Birth Control Clinics Growing In Importance Over the Nation

Announcement made a week ago that steps would be taken here toward organizing for Midland a birth control clinic doubtlessly has brought forth much comment. It is demonstrated, by those investigating such a clinic, that similar projects have been undertaken all over the nation and are growing in importance and public goodwill.

Taking the Maternal Health Center of Fort Worth as an example, a few statistics might be brought out. It is a charitable organization, non-sectarian, non-political, supported by private donations for the purpose of providing scientific birth control information and materials to married women unable to pay a physician. The Center proceeds on the theory that it is better that poverty stricken mothers do not have large families of children—if they and their husbands so desire—when the only sure heritage for those children is dependency, or disease, or both. Family planning is considered a more accurate description of the Center's objective than the term "birth control."

Opened February 22, 1938, clinics have been held each Tuesday and, to date, 425 women have applied for admission, of whom 137 were rejected because of existing pregnancy or of high income, and 298 were accepted. Of this number, 167 were women on relief. Hospitalization, where necessary, was provided in some instances and possibly the lives of several women were saved.

From the purely economic standpoint, figures revealed were interesting. If the clinic prevented the birth of 298 unwanted babies, the delivery of each one being computed at $25, approximately $7,500 was saved. The cost of maintaining the children, had they been born, was estimated at $5,000, or a total of $12,500. Total expense of the clinic was $1,850, or a saving to the community of $10,650.

That point of view is strictly mercenary. From the larger and more humane view, the saving in suffering was incalculable. Many of those children would have been doomed from birth to dependency, disease, crime or sub-normal mentality. An inestimable service was rendered to those women and the Center probably has improved the health and morale of 298 mothers to a point where they can face life with a measure of security.

Civic leaders, with approval of doctors, are now considering establishment of such a clinic at Midland. If you are interested, either pro or con, your opinions should be placed before the health board or committee selected to organize the clinic.

False Alarm!

Fire wagons dashing through the streets, sirens screaming, are always a danger. No normal person, old enough to think at all, would dream of turning in a fire alarm except in cases of dire necessity.

Yet false alarms in some cities make up as many as 20 per cent of the fire department's runs. So many firemen have been killed in answering these false calls that many cities have had to take drastic measures against them.

Portland, Ore., attached a sign, "Think—A False Alarm May Cost a Life!" to all fire alarm boxes. The number of alarms was cut substantially. Boston placed sirens on boxes in areas where there were many false alarms. This stopped them almost completely.

School-age boys and girls are the most frequent offenders. Instruction seems the only remedy in their case. They simply do not think, do not realize the often-deadly results of their prank. Yet it is seldom malicious. Teaching the children the seriousness of false alarms would seem to be the best answer in cities in which this is a problem.

SO THEY SAY

Things Are Looking Up

(Public Service Magazine.)

Perhaps the most noteworthy aspect of the Edison Electric Institute Convention in New York last month was the optimism expressed and shown by speakers and delegates in attendance in viewing the electric industry's future. The gloom and pessimism that has marked these gatherings for the last six or seven years was conspicuously absent.

Two factors have contributed to this change of heart. First, the realization that perhaps the "bogies" of the last few years have been exaggerated and the industry is not on the "road to the poorhouse" even though some unfair and unjustified government policies have appeared to be a big push in that direction. In the face of unrelenting government oppression and one political obstacle after another, the industry has forged ahead to new peaks in the last six years—improved the service, lowered the cost to the consumers and at the same time put itself through the "wringer" by abolishing abuses and practices of which the public disapproved.

Second, many developments indicate that the public itself has had a definite change of heart toward the industry. Although election after election has shown that the public has never been particularly enthusiastic for public ownership, they did nevertheless passively accept "yardsticks" and other excursions into public ownership of utilities, if for no other reason than to give the advocates of this system a chance to prove its merits. Apparently, the public feels that enough of these politically managed projects are established or under way from whose operations they will be able to judge the relative worth of public ownership as compared to investor ownership and private enterprise. Apparently, also, the public is reluctant to abandon a system of proven value for one whose pitfalls are obvious.

As Elmo Roper, a New York distribution consultant, told the Convention, "You in the electric utility business have improved during the past five years as neighbors and citizens and merchants, and our surveys show that the public is aware of that improvement and, in turn, is friendlier to you than it was some time ago."

