President Requests Emergency Powers

Truman Recommends Legislation To Achieve Full Employment

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman called upon Congress Thursday to keep his war powers in force for the reversion "emergency" as he laid down a 21-point legislative program. It included "limited" tax cuts next year and proposals to achieve full employment.

Hence, he said, proposals to abolish war-time controls by declaring the war officially at an end would lead to "great confusion and chaos in government."

The 16,000-word message, which Truman sent to Capitol Hill, promised a lifting of controls, one by one, as fast as possible. But it cautioned that their overall abandonment would leave the Chief Executive powerless to prevent "bottlenecks, shortages of material and inflation."

Three Happy Doolittle Flyers

Three liberated American flyers, who were captured after their planes went down during the Doolittle raid on Tokyo in 1942, arrived at Washington. They will be nursed back to health at Walter Reed Hospital. Left to right are: S/Sgt. Jacob Deshaizer, Salem, Ore.; Lt. Chase J. Neilsen, Hyrum, Utah; and Lt. Robert Hite, Earth, Texas.

Hite And Buddies Tell Fate Of Three Doolittle Flyers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert L. Hite of Earth, Texas, and his companions of the Doolittle raid who survived the hell of Japanese prison camps, cleared up the fate of all but three of their comrades who were on the historic strike against Tokyo in April, 1942.

Hite and two others related at a news conference Wednesday that they last saw the missing trio of flyers on Oct. 14, 1942, the day before all were sentenced to death.

The three still unaccounted for are 1st Lt. William G. Farrow of Washington, D. C., 1st Lt. Dean E. Hallmark of Dallas, Texas, and Sgt. Harold A. Spatz of Lebo, Kan.

Hite, Capt. Chase J. Neilsen of Hiram, Utah, and Sgt. Jacob D. Deshaizer of Queens, who were liberated August 20 from a prison camp at Peiping, told at the news conference what had happened to three other flyers who had been missing or prisoners.

These three were Sgt. William Dieter of Tule Lake, Calif., and Cpl. Donald E. Fitzmaurice of Lincoln, Neb., who had been carried as missing, and 1st Lt. Robert J. Meder of Lake Wood, Ohio, who has been a prisoner.

Meder died at a prison camp in Nanking, in December, 1943, after a 70-day illness. Dieter and Fitzmaurice, fellow crew members of Capt. Neilsen, perished when their B-25 bomber crashed into the ocean off the China coast.

"The guards were rather rough," Hite said softly.

"They used gungto sticks—long bamboo poles—to hit us on the head."

Both Neilsen and Deshaizer expect to get out of the Army but Hite said he would like to stay in service. All expect to go home by plane in about three days.

Officers Find Safe Taken In Burglary

The safe taken from Bond's Wholesale in a burglary Tuesday night was found Wednesday afternoon by Sheriff Ed Darnell about eight miles southeast of Midland on the Garden City Highway. It was about 150 yards from the pavement. The door had been beaten off. More than $500 worth of checks were recovered. However, $217 in cash was missing.

Officers still were searching Thursday for the person or persons who robbed the Minute Inn, Murray-Young Motors and Bond's Wholesale Tuesday night.

Joint Congressional Inquiry Into Pearl Harbor Attack Asked

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted unanimously Thursday for a joint Congressional inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster.

WASHINGTON (AP)—With President Truman's approval Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) proposed in the Senate Thursday a joint Congressional inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Barkley introduced a resolution calling for a report to Congress by a Senate-House committee not later than next January 3.

Americans Seek Small Portion Of Reparations

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BERLIN (AP)—The American share of German reparations, it was predicted by financial experts Thursday, is likely to be the smallest of any of the four occupying powers.

The Americans' eventual recompense from the defeated enemy is expected to be about five per cent of that of Britain's and somewhat less than that of France.

The first major United States proposal before the Allied Control Council is a decree which would vest ownership of all of Germany's external property in the council.

According to preliminary American estimates, the Germans have cashed assets of $989,667,000 among five neutrals. Switzerland is believed to have $800,000,000.

Unlike the other Allies, the United States shows little desire to obtain physical resources from Germany.

Texas State Guard Unit Needs More Members In City

Midland's unit of the Texas State Guard, Company F of the 34th Battalion, needs more members immediately, Capt. E. R. Osburn, commanding officer, said Thursday.

"With the war ended, many persons have the mistaken idea that the guard no longer is essential," he asserted. "This is not true. It is more essential than ever for the internal security of our nation."

"Thirty places must be filled to bring the Midland unit to its authorized strength and we hope to enlist that many men this month. We are anxious to enlist men returning home from the armed forces. Their experience will be valuable to the guard and they have had just the training they need. They set good examples for other guardsmen and they are the persons we especially want."

Persons interested in enlisting in the Midland unit may contact any guardsman or meet at 7:30 p. m. Friday nights at the Civic Auditorium when guardsmen drill.

Gov. Coke Stevenson recently said that with the signing of the surrender the responsibilities of the Texas State Guard increased.

