

Sheriff's Office Under Investigation

BY DON COMEDY
Free Press Editor

Independent research by the Haskell Free Press has revealed an investigation of the Haskell County Sheriff's office.

Several independent sources have confirmed the investigation and both the District Attorney and Sheriff have been asked to comment on the investigation.

Sources who have been questioned in the investigation told the Free Press that the investigation includes allegations concerning various aspects of the Sheriff's office.

District Attorney Joseph Thigpen confirmed the investigation and said, "The investigation is being handled by qualified investigators from outside Haskell County."

Sheriff G. T. Garrett refused to comment.

During the past two weeks, at least three individuals have participated in the investigation. The investigation apparently started early last week and was still underway at press time Wednesday.

The investigators were not available for comment. Individuals questioned by the investigators have told the Free Press that the investigation is apparently covering both the professional performance of the Sheriff as well as the financial records of the Sheriff's office.

The success of last Friday's town meeting was apparent to most before the meeting ever started.

A meeting of any kind attended by 250 concerned people is destined to be successful.

Two very vital aspects of solving drug abuse in any community occurred during the meeting. The aspects of education and communication.

The information presented by Dr. Frank Cadenhead, Jerry Jennings, Bill Blakley and Bob Baker was vital to the success of the meeting.

I extend my personal thanks to these four individuals for agreeing to participate on the panel and doing such an excellent job in their presentations.

A vote of appreciation also is due to Joseph Thigpen, Myron Baird, Pat Hale and Ricki Russell for their comments during the meeting.

As individuals the education and communication steps will accomplish more to solve the problem than anything else we can do.

Tell your friends what you learned at the meeting and when the time comes, do what you know is right.

Capacity Crowd Attends Meeting

Town Meeting Attended By Over 250 Residents

About 250 Haskell residents took a giant step last Friday toward solving a drug and alcohol abuse problem by attending a town meeting.

Dr. Frank Cadenhead started the panel discussion with an explanation of various drugs and the problems caused by their abuse.

Dr. Cadenhead stated that, "Drugs are all around us and most are used properly. It is the people who use drugs for the wrong reasons we are concerned with tonight."

Dr. Cadenhead stated that tobacco, alcohol and marijuana are the three most commonly abused drugs. He told the audience that tobacco is the nation's most physically damaging drug and that alcohol causes more deaths in the U.S. each year than cancer.

Research during the past few years has revealed new information about marijuana according to Dr. Cadenhead.

Proof is now available that the drug causes hearing loss, sight problems, heart and lung ailments and chromosome abnormalities.

Hallucinogens, inhalants, stimulants, and depressants were also explained by Dr. Cadenhead.

Jerry Jennings explained the services offered by the Tri-County Clinic and explained that drug and alcohol abuse affects all ages and all social groups.

Addressing the use of drugs in young people, Jennings told the audience that the time had come to quit overprotecting our children. He encouraged parents to let their children suffer the consequences for their actions instead of applying political pressure to prevent their being punished.

Haskell principal Bill Blakley discussed the increase use of drugs by High School students and emphasized the need to address a growing problem.

Bob Baker discussed several legal aspects of drug cases and talked of the use of drugs on a national level.

During a question and answer session, rumor and gossip linking local businessmen and local residents with airplanes to the drug problem was discussed and District Attorney Joseph Thigpen stated that no information connecting any businessman with drugs had been received by his office.

Dr. Cadenhead and Baker brought hand out materials to the meeting and requested that the following address be printed where more literature is available: Texas Department of Community Affairs, Drug Abuse Prevention Division, P. O. Box 13166, Capital Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Symptoms to Look for When Suspecting Drug Use

(Note: the individual should display more than merely one symptom when beginning to experiment with drugs—a physical impairment can cause many of the symptoms described below.)

- Change from active, normally competitive interest to passivity and withdrawal.
- Diminished drive.
- Reduced ambition.
- A shortened attention span.
- Impaired communicative skills—slurred words, inability to finish a sentence.
- Mystical thinking.
- A significant drop in the quality of schoolwork.
- Reduced ability to think sequentially, to solve hard problems.
- Deterioration in judgement and short-term memory.
- Distinct lessening in accustomed family warmth.
- Pale face, imprecise eye movements, red eyes.
- Neglectful of usually neat appearance.
- Strongly inappropriate overreaction to even mild criticism.
- Secretiveness about money, disappearance of money from house.
- Physical evidence: smell of marijuana—like burning rope—in the child's room, on his clothes; butt of marijuana cigarette; seeds or leaves in coat pockets; rolling papers or pipes in the closet or room; bottles of eyedrops, room deodorizers, incense, breath fresheners, things to clean up; a soft drink or oil can with a top which screws off, used as stash for drugs.