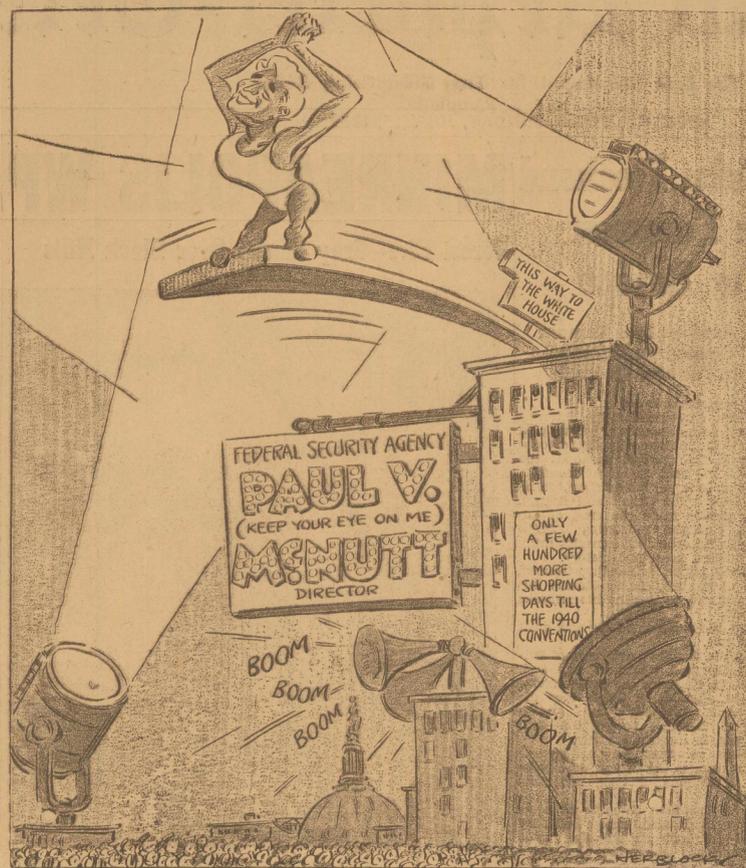

This friendlier feeling has already been manifested to some extent in legislative halls and will be reflected even more as time goes on. The change of sentiment in the industry and on the part of the public should give every utility employee a spirit of confidence in the future of the great industry of which he has an integral part and give him renewed strength and inspiration to apply himself assiduously to his appointed task in the public service.

As the editor of the Electrical World aptly puts it: "The industry has recovered from its nervous breakdown and is now going back to work."

We're not out of the woods yet, but an industry full of enthusiasm and confidence in the future can surmount any obstacles remaining on the road to greater heights.

Yes,—there can be no doubt—things are looking up!

The New Position

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON

Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON—It is just about a year since President Roosevelt launched his famous "purge." Right now is a pretty good time to review the record of the present Congress and to see what the flareback from this unsuccessful bit of strategy has done to him.

Strangely enough, it hasn't done nearly as much as it was expected to do. Despite a few spectacular defeats, the President has been, in the main, remarkably successful with his legislative program to date.

His outstanding defeats have come on the WPA appropriation bills, on the Senate's rejection of the nomination of Judge Roberts to the district bench, on the Florida ship canal, and on the monetary bill—although the last-named defeat was later retrieved.

Last year the President intervened openly in an attempt to unseat Senators George of Georgia, Smith of South Carolina, and Tydings of Maryland. All were re-elected. He also tried to defeat Senators Gillette of Iowa, McCarran of Nevada, Van Nuys of Indiana, and Adams of Colorado. All of these were re-elected, also.

THE LOSS COLUMN

Now look at the voting record on his outstanding defeats.

On the Roberts appointment, all of these unpurged senators voted against him.

On the first WPA deficiency appropriation, in which his plea for an extra $875,000,000 was cut to $725,000,000, all of the unpurged voted against him.

On the second WPA deficiency measure, where he asked for $150,000,000 and was knocked down to $125,000,000, all voted against him except Tydings—who was paired against him.

On the Florida ship canal, Senators George and McCarran were paired in favor of the project, and Senator Smith was paired against it. The rest voted "no."

When the Senate first voted on the proposal to strip the President of his devaluation powers, Senator George voted with the administration and Senators Smith and Gillette were absent. The rest voted against the President.

On the companion vote—to set a price of 77.5 cents for silver—Senators George and Tydings voted with the administration, Gillette was paired against the measure, Smith was absent, and the rest voted against the president.

On the final vote on the monetary bill, which restored the devaluation powers to the President, Senator Gillette voted "yea," Senator Smith was absent, and the rest voted "nay."

BIGGEST TEST COMING UP

The biggest test of the President's program is still ahead, of course, in the neutrality bill. Here Senator Clark of Missouri is one of the most active men in opposition to the President's proposal.

For the rest, the President has got from Congress most of what he asked for. Except for WPA, his appropriation bills have gone through practically uncut. His appointments to the Supreme Court have been confirmed. His Social Security program has suffered little change. His new housing program went through, his farm program emerged about

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Midland Reporter-Telegram:

May I ask you for permission to write you a few lines for your good paper, as I have been asked the question quite a number of times: What causes so many people to violate the laws of our land, and country, and why is it we cannot get law enforcement? The main reason is the people are to blame, not the officers.

I can answer some things in my own feeble way. I feel akin to the good people and the good neighbors, as we are all one large family, and by the blood of the Son of God, who died for all people, I address you as a good citizen of our good country, and bring an invitation to you, come, for all things are now ready.

My good citizens, you do not realize that man was born with a keen organization, that sickness and trouble have been helping undo what was left of the original healthfulness; much of his time is wasted by playing games and drinks, that his nerves have come to be merely a tangle of disorders, and he is the most pitiable object on earth, of whom thought he was very sick, does not look sick, and nobody sympathizes.

Let us remember the obligation of a good citizen, remember the pledge to our good neighbors and to our country. Please think, that which is in the Bible is used as a symbol of all gracious infatuations in the dove, not the porcupine.

My friends, those of you that play the games for money, those that go to the parties that are rough, those that will not pay their bills, those that violate the laws of our country, I think the first thing for them to do is to ask their Saviour for their forgiveness, and also those that you have wronged. I think the great business of our people if properly presented, is to pardon.

May I ask you please conscientiously avoid resorts which tax by requirements intoxicating drinks. Please be independent enough to resist them, please gain spirit, rejoice, rest with an easy conscience and a happy heart, so you can come home from the club, clad in a new armor to fight the battles of Friendship and Love in your home. Thy sins and thine iniquity will I remember no more. Please sign release in tears, sealed in blood, written on heavenly parchment which hold your transgressions, and let them fall off. Blessed is the man whose transgression are forgiven, and get deliverance from your troubles.

