Gym, Weight Equipment Available For Summer Use

The Muleshoe I.S.D. High School gym and Weight Equipment area located at the high school gym are available for student and community use this summer. The gym and weight training equipment are open on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday from 6 to 9 p.m. and on Sunday afternoons.

"Anyone using the weight equipment must do so at their own risk," according to the school. Further, posted safety instructions and precautions shall be strictly enforced and supervised by the coaching staff. Safety comes first in any weight training activity."

Road Named After Hometown

When someone now asks Linda Magnan for her address she usually gets an odd remark. She has had their road renamed to Jennyslipper Dr. Bell county has been deleting duplications and confusing street names in order for 911 system to go on line.

The old road name was similar to a street in the city and needed changing. When a notice was placed in the local paper regarding the suggested name, Mrs. Magnan took the matter into her own hands.

Instead of the dull mentioned name she wanted an unusual name with personal meaning. Bell County submitted the name with no objections and the new name was in place.

Bell County now has the 911 system up and working with Jennyslipper Dr. as one of the many road names.

Linda is the daughter of the late L.A. and Beulah Gatewood of Muleshoe.

REMEMBERING HER HOME TOWN-- When Linda Magnan gets homesick for her hometown, all she has to do is take a look at this road sign. She had the road name changed recently in memory of her home town, Muleshoe, Texas. Ms. Magnan is the former Linda Gatewood. (Journal Photo)

Recently, weight training equipment was relocated into the high school gym, to provide better access to the equipment for all. Also, there is a summer youth league basketball program for high school age boys and girls that is being conducted in conjunction with Springlake-Earth. This program is new for the area and is intended to provide an arena for area players to showcase and further develop their team skills.

Also, area young people will have a place to go and activities to participate in locally. This program is being developed and supervised by the coaching staff at Muleshoe.

Summer Basketball Camps for young players will begin the week of June 15. Contact Coach Leon Hagerman for more details.

Later this summer, coach Ted Leps is planning on conducting a Baseball Camp for young players and Coach Terry Graves will conduct a Tennis Camp for youngsters.

Next summer look for a Multi-Sports Camp for area young people. Contact Muleshoe Athletic Director Randy Adair for specifics on these and any other programs at Muleshoe I.S.D. athletic department.

According to Coach Adair, "We want to develop a total program in our community. We want to provide access to our facility as well as programs that involve our young people and our adult population. We also want to create a relationship with our community and better serve one another. We fully intend to be the best and have the best school district we can possibly have, this includes our athletic department. We also want to promote our belief in an educational athletic program where kids do all sports and are exposed to a wide variety of activity and learning situations."

Also, anyone who has any interest in officiating football, basketball or both are encouraged to contact Coach Adair. "Our community can support a sub chapter for officiating purposes. District 2AAA Rules will require SFOA officials in 1992-93 for all contests. This is a good opportunity to pick-up some extra income but more importantly provide a true community service to our young people. By district rural local school coaches will not be used in local games. There is a need for a min. of six to eight local Cont. Page 6, Col. 4

School Board Discusses Alternative School

Cindy Purdy called the regular meeting of the M.I.S.D. board to order Monday night and recognized the guests. Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read.

Following a discussion, the amendments to the budget were approved.

A discussion was held on the status of the food service employees. Superintendent Bill Moore recommended that the school maintain the employees as the school's employees for the coming year. His recommendation was approved.

The Alternative School Interlocal agreement was also discussed. Moore stated that it would involve nine districts.

Moore stated that the alternative school would be a fast track graduation service, targeting students who have already dropped out or are a candidate for becoming a drop out. "The school would have the required minimum 21 credit graduation," said Moore. "We are modeling it after programs started elsewhere. I think we have students who are clients."

When asked about transportation, Moore stated, "We would provide the transportation. It would also have a child care component.

It has been recommended that the school be placed at Pep, approximately 39 miles from Muleshoe. Start up cost for the project is in the neighborhood of $180,000. The school would employ four academic teachers, four vocational teachers, a principal and a counselor.

"We are moving a big second grade class to DeShazo next fall and we need two more classrooms," Moore stated. "Another big kindergarten class is expected in the fall, 104 students have pre-enrolled

Controlling Irrigation Water

"Irrigation water management is controlling the amount and timing of irrigation water efficiently to produce desired crop response, in a non erosive or wasteful manner," says Warren Givens, Soil Conservation Technician. A knowledgeable irrigator will apply water at a rate based on the stages of plant growth and or peak use periods.