Softball Tournament Scheduled July 13-14

For all you men who love to play the field—infield or outfield that is—the Haskell Girls Athletic Association is sponsoring a double elimination softball tournament July 13-14.

The 3-2 tournament will be held at Haskell with teams from many areas invited to join the competition, according to Haskell Girls Basketball Coach Bobby Busby.

Entry deadline will be July 7th and will be limited to the first 25 teams who sign up. Entry fee for the tournament will be $60.00.

Trophies will be given to first, second and third place winners as well as first place individual trophies.

Those interested in playing in the tournament should call Coach Busby at 864-3684 or Cam Klose at 864-3241.

Profile of the Individual Least Vulnerable to Drug Use

- Strong family in which there is a clear policy on drug use and personal conduct.
- Strong religious conviction on the part of the individual.
- Individual is an independent thinker, not easily swayed by group or peer pressure.
- Parents of the individual know the parents of his friends.
- Parents stay in contact with one another to establish reasonable standards of behavior for the group.
- All the parents take a very clear position against drug use, and set a good example in their personal use of liquor and drugs—including the pills in the medicine cabinet.
- Individual frequently has friends come to the home and the behavior of the individual and his friends is open and normal.
- Individual is busy, productive, pursuing a number of athletic, academic and personal interests.

In summary, the individual is secure, productive, knows who he is and what he stands for and has an overall good feeling about himself.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

It has been said that "A journey of a thousand miles begins with the first step." What a pleasure it was to see some 250 to 300 people at the town meeting this past Friday night, even if it did concern some unpleasant subjects. I really believe this was the first step, recognition of the drug and alcohol abuse problem in Haskell, in that long journey toward solution of these problems.

I certainly commend and appreciate you, Don, for helping organize this meeting, to those panel members, Dr. Frank Cadenhead, Bill Blakely, Bob Baker, and Jerry Jennings. The meeting was very well planned, quite informative in nature, and should have awakened the citizens of Haskell to a very real problem, and to the potential dangers involved in drug and alcohol abuse.

The question and answer period was quite informative in many areas, and those who stayed I feel were well informed in the progress being made in these areas. Concerning the drug and alcohol problems, and other problems in the city and county. The problems are real, solutions are varied and many, but we can and must solve them.

As the meeting grew to a close, the question was asked, "Where do we go from here?" We citizens of Haskell and Haskell County are much like Alice in Wonderland, who, in the fairy tale, came upon the Cheshire cat, and asked "Which way do I go from here," to which the Cheshire replied, "It all depends on where you want to go," and Alice in confusion answered, "I really don't know where I want to go" to which the wise old Cheshire, in his infinite wisdom, said, "Then it really doesn't matter which way you go!" It really does matter which way we go, and where we go, and that we know how we are going to get there.

I have thought and dreamed, and planned, and quizzed many people for some time about a planning group for our citizens, a group to sit down and brainstorm once a week, or every other week, or at least monthly. This group should include every civic, social, fraternal, governmental, and educational entity in Haskell County. If two heads are better than one, think what such a group could do, working together, toward solving many of our problems. This can be a reality; it has happened so many times before, in so many places, and I really believe it would be successful in Haskell and in Haskell County.

Together we can solve our myriad problems, but only together. By working together, analyzing our problems, and going to work on them, instead of talking about them, can they be resolved. We have made that important first step, in that journey of a thousand miles, but you don't get there immediately. You must walk one mile one thousand times to get to your destination. The road is rough, the journey is hard, the problems are many, and time is short, but we must not quit until we have seen the light at the end, the light of hope, the dream we all share of Haskell as the Best Place in the world to live.

