Our Freedom Safeguards Your Freedom

National Newspaper Week, October 12-18

Killing a messenger who brought bad news was a popular pastime of olden monarchs.

That custom is no longer practiced but other actions now threaten freedom of the press.

It is now common practice to condemn the press for reporting bad news and there is a feeling by some people that the press is responsible for most of the bad things that are reported.

Yet, the press was not responsible for the war in VietNam, Watergate, Abscam, or Brilab.

Many times during Watergate, two reporters from the Washington Post were harshly criticized for their stories. Without their reporting, the details of the entire Watergate incident would probably have never been known.

Watergate, like most other issues which cause criticism of the press, was a highly controversial subject.

During times of calm there is little criticism of the press because society is comfortable with the absence of bad news.

It is the times of storm when the press most comes under fire. Those are the same times when freedom of the press is most needed.

The ultimate goal of freedom of the press is to inform the public.

The awesome task of informing the public is many times just as unpleasant to the writer as it is to the reader.

Consider the impact on the two Watergate reporters when the full realization of what they had found became apparent.

During that time, criticism of the two reporters and the Washington Post flowed freely throughout the country. It was not until after the entire incident was almost over that full attention shifted from the press to the issue of Watergate.

Most people in this country have never known anything other than a free press. We take freedom of speech and freedom of the press for granted, much like we did clean air and cheap fuel.

Freedom of the press is under attack. However unintentional, that attack threatens the very concept of all our freedoms because a nation without a free press is a nation in tyranny.

Newspapers make mistakes and this one is no exception. It is our request that you support the concept of complete freedom of the press to insure your freedoms.

3,000th Phone Installed In Haskell

A milestone in Haskell's growth was reached in August, when the 3,000th telephone was installed. At the end of August, Haskell had 3,008 telephones, according to B. D. Drennan, Division Manager for General Telephone Company.

Drennan further commented that the company had 2,044 telephones in service at the end of 1970. "If our projections hold up, Haskell will have added about 1,000 additional telephones during the last 10 years," Drennan said.

"Although total telephones are important in recording the growth of a community, the real measure is in main line telephones, which more nearly represents the actual number of households or businesses served," Drennan said. Haskell now has 1,841 main line telephones, as compared to 1,518 in 1970. The Company anticipates that 2,165 main line telephones will be in service at the end of 1985.

Drennan said the Company has four employees assigned to the Haskell exchange. Three of the employees are responsible for the installation and repair of the telephone equipment outside, while one employee maintains the central office equipment.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN—Consumer Education Week, which began October 5 and ends October 11, gives each of us an opportunity to reflect on the adequacy of our consumer skills. Our skills are tested daily even though sometimes we are not aware of the test. Each time we purchase an item, each time we call a serviceman, each time we fill up with gasoline or have or have our automobiles serviced we are being tested. An informed consumer is one who looks for the best but is prepared for the worst. And we pass these tests of our consumer skills only when we know the consequences of each transaction.

This week and next I will devote this column to asking you some basic questions relating to everyday consumer transactions to give you an opportunity to find out for yourself how informed a consumer you are:

1. The dining room table you bought less than one month ago has a wobbly leg. You consult your sales contract and discover you purchased the table "as is." Does this mean the seller won't have to fix the leg?

ANS: When you buy an item "as is," the seller is not legally responsible for repairs needed later. To protect yourself, read contracts with an eye for "as is" clauses or other warranty disclaimers. If you want warranty protection, make sure the seller puts the promise to repair in writing.

2. You're shopping for a new TV to replace a 10 year old set. Can you compare warranties before deciding which model to buy?

ANS: Yes. Warranties are promises by manufacturers or sellers to stand behind their product. But different companies make very different promises. If the product costs more than $15, you have the right to read the warranty before you buy it.

3. Your new washing machine spills water on the floor. The dealer's mechanics have repaired it several times under the warranty, but it still is not working right. Your warranty runs out, and two weeks later it spills water again. Do you have to pay for the repairs now?

ANS: No. If you complained about the problem during the warranty period and it was not fixed properly, you're entitled to get it repaired. Your warranty rights do not run out for the problems you complained about during the warranty period.

4. Your credit card is lost or stolen and the card is used before you report it missing. You get a bill for $1,000 worth of goods you never purchased. What is the most you owe?

ANS: $50. If a credit card is lost or stolen and the card is used before you report it missing, the maximum you owe is $50. After you report the card missing, you are not liable for any purchases made by the unauthorized user.

5. You've lost your banking card which lets you deposit and withdraw funds from your account using a 24-hour teller machine. You report the card lost a week after discovering it missing. How much can you lose?

ANS: $500. If your banking card is lost or stolen, and you do not notify your bank within two business days after discovering it missing, you may lose as much as $500. If you notify the bank within two business days, your liability is limited to $50.

6. A debt collection agency keeps calling you at home about some bill you owe. You want desperately to pay the bill but you lost your job two months ago. Can you stop the collector from calling?

ANS: Yes. If you write the debt collector a letter saying "stop bothering me," the collector must stop calling. This does not erase your debt; you still owe the money.

7. There is a mistake on your monthly credit card bill. Should you write or call the company to correct the billing error?

