Indians Win Season Finale Over Quanah

Two Tribes of Indians met last Friday night in Haskell and the local Tribe defeated Quanah, 35-6.

Haskell took control of the game from the start and never faltered in their attack.

The Tribe took the opening kickoff and moved the ball 71 yards to the five yard line before giving it to Quanah on downs.

The Tribe defense held Quanah to only three yards on their first possession and Indian quarterback Mark Bailey connected with Monte Moeller three plays later for a 30 yard touchdown.

Quanah moved the ball to the cleven yard like early in the second quarter but a James Davis interception halted the drive. The Tribe failed on a third and eight and were forced to punt to Quanah. Three plays later Davis intercepted his second pass.

The Tribe attempted a field goal with second left in the first half. The attempt failed and the Tribe held a 7-0 halftime lead.

Second quarter action saw the Tribe take total control of the game. Curtis Forehand intercepted a Quanah pass on the third play of the half and returned it 30 yards for a

Indian Joe Benavides intercepted a Quanah pass on their next possession and the Tribe scored four plays later when Aaron Weaver picked up a tumble and carried in for the six points.

For nine seasons we had planned just how things would be, most times beginning plans for next year's season when this year's season was only a few days old.

Each day of hunting started in the black of morning, when over a steaming cup of boiled coffee, I listened intently to stories of another day.

His stories were larger than life, told with vivid detail which you could see, feel and participate in. But with the first hint of grey in the east came the realization that I would never see such sights. With that realization came the anticipation of another such morning.

He taught me the meaning of hunting. Not killing as some people view it, but hunting in the purest sense. He alone understood my joy when I told of the first buck I could easily have killed but didn't.

Sitting around the campfire, watching the firelight sparkle in his eyes, you could see something magical take place.

His conversation drifted back and forth about guns and dogs and shots and seasons.

Listening to the stories of days gone by, it was hard to remind myself that times weren't easier then. The men worked themselves into old age at fifty or so. They struggled on with hurts we wouldn't tolerate a day and kept on because that's all the choice they had. The wrinkles in his face and the scars on his hands were proof, but he never talked about the bad times. Hunting to him was not the final kill, but the enjoyment of being in the midst of God's creation unaltered by man and absorbing the beauty of nature. He taught me to see the beauty of the dew on the spiderweb, the doe scolding the fawn, a quail bathing in dust and countless other miracles which are routine in nature but seen by very few people.

He also taught me that planning the hunt, packing and re-packing gear (much of which was never used but was taken just in case) and the anticipation of the stalk were all more important than pulling the

The joy of watching his children see and experience the beauty of nature and the joys of hunting which he had enjoyed for a lifetime.

It also became apparent to us that our duty to him was in teaching his grandchildren, Jonathan, Jennifer, Jessica, Kristi and Will, to understand and appreciate the beauty of nature and enjoyment of hunting and fishing which he loved it took the offense five plays to move 53 yards. Benavides capped the drive with a five yard touchdown run.

The next Tribe score came early in the final period when the defense held Quanah on a fourth down and took over on the eight yard line. On the next play Benavides broke loose for 92 yards and the score.

4:33 left in the game.

Benavides was the leading ground gainer with 228 yards followed by Hannsz with 70.

The Tribe dominated all aspects of the statistical columns with 15 to 12 first downs, 366 total yards to 161 and intercepting four passes.

I am more aware of artists and artisans every day and more so now that I have seen the articans laying out the foundation for my new studio. The expertise of a contractor, having an adequate laboratory of ideas, requires as much specialized training as a painter with a brush. Planning the studio to make a comfortable workroom and display for area artists has given me much pleasure. Another great pleasure that has been afforded me since moving into the community is walking in the area. I have viewed the described home as a place of lingering sundowns and observed the exciting beacon of tion for all members of that the evening star with its deep blue halo, bringing to mind that there is an Artist with

Q. I have a collection of paintings that are unfinished. What can I do to rework them?

A. Overpainting of a completely dry canvas is questionable as to the adhesion of the new paint. If the surface is alick, you can create a tooth by using fine sandpaper or pumice or other fine abrasives. You did not say what subjects you have so let's talk about a landscape. Take an overall look at the canvas, determine the lights and darks, hard edges and soft edges, warm and cool passages and small objects compared to larger ones. Consider the lights and darks first. Where there is a light value there must be a dark value. Trees are a good example. The dark of the tree is the shadow of the forms and is darker around the trunk. Determine the source of light and make light passages on that side of the tree forms. Soft areas in the tree area are sometimes obtained by painting the sky into the tree tops. Also bringing the sky into the mountain tops will soften those edges. Cool areas are found in the background and middle ground and warm areas are in the foreground. Check this carefully as it does make a great difference. Where you have a large tree, large house or barn, try placing a smaller one of the same kind next to it. This makes for good composition. Delineate some details in the foreground, like larger flowers rocks, grass, etc. Always work with your color wheel for adjusting colors.