Together We Can.
Sincerely,
Charles Thornhill

Rice Springs News

We want to begin this week by thanking everyone who helped us make our Father's Day Party on Friday, June 13, a very big success. Our thanks go to Hazel Letz, Glenda Brothers, Betty Sorrells, Arvella Moore, and Faye Simpson for furnishing the refreshments for it. I also thank Joan Meier for reading the poems, presenting the plaques, and helping me serve, Amy Sorrells for also helping serve, and Elena Weise for furnishing cups. It's people like these and others of you out there that sure help me do my job. I really appreciate all that each of you do.

We regret that Ida Phemister has had to enter the Haskell hospital again, but we hope she is much better and able to come back to the home by the time this is read. Hazel Branch was also a patient in the hospital, but we are glad to report that she is back at the home and is feeling well enough to be up and about. Other of our residents have not been feeling too well, but we hope they are improved very soon.

We were happy to welcome another new resident to the home since I last wrote. She is Sarah Elizabeth Harris of Rochester. We know that we are going to enjoy having her as a part of the Rice Springs family and we hope she will soon feel the same about us.

Viet Vets Urged To Repay Debts

Over the past few years, the Veterans Administration has reported a large number of overpayment cases involving GI Bill benefits paid to veterans of the Vietnam Era. According to C.H. Herren, Service Officer for Haskell County, some of the veterans owing the Government have chosen to ignore communications relating to the debts.

After administrative efforts were made to obtain repayment of these debts, the VA declared many of them as uncollectible. The VA has now been instructed to renew and increase its efforts to recover the sizeable amount that is owed to the Government by these veterans. The VA District Counsels in each VA Regional Office have been told to file suit in all cases where a veteran has failed to respond to the demand letters or has otherwise failed to pay his debt. When it is necessary to file a suit, the court will be asked to award interest and court costs as well as the amount of the original debt. This particular program will include overpayment debts of up to $600. The overpayment debts of $600 or more will continue to be referred to the U.S. Justice Department for action.

The VA is authorized to accept certain compromises where a severe hardship might result. Any such compromise must, however, be made by the VA District Counsel through negotiation direct with the veteran. Any veteran owing one of these debts should submit, in writing, an offer of compromise to reduce the amount owed. Any such offer should be accompanied by a check or money order in the amount of the offer. If the offer includes deferred payments, the veteran must execute a promissory note for the deferred installments. If a veteran enters into an agreement for monthly payments, it is important that he make them on time. If he fails to make the agreed upon payments, the VA will be notified and legal action will be initiated immediately.

Veterans involved in these overpayment cases should communicate with the VA immediately, or else they will be faced with having to go to Federal court in the very near future. Additional information and assistance may be obtained by visiting the local Veterans Service Officer.

Tips For Successful Laundering

BY LOU GILLY
County Extension Agent

Successful laundering begins before the clothes go into the washer, because the procedures used have a direct effect on the way they will look and wear. To prepare clothes for washing, empty and turn pockets inside out...turn down pant cuffs and brush out any dust or lint...fasten closures, especially zippers...remove unwashable trims...tie strings and fasten attached belts...make necessary repairs...pretreat heavily soiled or stained articles as needed.

Sorting clothes also can eliminate many laundering problems. Generally, they should be separated into whites, darks, and medium and bright colors. (To test a new colored item for colorfastness, wash it separately the first time. If no color is lost in the wash or rinse water, then the garment can be washed with similar items the next time.) Delicate items, regardless of color—loosely knit or woven fabrics and sheers, for example—require gentle care. Do not wash them with heavily soiled items. Lint-producing clothes, such as Terry robes and chenille spreads, should be separated from lint-receiving fabrics like corduroy, permanent press and man-made fabrics. If colorfastness and lint are not an issue, just remember to sort clothes into groups that require the same water temperature, wash action and amount of wash time.

Clothes must move freely in a washer for good cleaning, so load loosely. Mix large and small items in a regular load. Temperature of the wash water is another consideration. Hot water (approximately 130 F) is desirable for whites, heavily soiled clothes and diapers; warm water (90F-100F) for the majority of wash loads; and cold water (70F-80F) for delicate, color-sensitive and lightly soiled fabrics. Deciding which wash temperatures will produce acceptable results is up to each individual, but the use of cold rinses for all loads will help to reduce energy costs.

As a rule, items that can be washed together also can be dried together. If an automatic dryer is used, be sure the temperature is right for the fabric. Be careful not to overload the dryer, as this will lessen its efficiency, prolong drying time, and result in uneven drying. Immediately remove garments from the dryer—especially no-iron and permanent press items—to prevent excessive wrinkling. Iron or press articles according to manufacturer's instructions.

