FATALITY

Eddy Allen Madison, 22, of Lubbock, died at 11 p.m. May 24 from injuries received when his 1978 Honda motorcycle collided with a 1970 Chevrolet driven by Henry Brady of Merkel. The accident occurred at the Y intersection of FM 618 and FM 600 about 12 miles southeast of Haskell. DPS Trooper James Davis investigated the accident.

Nowhere but West Texas.

West Texas residents become accustomed to the rapidly changing weather and after a time, begin to take in stride such happenings as were witnessed Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Temperatures Sunday afternoon were near 100 and not a cloud was in sight. Less than four hours later, skies were black, tornadoes were sighted about 15 miles northeast of Haskell and grapefruit sized hail fell 20 miles north.

Haskell received only a rain and gusty winds from the storm and West Texans have grown up being taught to appreciate a rain anytime.

Weather wise, Monday passed without incident, but Tuesday was a different story.

Early Tuesday afternoon, large thunderheads began building and another rain and possible storm looked likely.

The anticipated 'storm' occurred but not the type expected. About 4 p.m. a large red cloud could be seen to the north and west.

Within minutes the dust hit and visibility was reduced to less than a

Junior Class Hosts Reception

Members of the Junior Class of Haskell High School held a special reception for the faculty of the school Thursday morning, May 22. The reception was sponsored by eleven students including the Junior Class officers and members of the Junior Honor Society.

According to the Class president, Paul Williams, the students wished to express their appreciation and thanks to the teachers for their work this year. During a speech given at the reception, Williams assured the faculty that students planned to make next year a much better one.

"After all they've been through, said Williams, "we had to do something."

city block and street lights came on.

Less than an hour later heavy rains washed the air and within another hour skies were clear and the sun was shining.

Most residents went to bed Tuesday night to a violent electrical display which was followed by another light rain.

The entire episode reminds us of an incident which occurred several years ago on the Throckmorton County ranch of Rob Brown.

Rob was hosting a group of European cattle breeders who were touring ranches throughout the western United States.

Rob's ranch foreman, George Self, was visiting with a German rancher when the European asked in broken English, "What is your rain?"

After several attempts, George finally understood that the question referred to the average annual rainfall.

Coming from near a rain forest the rancher was not prepared for George's answer of "About 18 inches".

The German rancher's comment translated to something approximating, "That's sure not much", to which George replied matter of factly, "No sir, but you ought to be here the day it comes".

The low bid of $9,964.26 submitted by Bill Wilson Motor Co. was accepted.

In other action, members of the court took oaths of office as a Board of Equalization and agreed to meet June 17, at 9 a.m. for oil, gas, and utilities and at 1:30 p.m. for personal and real property.

Final Cleanup Days Approaching

The final days of the Haskell City Wide Cleanup are approaching and Haskell residents have been very busy in their cleaning of lots, yards, buildings and garages. Much work has been done in the city and county and city workers are laboring mightily to pick up the assembled trash and garbage. Many residents have been hauling their own trash and garbage to the city dump, and it will be open all day Saturday for those who wish to do their own thing.

A special thanks goes out from the Mayor, Royce Williams, the Haskell City Council, Haskell County Judge and Commissioners and from many other organizations and individuals. Without each resident of the city doing their part, Haskell certainly could not continue to be the best city in West Texas, if not the entire state.

