

Haskell Receives Sales Tax Check

State Comptroller Bob Bullock today sent checks totaling $43.8 million in local sales tax payments to 974 cities that levy the onepercent sales tax.

"The cities who lean most heavily on oil and gas for their local receipts are still suffering, but the rest of the state is beginning to make up for the drops in revenue we saw earlier this year," Bullock said. So far this year, local sales tax cities have received $353.5 million, less than one percent behind the $354 million total paid by this time last year.

Houston received the largest check, $8.4 million, a 12.5 percent increase from the city's June 1982 payment, but year-to-date payments for Houston are still about 8.3 percent behind last year. Dallas' check for $5.2 million brought that city's 1983 total to $41.7 million, 8.5

percent ahead of last year. San Antonio received $2.9 million, boosting that city's increase over 1982 to 10.7 percent. Austin's check for $1.7 million equals a 16.7

percent rise above last year. Fort Worth's check of $1.7 million represents a 10 percent increase for Midland and Odessa payments still lag behind last year. Odessa's $456,000 June payment leaves 1983 year-to-date payments to that city 32.1 percent behind last year. Midland received $376,000, leaving that city 25.5 percent behind 1982.

Bullock also sent June rebates to the state's two Metropolitan Transit Authorities. The Houston MTA received $9.3 million, up from last June's $8.7 million check. The San Antonio MTA got $1.3 million, up from last June's $976,000.

The City and MTA sales taxes are collected along with the state sales tax by merchants and rebated monthly to the cities in which they are collected by the Comptroller.

The June checks were for taxes collected on sales made in April and reported to the Comptroller by the end of May.

The men, Michael Rosas, 16, and Ramiro Rosas, 22, were apparently swimming with five other members of the family when Michael began calling for help.

Paint Creek Election Set

The Paint Creek School Board has called an election for Saturday, August 13th to elect a trustee to fill the vacancy created by the death of Application to place a name on the ballot can be secured from the Superintendents Office and July 13, 1983 is the last day to make application to file for the three year unexpired term and the drawing for the position on the ballot will be July 15, 1983.

WTU's current construction program, the core of which is the coal-fired power plant at Oklaunion, is the biggest and most expensive in the Company's history. By the time the proposed rates become effective, WTU will have invested more than $84.4 million in new facilities and must spend considerably more in the years ahead to satisfy the growing demand for electricity in West Texas.

The proposed rates would produce an increase in total retail revenue of $26.6 million. This amounts to 11.4 percent.

No major changes in rate structure are included in the proposal. For residential customers, the average electric bill, including fuel costs, would go up by about 13.2 percent, although the actual increase would vary with the amount of usage.

Q. How do you paint sand, deserts and dunes?

A. What is sand? It is a reflection of light on the loose granular rock particles. It can appear red, pink, blue, purple, white and yellow, which are the spectrum colors. Try a basic neutral color, then start mixing the various colors into this to get the desired effect. There is no short cut to painting ripples in sand. CAPITOL UPDATE

It has been 10 years since the Arab oil embargo awoke Americans to the need to regain energy self-sufficiency. The tremendous increases in oil prices after the embargo and the bring on sore muscles, raw U.S. shortage of natural gas during the 1970s made this need

Yet, many of our national energy policies continue to discourage domestic production rather than to encourage it. Despite legislation in 1977 which was advertised as "decontrol" of natural gas prices, producers still must cope with 17 categories of gas supplies with controlled prices.

President Reagan's bold move to lift remaining price controls on oil in January 1981 led to the increase in oil supplies which advocates of this action had predicted. Further, strong, especially between 11 after only a brief period of increased oil prices, cost of crude oil products dropped.

However, the oil industry still is hampered by a variety of punitive taxes. The most serious of these is the so-called Windfall Profits tax. This tax singles out the petroleum industry for a special excise tax on domestic oil production. Proponents of the tax claimed its purpose was to ensure that producers did not reap a "windfall" in the form of additional return on investment as a result of rising world oil

This reasoning is faulty on two counts. First, the return on investment in the energy business is not unusually high when compared to that in other industries. Secondly, most producers depend on revenue from existing wells to finance future exploration. Putting money from the Windfall Pro- dusts. fits tax into the treasury does nothing to reduce the cost of today's oil to consumers, but it does effectively decrease the level of exploration for tomorrow's supplies.

Regrettably, I cannot foresee any action to repeal, or even significantly alter, the Windfall Profits Tax during this Congress.

