Planes of all categories in the Far East Air Forces participated. At least 300 of the force were Mitchells, with jelled gasoline bombs which they poured in at low level in precision strikes against the town's factories and wharves.

A Disquieting Report

The information in the Mead War Investigating Committee's annual report is neither pleasant nor new. But under present circumstances, it carries a particularly painful jolt.

The report tells an old story. The military is fighting the civilian agencies; the civilian agencies are fighting each other; there is lack of definite and co-ordinated jurisdiction, responsibility and authority. Directly and inferentially the present administration is blamed for this. But the executive department's war setup has never been a model of efficiency since the national defense program first started.

We have won one war and are winning another. But we have done it more through superior strength, productivity, spirit and combat leadership than through exemplary management in Washington.

Once again the committee report tells of reconversion plans that were started too late, interrupted by Army pressure for fear the people would grow complacent, then resumed after Germany's defeat in a slow and stumbling manner. It again accuses the Army of hoarding manpower and supplies. It points out that freezing special skills and needed material can make a bad reconversion situation worse.

The report warns of what may happen if a sudden end of the Japanese war finds the nation's business and industry unprepared, and unable to withstand an avalanche of workers it cannot employ and competitive surplus products that will swamp the civilian market.

The committee's urgent advice that the director of war mobilization and reconversion become the supervising, co-ordinating boss of all war agencies is a step that should have been taken months, if not years ago. The advice to the Army to stop piling up unneeded material seems necessary.

But equally necessary, it seems to us, is another step that the government cannot order or legislate. That is a drastic change of attitude in some of our biggest industries and labor unions.

There have been grievous wartime sins by both sides—price cheating and inferior armament production by some manufacturers, work stoppages on vitally needed, life-saving materials by some unions.

But instead of confessing these sins and trying to get together, both sides have spent the war years in hurling vituperative charges and counter-charges, across conference tables, in print, and on the air. They now have a difficult postwar problem to solve, which they must solve together. But they have not yet made any real productive effort to find a foot of common ground on which to stand and face the task ahead.

Individuality And The Presidency

Some Washington New Dealers, a columnist reports, are disturbed by President Truman's failure to accept the people's "mandate" and follow the late President Roosevelt's program as closely as they would like. Specifically they seem to be objecting to the passing of several "old New Dealers."

The broad Roosevelt program is the Truman program and the people's program: swift and total victory, lasting peace, and maximum postwar effort toward full employment and prosperity. In striving toward that goal, Truman has the right to choose advisers whom he knows and respects for their ability, who are agreeable, sympathetic, and will work harmoniously with him. Roosevelt had the right and exercised it. So did every other President.

The people's "mandate" is not undeviating and inexorable, for Roosevelt had to alter his program to meet circumstances from time to time, as any head of state must do. Truman must do the same, and he will make mistakes. But he deserves the right to be criticized for them as an individual acting on his own initiative, and not because he failed to react as Roosevelt might have in a similar situation.

Truman, pledged to support the Roosevelt program, was elected by a majority of the American people on Roosevelt's ticket. But to ask that he be another Roosevelt is asking the impossible.

Today Truman is President of the United States, as rightly and legally as if he had been elected. If he has done a good job it is because he has attacked his great problems as an individual.

Bugler Sounds Taps For Newman's Final Ritual

FORT WORTH—(AP)—James E. Newman, whose stout heart finally succumbed to diseases contracted during three years as a Jap prisoner, was buried Monday with full military honors.

Six sergeants from the Fort Worth Army Air Field stood honor guard as hundreds, including sobbing members of his family, filed past the casket at the First Baptist Church.

The slight figure, a peaceful expression on the wasted face, lay in a uniform bedecked with rows of military decorations.

Six motorcycle patrolmen escorted the casket, borne by the six sergeants, to the Garden of Memories Cemetery.

Veterans of Foreign Wars, who had made the corporal a member of their post, conducted the first rituals. Maj. John S. Garrenton, chaplain of the Fort Worth Army Air Field, said benediction. Eight rifle-men fired three volleys, punctuated by the sobs of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Newman, and others of the family.

As the sound of the last volley died away, a bugler sounded taps.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

That atomic bomb bids fair to be the one to end all wars. There are two ways of looking at this terrible new power. The happier view is that militaristic-minded nations no longer will dare make war and so expose themselves to annihilation. It may be that we stand on the threshold of an era of peace, ironically imposed on a mischievous world by fear of the most awful weapon ever devised.