"We, too, have a pledge to fulfill. We have dedicated ourselves to the task of maintaining law and order on the home front, to the protection of the families and properties of those men who made this peace possible."

"History has proven to us that the aftermath of every war has brought unrest, discontent and turmoil to the home front. Our job is to prevent such conditions. In order to keep faith with those returning soldiers we must continue our efforts to prepare ourselves for any emergency."

Midland guardsmen will attend a field mobilization school in Odessa Sept. 12, 13 and 14.

Forty Industrialists Arrested In Germany

HEREFORD, GERMANY (AP)—The British Control Commission, striking to carry out a sweeping denazification of Ruhr industries, Thursday announced the arrest of 40 leading German industrialists, including Hugo Stinnes, one of the nation's greatest financial magnates.

Persons interested in enlisting in the Midland unit may contact any guardsman or meet at 7:30 p. m. Friday nights at the Civic Auditorium when guardsmen drill.

Gov. Coke Stevenson recently said that with the signing of the surrender the responsibilities of the Texas State Guard increased.

Gen. MacArthur To Enter Tokyo With Cavalry Friday

German civilians get copies of a weekly newspaper published under supervision of Military Government authorities. Besides news, it carries proclamations, new laws and other regulations.

General MacArthur will lead the U. S. First Cavalry Division—15,000 strong—into Tokyo Friday afternoon, U. S. time, raising over his headquarters in the U. S. Embassy the historic flag which flew in Washington on Pearl Harbor Day and since has been unfurled at Casablanca, Rome, Berlin, and Tokyo Bay.

In China, American Army planes began Thursday their 40-day task of moving 80,000 Chinese troops to China coastal areas they will occupy—the world's greatest airborne troop movement. Every transport plane available will be utilized.

Allied commanders in Singapore Thursday reported that surrendered Japanese forces there include 85 generals, an unknown number of admirals, and 85,000 troops.

An American amphibious force led by the veteran Vice Adm. Daniel E. Barbey meanwhile neared the coast of Korea, fully armed and alert although expecting no trouble in occupying the north central coastal town of Jinsen. Some reports indicated Koreans had been attacking Japanese, who would welcome the American arrival.

Taking time out from name-calling over who lost the war, the Tokyo press Thursday disclosed one virtual revolt of Koreans had occurred in mid-August at Seoul (Keijo) as Russians approached. Demonstrators welcomed the Soviet forces and seized control of the government from Japanese, the newspapers Mainichi and Nippon Times reported. They also disclosed that 20,000 Korean political prisoners now have been freed.

The influential Tokyo paper Asahi also took the first public whack at Japan's army or navy in 14 years. It charged struggles between the army and navy, and between the cabinet and militarists, had contributed to Japan's defeat.

Search For Bank Robbers Continues In West Texas

LUBBOCK (AP)—A search for two bandits who robbed the First State Bank of Morton of $17,692.46 centered Thursday in the Bledsoe area of southern Cochran County, Texas, near the New Mexico line.

The two herded five employees and some 15 customers into the bank vault at pistol point shortly after noon Wednesday, took the money, and fled with a third man who had been waiting outside in a maroon convertible coupe.

W. W. Williamson, vice president of the bank, announced the amount of the loss. He said the victims were told by the men to remain

In the vault for 30 minutes or "we'll kill every one of you," but that they left within five minutes and notified Sheriff Mac W. Hancock.

Rangers and highway patrolmen, county officers from the south plains in Texas and from New Mexico, and FBI agents joined in the search.

Controls On Shipping Oil By Rail To End

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Office of Defense Transportation announced Wednesday that all wartime controls over the shipping of liquid products, including petroleum, by railway tank cars, highway tank trucks and pipeline will be ended Sept. 24. The ODT's liquid transport department will be discontinued.

Trieste May Be Made International Port

LONDON (AP)—Competent sources said Thursday the British, confident of American backing, hoped to present to the forthcoming meeting of foreign ministers here a plan for internationalization of Trieste which would enable land-locked Central Europe to use the city as a free port.

Trieste apparently will be one of the main problems in the drafting of an Italian peace treaty, which is high on the agenda of the first meeting of the Big Five's foreign ministers next week.

Midland Wildcat Made Salt Water At 12,130-350 Feet

By JAMES C. WATSON

Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 Buchanan, East Midland County wildcat, in Baldrige survey No. 32-692, ten miles southeast of Midland, had apparently eliminated the Ellenburger, lower Ordovician, as a petroleum producing possibility.

Swabbing on perforated section at 12,130-350 feet, through three holes to the foot, fluid was lowered from within 700 feet of surface to 4,800 feet from surface. The recovery was salt water.

Set Cement Retainer

A Johnson tester was run and recovery was 7,800 feet of salt water. Operator set a cement retainer at 12,070 feet, and pumped in 43 sacks of cement below the retainer. More cement was being pumped in Thursday morning.

According to unofficial sources top of Ellenburger was at about 12,163 feet. This project had shows of gas and distillate at 10,315-388 feet, and shows of gas at 11,411-92 feet. It is expected that owner will test that horizon shortly.

