people. 2. It is diametrically opposed to our highest ideals. 3. It disqualifies us from the duties God would have us perform. The modern dance is one of the devil's most effective traps and snares.

3. Card playing is another trap of the devil, and our children are caught in this trap in their own homes. When you enter into card playing, you have gotten right into the devil's trap. Card playing in the home or out of the home is one of the traps to hell.

4. Another trap is Religious Indifference. It is manifested by the forsaking of God's house; Sabbath desecration; and absentee church membership. It is one of the most deadly and subtle of all traps of sin.

5. The last trap mentioned was Covetousness. "The love of money is the root of all kinds of evil." When one is caught in a trap of any kind it eventually breaks out. This is one of the devil's most subtle traps, baited with the opiates and delusions of hell. And once the victim is ensnared they bind with a power that is galling to the sensitive souls. How shall we escape these traps? Do not trifle with sin. A Christian playing with sin in any form is courting the devil; "If the desire is father to the deed." If a man hangs around the places of sin and travels in the association of evil men, he will soon be one of them. If a Christian raves in the devil's company he will soon be caught in the devil's snares. Then Jesus is our hope. He will deliver us from the bonds of sin. I would remind you that "There is a Fountain filled with blood, drawn from manna's veins; and sinners, plunged beneath that flood, lose all their guilty stains."

southern Yoakum. The well had been acidized with 7,500 gallons in pay lime between 5,019 and 5,147, total depth. Test was taken through 3/4-inch choke on 2-inch tubing.

In the same section, Sinclair-Prairie Oil Company No. 2-A Kendrick, bottomed at 5,150 in lime, swabbed 175 barrels of oil into pits in three hours, including hole, then the next three hours swabbed 11/2, 15 and 9 barrels, respectively. It now is preparing to acidize after setting 2-inch tubing at 5,132.

Humble No. 11 H. O. Wooten, Denver pool well, is shut in for potential test, bottomed at 5,150. After first treatment, with 1,000 gallons, it flowed seven barrels of oil hourly; second stage of 2,000 gallons developed flow of 15 barrels an hour. After third and final stage of 3,000 gallons, it flowed 552 barrels of oil in 12 hours while cleaning, then flowed 46 barrels an hour on a two-hour test.

Also in the Denver, Alcoa Oil Company No. 2 Pearl Chatterton flowed a rated 864 barrels of 33.2-gravity oil a day, with gas in the ratio of 704-1, for completion at 5,150 feet. Pay topped at 4,950 was treated with 4,000 gallons.

Honolulu-Cascade No. 2-741 N. W. Willard, in the southwest extension of southeastern Yoakum's Bennett pool, set potential of 1,238.08 barrels daily, flowing through 1 3/4-inch choke on casing, with tubing shut in. Operators plan later to re-test the well through tubing. It had been acidized with 7,500 gallons in pay from 4,980 to bottom at 5,225. Oil is 34.1-gravity and gas-oil ratio 1,100-1.

Two miles northeast of the Bennett pool, Shell Oil Company, Inc. No. 1 Waples-Platter Company re-commenced with five sacks, bringing top of plug up to 5,312 feet, and is standing while cement sets.

Atlantic and Osage No. 2 Tippett, in the northwest extension of the Seminole pool of central Gaines, logged showing of gas in the Yates sand zone at 3,210, which kicked out some drilling mud. It is drilling ahead past 3,800 in anhydrite. Drill-

Sunny Day Smartness

SOFT, washable cottons in smart floral prints, stripes, plaids and checks make some of the loveliest play clothes for teen age girls. The two-piece playsuit, left, comes in aqua or hyacinth print. The skirt is attached to the shorts. The skirt ties on. The blue and white striped dirndl, right, with gathered skirt and square neckline, can go to school during May and June and will be useful all summer.

ON WEEKEND VISIT
Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nance, Mrs. J. S. Tidwell, and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rhoden Jr. made a trip to Big Spring, Abilene, and Eula, Texas, during the weekend. They visited relatives while away.

Firestone VACATION LAYAWAY PLAN

"I'M GOING TO HAVE A NEW BIKE THIS SUMMER"

Here's an easy way to earn and own a bike this summer. Come in—see our complete line of 1939 models—racing types and all. Pick one out that suits your fancy. We'll set it aside while you earn and pay a small amount each week until school is out. If you have an old bike now—trade it in. It will help pay for the new one.

Listen in The Voice of Firestone with Richard Cronk, Margaret Steeks and Alfred Wallstein, Monday evenings over Nationwide N. B. C. Red Network