Producers should know available gallons per minute each well will pump, depth and intake rate of the soil, and to derive at the amount of water to be applied.

The Soil Conservation Service has the equipment for measuring gallons per minute and checking efficiencies, also soils and plant information. Updating your system will pay in most every situation. Surge valves and pivots will increase your efficiency by allowing more timely irrigations in less time to crops.

Weaker water areas, planting a variety of crops across the field will give you the advantage of high residue to low residue rotation and peak usage occurring at different times of the year.

The Soil Conservation Service located at 105 E. Ave. D. has information to assist local producers on these decisions.

Programs and services of the Soil Conservation service are offered on a nondiscriminatory basis without regards for race, color national origin, age, sex, religion, marital status or handicap.

and 25-30 more are expected. We need another secretary for grade school."

Moore recommended a 25 cent per hour pay raise for the lunchroom workers, since they did not receive a raise last year. No action was taken on this issue.

Curtis Shelburne, board member, read thank-you letters from Kristi Phelps, Kerry Moore, Teacher of the Year recipient; and Elizabeth Watson, who is retiring.

Following the reports of Superintendent Moore, Buck Johnson, and Elizabeth Watson, Mrs. Purdy adjourned the meeting for a recess.

During the recess, the board presented Mrs. Watson a garment bag.

Winning Grits Go International

Martha White's 1992 World Grits Festival Recipe Contest winners have just been selected. This year's $1,000 Grand Prize for the "Greatest Grits" recipe was awarded to Diane Fletcher of Hernando, Miss., for her innovative Grits Yorkshire Pudding.

"It seems that Americans have become very sophisticated about foods--even grits," said Linda Carman, director of consumer affairs for Martha White Foods.

Simmering Apple Slices

- 2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 tablespoon apricot preserves
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- pinch of salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 2 baking apples peeled and sliced into 8 pieces each
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pistachios

Combine brown sugar, butter and apricot preserves in small bowl. Microwave on high until butter melts and preserves soften, 45 seconds to 1 minute. Stir in nutmeg, salt, sugar, orange juice and cornstarch. Microwave on high until thickened, 4 to 6 minutes stirring several times.

Arrange apple slices in a large microwave dish. Spread hot sauce over apples. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave using Sensor Cook for Fresh Vegetables, soft. Or with other microwaves: Microwave on high 5 minutes. Reduce power to medium-high. Microwave until apples are tender crisp, 3 to 5 minutes. Allow to cool 5 minutes before serving.

Sprinkle with pistachios. Serve alone or over vanilla ice cream or sponge cake.

True Enough

Any government that is big enough to give you everything you want is big enough to take everything you have.

-Record, Columbia, S.C.

"The judges were particularly impressed by the variety of recipes with an international flair. In fact, most of this year's winners were inspired by cuisines from around the world."

Grits Yorkshire Pudding is an example of how plain old grits can transform even a traditional British recipe into a new Southern specialty. A common accompaniment to a roast, Yorkshire pudding is usually a crusty, puffy bread cooked over the meat drippings. Ms. Fletcher added cooked grits to the easy batter and baked it in a hot iron skillet filled with rich meat juices. The result is almost like a grits spoonbread with the robust flavor of a slow cooked roast. The key to great results is starting with rich meat juices.

The $500 first prize in the main dishes category was awarded to Debra Nelson of Charleston, S.C. Classic French cuisine was the inspiration for her Chicken Cordon Grits. Grits turns this elegant dish into a home-style family favorite. The one-dish dinner features breaded chicken breast pieces baked over a layer of ham chunks and creamy Swiss cheese grits.

Suzi Dacus of Cordova, Tenn., complemented grits with two trendy green ingredients--pistachios and cilantro. Her Pistachio Grits Pilay is prepared just like the worldly rice dish with sauteed onions and chicken broth. Substitute this sophisticated grits side dish instead of the usual rice to add style and a surprise to the menu.

Aloha Grits captured the first prize in the desserts category. Kalana Clark of Helena, Ala., borrowed the flavors of Hawaii--pineapple, coconut and macadamia nuts for her winning recipe. The baked pudding is reminiscent of a tropical rice pudding accented with a crunchy nut topping. Kids will love the creamy pudding after school or tote this exotic dessert to a potluck supper.

