"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 16.
The Golden Text is: "Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live; and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken." (Amos 5:14)
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible:
"We know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life" (1 John 5:20).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When we realize that Life is Spirit, never in nor of matter, this understanding will expand into self-completeness, finding all in God, good and needing no other consciousness" (page 264).

Promise of Bustles Has A Hair-Raising Effect on Coiffures

Here's a lovely version of the popular up-and-down. Hair at the back is worn in a long bob, with ends turned up. Sides are brushed smoothly upward, exposing ears and ending in a topknot of ringlets. For evening, fresh blossoms may be pinned into the ringlets.

BY ALICIA HART,
NEA Service Staff Writer.

The curls, the fringed bangs and the upward movement at back and sides make this essentially romantic and in the "bustle mood."

DEBUTANTES and Hollywood stars may cling to their long bobs, but the sophisticate who is taking the new bustle silhouette seriously will consider a becoming version of the pompadour. She'll put her shining locks up— in some romantic, reminiscent-of-bygone-days fashion.

To wear with an evening gown, one prominent Fifth Avenue beauty studio does a charming coiffure which makes use of quite short hair. There are soft, subtly waved bangs across the entire forehead and a mass of loose ringlets on top. Unwaved hair at sides is brushed backward, then up to form part of the back section's upward swirl.

The charm of soft, fringed bangs is admirably illustrated in this smart late summer coiffure. Thick, seemingly casual curls are piled atop the head, while unwaved hair at the sides is brushed backward, then up.

Use your hairbrush every single night, of course. Even the most elaborate hair-do should be able to stand a good brushing. If it won't, you have just cause for complaint. Remember that brushing is the great cure-all. It will, in time, correct excessive oiliness, eliminate a flaky, falling-out condition of the scalp, restore the natural gloss and gleam to exceptionally dry hair or correct whatever other defect happens to be present.

Scrupulous cleanliness, too, is important. Hair should be washed at least every ten days—preferably once a week. Soap and water, providing the soap is mild and the rinsing adequate, will no more hurt the average scalp than it will injure the average complexion.

received proper early training that the nation by the end of his reign would have been so established that it never would have divided, and the subjects of the two nations placed in servitude. This is only a conjecture.

5. Pride has caused many to fall. Pride in this case caused not only the king but his people to be abused. "For a man's pride shall bring him low." (And others with him). Why did he answer roughly his nation's simple request? Why did Charles I of England make similar reply to the nobility and to the other subjects over whom he ruled? Why did the young king of France make decisions which helped to precipitate the French Revolution, and do away with their throne forever? We may never know all these answers; but in the case of Rehoboam pride was very evident. He felt himself much superior to those who were bearing the burden and the heat of the day. He was much better than the poor man of his time in his own estimation. Yet he was wholly incapacitated, being raised in luxury, to fill, even one, of the poor men's places. The servants having gotten some physical development, along with some culture, over against his culture and dissipation, were more capable, other things considered, than was the king to rule over the realm.

There are yet some in the world who have that proud boastful spirit. Many are they because of their superior talents, who think that they should make others their servants; but their superior talents should make them a servant to their fellows. Many there are, who have a nice income, hence think that they should be made the lords of the land, and that others should serve them; but this is abundant reason that they should make their wealth serve humanity. Who made your talents? It is God who hath given them you. "It is God who hath made us and not ourselves." Who gave us wealth? Then we hear the Psalmist answer that: "The Lord God giveth thee wealth." The man proud and austere is not wise; but these are the signs of mental weakness; an evidence of mental imbalance. Read a treatise on insanity and you will find that pride is the chief characteristic of those who fill our insane institutions. Sensible people will snub or look with pity on the rich or poor who have an idea that they are better than others because of their worldly favors and reputations or native aptitudes. We come on the stage of action to help; we are sent to serve. We may not like the doctrine, but it is true regardless. For, even Jesus "Came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many."

"There's surely somewhere a lowly place
In earth's harvest fields so wide,
Where I may labor through
Life's short day
For Jesus the crucified."

1195 Courses Offered For Students at Tech

LUBBOCK — If one student desired to study every course listed in the new fourteenth annual catalog just issued at Texas Technological College, it would take him 100 years to complete the 1195 courses listed.

The college is shown to be offering instruction through five different academic divisions, the graduate division, and the extension division. There are 46 different departments of instruction offering 43 different required courses of study leading to degrees.