I am, however, introducing legislation which will restore the depletion allowance for oil and gas exploration. From 1926 until 1969, producers were able to deduct from their taxes 271/2 percent of the gross income from a well as a depletion allowance. This deduction serves the same purpose for mineral producers that depreciation deductions do for manufacturing businesses -- that of allowing cost recovery over a period of time.

In 1969, the percentage allowance for depletion was Legislation passed in 1975 repealed percentage depletion for all oil and gas producers who are involved in refining or retailing. Independent producers and royalty owners were allowed to continue to use the percentage depletion method, but only for a limited amount -- currently 1,000 barrels per day or its gas equivalent. Further, the rate has been reduced to 16 percent for this year and will be lowered to 15 percent beginning in 1984.

My legislation would return the system for depletion allowances to that in existence before 1969.

Additionally, the bill which I have introduced would restore full tax incentives for intangible drilling costs. These costs, for expenses involved in the pre-drilling phase of ex- humans. Some plants have ploration, are subject to the minimum tax instead of being poisonous leaves or fruits. completely deductible as are most business costs.

The intangible drilling cost deduction is important because it is a principal means of inducing investors to put money into the highly risky venture of exploring for oil. My legislation would prevent these costs from being subject to the minimum tax. Both this provision and the one to restore the historical digging, spading, or sawing. percentage depletion allowance would promote increased domestic oil and gas production which, in turn, will help finished. Washington

If we could find a way to create more jobs in the United States without driving up the cost of living, wouldn't it be worth a try? In the past, whole new industries and millions of jobs have been spawned in our country from single inventions. Think of the number of jobs resulting from the invention of the cotton gin or the steam engine or the motion picture camera or, more recently, the integrated circuit.

We must have more inventors searching for new ideas and creating technological advances in order to establish this country's economic base of tomorrow.

But U.S. spending on research and development (r&d), as a share of our total economic output, is lagging. Our civilian r&d effort is not keeping pace with what is being done in countries like Japan and West Germany.

There is another disturbing trend in our r&d spending. Funding of basic research—which gave us breakthroughs like the transistor—is giving way to applied research, which develops products that use transistors. U.S. industry only spends 3.6 percent of every research dollar on basic r&d, down from 7 percent in the

In 1981, Congress attempted to stimulate research and development by offering a tax credit for such activities. But it has not been particularly helpful. It has too many conditions attached to be effective. MIT President Paul Grey reported last spring, for example, that only one research agreement was being negotiated at his school as the result of that tax credit.

I have introduced legislation to improve that tax credit and provide other incentives to encourage basic r&d.

My bill allows firms to claim the 1981 r&d tax credit if they supplement the salaries of engineering instructors at U.S. colleges and universities, where engineering faculties are critically under-

Companies also could claim the full amount of basic research grants to universities and private, non-profit research organizations. The 1981 law permits the tax credit to be claimed only for the amount by which a firm's total r&d spending in a given year exceeds such spending in the previous year.

A deduction would be included for companies that donate scientific and technical equipment, such as computers, computer software and replacement parts, to schools.

My bill also excludes basic research grants, for tax purposes, from the gross income of graduate students receiving the grants. This legislation should combine effectively with two other r&d bills I have introduced. One would establish a presidential task force to make recommendations to Congress on adopting methods other countries use to encourage r&d. The other bill seeks to eliminate a critical shortage of math and science teachers in U.S.

Beefing up r&d spending may well be the most efficient way for any nation to create jobs without pushing up prices.

public schools.

As we seek to expand our nation's commitment to research and development, we must first make sure that government policies help, rather than hinder, our efforts.

The number of older Americans continues to soar. Thanks to good nutrition and advances in medical care, there are now more than 25,000,000 Americans who top 65 years of age and that number increases with each year.

Many senior citizens are rightfully concerned about the best place to spend their 'golden years.' One of the leading residences for retirement living is situated in what many call America's healthiest city—Long Beach, on Long Island's South Shore bordering the Atlantic Ocean. It's the King David Manor, an ultra-modern haven of safety, comfort, convenience, health and pleasure.

Assistance Available To Help With Cooling Bills

Some low-income Texas households may be eligible for help in paying their cooling bills, according to the head of the Texas Department of Human Resources.

Human Resources Commissioner Marlin W. Johnston said the assistance with paying utility bills is available to low-income households who in June 1983 received food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Supplemental Security Income, or needs-tested Veterans Administration benefits.

