At Directors Meeting

Two New Projects Set By Chamber

Directors of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce agreed to undertake two new projects during their monthly meeting Tuesday.

The new projects will be a quarterly meeting of the general membership of the Chamber and a Dove Festival September 5 and 6.

The first meeting of the general membership and interested persons will be held August 22 in the City Park and will include a short program and homemade ice cream. Hank Sherman was appointed Chairman of the project and complete plans will be announced at a later date.

Present plans call for the Dove

Festival to feature a dove shooting contest open to anyone with estimated cash prizes of $1,000.00 or over.

All shooters who wish to compete for the prize money will be required to pay a $30.00 entry fee which will entitle the contestant to two days of dove hunting at a specified place, catered supper Saturday night followed by a dance.

Contestants will hunt in groups of two or more and will keep score sheets on each other. Cash prizes will be given to the individual who kills a limit of dove with the fewest number of shells Saturday and Sunday and to the individual who kills two limits with the fewest number of shells during the two day event.

Winners will be given polygraph tests similar to bass tournaments.

Haskell merchants and other groups will be asked to participate in the event with Sidewalk Sales or other special promotions.

Contestants will be limited to 200 to 300 shooters depending on space available and dove populations.

Complete rules of the contest and official entry blanks will be published in the Free Press next week.

Homecoming Plans Now In Progress

Ex-students from Haskell and Mattson Schools are reminded that it is time—NOW—to begin making plans for the bi-annual homecoming event which takes place this year October 16 and 17. The committees are busy making plans to insure activities for all classes and to arrange events so that there will be plenty of time for reunions with old friends, former classmates and teachers. Letters will go out to all Ex-students around August 15 and these will announce the formal schedule of events.

The Publicity Committee asks that any person or class which wishes to announce a party or gathering send your name and address to the Haskell Free Press so that a listing of class reunions may be published the week before Homecoming. Times and places will need to be sent in to the Free Press office by Monday, October 5, so that the schedule can be published in time to allow out of town visitors to plan their activities.

There will be a football game on Friday night to kick off homecoming activities, a noon barbecue on Saturday and the General Meeting on Saturday afternoon. These events, plus the fun and fellowship of trying to see who can remember the most faces and events, make for a festive weekend...so circle the weekend of October 16 and 17 on your calendar so that this homecoming will be the best ever. Don't just read about it, participate in it.

Tips On Wardrobe Selection

From LOU GILLY, County Extension Agent. Clothing budget "strained at the seams?" Maybe your wardrobe is too-high quality. That may sound "funny," but it's true.

All clothing need not be of the same quality--high quality--to give good value.

Several factors can help you decide quality levels for various clothing items.

QUALITY VS. PRICE

Before looking for high quality or lower quality, it's wise to understand a basic quality-price fact of life: quality and price are not always related.

For example, an expensive fabric or garment may be of poor quality but costly because of some unique characteristics.

You can't always rely on a manufacturer's brand name, either. Although the maker may have a reputation for a certain quality level, it still varies from garment to garment. And everyone can make a mistake now and then.

"WEARABLE TIME SPAN"

In deciding on quality needs, consider "wearable time span" as a major factor--how long the item will be worn.

This depends, also on who will wear it and for what kind of activities.

Then you can determine how "good" the quality must be to meet your needs.

For example, a pre-school child's play clothes receive hard wear. The child's activities strain every seam and button and grind soil into the fabric.

So, even though children outgrow play clothes quickly, the wear, tear and many washings make high quality in these items a good value. That means high-quality construction and high-quality fabric.

On the other hand, adult party clothes may not require such high quality. These items usually are not worn often, and they're worn in dimly lit rooms in many cases.

So the best buy in formal wear (usually) may be the least expensive, even if that means poor construction and not-very-durable fabric.

FASHION TRENDS

Fashion trends are another major factor in deciding quality level for various wardrobe items.

A garment that is faddish or highly fashionable today may not be so tomorrow.