There are 153 one-half year subjects in agriculture, 208 in engineering, 74 in home economics, 752 in arts and sciences, and 8 in military science and tactics, a total of 1195 courses. Other interesting announcements are:

Entrance examinations for the fifteenth session of the college will be held on September 15 and 16. The college dormitories will open September 16. The junior, senior, and graduate students will register September 17, so honorees will register that afternoon, and entering freshman will register, Tuesday September 17. Classes will begin on the 20th. September 27 is the last day a student may register for the fall session.

The second semester offers a full half year in the college and will open with registration on January 31 and February 1. Commencement for 1940 will be June 3 and the summer school for 1940 will begin on June 6.

Among the changes in college rules and regulations announced for the first time in this catalog is one relating to entering freshmen who have ranked low in their high school work. These students will be placed on what is termed "Special Observation" and will be required to carry a reduced load and pass at least two-thirds of their work.

The catalogue lists seven classes of scholarship awards for students, four loan funds administered by the college, and nine loan funds not administered by the college.

Medical service for students this year will be in charge of the West Texas hospital.

"Why a Foolish Choice?" Is Asked in Ascertaining Religion

Editor's Note: The following discussion of this week's Sunday school lesson is printed here through courtesy of J. Fred Cooke, teacher of the Business Men's class of the Methodist church.

WHY A FOOLISH CHOICE?
I. Kings, 12:1-20.

Refusing the counsel of experience, listening to the whims, unscrupulous, not turning to God for wisdom, the deficiency of early training, and Rehoboam's pride, are the main elements which caused this son of Solomon and the Ammonitess mother's son, though he was a prince, to make decisions which brought him low and rent his kingdom.

All other nations of the time submitted meekly to the reign of a despot. This was because they did not believe themselves sons of God. Saul had to fight his way to recognition, and David was seven and one half years gaining the kingdom at the point of a sword. Solomon had trouble with Adonijah, and other minor disturbances so that his despotic power might be recognized. Hence Rehoboam's enforced authority relative to taxation and servitude, was cast off by the ten tribes who believed themselves created in the image and likeness of God. When a people think themselves created by God, that alone will cause them to question the right of the King; and the totalitarian state, President Roosevelt in his message to congress January 4, declared, "There is no ethics of the Prince of Peace in any totalitarian state." And in his great speech in Chicago on October 5, 1937 he said: "If civilization is to survive, the principles of the Prince of Peace must be restored."

1. Listening to the counsel of experience, especially if the experienced are conscientious, is proper. However, sometimes experience is moved by fear to say the right thing. We do not know whether it was fear or conscience which caused the older men to advise Rehoboam to treat with favor the people's request (for liberation of physical and financial burdens), but we do know that the kingdom would not have been divided at this time if the king had complied with the request made by the senior advisers. Let us not think that all young men or young kings would have been so foolish as to disregard the sane advice of old age. Not all are like the freshman. It was said, "You could tell him as far as you could see him, but you couldn't tell him anything." Not all young men know too much for one and not enough for two. Some are not obtinate, but will listen with favor to the advice of the sage. Such should be honored, especially if they have other capacities equal to this.

2. The prince was brought up with the young men and boys of his time. He belonged to the gang. Just how far will this gang spirit lead youth? The bunch said, "Oh don't let those old fogies frighten you." "Oh don't be a fraidie cat." "Don't be a sofly." "Be a good sport with the gang." "Don't let them bluff you, remember you are king now, Rehoboam." That the bunch was fixing to barter a kingdom and rent it in twain. The young people boast of their independence, but are they? Some of them have broken away from the authority of their elders and have surrendered to the contemporaries. If the bunch decides to wear slacks, then we decide the girl who does not wear slacks. In some colleges if the student appears in a neat suit at class they are ostracized. The bunch one time said, "I have a new prospect for the fullest life possible for me now, for I'm sure that it will not be long until I will be well." The Spirit will make your life a right; will give you a more abundant life, and supply that something in your soul's nature which will never be satisfied in any other way. So near will the Divine be to you that you can judge between right and wrong, or God will judge for you. He will choose our changes for us.