Martha White sponsors the contest in conjunction with the World Grits Festival of St. George, S.C. This year's festival was held April 10, 11 and 12. Thousands of grits lovers converged on the sleepy little town to visit the working grist mill, see the queen of grits and enjoy the grits parade.

Focus On Quality Of Nursing Home Care

By Bob Witham
President, Texas Health Care Association

They say there is a time and a season for everything, and it appears that now just could be the time and season in Texas for improving the quality of care available for the poor and middle class elderly and disabled who need around-the-clock nursing home care.

Today, about 70 percent of the Texans living in nursing homes are dependent on the state's Medicaid system to pay for their care. Under these circumstances, the quality of care available in nursing homes is virtually dependent on what Texas will pay for care.

Over the last several years, health care professionals and other care givers working in nursing homes have been warning state officials that the continual pressure to care for sicker, more frail patients with higher medical needs, coupled with continual pressure from the state to limit expenditures for care, is critically threatening the quality of care these individuals can receive.

Nursing home patients, along with their family members, friends and volunteers who visit, have been able to see it. They see how hard the nurse aides, licensed nurses, social workers, dietary staff, medical directors and others work everyday, and they know how thin these staff members have been stretched to try to meet the needs of each and every patient.

Recently, however, nursing home resident advocates and care givers have not been alone in calling for change. Governor Richards has stepped in and called for higher standards of care and better regulation. She has encouraged Texans to expect better than the care that was provided in the past, or is being provided now.

She has also called attention to the terrible dishonesty of our system: Texans deserve and want good quality care for their elders and disabled, but Texas leaders--unlike their peers in other states have been unwilling to commit our tax dollars to provide better care. Now it is time for the Governor and the Legislature to show the courage to make better nursing home funding a priority on behalf of our elderly and disabled.

Texas lags behind 45 other states in what it pays for the care of each nursing home patient. More specifically, Texas only reimburses nursing homes an average of $54 a day to care for each patient, while the national average is more than $75 a day. That means that the average nursing home nationally has $40,000 to $100,000 more each month in operating capital than the typical Texas nursing home. This is money Texas facilities do not receive to increase staffing, improve staff training, provide employee benefits like health insurance to stabilize employees, and do all the other things that could enhance the quality of care and life for nursing home residents.

A recent study by the State Auditor concluded that the way Texas determines Medicaid payments to nursing homes does not promote quality care. In fact, it discourages quality care, and this system makes it virtually impossible for a nursing facility to provide the quality of care now being demanded by the Governor if these facilities try to care for a large percentage of Medicaid patients.

So what we have here are two voices of state government sending conflicting messages to nursing facilities: one voice is telling the facilities to improve care, while the other is telling facilities that the state will not pay for better care. It is up to our state leaders to demand that state government carry out a consistent policy.

The new Texas Commissioner of Health, Dr. David Smith, recently laid out a strategic plan for improving both the regulation of nursing homes and the quality of care in nursing homes. His proposals are sound, emphasizing better training for inspectors, consistency in the inspection process, more community involvement in facilities, and quality assurance programs in nursing facilities. In addition, his plan calls for supporting a Medicaid reimbursement system that allows facilities to improve the quality of care.

Meanwhile, the Texas Health Care Association, a professional organization of about 850 licensed long-term facilities, has begun developing a continuous quality improvement program which its member facilities can institute to progressively improve care.

So there are good signs on the horizon that care is on the way to improvement. The vast majority of nursing facilities--and the vast majority of the 90,000 people caring for Texans in nursing homes--are quite willing to be accountable for good quality care. But voters, consumers and state leaders must also demand that nursing homes have the financial resources necessary to continue this progress. Otherwise, the public, the elderly and the disabled will only feel betrayed when real improvements cannot become reality.

Free people, remember this maxim: We may acquire liberty, but it is never recovered if it is once lost.

Miss Marla Suzahn Inman became the bride of Rocky Lee Horton, Saturday, June 6, 1992 at 7:00 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Clovis, N.M. The ceremony was performed by Dale Rouse, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clovis.

Parents of the couple are Marlon and Karolene Inman of Farwell, TX. and Corky and Peggy Horton of Clovis, N.M.