Q. Is it better to sketch in color or in black and white?

A. The colored pencils are so exciting and hard to resist when visiting the art supplier. You can make a black and white sketch then treat it with color, using felt tipped pens. This is the quickest and most convenient way to capture an impression of the subject and using a minimum amount of equipment. Make penciled notations as to colors for a guide to develop a painting later in your studio. Some painters use the lead pencil, watercolors or oils. Georgia O'Keeffe set aside her colors and worked in black and white for years to determine the true values from dark to light. Try it, then go to colors, as she Escorted down the aisle by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white chiffonette designed by Michelle Piccione; styled in an empire silhouette. The molded bodice was overlayed front and back with re-embroidered Alencon lace accented with clusters of sculptured pearls and iridescents. This look formed the V'd sheer yoke of Brussels lace with lace Victorian neckline. Long sheer, semi-blown Bishop sleeves fell to a wide wrist cuff of English net overlayed in Brussels lace with self covered buttons. The a-line skirt fell to slipper level to an attached chapel train.

Complimenting the gown was a floor length Mantilla of white bridal illusion, framed in Alencon lace motifs and caught to a lace and pearl nosegay bouquet consisting of white roses, stephonotis and baby's breath tied with baby blue streamers tied with love

Something new was the bride's gown, she wore a cameo broach that belonged to her paternal great grandmother Coker and carried a white linen lace edged handkerchief of her maternal great grandmother Alexander for something old. She wore a blue garter for something blue and wore a six-pence in her shoe for luck, a gift of Mrs. W.A. Lyles of Haskell. Tucked

Maid of honor was Deborah Sue Cox, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were; Young of Ardmore, Ok.; Karen Hiles, Angie Helms and Jill Traylor all of Daingerfield; Hammers, cousin of the bride, of Waukomis, Ok. and Tammy Cornett cousin of the bride, of

The bride chose for her attendants identical carpet length gowns of baby blue polyester with a silk organza overlay fashioned with long sheer slim sleeves of silk organza, a white lace yoke with a lace ruffle at the neck and tiny pearl button closure. The skirt fill in soft fulness from a natural waistline which was marked with a white velvet belt fastened with pearl buttons. They wore matching baby blue pumps and carried nosegays of white sweetheart roses and daisies tied with baby blue streamers.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with white ruffled shirt and red rose boutonnier.

Attending the groom as best man was Mike Taylor of Daingerfield. Groomsmen and ushers were, Jacky D. Kirkland of Ft. Worth, cousin of the bride, Carl Sartain of Jefferson, brother of the groom, Roy Nail, Jimmy Cornelius and Jacky Hiles all of Daingerfield. Serving as junior groomsman was Junior

The groom's attendants baby blue ruffled shirts and wore white rose boutonniers.

Miss Sabrina Combs, neice of the groom, of Hurst was flower girl and Corky Speck, Cresting the cake was a cousin of the bride, of Rochester was ring bearer.

The bride's mother chose a floor length mauve polyester gown with fitted jacket fashioned with long sleeves with permanant pleated ruffles around the neckline down the front and around the hemline and at the bottom of the sleeves. She wore pumps dyed to match her gown and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Jacky D. Kirkland of Ft. Worth registered the guests in a white satin lace covered bride's book bordered in tiny pearl beads and with pearl embroidery made for the bride by Mary Dawson of Tyler. The register table was covered with a white lace cloth and held a blue candle with white gladiola white pom-pom mums and greenery. A white plume pen was used to register with.

The bride's parents hosted the reception in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white lace two tiered floor length cloth. WTU Honors Curly Hays

James L. (Curly) Hays, farm and ranch supervisor for West Texas Utilities Company retired November 1 after serving the company for 43 years.

INTERCEPTION

Curly doesn't seem to have any immediate plans for his retirement, but if he is true to form, he'll be too busy to even know he's reached 65. In fact, at the occasion of his 25th anniversary with WTU in 1964 it took his boss, R.E. (Bob) Kennedy, and others a week to locate him. They finally caught up with Curly in Roby where he was guest speaker at a Lions Club.