My good people, may I ask you to refrain from breaking the laws of our country, please refrain from intoxicating drinks. Do you not think that the good people would know you with such a breath, please then at least come out a regenerated man, not only a clean soul, but a pure body. In order to work easily the undertaking must be congenial, but you say that much of what is expected of us is the repulsive to the natural soul. Our reply is, get your heart right and the work will be pleasant. No need of you trying to do good work unless you are a good citizen yourself. I am pleading to you to make your life all devoted to making it better for the good to live in.

We know persons so genial that their face is always full of sunshine, and there is no night there. When they have trouble, you can hardly tell whether they are crying or laughing, the wave of tears dashing against a bank of smiles, but we meet others that are more explosive like dynamite under slight provocation; we read the good book, and we see what it says about the law violator, the liar, the thief, no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God. The wine cup has been their fascination, some have by it been brought down from the circles in which they once moved, and come down nearer and nearer to the day of their destruction, and after a while you will be caught in the coils of that which biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder. Be a good citizen, please give up drinking and gambling, you cannot go straight mistreating your neighbor and your fellow man. You will either go to the right or to the left.

And I fear that you have started a journey that will never end. Please help in the early morning to start out right on the day's work, help at night to repent, live sober, live a Christian, and the bruises will soon be healed. It is pleasant to have our good neighbors and friends to gather around us to tell us how sorry they are, and try to ease the loneliness. I feel that there are wounded hearts now, some have had trouble. What can it bring? They cannot mend the broken bones.

Neighbors and friends be true, spiritual means a cup of cold water, not of wine, to the thirsty. Please ask for the forgiveness, and get the hearty hand clasp, in a pure life, in an earnest purpose, in all that you do. Strive to put friendship and love in what you do. Bear up one another's burdens and fulfill the law of Christ.

—Henry Thomas.

Nobody in Midland has worked harder for a civic project than members of the highway committee of the chamber of commerce and their allied forces, and their work has been against the greatest of odds. If they get their ambitious projects put through, probably their work will be largely overlooked. If they fail, there may be many who will say "Midland has been asleep on the job." But I'm of the opinion that they have had only luke-warm help from the masses and, if they fail, it will not be the fault of the highway committee. My only suggestion would be not to expend too much energy on a project which may be impossible but to bend their efforts on those which can be put through the fastest. Lateral roads from Midland in practically any direction will prove valuable.

E. B. Dickenson built six new watering places on his ranch when he figured a drought had come upon the country. All of them are shallow wells, right down on the edge of draws, the water being pumped by self-oiling windmills into open concrete tanks 26 feet long and 12 feet wide. These tanks have no float pans but drain directly into open surface tanks. He said he didn't see how he has operated

Co-Op House Members Increase at Texas U.

AUSTIN.—Student residents in cooperative houses here will jump 25 per cent next fall, according to University of Texas officials, who today disclosed plans for three additional "share-the-work" dwellings in September.

A new 70-man cooperative unit will be added to the University's total of 14 men's houses, R. R. Rubottom, assistant dean of men in charge of housing, reported. Women's cooperatives will be increased from two to four houses, housing fifty co-eds.

Formerly Oak Grove Athletic Dormitory, the new unit will be the largest venture in the three-year history of cooperative housing on the University campus, Dean Rubottom said.

"Heretofore we've simply used large houses," he added. "This will indicate how far we can go on cooperative housing on a dormitory scale."

Figures released in housing offices showed that 350 students living in University cooperatives this year pruned board and room expenditures to between $15 and $20 per month as against an average student living cost of between $30 and $45 for the same period. Distribution of the house-work among the cooperative dwellers and group purchasing by the houses produced the slashed living costs, Dean Rubottom stated.

He warned that housing facilities are currently "very crowded," citing a waiting list of 100 names and 45 deposits already received for the new 70-man unit.

V. I. Moore, dean of men, described the University housing venture as "eminently successful in a short time."

He pegged possible future expansion at about 500 dwellers, "according to the way things look now."

Blind Spots of Unemployment Act Given Explanation

AUSTIN, July 15.—In spite of several "blind spots," workers are generally well-informed on unemployment compensation, Orville S. Carpenter, Texas director of the jobless benefits program, said today.

Employment service interviewers report that individuals do not confuse jobless benefits with relief. There is no connection, Carpenter affirmed. Workers thoroughly understand that jobless benefits are the right of the eligible unemployed. A man is probably eligible for benefits if he has earned at least $80 during a prior 12-month period, and has earned it from a tax-paying employer.

A key point in the jobless benefits program is that the individual must be physically able to work. Some claimants do not understand this, Carpenter asserted. The individual, formerly employed by a tax-paying employer, to receive benefits must be able to work and must be available to accept any suitable job offered.

Another phase of the program is not understood by some workers. The tax for jobless benefits is paid solely by employers; workers pay no part of it. Carpenter emphasized that approved claimants should report their part-time earnings when filing claims. Failure to report accurately and completely shortens the time benefits may be drawn and makes the claimant liable for prosecution under state laws.

The director said that unemployed workers could always obtain an explanatory pamphlet from their employer. Every tax-paying employer in Texas has a supply of these bulletins which tell workers when laid off how to make claims for benefits. They also define the rules of eligibility.

1934, walked into the Aurora (Ill.) police headquarters Thursday and surrendered, Sheriff Pat Allen was advised by the Aurora police chief.