Buy knowing that these will need replacing more quickly than the more basic styles in your wardrobe.

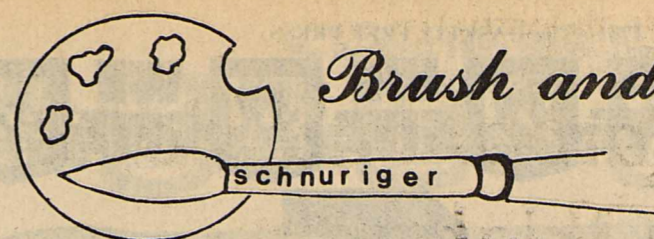

RULE OF THUMB

Finally, here's a rule of thumb:

Invest more time, money and effort in searching for good quality when it comes to clothes you'll wear the most.

Select lower-quality items--usually less expensive--for spice and variety.

When you follow this rule of thumb, your clothing budget will "fit" better.

Brush and Palette

Perhaps you are making a file of these columns for future reference. I have scrap books and files on almost every subject. You, too, can create a good reference library that will be valuable as you pursue your hobby, avocation or vocation. Collect pictures, books, notations and other artists' work and set up a file system.

Color is a vast subject. It pays to experiment with color combinations, limiting yourself to a few colors on small sketches before starting a large painting. This will enable you to establish a mood and character of your theme in terms of its key. The key is the overall tone of your picture--is it too dark, too light? If it's too dark, it is low key. If it's too light, it is too high key. The picture might need some modification to achieve a harmonious effect in values. Study the preliminary drawing.

There are three ways to make mud. One, stir the pigments too much on the palette with knife or brush. Two, mix the paints too much on the canvas. Three, never wipe your brush or knife. Making mud this way is not the way to lower values.

Q. Working on a picture in stages, I find it necessary to match colors. How do I achieve this?

A. It's a matter of memory and trial and error. First, make sure your palette has exactly the same colors and same brand that you were using before. Unless it's a very dark tone you are trying to match, lay out your white first. (If you start with dark, you could mix a saucer full of paint before getting the right value.) To the white, add some of the color (s) used before. Try to use no more than two or three colors to the mixture. You will get mud and will have to start over. Add and mix until the match is satisfactory. Remember, a good painting is one where the values change often. Avoid monotony and perhaps another value would make an interesting change in your picture.

Q. Which is best White to use?

A. The artist must choose according to his own particular needs. Here are my findings on the various Whites.

ZINC--has been used more than other whites because it is not affected by air pollution and does not affect other colors. It is moderately opaque and is desirable where partial translucency is required. In time, Zinc will form a brittle paint film, therefore, it should not be used to build thick coats of impasto.

TITANIUM-ZINC--the strongest white pigment known, completely inert and is not affected by vehicle or atmosphere. It dries to a hard, non-porous surface and forms a more flexible film than does Zinc.

TITANIUM WHITE--permanent in every way, forms less impervious film than other whites and makes a more flexible oil film.

FLAKE WHITE--contains white lead (being poisonous) and is the historic white of oil painting. It forms a permanently flexible film. The danger of being poisoned lies in taking the pigment internally, not at all on external contact.

Draining Vegetables Loses Nutrients

"Drain the vegetable!" If you're at all concerned with accuracy in language (and nutrition in your diet), that's not the sort of command you should be shouting about your kitchen. Why not "Throw away the vitamins and minerals!" instead?

Because, after all, that's what really happens.

Many essential nutrients in the food you eat may end up poured down the drain or tossed in the garbage simply because they're not cooked right. The proteins, carbohydrates and fats (and, thus, calories) will still be there. But the minerals and vitamins may, not--particularly those that are water-soluble.

Of the four food groups--milk, meat, fruits and vegetables, grains--foods in the meat and fruits/vegetables groups suffer most when cooked wrong. (Though some grains, like rice, also may lose nutrients when improperly prepared.)

