Adm. Nimitz Becomes New Naval Chief

WASHINGTON -(AP)-The Army and Navy underwent a major shift in top commands Wednesday in the midst of an inter-service scrap over proposals to merge them. President Turman announced the biggest shake-up in the defense departments since before the war, with these four changes:

1. General of the Army George

C. Marshall, 64-year-old Army chief of staff, retires, to be succeeded by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, 55.

2. Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, will be 67 Friday, retires as chief of Naval operations, and Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, 60, takes his place.

3. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, 52, who recently was acting Allied supreme commander in the Mediterranean Theater, succeeds Eisenhower as commanding general of the American forces in the European Theater, commander-in-chief of the U.S. occupation forces in Germany, and U. S. representative on the Allied Control Council of

4. Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, wartime commander of the 5th Fleet who has been described by ssociates as a "cold-blooded fighting fool," becomes commander-inchief of the Pacific Fleet in place Arnold Still AAF Chief

Employees Leave Job After Company Asks Delay On Proposal

DETROIT—(A)—The United Auto Workers Union struck the plants of General Motors Corp. Wednesday in a walkout aimed at crippling the gigantic producer in order to force a 30 per cent wage rate boost.

The strike, first big authorized peacetime walkout of the UAW and the union's first such blow at General Motors since the sitdown strike of 1937, began before 10 a.m. All GM's plants in 20 states, employing close to 200.-000 production workers, were ordered out in the longthreatened battle between America's largest labor union and largest operating corporation. The first reported walkout at an individual plant was at Flint, Mich., where employes left work at the DeGaulle Forms Buick Motors Plant. Nearly all had left the plant by 9:40 a. m. Buick's force had been reduced temporarily from its original estimated 9,000 by a shortage of chassis frames which had stopped the

Impolite Society

It may be recalled that Dr. Newdigate M. Owensby, an Atlanta psychiatrist, got his name in the papers the other day by stating that bad manners are becoming positively stylish these days. What's more, he predicted a future in which manners will become progressively worse and psychiatrists will become progressively richer.

We can't quite figure out what Dr. Owensby meant by that last statement. It's hard to imagine how psychiatrists could get rich teaching people bad manners when most folks catch on so quickly with no instruction. And if the psychiatrists are as smart as they let on, we can't see how manners can get worse if the psychiatrists grow rich trying to make them better.

But we will go along with Dr. Owensby in his statement that bad manners are being worn by all the best people this season. Shoppers are now being ill-mannered to clerks who were ill-mannered to them during the war. Rudeness, long held in check, is flaring up all over. And nowhere is it more apparent than in public life.

For instance, Messrs. Truman, Attlee and King were so impolite as to whisper in the presence of practically the whole world, which feels that it should have been included in their interesting conversations.

Truman, up to now, nas refused to let his companion heads of government play with the atomic bomb.

New Midlander Survived Shelling Which Killed 410 U.S. Paratroopers

One of the great hush-hush stories of World War II was the shooting down of 23 American troop-carrier planes by the U.S. Navy which resulted in the death of 410 Paratroopers during the air invasion of Sicily on July

In one of those 23 fateful planes was Pfc. Harrell Holmes, formerly of Abilene and now a resident of Midland, who lived through the nightmare which remained an Army secret for more than a year. Holmes earned five battle stars and one bronze arrowhead.

"Luckily, I was in one of the lead planes, and the flak Refreshments were served by the and shell fire which hit us hostess to Mmes. Ben Black, Jerry was not as heavy as the IS ENTERTAINED AT Roberts, A. L. Gifford, A. M. Moore, shelling which hit some of the LUNCHEON TUESDAY other troop planes," he said.

"Our left motor caught fire. Shells hit the body of the plane making holes as big as wash tubs. The plane pitched and bucked like a West Texas broncho and everyone was airsick and scared, but there was no panic. It was dark, or rather it would have been if it chart in presenting her talk on hadn't been for the flak bursts Tracer bullets pounded like hailstones on the belly of the plane. We could have reached out and grabbed them like fireflies.

"Everyone began to fall and slide all over the plane. I got up off the floor and looked around for my buddy. Where he had been was a flak hole. I looked toward the door and saw no one there. Some had jumped and others were still had jumped and others were still bridge; Mrs. J. T. McNally, poker; falling and sliding in the bucking Mrs. Verne Tully, tripoli, and Mrs. plane.