LIGHTNING

Haskell received the benefits of several rains within the past week and missed most of the damage that neighboring areas have suffered. Several tornadoes were spotted Sunday afternoon northeast of Haskell and damage to the hen house of Earnest Peiser and the barn of W. L. Holt were both destroyed. Munday received softball and grapefruit sized hail which damaged roofs, windows and vehicles. Olney received approximately seven inches of rain Tuesday in a short time and DPS Sergeant Frank Jircik from Haskell was called to the scene to assist when flooding started.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN—You've seen the advertisements in the newspapers: Once in a lifetime sale! Museum quality! Fine turquoise and silver jewelry! This weekend only, 10:00 to 6:00. Hotel Blank, Rm. 100. Sometimes it's an art auction or a fur coat sale, or maybe Oriental rugs. Or perhaps it's an estate sale rather than an auction. The key similarities, though, are that the auction or sale is usually for only a few days duration, is most often held in a hotel or motel suite, and is frequently advertised as the "chance of a lifetime," or something similar. Our Consumer Protection Division attorneys caution that such events carry the elements necessary for potential consumer problems. That is, the sponsors often are itinerants, have no local business address, and may or may not be operating under their correct names or the correct names of their businesses. After the sale or auction, the sellers pack up, move on to another spot, and may open up under an entirely different name.

The fact that they move on immediately after a sale, usually leave no forwarding address, and seldom have a local agent could spell disaster for consumers who make a purchase or bid successfully on an item, then find later that the goods have been misrepresented. Our attorneys have obtained court judgments in several such cases. Of course, there are many businesses or individuals sponsoring legitimate occasional sales or auctions. Many of them travel around the State and even the nation on a schedule that brings them back to a city or town at the same time each year. In such cases there is almost always a central office where you can contact the seller with an inquiry or complaint.

Our Consumer Protection Division lawyers say you may be able to avoid potential dissatisfaction with purchases made at all types of "itinerant" sales or auctions if you buy with the realization that the sale is likely to be final, and that you will have little recourse later. With such knowledge, you should be sure to examine an item very carefully before buying or bidding.

You should realize, too, that at some auctions, there is the danger of a planted bidder who will try to raise the price of an item by bidding against you or others.

In addition, because these events are in operation such a short time, you probably won't have an opportunity to take a turquoise ring, an Oriental rug, or a painting to a local expert for an appraisal. You'll have to rely instead on the appraisal and price provided by the seller, and unless you're an expert or an experienced collector, there's a good chance you won't be able to tell if it's accurate.

If you know little about quality in such goods, you should "educate your eye" by visiting shops that handle such merchandise and asking for information about what to look for. Most such places will be happy to assist a potential customer. You can learn by reading books and trade magazines, too. Then if you attend a weekend sale, you'll be better equipped to evaluate what is offered.

For help with a consumer complaint concerning an auction or sale contact the Attorney General's Office nearest you.

The old swimmin' hole — envisioned as a cool farm pond or stream in days gone by — has almost disappeared from the scene, but more than a third of a million Texas youngsters have their minds and bodies set on another attraction this year — summer camp.

Before the year is out, says the Texas Department of Health (TDH), children throughout the state will take part in some form of summer camp. In the majority of cases, water will be a main attraction.

Roy G. Burton, chief sanitarian in the General Sanitation Division of TDH, says approximately 540 camps will be licensed in Texas this year. About 230 will be resident camps, where participants stay over night, while 310 will be day camps.

The Texas Health Department is charged with making sure that camps conform to safety and health standards for the active youngsters. Activities are conducted by the Department under the Texas Youth Camp Safety and Health Act which became effective in 1973.

Licensing and inspection covers camps which operate four or more consecutive days, have five or more children 18 years of age or under, and have activities normally associated with camping.

"These camps are like little cities," said Burton, "and they must meet all the sanitation and safety needs of the campers."

Inspectors from the TDH Public Health Region of offices, as well as from the Central Office in Austin, conduct the inspections. In looking for camp compliance with minimum standards, the inspectors cover such areas as: qualified counselors, medical care, environmental safety, proper food service, adequate and proper supervision of recreational activities, water supplies, and garbage and sewage disposal. In addition, swimming pools are monitored.

The Hill Country around Kerrville has the largest concentration of private resident camps. The area traditionally has been associated with camping.

East Texas also is booming. Greatest concentrations of day camps operated by such organizations as Girl Scouts, the YMCA, YWCA and Campfire Girls are located in the large suburban areas around Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio. Burton said that he feels day camp operations will be increasing around other metropolitan areas.

