News from warring countries is subject to censorship. It may sometimes be misleading. It is the right and duty of every American citizen to do his own thinking, hold to his own beliefs, and not permit himself or his country to become a victim of emotionalism or propaganda.

Writing the Platforms for 1940

Democrats and Republicans alike should be grateful to Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, candidate for the G. O. P. presidential nomination, for the clear-cut program he offers his party as 1940 objectives, even though it is negative and not constructive in its approach.

Briefly, here is what Taft wants the Republican party to back:

- 1. Reduction of government costs and balancing of the national budget.
2. Repeal of the payroll tax.
3. Repeal of the capital gains tax as a means of increasing employment.
4. Amendment of the wages and hours law to make it simply a minimum wage law.
5. Amendment of the National Labor Relations Act, which the senator contends is being administered one-sidedly.
6. Abandonment of attempts to fix prices in basic industries.
7. Repeal of the Guffey Coal Act.

If Democrats are willing to fight the campaign on the basis of these seven simple points, the ground is laid for the 1940 battle. In other words, does the New Deal program stand or fall?

Here are issues everyone can understand. They are stated simply, and they concern vital affairs at home. Whether or not you agree with the views of the senator from Ohio, the issues he outlines touch every citizen.

It will be a good idea for American citizens to remember that this country is a long way from solution of some of its most harassing problems, most of them centering around unemployment. The war will very likely be injected into the campaign many times before the votes are counted in November, 1940. But the war is not an issue. It should not be an influence in next year's vote, for the majority of both parties agree that the United States should stay out of it.

While it would be nice to believe that the 1940 campaign will be carried on around a program as simple as that proposed by Senator Taft, the final platforms adopted by both parties will probably be nowhere nearly so concise. Unimportant issues are likely to assume great proportions, and the real disputes may be buried under a deluge of words.

Unfortunately, that's the way platforms are usually written. And the voters, for whom they are intended, will have to guess at what they mean or vote by instinct on personalities.

Forecasting Business

Something that wasn't on any of the business charts happened recently in steel town of Farrell, Pa., with its 15,000 inhabitants. Almost overnight, this town shook off its depression, and its workers went back to the mills. Everything is booming again, and the townspeople are cheered by the factory whistles that sounded again for the first time in nearly two years.

The same thing has happened in other cities, wherever there is industry. One day the factories are quiet, the workers jobless. And then a factory whistle blows and the town brightens up and merchants get rid of the stock that lay idle so long. Economists don't expect these things to happen because the graphs don't indicate prosperity.

One thing the business charts don't show is the psychology of the people. Business crests and depressions are not ruled alone by hard statistics. When economics is finally boiled down to an exact science, it will probably comprise a mixture of statistics and psychology.

There's one thing about the mine fields in the Atlantic—they discourage people from that old stunt of trying to cross in a rowboat.

The Duke of Gloucester asked American correspondents to teach him to roll dice. Any day we may expect to hear of some writer mysteriously coming into a duchy.

A woman juror in Chicago changed her mind after a sealed verdict had been delivered to the court. Husbands have a rough idea of how the judge felt.

THEY FOUND NO PEACE-WILSON AND FORD

EDITOR'S NOTE: Armistice Day, 1939, apparently will be marked by war, another setback for the men who have labored for peace. Here is another of a series of stories on their efforts.

BY WILLIS THORNTHORN
NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

IT has been Woodrow Wilson's fate to go down in history as the foster-father, at least of the League of Nations. Out of the greatest war came the greatest concerted effort for peace, realization of an old dream of a "parliament of nations."

Woodrow Wilson, born in Staunton, Va., in 1856, grew up a boy in Georgia and South Carolina. The devastation, the suffering of the Civil War were deeply cut into his mind as he lived in the shadow of war's ruins.

WORLD CONFLICT
FACES PEACE PRESIDENT.

MEANWHILE, World War enveloped Europe. The Senate quickly adopted a resolution urging Wilson to settle the war by mediation or arbitration. He offered his services in this capacity to all the warring countries. None was interested.

FORD TRIES HIS HAND.

ANOTHER would-be peace-maker of 1915 was Henry Ford. In December, he embarked aboard the chartered Oscar II in a fantastic effort to "get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

While the American press laughed, Ford and a select group of peace doves stormed Europe, but were unable to obtain an audience with anyone influential enough to stop the war.

Mammoth Christmas Trade Rush Foreseen, Early Shopping Urged

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Copyright, 1939, Publishers Financial Bureau

BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov. 10.—Christmas shoppers will buy more goods this year than any holiday season in the history of the country. Because of lower prices, however, dollar sales will not top the 1929 total.

When you have a combination of fatter pay envelopes for workers, more money in farmers' pockets, and bigger dividend checks for investors, the only possible result is more retail sales.

When the war started, inventories of goods in retailers' hands were low. Dying had been on a hand-to-mouth basis for months.