H. W. Snowden, Dallas, has filed application with the Railroad Commission to drill No. 1 T. J. Sterling, as a 2,500-foot cable tool wildcat, about one-half mile south and east of nearest production in the Sharon Ridge field in Southwest Scary County.

Location is 440 feet from north and 330 feet from east lines of northeast quarter of section 123, block 97, H&TC survey.

Frank and George Frankel No. 1-I University, in northwest corner of section 32, block 13, University survey, and between two Devonian producing areas in Northwest Andrews County, filed application to plug and abandon as a dry hole on a total depth of 8,777 feet. No shows of oil or gas were encountered. Unofficial sources report that the project failed to find the Devonian.

Our War Debt

If all the words that have been written about our obligations to the returning servicemen were laid end to end, the resulting text would be very monotonous, indeed.

Yet, in view of recent experiences, and in view of the imminent return of millions more of our war veterans to civilian life, it seems necessary to go over the subject again.

It would be absurd to think that the average person does not realize his obligation to the men who braved death, and in too many cases met death, that we at home might go on enjoying freedom from the horrors of bombs and shells and the terrors of an invasion and war on our own soil.

If he wants to build or buy a house, he finds himself snarled in the red tape of the G. I. loan mess. If he's lucky enough to get a business loan, he's immediately prey for all kinds of sharpshooters.

Is this the reception we planned for our sons and husbands and brothers? Can we blame these men if, after repeated instances of such mistreatment, they become bitter and wonder if all those things they were told—about fighting for a better world—weren't just a lot of malarkey?

There is, of course, an obligation on the part of the veteran.

The young fellow who left a job as a junior clerk to enlist in the Air Force, became a bomber pilot, commissioned as major with the corresponding high pay, cannot expect to step into such a high-salaried job as soon as he steps out of uniform.

The majority of fighters are so relieved to be through with killing that they are glad to live quietly and ask no favors, but there are a few who must learn. Just as some of us on the home front must learn that our debt to these men is not just a popular saying, but must be put into daily practice.

Chemical Warfare Service

One of the most thankless jobs of the war was performed by the Chemical Warfare Service. But it was a job that probably saved millions of additional needless casualties.

Both sides knew what a deadly weapon gas could be. The Allies were pledged not to use it. The only thing that would keep the unscrupulous Axis from resorting to it was to convince them that our retaliation would be worse than their first attack.

CWS did this. It was a delicate job of subtly letting the enemy know just enough about what we had in the way of offense and defense in gas warfare to keep them from using it without revealing the real secrets.

The man who directed this job is Maj. Gen. William N. Porter. He started out as a Navy man, graduating from the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1909. Switching to the Army soon after, he rose rapidly and when the war came, got the task of co-ordinating the chemical and industrial industries of the country to do their part in the war and training the chemical troops.

Plus the tremendous war job CWS has done, the research and discovery by its chemists have a big chapter in the history of chemistry.

Working with Department of Agriculture, CWS had a major part in the development of the famous DDT insect spray.

In its Medical Research Division great strides have been made in the field of respiratory diseases. Soon to become available to civilians will be more effective treatments for influenza, whooping cough and the common cold. Final experiments are still being conducted on this.

US Developed One Of World's Best Military Intelligence Organizations

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States has one of the largest and most complex military intelligence organizations of any world power, a corps of thousands of scholars, scientists and secret agents.

It is called Office of Strategic Service (OSS). Within the next few months the Administration and Congress probably will decide how much, if any, of OSS should be kept now that hostilities are over.

The size and character of operations of this intelligence system will be pegged, in some degree, to: (1) outlook for a World Security Organization, (2) size and character of the United States postwar armed force, (3) possibility that the world may enter an armament race with atomic bombs and rockets only a beginning.

The second War Powers Act expires on Dec. 31. OSS was set up under that act. It was the central intelligence agency which assembled strategic information needed by the joint chiefs of staff at Washington and strategic and tactical information needed by the commanders of the various theaters.

Luring more than three years of operation, OSS was praised by many as the eyes and ears of the armed forces but condemned by others as a "super Gestapo" with opportunity for too great influence in domestic and international affairs.

The end of OSS would not mean the United States would be completely without information on developments abroad.

The Army's Military Intelligence Division, the Navy's Office of Naval Intelligence, the Commerce Department's foreign commercial attaches, the State Department's representatives would still report to their own departments.

In wartime, however, two things were needed to make this system more effective: 1. Coordination by one central agency of the various reports submitted by each individual agency, with the reports converted into a complete pattern.

2. An agency with special personnel equipped to carry out missions beyond the legal limitations of the departmental agencies.

The Army Pearl Harbor Inquiry Board, commenting on the intelligence situation existing at the time the Japanese struck in the Pacific, said:

"The Japanese armed forces knew everything about us. We knew little about them. This was a problem of our intelligence agencies. This should not come to pass again. Our intelligence service must be brought in line with the part which we play in world affairs."

Jeb Wilkins loses the wanderlust

Jeb Wilkins was always a great one for traveling. Two weeks a year he used to cover more ground than a Pullman conductor. Used to come back from vacations tuckered out.