Leaped From Plane The flame from the burning motor streamed back past the door and as Holmes leaped out it seemed to be into the mouth of hell, he said. As the 'chute opened he was jerked out of his dream-like lethargy, and for a few seconds floated toward the ground in an agony of terror for tracer bullets were cracking through the silk overhead.
(Later he counted 30 holes.) When he struck the ground he lay still a moment, unable to get out of his harness. Finally, tearing frantically at the backles and straps he nearby. "He regained self-control sooner under that hill.'

ENTRENCHMENT IN ITALY

GENERAL EISENHOWER and his ground force commander, General Alexander, fully anticipated that they were in for a heavy fight at the foot of the that eight German divisions were available to oppose the landings. Two were in and north of Rome. The Hermann Goering Panzer Division and the 15th Motorized Division were in the Naples area, and four more first-class divisions (the 16th and 26th Panzer, 29th Motorized, and 1st Parachute) were south of Naples. The enemy forces in the south were heavy in armor. General Alexander, on the other hand, had to lodge assault infantry on the mainland first. The shortage of shipping made it impossible for him to bring his own heavy armor into the fight until the British 7th Armored Division started to unload on D + 5. A further handicap was the necessity of making large forces available for the OVERLORD build-up at this time. The U.S. 1st and 9th Divisions and 2d Armored Division which had fought in Sicily were already staging for their move-ment to the United Kingdom. Later the 82d Airborne Division was withdrawn from the fighting at Salerno and sent to Britain.

The narrow margin on which we were compelled to allocate our resources so that Germany might be defeated at the earliest possible moment required superhuman effort by troops and commanders. Every available combat aircraft of both the Tactical and the Strategic Air Forces was thrown into the action. Bombers flew two missions a day, isolating the battle area and pounding German strongpoints. During the four critical days our Air Forces flew 3,000 sorties and dropped 2,150 tons of bombs in close support of the ground action. Naval gunfire supported the ground troops, and the Navy kept the stream of reinforcements coming in. On 13 September, and again the next day, reinforcing troops of the 82d Airborne Division went ashore. By the

. We are very much in the 'touch and go' stage of this operation. We got the Italian Fleet into Malta and, because of the Italian surrender, were able to rush into Taranto and Brindisi where no Germans were present. They are working flat out and assuming, which I do, that our hold on southern Italy will finally be solidified, we are going to prove once again that the greatest value of any of the three services is ordinarily realized only when it is utilized in close coordination with the other two . . .

On 16 September, patrols of the Fifth and Eighth Armies met 40 miles southeast of Salerno uniting the fronts of General Alexander's Fifteenth Army Group. The critical phase of the Italian campaign nad ended.

Shortage of assault shipping and anding craft continued to haunt our operations. A single division, or example, required for its landng at Salerno 30 LST's, 24 LCT's, 39 LCI's, 9 large transports, 4 freighters, and numerous miscelaneous small landing craft. Nevertheless, during the first 18 lays Navy crews and Army servce troops landed over the Salerno beaches a total of 108,000 tons of supplies, 30,000 motor vehicles, and 189,000 troops.

The advance on Naples followed the successful completion of the fighting at Salerno. The Fifth and Eighth Armies under General Alexander were now deployed abreast. For some weeks a considerable portion of the shipning was devoted to the movement of the Air Forces onto the Italian mainland. By the end of the year 35,000 combat airmen with their supporting forces were established in Italy. There were two heavy bombardment groups, two medium groups, and two fighter groups operating from 10 airfields. The fall weather made it necessary to overlay the runways with steel mat. Pipe lines and pumping stations, largely recovered from North Africa, had to be installed to permit the necessary flow of aviation fuel to the airdromes. This build-up of air power consumed approximately 300,000 tons of shipping during the most critical months of the Italian campaign. So heavy were the shipping requirements of the Fifteen Strategic Air Force, activated 1 November 1943 under General Doolittle, that the build-up of our ground forces in Italy was considerably delayed. ## Tornadoes Want To Blow Away Bulldogs Thursday

Reporter-Telegram Sports Editor

Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes blow into town Thursday with typhoon velocity and they would like to sweep the Midland Bulldogs into the "storm cellar" of District

The Bulldogs, although sapped by injuries, have different ideas on the subject. They will be scrapping to bottle up the Dawson County lads and send them back to the wind tunnel for more victory tests.

The self-lifting tractor is now a reality. It rises any height, up to four inches, virtually drawing itself up "by its own bootstraps." The lifting operation is accomplished by placing light tubular frames beneath the axles, connecting the rear to the two arms of a Ford-Ferguson tractor's hydraulic linkage and lightly touching the "fingertip control" lever which is one feature of the Ferguson System. The entire operation takes less than one minute.