Most of the camps rely on some type of natural attraction, such as a lake, forest or stream.

Jimmie D. Dickens, Director of the General Sanitation Division, said summer camps provide a wonderful program for boys and girls.

Often, camp may be a highlight in the lives of the young participants, said Dickens. "For many, it is the first time to be away from home, and this can be quite an experience," he said.

The Texas regulations came about mainly because of national publicity given to accidents and deaths at camps in other areas of the nation. Dickens said Texas camp operators have had a splendid safety record.

Although Texas camp operators were leery of regulations at first, this attitude has changed, said Dickens. "They have been responsive since determining that we are attempting to help them have better camps."

One reason for the change in attitude is the 11-member Texas Advisory Council on Youth Camp Safety appointed by the Governor with the State Health Commissioner as its chairman. The advisory council assists the State Health Department in developing standards and setting policy for the administration of the regulations. Its members are qualified through activities with private organizations or through experiences in the field.

Newly-appointed members of the advisory council are: C. Joseph Nelson, ARLINGTON, representing Boy Scouts of America; Ms. Scottie Hubbard, DALLAS, Girl Scouts; Dr. Philip Hook, TYLER, church; Rodney J. Kidd, AUSTIN, private camps; Bryan L. Walker, ROANOKE, experience; Raymond Bean, DALLAS, YMCA; Silas Ragsdale, HUNT, experience; and Carl Siefert, DALLAS, handicapped. Representatives of three groups to be appointed include Campfire Girls, YWCA, and civic organizations.

Horses tested for horse sense

COLLEGE STATION
Texas A&M University researchers have found that some horses appear to have a lot more horse sense than others.

Dr. Gary Potter and his team are putting a special group of experimental horses through a set of laboratory tests of pulling levers and transversing complex mazes.

"We need to know early in their lives which horses are likely to learn and which aren't," said Potter, a champion horseman and professor in Texas A&M's Department of Animal Science.

Since some show and performance colts are valued at well over $20,000 each, the scientists want to be able to define objectively what learning ability is in a horse instead of relying on chance.

The tests are some of the first ever given to gauge horses' learning ability.

Little League News Energy Symposium Set In Lubbock

Monday night the Hawks were upset by the Rams 8 to 4. Chris Lopez, Rams, made two doubles and Leonard Villereal made a terrific double play. Doug Starr, Hawks, made a double. The Cats played a super game against the Crows. Davis Chapman, Cats, made a double on errors. Marty Martinez, Cats, hit an infield homerun. Alex Segura, Rodney Johnson and Mike Brooks, Cats, all hit doubles. The Crows also had several good hits. Matthias Lorenz hit a double, Marc Grube hit two doubles and Mary Lehrer turned two hits into doubles. Tony Ozuna, Cats, did a fine job pitching all four innings.

On Tuesday, the rains came again but not until after the Bears managed to beat the Red Horses. Bo Watson, Bears, made a triple in this game. The whole team really played good. Cole Larned, Red Horses, turned a triple into a homerun. Mike Rodriguez, Red Horses, hit a double. The Cubs and Eagles were rained out. This game is rescheduled to be played on June 7.

Stoney Trussell, Red Horses, made a double in Thursdays game against the Cats. Dan Benton, Red Horses, made a triple in this game.

The Rams had two players injured in Thursdays game against the Tigers. Scott Schaake, Tiger, made a double play during this game. Stephon Brockington, Ram, made a good throw to third base to pick off a runner. He also caught a high fly to the outfield for another out. The Bears shut out the Crows Friday. They really did do a fine job of playing ball. Eric Mullen made two triples, Shane Stout, Derrick Billington, Alberto Alvarez all made triples. Stephen Hold made a double. Kevin Mitchell did a great job catching. Chan Guess pitched two innings with no hits and James Rike pitched one. Eric Mullen had to leap into the air to catch a fly but came down to earth with the out.

