RUSSIA'S MAN OF THE HOUR

In 1917 a barely literate peasant, drafted as a private in the Czar's army, Marshal Gregory (Georgii) Konstantinovitch Zhukov, sketched above, is today the outstanding hero of the Soviet Union. A speed-worshiping cavalryman, his favorite weapons are tank-and-plane teams. Stalin has consistently found him a prime trouble-shooter. In 1942, he beat the Germans back from Moscow, when outside military experts considered the effort hopeless. He won the turning point or the war for Russia the next winter when he smashed the German Sixth Army at Stalingrad. A few weeks later, Trouble-shooter Zhukov shot up to Leningrad, which German siege armies had encircled for a year and a half. He broke the siege. As First Vice Commissar of Defense, second only to Stalin, he helped plan the great 1944-45 winter offensive that sent his First White Russian Army steamrollering across the Polish plains to knock with the fist of vengeance

Japan's Totalitarian Party

American monitors picked up an interesting wireless dispatch the other day from the Domei news agency to its clients in the hinterlands. It revealed that a totalitarian political party is in the process of formation in Japan.

Probably the dispatch was a little puzzling to most Americans who read it. Isn't Japan totalitarian already? Isn't the Jap method about the same as the German-complete government control, complete obedience, complete regimentation of thought, speech and action?

The answer seems to be: Fundamentally, yes; superficially, no. The chief difference seems to be that a fiction of free speech and representative government still exists in Japan. There was a general election in 1942. Several independent members were elected to the Diet, although the Imperial Rule Assistance Political Society tried to nominate all the candidates.

On the same day the new totalitarian party was announced, Premier Koiso had appeared in the lower house University survey, two and threeof the Diet and heard some sharp criticism of inadequate plane and munitions productions from its members. The session read like one of Churchill's heated set-to's in Com-Andrews County, was on a bottom mons, or an uninhibited debate in our own Congress.

But the Japanese version of free speech in wartime doesn't mean much. The Diet can blow off steam, but it Moving Off Rig can't do much about government policy or conduct of the war. It can't remove the cabinet. About the strongest action it can take is to refuse to approve the budget-if it Japanese political parties can't be compared with our Democrats and Republicans, nor with the Nazi or Fascist type of party. In Germany, of course, the Nazi party is Humble Oil & Refining Company as hostages. (There were 270 host-the German government. It is most unlikely that any to-No. 1 Federal-Keinath, section 8-ages, all later released.) talitarian party in Japan will have even a shadow of the 21s-38e, about six miles northeast Nazi organization's power.

What then will the new Jap party accomplish? Per haps it will help to bolester Koiso's position, which suffered a blow when we landed in the Philippines as Tojo's did when we landed on Saipan. It may be designed to unify public opinion and to suppress criticism. Or perhaps

'Gold Dust Twins' Capture Corpus Christi Open

CORPUS CHRISTI—(P)— Golf's war bond trail led into the south Monday as the touring professionals, who chased Byron Nelson across the finish line with the Corpus Chirsti Open championship, re-parted for New Orleans and another $5,000 tournament.

The "Gold Dust Twins" of the fairways—Nelson and Harold (Jug) McSpaden—were in full stride, ranking No. 1 and No. 2 in earnings for the year as the boys of the links entered the last half of the winter

72 Hole Total Of 264 Nelson captured Corpus Christi's open Sunday with a 72-hole total of 264, four strokes ahead of McSpaden, who took second money. In the five tournaments played since Jan. 1 Nelson has gathered in two first places and finished no lower than a tie for second in the others to bring his earnings for 1945 to $6,132 (maturity value of bonds.) McSpaden, while winning no tournaments, has forged into second place in money bagged, his total now being $4,332. Nelson was three strokes ahead of McSpaden Sunday entering the final 18 holes. Byron shot even par in the last round and McSpaden finished one over. Sam Schneider, local pro, and Ky Laffoon tied for third at 269.

WASHINGTON - (AP) - A general policy for handling the vexing prob-lem of mandates and colonies may come from the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting.

This is the expectation of reliable sources here, who pointed out that the question of league mandates was left open in the Dumbarton Oaks security plan. Must Be Met

The future of the mandates must be met, however, before the old League of Nations can be dissolved under the authority of the Geneva

Officials are not counting on a detailed program to emerge from the Big Three meeting, but they exciple of international rather than single power control of mandates.

This applies especially to greatly value is for air-sea bases.