But the war has changed all that. Gasoline shortages—and saving space on trains for service men—has got Jeb spending his vacations home... and liking it!

"Never knew staying home could be such fun," says Jeb. "Outdoor barbecues... sitting around and chatting with the kids and family... basking in the sunshine with a glass of cold beer... that's living!"

From where I sit, Jeb's discovered what millions of other Americans have learned through the war. Whether your choice is beer or buttermilk... horse-shoes or checkers... a quiet book or a bit of friendly conversation... there's no place like home... where we grumble the most and get treated the best!

Congressmen Urge Discharges For Servicemen

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Texas Congressmen say they are convinced after a visit home that the folks right now are concerned primarily about getting their sons and husbands out of the armed forces.

Rep. Albert Thomas, describing a situation which other Texas members said also held true for them, declared:

"I was besieged by people wanting me to get their boys out of the Army. They came to see me about a lot of matters, but that was the No. 1 matter on their minds."

Rep. Lyndon B. Johnson, relating complaints on to the War Department, urged that a firm hand be exercised in expediting discharges.

He said there was one case in which a lieutenant colonel was accused of deliberately delaying the release of men under him in order to delay the day when he himself might revert to his permanent

Wallace's Book Looks To 60 Million Jobs, 200 Billion Income

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace produced a new book Thursday, "Sixty Million Jobs." He's been working on it for months. What it says is based on the title.
He thinks this country, to be prosperous, must set a goal of 60 million jobs by 1950—and more later—and must have a national income of 200 billion dollars.
In 1944—the last full wartime year and the highest year on record for national income—that income was about 150 billion dollars, Wallace said.
"I believe we can attain this goal without a planned economy, without disastrous inflation and without an unbalanced budget that will endanger our national credit."

The suggestion of 60 million jobs—for people willing to work and wanting to work—was first proposed by President Roosevelt in a Chicago speech last Oct. 28.
Wallace thought then Roosevelt had set his sights too high. He doesn't think so now.
Industrialize Backward Nations
He says our first big postwar job abroad is to help restore some of the areas torn by war. Then there must be some effort toward industrializing backward nations.

Wallace thinks 18 million new housing units could be built in the next 10 years.
These are some other suggestions Wallace makes:
A greatly expanded public health service, a nationwide hospital building program, health insurance.
Right here he says:
Federal help in such projects—as in housing and education—must not lead to federal control.
And he proposes this to provide better employment and living:
Land conservation, forest development, rural electrification, developing our river valleys like TVA.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Is it possible that we shall have to fight the Japanese war over again a few years hence?

Outspoken Vice-Admiral John S. McCain, whose famous U. S. Naval Task Force 38 played such a notable part in the victory over Nippon, declared that neither the Japanese war lords nor the rank and file consider themselves defeated. Then he gives this grim verdict:
"The Japanese generals are not half licked yet. They're going to take a lot of killing at some future time."

That would indeed be a gloomy outlook if we didn't feel justified in assuming that the admiral is in part speaking figuratively. He means, I take it, that the militarists aren't licked mentally. However there can be no doubt that Japan is beaten to a frazzle physically.

In order to insure continuance of peace there are several conditions to be fulfilled. One of them obviously is that America and the other major powers must maintain a state of full military preparedness, ready for action at any moment.

Then of course Japan must be re-educated into peaceful ways of thinking—which means Democracy. In conjunction with this, those generals who "are not half licked yet" must be removed from contact with society in one way or another. Militarism must be destroyed in Nippon.

This reformation of the still (in many ways) medieval Japanese presents a tremendous task, and one which won't be achieved overnight. But vast as it is, there remains another problem which affects all Asia and must be solved along with the Jap difficulties if peace is to be made secure. I refer to the danger of an Asiatic bloc, with anti-Western sentiments, developing in the Far East.

Japan was in process of building up an Asiatic confederation, pitted against the Western world, when we dropped the atomic bomb on her. She was taking advantage of the widespread feeling among Asiatic nations that the Occident is bent on exploiting the Orient.

The Western nations must promote Democracy throughout the Far East and remove the distrust which exists now.

Hearts Bleed Longest

TEARS burned in Thayer's eyes as she undressed. I've done the wrong thing again, she thought.

She began mechanically to brush her hair. The motion steadied her, but it could not check the bewildered groping of her thought. She stopped as she remembered how feeling had jerked through her when she had found Brock and Moya on the terrace. Savage feeling, strangely unlike her present attitude toward Brock. Jealousy.

She thought slowly, I love him, or I couldn't have felt like that. In spite of the befogging of the present the feeling was there. Realization was light falling into a dark place. No wonder Brock felt bewildered, uncertain. In her way she had been as uncertain as he.

I've let him down, Thayer thought. I've let him rebuff me because he was hurt, rebuffed. I've seen my side of it, not Brock's.

She would go talk to him, letting neither temper or nerves dismay her. While he was weak the strength must come from her to bring him again to that wholeness of spirit which alone could surmount his physical maiming.