Although the communication indicated Daniel would waive extradition, District Attorney Z. D. Allen said the county probably would not send for the defendant.

Daniel, a lieutenant in the Marine Corps during the world war and a legislator from Wichita county for four years, was indicted four times in 1934, the bills charging him with embezzlement from the party committee, a body corporate, and from certain committeemen.

Tried in one of the cases and given a two-year prison sentence, Daniel appealed and obtained a dismissal of the indictment on the grounds the committee was not a body corporate. A new indictment was voted, charging embezzlement of funds from each of the committee members.

Baptists' Roll To Span World Minions of Law

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A dramatic review of the international strength of the Baptist denomination has been planned for the opening of the Sixth Congress of the Baptist World Alliance which begins here July 22.

An estimated 50,000 delegates will be massed at the first major gathering of the alliance for a rollcall of nations. As the name of each nation is called, a native representative in typical costume will rise and respond in the language of his country.

According to Dr. Louie D. Newton, general chairman of arrangements for the alliance meeting, some 60 nations will answer the rollcall. As each response is made a massed band will play the national anthem of the country's representative while he appears on a platform before the assembled delegates.

The roll will be called by Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke of London, Eng., general secretary of the Alliance. Dr. Rushbrooke has already arrived in the United States to prepare for the congress, held every five years.

Virtually every place of lodging in Atlanta has been reserved for the week-long congress. Hotels, apartments, college dormitories and hundreds of private homes will be used to house the numerous delegates.

Assemblies will be held in Ponce de Leon park, home of the Atlanta baseball club, which has rearranged its schedule to be on the road when the Baptists are in conventions.

Unsettled conditions in Europe threatened to injure Congress attendance during the spring, but Dr. Newton reported that lessening of Continental tension has produced numerous new reservations for the meeting.

Party Given Only for People Over Seventy

BONHAM, (AP) — In keeping with a pledge made in 1916, Mr. and Mrs. Simp Moore of Bonham gave their annual Fourth of July party this year to residents of 70 or older. The party has been omitted but once in the 23 years, on account of illness in the Moore family.

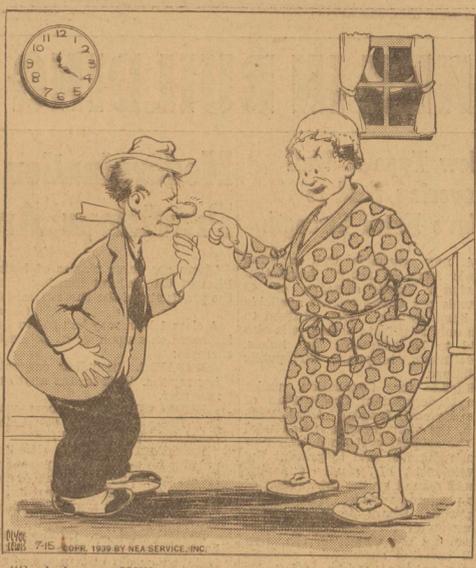

The event grew out of a resolve by Mr. Moore that if he recovered from an illness he would do something as a token of appreciation and the resolve crystallized into the idea of a party for old folks that has grown more popular each year.

In addition to elders, a large number of youngsters and adults gather on the Moore lawn for a program of music, reading and skits, some in costume. Congressman Sam Rayburn attends when he is at home.

Mr. Moore, is nearing 70 and the only other person living who attended the first party is A. G. McCulloch, who was unable to attend this year. Persons from many parts of the country have sent compliments on the parties.

New Type of Wall Covering Said to Have Extra Strength

A new washable wall covering made from a fabric foundation having a tensile strength of 40 pounds per square inch is available to home owners. Not confined to use only in private homes, it is also said to be adaptable to hotels, apartments, hospitals, and public buildings.

Questions About Building Answered

Q. How frequently does flashing need painting?
A. If it is a material that needs painting to prevent corrosion, it should be inspected at least twice each year to be sure that the protective coat of paint is still intact.

Q. How long should plaster be allowed to dry out before painting?
A. Plaster will require several months to dry, depending to a large degree upon climatic conditions. When it is necessary to paint plaster upon completion of a building, it is advisable to use cold water paint which is obtainable in various colors. All plaster walls, after being thoroughly dried, should receive a coat of sizing before application of oil paint or wallpaper.

Q. The front-door sill has worn so that air and even rain come into the house. What can be done to correct this?
A. Either replace the worn sill with a new one or install a metal saddle under the door over the present sill and weatherstrip the bottom of the door. At a slight extra cost, weatherstripping can be placed all around the door, which will increase the protection.

Q. A house that was recently bought has old pine flooring. In many of the rooms it has begun to splinter, and there are depressions in front of the doorways? Can the flooring be repaired?
A. If the flooring is made of edge-grain boards, it might prove practical to scrape and sandpaper it to a level and satisfactory finish. If it is made of flat-grain boards, it would be better to have new flooring laid. It is advisable to consult a competent carpenter.

Modernization Credit Plan Provisions Are Explained

There are three classes of loans under the new Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration. A detailed explanation of the provisions of the three classes follows:

Class 1 Loans
A class 1 loan may be used to finance the cost of alterations, repairs, or improvements upon or in connection with existing structures only. For example:

REPAIRS. Including carpentry, masonry, electrical, and plumbing repairs. This means anything from a crack in the sidewalk to a new roof.

REDECORATING. Floors, walls, and woodwork can be refinished. New floors can be laid, or "permanent" floor coverings such as tile or cemented linoleum laid for.