During the game between the Hawks and Cubs, Joel Torres hit not one but two homeruns. That is what I call TERRIFIC. I believe this is number 3 for Joel. Congratulations!!!

Robert McAdams, Tigers, made an in-field homerun on errors during the Tiger-Eagle game. Egels, you played a good game.

I would like to apologize to Bruce Geilhausen for a double that I missed earlier in the season. Bruce plays for the Cubs.

Would also like to say goodbye and good luck to Wade, Glenn, and Joey Martin. Scores:

Thursday and Friday, June 19-20, 1980, Lubbock will be the host city for an "Alternate Energy Symposium" to be held in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The Symposium is being sponsored by Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Texas Farmers Union, Small Business Administration, and Texas Tech University.

The scope of the symposium will be "Alternate Energy Sources for Agriculture and Small Business." An anticipated attendance in excess of 1,000 participants is expected to be present for the event.

The symposium will be underwritten by the Texas Farmers Union and will involve Texas Tech and Texas A&M professors, Department of Energy officials and energy specialists. Topics to be presented will include alcohol fuels, wind utilization, biomass, solar energy, and others.

A variety of exhibits will be on display including solar and wind energy and alcohol fuels conversion equipment. A highlight in the exhibit area will be a converted automobile capable of operating on straight ethonol, methanol or gasoline. Informative literature on most of the exhibits will be available to each participant.

Registration on Thursday morning will be held from 7:30 a.m. until 9:00 a.m. The opening session will begin at 9:00 a.m. and will be held in the Civic Center Theater. The welcome on Thursday will be made by B.C. "Peck" McMinn, president, Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development.

Following this, introduction of the speaker will be given by Jay Naman, president, Texas Farmers Union. The keynote speaker for the day will be Victor Ray, Alcohol Fuels Specialist, National Farmers Union.

Following the opening presentations, workshops will begin at approximately 9:30 a.m. and run throughout the day. A lunch break will be given at 12:30 p.m. on both days. Following the workshops on Thursday, Victor Ray will host the "wrap-up" session which will begin at 5:00 p.m.

The second and last of the Energy Symposium will begin at 9:00 a.m. and will include different speakers and different workshops. The welcome address on Friday will be given by Lubbock Mayor, Bill McAlister, and the introduction of the keynote speaker will be made by Dr. Charles Neil of the Texas Tech College of Business Administration. The keynote address will be presented by Bill Holmberg, Alcohol Fuels Division of the DOE. Holmberg says, "Alcohol fuels represent a flag at the Alamo, around which farmers and others can rally to regain energy independence for rural communities. That level of enthusiasm and patriotism makes people vulnerable to snake-oil salesmen."

Conservation Viewpoints USDA Soil Conservation Service

Vandalism is rampant-like a wild fire raging out of control-vandalism of our most prized natural resource-oil soil. Heavy mid-May rains in the western portion of the Haskell Soil and Water Conservation District have done considerable damage, as the rains came so hard and so fast.

Last weeks issue of the Twin Cities News featured a picture of the Albert English farm, west of Jud, stating that it looked like the Brazos River. This is typical of many areas along the Brazos as well as many that do not border the river.

Large areas were washed while still others were silted up, indicating the need for ground cover, better residue management and more high residue producing crops, such as small grains and sorghums, in the crop rotation.

Then to top things off, late last week, the winds started soil blowing in less than one week following good rains. The tight land soils were blowing as well as the sandy land soils. The need for emergency tillage is indicated, and some has already been started.

Realizing that the early months of 1980 have been most peculiar, all of us should consider that we live in one of the most erratic areas in the nation-weather-wise. We can expect anything, at any time.