So swept along by her intention was Thayer that it was a shock to find Brock's chair empty on the terrace. Then, as she stood nonplussed, his voice spoke from inside the room. "Who is it?"

She turned in quick relief and going to the French door pushed it open. "It's me, Brock. I—I shouldn't have got angry; I'm sorry. Let's—let's talk, can't we? Brock, where are you?" Her eyes groped in the dimness.

As they adjusted somewhat she saw he was standing by the long window to the left of the door. He must have been there as she came along the terrace for there had been no sound of movement.

Thayer came in slowly. Behind her the moonlight lay in long silvered panels, broken by the quivering pattern of a wind-stirred eucalyptus.

She could not yet see distinctly and she spoke a little breathlessly. "Brock, forgive me about tonight—getting angry. More than anything I—I want things right between us."

"I've not doubted that, Thayer. Your efforts, I mean." His voice had a low desperate quietness. "You've done all you could, I know that. I know what you're up against."

She shook her head. "Has either of us really understood the other's side? I've tried, but then I've been scared, I guess." "Of me? So it's like that?" "Brock, don't say anything until I finish, please don't." She took a deep breath. "While you were gone I was frightened you might find me different than you expected when you came back. How? You'd been through things I could never share. Would I seem the same to you? Or—would you have outgrown me?"

"Thayer!" "It's true." "You're saying this to make me feel better, because you're sorry..." "She came closer in her anxiety to make him understand, and the moon moving from behind the eucalyptus shed more light into the room. "No, Brock, I..."

She stopped. She saw him now, almost clearly. But the crutches were somehow hidden. The illusion was of a man, tall and sure, standing there in an attitude of waiting. Suddenly it was Brock who came back to her. She caught her breath and could find no words.

Within them, magnetic and compelling, rose the resistless force that had once swept them together. It was in the grip of the arm outreaching to draw her to him; it was in the crazy beating of her heart, the hungry lifting of her lips to the seeking of his. It was in the smothered cry of her name...

Magically life traded its complexities for the soft stillness of the night and the prodigally-spilled silver of the moon.

THE knocking awakened Thayer. She struggled up, listening. Momentarily she was bewildered to find Brock beside her. Then, as things fell into place in her mind, she rose quickly before the knocking might come again to awaken him.

She opened the front door and Mrs. Kittridge staggered in to cling weakly to the newel post. "Oh, Thayer—I'm glad it's you. I—can't find my key. I was afraid to ring—for fear Brock..." "Something happened. You're up again."

"Help me upstairs, we can talk there. Brock mustn't know." When they reached the bedroom she collapsed weakly. "There's a blue bottle—in the bathroom cabinet. Get it, Thayer." Her face was pinched, her breathing difficult.

Later, somewhat relieved, she insisted upon talking. "I shouldn't have gone. I hate bridge. Thayer—the voice held fierce insistence—"promise me you won't hint to Brock of this. He saw me once before and he worried so. In his condition he mustn't..." "But you must see a doctor." "Tomorrow. I couldn't have Dr. Pelham coming at this hour and upsetting Brock. I've had attacks before. Often they go away very quickly. I'll be better in the morning. Thayer, you'll say nothing to Brock!"

"If you insist, but..." "I do insist." "I'll say nothing, Mrs. Kittridge." "Thayer, if you'll leave my door open and your own, so I can call..." "Well..." "You don't mind, do you? You don't feel this is an imposition, Thayer?" (To Be Continued)

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

At the summer session of the national championships tournament, the women's pair event tied the record for attendance. The event was won by Mrs. Benjamin M. Golder and Mrs. Olive Peterson of Philadelphia, two Life Masters.

By making six clubs on today's hand, Mrs. Peterson won top score for her partner and herself. The opening diamond lead was:

won with dummy's ace, Mrs. Peterson discarding a spade. Dummy's spade was led, and when West went up with the jack, Mrs. Peterson played low. A trump came back and the eight-spot held in trick. A small spade knocked out East's ace and dummy ruffed. The ace and king of hearts were then cashed and another trump finesse taken. Dummy's eight of hearts was discarded on the king of spades. The losing heart was ruffed, establishing the jack for a trick. Thus Mrs. Peterson was able to make six-odd.

Comptroller Says U. S. Government Is Hodge-Podge

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren Wednesday described the present governmental setup as "a hodge-podge x x x of duplications, overlapping, inefficiencies and inconsistencies".

The official often referred to as "the watchdog of the Treasury" told Congress it "cannot be expected" to remedy the situation and asked instead that President Truman be given broad powers to clean house.

Testifying before the House Expenditures Committee, which is considering proposals to streamline the government, Warren gave this picture of the federal establishment:

1. The transportation field is divided up among 75 bureaus, divisions and agencies. The government's travel and freight bill last year was as much as it cost to run the whole federal establishment 39 years ago.
2. Public housing is financed by 15 agencies.
3. Labor relations are spread over eight departments and agencies.
4. A dozen bureaus and departments are involved in administration of government land.
5. There is "an obvious conflict" between the functions of various agencies concerning aid to the states in care of dependent children.
6. Two government corporations

How to Get a New Car—The Hard Way

First you get to be President of the United States. Then, after a successful conclusion of long, hard years of war, when automakers turn back to making passenger cars, they'll present you with one of their new de luxe models. Henry Ford II is shown above presenting a 1946 de luxe eight-cylinder Ford to President Truman.