REMODELING. Any structural change may be made, such as putting up or removing partitions, building additions, making "new" rooms out of unused attic or basement space, building porches, sun parlors, etc. The loan may also be used to convert one type of building into another type. For instance, a single-family house could be converted into an apartment.

MODERNIZING. Cabinets, shelves, and other conveniences may be built in. New plumbing, heating, and wiring systems may be installed or old ones modernized. The installation of a septic tank or cesspool, or the drilling of a well, together with the necessary pumping equipment, would also be eligible.

LANDSCAPING. The ground on which the building stands may be improved by grading, laying walks, building fences, and planting.

A class 1 loan may not be used to finance the cost of completing an unfinished structure. This, however, does not exclude a loan for the repair of a building which has been damaged but not substantially destroyed by deterioration, flood, fire, or other casualty; nor the construction of an attached garage or other attached building in connection with a completed house or other completed building.

Types of buildings which may be improved with a class 1 loan are: Homes, apartment houses, multiple-family houses, hotels, offices or other commercial buildings, hospitals, orphanages, colleges, churches, manufacturing, and industrial plants.

Class 2 Loans
Loans in this class are for financing new structures which are not used wholly or in part for residential purposes. These include barns, garages, service buildings of various types, wayside stands, gasoline stations, tourist cabins, and various industrial or commercial buildings.

The cost of the equipment used in the operation of a business occupying the structure may not be included in the loan, but the cost of heating or lighting systems and similar items eligible for class 1 loans may be included. For example, if the loan is used to build a gas station, part of the loan may be used to install a heating system but not to buy and equip the structure with pumps or other trade equipment.

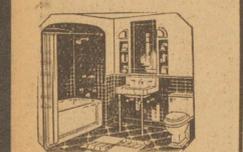

No part of the loan may be used to purchase land or existing structures, but more than one new structure may be built on a single piece of property if the total amount expended is not more than $2,500.

Class 3 Loans
This class is for financing the construction of new buildings which are to be used wholly or in part as residences. Certain minimum requirements must be complied with to assure sound and habitable construction. These apply to any commercial structure, such as a wayside stand, which is used as living quarters for the operators. As in the case of class 2 loans, the loan may be used for new construction only, not for the purchase of land or for equipment other than that eligible under class 1, nor may the loan be used to complete an unfinished structure.

Buildings which may be constructed with a class 3 loan include vacation cottages, roadside stands which contain living quarters, and other buildings used wholly or in part as residences.

Waterlight Roof Joints Are Said to Be a Necessity

There are many places in roofs and walls of a home where joints must be watertight. Joints where one roof surface intersects another to form a valley, gutters and where parts of the building project above or through the roof — chimneys, dormers, vents, etc. — are sources of possible trouble from leaks.

Home Owners' Weekly Hints

Insulation For Pipes.
All hot water plumbing lines are regarded as a source of heat loss because of the amount of pipe surface exposed compared to the amount of hot water carried. In order to minimize such losses the pipes and hot water tank should be insulated.

The Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration offers a means of obtaining funds for insulating tanks and hot water pipes. The funds are advanced by lending institutions qualified by the FHA.

Floors That "Sweat."
When floors sweat it is usually due to the fact that the material is unusually cold and, when coming into contact with warm air containing a relatively high degree of moisture, a condensation results. This condition is not easily controlled, the most practical remedy being well-regulated ventilation.

Roof Drainage System Needs Efficient Design

An ideal drainage system must be designed so it will carry away the water shed by the roof most efficiently. FEA officials say:

Roofs, flashings, and valleys should be built to shed the water and turn it toward gutters and outlets as fast as possible. Gutters and leaders should have capacity for the maximum amount of water and yet not too large to be wasteful.

Outdoor Fireplaces Gain in Popularity

Outdoor fireplaces are found frequently in modern gardens and are no longer confined to the picnic grounds, Federal Housing Administration officials say.

Willis Manager Sees New Farmall Tractor

Ed R. Barnett, manager of Willis Truck & Tractor Co., returned late in the week from Sweetwater where he attended a preview of the new Farmall-A tractor, held by the International Harvester Co. Barnett said the new rubber-tired tractor brings the grower or row crops full vision of the work being done directly under the machine.

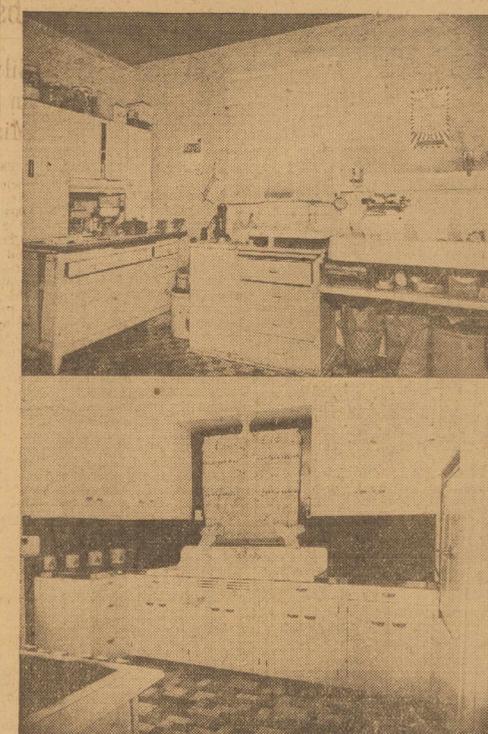

"Just as television brings the radio listener something he has never been able to see, so the Farmall-A enables the can cultivating corn or other row crops to see what he is doing without having to crane his neck or twist his body," Barnett said. "The engine is placed so that it does not obstruct the view of the rows, and the driver rides easily in a sponge-rubber upholstered seat and watches the cultivator shovels at close range, as on a horse drawn cultivator. More power and low cost service have been built into the new model, making possible power farming for the man who farms small acreage, such as 40 to 60 acres, and also serves the big grower needing a second or third tractor to supplement his larger machine.