Potentially eligible veterans are those who receive payments under 415, 521, 541, or 542 of Title 38 of the U.S. Code or under Section 306 of the Veterans and Survivors Pension Improvement Act of Eligibility is limited by gross income. For instance, aid is available for a oneperson household having less than $334.49 gross income per month. The gross income limit is $546.49 for a two-person household, $749.49 for a three-person household, $926.49 for four persons, $1,092.49 for five, and $1,277.49 for six.

Eligible households must be subject to energy cost increases-because of higher bills or rent due to rising utility costs. Households are eligible if they live in privately owned or rented housing even if the cost of utilities is included in the rent payment or if the household pays only a portion of its home energy

Johnston said applications are mailed automatically to households which receive food stamps, AFDC, and SSI. Households receiving needstested Veterans benefits must request an application from DHR in June. If you have not received an application and think your household may be eligible, contact a local office of the Texas Department of Human Resources, Johnston said.

Dear Editor,

This past weekend Haskell was fortunate to have World Champion Barrel Racer, Lynn McKenzie and her husband, Murray holding a Barrel Racers Clinic.

For some reason, this event was not publicized in our area. To achieve the title as a World Champion in any sport is quite an accomplishment, and those of us interested in rodeo feel that an advance article covering this clinic should have been written.

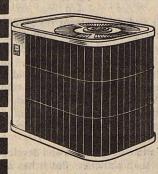

A few fortunate people attended the morning worship service that was held at the rodeo arena at 9:00 a.m. Sunday morning. I wish that all the people who criticize the rodeo profession and think that all cowboys and cowgirls are beer drinking, undiciplined characters could have heard the marvelous testimony that was given by this Christian couple. If the young people who attended this clinic did not learn another thing except to put Christ first and let him take their reins, their three days were well

To hear this young mother and father witnessing of God's hand in their life, made me. appreciate them even more: This team may not come our way again, but if they do, I would encourage your support and that of our churches and community to see that more attend the event.

Very truly yours, Mrs. Virgil (Evelyn) Cobb

The Consumer Alert

by Jim Mattox Attorney General

AUSTIN-It is unfortunate that some businesses have resorted to high pressure sales tactics to entice their customers into purchasing goods or services. However, it is a fact that in some instances salespersons are highly trained in various techniques, which they use to manipulate the "potential buyer" into being an actual purchaser. Surprisingly enough, many consumers may not realize that high pressure sales tactics are being used until it is too late.

The Consumer Protection Act provides relief for those persons who have been victims of high pressure sales tactics. However, the best medicine is preventative medicine. Therefore, I will be pointing out some commonly used tactics so that you may be aware the next time you are approached by a salesperson who uses one of the following:

1. The guilt trip—The idea of this tactic is to make you feel guilty if you don't buy. Example: "You wouldn't want to deprive your children of the education and knowledge these encyclopedias could give them."

2. Statistics-In many instances these salespersons will bombard you with statistics that in some cases are not accurate or are told to you too quickly for you to comprehend.

Example: The government surveyed thousands of people during their productive years and came up with some very accurate figures. Out of 100 people who reach retirement, ONLY ONE will be "well to do"-that means that he or she will have sufficient money to enjoy life with no outside

3. Your last Chance-A salesperson may convince you to make a hasty decision by saying to you that "this is the last one" or "this is the last time it will be offered at this

Example: "You'll get a $500 discount tonight only. If you don't purchase this vacation plan tonight, the discount will never be offered again."

4. Jump on the band wagon-Oftentimes a salesperson will encourage you to buy because everyone else is.

Example: "Your neighbor just bought one" or "everybody who is anybody is buying this product."

5. Assumptive Close-You may notice during a sales presentation that the salesperson talks as if you have already agreed to buy.

Example: "Do you want to sign this spa agreement with my pen or your pen?" By relating to you in such a positive manner, the salesperson may manipulate you into signing a contract.

These are just a few of the high pressure sales techniques used by some businesses.

The banana does not grow on a tree. It grows on an herb-the largest known of all plants without a woody stem or solid trunk.

'Blended fire ants' effective treatment for sting allergies

COLLEGE STATION - A concoction that could be called 'blended fire ants" may be as effective as venom in controlling severe reactions to the insect's painful sting, say Texas A&M University researchers.

Tests on 71 patients of varying ages, most with a history of severe allergic reaction to stings from the imported fire ant, indicate for the first time that medication produced from blended whole body extract is as effective as extract from the venom, said Dr. Barry Paull.