The deficiency of early training, caused the king not to seek in the good way for the right decision, and for the right guidance. His mother was an Ammonitess and Solomon had built a temple in honor to her gods near the noted building in honor to the God of Israel. The mother of Rehoboam may have taken the child prince to church with her. We are pretty sure that she did for the wives of Solomon even stole his heart from the worship of the true God, and took him away from the house which bore his name. Another reason why Rehoboam's early training was deficient was that the prophet Shemaiah did not come into his life in his younger days as did Nathan into the life of Solomon. The training of the luxurious court of his father was with servants complimenting him and slapping him on the shoulders for future spoils of office. This was not conducive to make a real man nor a strong character of the (to be) King. Poor training of a leader was one of the causes of the decision which divided the kingdom and left them separated as nations for two hundred and fifty three years. At the end of which time the Syrians took the northern tribes captive, during the reign of their last and twenty third king. Thirteen kings reigned in the tribe of Judah before the last Jehoiachin was overthrown by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. Let us venture the possibility that if Rehoboam had

Poor Health Blamed On Various Reasons

DENTON—Poor health in Texas was attributed to the hazards of childhood traceable to improper education and medical care of the mother, to unwholesome environments and unemployment, and to lack of sanitation, by three state health officers on the human resources and recreation program July 12-14 in the conservation course at the North Texas State Teachers College.

"Ill-nourished or neglected children, people forever handicapped through preventable disease, men and women atrophied by unwholesome environments and through unemployment, lives sacrificed needlessly through neglect—all are a more crying scandal than any deficit in the state's budget or any waste of a state's natural resources," Dr. D. B. Harmon, consultant in mental health education for the State Board of Health, declared in a conservation lecture Wednesday morning. Preventable diseases, he continued, constituted 20,000 of the 60,000 deaths in the state last year.

In picturing the quarter of a million Texas children who cannot make adequate school adjustments because of nutritional deficiencies, developmental defects, or inadequate health insight on the part of their parents, Harmon said, "We must find, awaken, and completely develop the native abilities of the people that have lain dormant and been suppressed in the past, so that the people may grow to power and our society with them." To do this, he added, the old processes of education in which society determined value in terms of possession of material wealth, must be truly democratized so that society determines value in terms of real wealth—the powers that lie within the individual.

Present health conditions in Texas call for a reshuffling of the cards, making a correct analysis of modern trends, and constructing a state health program of activities based upon logic instead of emotion, V. M. Ehlers, director of the bureau of sanitary engineering for the Texas State Department of Health, said in a conservation lecture Thursday morning. Such a program, he said, would include education through the schools of the entire population in the fundamentals of sanitation and disease prevention, the conservation of natural resources and the organization of highly trained public health officials for cities and counties to promote and enforce health conservation measures. Economic loss through improper health conditions, he declared, leaves in its wake poverty, delinquency, crime, suffering, sorrow, hunger, discontent, unrest, and unemployment.

Proper education and adequate medical care for the mother will eliminate or reduce most of the hazards of childhood, Dr. J. M. Coleman, State Health Department, Austin, declared Friday morning. The factors which influence growth and development, he continued, may be divided into intrinsic or hereditary and extrinsic or environmental. Among extrinsic factors which operate before the child is born he listed health and nutrition of the mother during pregnancy. Factors in child development after birth he listed as innate growth, physical environment, social environment, activity, nutrition, and disease.

Dr. Harmon spoke again Saturday morning on "Education and Public Health."

TEXAS OUT-O'-DOORS

AUSTIN. — Recommendations which, if adopted by the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, would give Texas duck hunters considerably better sport, were strongly urged upon Ira N. Gabrielson, Bureau Chief, by Will J. Tucker, Executive Secretary of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, at the recent annual meeting of the National Game and Fish Commissioners Association.

Tucker asked that Texas, which biological survey reports indicate had 100 per cent more ducks last season than the previous year, be allowed to start at sunrise rather than at 7 a. m.; that earlier shooting be allowed in the northern half of the State and that the use of a few live decoys be permitted.

Those are the things Texas sportsmen have been urging ever since the biological survey set down stringent rules several years ago in an effort, which is proving successful, to save migratory waterfowl from extinction.

Final approval of the duck season and all restrictions will be made this year for the first time by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the Department of Interior, to which the biological survey was recently transferred. At present there are no indications of the season, its length or its limitations, Tucker said upon his return to Austin from the national meeting.

Coyotes, known as the most canny animal in Texas, get along! One hungry old coyote must have found the foraging rather tough recently, but he coped with the situation by catching and eating fish, believe it or not!