For example, let's say you're preparing a dinner consisting, in part, of a beef roast, potatoes and string beans (the frozen variety). If you pull the roast from the freezer and place it on a plate to thaw for several hours before cooking, you'll wind up with one beef roast minus the nutrients that dripped out with the meat juices. And where will they have gone? Odds are they went down the drain.

Potatoes now. Peel them and you peel away the nutrients in the skins also. Worse, though, you strip them of the raincoats that keep boiling water out--and essential water-soluble vitamins and minerals in.

And if you cook the string beans in a potful of water, then bring them to the sink to "drain the vegetable"... well, you know what that really means.

Here are some ways you can keep those vitamins and minerals in the foods you prepare:

Place frozen meats in the oven when still frozen--not thawed. Use the juices that drip during cooking for basting or making gravy.

Keep trimming and peeling of vegetables to a minimum. Better to scrub than to strip. Also, avoid presoaking.

When cooking frozen vegetables, use just enough water to keep them from burning in the pot. Save the water in which you cook fresh and canned vegetables for soups and gravies. You might also consider buying an inexpensive steamer to slip inside a pot, thereby letting you cook vegetables completely out of the water.

In the end, there are only two things you should do with those nutrients. First, keep them in the foods they come in.

And then eat.

And then eat.

And then eat.

Use Prescription Medicines Properly

When the doctor does prescribe medicine, ask questions about the drug, says Beverly Rhoades, a consumer information specialist.

Asking questions—a "wise consumer thing to do"—is necessary for two major reasons: to be adequately informed and to avoid unnecessary costs, the specialist says.

Rhoades is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Here are some "question suggestions:"

PRESCRIPTION COSTS
When a doctor orders a prescription for you, ask if the prescription is for the "generic" (common) name or if it's for a "brand" name of the medicine.

If the doctor has prescribed a brand name, ask if prescribing it by its generic name or by another brand might be just as effective. In some cases, this is a more economical choice.

If the answer is "yes," ask the doctor to indicate to the pharmacist that a generic drug or cheaper brand can be substituted.

REFILL ARRANGEMENTS
Also, ask the doctor how long you probably will have to take the medicine.

If the time period is longer than the prescribed amount will last, ask if the doctor will prescribe enough medicine for the expected time period—so you might avoid extra trips to the pharmacy.

In some cases, doctors prescribe a small amount purposely—to safeguard patients from taking more than they need or to prevent a large amount from becoming less effective due to deterioration. In any case, it's wise to ask about the amount and about refill arrangements.

An office visit may be necessary to answer refill questions, but if no office visit will be necessary, ask the doctor if he or she will indicate permission for refills—to avoid the time and expense of unnecessary office visits.

Telephone calls can help you avoid unnecessary office visits, too.

In some cases, your doctor will want at least a "progress report" of your condition by phone before issuing refills for you.

CLEAR DIRECTIONS
Before leaving the doctor's office, ask about the drug itself—what it is and what it does. Also ask for clear directions on taking it.

This information—on the prescription itself—is usually written in pharmaceutical shorthand or Latin and probably will mean nothing to you.

Of course, the pharmacist will put instructions on the medicine container, but asking the doctor for directions will help you understand the pharmacist's label better.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS
Also ask the doctor if there are special instructions or cautions concerning the drug.

For example, some drugs should be taken with meals, some cause drowsiness, and some encourage "photosensitivity" (makes you more sensitive) to the sun.

Ask for any available leaflets about the drug and its possible side effects.

Listen to your pharmacist, too. When you pick up your prescription, he or she may caution you VERBALLY about the drug—perhaps with instructions such as "do not drink alcohol as long as you are taking this drug" or "do not take certain other medication as long as you take this drug."

Or the pharmacist may put additional special instructions on the container. Be sure to follow them, too.

Finally, follow ALL directions to avoid needless discomfort and possible complications, which, of course, can mean extra medical expenses.

USDA Soil Conservation Service

Conservation Viewpoints

August 7, 1981 is a historic day for farmers, ranchers, soil and water conservation district directors and all of us who depend on agriculture for our food, clothing and livelihood.