LAUNDRY PRODUCTS...

Your choice of these will depend upon the kind of water and laundry equipment available, as well as the fabrics to be washed and their condition. It also will depend on the results you desire. Always read the label to determine the purpose for which the product was developed, then follow instructions for its use.

*SOAPS. These are effective in soft or softened water, for they combine with minerals in hard water to form lime soap or soap curd. Soaps come in bar, granular and flake forms; the light-duty types are for delicate fabrics, hand washing, and light soil, and the heavy-duty or all-purpose soaps are for all kinds of family laundry. *DETERGENTS. These cleaning products are composed of surface-active agents and other ingredients which retain cleaning power even in hard water. They come in two types—light-duty and all-purpose. The all-purpose products are further divided into high and low (controlled) sudsers. Detergents come in granular, liquid or tablet form. Read and follow package directions for best results.

*PREWASH SOIL AND STAIN REMOVERS. They come in spray, liquid and stick form. Used before laundering, they are especially effective on permanent press and man-made fabrics. Check labels for use directions and the kinds of stains they can best remove. *WATER CONDITIONERS. When water is hard, these can be added to the wash and/or the rinse water for more satisfactory results. There are two types—non-precipitating and precipitating. *FABRIC SOFTENERS. These make fabrics soft, fluffy and less likely to wrinkle. They also reduce static cling in synthetics and make ironing easier. Depending on the type, softeners can be added either during the wash cycle, rinse cycle or to the dryer.

*STARCH. This provides a crisp, smooth finish and may retard soiling, but it is not needed for many of today's fabrics and finishes. Starch comes in dry liquid or spray forms. Fabric finishes are well suited for man-made fabrics because they provide body without stiffness.

*ENZIME PRESOAKS. Enzyme products are used for soaking before washing. They help in loosening heavy soil or difficult protein-and starch-type stains such as blood, gravy, baby formula, chocolate and grass. Presoaks should not be used with chlorine bleach since enzymes will be deactivated.

*BLEACH. There are two kinds, chlorine and oxygen, which come in liquid and powdered form. Both types help to remove certain stains and to whiten clothes; chlorine bleach also disinfects and deodorizes. Oxygen-type bleaches are safe for all washable fabrics; chlorine bleach should not be used on wool, silk, mohair and spandex. *DETERGENT BOOSTERS. The different types available are designed to add to the performance of detergents. They help to whiten and brighten fabrics and remove certain stains.

DRYCLEANING...Garments that require drycleaning may be sent to a professional drycleaner or taken to a coin-operated drycleaning center. Whichever you prefer, clean garments before they become heavily soiled and stains set. Empty pockets, fasten closures, make repairs and remove trim that cannot be drycleaned.

*PROFESSIONAL DRYCLEANERS. They have the knowledge, skill and equipment for effective spot removal, cleaning and pressing. In addition, cleaners may offer services such as dyeing, alterations and repairs; fur, leather and suede cleaning; pick-up and delivery; and storage. You can help the cleaner do the best possible job by informing him of special care instructions, pointing out location and cause of stains, and allowing him enough time to give the garments proper attention. *SELF-SERVICE OR COIN-OPERATED DRYCLEANING MACHINES offer some economy and speed, but garments may not receive the special care needed, and errors can be costly! Remember too that the largest expense in drycleaning is the pressing, and some clothing may require professional pressing afterwards. In coin-operated drycleaning, all garments are usually cleaned for the same length of time and with the same process. Prepare the clothes as you would for washing. Clean light colored items separately from dark, and delicate articles separately from heavy clothing. If the garments are large and bulky, load them loosely, so there is ample space for tumbling and fluffing. Remember that fuzzy fabrics may give off lint. Turn sweaters and other knitwear inside out. Turn pockets and cuffs inside out and brush out loose lint and dirt. Remove articles from the machine immediately after cleaning and drying and hang to prevent wrinkling. Air clothing thoroughly before wearing. Most coin-operated centers cannot provide the special care needed to handle suedes, leathers, furs, pillows and items made of rubber and plastic.

Quarter Horse Show Scheduled At TCR

The open youth activities of the Quarter Horse Show will debut the 50th anniversary of the Texas Cowboy Reunion in Stamford July 2-5.