Vows were exchanged before an altar adorned with a 58 candle double arch flanked by spirals to form a heartshaped background. These were intertwined with Swedish Ivy and large bouquet of blue roses, lilies and wood poppies tied with ice blue satin ribbon. Large Diffenbachia, Ficus trees, Hawaiian schefflera trees and baskets of Eucalyptus, Danica grape ivy with roses and wood poppies. Two 9 branch votive candelabra arrangements with flowers and ribbons on the altar railings, large 4 foot grapevine wreaths with blue flowers accented the back walls on either side of the baptistry completed the altar decorations. All arrangements and corsages were made by the brides' mother, Karolene Inman. Family pews were marked with white lace with pink tubing bows and blue rosebuds.

Chris Rouse of Clovis sang "There is Love", accompaniment by Nancy Gressett, of Clovis, on the organ, before the ceremony. Chris also sang "I Could Never Promise You" during the lighting of the Unity Candle. The Unity Candle was lit by the mothers' of the bride and groom as the bride approached the altar escorted by her father. The Handbell Choir of the First Baptist Church played "Joyful, Joyful," "We Adore You" during lighting of candles, "Morning Is Broken" as prayer response and the "Recessional."

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white satin gown with a modified wedding band collar featuring a keyhole opening with dangling pearls, a beaded bodice and a basque waistline. Her waist length veil was attached to a pearl tiara. The brides' elegant outfit was completed with Reebok tennis shoes.

For something old the bride wore a gold bracelet that was worn by her great grandmother, Pearl Thompson Towns, her grandmother, Mona Towns, and her mother on their wedding days. Something new was a pearl encircled necklace given to her by the groom. Something borrowed was the blue garter worn by her mother which featured a blue glass button from her grandmothers wedding dress. Something blue was a navy garter and the light blue garter for the groom to throw. For luck she wore 3 sixpense in her Reeboks, minted in the bride and grooms years of birth and the year both sets of parents were married.

The brides' bouquet consisted of white roses, small poppies with pearl centers, gypsophila artfully tied with pearls. The cascade design also featured pearlized ting-ting and grapes, with iridescent leaves.

The Maid of Honor was Twila Rutter of Tokyo, Japan. The bridesmaid was Lezlie Castleberry of Clovis.

The attendants dresses were navy blue polished cotton print with ice blue and tiny pink flowers, featuring draped off-shoulder necklines and English lace accent. There's No Such Thing As a Safe Tan

With summer just around the corner, countless sun-worshippers will once again try to attain that perfect "golden tan." But, whether gained by lying on the beach, or through an indoor tanning bed, medical experts agree, there's just no such thing as a safe tan.

Skin cancer, the most prevalent of all cancers in our country, affects approximately 500,000 Americans each year. And the principal cause of skin cancer, according to Doris Scales R.N., B.S.N., O.C.N., oncology nurse specialist at Methodist Hospital, is overexposure to the sun. "We know for a fact that overexposure to the sun can cause such things as skin cancer, premature aging of the skin, and serious eye problems," Scales said.

Sunburn prevention and early detection are the best defenses against skin cancer. Scales suggests the following tips:

*Avoid the sun when its rays are the strongest-from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

*Always use a sunscreen with an SPF of at least 15, and wear a hat, shirt and pants outdoors whenever possible.

*Do not use sun lamps or tanning beds. According to experts, such beds are even more dangerous than a burn caused by the sun. Rays emitted from tanning beds penetrate deeper than those from the sun, and can cause damage to elastic tissues, blood vessels and collagen.

*Be on the lookout for any mole that has an abnormal shape such as a ragged border, an uneven color and is larger in size than a pencil eraser. Watch such moles for changes in border, color or diameter.

*See a doctor immediately if you have a mole which is itchy, inflamed or crusty.

For more information on cancer prevention, contact Methodist Hospital's Hodges Cancer Center at (806) 793-4214, the American Cancer Society or your physician.

MICROWAVE TIPS

One can microwave roasts in a nylon bag at 50 percent (Medium) in about a half hour or slightly more time.

In doing this, vegetables can be added to the bag. They'll provide moisture and help tenderize the meat.