The date is the silver anniversary of the Great Plains Conservation Program. Just 25 years ago, on August 7, 1956, President Eisenhower signed into law the bill authorizing the program. It is available to producers in the ten Great Plains states—stretching through the Nation's breadbasket from North Dakota to Texas.

GPCP helps ranchers and farmers solve problems of wind and water erosion, drought and other resource related problems with technical and financial aid based on conservation plans individually structured to meet the needs of that ranch or farm.

The first Great Plains contract in the Haskell Soil and Water Conservation District was signed October 21, 1958 by W.L. Holt, Sr., in the Matteson Community and part of the unit is still owned today by W.L. Holt, Jr. The most recent contract in Haskell SWCD was signed by W.W. Buerger. A total of 202 contracts protecting 147,199 acres have been signed in Haskell County.

Grass seeding, terraces, grassed waterways, livestock water facilities, cross-fences, and livestock grazing programs are among GPCP practices on which a landowner can receive technical and cost sharing assistance. The conservation practices in a GPCP plan are scheduled to be applied over 3 to 10 years. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has assigned leadership of the program to the Soil Conservation Service.

All problems aren't solved in the Great Plains, but since the program has been in operation, wind erosion has not caused the tragic damage of the dust bowl days of the 1930s and the drought of the '50s.

The terrible drought of 1980, however, threatened approximately 11 million acres with wind damage. While the disaster didn't happen in 1980, the drought and the resulting threat shows that we can never let down our guard when it comes to protecting our natural resources.

Volunteers Needed For Selective Service CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
 142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

As a part of a nation-wide program to revitalize the Selective Service System, Colonel Paul D. Aikin, the State Director of Selective Service for Texas, is seeking volunteers to become local board members.

A Selective Service local board, once known as a draft board, will be a vital part of the nation's defense if the President determines to return to a military draft in this country. Plans call for 138 local boards in Texas, with a minimum of 690 local board members, including at least one from each county in Texas. Colonel Aikin must complete the job of identifying and recruiting almost 700 board members by the end of August this year. He said, "We need to process the paperwork on volunteer local board members as soon as possible in order to meet our deadline."

The State Director has several Reserve and National Guard officers who may be contacted by any person who would like to volunteer to be a local board member. Prospective board members must be citizens of the United States between 18 and 60 years of age; not be members of the Armed Forces, including reserve and retired status; if previously a board member, have served not more than 15 years; be a resident of the area served; be willing to attend a few hours of training and devote an adequate amount of time serving as board members without pay, if and when appointed.

Colonel Aikin urges any qualified person, who wants to serve as a board member, to contact him at P.O. Box 5218, Austin, Texas 78763, or telephone number 512/397-5945, as soon as possible.

For almost a decade we in government and you in the private sector have been talking about developing a national energy policy.

We have generated enough computer printouts from enough energy use models to bury the entire Congress; and a substantial number of bureaucrats as well. We have generated enough regulations to confuse the most dedicated businessman and make lawyers rich. But until now, we have not had anything that could honestly be called an effective energy policy.

But in all this fruitless search for an energy policy, the planners failed to take into account the most obvious and the most critical element -- the American people and their ability to respond to a changing world.

The Administration is in the process of evolving a policy which will put the people and their marketplace in the center of the equation where they belong. That is not to say government can wash its hands of the problem and walk away.

There is a legitimate role for the federal government in developing new sources of energy, in ensuring energy security and even in regulation. But this role should start where the ability of the private sector to handle the situation ends. We must stop the government from inhibiting energy independence.

All Americans are involved in making energy policy. When an individual decides to form a carpool because the price of gasoline is too high to drive alone, he is helping create a conservation policy. When an independent producer decides to drill an oil well on the hope of a return on his investment, he is implementing a policy of increased production.

Computers cannot gauge human responses to future situations with precision. That is a major reason so many projections of future energy production and consumption have been wrong.