ANS: Write a letter. While a telephone call can resolve problems quickly, you are not protected under the law unless you send the company a written notice of the error. Protect yourself with a telephone call and a letter.

Funny or Unfunny

(A digest of significant news items that failed to appear in most of the nation's press.)

POLITICIANS NEVER DIE, THEY JUST STEAL AWAY. This is election year, and no one is more aware of it than the politicians in Washington. In a mad scramble to get back to their districts and campaign, the congressmen have voted for stop-gap financing of all government agencies until after the November 4 election. This means there will, of necessity, be a lame-duck session to pass the all-important appropriations bills. In other words, defeated representatives and senators will still get to give away your money and the Senate can vote to give U.S. oil and land to Mexico (below). As one political wag put it, "God knows, anything can happen in a lame-duck session—and it probably will."

ANOTHER GIVEAWAY. Hollis D. Hedberg, in a letter to the editor of the New York "Times" (September 7), says, in part: "At a time when the U.S. should be making every effort to assure itself of domestic petroleum resources for the future, it is almost unbelievable to find it engaged in giving away some 25,000 square miles of potential...petroleum territory in the Gulf of Mexico. On May 4, 1978, the U.S. State Department (very quietly) signed a draft treaty with Mexico, in essence fixing boundary limits between the two countries in the Gulf of Mexico and in the Pacific. This draft treaty (again, very quietly) was approved...by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. This needless, irrevocable loss to the U.S. of a prospective deep-water petroleum area half the size of Louisiana may well take place before the country realizes what has happened." If the Senate votes on this during the upcoming lame-duck session, the giveaway is certain.

YOUR SENATOR WOULD LIKE TO HEAR FROM YOU.

Knight, Milliman Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

St. Mary's Catholic Church in Lafayette, La., was the setting on October 4th for the marriage of Miss Patricia Ann Milliman to Mark Edward Knight. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan "Cotton" Milliman, Sr. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Knight.

Rev. Albert J. Boumans and Dr. Walter M. Fox performed the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace designed on an A-line silhouette. The bodice was fashioned with a high sculptured neckline and sheer yolk etched with pearl encrusted Alencon lace. The back was enhanced with a similar sheer yolk and covered buttons. The long tapered sleeves were accented with Alencon lace motifs and lace formed points on her hands. Pearl encrusted motifs were noted throughout the A-line skirt which was encircled by pyramids of lace, which formed a cathedral length train. She wore a cathedral length veil of French illusion edged with Alencon lace and seed pearls attached to a lace cap. She carried an all-silk crescent bouquet of white roses, white honeysuckle, flowing ruffled fern with a touch of blue gypsophilia.

Miss Pamela Ann Milliman, twin sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of midnight blue chiffon. The tucked bodice was fashioned with a neckline and bishop sleeves. A venise lace collar and cuffs accented the neckline and sleeves with belted waist and full flowing skirt.

Bridesmaids were Miss Kelley Knight, sister of the groom, Mrs. Michael Todd, Mrs. Richard Chamberlain and Mrs. Rittie Wayne Milliman, sister-in-law of the bride. They were dressed identically to the maid of honor. The bridesmaids carried flowing silk bouquets of blue corn flowers, e'cru daisies, twin lillies and blue gypsophilia.

Mr. Eddie Knight, father of the groom was his best man. Groomsman were Mr. David Monju, Michael Todd, Bryan Knight, brother of the groom, Vic Milliman, brother of the bride. Ushers were Nation Milliman, Jr., Rittie Wayne Milliman, brothers of the bride and Tim Flynn.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Oakbourne Country Club.

The mother of the bride chose a dove grey gown. Imported Alencon lace bodice and long sleeves were re-embroidered with silver paillettes. The floor length, gathered skirt was of more taffeta, as was a pleated cumberbund, creating an Empire waistline. The groom's mother selected a dress in buff pewter georgette. The jeweled neckline, of elegant simplicity, flowed softly into a tulip skirt with a flounced ruffle. Cinching the waist was a tri-colored velvet and satin sash. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

Grandparents in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. R.W. Turnbow of Haskell, maternal grandparents of the bride and Mrs. O.M. Milliman of Rayne, La., Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Knight of Shreveport and Mrs. Joe Rinchuso, maternal grandmother of the groom, also of Shreveport. The groom's Great-Grandmother, Mrs. J.L. Rivers was unable to attend.

Members of the houseparty were Mmes. Warren Goodyear, Sam Bennett, Wilfred Milliman, Paul Azar, Sr., Johnnie Johnson, J.M. Motor, Lee Saxton, Malcolm Herbert, Robert Maxwell, Larry Hough, Bob Cristler, Vernon Moret, Jack Holt, August Trahan, Tom Dimmick, J.T. Owen and Grady Lewis. From Shreveport, Mrs. Bob Young, Sammy Rivers, Gary Lauter were also part of the houseparty as well as Mrs. Jerel Lifsey of Carencro. Miss Candy Kinney presided at the register.

Highlight of the reception was the Bride's Cake from Jacksboro, a six tier, divided by three lace trellis, decorated with cascades of mixed flowers in colors that matched the bridesmaids bouquets. On top of the four foot tall cake was a porcelain compote and cherub filled with pulled sugar forming a garland of flowers, flowing down to the bottom of the cake. Framing the cake was a lattice work arch. The refreshment tables were accented in fall arrangements in the bride's chosen colors.