Bright and early, 7 a.m., on July 2 will be the first showing of two days of perhaps the finest horse flesh in America. The Texas Cowboy Reunion, which gave the cowhands a chance to pit their skill against each other, was an ideal occasion for them to show off their horses.

Since the ranges of Texas were open with no fences, the horse often was the cowboy's most loved and proudest possession, if not his best friend.

For years the ideal cow horse was the quarter horse, known for his ability to maneuver and to attain great speed for short distances. The quarter horse had the ability to live off the land and was a mixture of Spanish and English breeds which were already called the American Quarter Horse by the year 1665. The animal took its name from its ability to run a fast quarter mile.

It was 10 years after the first Cowboy Reunion in Stamford before plans were set in motion for the First Official American Quarter Horse Show. First chairman of the 1940 show was A.M.G. "Swede" Swenson, whose white Stetson would later hang in the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

On July 3, an American Quarter Horse Association Halter Class will begin at 8 a.m., followed by an A.Q.H.A. Performance Class at 10:30 a.m.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm is chairman of the horse show this year.

Little League News

BY PAUNEE GRUPE

Well, I really messed up on last week's scores. I put the Bears over the Red Horses and it was the other way around. Sorry you guys. Also I did not have a score on the Cubs/Rams game. It was Cubs 5, Rams 15.

The Tigers have been playing some very good ball games. There were too many doubles to mention. Good playing Tigers.

The game between the Hawks and Rams was probably one of the most exciting games of the season and I know it was the longest. The game, lasting 8 innings, was a thriller to the very end. Doug Starr's double won the game for the Hawks. Patrick Perez and Tommy Hairgrove, Hawks, both got triples. Patrick Perez did a great job pitching in six innings. B.J. Mitchell, Rams, hit a triple. Joey Swinney, Rams, did a fine job catching and batting.

There was a homerun hit by Felipe Arredondo, Cubs in Thursday's game. Caycee Reed, Hawks, hit a triple and a double. Julio Segura and Tommy Hairgrove, Hawks, both hit triples.

Bruce Geilhausen, Cubs, hit a triple and a double this week.

In the minor league we have a tie for first place right now. Would you believe that it is between the Bad News Bears and the Red Horses. (See guys, the Bears came from last place last year to a tie for first this year. And they said it couldn't be done.) Bo Watson, Kevin Mitchell, Derrick Billington, Chan Guess, and Paul Harvey all hit triples this week. Derrick Billington put one across the fence but unfortunately it was a foul...

On Tuesday the Cats beat the Crows, putting the Cats in 3rd place and the Crows in 4th. Both teams were playing short handed. The Cats had only 8 players and the Crows 7, but it was still an exciting game. Noah Gonzales, Cats, hit a double. Joe Comacho, Crows, hit a double, and Rene Garcia, Crows, hit a triple. Marc Grupe, Crows hit 2 doubles.

On Friday, The Red Horses played a great game. Dan Benton did a super job as catcher. Stoney Trussell, Ray Gonzales, Raul Baiza and Michael Rodriguez did a fine job playing the infield. Ray Gonzales, hit a double and an infield homerun. Cole Larned hit an infield homerun, Dan Benton and Raul Baiza both hit triples. On the Crows, Marc Grupe hit an infield homerun and a triple.

It is going to be exciting to see who comes out first in the minors this year. Only one more week of play and then we'll know.

Care Urged During Summer Boating Trips

Thousands of people will be sailing full speed ahead into danger this summer as skippers and passengers on American's growing armada of pleasure boats.

With an estimated 50 million people aboard the nearly 10 million canoes, rowboats, motorboats, sailboats, cruisers and other craft, safety officials are becoming increasingly concerned about those who set forth with inadequate knowledge of boat operation, rules of the waterways, and safety and life saving procedures.

As the fleet of pleasure craft increases each year the number of accidents, deaths and injuries rises. This season there probably will be more than 2,000 deaths and possibly two or three times that many reported injuries on the water costing more than $15 million in property damage—most of which might be prevented through education and precautions.

A study of boating accidents and their causes made by accident and safety researchers at the Combined American Insurance Company found that most mishaps on the water result from capsizing, with most of those who are lost having failed to wear personal floating devices (PFDs) that should be provided for every passenger on every pleasure boat.