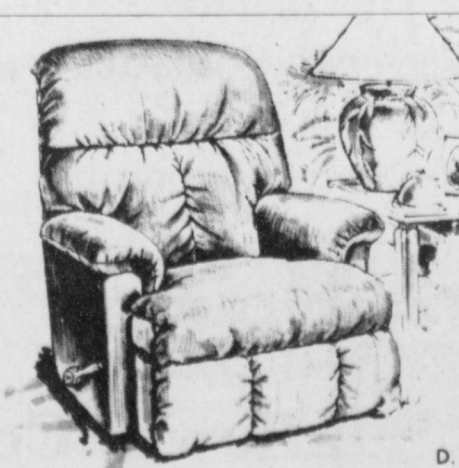

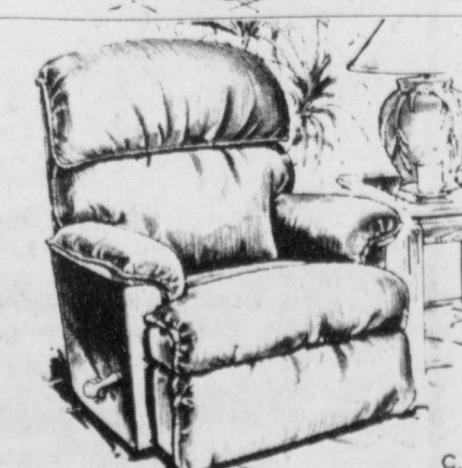

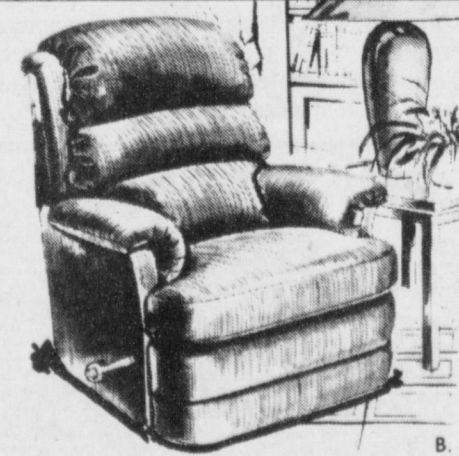

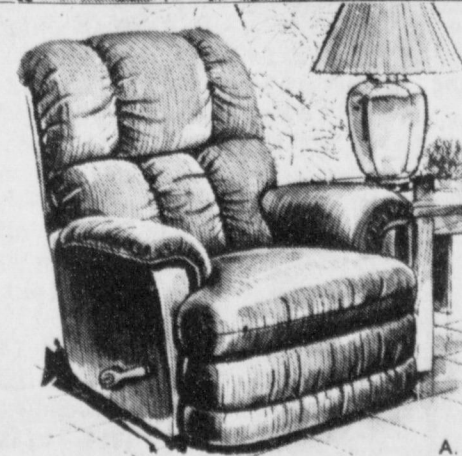

Don't pierce the bag, as is often done to allow venting, since after half microwaving time the bag is turned over. Rather, tie the bag loosely at the top, which will allow some venting.

Curiosity About Butterflies Led To Collection Of 100,000

Not having a net to catch insects with during the 1920's taught a Kansas boy to capture nature with patient, watchful curiosity.

Butterflies were especially appealing to young Roy Kendall, but not for their beauty or hypnotic flight. Kendall was touched by the wonder of their colors and the reasons they danced on petal tops.

"As a kid, I was always fascinated by, let's say, Mother Nature," recalls Roy Kendall, 80, of San Antonio. "But I didn't have anything to catch bugs with."

Eventually Kendall learned that a jar and lid or merely two cupped hands could land a butterfly and bring him closer to understanding the exquisite winged insect. Kendall and his late wife, Connie, pursued the flighty creature for almost 40 years, gathering a 100,000 - specimen collection of Lepidoptera, or moths and butterflies, in all stages of life.

His collection, deemed an invaluable research tool by scientists around the world, soon will move from a laboratory at his home to the newly designated Roy O. and Connie A. Kendall Entomological Collection at Texas A&M University's entomology department.

"His collection is well known to people in science. One of its strengths is that Kendall collected the immature stages of each butterfly, not just the adult," said Dr. Horace Burke, insect collection curator at Texas A&M.

Butterfly collections often include the adult insect but not the egg, larval or pupa stages. Kendall's collection includes those stages plus many of the insect predators and parasites and information about plants that host the butterflies and moths.

The international importance of the collection lies in its extensive scientific documentation; the Kendalls made more than 25,000 pages of detailed field notes and laboratory records on their specimens, Burke noted.

But because the Kendalls gathered butterflies for several decades, the collection also will provide a baseline for determining environmental changes that may affect the insects.