A Rehearsal Dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Knight, parents of the groom, at the Elrose, a restored plantation home in Lafayette which dates back to the 1600's, and is used only for very special occasions.

Some 50 guests enjoyed the dinner which was served in two spacious dining rooms, decorated with fall flower arrangements.

For traveling to the Hawaiian Islands the bride chose a teal blue velvet, three piece suit. The two button blazer was accented with side vents and slanted pockets, slim skirt with pleat in the back. Complimenting the suit was a white silk blouse.

The bride is a graduate of Lafayette High School and attends U.S.L. The groom graduated from Lafayette High School and is also currently attending U.S.L. He is locally employed.

The couple will reside in Lafayette.

Prussic Acid Danger Increasing

Frost will be hitting Haskell county before long, and this could lead to prussic acid poisoning in livestock grazing certain pasture grasses and forages, points out Max Stapleton, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Although many plants contain the toxic material that causes poisoning, those causing the highest mortality in livestock when grazed after they have been frozen and wilted are Johnson and Sudan grasses and sorghum or hybrids of these.

The most dangerous time as far as the grazing of these plants is concerned is following frost when the plant material begins to wilt, emphasizes Stapleton. Livestock should not be allowed access to the wilted material until it has dried completely. This usually takes three or four days of good sunlight.

New plant growth usually becomes nontoxic and can be grazed within 10 days to two weeks following a rain.

As far as prussic acid poisoning is concerned, the poison acts rapidly and can kill animals within minutes. In most acute cases, animals become affected within 10-15 minutes after eating toxic material and can die in two to three minutes.

Symptoms may include a brief period of stimulation followed by depression and paralysis. Signs of colic may be present. Stupor (loss of sensibility), difficult breathing and frequent convulsions may result. Death is caused by suffocation since oxygen remains in the blood and is not exchanged to the tissues. This also causes the blood to appear bright red.

To prevent prussic acid poisoning in livestock, Stapleton outlines these steps:

1. Allow plant material afected by frost to dry thoroughly before grazing. This may require a week or more of good sunlight.

2. Feed animals hay or a supplement before turning them in on plants that may contain prussic acid. Animals that are not hungry will not be affected as seriously by toxic material since their intake will be limited.

3. Remove all animals from the pasture if one in the herd shows any signs of poisoning.

4. Call a veterinarian immediately if an animal appears to be poisoned. An antidote to treat affected animals is highly efficient if given early. This product is available from veterinarians.

The overall key to preventing prussic acid poisoning in livestock is to be aware of plant materials that may cause poisoning and then to keep cattle from grazing such plants until a safe period has passed, points out Stapleton.

Drainage Systems Not Always Feasible In Coastal Areas

COLLEGE STATION — Although better drainage systems may be one solution to protecting coastal property, a Texas A&M University fisheries specialist says residents need to realize that building large drainage systems along the coast may not be feasible.

James T. Davis is that a large drainage system would be detrimental to the fishing industry and larger systems would have a negative environmental impact on wildlife living along the coast — two reasons often cited by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service for blocking permits which would allow such systems to be built.

"The Fish and Wildlife Service is continually criticized for its efforts in protecting the fish and wildlife interest," said Davis, "but their reasons aside, we all need to consider other factors which make it difficult, if not impossible, to install the kind of system needed for effective runoff."

Class members assembled first at the home of Flossie Hester Walker for a Saturday afternoon reception, followed by a catered banquet Saturday night at the Haskell National Bank Community Room. On Sunday morning the class attended a coffee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swinson.

Throughout the weekend the class' chosen colors of rosemary and silver were used in the decor for the festivities.

Many classmates had not seen one another in the four decades since high school graduation despite the fact that many regularly attend the Haskell Homecoming.

The local hosts and hostesses and planning committees were: Addresses, Latrice Swinson; Building, Buster Gholson; Food and Decorations, Louvenia S. Foil, Jane Boon and Isabella Lehde; Entertainment, Flossie Walker, Marie Howeth and Dorothy Halliburton.

Girl Scout News

BY MARY LEHRER

This week at the girl scout meeting troop 468 was called to order at 4:00 by Mary Lehrer. This week the girl scouts worked on their hospitality badge and finished.

On their hospitality badge they each demonstrated how to set the table, had a skit, how to answer a phone correctly, how to treat overnight guests, and learned how to write a thank you note or get well card and how to address the envelope.

They had cookies and lemonade for refreshments.

The girl scouts will be selling calendars this month.

Those who were at the meeting are: Rhonda Adams, Emily Comacho, Marcy Davis, Julie Roewe, Robyn Struve and Mary Lehrer. Leader was Betty Roewe.

Jean Conner Buford read the class history which told of the merging of members from North and South Wards at the close of elementary school, a Sophomore hayride, Junior Hillbilly Banquet, the class attending the premiere of "Gone With The Wind" in Abilene, the Senior Class Western Party at the Dulaney's, April Fool's Senior Day at Scotts Crossing, and the Senior Class trip to Craterville National Park in Oklahoma.