The capsizings in turn may be caused by overloading, improper loading, improper navigational failures in storms. Also, if an engine is too large for a vessel, the danger of overturning is much greater.

The United States Coast Guard, Department of Transportation, National Safety Council, American Red Cross, Outdoor Boating Club of America, American Boat and Yacht Council and Boys Clubs of America are all campaigning to increase knowledge of boating and an awareness of the dangers involved.

Combined American Insurance Company joins in advocating these basic safety rules:

- Know your boat. Follow the manufacturer's recommendations. Get instruction from the Coast Guard or the Red Cross on how to operate your boat and the rules of navigation and marine courtesy.
- Before setting out on your first boat ride, practice in shallow, smooth water with an experienced teacher, whom you can find through the Coast Guard or Red Cross.
- Always check weather forecasts before deciding to set out and always make sure that someone on shore knows where you are going and when you expect to return. Take extra fuel, even if it means you have to leave a passenger behind.
- Make sure that your vessel is sound, fully equipped and suitable for the trip. Every person aboard should have a task to perform and at least one in addition to the skipper should know how to operate the boat and perform life-saving and first-aid.
- Make sure there is a flotation device for everyone aboard and that all children and nonswimmers wear them at all times. Carry a flotation cushion if you can.
- Maintain a lookout for rocks, reefs and other objects and keep clear of other boats, large or small, swimmers and water skiers. Maneuver through anchorages at minimum speed. When confronted with the swelling wakes of other vessels, sail into them at low speed.
- Move about on the boat very carefully, especially in a small craft. Ban all horseplay. Wait to have your "happy hour" after you get back on land.

If you want to have your boat inspected or learn more about how to handle it, call the nearest U.S. Coast Guard station or Red Cross chapter. If they cannot provide the assistance you need, they can advise you where to get it.

"No matter how well designed and built your boat may be, if you put it in the wrong water or exceed the speed limits or the loading capacity for which the craft was designed, you are going to make it unsafe," warned Combined boating experts. "It's great to be able to paddle your own canoe, as the saying goes, but it's best to let an experienced boater show you how first."

Degree Program Trains Students For Public Work

COLLEGE STATION — A new degree program has been developed at Texas A&M University to provide public agencies with the kind of employees they need.

Graduates of the new public administration program will be qualified to hold positions as municipal administrators, members of research teams for city staffs or city councils, personnel management assistants and many more, says Dr. Sam Kilpatrick, head of the Department of Political Science.

Most of the positions will be beginning to mid-level management jobs for local, state and federal governments, he said.

College News

When I insured my house, I was Mr. Howe. When I had a claim, I was Mr. 203-92176.

Not when you deal with an Independent Insurance Agent.

There are two types of insurance agents you can deal with. A one-company agent who works directly for one insurance company. Or an Independent Insurance Agent who represents several insurance companies.

If you deal with a one-company agent, he's probably not the person you talk to when you have a claim. Most one-company agents have nothing to do with the claims process. So if you have a claim, it's between you and the adjuster.

Your Independent Insurance Agent doesn't do business that way. He's right there ready to serve you when you have a claim... helping you reach a fair settlement as quickly as possible.

And since your Independent Insurance Agent can offer you policies from several different companies, he can choose the policy that's just right for you. At the right price. Whether you need homeowners, auto, life or business insurance.

We treat you like a person. Not a number.

Local Church Represented Tick Outbreak Expected This Summer

During Alaskan Tour

Chugiak-Eagle River, Alaska residents found out just what a Texas stampede really was recently. Except instead of the stampeding herd being in the form of cattle, they were in the form of teenagers. Thirty of them at last count.

The group came from northern Texas to the King's Way Assembly of God Church in Eagle River, Alaska, as part of a program called Ambassadors in Mission (AIM). Their mission started Saturday, June 7, and concluded Tuesday, June 17, and was designed to complete phase II of a program that started last year.

The 30 young people, along with three adults who accompanied them, started a "launch program" that had them going from door to door to urge area residents to attend services at the new church.

Phase I of the program saw a youth group come last year to help build the church, according to King's Way pastor, Patrick Donadio.

Donadio said that the youth group was featured at services where they presented special music and spoke for congregations. The three adults in charge of the herd from Texas were Ray Griffith, Gary Everett and Tuyla Stanford.