The need is apparent for more high residue producing crops of small grains and sorghums. Winter cover crops of small grains following cotton harvest is considered a sound wind erosion control measure-even if the small grains are not permitted to remain on the soil surface past the first of April. The normal weather conditions for our area would permit ample time after April 1 through April 15 for land preparation for cotton or sorghums, and normally, most years, enough moisture is received after that time for planting. In reality, winter cover crops do not deplete soil moisture that much, as they will prevent soil moisture loss through evaporation.

Start now planning for next fall and winter to institute a strong wind erosion control program-one that will not only prevent soil loss due to wind erosion, but one that will help to prevent the vandalism of ravaging rains in late spring.

Move Underway To Exempt Small Royalties From Tax

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm announced today that a major effort is now underway in the Congress to exempt small royalty owners from the recently enacted windfall profits tax.

Stenholm recently introduced legislation which would exempt the royalty owner of up to 10-barrels-per-day of royalty interest under the windfall tax. The bill, H.R. 7211, is similar to one Congressman Keith Sebelius, R-Kansas, introduced about the same time.

Stenholm said that he and Representative Sebelius have decided to join forces in an effort to improve the chances of getting the legislation through Congress. While he expects passage to be an uphill battle, Stenholm said he believed many representatives in the Congress are beginning to realize the need to deal with some of the "injustices" of the windfall profits tax.

"I don't believe that the American landowner should be penalized simply because his land contains natural resources, whether it be oil, natural gas, or coal," Stenholm said. "This country was founded on the strong belief in the free enterprise system and the right to private ownership of property. The windfall profits tax seriously challenges this basic principle of America."

The Congressman went on to point out that many small royalty owners, faced with today's high inflation, are dependent upon their royalty checks to help offset economic difficulties. This is especially true of retired persons, whose royalty checks help supplement their social security payments, he said.

The Stenholm-Sebelius effort now has about 50 co-sponsors and Stenholm said that he expected more to join in the initiative. "We are determined to obtain this exemption and have every intention of fighting this thing through the Congress," Stenholm ended.

Aluminum Recycling Project Announced

Bill Reed Distributors and the West Texas Rehabilitation Center announced today an aluminum can recycling project. Rehab officials said they were most pleased to cooperate with Bill Reed Distributors in this new project. WTRC will purchase all types of aluminum cans throughout the West Texas area which in turn will be recycled into useable aluminum.

Shelley Smith stated that he was delighted with the concern and cooperation of Mr. Cleber Massey of the Dr. Pepper Company and Mrs. Raymond McDaniel of the Texas Coca-Cola Distributors. WTRC spokesmen stated that they were most pleased that the aluminum recycling project could serve the dual purpose of cleaning up communities and supporting the programs of the Center.

The Rehabilitation Center will purchase aluminum cans throughout their far flung service area with the cooperation of the beverage can users.

Smith said he was looking forward to this being a most successful project with Reed, Massey and McDaniel all three on the aluminum team.

Sure cure for the worst kind of electric shock:

There are two ways to keep cool this summer. The big difference between them is operating cost. The fact is that air conditioning uses four times as much electricity as evaporative cooling.

Which means that keeping cool and comfortable with evaporative cooling saves you 3 out of every 4 dollars you'd spend on electricity for air conditioning.

Which is why we call our cooler The Miser. A Miser costs much less to buy and much less to run than air conditioning.

Even if you have air conditioning, using a Miser instead can save you a bundle. Why sweat it any longer—get a Miser today.

Letters To The Editor

(EDITORS NOTE: The Haskell Free Press will publish letters to the Editor dealing with any subject. All letters must be signed but names will be withheld by request. All letters are subject to editing for length and liability.)

Dear Editor:

I am disappointed that the Haskell Free Press will print letters to the editor and withhold the persons name. It appears to me this opens the door for any crank to say anything about anyone whether true or not. If the person who wrote the letter in last week's paper truly believed the things that he said, then it would appear to me that he should have the courage to have his name printed. I strongly disagree with the connotation in the letter that a janitor's job is somehow unimportant. I personally know several individuals that are janitors and I do not look down on that profession or any other vocation that a person chooses.