Special guests were former high school principal Pyeatt McCollum and Mrs. McCollum. Greetings were also received from Mr. and Mrs. George Wimbish and Miss Jessie Vick. Mrs. Wimbish and C.B. Ramsey were class sponsors.

Buster Gholson gave the invocation and also paid tribute to the memory of the four classmates who are deceased: Fred Barnett, Edwin Jeter, Dale Harris and Velton Moore.

T.R. Odell read the Class Will in which the class had joked affectionately about the teachers.

As part of the entertainment, four couples in the class were asked to participate in "The Newly Wed Game," revealing that few of them could remember the answers. With Paul Kuenstler as Program Host, the "contestants" were: Helen and Bill Wiseman, Jean and Brad Buford, Nettie and Raleigh Brock, and Marjorie and Harrison Head.

Many comments were made about the various roles in the Senior Class play, directed by Mrs. George Wimbish.

Leatrice Wheeler Swinson was class valedictorian and Jean Conner Buford was salutatorian.

Class members plan to be reunited at the 1981 Haskell Homecoming and for their 45th anniversary in 1985.

At the close of the banquet, Jean Conner Buford led the singing of the Haskell High School Song.

According to a recent broadcast sponsored by the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center and The Prudential Insurance Company, controlling air pollution is more than good public health — it's also good economics.

Investigators from the Research Triangle Institute of North Carolina published a report in the American Journal of Public Health on extra hospitalization costs for pollution-related diseases in Pittsburgh. The researchers found that hospitalization costs in Pittsburgh's higher pollution zones were nearly $10 million in 1972.

Senior Engineer Ben H. Carpenter of the Research Triangle Institute says that if increased pollution exposure produces greater illness and expense, then a reduction could have the reverse effect.

Carpenter feels that the findings in the Pittsburgh study could be a basis for economic incentives to control air pollution, thus promoting a healthier, and perhaps a wealthier, society.

"Society can only gain by controlling air pollution," says Carpenter. "The expenses for such controls, therefore, could logically be shared on a cost-benefit basis."

A New Dress For Chicken

Chicken takes on a new dress with a ripe olive garlic-accented sauce.

The chicken halves are poached until just tender. Then a smooth cream sauce, deftly seasoned with garlic and pointed up with the ebony hue of ripe olives, is spread over the halves and baked. The nutty flavor of the ripe olives blends with the gentle pungency of garlic to emphasize but not overpower the chicken flavor. Served with hot paroled rice and green asparagus, color contrasted with pimiento strips, it is an anytime appetite pleaser.

A salad of butter lettuce, artichoke hearts, chopped egg whites and sieved egg yolks, accented with whole ripe olives and cherry tomatoes, completes this showy meal.

Poached Chicken In Garlic Olive Sauce

- 2 (2 pounds each) broiler chickens
- 2 (13 3/4 oz.) cans chicken broth
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons finely minced garlic
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1-1/2 cups broth from cooking chicken
- 1 cup half and half
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- 1 cup pitted California ripe olives

Cut each chicken in half (or have your butcher do it). Starting from breast on each half, loosen skin and pull off. Skin may be left on wings, if desired. Skewer legs close to body. Heat broth in large skillet. Add chickens. Bring to boil on high heat. Reduce heat; cover, and cook gently for 20 to 30 minutes or until chicken is fork tender. Drain, save broth. Remove skewers and place chicken halves in oven-proof baking dish. Cover with foil or waxed paper while preparing sauce. Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Melt butter; add garlic and cook over very low heat 3 or 4 minutes. Stir in flour. Add 1-1/2 cups broth, half and half, and salt to flour mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils and thickens. Remove from heat. Beat egg until bubbly. Add little heated sauce to egg and return to remaining sauce. Stir in olives. Spoon sauce over chickens and cover completely. Bake in preheated oven for about 10 minutes, until thoroughly heated. Makes 4 servings.

DPS Urging Safety During Halloween

On Friday, October 31, children all over will be celebrating one of their favorite holidays, Halloween. This being so, scores of miniature "monsters" will scamper through the neighborhoods of Texas. For many of them, "trick or treat" may well turn into a tragedy.

Major C.W. Bell, Regional Commander for the Texas Department of Public Safety, Lubbock, suggests that a few precautions on the part of the motorists and parents could prevent such disasters this Halloween.

If your children go trick or treating, one of the parents should go with them to insure their safety. If you buy or make your child a costume, it should be of white or light colored material so it can be easily seen at night by motorists.

You should also have your child carry a flashlight to serve as a warning to motorists and as an added safety measure on poorly lighted streets and children should be instructed to use sidewalks whenever possible and the motorists, on their part, should be especially careful when driving the neighborhood streets as many of the youngsters will be crossing the streets haphazardly as they go from house to house.

Major Bell also stated that because Halloween falls on a Friday there will be added traffic as most area high schools will be having a football game. If the parents and motorists will join together and think of the children's safety, we can turn this potentially dangerous evening into a safe and enjoyable one.

Hints For House Painting

Paint your house exterior yourself and save money—but know what you're doing, especially in using brushes and rollers correctly, advises Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist. Dr. Berry is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Painting successfully depends on proper preparation of the surface, organizing the work, using a brush or roller correctly and proper painting techniques, the specialist says.

