Indonese Council Rejects Holland's Partnership Offer

They have chided Britain's Lord Justice Lawrence the department for taking foreign policy into its own being would preside at the trial at Nuernberg, without asking the senators' advice hands without asking the senators' advice.

One senator accused the department of making this country look once more like the unloved "Colossus of the ants, who are in custody at Nuern-North." Another said the proper thing would have been to go ahead with the meeting, but refuse to deal with Argentine representatives. A third suggested that the Argentine delegation wouldn't have shown up, anyway.

There was more advice than Tom Sawyer got in his fence painting job. Maybe it was all good. But at the same time there was something refreshing and warmly Storm Troops); the General Staff human about the State Department's impulsive gesture of disgust with a thoroughly disreputable government.

To counter the Russian government's insistence that the Lublin Poles be represented at the United Nations Conference, this country's delegation led the way in securing a conference seat for Argentina. It was a move to show the Russians that we could champion as unrepresentative a government as we believed the Russian-sponsored Lublin group to be.

Perhaps that step was taken in desperation. But this government has since had some embarrassing opportunities to regret it. Now, more in hot anger than cold-blooded diplomacy, the State Department has taken another step to correct the earlier mistake.

It might seem that this government's present clear intent is of more consequence than the method of making it known.

It probably would clear up the paper shortage if Uncle Sam had all of that on which people intended to write to the boys in service, but didn't.

America's Card Authority This is the fourth of a series of hands sent me by Dr. Paul Stern, general secretary of the Tournament Bridge Association of London England. This hand came up in duplicate game at the Jacob Ehrlich Society of London. Although North apparently must lose a spade trick, two diamonds and a club, one declarer made the four-spade contract very nice play.

The opening diamond lead was lost to West's ace, and declarer won the club return with the ace. He then took the spade finesse, cashing the queen and ace, and made a smart play by leading the diamond king. Remember that it still looked as though he had a diamond loser. The jack of clubs was led, East won and returned a neart, which was ruffed with dummy's six of spades. The club six was trumped with the seven of spades and the ace and king of hearts cashed, dummy discarding two diamonds. The heart eight was ruffed in dummy with the eight of spades. When the club ten was led, North held the spade nine and a diamond, while West had the jack of spades and jack of diamonds.

If West trumped, declarer would discard the diamond. If he did not trump, declarer would do so and give up the last trick.

such as Rank will be reaching out for our market, right here at home. Affiliations have already been made with American theater chains and distributors to handle their product here.

And even countries speaking foreign languages are also going to have a try at the world market, including our domestic theaters, by making English-language films. All this is possible today because world trade barriers came tumbling down, through agreements reached at our recent international parleys.

So Old John Q. Publico gets fine foreign films, sees new stars developed in foreign lands, gets a vast change in film fare in general. This change, which should make old John Q. Public chortle with demeet this competition from other lands, he stands to gain all around New production techniques will contribute to an improved technical quality, with far better color, three-dimensional photography and some marked improvements in setlighting methods in the immediate offing. Removal of war-time res-trictions on set building will also help the movie makers a grea deal

Another thing that will hand Old John Q. a laugh is that he is to be consulted, as never before, in determining post-war production trends. They'll follow John Q's tastes rather than try to shape his astes, and cram unwanted stuft lown his throat.

To that end, producers who haven't already obtained the services of Dr. Gallup or some of his aste-sampling colleagues are hastening to do so. A fairly well-mapped plan has been set up in most studios as a guide in the purchase of future story properties. Non-War Films

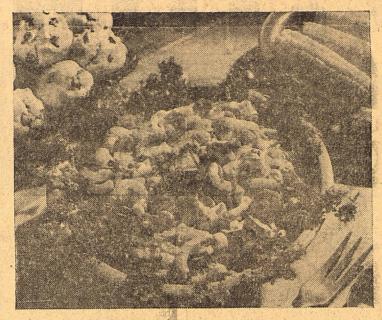

In the immediate future, comedies, musicals, and in general non-war movies will be the rule. However, within a year after VJ Day, it is thought that pictures dealing World War II from a peacetime perspective will be able to creep into theatre programs. That would be fully two years before the same happened follow-ing World War I. is that the myth of "movies must be sheer entertainment" has been of a Spitfire using a set of artistic exploded by the war. Such documentaries as Academy-Award-winning "Fighting Lady," with its tre-mendous box office appeal, will from now on continue to be part of our movie bill of fare. The airplane is going to be a tremendous factor in Hollywood's plan for bigger, better future movies. By shrinking the globe as has done, it makes possible distant location trips, and already many of these have been planned for that time when travel restric-ions are fully lifted.