"A complete line of quick-attachable field machines has been designed to fit the Farmall-A. Production is in full swing at the factory and first models are expected at an early date by the Willis concern," the manager said.

For Better Meals

"A place for everything and everything in its place" applies particularly well to the contrasting views shown of a kitchen (above) before the owners decided on the definite improvement shown below. Funds obtainable from lending institutions qualified under the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan can make such improvements possible to any kitchen and are repayable over a period of time in convenient monthly portions.

Architectural Styles Closely Examined for FHA Conformity

The character of the architectural design of a home given as security for a mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration is given very careful consideration. While having no preference among the various styles of architecture, the FHA requires that the style used be well executed and in general in conformity with that of the surrounding homes.

Following is a brief history and description of the types of architecture prevalent throughout the United States:

COLONIAL: The early New England homes were built by craftsmen who learned their trade in England. Difficulty in obtaining many materials resulted in simple and restrained style. Modern Colonial homes follow this early tradition.

GEORGIAN: Early southern planters imported architects from abroad to design formal homes in the Georgian style known in Europe.

ENGLISH: The picturesque, rambling type of house first used in rural France and later in England in the time of Elizabeth is known as English Tudor. The English home has low, graceful lines and interesting surface textures.

MODERN: The term "machines for living" is often applied to the flat-roofed, severely plain homes designated as "modern." Designed chiefly for utility and convenience, they reflect the modern attitude in building. These homes are popular in France, Germany, and Holland as well as in the United States.

FRENCH: There is a touch of formality in our modern French homes, reflecting the high culture of the period from which they sprang.

NORMAN: A man's home is still his castle, as modern homes in the style of the ancient Normans prove. The tower adds interesting detail.

NEW CALIFORNIA: Low-pitched roof, long horizontal lines, and rambling design, reminiscent of the early ranch homes, characterize this new California style.

MONTEREY: One of the most attractive of the current California types, warm and friendly in spirit, an union of the Colonial with the early California architecture.

New Methods of Construction Are Studied by FHA

Methods of construction which are not customary or not in generally accepted practice require approval by the Federal Housing Administration before mortgage-insurance commitments will be issued on homes built under such methods.

Requests, in general, for approval from FHA on new methods of construction should be made only in connection with an application for mortgage insurance. FHA officials explain. However, in instances where there is general indication that the method of construction will have wide use, request for approval of the method may be made without the necessity of submitting an application for mortgage insurance.

When good materials and good workmanship are used, the following customary methods of construction are, in general, acceptable by FHA on homes given as security for insured mortgages:

1. Wood frame with wood siding or shingles.
2. Wood frame with masonry veneer.
3. Wood frame with stucco.
4. Brick masonry or masonry block.
5. Poured-in-place concrete.
6. Adobe brick.

Sponsors of new methods of construction should demonstrate that the method proposed is dependable and durable. FHA's Technical Division will usually require evidence to show adequate tests demonstrat-

Flooring for Sun Deck A Problem in Building

The home owner seeking a suitable flooring for his patio or sun deck may find the solution to his problem in slate-surfaced asphalt planks.

This brightly toned plank is in harmony with the typical vivid colors of the patio and garden settings. Essentially a standard asphalt plank, it contains a dense surfacing of colored slate particles thoroughly embedded into the top surface.

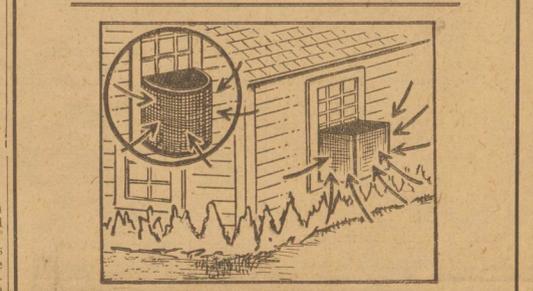

Porches, decks, and patios may be covered with the planks with funds obtainable from qualified lending institutions under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

ing the characteristics of the methods and materials used. Claims of sponsors of new methods of construction should be supported by evidence, together with descriptions, drawings, photographs and samples of the materials.

iversity of Texas new fossil-processing laboratory was speeded here today with the arrivals of the skulls of two pre-historic animals.

The Bureau of Economic Geology, working in cooperation with the Works Progress Administration, shipped to Austin the skull of a 100,000 year-old Columbian elephant and that of the extinct ground sloth, or Megalonyx Jeffersoni. Both were found in a Henderson county dig near Trinidad, Dr. E. H. Sellards, bureau director, stated.

Its possessor standing in life slightly larger than the giant Indian elephants of today, the Columbian elephant skull measured three by two feet minus tusks. Yet undiscovered, its tusks were estimated by Dr. Sellards to have near- 9 feet in length.

Skull of the sloth, relative of the Texas armadillo, was said by Dr. Sellards to be in excellent condition. A vegetarian, its nearest descendants are the three sloths, found today in this hemisphere only in South America.

Destined for study by university scientists and then for display at Texas Memorial Museum, the new fossil acquisitions brought the university's recent geological finds to a total of six.