Increased reliance on the market decisions Americans make every day offers a continuing national referendum which is a far better means of charting the nation's energy path than stubborn reliance on government dictates or a combination of subsidies and regulations.

Certain mitigating measures may be required from time to time to avoid unacceptable burdens on one sector of our society or another, but these can best be considered in the context of social, not energy, policy.

The President's action to end oil price controls and to dismantle the burdensome regulatory apparatus associated with those controls was a major step in implementing an energy policy focused on market realities. The challenge ahead is to provide a healthy economy and policy environment that enables citizens, businesses and state and local governments to make rational energy production and consumption decisions -- decisions that reflect the true value, in every sense, of all the nation's resources.

Panicky, piecemeal efforts by government to relieve energy supply and price uncertainties have been and always will be counterproductive.

I know that the citizens, the energy producers and the industries of Texas stand ready to do their share and more in implementing a reasonable energy policy which relies on the traditional greatness of the American people and their ingenuity and resourcefulness.

Highway Deaths Up 95% From '79

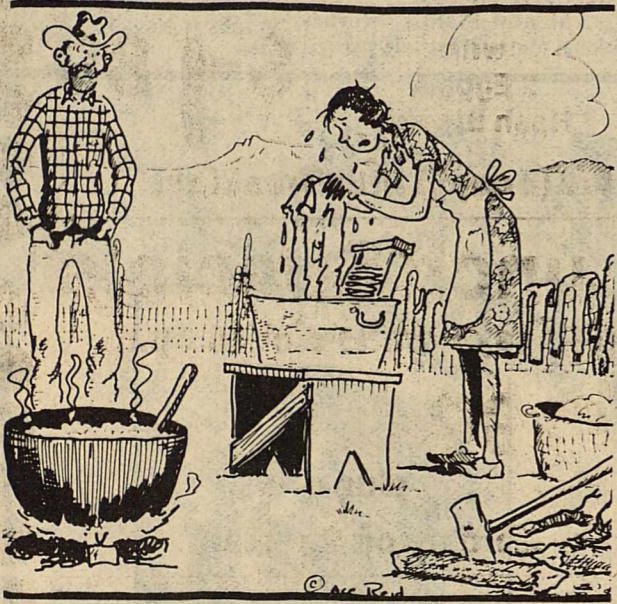

"Over half of the 4,424 persons killed on Texas streets and highways in 1980 were under the age of 29," Major C.W. Bell, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, Region 5, said.

"This is an increase of 4.6% or 95 more deaths than the previous year," Bell said. We are asking you, the Texas motorist, to assist in preventing traffic accidents. Many young people are injured each year due to traffic problems which frequently occur following football games. The extremely congested condition caused by the numerous automobiles makes traffic move slowly after any athletic event.

Major Bell said, "traffic after sports events will be heavy. Please use an extra bit of patience and caution so that you will return home safely. When you leave the stadium, and get into your automobile, remember to drive slowly and carefully."

U. S. Savings Bond Interest Rates Increase

Secretary of the Treasury Donald T. Regan today announced a new one-percent rise in the interest rate for U.S. Savings Bonds and Savings Notes, effective Friday, May 1, 1981.

The interest rate on Series EE Bonds purchased beginning May 1 is being increased from 8 percent to 9 percent, compounded semiannually, when the bonds are held to original maturity. The term to maturity is being shortened from 9 to 8 years.

The interest rate on Series HH Savings Bonds purchased beginning May 1, is being increased from 7½ percent to 8½ percent to their original maturity, which remains at 10 years. Interest on these bonds is paid semiannually by check.

The action will also increase the yield to maturity on outstanding Savings Bonds and Savings Notes. Approximately $70 billion in bonds and notes is presently held by 23 million American households.