That's one way of ending all wars. But there's another and less comforting viewpoint. This was rather bluntly but succinctly expressed by an editor colleague of mine just after news of the atomic bomb broke.

"Man Too Smart"
"It makes me sick to my stomach to think of it," he said. "You wonder whether man isn't getting too damned smart, and won't destroy himself."

Well, of course you can't discount that idea. Certainly the time has arrived when, if all countries don't agree to forsake armed aggression, nations will be liable to destruction almost overnight. In this connection we should remember that the secret of the bomb perhaps won't be secret long. The scientists of the world will ferret it out.

The Germans all but had it when we overwhelmed them, and if they had succeeded in solving the problem, we folk of the United States and other Allied nations today might be under Hitler's heel. On the whole it seems logical to expect that the atomic bomb may be the rainbow of peace rather than the sign of global suicide. Surely the world has too much horse-sense to challenge such a power. Even a gangster gunman doesn't deliberately walk into machine-gun fire.

World peace is the greatest boon that the discovery can bring us, so far as we can judge now. But with peace assured, there apparently are unlimited benefits for mankind in what President Truman describes as "harnessing the basic power of the universe."

If Emperor Hirohito of Japan dies or abdicates, he will be succeeded on the throne, under imperial house law, by his 11-year-old son, Prince Akihito Tsugu No Miya.

There's a Ford in your future!

Mrs. E. L. Phillips Directs Program At Methodist WSCS

Highlighting the program presented at the WSCS of the First Methodist Church Monday was a talk on "Health Around the World" by Mrs. E. L. Phillips. The meeting was held in the Scharbauer Educational Building.

In opening her remarks, Mrs. Phillips said, "Today we shall trace the paths of service that lead to the ministry of healing of our WSCS. At this hour our hospitals and clinics have wide open doors to the sick and discouraged of all ages. Little children enter life in these buildings dedicated to the service of Christ who ever loved and blessed and healed them and in whose name we carry on our work."

"Opportunity for Serving" As she continued the speaker said, "We pass by places where once a house of healing stood; because of war's destruction, it is marked only by charred beams and fallen bricks. All these paths lead us to open doors of opportunity for serving today and rebuilding in the days to come."

Following a song, "The Great Physician," a panel discussion was held on four questions: Does the Christian church really have a responsibility for the health of the world? What are the biggest obstacles to the health in countries where we work? What is our society trying to do to overcome them and to bring health? What does all this mean to us right here at home?

Those Taking Part

Those assisting Mrs. Phillips in the discussion were Mmes. E. P. Birkhead, Roy McKee, Velma Smith, Eva Noyes, and B. F. Haag.

Mrs. Frank Prothro offered the closing prayer.

Members present in addition to those appearing on the program were Mmes. E. J. Voliva, Stacy Allen, Jess Barber, Douglas Nix, W. E. Chapman and G. P. Bradbury.

Women's Clubs To Ask Counties To Record Value Of Servicemen

AUSTIN —(P)—Records of the valorous deeds of Texans in World War II should be preserved officially by each county of the state, leaders of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs believe.

They voted Monday to recommend to the 1,000 clubs in the federation that they petition the various Commissioners Courts over the state to include this military history along with discharge data, the recording of which is now provided by law.

This was one of three work projects approved. The others will set up an architectural students contest to further plans for construction at the federation clubhouse here of a memorial fountain honoring the late Mrs. Clara Driscoll of Corpus Christi, and will provide for aid in the construction of a 36th Division Memorial at Temple.

The federation's executive committee includes: Mrs. Florence Johnson Scott, Mrs. J. Howard Hodge, Midland, and Mrs. M. Howard Gibson, Waxahatchie, vice presidents; Mrs. W. Social Security Benefits Explained

Forty calendar quarters of social security coverage are not needed at present in all cases for workers to start receiving monthly retirement checks when they reach the age of 65, Elliott W. Adams, manager of the San Angelo office of the Social Security Board, explained Tuesday.

As the act now stands a worker is eligible for benefits when he reaches 65 if he has received as much as $50 in half of the calendar quarters since Jan. 1, 1937.

Any individual who acquires 40 calendar quarters of coverage becomes permanently insured for retirement when he reaches 65, Adams said.

Post War Industry Must Produce For Low-Salaried Group

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON —(P)—You'll hear plenty about unemployment and why there should be full employment. Congress has to tackle that baby when it returns in October. Some baby.