"are doing a thriving customs business", in addition to the Bureau of Customs.

7. There are at least 12 federal retirement systems, each with its own rules.

Warren said the instances cited "are merely a drop in the bucket of things which the President should be empowered to look into and remedy".

He made one new suggestion regarding the proposed grant of power. He recommended that it be given to President Truman only for the length of his term.

Chairman Manasco (D-Ala.) and other committee members, however, reported increasing sentiment for limiting sharply any revamping.

Santa In Dallas But To Encourage Mailing

DALLAS—(AP)—Santa Claus was in Dallas recently and, says a local gazette, he was hot under the collar.

B. Donohue of Fort Worth sometimes doubles for Santa. He did this August. He came to Dallas to appear in a movie sequence urging early mailing of overseas Christmas packages.

The summer sun was almost too much.

"Oh, brother," he said, sweating through his false whiskers and red felt, "this is no time for Santa Claus outfits."

Cartful Of Cheer

Written for NEA Service by ALAN WAYNE

Stylist of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association

There is nothing quite so forlorn and confused as a small lad sentenced to bed for the removal of his tonsils. Misery is written all over his face as he stares blankly at the ceiling but, surprisingly, he is likely to perk up immediately when a few gay colored poms are brought into the room.

A small wooden dog cart makes a fine conveyance for the bedside tonic and a variety of blooms should be included. Use a little of this and a little of that, especially types that he may recognize and explore at length. The bright patterns of croton leaves should also intrigue him, while a single exotic flower, such as an anthurium or sterlitzia, is an excellent attention-getter.

The woolly dog should be easily removable for cuddling and, if I may add just one word of caution, make sure that mother or whoever is attending him, knows the name of every single flower. It will avoid embarrassment when the questions begin to flow.

Marine Sergeant Enters Japan Wishing His Dead And Injured Sons Along

By HAL BOYLE

WITH MARINE LANDING FORCE IN TOKYO BAY—(AP)—The middle aged Marine sergeant stood by the deck rail alone, looking toward the western horizon just before his bunch moved in on Japan. A rain squall had just passed and scores of American ships dotted the laboring seas.

Still invisible beyond the horizon lay the journey's end—Japan.

"I wish my boys were with me," said the sergeant, forty-six-year old Edgar Rush, former construction worker in Washington, Pa.

Rush, a small silent man with a brown mustache and a deeply tanned and wrinkled face, has six children. Three enlisted in the Marines but one was killed and the other two wounded in action.

So the father was carrying the family banner to Japan alone—for his three sons who could not be there.

"I am very proud of my family," the sergeant said as he shifted his foot on the rail.

En Fought At Guadalcanal

"My oldest boy Harold and I were very close. We had worked together in civilian life on building construction. He served through the Guadalcanal campaign and was promoted to platoon sergeant.

"They used to kid him and tell him he was the poorest shot in the family because he had knocked off only two Japs. He was killed by a machine gun bullet on Cape Gloucester in New Britain while directing fire of his platoon.

"It was two days before he was to receive a battlefield commission.

"I couldn't believe it at first when I got the news. I had his pictures out for a long time and then I couldn't stand it any more and had to put it away. I missed him more the longer he was gone."

Rush looked intently off across the oil-blue waters.

"I wish it had been me instead," he said. "It doesn't make so much difference what happens to you when you are as old as I am."

Puts Pillows In Hotel Bathtubs, Rents 'Em

ALBANY, ORE.—(AP)—Travelers stopping at the St. Francis Hotel here shouldn't be too surprised if the clerk offers them bath without room these nights.

Because of an unexpected overflow of servicemen from nearby Camp Adair, Manager William R. Smith rented out all the divans in his lobby . . . Then when that failed to end the crisis, he filled bathrooms with cots and rented them.

Finally, an inspiration hit Smith: put pillows in each bathtub, solve the shortage for good, and put a stop to bathtub baritones.

PLENTY OF MILEAGE

"Percy," a proposee caught off the English coast, was placed in a public pool on exhibition. He there began an endurance swimming marathon. During the rest of his life he covered 180 miles daily.

Cargo-carrying capacity of 19 U. S. domestic airlines is expected to be increased fivefold in immediate postwar period.

Arrested For Theft, Jailed For Bigamy

COLUMBUS, IND.—(AP)—A man who allegedly borrowed an automobile without the owner's consent was sentenced by Judge John E. Summa to two to five years in the reformatory—on a bigamy charge.

Prosecutor Charlton J. Walker said William Cash, 25, had the car for two months and was using it to shuttle back and forth between two wives.

Many rich women of early Rome had mirrors of solid silver.

Southwest Loses Most War Orders

DALLAS—(AP)—The Southwest, which successfully handled one-eighth of the nation's total war contracts, Thursday held only three per cent of the war orders and will lose those before the year's end, George L. Noble, Jr., Regional War Production Board director, reported.