In announcing today's decision, Treasury Secretary Regan said: "The billions of dollars in Savings Bonds held by Americans in the Savings Bonds Program are extremely important to our government; they help finance the enormous national debt in a relatively stable, cost-effective and less inflationary manner. Savings Bonds are important to our citizens because, through payroll savings, they provide an easy and convenient way to put money aside regularly and save for the future. I am pleased to announce this yield improvement and hope that today's action will inspire Americans to purchase more bonds, particularly through the popular Payroll Savings Plan."

Informed of the decision by Secretary Regan, James G. Affleck, 1981 National Chairman of the Industrial Payroll Savings Committee said: "I'm delighted with the increase in the interest rate on Savings Bonds. This action provides every American with greater incentive to save. I urge all citizens to buy bonds now. They'll be saving for their own futures--and equally important--the future of our country."

Outstanding unmatured Series E, EE, H and HH Savings Bonds, as well as outstanding Savings Notes (Freedom Shares) will also benefit from a 1 percent increase to their next maturities. The redemption value of E and EE Bonds and Savings

Notes and the interest on H and HH Bonds during periods before their maturity will be improved. In general, the increase will be effective with the first semiannual interest periods that begins on or after May 1, 1981. Maturity periods for these bonds and notes will not be changed.

The rate increase will not be applicable to Series E Bonds issued from May 1941 through October 1941. These bonds will reach final maturity and cease to earn interest between May and October 1981, on the 40th anniversary of their respective issue dates. Owners of the maturing bonds are encouraged to consider exchanging them for Series HH Bonds. All Series E Bonds and Savings Notes, and EE Bonds over six months old, are eligible for exchange, in minimum amounts of $500 redemption value. The exchange offer permits the owner to continue to defer reporting the accrued interest on the E and EE Bonds and Notes for Federal income tax purposes, until the Series HH Bonds are redeemed or reach final maturity.

Present legislation permits the Secretary of the Treasury, with the President's approval, to raise interest rates up to one percent during any 6-month period. The last increase was November 1, 1980. U.S. Savings Bonds, Series E and EE, have had twelve rate increases since the program's inception in 1941. The new 9 percent rate for EE Bonds and 8½ percent rate for HH Bonds will be guaranteed minimum yields to their original maturities. Continuing benefits of Series EE Bonds include their exemption from State and local income taxes, the option to defer Federal income taxes on accrued interest, the low minimum purchase price of $25, and the right to redeem the bonds any time after six months at issue price plus accrued interest.

FCIC Offers Ideas For Wheat Risk Management

"There may be a lot of truth in the old adage that you can't do anything about the weather, but it's no way to run a wheat business. As a result, obtaining protection against financial risks of unfavorable weather has become one of the most important 'survival skills' of farming," says Ben A. Jordan, Jr., Regional Director of USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. "Fortunately," says Jordan, "recent legislation provides farmers with more and better risk management alternatives than at any previous time." On the one hand, Congress is cutting back the ASCS disaster payments program that was considered to provide too little help to too few farmers but, at the same time, it has approved a rapid expansion and major improvement of all-risk crop insurance. The legislation also gives the private insurance industry an important role.

Here's a rundown of the kinds of insurance protection available and where it can be obtained:

Federal All-Risk Crop Insurance is available, as of this year, in every wheat producing county in the nation. It can be purchased from FCIC representatives and from private insurance agents and local lenders authorized to sell and service the insurance.

One of the major attractions of the new insurance protection program is that the government pays up to 30 percent of the premium cost. It also offers discounts, which can climb to as high as 50 percent, to policyholders who have few or small insured losses. And, Jordan adds, all premiums paid for crop insurance are a tax-deductible farm business expense.

The FCIC official also points out that wheat growers can now virtually "write their own policy." They have three choices of yield guarantees and three choices of the price they wish to be paid for each bushel of loss. The highest yield guarantee is 75 percent of local average yield and the highest price that can be collected for each bushel of loss is $4.50.

Wheat growers should be interested to know that a number of private insurance companies are currently offering the same insurance protection at the same cost but under different names. The policies being sold by private insurers may be called by such names as "multiple-peril" or "comprehensive," but like Federal Crop Insurance, they cover all unavoidable causes of loss.