Common Pests Cause Severe Destruction

is a dangerous philosophy when dealing with termites. These common pests are rarely seen or heard as they eat their way through life, but the destruction they cause is proper equipment. too great to be overlooked.

Each year termites cause nore than $500 million in property damage," says Max Stapleton, County Extension Agent, "and that's more than tornadoes, hurricanes and other windstorms combined. They are by far our costliest structural pests.'

Termites abound in every state except Alaska and may be more visible at this time of year when young termites emerge from their colonies in mating swarms. "But even if you don't see a swarm, don't be lolled into a sense of false security. Your home could be infested with termites or even carpenter ants and you would never see a swarm.

Noting that June is National Pest Control Month, Stapleton said that many people tend to confuse carpenter ants with termites but explained that these ants can actually do as much or more harm than termites. Unlike termites, carpenter ants don't eat wood as food but instead excavate galleries as homes. Their colony may nest in unsound or moist wood in your home or somewhere outside, merely entering your house to forage for food. Once either pest begins burrowing in the woodwork of your home, however, its destructive habits can weaken structure and cause hundreds if not thousands of dollars worth of

Of all household pests, termites and carpenter ants are least susceptible to do-itourself treatment. If you think that you might have a termite or carpenter ant problem, chances are you'll eed professional help in dentifying and eliminating

"Out of sight, out of mind" the pests. Because they burrow deeply into wood and often work undetected behind the walls of your home, they're both hard to locate and difficult to get rid of without

> 'If you suspect a problem," don't delay calling an expert to check out the situation. Putting it off will only give pests time to entrench themselves more deeply and do more damage."

The National Pest Control Association warns that termites and carpenter ants are often undetectable to the untrained eye, but suggests looking for these tell-tale signs of a pest problem:

*Piles of wood debris ejected by carpenter ants when carving out galleries;

*Large black (sometimes black and red) ants seen foraging for food in kitchens, pantries, etc.;

*Swarms of winged insects, other than bees, around the outside of your home:

*Obvious damage wooden timbers in your home; *A distinct, dry rustling sound which can be heard behind walls under very quiet circumstances. When seeking professional help, look for a firm that is a member of the national, state or local pest control association. These are established businesses which, through their association memberships, have access to the latest technical information on chemicals, pests and treatment techniques.

Texas Cowboy Reunion Has Become A "Living Legend"

Fifty-three years ago during the great depression, the West Texas town of Stamford was in search of some event which in some way might pull its people and community back together.

So, in February of 1930, directors of the Stamford of Commerce proposed a three day Cowboy Reunion as a publicity and advertising feature to promote Stamford. From that meek beginning was born the Texas years to July 1-4, 1983, the annual event has grown to the West. In over five decades, TCR has become the world's Cleburne Huston, former publisher of the local newspaper, remembers the organizational meeting of 1930. 'Several projects were discussed and laid aside. Finally, rodeo, with attendant attractions, was proposed. Stamford had staged rodeos menting with the fluid-roof defrom the time of its founding in 1900 but with no permanent organization or regularity of dates," said Huston.

"Various names suggested and rejected," continued Huston. "Finally pioneer Stamford photographer Ray Rector rose and spoke the words: 'I move that we call it the Texas Cowboy Reunion. There was a moment of shocked silence in the room.

of territory and was more ambitious than most of us had contemplated. It was like aiming at the stars — a challenge beyond our reach."

Huston says there was neither time nor money to construct an arena or build grandstands. However, a natural amphitheater had

Dr. C. H. M. van Bavel of Texas A&M's College of Agriculture, who has been experisign for seven years, says it requires no additional or external structures, with the exception of an underground storage tank for the water.

"This approach consists of making the entire greenhouse into an active solar collector by using blue-green heat absorbing glass in the roof and allowing water to flow across it," he said. The process lets 66 percent of the light enter the greenhouse, but only 24 percent of the heat radiation.

> 'The barren area had a flat, triangular space, with steep banks on the sides," recalls Huston. "Crude bleacher seats, partly shaded by cottonbagging were built on one side of the ravine. The opposite side of the arena was strictly earthen with ledges carved out for open-air seating.

'It required courageous spectators as well as though cowboy contestants to endure the blazing sun and thick red dust of those first rodeo performances. But people came from near and far and scores of cowboys from West Texas ranches to make this first annual session a glorious success," adds Huston.