To date, two shovel-jawed mastodons, one American mastodon, two elephants and one sloth have been recovered from Texas rock beds, Dr. Sellards disclosed.

Recovery of still another pre-historic monster—the skeleton of a 20,000 year-old American mastodon—was frustrated last week at a University-WPA dig in Milan county by a flash flood which dragged the nearly excavated fossil from Brazos river banks, into the turbulent river current, Dr. Sellards said.

Lively Background Is Key To A Charming Dining Room

In the manner moderne is this smart dining room with furniture of walnut and quartered sycamore. Walls, rug, curtains and seats of chairs are in lovely tones of beige. On the console against the beige side walls stands Venus de Milo, done in sugar-pine on a solid walnut base.

A beautiful mantel, all-over carpeting in a neutral tone and a set of furniture in mellow mahogany give this traditional dining room an air of quiet elegance. The table is a good copy of a Duncan Phyfe. The chairs are upholstered in old ivory with gold stripes.

NEW YORK.—The dining room should be one of the most charming rooms in the house. And, with excellent books for the amateur decorator being published in profusion and furniture manufacturers producing perfectly beautiful tables, chairs, buffets and other dining room pieces in price ranges to suit all budgets, there's no reason it can't be.

According to one important New York decorator, lack of color is the chief cause of the dull, almost drag—certainly uninteresting—picture created in many a dining room.

MAIN PIECES USUALLY NEUTRAL

"Since the dining table, which dominates the room, isn't likely to be anything except neutral in tone, and neither is the buffet or a large area of each chair, it removes the decorator, amateur or professional, to see that curtains, chair seats, rug, walls and accents are gay enough to offset the neutral tones.

"If I were doing over a dining room on almost no money, I'd certainly consider getting new curtains and perhaps a new rug rather than a new outlet. Light as it getting the buffet meant having to struggle along another year with dull, lifeless looking curtains and rug.

SYCAMORE USED IN MODERN SET

One of the smartest modern dining sets is of walnut with inlays of quartered sycamore. The chairs are upholstered in a warm, rosy beige, while walls, rug and curtains of the room are in other tones of beige. A statuette carved from sugar pine on a solid walnut base, and a beautiful aquarium, on a streamlined table, the lower shelf of which holds potted plants, are smart

All young people have to face them once they have left the comfort of being supported, to earn their own bread and butter. It isn't easy, because for years parents and teachers have led the young person to believe that success is sure to come to those who are good and honest and industrious. And along with handing him that bit of idealism to outgrow, they have shown so much interest in him and his success that he can't understand why an employer isn't anxious to give him "a chance."

COWBOYS, PIONEERS PLAY DOUBLE HEADER TODAY

First Game of Series Captured By the Home Club

The Midland Cowboys, after having won the first game of the series from the Clovis Pioneers, 3-2, will meet the New Mexico nine again this afternoon in a doubleheader, the first game starting at 2:30.

Following the games this afternoon the Cowboys will leave for Pampa and will not return home until July 26. The victory last night placed the Cowboys in a tie for second position on the standings.

Last night's game was donated to the Cowboys by pitcher Poteet after six Midland errors had almost given the game to the visitors a couple of times.

Jim Vickers started on the mound for the Cowboys and fully deserved to win, giving up only four hits in seven innings on the mound, but errors by his mates gave the Pioneers their two unearned runs and "Vick" retired for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Bill Brown went into the game in the eighth and not only pitched hitless ball but came through with a single in the ninth to aid in winning the game.

The Cowboys started the scoring last night in the fourth inning when Naranjo started off with a double and came in on a single by Lynn Everson. Manager Hale singled and Phillips walked to load the bases but centerfielder Gorman backed up against the fence to take Poteet's long fly and retire the side.

The Pioneers scored one in the sixth when Smith doubled, advancing on a sacrifice by Miller and scored as Naranjo made a wild throw in home on Wagner's ground ball. The visitors then went ahead in the next frame when Adkins singled and advanced to second when Everson let the ball go between his legs, and came all the way home when Poteet hit a high pop fly that Willoughby dropped.

The Cowboys managed to push across one run and tie up the score in the home half of the seventh. Poteet started it all off with a single, moved up as Piet, hitting for Vickers, walked and Naranjo came through with a hard single through shortstop.

Willoughby started the ninth off with a single over second and Brown, after attempting twice to bunt, hit a pop single into left. Naranjo then laid down a bunt and when Poteet attempted to get Willoughby at third he threw the ball into left field, the Cowboy first sacker easily scoring.

The Cowboys hit Poteet hard all night, getting 11 safeties, but could not bunt them for runs. Twice double plays rubbed out possible rallies, at other times batters could not come through with runners on base. Without a strong wind out of the south, Midland hitters would have racked up several homers during the game. Twice Kerr backed fielders to the wall and Willoughby and Poteet and Cox did the same thing once each.

Everson paced the Midland hitting with three singles. Hale, Naranjo and Willoughby each had two hits. None of the Pioneers was able

Cowboys Capture Doubleheader Off Gassers Friday

The Midland Cowboys won their first doubleheader of the year Friday afternoon and night when they defeated Borger, 1-0 and 5-4, in two fastest games of the year here.

The lone score of the first game came in the third inning when pitcher Joe Piet doubled and came home on a single by Rube Naranjo. Borger loaded the bases in the third but could not score and in the ninth they got two on without a run being made.