INVENTORIES ADEQUATE? I sincerely hope that merchants have adequately stocked their shelves. After two lean years, it would be a crying shame for them to injure their Christmas trade by not having enough goods on hand.

whole-hearted wrangling among the peace delegates on the Oscar. GERMANS WILLING TO MEDIATE.

IN 1916, Germany, hard-pressed, said she would accept the U. S. as mediator, but the allies refused.

As 1917 opened, Wilson made his last offer, proposing his famous "peace without victory." Both sides reviled him.

Then it was the fate of Wilson the peacemaker to lead his own country into war, and to try to make sure a peace as would halt wars of the future.

ON June 28, 1919, the treaty was signed at Versailles. Everybody, including Wilson, knew it was imperfect.

DESERTIONS FROZE LEAGUE. THE story of the League effort, its large failures and its little triumphs, is a long one.

PLACED HOPES IN LEAGUE. ON June 28, 1919, the treaty was signed at Versailles.

and though in December, 1938, it still technically had 54 member-countries, the absence of Brazil, Japan, and Germany, and the notice of withdrawal of Italy, Chile, and others has left it a frozen cripple in its marble palace in Geneva, helpless to have prevented or to halt the new war sweeping Europe.

These things Wilson was not to see. On Armistice Day, 1923, he spoke his last public words.

"I am not one of those," he said, "that have the least anxiety about the triumph of the principles I have stood for. I have seen fools resist Providence before and I have seen their destruction, as will come upon these again—utter destruction and contempt. That we shall prevail is as sure as that God reigns."

On the morning of Feb. 3, 1924, he died, defeated as a statesman, immortal as a prophet of peace.

NEXT: Frank B. Kellogg, the man who "outlawed" war.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
Reporter-Telegram
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — In a scrub-timbered tract on the banks of the Little Black river in Butler county, Missouri, there is a "lost colony."

Local authorities don't want them—can't afford to keep them on relief, pointing out that the wanderers came from distant parts of the state anyway.

Their presence makes for friction, especially since a number of the families are colored. Furthermore, the cotton picking season will end soon, and the camp may draw yet more casual farm workers whose jobs are finished.

NO AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE LAND Agriculture's Farm Security Administration doesn't know what to do with them. It can make food grants, but that's just a day-to-day stopgap.

If an individual can lease a bit of ground or get on as a tenant it will enable him to get on his feet; but these people can't make any leases, partly because land commands a good price in that section of Missouri and partly because none of them can furnish a recommendation from his last employer or landlord.

The cannery union is perplexed, too, because it finds itself responsible for the upkeep of 400-odd human beings with no prospect that it can do anything but go on supporting them.

Donald Henderson, head of the union, says the whole trouble is symptomatic of the problems which the steady shift from share-cropping and tenancy to day labor is creating in the cotton belt.

TEMPORARY RELIEF NO SOLUTION "Just keeping these people from starving doesn't solve the real problem," he says.

There are thousands and thousands of people like these. The situation hasn't changed much from the situation which led to the original hunger march a year ago.

"The government is trying to turn enough help to the cotton growers to enable them to make a fair profit. But it has never put in a guarantee that a fair share of this financial help would wanting to bet me I'm wrong. I can't bet everybody who thinks I'm wrong, so Bill Holmes will have to look for another Baylon fan to cover his Texas money.

No doubt the citizens are thinking there is an epidemic of money raising, membership drives, ticket sales and the like, but it just happens to be that time of the year. Every one of these causes, to which we have been giving publicity recently, has its merits.

It's better to live in a free country where the contributions to public enterprises are voluntary than to be where about 60 per cent of the income is taxed to cover such purposes.

If Editor Ralph Shuffler will meet me at the Midland Municipal Airport dedication Saturday afternoon, November 18, I will agree to dig a hole and we will bury the hatchet. The airport, seven or eight miles west of Midland and twelve or thirteen east of Odessa will serve both towns to good advantage.

It is costing us $125,000 and we want our neighbors to use it. When we get a regular stop of a transport and air mail line, it will be of still more value to both places. Welcome, Odessans, to the Midland Airport dedication November 18, 2 to 4 p. m.

Presbytery Training School Concluded

Credit cards were presented to nine at the closing training session Thursday night of the standard training school of the El Paso Presbytery which has been held at the Presbyterian church here this week.

On the course on "Teaching in the Children's Department," taught by Miss Kate Payne Owens, credits went to Mrs. D. R. Hall of Odessa and Mrs. J. B. Richards. Many of those attending the school did not do the written work required for credit.

The closing devotional was brought by Rev. W. J. Coleman, Presbyterial pastor. Twenty-seven men and women were present last night at the concluding session, with the average attendance on preceding nights estimated at about the same number.

NO STORY HOUR

There will be no Story Hour Saturday morning as the library will be closed all day Saturday in observance of Armistice Day.