Here are her instructions on correct use of brushes and rollers:

Correct Brush Use
Dip half the length of the bristles into the paint. Tap the brush gently against the side of the can, but do not wipe it across the lip. Hold the brush comfortably near the handle base, applying light pressure with your fingertips. Bristles should flex slightly toward the tip as you begin the stroke, but do not bear down on the brush.

Proper Roller Use
A roller speeds application of paint on flat surfaces such as masonry and floors.

Cut an edge with a brush first, or, in other words, paint a border first.

Roll paint on over the edge strip. Roll as near the edge as possible, since the roller texture is different from the brush mark.

Roll paint on in light, even strokes in different directions. If paint is rolled on too fast, it will spatter, so be careful.

Other "Musts" to Know
Begin painting on upper areas, such as peaks, gables and eaves. If the house has siding, and if you're painting that, paint the under side edges first.

Once you get to the walls themselves, unload the brush in spots across the siding or vertical surface, and spread the paint with smooth, even strokes.

Paint a strip as wide as you can reach safely and comfortably from ladder or plank. It's easier to move the ladder than mend a broken bone, so don't try to "over-reach."

Finish a complete side, or at least paint to a door or window, before stopping for the day.

More importantly, don't start a new can of paint in the middle of a board or large wall area.

If the remaining paint in a can will not finish an area, mix some of the new paint with the partially filled can before starting the area.

This helps blend the color.

Drought Effects Reflected In Higher Auction Sales

AUSTIN—Livestock auction sales increased significantly in August, reflecting the effects of the summer's relentless heat wave, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

"During August -- at the height of the drought -- thousands of head of Texas livestock were being moved off of withered pastures and into auction barns across the state," said Brown. "The effects of this weather-related sell-off will be with us for some time."

Figures from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service show that auction sales of cattle were up by 15 percent during August compared to a year earlier. Some 115 percent more sheep and lambs were sent to auction than in 1979, and hog sales totaled 56,000 head, 37 percent above August 1979. Over 40,000 head of goats were marketed in August, compared to 26,000 head the previous month.

"In the case of cattle, Texas herds were just beginning to rebuild after several years of reduction," he said. "There is no question that the drought will prolong this rebuilding cycle, and create reduced supplies of beef in the coming years."

"The situation is particularly bad for livestock producers because marketing decisions are taken out of their hands," said Brown. "When faced with hungry stock, sparse grazing and expensive feed, many have no other choice but to sell. The drought could not have come at a worse time for most producers."

Brown also noted that movement of cattle, sheep and lambs into Texas feedlots accelerated this summer due to the hot, dry weather.

DRIVELINE

Future File: The RCA Corporation is developing a "third eye" car radar system that warns drivers or even automatically applies the brakes when a collision is imminent. The radar devices have lots of bugs so far, but some optimists predict they will be optional on U.S. cars in three to ten years.

Question: Are you required to stop for a school bus?

Answer: Indeed you are. If you approach a school bus from either direction, front or rear, and the bus is displaying alternately flashing red lights, you must stop and not pass until 1) the bus has resumed motion, or 2) the driver signals you to proceed, or 3) the red lights cease flashing. Red lights or not, always be cautious near a school bus.

Only 11 percent of car passengers ever fasten their seatbelts. Too bad, because accident records show you are 57 percent less likely to be injured if you are wearing a lap/shoulder type seatbelt . . . and 31 percent safer in an ordinary lap belt.

Houston To Los Angeles—On One Gallon! You may have to wait a bit for this little beauty to appear in your dealer's showroom, but West German engineering students built a torpedo shaped three-wheel car that gets fairly good mileage. Tearing along at six MPH on an oval test track, the 200 cc diesel got 1,580 miles to the gallon.

Think About It . . . Once it gets going, a car is hard to stop. Travelling at 65 MPH, your car will go 71 feet during the three-fourths of a second it takes you to react to danger and push on the brake pedal. Then, under average conditions, the car will roll another 235 feet before stopping. From start to finish, you will have travelled the length of a football field. That's why speed can kill . . .

Budget-Minded Motoring
A vacation with a specific destination can be even more fun than touring. It will also save you money and help to conserve energy. The trick is to select a place that has strong appeal and then map out the most direct route.

to within a certain radius—say 300 miles away from home. Or calculate how far the family car will go on one tank of gas.

Then draw a circle on a map that indicates that distance from your home. Select the various towns, attractions, parks or resort areas within the circle that you'd most like to visit. Then choose the individual hotel, resort or restaurant that fits your budget.

Mobil Travel Guide can also be a great help in planning your trip. It describes and rates thousands of hotels, motels, resorts and restaurants in the U.S. and Canada and also includes sightseeing information, color road maps, an estimated mileage chart and discount coupons.

Published in seven regional editions, the Guide is available at bookstores and Mobil Service Stations for $5.95.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

by William P. Clements Jr.

For a quarter century, Texas governors have sought unsuccessfully to acquire meaningful control over State spending through budget execution powers.