The night game was close all the way, Midland taking a two run lead in the first inning, then seeing it disappear as Borger made one in the second and three in the third on singles by Barnhill and Evans and a home run by Short. The Cowboys picked up one in the fourth, another in the eighth on a questionable decision at home and the winning score in the ninth on a single by Phillips, a walk to Nugent, error by Barnhill and a single by Cox. Three of the Midland runs were batted in by Lynn Everson, two of them on a double in the first with two on and the third on his infield out in the eighth.

WTNM Averages

Big Gordon Nell of Pampa provided most of the slugging show during the first half of the West Texas-New Mexico League schedule, ending July 1.

Nell batted Billy Capps, Big Spring third baseman, to the batting lead by twelve points, creating for himself a mark of 406. Hack Harrison, Clovis, was third at 388. The Pampa pounder also led in doubles, home runs and runs batted in.

The double mark was 33, only 11 shy of the league record set in 1938 by Hack Miller of Lubbock. Nell's 24 fourbaggers are seven under the record held jointly by Mal Stevens of Lubbock and Jake Stygar, last year with Midland. Sam Malvica, bespectacled Lamesa shortstop, has 26 doubles, one more than Grover Seitz, Nell's boss. Emmitt Fullenwider, Walton, is second in homers with 21.

Tex Walton, fine defensive gardener of the Big Spring Barons, salvaged one hit mark, collecting nine triples. Several players were tied for second place with seven.

Seitz nosed Boyd Watkins of Lubbock out in the stolen base chase. The Oiler pilfered 28 sacks, two more than Watkins.

Lee Harris, Lubbock righthander, led hurlers, working in ten games or more during the first half of the West Texas-New Mexico League, winning eight decisions with only one reversal.

Abilene's Clem Hausman got a late start but turned in three straight victories, compiling the low earned average of 1.29 for the 27 innings he toiled. George Amthor of the Hubbers whiffed 169 batters to lead Bus Dorman, Amarillo wronglander, by three.

For regulars Mel Kramer of Lubbock turned in the best earned run average at 2.45. His teammate, Clovis Bridwell, was close behind at 2.50 and Dorman had 2.76.

Indians Herd Crickets From Path of Plenty
CARSON CITY, Nev. (U.P.)—The American Indian hasn't lost all of his native cunning. They are largely solving the Mormon cricket invasion in various sections of the state as a result of having discovered that the crickets can be "herded" and that their direction can be changed as may be desired. The "herding" necessitates the utmost silence and stealth on the part of the Indians who craftily steer them away from the crops they are after.

Japan Studies More Drastic Price Control

By H. O. THOMPSON United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO (AP)—Japan is struggling against the fear of inflation, and severe measures are being put into effect to check the tendency before it attains large proportions. Inflation and sky-rocketing prices would bring domestic unrest with unhappy effects upon the progress of the war in China. To avoid that and to keep prices from jumping to levels beyond the reach of the public, authorities are invoking all the general recognized methods of resisting inflation.

Lieut. - Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, Japan's war minister, considered the problem so important that he advocated promulgation of an ordinance prohibiting any increase in prices over the present figures. Seiichi Ikeda, chairman of the central price policy commission, warned the people that they must realize the gravity of the price problem and must be prepared to bear privations and inconveniences which, however, great, would be small compared to the hardships resulting from uncontrollable inflation.

Foreign Exchange Controlled

The other means of checking inflation — control of foreign exchange, control of imports and control of exports—have been in effect for some time and have been considered fairly successful. The concentration now is on price control, and while the final form has not been decided upon, the general outline of the program has been made known.

It was recognized that a fundamental cause of high prices—the cost of living in Tokyo has increased about 25 per cent since July, 1937—lay in an uneven situation in the supply and demand of materials. Adjustment of supply to demand, therefore, forms the authorities, objective and the government plans to establish and enforce coordinating measures which will bring into harmony production, distribution and consumption of raw materials, labor costs, transportations, rents, savings and even clerical salaries.

From the program the price policy commission hopes to maintain the present exchange rate of the yen, promote exports and to curb any social unrest which might be engendered by a continued upward rush of commodity prices.

Export Trade at Stake

In addition to the dissatisfaction which higher prices would bring to the people, they also would hamper export trade, reduce Japan's capacity to import raw materials and cut down the savings which now find their way into government bonds.

If possible, the authorities want to get prices to an international level so that Japan's exporters can compete on at least equal terms with those of other nations. It is vital to Japan's future to conserve and add to its foreign balances, for unless payments can be made abroad, Japan cannot purchase raw materials essential to industrial life.

There has been discussion of a proposal to divert more of Japan's food supplies into foreign trade as another means of strengthening Japan's foreign balances. This is a delicate problem, for Japan's ability to feed itself has been an important factor in the development as a first class power and to cut into the people's market baskets might have serious consequences.

Money Problem in China

While fighting inflation at home, Japan also has currency problems on the continent. The Federal Reserve Bank organized in North China to drive out the nationalist currency of China, has been a failure thus far and one of the important reasons for the Tientsin blockade in June was to get a firmer grip on the currency situation there.

Japanese yen are selling at discounts in Shanghai, Peiping, San Francisco, New York and other cities, and while the value of the yen in international finance is pegged artificially here by the Bank of Japan, and in the bank's branches abroad, more and more foreign exchange, which the bank would like to have, is being withheld and sent over the "black bourse" counters.

Japanese exports going to China are paid for in yen or in currency which has a depreciated value against American dollars or British pounds, so Japan cannot build up foreign balances to any great extent that way. Tokyo wants to sell more to the United States and other nations which can pay in a currency which has a more stable value than the yen.