When I insured my store, I was Mr. Creamy. When I had a claim, I was Mr. 873-54269.

When you buy insurance, there are two types of agents you can deal with. A one-company agent who works directly for one insurance company or an independent insurance agent who represents several companies. What's the difference? There are quite a few.

First of all, if you buy insurance from a one-company agent, he's probably not the person you talk to when you have a claim. Most one-company agents have nothing to do with the claims process. If you have a claim, it's between you and the adjuster.

Your Independent Insurance Agent doesn't do business that way. He's right there ready to serve you when you have a claim—helping you reach a fair settlement as quickly as possible. Personal involvement is not the only advantage your Independent Insurance Agent offers you. Since he doesn't represent only one insurance company, he can offer you policies from several companies. So he can help you choose the policy that's right for you—at the right price. Whether you need homeowners, auto, life or business insurance.

We treat you like a person. Not a number.

Christian Church Jehovah's Witnesses Sets VBS May 26-30 Hold Meeting

An exciting program has been prepared by Christian Church for Vacation Bible School to be held May 26th through May 30th.

"Jesus, I Believe In You" is the theme for the school, to be held each weekday from 9:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Classes will be offered for all ages from Nursery (ages

2-3) through 6th grade.

The central goal of Vacation Bible School is this: That souls be won to Christ and grown in Christ. Bible-based lessons will be taught with excitement and variety through the use of many advanced teaching methods. Students will be challenged and involved through such activities as these: song time, Bible study, interesting visual demonstrations, classroom interaction, craft making, and many other innovative methods in keeping with the theme, Jesus, I Believe In You.

Bring the family, friends, and neighbors. There is help (and fun) and spiritual growth for all at Vacation Bible School.

The V.B.S. Closing Program will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday night at 107 N. F. Haskell. The public is cordially invited to attend. There will be a fellowship hour following the program.

The semi-annual Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses concluded in Arlington this past weekend, with many local members attending.

The area congregation spokesman, Mr. Hoisington, reported "a program repeatedly drawing attention to obedience to God in order to please Him was directed to each family member. We enjoyed the explanation of the original words that Bible writers used when speaking about obedience. How important to recognize different levels of rightful authority and willingly comply to them. Peace and unity are maintained in the family arrangement when submission is shown on the part of the wife and children. The husband that manifests love toward his family will receive the respect and honor due him as head of the household. Then within the congregation, a recognisharing it's 'good news' with others. Elders showed how they helped congregation members to be responsive and heed with readiness scriptural principles for daily living. Practical counsel on being reasonable toward viewpoints of those in the medical field were much appreciated. Also we were glad to see fifteen new ones baptized."

A high attendance was seen for the Public Address entitled: "To Whom Does the Obedience of the People Belong," when 1059 listened to E.R. Brandt, district overseer, discuss how we must recognize the exalted heavenly Kingship of our Lord Jesus Christ and obey him to the glory of the Universal Sovereign Jehovah God.

Summer Reading Program To Begin

Registration for the 1980 Summer Reading Program will be June 2, Mrs. Elsie McGee, Librarian, announced. At the Haskell County Library, the Reading Program has been an annual affair for many years.

Each child has his own reading log to fill out-which will be left in the library this summer-and as he or she reads and returns a book the title will be recorded in the log. Each child who fills out his log, reads a minimum of 9 books and records them, will receive a certificate at the end of August. On that date will be a special program-but more about that later.

Besides all the marvelous books available just for the asking, there'll be free decorative book marks.

So come on in--the theme this year is "Sports Splash" by the way--and have an interesting and absorbing summer, says Mrs. McGee.

Trial Work Period For Disabled Persons

"Many people who are drawing social security disability benefits can return to work on a trial basis without affecting their benefit payments," Glyn Hammons, manager of the Abilene social security office, said recently.