"None of these butterflies are on the endangered list now, but if they are in the future, we could compare changes in the new ones collected to those of the past," Burke said. "To measure loss of biodiversity in an area, for example, it is necessary to know which organisms occur there."

"Change takes place slowly in butterflies," Kendall said. "But if we know their life history, that can tell us the impact of human beings on the insect."

Since his first specimen was collected in 1955, Kendall has trekked across Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and into Mexico where he spent at least five winters in search of the insects.

When all stages of the insect's life could not be found in the wild, Kendall often reared them at home.

"There is no way you can really know an insect without rearing it," he reasoned. "And I don't mean rear it one time, because each time you do, especially if you collect immatures in the wild, you will find out something new to science."

His collection has been examined and studied by scientists, about 10 previously unknown butterflies have been named for him and his wife, and numerous journal articles have described his findings, but Kendall insists the collection is a hobby.

As he "lectures" on Lepidoptera, Kendall projects the image of a professor emeritus -- his bald head outlined by short white hair, wiry grey eyebrows rising above spectacles that magnify intense blue eyes. But his use of proper scientific terminology was gained from practical hands-on experience rather than doctorate-level studies. Kendall, a former civil servant associated with the military, admits to never having a course in entomology.

But the Lepidoptera, many never described in the annals of science until Kendall's documentation, provided ample material to study.

"There are roughly 450 species of butterflies and about 5,000 species of moths in Texas alone," he said.

Most butterflies and moths are of little economic importance as pests, Kendall said. Sometimes in a drought, when the natural plants are not available, butterflies will do some damage to commercial crops. But that's rare.

Some pollination of fruits and vegetables can be attributed to these insects, he added.

Collecting is a search-and-find mission of either walking through the insect's preferred region or sitting to observe. Often Kendall's wife would work the net and the vials. "She did the collecting and I the observing," he said.

It's detective work. To understand the life cycle, one has to observe the host plant and the behavior of the two sexes.

"With a little experience, you can tell that it's a female searching for larval plant food on which to deposit eggs," Kendall explained.

"I rarely chase anything," Kendall said. "I would rather watch and if the butterfly lights, I slowly work my way up there to find out what it is doing."

The best part is learning a butterfly or moth life history, especially when it has not been documented for that creature, he said.

For now, Kendall is preparing his collection for its trip to Texas A&M much like a parent sending a child to camp, making sure everything is labeled before it is carefully packed.

But he won't say the last butterfly has been collected.

"Butterfly-wise, I probably have the best collection anywhere," Kendall said. "Moth-wise, I haven't touched the surface yet."

Letter To The Editor

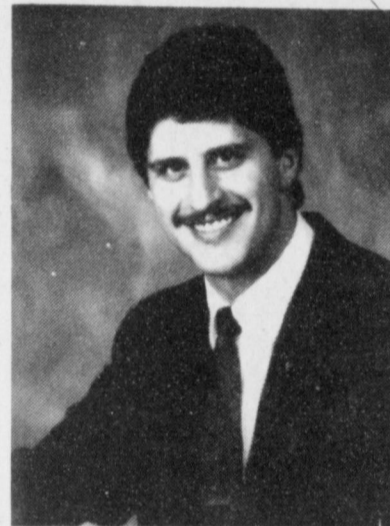

June 10, 1992

Dear Editor:

Several individuals from the Eastern New Mexico area have expressed interest in having a review course for Certified Public Accountant (CPA) Exam available locally. The nearest available courses are in Lubbock and Albuquerque. In order to determine if enough individuals are interested in order to offer this course as a public service, it would be helpful if you could run an announcement such as the following in the appropriate section of your newspaper.

"Accounting Education Programs is offering an intensive CPA review course in Clovis in preparation for the Fall, 1992 CPA Exam. The classes start on August 22 and meet on weekends. Dear Sir/Madam:

I am that family historian who wrote the letter of April requesting help on finding information on my Great Grandfather, John Denton Ball brother of Robert Green Ball. Since writing that letter I have received the very valued assistance of two of your local citizens. I would like to thank them both for their efforts and to let the community know what generous and kind people these two individuals are.

First, I want to thank Frank Ellis of the Ellis Funeral Home. Mr. Ellis made many phone calls, searched records, wrote letters and generally spent hours of his personal time to assist me in my search for information on my Great Grand Dad. His efforts are greatly appreciated by my family. We will soon be able to file a delayed death certificate and make certain that our relative will have a complete and permanent record to replace the scattered confused, bits and pieces of information, that have till now been elusive.