Kennedy presented the tall friendly Hays his 25-year pin at the close of the Lions meeting, and said, "We have been trailing him all over West Texas trying to give him this pin. It not only represents 25 years of service with WTU, but also 25 years of devoted service to 4-H Clubs and FFA boys and girls, farmers and ranchers.

Curly came to work for WTU in 1938 after a very successful early life. He was born in Clarksville in 1916, but spent his younger life in San Angelo where he attended schools. He was an outstanding athlete in football, and was named a member of the He was also a member of the National Honor Society for two Following high school graduation, he attended Tulsa University and received a bachelor of arts degree in Business Administration. He also received a bachelor of science degree from Dartmouth. While at Tulsa he was named to the All-American football team as a running back, and to the All-Missouri Valley Conference team for three successive years.

During World War II Curly served with the U.S. Navy and reached the rank of lieutenantcommander. He was active in the Naval Reserve as full commander, and served as a commandant's personal representative in West Texas.

For many years he was busy on weekends during football and basketball season flying all over the Southwest to officiate at athletic contests. He was a member of the Southwest Conference Football Officials Association; the Southwest Conference Basketball Officials Association; and Western Alliance Conference Basketball Officials Associa-

Curly has always been a big all-state team for two years. booster for West Texas towns. He has been active in the Texas Commercial Agriculturists Council, the West Texas Hereford Association which he served as secretary for many years, the Texas Junior Hereford Association, and the Food and Fibers Council of Texas. He also acted as superintendent of the West Texas Fair Fat Stock show, and was a member of the Fair Board of Directors.

He was awarded an honorary Lone Star Farmer and also served as a trustee of the P.T. Montfort Foundation.

In all of his many devoted activities, Curly likely will tell you that work with 4-H boys and girls is his first love. When 4-H club members get together for a district meeting, a Gold Star Banquet, or a Style Review, Curly is always there. He has probably received more hugs from 4-H girls and more handshakes from 4-H boys than any other person in Texas. He served many years as a trustee of the Texas 4-H Foundation. He has stirred the hearts of many young people during speaking engagements as he has admonished them to continue working for their communities' betterment.

Mrs. Quattlebaum began to attack the problem by attending a three week work shop in Abilene at her own expense of time and money. The workshop was conducted by Dr. Joyce Carroll, professor at McMurry, who works with the national writing project. The project is involved with "teaching teachers to teach writing.

During the next step, called writing, students are given specific things to look for in their papers. The students use colored pencils to circle "to be" verbs, underline repeated words and sentences. The students cross out words like 'very" and "alot". This is the process of self-evaluation, and there are thirteen techniques the class will cover during the year. Through self-evaluation, students learn to take the responsibility for their writing. They see colorfully, (through the use of their pencils) that they have repeated a word six times, for example, and on their own, go to the Thesaurus to find a ply assign a composition; synonym. The student always puts a star beside something their papers; the teacher they like so they learn to recognize their good work, as

> The class also does group work during the writing stage. Students read their papers to others in their group and, through peer help, solve problems they are having with their papers.

> Next comes the re-writing. Students rewrite their papers eliminating the errors they have identified. This is also a time for personal conferences with Mrs. Quattlebaum. Here she makes suggestions where the students are still having trouble. She emphasizes that any suggestions, either by other students or the teacher, may be rejected if the student doesn't agree. By the time the teacher gets the finished paper to grade, it is a fairly paper. Quattlebaum can concentrate on what the student has to say rather than marking careless errors. Meeting Set In Olney To Discuss New Program

A public meeting will be held at the Olney High School Auditorium in Olney at 9:30 a.m. on December 10 to discuss the Secretary of Agricultures preferred soil and water resources conservation program which was put together as a result of the Resources Conservation Act (RCA) of 1977.

The Secretary of Agriculture has invited the public to comment on the USDA's proposed program features, expanded roles of local and state government and the targeting of USDA dollars and personnel to conserving critical resource problems. Results of the comments received following the March 1980 RCA meetings held throughout the United States have been reviewed and condensed into three basic plans. These three will be reviewed for discussion at the Olney Meeting.

Alternative one calls for continuing the current trends in USDA soil and water trends, if continued, would result in lower funding and further degradation of soil, water and related resources. Under alternative two the USDA would redirect its programs so that it would target a larger share of its assistance to solving critical resource problems. Under this alternative, resource conditions would improve only slightly from what they are now. The third alternative, the Secretary's preferred program, would concentrate more USDA assistance in areas where soil erosion and other problems threaten to reduce agriculture productive capacity and to increase agriculture production costs. 3 Named To OYMA

The board of advisors for the awards program announced this week that three men have been selected to be included in the 1981 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Heading the list submitted to The Courier was Billy Bob (Bob) McWhorter of Munday, who is vice president of the First National Bank in Munday and active in many civic organizations in the area. In addition to his local activities, McWhorter is also engaged in farming and ranching northeast of Munday.