As in the past, insurance against hail and fire damage is also available from private insurance companies. Wheat farmers in areas where hail is a significant risk may wish to have the maximum possible protection by carrying both all-risk insurance and hail insurance. If there is a loss under both policies, it is possible to collect under both policies.

Another possibility under the new program is to carry private hail insurance plus an all-risk policy that specifically excludes hail damage. When a farmer chooses this option, there is a 15 percent to 30 percent discount in the all-risk insurance premium.

"Of course, insurance isn't the only way a farmer can protect his crop investment," Jordan says. "If he has enough money in savings that he doesn't need in his business and that he can afford to lose, he can be 'self-insured.' Or he can be self-insured if, in the event of a crop loss, he is willing and able to borrow additional money that must eventually be repaid with interest. Neither of these alternatives, however, are as attractive as the year-after-year financial security that's provided by an affordable insurance policy."

Firefighters from virtually around the world attended classes at the 52nd Annual Firemens Training School recently at Texas A&M University. Almost 2,000 students were enrolled in the classes which are sponsored jointly by A&M and the State Firemen and Firemarshall's Association of Texas. Pictured above is one of about 25 fire fighting projects. Each project is built to simulate an actual hazard which students may encounter in their city and training emphasizes tactics and safety. In addition to fire fighting projects, classes are also conducted in a wide range of topics including: ladders, hose and nozzle handling, pump operations and maintenance, hose loads, public relations, hand extinguishers, sprinkler systems, public speaking, investigations, arson detection and many more. The school is recognized as one of the best in the world and the facilities are used 50 weeks a year.

Carpetcraft

by Jack Cline

Carpets Fibers

What is the carpet in your home comprised of? Chances are, it is NYLON, with a jute or polypropylene backing. NYLON (100%) appears to be the material most widely used for residential use. However, it could be POLYESTER, OR POLYPROPYLENE. These fibers are also used for conventional carpeting. Here are some definitions you might find interesting.

NYLON—is a thermoplastic polyamide resin derived from a coal tar base, air and water. The fiber was first discovered by DuPont chemists in 1938. Several years later it appeared in carpet and today is the most used carpet fiber. It is made either as staple or continuous filament.

POLYESTER—introduced in clothing, etc. in the 50's, entered the carpet industry around 1973. It has a hand and appearance similar to wool. Technically, it is a complex ester formed by polymerization. It is made either as staple or continuous filament.

POLYPROPYLENE (OLEFIN)—is a long chain synthetic polymer composed of at least 95% by weight of propylene and may be modified with several per cents of another olefin, except amorphous (non-crystalline) polyolefins qualifying as rubber. The fiber is used for conventional carpet as well as indoor/outdoor carpets. Polypropylene, too, is being used in the manufacture of man made backings. The fiber is produced in continuous filament, fibrillated and staple form; solution dyed and piece-dyed.

These materials also find a place in upholstery coverings, thread and legs, and again, NYLON seems to be the most versatile. Would you believe...sitting by the fireplace in something out of coal tar, water and air???

Speaking of upholstery, we are running a special on upholstery cleaning through August 15. We ordinarily charge $35.00 to clean a couch. We will do it for only $23.95 for this period only. (Haskell only)

Sayles-Center Point Reunion Held Aug. 1-2

In the years 1902 and 1904 two rural school houses were built a few miles southwest of Haskell in the communities of Sayles and Center Point. For almost forty years they stood with flags of the red, white and blue displayed.

Through those doors the footsteps of students passed, that today have become leaders in many different vocations and walks of life.

Some of these ex-students, teachers and patrons returned from various parts of Texas and Oklahoma to attend the 14th School Reunion held August 1st and 2nd in the Haskell National Bank Community Center.

A party was held on Saturday night. A variety of refreshments was enjoyed as the group visited and recalled those "Good ole days". Several enjoyed games of dominos.