On November 4, Texas voters will have an opportunity to provide that needed fiscal disciplinary authority by a constitutional amendment. That amendment—authorizing the Legislature to grant the governor control over expenditures of appropriated State funds, subject to approval of a seven-member budget execution committee—is one of nine on the general election ballot.

As Governor, I support all nine. Amendment 5 (budget execution) tops my priority list of the November amendments.

I also strongly favor Amendment 6 which would allow the governor, subject to two-thirds State Senate approval, to remove his own appointees to public offices. The amendment would also allow the governor to call special sessions of the Senate, for not more than two days, to act on proposed removals.

Recently, in a joint news conference with Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Greenhill and others, I announced my enthusiastic backing of Amendment 8. That amendment briefly will help reduce the staggering appellate caseloads in the Court of Criminal Appeals by expanding jurisdiction of our 14 Courts of Civil Appeals to criminal as well as civil matters.

Space does not permit a discussion of all the amendments, so I will concentrate here on those of direct interest to the governor.

I doubt that the average citizen realizes just how limited is the governor's authority to hold the lid on State spending. He is, by law, the chief budget officer of the State. But the Legislature writes the State budget. He can veto an entire appropriations bill or specific items within it, but he cannot reduce an appropriation which he considers excessive. Nor can he veto legislative riders setting conditions on how money is to be spent—or insure that funds are spent as the Legislature intended.

Amendment 5 contemplates some sensible direction over a budget which exceeds $10 billion a year. Under its terms, subsequent legislation could empower the governor to limit spending by an agency, to transfer funds from one agency to another or to order that all or part of the money appropriated for a particular purpose be spent for that purpose.

All of these actions would be subject to approval by a budget execution committee composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the House, the chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and the chairman and vice chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

I believe that the amendment, while certainly no cure-all, will provide valuable tools to control the increasing cost of State government and increase efficiency of the system. Budget execution properly is an executive function, and the governor is in the best position to observe the overall effectiveness of State government and to respond to fiscal emergencies.

A major weakness of government is the difficulty of removing incompetent, lackadaisical or inadequate appointees to important positions. Amendment 6 would allow the governor to initiate removal action against his own appointees subject to advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senate.

While I appoint many hundreds of board members each year, the governor's power to shape the course of more than 200 agencies within the executive branch is largely limited to his persuasiveness.

The proposed amendment, again, would bring no miraculous changes, but it would be a step in the right direction. It would give me no authority to remove appointees of my predecessors, but at least it would make it possible for me to fire some of my own (with Senate concurrence) if their performance is not up to the high standards Texas citizens are entitled to.

Caution Urged With Coffee Makers

Workers who start their days at the office with a warm, friendly cup of coffee may be in danger of starting something not quite as friendly and considerably warmer if they aren't careful.

The trouble with that cup of morning motivation is that it may have been produced by a first-rate arsonist—the office coffee machine. According to the Chicago Fire Department, these appliances are the single greatest cause of fires in that city's downtown office district. And the risks are by no means limited to fire.

Proper care in operating and maintaining these traditional sources of office caffeine reduces the potential for catastrophe. At best, office fires can be a nuisance, resulting in minor carpet damage, smoke on the walls and a few mornings without freshly brewed coffee. At worst, major damage and serious injuries could occur through the spread of the fire.

There are a number of practical precautions that can be taken to lessen hazards from office coffeemaking appliances, says CNA insurance safety professional Hank Stewart. He suggests these measures:

• Use only units that have been listed for office use by Underwriters Laboratories. Many smaller home units are not designed for office.

• Store combustible materials—coffee filters, napkins, office supplies—away from the appliances and the electrical outlets used to power them. The only way a fire can spread beyond a machine is through burnables left carelessly nearby.

• Do not hook up to extension cords. Many cords are not designed for even the demands of small appliances like coffeemakers and may overheat.

• Place the appliance directly in front of the outlet to eliminate the need for extension cords. Cords laid across aisles and other employee traffic routes can cause falls and injuries.

• Avoid the use of multi-plug adapters in wall outlets. The coffeemaker should not be sharing a receptacle with a typewriter, radio or other high-current equipment.

• Be sure the grounding terminal in the coffeemaker's three-prong plug is intact and secure to reduce the chance of shocking.

• Install a timer to automatically turn off the appliance at least one-half hour before the end of the business day. Timers should be sealed to prevent tampering and any units not equipped with timers should be unplugged at the end of the day.

• Appoint one person in the office to oversee use of the coffeemaker. Before leaving the office this individual should see that the unit is off and cleaned up.

• Take care in the handling of coffee pots, too. Empty pots should be removed from warmers on the coffeemakers. And anyone planning to carry a pot of coffee into a meeting should take a moment to check the condition of the handle; a meeting ought to be memorable for the accomplishments of the participants, not for an untimely disaster brought on by a broken coffee pot.

• Check the condition of cords. Frayed cords are fire

Job satisfaction is declining, sociologists say

COLLEGE STATION — In these times, you should feel lucky to have a job, right? Not necessarily, say sociologists at Texas A&M University.

Between 1973 and 1977, Americans experienced a 2 percent drop in worker and job satisfaction. The decline was particularly high among college graduates and workers under 30.