The youth group was from one of the four Assembly of God districts in Texas. Alaska is made up of one district and consists of 70 different churches. The youths from Alaska have traveled to places as far away as Columbia and Honduras as part of their AIM program.

The teenagers in the AIM program, which was started 20 years ago, raise all of the money they need for traveling and building expenses. Last year the national mission outreach program raised $2.3 million, according to the pastor.

Jonathan Wilson, of Haskell, was one of the Texas youth who visited Alaska during the AIM program.

This summer Texans should engage in a new outdoor pastime: tick picking. With Rocky Mountain spotted fever appearing in the state, tick removal is even more important than just wanting to get rid of the pests. Some types of ticks can spread the fever which killed a four year old Central Texas boy early this summer, although the disease only occasionally is fatal, the Texas Medical Association says.

Not all types of ticks carry the fever and not all ticks who carry it do so, but tick picking is an easy way to be sure you're safe. It needs to be done anyway to keep from carrying them home where they might drop off in the house. The trick is to get ticks before they bite. Ticks usually tour the victim for about four hours before settling in for a snack so you have a chance to get them off easily if you check every four hours.

Ticks particularly like to dine in areas where clothing is snug, such as skin near waistbands and sock tops. However, they will munch anywhere so a thorough body inspection is recommended. Remember to check hair line, ears and areas covered by underwear.

Once a tick settles in, it is easy to pull it off but leave the head still embedded, which sometimes can become infected. There are several methods for tick removal. The most controversial, and the easiest, is to pull the tick off carefully and slowly, using a cloth, tissue or tweezers to keep from touching the tick directly since accidentally crushing and touching a tick may spread disease, too. The controversy arises because some people think it is too easy to leave the head by merely pulling the tick off. Supporters say this method works quicker and better than other ways.

Other methods are designed to get the tick to evacuate on its own. One method is to give the tick a hot seat by holding a recently extinguished match very near it. Another way cuts off its air by applying a thick covering of petroleum jelly or some other substance and waiting about 15 minutes.

The family pet also should be inspected regularly for ticks since the ticks later may decide to have a human meal. Using an insecticide safe for pets may help decrease this problem.

Rocky Mountain spotted fever, the disease which makes ticks more unwelcome than usual, usually occurs in northeast Texas within 100 miles of the Oklahoma border. However, the fever ticks can show up in many areas.

From three to 12 days after being bitten by an infected tick, the victim develops headache, chills, muscular pains and feels exhausted. A few days after this miseries starts, a rash develops that is the telltale sign of Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Early treatment by a physician can help prevent serious consequences.

Letters To The Editor

(EDITORS NOTE: The Haskell Free Press will publish letters to the Editor dealing with any subject. All letters must be signed but names will be withheld by request. All letters are subject to editing for length and liability.)

Fellow Citizens,
Concerning the town meeting held last Friday night, June 20. In accordance to the question presented concerning the daily quantity of alcohol consumed to become an alcoholic, I would like to say this. Mr. Baird answered the question by stating that different amounts are needed by different people to achieve this result. I stated in my question that I had seen a panel discussion on the Today show and case history on one individual proved the 3 beers daily required by him, qualified him to be an alcoholic. Some panel members misunderstood the nature of my question and one panel member, Mr. Blakely, got such a charge from this, you'd think he was on the sidelines of the football field and his team had scored a touchdown. The meeting went well up until then, but things took a surprising turn and the serious issues at hand became humorous.

People, we need to realize we have several problems. This is not the only one. We have several issues at hand that need our deepest consideration and sincere discussion.

One of these is that people in our community in all capacities of leadership, from the schools, law enforcement bodies down to the home, need to assess their values. What examples are we projecting? Can people see that we are what we "say" we are? Do we live what we teach or are trying to enforce? Or, are we saying, "Don't do as I do, do as I say do."

When we do this, we don't have respect for ourselves, which causes the most harm, and our children coming up have no reason to respect authority. We must set the example first.

Let's follow the Christian principles we have been taught through the years and not be blinded by partiality and vanity. We should abide by God's laws and the laws of our land to keep freedom in our nation and our cities. This should be the utmost desire of our city and county officials.