Contracts still in effect include the shipbuilding program, to be cut soon, Noble said.

Food contracts, however, are expected to survive, Noble said, adding that food processors with Quartermaster Corps orders are concentrated in Texas' Rio Grande Valley, with a few in Houston and San Antonio.

Midland's Tractor Headquarters

With production underway on the famed Ford-Perguson tractors with the exclusive hydraulic lift control, the time is not too far off when the home of the Midland Tractor Company will be well stocked with the tractors which have made a hit with farmers of this section because of its ease of operation and economy. The Midland Tractor Company home is at 300 South Baird Street.

Exclusive Residential Section For Midland Is Barney Grafa's Aim

All indications point to Midland having soon one of the most exclusive residential sections of any city between Fort Worth and El Paso.

Grafa's prediction largely is based upon the numerous inquiries he has received concerning lots in Grafaland, the new exclusive and highly restricted development he is opening five blocks west of the High School north of Illinois Street.

"Prospective builders of homes of the better type find that Grafaland offers them sites in keeping with the type of homes they wish to build, and the restrictions are a guarantee the value of their homes will not decrease because of erection of unsightly nearby structures," Grafa explained.

One of the features of Grafaland which appeals most strongly to prospective builders of the better type home is that they will be permitted to stagger the house, Grafa commented.

The staggering permits the home owner to exercise individuality which is not possible where houses must be lined up. Staggering the homes particularly permits the home owner to exercise individuality in landscaping his grounds, Grafa added.

Only an "on the ground" inspection can give the prospective builder a proper comprehension of the many advantages of Grafaland as the site for a better home.

A wide, spacious 80 foot street leads into the development and the lots are set off by winding 60 foot streets with not a single street corner in the entire development.

The site is high, overlooking the city and giving the advantage of cool breezes in the summer.

All the lots are large, varying from 60 to 125 feet in width and from 120 to 140 feet in depth.

Utilities at present are at the edge of the development and can be extended to homes as quickly as they are built.

The well travelled streets in Grafaland are proof many Midland citizens are inspecting the development, and comments following the inspection trips indicate they approve the project.

"Choose your lot or lots now," Grafa suggested. "Grafaland offers so many advantages these lots cannot last long."

Bake Boys A 'Welcome' Cake

Welcome returning soldiers with cake fresh from the oven.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Now that so many men are heading home from Europe or Asia, almost every American family will play host to a son, husband, friend or a stranger in uniform. When planning, remember that haunting dream to the men overseas of home-baked cakes and cookies fresh from the oven.

One Egg Welcome Cake

Two cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 3/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/3 cup vegetable shortening, 2/3 cup milk, 1 egg, unbeaten; 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup corn syrup.

Mix by hand or with electric mixer at low speed. Sift flour once, measure into sifter with baking powder, salt and sugar. Have shortening at room temperature, mix or stir shortening just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients. Combine milk, vanilla and syrup. Add 1/2 of the liquid and the egg to dry ingredients. Mix until all flour is dampened, then beat one minute. Add remaining liquid, blend, and beat two minutes longer. Count only actual beating time. Scrape bowl and spoon or beater often. Turn batter into 9x9x2-inch pan which has been greased, lined on bottom with waxed paper, and greased again. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 35 minutes.

Pastel Jelly Frosting

One-half cup tart jelly; 1 egg white, unbeaten; 4 tablespoons sugar, dash of salt.

Combine ingredients in top of double boiler; mix. Place over boiling water and beat with rotary egg beater three minutes. Frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from boiling water and cool slightly before spreading. Makes enough frosting to cover top and sides of two nine-inch layers or to spread between layers and on top and sides of four-tier sponge cake, 6x9 or 5x10 inches.

Writer Takes Ride In Hitler's Super Armor-Plated Car That Goes 130 Per

By WHITNEY MARTIN
HEIDELBERG, GERMANY—(AP)

Gather around, chillun, and I will tell you the story of how your Pappy toured old Heidelberg in Adolf Hitler's own automobile, and let this be a lesson to you. Always be kind to writers. They might wind up eating your fried chicken.

It was back in 1945 and a bunch of us sports writers were looking over the American Army sports setup in Europe after World War II. Some say we were overlooking it, but we did not overlook anything.

We were dropping in on Mannheim to visit the Seventh Army headquarters and even before the plane touched the ground we could see this super-colossal motor vehicle looming up beside the runway like a whale on a sandbar, with so much gleaming nickle that it looked like the automat on wheels.

We didn't know the history of this mechanical giant until we were comfortably bogged down to the armchairs in the lush, red leather tonneau upholstery. Then we began to take inventory.

Weights 9 1/2 Tons—Without Hitler
The car is armor-plated and weighs, without Hitler, just nine and one-half tons.

The windows, rolling up from massive doors, are two and one-half inches thick and will shed 30-caliber bullets. It seats seven persons comfortably and nine in a pinch. Oddly enough, the car is a convertible-type, leaving the top unprotected, so the GIs nicknamed it "hand grenade special".