Active from the start were cowmen like: A.J. Swenson, manager of the far-flung SMS Ranches, R.L. Penick, one of the founders of Stamford, and Charles E. Coombes, pioneer lawyer and for many years secretary and manager of Texas Cowboy

To the credit of the founders, the Texas Cowboy Reunion (TCR) has become much more than a simple rodeo. "It is in all senses a 'reunion' of men and women, young and old, who came together each summer at Stamford to enjoy the cowhand sports, riding and

Go Ahead, Ask Your Doctor

You've just been handed a prescription. You start to look forward to better health. But what do you know about that drug? Do you understand what it is meant to do? Do you know how to take it? Medicines can have some side effects, and they have to be taken correctly. So, be sure to read instructions carefully, and don't hesitate to ask your doctor about:

When to take the medicine.

Some drugs should be taken on full stomachs, some on empty stomachs, some in the morning, some before going to bed.

 How to take the medicine and how much. With water, with milk or without anything? Should the dose be one or two spoonfuls or what?

 What not to take with the medicine. Some medicines don't mix with alcohol, others shouldn't be mixed with other drugs.

• What side effects the drugs can cause. Medicines may produce a variety of other reactions. Not all people will have the same side effects but you should know what the possibilities are.

There are many sources of information about prescription drugs. Ask your doctor or pharmacist.

TREASURY BONDS

In addition to savings bonds, the government issues three types of treasury securities. Treasury bills, notes and bonds all offer safety, high liquidity, and the earnings are exempt from income taxes at state and local levels.

The first of these is "Treasury Bills" which are issued with maturities of 3, 6 and 12 months. You can buy them in increments of $5,000 with a minimum investment of $10,000. You have protection against theft and counterfeiting since the Treasury Bill is in the form of a book entry with the government.

The second security is the "Treasury Note" which has a maturity of from one to seven years with the longer term paying a higher rate of interest.

The third security is the "Treasury Bond" which has a maturity of five years and longer and may be purchased on a margin account.

Notes and bonds can be purchased in denominations as small as $1,000 and may be issued in either registered or bearer form.

Bonds and notes have a fixed rate of interest, but treasury bills are sold at a discount from the face value.

You can purchase original issue bills, notes and bonds directly from a Federal Reserve Bank without a fee. You may also purchase these through commercial banks and securities dealers to whom you may have to pay a service charge. Previously issued bills cannot be purchased from the Federal Reserve.

Although high grade corporate bonds will yield as much as 2% higher, the interest earned on them is subject to state and federal income taxes.

Check with your tax advisor to determine the year in which this interest income is taxable, because your accounting method will determine the year of includability.

many of the concerns and misunderstandings the process has caused beneficiaries," according to Glyn Hammons, manager of the Abilene social security office. Congress mandated in 1980 that all disability cases be reviewed periodically to insure the integrity of the program. Many beneficiaries are not aware of this change in the aw, nor are they familiar with the review process, how it is done, or what their rights and responsibilities are.

As of October 1, 1982 all disability cases selected for periodic review will first be interviewed by Social Security personnel in local district and branch offices, rather than having the case released directly to the state Disability Determination Services (DDS). "This will allow face-to-face interviews with disability beneficiaries whose cases have been selected for review," Hammons said. "The interview will afford Social Security an opportunity to obtain information about the beneficiary's medical treatment and current medical condition, and in addition, to enable us to fully explain and review process. We will also ensure that the review is indeed appropriate before we send it to the state DDS."

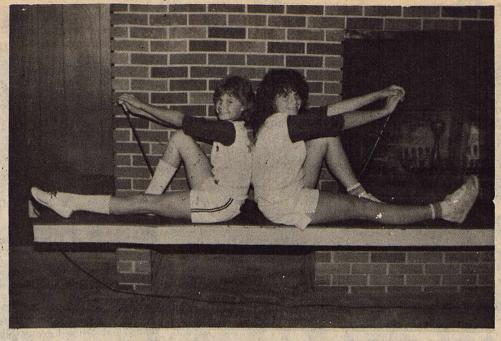

All of the more than 1,300 Social Security offices nationwide are participating in the processing of these reviews. The agency anticipates reapproximately 640,000 cases across the country within the next year.

Each student is tested in three areas, mathematics, reading, and writing, (handwriting, composition, and mechanics.)