Good as are the synthetic backgrounds Hollywood cooks up on her sound stages, you can't beat the real thing, and that is what we are promised in our post-war movies.

50 Remain Of 375 Gallant RAF Fliers Who Saved Great Britain In 1940

By HENRY B. JAMESON

are alive today.

All the rest of the 375 top flight fighters of the battle were killed in action. The last one went down six weeks before the war ended.

Virtually all of those whose luck kept them alive through five years of war still are serving in the RAF, according to air ministry records. Many of them, too young to have had civilian professions when they joined up, plan to make the air force their career.

The best known among the surviving heroes is Douglas Bader, 35 tin legs. He previously had made flying history with a comeback after a flying accident in 1931 cost him both legs.

Bader was shot down over France after the crucial battle and spent four years in German prison camps before the U.S. 1st Army set him free last summer. He attempted to escape four times, so the Nazis took away his legs. A new set was parachuted to him by the RAF.

Bader's permanent rank is equivalent to that of a full colonel in the U.S. Army Air Force. He is currently second in command of the RAF's famous 11 fighter group, the same outfit with which he

F. R. Carey, another one of the original few, has a desk job in same office with Bader. Wing Com-mander P. M. Brothers, veteran Hurricane ace, is one of the top men at the RAF cadet college. Among other old timers holding staff jobs are Group Capt. P. S.

Turner, Wing Commander W.
Crowley-Milling, Keith Lofts, Bill
Drake, Joe Ellis and Tom Vigors.
All those names once were virtually household words around London. Denaldson In Calcutta

Al Donaldson, who knocked down three Germans in one afternoon, now is stationed with the RAF in Calcutta. Stanford Tuck, who gained almost as much attention as Bader and Malan, spent two year as a prisoner of war but now is back with old group 11.

How the few hundred pilots contrived to give the Luftwaffe the thrashing they did in the Battle of Britain is one of the miracles of the war.

The superior morale of the pilots, their skill, the fact that they were fighting over and for their very homes, the excellence of the Spitfire and Hurricane fighters, good —all were factors contributing to victory. It has been admitted officially that in July, 1940, the RAF fighter command had only 640 aircraft available daily for the battle. These were being supplemented at the rate of 130 new planes a week. This was little more than enough organization in the control rooms and the invaluable secret of radar to make up for heavy losses. But it was the high toll among the best LONDON-Less than 50 of "the pilots, more than the loss of airfew" Battle of Britain fighter pilots craft, that almost cost them the who saved this island from German decision. In the four months from invasion in the gloomy fall of 1940 July to October, 1940, the fighter command lost 481 pilots killed, captured or missing plus 422 injured.

The turning point in the Battle of Britain came on that historic Sunday of Sept. 15, 1940, when a galiant little band of dog-tired pilos outnumbered ten to one, went up for a desperate last ditch stand and shot down 185 German planes in a nightmare battle which lasted all day over London and southeast England. The pilots fought in relays that day, each coming down only long enough for a cup of tea and for refuelling his plane

It was soon afterwards that Winston Churchill made his famous remark that "never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few.'

who has ever had Pin-Worms Anyone who has ever had Pin-Worms knows how tormenting and embarrassing this infection can be, and how hard it may be to deal with the creatures, once they get a foothold inside the body.

Today, thanks to a special, medically recognized drug (gentian violet), a highly effective treatment has been made possible. This drug is the vital ingredient in P-W, the Pin-Worm tablets developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son. P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms. So watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms in your child or yourself—especially the aggravating rectal itch. And don't delay. Ask your druggist for JAYNE'S P-W right away, and follow the directions. Satisfaction guaranteed, or your money back.

Bones Of Extinct Kind Of Bison Discovered

PLAINVIEW -(P)- Bones many biscns of an extinct species have been discovered in an old stream bottom near here, Dr. E. H. Seellards, director of Texas Memorial Museum at the University of Texas, told the Plainview Lions Club Wednesday.

Discovery also of many man-made objects such as flint spears and scrapers will serve to preserve a cultural phase about which little is known, he said.

The fossils and the human relics will be compared with other discoveries to determine their place in the geologic time scale.

The bones will be placed on per-