The law provides for a 9 month trial work period for those people drawing disability whose medical condition is not expected to improve. This allows the disabled person to test his ability to work for a total of 9 months without affecting his social security check. Any month in which a disabled person earns $75 or works more than 15 hours in self-employment counts as one of the 9 months.

When the disabled person has worked a total of 9 months, the work will be evaluated if he continues working. If the work is substantial, benefits will stop 3 months after the 9th month of work. If the work is not substantial, benefits will continue.

"The trial work period does not apply to all people drawing disability," he cautioned. "The only way to be sure is to contact your social security office."

"People drawing disability benefits need to notify social security immediately if they start or stop work," Hammons concluded.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin E. Frierson are proud to announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Suzanne, to Mr. Forest Naylor.

The couple will be married July 19, 1980 in the First Baptist Church of Haskell. The bride-elect is a recent graduate of the University of Texas at Arlington. The prospective bridegroom is Operations Manager for McKessons Wine and Spirits. They will reside in Fort Worth.

Congressional Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free..."

The United States is a nation of immigrants and those lines engraved on the Statue of Liberty fail to stir only a few of us whose forebears came to this Country looking for personal freedom and economic advancement.

But, the argument that "as immigrants ourselves, we cannot restrict the flow of other immigrants to this country" just does not realistically apply today. Refugee laws enacted in the past did not — could not — foresee the massive influx of immigrants possible during this period of our history. A land that once cried out for people has rapidly become populated to the point that we can foresee the possibility of our borders bursting at the seams. We are no longer an adolescent nation straining to grow, but one that has grown to maturity and as an adult, must balance our emotions with realism.

The chaos created by the Cuban influx has been an emotional one. And one which we must now, painfully, face with realism. If we were to react emotionally, we would throw our borders and shores open to all. To react with maturity requires much more careful thought.

The President has ordered an immediate halt to the small boat sealift from Cuba and has announced that the U.S. is prepared to start an airlift or sealift if Castro would accept the plan. Castro, however, rejected the proposal and seems determined to create more problems. As a nation, in control of its own destiny, we cannot allow these actions by a foreign dictator to return us to policy dictated solely by emotionalism.

We must (by fair and reasonable means) limit the number of refugees from Cuba entering our Country. While I am very sympathetic to their needs, I believe that our nation cannot afford to allow a free flow of refugees in the country. We cannot forget that at present there are over 1 million other would-be refugees who are on waiting lists to enter this country legally. And all who enter must be absorbed into the economy in a manner which will not cause further domestic economic problems nor add to the already overburdened taxpayers' responsibilities.

Some mechanism must be devised within our immigration laws to see that this is accomplished in a fair and equitable manner for those wishing to immigrate from all areas, not just Cuba. As a state sharing a border with Mexico, for instance, we are perhaps more aware than most of the needs for a controlled policy allowing immigration.

Efforts to improve and revise our immigration laws have been undertaken in Congress several times in the past few years. Each time the House approved a new proposal, however, the Senate Judiciary Committee rejected it. In my view, Congress must accept its share of the blame for the situation at hand.

Hopefully, we can begin to strengthen our immigration and refugee laws to prevent another situation like this from occurring again.

It is important to remember, especially at a time when U.S. citizens are becoming increasingly critical of the way this country is run, that there are countless numbers in less fortunate countries who are willing to risk their lives just to reach our shores. That realization should be humbling to every American.

BY GINA JENNINGS

This typewriter has been running for two hours...and these are the only words that have come out so far. I believe it's called writer's block and it can be caused by several things. It can evolve from utter boredom or paralyzing fear.

The past week at the Free Press could hardly be described as boring, so I must attribute my problem to simple paranoid fear.

I am afraid of saying anything that could in any way be construed as critical—since I believe there has been enough of that to spare recently. I am equally afraid of being on the other side of that criticism. And one thing is assured: when a large number of people focus attention on your activities, you may be certain at least half of those people will be able to find something dreadfully wrong with your performance.