Senator O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat, went to a lot of trouble—getting up charts, figures and arguments—to show why the government should plan to provide full employment.

This is the way he thinks, and there are very few people to disagree with him:

When people are working they have money to spend on things they want. This keeps other people employed making those things.

With a lot of employment, there'll be a lot of production to fill the demands of those employed people with money to spend.

But when people begin losing their jobs, they hold on to what little money they have. They stop buying, or buy only necessities. Produce for Demand

As the buying demand drops, production drops. And naturally so. There'd be no sense in producing for people who can't buy.

So more people are laid off. They join the ranks of the non-buyers. In turn, more people are laid off.

Pretty soon there's mass unemployment. With mass unemployment comes a depression.

He makes this point: the low-salaried people are a tremendous bunch of buyers for the things American industry produces.

If people are employed they buy and pay taxes, which helps the government. Business benefits when people are employed, can buy.

He figures that within two or three more years there will be 58 million people—counting those coming out of the Armed Forces—who will need jobs. That will be more peacetime job seekers than we've ever had to find work for.

Use Of Atomic Power For Coal And Oil Fuel Yet Many Years Away

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON —(P)—Secretary of War Stimson has cold-watered the idea that there may be commercial use of atomic energy soon after this war because of discoveries connected with the atomic bomb.

He says bluntly: "It will be a matter of much further research and development to design machines for the conversion of atomic energy into useful power. How long this will take no one can predict but it will certainly be a period of many years."

But—granted that eventually atomic energy can be used for peaceful purposes—vital questions affecting mankind's future have to be answered.

Uranium Ore Essential

Uranium is the ore essential to production of the atomic bomb.

Before this war there was a lot of experimenting with uranium. And there was a lot of speculation on the future for atomic energy. Some of it went like this: "There'd be no need any more for coal or oil as fuel if the atom's energy could be turned into commercial use. A small capsule of uranium, aspirin-size, subjected to atomic disintegration gives off tremendous heat. The heat makes steam. Steam drives engines.

So, that capsule would drive the Queen Mary on a round-trip Atlantic crossing, would keep an automobile or airplane running for days, would heat a man's home for a year, would keep factory wheels spinning.

But who'd control this power: A few private corporations or the government? In the hands of a few corporations, such control could be a stranglehold on America.

If the government, how would it operate the power? Like a TVA? With such atomic power would there be any need for water-power dams at all?"

NEW TELEPHONE ROUTES FOR THE WEST

carry vital calls for the Pacific war

Right after Pearl Harbor the Bell System began planning and building for the day when the West Coast would become the chief base for the all-out war in the Pacific. The result of that building program is an expanded cross-continent network of long distance telephone lines, ready now to carry a growing load of calls to the West by the armed forces and war industries.

"Trouble-free," Coast to Coast

Especially vital in preparing for the increased volume of war calls to the West Coast was the laying in 1943 of a 1,600-mile telephone cable from Omaha to Sacramento. Buried in deserts and blasted into the solid granite of the Sierras, it provides the last link in a practically stormproof cable from the industrial centers of the East to the ports of the West.

Coaxial cable construction speeded

Construction of the Bell System's coaxial cable, suitable for both telephoning and television, has been speeded because of the need for more talking circuits between the nation's far-flung war centers. By the end of this year at least 1,500 miles of the network—extending from the East to beyond Dallas—are expected to be in the ground.

A third major project—until recently one of the nation's war secrets—is a 1,300-mile long distance line stretching from southern California almost to the Canadian border. It extends over mountains and through lava-boulder country between the Sierra Nevada's and the Rockies, and provides an alternate north-south long distance route at a safe distance from the sea.

War calls keep the circuits busy

As the Japanese war builds up to its climax, these lines will carry a growing load of important war calls for the army, the navy, and the war industries. When necessary, Long Distance will ask your help in keeping them open for this job by saying, "Please limit your call to five minutes."

XXVI EXT. ARCHER PORCH From out in the hall we now hear a hearty, booming voice greeting Louise. This is the voice of Uncle George, the naval chaplain previously identified by a photograph.

UNCLE GEORGE: (o. s.) Louise! It's good to see you again! They have all heard the voice. Archer darts to his wife's side. MR. ARCHER: (appalled) Janet, that sounded like George!

LOWER HALL MEDIUM SHOT Louise, gasping with astonishment, is just admitting UNCLE GEORGE, who drops his grip in the hall.