Its supercharged Mercedes-Benz motor gets only three miles to the gallon, so it would seem the front end would be running out of gas while the back end was being filled up. The tank holds 60 gallons. They have had it up to 130 miles an hour.

Dual Horn Control

The machine came into the possession of the Seventh Army through various mysterious military channels and now is the official car of Lt. Col. D. L. Durfee, in charge of the Seventh Army visitors' bureau and a very courteous and accommodating gentleman indeed.

The natives recognized the machine and stared after it wide eyed. We hope we looked nonchalant.

I forgot to say that the horn has dual control so the man sitting next to the driver can reach under the dash, press a button and send out a blast in case the pilot was negligent. It seems like a fine idea and would be great for backseat drivers.

And that, chillun, is the story of your Pappy's ride in Hitler's chariot and also shows Adolf's Satanic instincts. Even his car had two horns.

WAS THIS JAP'S FACE LOST!

BALTIMORE—(AP)—A Japanese envoy to the Manila conference handed a GI guard two American $5 bills and demanded some cigarettes, a Baltimore Sunpapers correspondent reports.

The Japanese accepted two cartons of cigarettes, but hesitated in embarrassment, before taking his change. Then he pocketed it and stalked off with a complete poker face.

The GI had given him Japanese-printed Philippine occupation currency.

Censorship Technically Over But Federal Agencies Fail To Comply

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Technically there is no more censorship of news. Byron Price, Office of Censorship head, formally ended it with a flattering statement on the splendid job the various media of news dissemination had done in co-operating with him. Newspapers countered with praise of what Price had done.

It is generally agreed that within his sphere Price did a sensational job with his assignment. It was plenty tough, but he kept a clear head, never got carried away with his duties and everybody ended up happy about it.

During his period of service with the U. S., however, he saw an ugly development in the various federal agencies which he tried unsuccessfully to stop. Under the disguise of war censorship practically every agency, whether its function had anything to do with the war effort or not, plugged up virtually every legitimate news source. The order went out that no government employee, regardless of rank, could speak to the press unless what he said was cleared and censored by the public relations office.

In addition to this strangulation of news within the agencies, Office of War Information ordered that the official agency announcements be cleared with OWI. No government employe was permitted to speak to the public about any subject until his script had been cleared. That is why so many officials were prohibited from taking part in open forum discussions or debates. Only a few top men who could be trusted to say nothing out of line in the heat of an argument were given this right. This was political censorship plain and simple. Byron Price fought against it. But since the end of the war there has been no relaxation of this type of censorship. A few "how it can be told" stories will come out, but the struggle to keep anything out of print that might not look so good for the agency continues.

War and Navy Gag Tight

Both War and Navy Departments have reiterated orders to its civilian and military personnel that nothing is to be given to the press that isn't first cleared through public relations. This idea of an agency having the vested right to okay any news coming out of it is almost becoming accepted as a fact within the government.

From time to time, public-spirited officials come out with something that exposes corruption and inefficiency. They feel that their duty to the people they serve is greater than to the bureau head. Too often this "leak" is a half-truth, planted to knife an enemy in the back. Denials all around will follow. It usually ends with the accuser getting fired, or transferred if he has enough pull.

Most enterprising reporters have their contacts in the various agencies in order to by-pass the public relations office. This situation results in much misinformation. The iron-clad understanding between a reporter and his contact is that he will never quote him directly or reveal his source of information. Knowing that reporters are pretty reliable in this respect, contacts are tempted to hand out bits of information as "feelers" or to furnish their own ends.

Instead of having to duck around corners and sneak into offices for news, Byron Price would have complete freedom of all news sources. A reporter would be able to get a statement or information from a government official speaking independently. He could check it and

Who Says Railroads Not Accommodating?

TUCSON, ARIZ.—(AP)—Just as Mrs. Minnie E. Wooley was reporting the loss of her purse to railroad officials here Monday, a fast, east-bound train pulled into the yards, stopped, and delivered the purse to its harried owner.

A startled Mrs. Wooley learned that Engineer Tom Collins and Fireman N. R. Butler, riding in the cab of a train following the one in which she had been traveling, saw the pocketbook along the railroad right-of-way.

They stopped the train, retrieved the purse, and then delivered it to its owner.

get the other side of it, if it's a controversial subject. In light of the facts, he could weigh the news value and give it to the public.

With newsprint scarce, much of what has gone on in the government hasn't been considered sufficiently important to compete with war news. As a result things which normally would have gotten a complete airing in the press have had sketchy treatment.

From now on in it will be a struggle between news-gatherers and the bureaucrats who would like to remain holed up in anonymity in their bailiwicks.

DOCTOR SHORTAGE

American Council on Education and the National Research Council estimate there will be a shortage of 19,000 doctors after the war. With only 74,000 doctors operating in the United States after demands by the armed services were met, it was found that 81 counties in the country had no doctors, and some only one for every 10,000 persons.

Lemon juice on melon will help bring out the melon flavor and enhance its natural sweetness.