State Game Warden P. D. Moseley of Canadian and J. H. Maggard, Amarillo, while patrolling near Tascosa, was a coyote at the edge of the Canadian river, but paid little attention after the animal sneaked away. However, they saw the same coyote at the same spot at approximately the same time the following morning and were able to sneak up close enough to see the coyote scooping minnows five and six inches in length out of the river and devouring them.

Six more beaver have been trapped in southwest Texas and placed in the streams of Jasper and Walker counties, making a total of a dozen of the busy dam builders which have been put to work in East Texas.

The drought in certain sections of South Texas and the Hill Country has hit game birds and animals hard and it has become necessary for the State Game Department to feed wild turkeys in a dozen Hill Country counties. Seven game wardens are engaged in feeding the birds, which is vitally necessary in order to save sufficient stock for breeding purposes next season. The turkey crop this year will be well below normal in the Hill Country, Earl Sanders, Game Department Regional Game Manager at Kerrville, reports.

Texas can and is raising elk. The big game animal is protected in the year round in the Lone Star State. A herd of forty-four planted in Jeff Davis county in 1937 has increased until there are nearly 300 animals in the herd.

Triplet deer are very unusual, does usually give birth to a pair, but Texas has at least two does which are more than doing their share in keeping the State stocked with deer. A doe on the W. H. Ramsey farm three miles from Kerrville recently had three deer for the fourth consecutive year. She is not yet five years old. The other deer which has proved very prolific is one on the Hyatt Brothers Ranch near Johnson City. She recently had her third set of triplets. She has given birth to seventeen young, including four sets of twins, in the last seven years.

The Southwestern Sportsmen's Show, held in Amarillo for one week and which was the first show of its kind ever staged in the Southwest, will be repeated next year, it was announced by Gene Howe of Amarillo, sponsor of the show and a member of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission. Several other cities in Texas have expressed interest in sponsoring such a program.

Berlin Urges Swiss to Help Deepen Rhine

ZURICH, Switzerland (U.P.)—Germany has invited Switzerland to start negotiations with a view to making the Rhine from Basle to Lake Constance navigable to ships up to 1,350 tons. The distance the river would be deepened under this plan would be nearly 100 miles.

Switzerland is reluctant to agree to the proposal on economic, political and military grounds. The objections are:

1. Economically such a project would be harmful to Switzerland as traffic between Germany and Italy, which today goes over the Gotthard route, would go via the Rhine and Brenner route, affecting the Swiss Federal railways and basic shipping interests.

2. Swiss industries would concentrate gradually near the German frontier, with the object of taking advantage of the cheap transportation of the Rhine.

3. Concentration of industries near the German frontier would damage the industrial interests in the interior.

4. The cost would be 175,000,000 marks ($75,000,000), of which Switzerland would bear half.

The German invitation was based on the Swiss-German agreement of 1929, which states that both governments will carry out the plan "when the economic situation makes it possible."

There are indications that Germany will bring pressure to bear on the Swiss government to accept the project. The German secretary of state in the ministry of communications revealed that the Reich was becoming impatient over the questions when he addressed a meeting of the Rhine shipping organizations at Lake Constance.

He said, "the time for definite action has come."

Leadership Lack Is Blamed on Habits

DENTON.—American sterility of leadership, social deterioration, and our lengthened social crisis are chargeable to an "onward-and-outward" mania of American parents for their children, Dr. D. E. Harmon, consultant in mental health education, State Department of Health, Austin, charged in a conversation lecture at the North Texas State Teachers College Saturday morning.

This "American passion" of American fathers and mothers to lift their children to a higher economic level than they themselves have enjoyed, and particularly to the "white-collar" class, has caused parents force their children to conform to type and result in a standardized program of general education, Harmon said. General intelligence derived from such a program is a myth, he declared.

Formal education failed to produce insight and has been largely confined to giving more accounts—ignoring the nature of individuals, their needs, and the processes going on within them that permit them to absorb and use knowledge, the speaker stated.

"Until we can produce in man an insight into the powers that science and technology have given him in controlling his environment and himself and until we teach him to understand and use the gifts of science in advancing his own welfare and adding to his wealth and happiness, the half of the jobs we are now doing will, in the long run, be of little value," he declared.

"Twisted bodies, thwarted, immature personalities—special wreckage which is the product of attempt—fatigue and acting in the world, and holes"—are met every day in their consultant rooms by the physician, psychiatrist, and neurologist, Harmon said.