UNCLE GEORGE: (booming) Where are the folks? No, don't tell me—I bet they're on the porch! I know the way, Louise! He strides jovially down the hall towards the porch.

he notices the Franklins, who are looking at him goggle-eyed. UNCLE GEORGE: (still booming jovially) Hi there, Franklin! Mrs. Franklin—how nice to see you! Hello, Dexter! (hand-somely) Boy, has he grown! Franklin, you ought to be proud of him!

MR. FRANKLIN: (cryptically) Yes, indeed. During this round of greetings, the best Uncle George has received is a feeble "hello."

FULL SHOT Still blissfully unaware of anything amiss, Uncle George goes back to Corliss.

UNCLE GEORGE: (boisterously) Let's have a look at you. Yep. Prettier than ever! (beaming) Well, you're probably all wondering why I blew in like this, so I'll tell you. I've come in regard to a christening. He grins happily all around and is obviously puzzled by the reaction to this announcement.

Meanwhile, the trailer house became a pile of ashes.

"Now here's a lovely one—this is really super-sloppy!"

With a guilty start Corliss comes back to earth. She gets up off her uncle's lap. CORLISS: Oh, golly, I was forgetting. UNCLE GEORGE: What? What's that? (it begins to dawn on him that something is wrong) What's the matter? Anything wrong? MRS. ARCHER: (unhappily) Well, George, it's like this—Corliss and Dexter have— Uncle George chuckles merrily and pinches Corliss' cheek.

CLOSE SHOT—FAVORING UNCLE GEORGE AND MRS. ARCHER With much diffidence and obvious difficulty Mrs. Archer gets to the point.

MRS. ARCHER: Well, George—believe it or not, these two little idiots have been secretly married for a couple of months.

UNCLE GEORGE: (astounded) Well, bless my soul! MRS. ARCHER: We only found out about it a minute before you arrived. That's why we were all sort of—fuzzed.

 of section 14, block 39, G&M&B&A survey, T-2-N, is a one-quarter of a mile north stepout from the recent one-mile northwest extension to the Mabee field, in Southwest Martin County.

The exploration is to drill with combination tools to 4,000 feet, or the Mabee pay in the Permian, at a lesser depth, starting during the week.

Fullerton "8,500-Ft." Area

Frank and George Frankel No. 1-1 University, in northwest corner of section 32, block 13, University survey, and south of the proven Devonian producing area on the south side of the Fullerton field, in Northwest Andrews County, had reached 7,970 feet in lower Permian limestone to test the Devonian.

Mid-Continent Petroleum Corporation No. 3-9 University, to be 650 feet from south and 1,950 feet from east lines of south-half of section 19, block 13, University survey, is one-quarter of a mile west of closest Devonian production in the Fullerton "8,500-foot" field. It is 1,320 feet due west of same operator's No. 1-9 University, a Devonian producer and is to start digging at once.

Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 Buchanan, East Midland County wildcat in Baldrige survey No. 32-692, ten miles southeast of Midland, had drilled out cement inside the 5 1/2-inch casing to 10,170 feet, over total depth of 12,574 feet, and was continuing. Operator is expected to start a series of tests when the cement has been removed and the hole conditioned.

Phillips Petroleum Company No. 1-1 TXL, inside well in TXL field, flowed at the rate of 140 barrels of 38.3 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 860-1, during one hour of a drillstem test at 7,778-7,953 feet, in the Devonian.

The drill-pipe unloaded while being pulled and operator is now preparing to run 5 1/2-inch casing to complete.

What Next?

Phillips No. 1 McDow, North Glasscock County wildcat in the Ellinger survey, section 31, block 34, TX survey, T-3-S, was bottom'd at 10,915 feet, in lime and chert, waiting for orders.

During a 45-minute drillstem test at 10,793-10,915 feet, recovery was 1,500-foot water blanket; 1,080 feet of rotary mud and 8,123 feet of sulphur water. Shutin bottomhole pressure was 4,750 pounds.

Magnolia Petroleum Company and Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 Cowden, extreme Southwest Andrews County discovery for Devonian production in section 7, block A-55, pl survey, perforated casing at 7,940-60 feet, with 120 shots. The well swabbed and flow'd 83 barrels of oil in 17 hours, natural, and during the period the gas showed an increase.

Operators were perforating at 7,920-40 feet, and will test that section. Correct'd gravity of the gas was 35.9 degrees. During first eight hours of the test the gas flowed an average of 6.63 barrels per hour.