Secondly, thanks goes to Mrs. Wood of Avenue H, Muleshoe, who read my letter in the Muleshoe Journal and was kind enough to offer her assistance. She informed me that she remembers hearing about my relative and was raised next door to my Great uncle Robert G. Ball and his family. She continues, to this date, to search out further information and says she will not write me unless she finds further information or gives up. She has not given up.

Since my last letter to the editor I have learned that my Great Grand Dad was also called "Dee", "J.D." or

"John". He was married to Laura Alice (Marlett) Ball, my Great Grand Mother, who passed away in about 1931, only 2 years after they moved to Earth from Oklahoma, he married secondly 'Goldie' or 'Golda' Stovall. Goldie had a son and daughter from her previous marriage, their names were Minnie Parrish (husband Cecil Parish), Minnie's daughter was named Gwendolyn, and Goldie's son was named Garland Stovall. My Great Grand Father was said to have owned a movie theater in Earth (or Olton?) according to my Uncle "Tom" Ball (Lemuel B. Ball, Jr.) as well as some land out of town.

I am giving this additional information in hope that it might reach those people mentioned or their children and spark memories. While much has been uncovered I still search for information from those who remember....

Sincerely,
Deborah Lee Ball

UNOs Release 1991 Transplant Studies

The number of organ transplants performed in the United States in 1991 increased by only 4 percent over 1990, according to preliminary statistics released by UNOS. The annual increase had been 14 percent the year before. Although the total number of donors for 1991 grew by 3 percent over 1990, the total number of donors had grown by 12 percent the year before. The number of cadaveric donors has remained relatively constant over the last two years at about 4,500. As of April 15, there were 26,463 registrations on the national organ transplant waiting list.

On the following chart, each heart-lung transplant is counted as one transplant. Other multiple organ transplants are listed as separate transplants, or organ. Living heart donations take place when a lung patient receives a heart-lung transplant and then donates his or her healthy heart to another patient (known as a domino transplant). Live pancreas, lung and liver donations are segmental transplants; that is, the living donor gives a portion of his or her organ to save or improve someone else's life.

1991 Transplant Statistics

- *9,943 kidney transplants (7,737 from cadaveric donors) (2,206 from living donors)
- *2,946 liver transplants (2,934 from cadaveric donors) (12 from living donors)
- *535 pancreas transplants (535 from cadaveric donors) (0 from living donors)
- *2,127 heart transplants (2,123 from cadaveric donors) (4 from living donors)
- *52 heart-lung transplants
- *400 lung transplants (397 from cadaveric donors) (3 from living donors)

New Wheat Variety Released

By the time the 1992 wheat harvest fills the bins, farmers will have a new, high quality variety for fall planting.

TAM 202, a semi-dwarf hard red winter wheat, has features that will benefit both the farmer and the end-user, according to Dr. David Worrall, wheat breeder for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Vernon.

"This variety should do a better job than what's available currently," Worrall said. "It's an alternative that may answer different situations experienced by farmers."

Texas farmers plant about 6 million acres of wheat a year, mostly in the High and Rolling Plains regions.

The new variety, the result of a breeding effort that began 10 years ago, claims high yields, disease resistance and good milling and baking qualities among its attributes.

Beyond the farm, hard red winter wheat -- used primarily for bread -- has to have good baking qualities. Worrall said TAM 202's performance in this area is one of the key assets of the new variety.

Worrall explained that changes in the new Federal Grain Inspection Service classing system, scheduled to be implemented in 1994, will rate some of the current popular varieties "soft." Wheat classed "hard" is preferable for milling and baking, so the "soft" rating results in a price dockage of as much as $1.20 per bushel -- or one-third to one-half of the price a farmer receives.

"That is one of the most compelling reasons to release" the new variety, Worrall said.

Another advantage of TAM 202 is yield, he said. In long-term yield tests, TAM 202 produced from 4 percent to 17 percent more than TAM 101, Chisholm and TAM 109, three popular varieties grown on the Rolling Plains.

Because of its profuse tillering, Worrall added, the planting seed rate can be reduced 15 percent to 20 percent and still produce the same yields.

Disease resistance is another trait. The variety carries a gene for stem rust resistance, Worrall noted.

"And while not immune to powdery mildew, it carries sufficient resistance to thwart all but the most server epidemics," he said.