82.1% of our third graders successfully mastered all the mathematics session. 98% of those tested were able to successfully multiply whole numbers. Their weakest area in math was in units of measure where only 59% were successful. 86.87% of these students were successful in reading. 98% were successful in the objective of being able to follow directions. Identifying the main idea was the lowest area where only 66% were successful. 80.2% of the third graders were successful in writing with students scoring 98% mastery in spelling for high and 66% mastering in sentence structure for low.

is referred to as the exit level test. We require the students to repeat the test until successful. In other words if they fail to meet minimum requirements on any one section, they must repeat that section the following year. On the mathematics section 81% of the students successfully completed the mathematics objectives with addingsubtraction whole numbers being the highest success rate and solving of personal finance problems being the low. 80% succeeded in reading with drawing conclusions and using maps and charts being the highest and using parts of books being the low. 100% of the 9th graders succeeded in writing.

The 9th grade students, 9 in. math and 10 in reading will be required to repeat these sections next year. We will do remedial work with these students in the objectives in which they show weaknesses.

We have been charting the results of the TABS test since their origin. Haskell ISD has shown a slow but steady progress. We are certainly not where we want to be; but with public and parent support, maybe we can reach lofty success on these tests.

A Series Of Informative "Plain Talk" Thoughts Regarding Your Money Matters

Where Does Your Money Go?

Sometimes there's a tendency to think of banks as cold, impersonal places that have alot of money. Well, some aren't as friendly as they should be and most banks do have a considerable amount of money.

Our idea of banking is that a bank should never forget just whose money is deposited with them. We don't! We put your money to work for you right here at home where it belongs. We loan money to area farmers in ag loans. We make commercial loans to community businesses. To you individually, we make real estate loans, auto loans, student loans and installment loans.

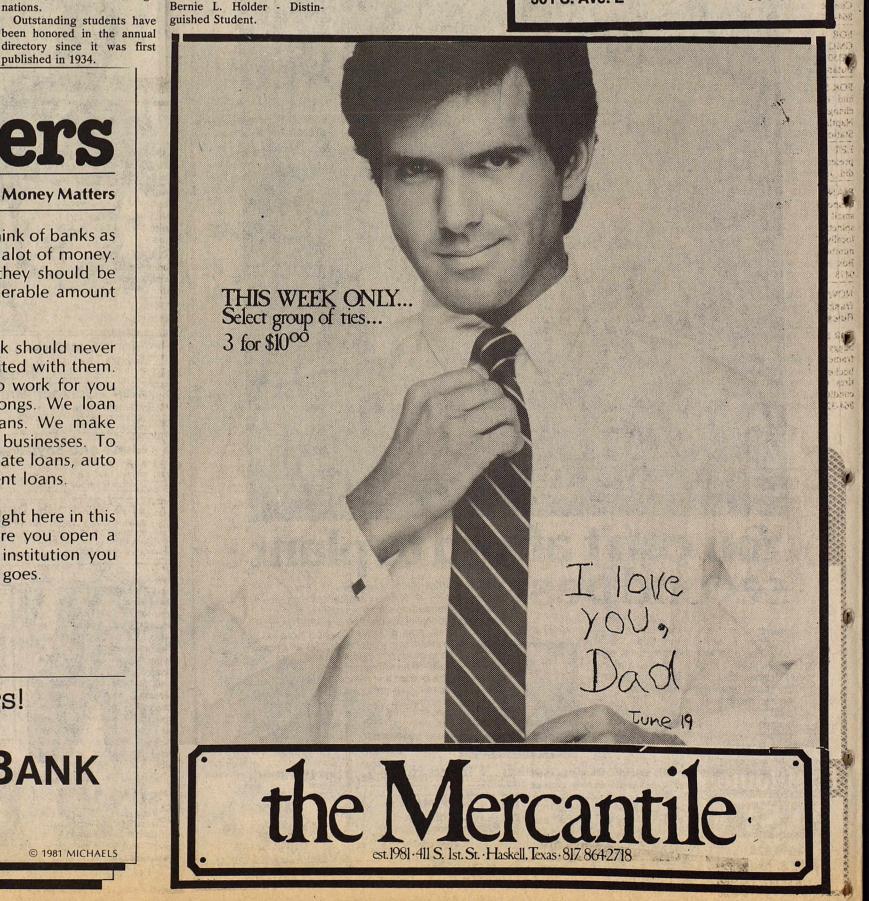

Your money is being put to work right here in this community to help it grow. Before you open a savings account at any financial institution you should find out where the money goes.