The group assembled at 9:30 Sunday and were registered by Dessa Mae Jeter, Claudia Mae Bland and Bill Pennington. Coffee and cake was served and the group visited until the noon hour.

The invocation was given by Howard Wright of Ada, Oklahoma. The delicious luncheon was catered by the Haskell Steak House.

A general assembly was held after the luncheon.

Bill and Avis Pennington held a brief and informal business meeting. Officers for the 1982 reunion are Bill Pennington, president; T.M. Jeter, vice-president and Avis Pennington, secretary-treasurer. The reunion will be the 1st Sunday in August 1982 at the same location.

Mrs. Opal (Haralson) Ellis of Abilene presented a very impressive Memorial Service. Using lengths of chair with each name, a loved one or close friend added them one by one to form a circle for the eight ex-students and patrons on our memorial list. The circle was placed around the open Bible as scriptures were read and prayer offered.

In the recognition service the Wiseman and Bland families had the most members present.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harris traveled the greatest distance.

Mrs. Alma (Sprowls) Jettin, ex-teacher of Sayles, Mrs. Thelma (Bruton) Jeter, ex-teacher was present Saturday night. She was a teacher at Center Point. Keith Carney, grandson of the L.M. Jeters was a visitor from Ohio.

There were about 70 registered Saturday night and Sunday. The group departed to meet in 1982 for the next reunion.

CCC Offers Purchase Of Sorghum

Farmers and other interested persons will be eligible to purchase sorghum from the Commodity Credit Corporation starting July 31, 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Burnell Gilleland, Chairperson of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said the CCC will offer sorghum for unrestricted use sale at market prices, but not less than the formula price which is 115 percent of the county loan rate for sorghum where stored plus 97 cents per hundredweight carrying charges.

"The minimum quantity that will be considered for acceptance is 560 hundred-weight", Gilleland said.

According to Gilleland, offers will be received and sales will be made on a first come, first served basis.

Interested persons should contact the county ASCS office as soon as possible for further details. The office is located at 506 S. 2nd, Haskell. Telephone number is 817-864-2617.

Sherbet has a high level of sugar—about twice as much as ice cream. It must contain one to two percent milkfat to qualify as "sherbet."

Malathion Has Safe Record

Despite the public uproar in California about use of the insecticide malathion to control Mediterranean fruit flies, the material has a proven track record of being safe and free of health hazards.

"Malathion has been with us a long time—since the early 1950s—and is one of the most commonly used insecticides by farmers, homeowners and gardeners," points out Dr. Phil Hamman, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Hamman says he has been inundated with telephone calls since the California controversy from people wanting to know about the safety of malathion.

Tests sponsored by the National Cancer Institute have shown malathion to be both non-carcinogenic (not causing cancer) and non-mutagenic (not causing genetic changes).

According to Dr. Bill Plapp, research toxicologist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, malathion is one of the least dangerous insecticides in use today.

"Malathion is routinely used by many homeowners and gardeners to control insects and mites on trees, shrubs, houseplants, flowers and vegetables. It is also used to control external parasites on pets," says Hamman.

In addition, he explains that malathion is used widely to control many different insect pests of crops. For instance, it has been used in large area control programs for boll weevils and grasshoppers in West Texas.

Another major use of malathion in Texas has been for mosquito control programs, points out the entomologist. "Malathion is used almost exclusively to rid urban and suburban areas of disease-carrying mosquitoes," says Hamman. "In 1966-67 and again in 1971, vast areas of Texas, including major cities such as Dallas, Houston and Corpus Christi, were aerially sprayed with malathion to control outbreaks of St. Louis encephalitis and Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, diseases spread by mosquitoes."

The entomologist points out that in all of these uses of malathion, there has been no record of problems involving human health.

Of course, Hamman cautions users of malathion as well as other insecticides to follow commonsense precautions for safe and effective results. This means following directions on the product label, avoiding any unnecessary contact with the insecticide, and washing your hands after use. He also suggests scrubbing sprayed fruits or vegetables before cooking or eating.