Information about TAM 202 planting seed is available through Texas Foundation Seed Service, (409) 845-4051.

God Bless...

God bless Mommie, Daddie, and all my friends at church...

"Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God."

God's word has a great deal to say about prayer, for prayer is our means to communicate with God. Through prayer we can give thanks, petition for our friends, and seek God's wisdom for our daily living.

Make prayer a daily practice in your life.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Tanning Facilities Investigated

Excessive exposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays can cause premature aging of the skin and skin cancer. So can ultraviolet rays from the artificial light used in tanning beds. That's why the Texas Department of Health (TDH) regulates the state's estimated 1,000 tanning facilities.

State and federal regulations require tanning facility operators to ensure that their equipment meets original manufacturer's specifications, particularly with regard to the recommended exposure schedule and lamp replacement type.

Dennis Baker, director of TRDH's Division of Food and Drugs said investigators have found that higher intensity lamps have been illegally installed in numerous tanning beds at facilities throughout the state.

The change in lamps constitutes misbranding and adulteration of a medical device which can bring civil penalties of up to $25,000 per violation per day. "We've received reports of five to seven people being burned by the ultraviolet rays from the higher intensity lamps in the tanning beds," Baker said. "One woman suffered second degree burns."

Tanning facilities in Dallas, East Texas, Houston and Corpus Christi are currently being investigated. Reported problems include tampering with timers on the tanning beds and lack of protective eyewear provided for patrons. Without properly functioning timers, burns may occur within a relatively short time. Protective goggles--not sunglasses--must be worn to protect eyes from burning and possible damage to the cornea and retina. These are required by law to be provided by the tanning salon.

"The public needs to be aware that severe burning can occur at a tanning salon. The ultraviolet rays from a tanning device can be as harmful as the sun's rays," said Baker. Tanning has been found to destroy skin tissue and increase the chances of skin cancer.

TDH has joined other state and national organizations in observing National Melanoma Detection and Prevention Month in May. Dr. Daniel A. Goldman, medical consultant for the TDH Chronic Disease Prevention Program, said, "Skin cancer occurs more often than any other type of cancer, especially in the sunbelt states, where a suntan is thought to be glamorous. We need to stress that there is no such thing as a healthy tan. A tan is evidence of permanent, cumulative radiation damage to the skin--damage which causes not only cancer, but premature aging."

The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston launched a project last week to monitor the ultraviolet radiation bearing down on residents in Austin, Houston and Corpus Christi. Monitors have been set up to measure the rays on an informal scale of 1 through 10. Between noon and 4 p.m., when radiation is strongest, the readings can climb to the dangerous 8 to 9 range.

Accent On Health

Among the most effective and least publicized efforts to improve Texans' general health is the drinking water fluoridation program operated by the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

Fluoridation is the addition of fluoride, a common mineral, to a water supply. Fluoride helps prevent tooth decay by strengthening the tooth enamel of people who regularly drink water containing traces of the mineral.

A part of the TDH Bureau of Dental and Chronic Disease Prevention, the TDH fluoridation program was judged the most successful such program in the nation during 1991. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control, the American Dental Association and the Association of State and Territorial Dental Directors awarded the Texas program their National Fluoridation Award at their annual oral health conference in Scottsdale.

The TDH program grants to communities to buy fluoridation equipment. It also gives technical support to water system operators and conducts periodic training on fluoridation techniques in different parts of the state.

Dr. Donald R. Crow, who accepted the award for TDH, said that fluoridation has dramatically reduced the occurrence of tooth decay in Texas.

He explained that in communities where water supplies are adjusted to contain the recommended fluoride level of 0.8 parts per million gallons of water, tooth decay among children who drink the water from birth to age 12 is reduced by as much as 25-40 percent.

Similarly, adults reared in fluoridated areas and who continue to drink fluoridated water have 25 percent fewer gumline cavities.

Dr. Crow said, "Common sense at the community level, in dental clinics and public school classrooms has led to widespread support for fluoridation."

In 1991, the Texas fluoridation program helped 20 communities with combined populations of more than 149,300 to begin fluoridating their water supplies. More than 75 percent of the state's residents now use fluoridated water. Most water systems serving 1,000 or more people add fluoride.

Dr. Crow said that any community or private water system which serves as many as 1,000 population is eligible to apply for a TDH fluoridation program grant. Applications for such assistance are available from TDH at 512-458-7349.