One explanation may be a return of the generation gap—with those under 30 wanting more from their jobs but feeling stifled—said sociologists who explained that blacks, semi-skilled workers, blue-collar laborers and assembly-line personnel were most likely to be unhappy.

Cotton Growers To Meet Oct. 24

The annual members meeting of Rolling Plains Cotton Growers Inc. has been scheduled for October 24 at the Stamford Country Club with the session getting under way at 10:00 A.M. Congressman Charles Stenholm will be on hand with a report on agriculture legislation and other important matters pertaining to the cotton industry.

Stenholm served as executive vice president of RPCG Inc. for two years when the office was moved from Sweetwater to Stamford. He is well informed and interested in all the agricultural problems since he has been a farmer himself for many years.

Following the program lunch will be served at noon and a short business meeting will follow.

All cotton growers in the Rolling Plains are cordially invited to attend this meeting by writing in or calling the office in Stamford, 915-773-2581, Box 1108.

A.D. May of Rule is president of the organization and will preside over the meeting.

Tornado season is year-round problem in Texas

COLLEGE STATION — Don't breathe a sigh of relief because you think Texas' tornado season is over, because it's a year-round problem, say Texas A&M University climatologists.

Peak times are between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. in April, May and June. But 109 twisters touch ground in an average year, with more going unreported in sparsely settled regions. Hurricanes, which remain a threat through October, can spawn dozens of tornadoes as they move inland.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

The 96th Congress is winding down. It will function for only a few more weeks in a post-election "lame duck" session. During the current recess, we can examine its accomplishments thus far, but, alas, will find little to cheer about.

The 96th was supposed to be an "oversight congress." When it started business some 21 months ago, the American public had told its members they were fed up with ever-bigger government and worsening economic problems. This Congress was going to un-do much of the costly and ineffective over-regulation imposed in other years. It was going to reduce the massive burden of federal spending which threatened to stifle our nation's economy.

Unfortunately, the promises of two years ago lie shattered at our feet. Instead, this Congress added to the size, the cost and the burden of government.

Instead of acting to make the U.S. more energy independent, Congress enacted a far-reaching mixed-up energy program which virtually assures our continued dependence on unstable foreign sources.

The Majority of members of this Congress negated the positive effects of oil price deregulation with the so-called windfall profits tax. The remainder of the energy program -- the synthetic fuels bill and emergency conservation and gasoline rationing measures -- add to the nation's supplies of regulations, but don't add one barrel to our energy supply.

Agriculture policy is almost as disorganized. While more farmers than ever are being driven out of business, Congress has largely acquiesced to the Administration's blatantly anti-producer policy. "Pro-consumer" is the watchword, with little thought to the effect on consumers of economic chaos among producers.

Despite pious promises to reduce the size of government, Congress created a controversial and costly Department of Education. The taxpayers will be coughing up $14 billion for that act alone.

Perhaps the most significant record compiled by the 96th thus far is its failure once again to come to grips with the critical problem of government spending. Interest rates have soared to record rates and remained intolerably high because of the drain of government borrowing on the money available to private business and individuals. Yet, it is clear that when the final spending tallies are made, we will be way over the spending targets set earlier this year, with a record $60 billion deficit.

While Congress has been busily spending money, it has failed to take measures to shore up the economy. Despite the shock of the sharpest recession in history in 1980, we likely will enter 1981 with our people taxed at the highest rates ever. We likely will have no program for encouraging investment to provide jobs and real growth to our economy.

In fact, we still will have the patchwork of unnecessary and often contradictory regulations which taken together keep productivity down and discourage the reindustrialization of our economy so desperately needs.

That the November lame duck session is necessary is testimony to the ineffectiveness of this Congress in meeting its primary responsibilities. Only two of the 13 major appropriations bills for fiscal year 1981 have been passed, and the fiscal year began Oct. 1. The Second Concurrent Budget Resolution, spending ceilings which law requires to be passed each year by Sept. 15, has been put off until after the election.

When the 97th Congress starts work in January, it will face the same challenges the 96th did: to bring government regulation and spending under control, and to discipline itself to carry out its responsibilities without waffling or delay. I only hope for the sake of our nation the 97th is more successful in meeting its responsibilities.

Congressional Comment

by Congressman Charles Stenholm

WASHINGTON, D.C. — There are times when being right about an issue carries no real satisfaction. And saying "I told you so" doesn't help to solve the problem.

A year ago, when Congress was deliberating the International Sugar Agreement, I warned that without a price-support program to balance out boom or bust prices for domestic producers, we would be throwing sugar users to the whim of a wildly fluctuating world market.

That legislation would have set a base price of the commodity at 15 cents a pound, a price that sugar users and other opposing groups thought was too high. Producers estimated that it cost them some 14-17 cents per pound just to grow sugar from cane and sugarbeets.

This week, wholesale sugar prices on the New York spot market hit 37.11 cents a pound, an increase caused by declining world production due to poor weather and disease, an increase in world demand and sugar speculation on the futures market.

Sugar prices hit a low of just under 10 cents a pound last year and no one but the hard-pressed producers were complaining.

This week, members of Congress began to hear from some of the same sugar users who opposed passage of the sugar bill last fall. With sugar the second largest commodity used in bakery products, bakers are hurting.