John I. and P. D. Moore No. 1 Southland Royally Company, Wadwell in section 19, block 2, H&T&C survey, in South Crane County, was making hole below 5,684 feet in lime, dolomite and chert.

Operator reported a drillstem test taken Sunday at 6,120-6,346 feet recovered 2,500 feet of oil and gas cut drilling mud. Identity of the section now being penetrated has not been definitely established.

In "Block 31"
 The Atlantic Refining Company No. 1-A University, discovery for Devonian production in East-Central Crane County, in section 33, block 31, University survey, had reached 9,430 feet, in lime and shale, and was continuing.

Of the nine new explorations Atlantic has staked in the "Block 31" area, No. 1-B-31 University had reached 1,600 feet, and was drilling; No. 1-E-31 University had cemented surface pipe at about 540 feet, as had No. 1-C-31 University; Nos. 1-D-31 University, 1-F-31 University, and 1-K-31 University, were rigging up derricks, and the three other developments were building roads.

Four Appendicitis Cases Feature Troop Crossing

NEW YORK—(AP)—Four cases of appendicitis developed during the Trans-Atlantic crossing of the transport Mormacport, which brought 2,716 men and 143 officers to Camp Shanks Pier Tuesday.

The main body of the men returning on the Mormacport was comprised of the 109th Infantry Regiment and the 103rd Medical Battalion of the 28th Division.

Col. James E. Rudder, of Brady, Texas, commanding officer of the 109th Infantry, was another passenger. A former Texas A. and M. football player, Rudder was wounded twice in two days in the Normandy invasion. Then a lieutenant colonel, he landed, with a picked force of 225 men, on D-day at a point between Omaha and Utah beaches. He and his men silenced six heavy German cannons and captured a radar installation.

Air-Sea Rescue Units Operate Up To Shores Of Jap Home Islands

By ROBBIN COONS
 TOWO JIMA—(AP)—Out of this ugly little island runs a fabulous "fishing fleet" of planes, and surface vessels—fishing for the lives of American airmen.

The fleet is part of the great net of air-sea rescue units which from American-held islands spreads over the Pacific to the very coastal waters of Japan, where some of the most thrilling "catches" have been made. Iwo thus gives an added boost to the morale of fighter pilots and bomber crews who know that, if they hit the waves during a mission, their chances of survival are that much the greater—and very good indeed.

"Their morale has been 100 per cent better the last two months," declared Lt. Cmdr. James Parker, Wenhau, Mass., rescue coordinator on Iwo.

Air-sea rescue here, as elsewhere, is a combined effort of Army and Navy air and sea forces, working closely together—and defying weather and distance with equal daring in pursuit of their job.

Sometimes the time lapse between a bail-out or a ditching and the pick-up is only a few moments—sometimes longer.

Occasional heartbreakers, too, so close and yet so far—like the time a fighter pilot, brought down by heavy flak over Chichi Jima, managed to inflate his life raft and paddle it to the mouth of the harbor when, apparently exhausted, he allowed his raft to drift back close to shore. A waiting B-17 dropped a lifeboat and the pilot got in, attracting heavy fire. A Catalina piloted by Capt. Robert B. Richardson of Marlboro, Mass., braved the shore fire to land—only to discover the pilot dead.

But against such heroic failures, there's a balancing record: in May alone, more than 100 airmen were saved—some from the very shores of Japan!

Game Commission Lists New Hunting Regulations

AUSTIN—(AP)—The State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission Tuesday gave an analysis of the federal migratory birds law as they apply to Texas.

A change in the boundaries of the north and south zones, five days of extra shooting of mourning doves, the inclusion of a tier of West Texas counties in the white-wing dove zone, and the elimination of the additional daily bag of 5 mallards, pintails or widgeons, are the major changes in the 1945 regulations governing the hunting of migratory game birds in Texas, according to an analysis of the new federal regulations by the State Game Department.

Eight counties in West Texas have been added to the white-wing dove zone. They are Val Verde, Terrell, Brewster, Presidio, Jeff Davis, Culberson, Hudspeth and El Paso. The white-wing season in those counties and in the counties of Cameron, Hidalgo, Starr, Zapata, Webb, Maverick, Kinney, Dimmit, LaSalle, Jim Hogg, Brooks, Kenedy and Wilbrey is on Sept. 13, 16, 18, 20 and 23, from 12 o'clock noon until sunset.

Bag and possession limits on mourning and white-winged doves—ten in the aggregate of both kinds. No person may have in his possession more than 10 mourning doves or more than 10 white-winged doves.