Then, we as fellow citizens can back one another, pray together and love one another as God intended us to do. Sincere Thanks, Mozelle Riley

4) Indochinese have been responsible for a 400% increase in welfare in San Francisco and for a 100% increase statewide in California. Nationally, 40% of all Indochinese are on welfare.
5) San Francisco is one of the most expensive cities to live in. Indochinese have created an apartment shortage but they are insulated against the sharp increases in rent because welfare pays up to 90% of their rent. Bilingual education for the Indochinese children, now numbering 2,500 and increasing in the city by 14 per month, is another big expense for the taxpayer.
6) Already over 600,000 Indochinese are in America. Nearly 200,000 have moved to California and some 90,000 of them are collecting welfare. Over 80% are ethnic Chinese being kicked out by the Vietnamese who have long held a deep-seated hatred for all Chinese. They refer to them at the "Jews of Asia" because they buy up all the businesses and are traders and money changers. Still many are illiterate in their own language. Clothing Tips To Help Energize Wardrobe

County Extension Agent

Conserving energy and cutting utility costs by practicing wise clothing care methods such as being more conscious of routine laundry habits and energy saving procedures. The greatest savings can occur with reduced water temperatures for laundering. About 15% of the total amount of energy goes for heating water and in home laundry, 95% of the energy use is for heating water. Totally, heating water accounts for 3% of all U.S. energy usage! Energy consumption in doing home laundry can be reduced 50% by using warm water for washing and cold water for rinsing.

However, the general rule still holds true—use hotter water for the most difficult cleaning jobs or for sanitation. Warm water can be used on fabrics with greasy, oily stains by first pretreating and/or presoaking soiled areas. Since lower wash temperatures can lead to an increased bacteria count at the end of the wash cycle, use a disinfectant especially during flu or cold seasons or when infant clothing is part of the regular laundry. When using cold water wash temperatures, dissolve powdered detergents before use or use a liquid detergent or one formulated for cold water washes. Also, more detergent may be needed for effective cleaning.

Other energizing clothing care tips are:

• For washing:
1. Wash full loads of clothes unless the machine permits selection for load size. One full load requires less water than does two partial loads.
2. Select energy saving cycles (if available) such as soak, presoak or sud savers.

• For Drying:
1. Sort laundry by thickness for drying in an automatic dryer. Heavy, thick fabrics take longer.
2. Many garments made from synthetic fibers and those with wrinkle resistant finishes can be taken from the dryer after a few minutes while still damp. Finish drying on a hanger. Besides wasting energy, over drying can create problems such as static electricity, wrinkling or shrinkage.

3. Don't overload the dryer. Articles will dry faster and have fewer wrinkles if they aren't crowded. Use the cycle and temperature suitable for the load. Try to use the lowest temperature that will dry the garments in a reasonable length of time.

4. When there are several loads to dry, use the dryer continuously because a warmer dryer will shorten drying time.

5. Keep the lint filter on the dryer clean and the vent unclogged for the dryer to operate more efficiently.

6. Consider line drying some items such as towels, sheets and pillow cases and garments. If hung carefully (such as by waistbands, shirt tails or major support areas as shoulders) there will be little wrinkling.

• For Laundry Products:
1. Most laundry products contain petro-chemicals (energy users), so avoid wasting them. Read directions on all containers for the correct amount to use. The amount recommended is based on use in moderately hard water, an average size washing machine, moderately soiled clothes and normal size load. Use smaller amounts in soft water, small loads or for lightly soiled garments.

2. Avoid fabric softener build-up as this reduces fabric absorbency and comfort and re-laundering is necessary to remove build-up, which uses energy needlessly.

• For Irons:
1. Since it takes several minutes for an iron to cool, turn it off a few minutes before finished.

2. Press and iron garments consecutively one at a time to cut back on energy use to reheat the iron. (Irons use as much energy as ten 100 watt light bulbs.) For a lot of pressing or ironing, begin with items needing lower temperatures and build up to those needing higher temperatures, ending with those again needing lower temperatures.

3. For some fabrics and garment conditions, consider using steam because it removes wrinkles faster and at a lower temperature than a dry iron.

• Other:
1. Remove small and isolated spots and stains to cut down on the frequency of dry cleaning.

2. Choose garment with soil release finishes, especially those heavily soiled.

Proper care extends the life of clothing and cuts down on the need to replace them as often, thus, reducing the amount of energy needed to produce and care for your wardrobe. Carefully read recommended care labels. Proper laundering and drying procedures often eliminate or cut down on pressing needed.