Others on the list included Louis Alford Cartwright of Houston, Miss. and Joe Craig Combs of Rockwall. Cartwright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Cartwright of Munday, and the grandson of W.A. and Fay Fowler of Haskell.

These men were selected from nominations received from national, state and local officials, as well as the U.S. Jaycees which also endorses this program. The criteria for selection includes voluntary service to the community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advance, cultural accomplishments and civic and political participation.

These men, along with outstanding young men throughout North America, will be featured in the annual awards publication of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Defensive Driving Saves Money

Texas drivers will soon be required to have auto liability insurance -- but those not currently covered can save money on their purchase. The new compulsory liability insurance law goes into effect January 1. Every time Texas drivers are stopped for traffic violations or are involved in an auto accident investigated by law enforcement officials, they will be required to show proof of liability insurance coverage. Drivers will have to be covered for medical expenses of $10,000 per person ($20,000 for two or more persons) and property damage of $5,000.

But most Texas drivers can save ten percent a year for three years on this insurance cost by enrolling in and graduating from the National Safety Council's Defensive Driving Course (DDS).

Administrated in Texas by the Texas Safety Association (TSA), the eight-hour course is taught by more than 600 agencies across the state. Many large employers teach the course to their employees. To find a DDC agency near you, consult the Yellow pages for Driver Improvement or Driver Education. Graduates of the eight-hour course who are insured by rate-regulated companies are eligible for a ten percent

liability, bodily injury, property damage, medical payments, personal injury protection and collision coverage. In all cases, drivers will find the TSA at (512) 451-7421. premium reduction in insurance for three years on first year's savings are more than the $15.00 fee usually charged for the course.

Do you think you have to question one, you were not alone. it is much easier to stick to a diet if you can include a variety of foods, cooking techniques and seasonings in your meal planning.

Commenting on the national survey, Adele McGinty, Area Director for Weight Watchers in West Texas said, "The results indicate the lack of information most Americans have about nutrition and diet practices. Today you don't have to deprive yourself to be slim and healthy.'

Regardless of your individual performance on the quiz, the clear-ineffective dieting is a direct result of diet misinformation. Exercise, diet structure, group support and nutritional guidance through sound leadership are not only part of the Weight Watchers Program for weight control, but the survey indicates they must also be part of any diet program if it is to succeed. As food planning and nutrition education reshapes America's eating habits, weight control for people all across the country will become easier and much more

General Telephone residential or single-party business customers in Haskell and Rule who discontinue telephone service and decide not to purchase their instruments can now return their phones locally if they want to save the charge if the company must send a person to pick up the

The company announced in August that customers now have three options when discontinuing service: return the phone to the company, have the company send an employee to pick up the phones with a pick-up charge being applied, or purchase the phones.

"To make the return of telephones more convenient for those Haskell and Rule customers wanting to return them, we have installed a telephone return depository in Haskell and Rule where they can return the phones and HOLIDAY ave the pick-up charge," Bill Drennan, Brownwood Division Manager said.

Drennan said customers will receive instructions on how and where to take instruments when they contact the Business Office to discontinue their service.

Spray Fruit Trees Now

fruit tree care is forgotten or neglected, but it's a critical time for controlling many peach and plum tree diseases to insure a good crop next

With the arrival of fall, there's often a tendency to forget our peach and plum trees that served us so well last summer, notes Max Stapleton, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Stapleton says that applying fungicide now can stop or reduce three of the six diseases that attack peach and plum trees in Texas. These are peach leaf curl, bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker. Puckered and distorted peach tree leaves that were either bright red or light green in diseased areas last spring were due to peach leaf curl effectively control this disease is in the fall with a copper-containing fungicide such as Kocide 101.

Timing of the fall spary is critical for effective control and for avoiding tree damage, Stapleton explains. Copper is a metal and may cause severe divoliation unless applied correctly.

He advises spraying when 70 percent of the leaves fall off the tree. Spraying too early will cause leaf shed or cause the spray to be ineffective Bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker can be partially controlled by fall spraying with a copper fungicide, Stapleton notes. But again it's important to spray at the right time to prevent foliage burn.