Representatives of two of the largest industry groups, the Independent Bakers Association and the Retail Bakers of America, told members of the House Subcommittee on Special Small Business Problems that the rapid increase in world raw cane sugar prices had had a dramatic effect on the entire industry.

I have no argument that those bakers are suffering and that American consumers will also pay both in the form of rising retail prices for sugar and in the cost of the final product using sugar.

I have to point out, however, that those same people sent a strong, clear message to our domestic sugar producers last year that they would play no part in stabilizing their end of the industry, but would rely on the world market for supplies.

If this situation sounds vaguely familiar, the same problems are incurred by depending on foreign supplies of petroleum products, while domestic supplies are kept under price regulations as are faced by depending on an unstable foreign supply of sugar, while domestic producers are being forced out of business.

We have learned, too late, of the costly dangers of depending primarily on foreign sources of goods consumed in this country at the expense of our own producers.

We can all remember during the early 1970s, when sugar soared from around 12 cents per pound to 65 cents per pound in less than six months due to an unstable world market. I would far rather have seen an increase of less than one cent per pound each year which would have allowed sugarcane and sugarbeet producers to remain in business in this country than be forced to pay much higher increases when at the total mercy of the world market.

The continuing need for a national sugar policy should now be apparent and perhaps this time around, users and consumers will be willing to listen a little more carefully.

Superintendent's Views

BY JAMES LANIER
Superintendent, Haskell ISD

We will continue the series of articles on the budget this week. The Instructional related category is the cost of inservice. We budgeted $350.00. This cost is local even though the state mandates 5 days of inservice plus 3 work-days.

Instruction resources and media includes contracted services for items such as repair of A-V equipment, book binding, etc. We projected $850.00 in the budget item. Supplies and materials in instruction related services came to $1205 with $500 of this from state designated funds and $705 raised locally. Capital outlay in this area includes library books, furniture and equipment. This category comes to $6179 but $2394 comes from Title IV for the purchase of library books.

The item of School Administration includes the salaries of the 3 principals, the repair of office equipment, the supplies and materials needed to run these offices; such as stamps, stationery, various forms, and travel expense for the principals and their supportive staff. The total of this category was estimated at $81,078. Part of this cost comes under the Minimum Foundation Program of the state and part is carried by the local funds.

The guidance and counseling portion of instruction related services includes counselor's salary, cost of test materials, supplies, travel for the counselor. This category is budgeted at $21,480. Again, even though much of the guidance program is mandated by the Legislature and the Texas Education Agency, a substantial portion of the cost of this program is carried by local funds.

Health services include the salary of a part-time nurse and first aid supplies. This category is budgeted at $1035. Again, most of this cost is local.

We will continue our series on the budget next week. Hopefully, this information can help the citizens of Haskell understand better the financing of your schools.

Texas' small towns are doing just fine

Once depicted as an endangered species, the small town in Texas is alive and well, says Dr. Robert Skrabanek, sociologist at Texas A&M University.

Two-thirds of all Texas towns with less than 500 people lost residents between 1950 and 1960. The situation began to reverse in the late '60s, and now three-fourths of those towns have recorded population increases, he said.

Freedom Of Press Is Public Responsibility

BY GINA JENNINGS
It is an election year and thanks to the media most of us have at least three new family members.
Ron, John and Jimmy show up for breakfast, peering at us over our coffee from the pages of the morning news. They chat with us via radio as we head home for lunch. And the six o'clock report brings them grinning back to supper.

They even tuck us into bed as a late-night newscaster recaps the day's political events.

Yes, it is an election year and the press is working overtime to analyze the constant thundering and blundering of pretenders to public office. Exercising its guaranteed freedom, the press is telling Americans what they need to know.
During this, National Newspaper Week, Americans are acutely aware of the media's faithful pursuit of Freedom of the press on national as well as local levels. Perhaps they are even overwhelmed by it.

As reporters, editors and publishers carry the burden given them in the Bill of Rights, citizens are finding facts on their doorstep. Facts they sometimes would rather not hear. Facts that others would wish to hide.
Often facing opposition on all sides, it is sometimes a leaden responsibility for the press. But we, as a people, must know that the burden is not borne by the press alone.
As November 4 approaches, the weight is shifting to the shoulders of the public.

The American press has fought and is fighting still to protect the people's right to know. It has survived for over two hundred years despite the efforts of some to distort and suppress it.

Yet, the final question is, "What will the people do?" We all know the dangers that surround us—as individuals, as communities and as a nation. The questions are difficult. Political propaganda abounds. It is hard to sort through, but we must decide.

For in a democracy, after all the information has been placed before them, it is up to the people to act.
The founders of this nation gave all of us a great responsibility when they guaranteed freedom of the press. In faith, they charged some to speak and speak fully. In faith, they charged the rest to listen, decide and govern accordingly.

During the last national election only about 50% of registered voters carried this heavy and battled-scarred freedom to the polls...
This year we have another chance.
The press has kept the faith. The rest is up to the people.

And then, of course, there will be the installer/repairman (4) to make sure everything goes in right and keeps working right.

In other words, when you talk to our Communications Consultant, you're talking to a whole team. Call them today and make an appointment for a comprehensive survey of your business telephone needs.