Contentment, happiness, security, and social progress can be obtained only by providing an educative process that meet every day in the intended by nature the speaker said.

Lead Poisoning Kills Wildlife In Minnesota

ST. PAUL, Minn. (U.P.) — Lead poisoning has killed more ducks in Minnesota the past few years than the gun of the hunter and the affliction now threatens extinction to several species of migratory waterfowl.

A survey conducted by wildlife conservationists showed that buckshot from the hunter's shotgun was spread heavily over the state's lake bottoms, where waterfowl feed. The resultant lead poisoning has taken an alarming toll among the waterfowl, it was pointed out, especially diving ducks which feed in deep water.

Dr. Gustav Swanson of the University of Minnesota and T. L. Osmer of the state game and fish division inspected several lake bottoms and found as many as 11 lead pellets to the square foot.

"In one series of three lakes we found for every 14 to 24 square feet of lake bottom an average of six pellets that could be reached by waterfowl," Osmer said. "One lake had as many as 11 pellets to the square foot."

In tests conducted by Dr. Swanson, some 350 ducks found dead along lakeshores were examined and in the gizzard of each bird one or more lead pellets were found.

Because of their feeding habits, diving ducks such as blue bills, ring-necks and ruddy ducks were believed more susceptible to lead poisoning than others.

Swanson said one solution to the problem lay partly with shell manufacturers. A less poisonous alloy could be put in shotgun shells.

Recreation News

For the past week about 150 boys and girls have been attending the playgrounds of Midland daily. Softball has been the featured activity of the Mexican and southside playgrounds.

The boys' teams are divided into two groups. One team consists of boys 14 years old and younger. The other team being of boys 15 years and over.

The names of the teams are as follows: the Mexican youngsters call themselves the Steers while the younger boys of the southside call themselves the Herders. The older Mexican boys team are the Goats while the southside boys are the Rams.

Friday evening the Rams smashed their way through the Goats for a 33 to 10 victory. However, this victory happened to be only the third win over the Goats during the season. The other two victories were by scores of 3 to 3 and 23 to 22. The Rams figure it very unnecessary to mention the tallies of the games they lost. However, the Rams very unexpectedly cracked the Goats again for a 19 to 6 victory. The Rams and Goats were matched again Wednesday. Although it began raining during the game the Rams edged their way through for an 18 to 17 victory.

The younger boys have been playing hardball, and the Mexican Steers have been stampeding through the Herders very successfully. The Steers won the last game last Wednesday morning by 31 to 8. Monday night, three cars of boys and girls of the southside went to Cloverdale. Various ring games, stories, jokes, music and singing were enjoyed by all.

Games and activities were postponed Thursday because of rain. Playgrounds are open Monday through Friday from 7:00 a. m. to 12:00 noon, and from 1:00 to 6 p. m.

Packet Service Planned On Upper Mississippi

ST. LOUIS (U.P.) — Revival of passenger service on the Upper Mississippi river — from St. Louis to St. Paul, Minneapolis — is being considered by the Eagle Packet company here, owner of the teamer Golden Eagle.

Officials of the firm believe that completion of a 9-foot channel next year will assure practical navigation and say regular service, halted in 1915, depends only on demand. The Golden Eagle now makes regular trips on the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee rivers.

Dinosaur Bones Found in North Soviet Workers

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta. (U.P.) — Ploving on his farm near Grande Prairie in the Peace River country of Northern Alberta, Robert Cochrane unearthed a quantity of what appeared to be flat or chipped pieces of stone.

Closer examination revealed them to be pieces of bone, Cochrane forwarded the chips to geologists at the University of Alberta. Several weeks later he was advised that they were pieces of the vertebrae of a species of dinosaur not unlike those discovered in the Red Deer Valley of Alberta, about 500 miles to the southeast.

The discovery marked the first time that dinosaur bones had been discovered "north of parallel 55," and proved that these giant animals had roamed much farther north than formerly was supposed.

Forty miles west of Kleskun Hill in the northern mining country is another peculiar elevation of land known as Saskatoon Mountain. It is now believed that both these elevations rising so unexpectedly above the surrounding plain floor, are the crest of what once was the sea floor.

Bones of the mammoth have been found south of Saskatoon Hill, last fall, after the driest summer on record, river beds were exposed for the first time since the country