Bacterial leaf spot affects both fruit and foliage. The infection causes fruit to crack and leaves develop angular spots which drop out. Bacterial canker will kill trees slowly. Infected trees will have gum or wax forming on the trunk and main limbs.

Fall spray in northern Texas is most often applied from late October to Nov.15, in Central Texas from Nov. 1 to Dec. 1 and in South Texas from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15. Application time will vary with the season, so Stapleton suggests checking your fruit trees closely.

Fall spraying is important to the health and production of fruit trees, Stapleton says, because there's no other time when 50 percent of peach and plum tree diseases can be controlled with one spray.

Pipelines... make good neighbors

America has over 220,000 miles of petroleum pipelines carrying crude oil and products to refineries and storage terminals across the United States. Each day, more than 1.5 billion ton/miles of crude oil and products move through this network. These pipelines have a safety record second to none in the transportation industry . . . and we want you to help us keep it that way.

GROUND MARKER GROUND MARKER

When you see signs like those shown above, they tell you that there's a pipeline nearby. If it's underground, you can't see it, of course. But it's there, working quietly to provide energy for you and other consumers throughout this nation.

Some of these signs list the commodity transported in the pipeline, the name of the operator, and a telephone number where the operator's representative can be reached at all times.

Although pipelines have an exceptionally good safety record, once in a while a leak can occur. Indications of a leak might include:

- A strange or unusual odor in the vicinity of a pipeline.
- A hissing or roaring sound (caused) by petroleum or product escaping from a pipeline) A dense white cloud or fog.
- A spot of dead or discolored vegetation.
- An accumulation of petroleum

VENT MARKER Avoid creating sparks or sources of heat which could cause the liquids or vapor to ignite and burn. If you find yourself in a suspected vapor area, do not light a match, start an engine or even switch on

 Notify the pipeline operator as soon as you reach a safe area. Call collect. Give your name, a description of the leak and its location. If you do not know who the pipeline operator is, call your local fire, police or sheriff's department, or the state police. Advise them of the nature and location of the emergency. If you see someone digging near a pipeline or doing other construction work . . . or if you plan to do such work near a pipeline yourself please call the telephone number shown on the sign and let the pipeline company know so damage can be avoided. It's in your interest ... and the nation's.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tarps Offer Protection For Cotton Modules

ing in, tarpaulins offer good insurance against weather damage to cotton modules, says an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service

Rain and snow may cause excessive damage to cotton modules stored in the field or gin yard, said Elston K. Grubaugh, the Extension specialist. He cautioned that moisture may penetrate the module and result in serious deterioration of lint and seed quality due to rotting and heating.

"Since the harvest season on the Plains is usually characterized by dry weather, many modules aren't covered with tarps," Grubaugh said. provisions "Nevertheless, modules if wet weather is forecast.'

Snow or rain on unprotected modules can endanger more cotton than any given gin can handle before damage to lint and seed occurs, the agricultural engineer warned. Cotton tarps are usually best suited for protecting modules, he said. In addition to protecting the module, a cotton tarp will permit air movement and eliminate any buildup of condensation under the cover.

"A tarpulin should be at least twelve feet wide and six feet longer than the module so it will still cover the sides and ends of the module after shrinkage," Grubaugh said. In addition to cotton tarps, some manufacturers are offering vented weave polypropylene tarps suitable for tarping modules. When considering polypropylene tarps, be sure they are woven, vented types, not solid polypropylene sheets, he suggested.

Tarps are difficult to hold in place in the windy regions of West Texas. Bringing the tarps down over the sides and ends of a module will help keep wind from blowing under the tarp and loosening it, Grubaugh said. A wire looped around the module and through the tarp pins provides additional assurance of keeping pins and tarps in place, he Securing tarpaulins with ropes placed under the module as it is set on the ground will also help keep tarps in place during windy periods, he said. Only cotton ropes should be used for securing tarps, he noted.

'Make sure black poly twine is not used to tie down tarps. Serious lint contamination resulting in lower lint value can result if poly twine gets mixed in with seed cotton prior to ginning," Grubaugh warned.

Standing water will eventually penetrate tarps. Waterholding depressions can be eliminated, he said, by placing the last stripper dump in the middle of the module builder. "Doing so permits a firmly packed, rounded top that can be protected better with a

Check the tops of modules after every rain and snow and remove all collected water, he

In considering cotton module protection during the period from harvest to ginning, a producer should consult his insurance company for their specific requirements regarding field or gin yard storage of modules, the Extension engineer said.