Forgive me, but my inclination is to crawl beneath my desk and peer out through the wooden legs of my chair until the coast is clear. But that would be a betrayal of my early training in optimism... Remember that antiquated word? It denotes an underlying belief that people, for the most part, are doing the best they can and that the problems we face will, if we work together, eventually be solved.

Nevermind that scrape on my back where I collided with the drawer while unfolding my 5'7" frame from beneath the desk. I will wipe the dust from my jeans and the perspiration from my palms and tell the folks what a "City girl" turned Haskellite has found to be true.

When our family left a larger city two years ago, we were not looking for better job opportunities or a lower cost of living. We were looking for a happier, healthier environment to raise our family. We wanted to find a place for ourselves and our children where people still cared about each other. We wanted to be a part of a true community. We chose to come to Haskell. And after two years, I believe we were (for once) absolutely right.

Although the events of the past few weeks are alarming to all of us, one thing remains clear. The frustration so often experienced in trying to control such destructive activities by those in large cities will not be felt in Haskell. Haskell lacks one ingredient necessary for the triumph of a criminal minority. What Haskell does not have that can be found in large cities throughout the country is the "Great SILENT Majority."

Perhaps only one who has spent most of her life in the big city realizes how terrific it is that people care when public property is abused, people care when the safety of their neighbors is threatened...people care and are not silent.

Now, before everyone stands up to take a bow, I must admit that there could be some improvement in the vocalizations of our beloved majority.

I have often wondered, if the telescoping eye of public scrutiny were reversed, and the "Watchers" became the "Watchees" which of us would escape a painful amount of criticism. Or if the solutions (which we all seem to have) we propose so adamantly were accepted on the condition that we, personally, would have to accept sole responsibility for all the consequences of those solutions after they were effected...Which of us would be quite so sure we had the answer after all?

I tend to believe that if the weight of decision fell on our shoulders alone, we would suddenly be less confident. Most of us are not ready to face the scathing criticism that would be rained upon us if we failed to succeed—or failed to succeed quickly enough.

What I am saying is not that none of us has any good suggestions to make. Quite the contrary, all of us who care can contribute to the solution of the problems. And if we use our collective heads, we can avoid weakening our positions by dividing ourselves into factions and using up our energy blaming each other. I hate to be trite, but there is an old saying, "United we stand, divided we fall..." Perhaps we can refocus for a moment. Perhaps we can be grateful that if we have to face this problem, we are facing it here, in Haskell; that we are a community close enough to unite in our efforts; that we care enough about each other to offer all the information, encouragement and physical aid we can to those officials saddled with the responsibility of protecting our community.

I believe we can be proud, even now, of fellow citizens who stand together with the law and those who are its administrators in a united front.

This is the kind of support and encouragement I personally have come to respect in Haskell. And this is the kind of attitude that will set us apart—making us to succeed where others fail.

International Students Available To Attend Texas High Schools

Share American football, apple pie, hot dogs and other Texas customs with an international student for the coming school year. In late summer, a group of Youth for Understanding exchange students from 25 countries will be arriving for a year's home stay and attendance at our local high schools.

Opportunities still exist for families who are interested in opening their home to a teenager from another part of the world. Students are conversant in English and are looking forward to the experience of living with an American family. Host families provide room and board, and the same care and guidance they would give to their own children. The exchange student is responsible for his or her own personal expenses, spending money, and insurance. They are to be treated as any other member of the family.

Youth for Understanding is a non-profit educational organization which cooperates with and receives an annual grant from the U.S. Department of State. It is dedicated to fostering greater international understanding by making it possible for young people to have an overseas family living experience. For information, contact Lois Perna, 3563 Colgate, Irving, Texas 75062, 214-256-1105.

The camp is open to all girls 10 years of age or above, and the cost will be $150 per camper. Team rates will also be available.
