HASKELL—A GOOD PLACE TO VISIT. A BETTER PLACE TO LIVE™

VOLUME NINETY-EIGHT HASKELL, TEXAS 79521, MAY 17, 1984 NUMBER TWENTY

Memorial Day Weekend Signals Summer's Start

Major V.J. Cawthon, Commander of Department of Public Safety, Region 5, said, "Memorial Day Weekend signals the start of summer vacation season. This increases dangers to motorists in Texas this time of year." The Major urged drivers to exercise caution during the upcoming holiday weekend and throughout the summer.

Traffic fatalities are well below the number for the same period last year. This is due to the Texas motorist slowing their speeds and the awareness of DWI on the highways.

We should keep in mind to adjust our driving habits and attitudes accordingly.

Major Cawthon said, "The best way to keep your vacation safer and accident free is to keep your speed down, wear your seat belt and obey all traffic laws. Your safety and the safety of your passengers is in your hands."

Slow down a little and live a lot! Have a nice Memorial Day Weekend!

Brush and Palette

The mockingbird has been warbling song-words from a tree outside my bedroom window all week long. Now it awns on me what the warbling was all about. It is spring - nature's prime time. Now is the time to pack a lunch and take a drive to enjoy nature's gift to us at this time of year. All along the farm roads there are bluebonnets, Indian paintbrush, primrose and many other wild flowers. Have you noticed how God has included the complementary colors in his planting colors along the roadsides? There are the many yellows mixed with the blues and purples. Drive along the country roads, stop to enjoy random signs of peacefulness, of humble resignation. There is the weather-beaten fence upon which hangs a rusty chain, indicating there has been rain. On down the road is an abandoned house where the gingerbread has fallen away. Do you hear the speak of old mesquite? I once read that human life needs to get weather-beaten through disappointments, failures and setbacks. Through all of this we are not to become sour; we are to become more patient, considerate and kind. Take a ride soon into the country and "seek and find" with your camera or sketch book. You will find many interesting facts to record in your file.

Q. What is Assemblage?
A. Taken from the word 'assemble', it means just that - to assemble a collection of all forms of composite art. It is used as a craft item when a collection of anything is arranged in a pleasing composition for display. Often a shadow box is used to make an interesting arrangement. Ask the library for a copy of Gerald McConnell's book on "Assemblage".

Q. What is Cartouche? I have heard about it but do not know what it is.

A. A frame with an irregular scroll-like design used for pictures, designs, inscriptions and diplomas. It is usually oval in shape.

Q. What is Montage?
A. This term describes a photographic composition made of several, or the parts of several photographs. Also used to describe a flat composition made up of many pictorial elements. This is not to be confused with collage. As example, take a photograph and cut it apart and rearrange it to make a good composition.

Discipline Begins At Early Age

As soon as a baby begins to get around under her own steam, parents need to think about teaching her that some things (like electrical outlets) are off limits. This is the beginning of discipline.

In the dictionary, discipline has many meanings. From the point of view of child-rearing, some of these definitions are helpful and other are not so helpful, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

•Instruction. The dictionary says this is an old-fashioned meaning. That's a pity because good discipline should instruct a child.

•Training which corrects, molds, strengthens, or perfects. This is the best meaning of discipline.

•Punishment, chastise-

ment. Many people think of discipline as punishment. They try to decide if certain kinds of punishment are better or worse. But if discipline is something positive that helps a baby learn, grow, and develop, then it is an entirely different matter.

•Control gained by enforcing obedience or order. This definition of discipline does not focus on instruction or strengthening or a child's need to learn.

The heart of the matter is this: Can discipline be used in a positive way?

Most children under a year old will continue to do exactly what you don't want them to do. Their curiosity is enormous. Their physical drive propels them from one situation into another. Presented with fascination new objects and places, they do not have the necessary knowledge—or experience—to determine what's "yes" and what's "no." In short, they are just too young to fully understand why some things are acceptable and others are not. By wisely selecting what will be left within a child's reach, adults create a better learning environment for the child and save themselves many moments of anxiety or grief.

For example, assume you have an expensive television set. The knobs are an endless source of fascination for your daughter who takes every opportunity to twist, turn, and pull them. Every time you see her doing this, you tell her "no" and pull her hands away. Her response: the minute you're not looking, she's back at it.

What to do? You can:

1. Persist in "no-no" until she's old enough to get the message. This won't do much good for right now.

2. Slap her hands along with the "no" until she learns what you mean. This may be months away, if your television set still works by then.

3. Use your ingenuity. For example, rearrange the furniture so the set is inaccessible to her, or tape a piece of cardboard over the knobs.

Almost any discipline problem can be solved by adjusting the environment. For instance, you can remove the tempting breakable knick-knacks or make the object inaccessible. Sometimes the answer to a problem is not to insist the child adhere to a set of adult rules but to find some means of temporarily changing the situation so a child has room to explore, look, feel, learn, and, at the same time, stay out of trouble or harm's way.

Haskell Garden Club Ends Club Year With Installation

May 10th marked the close of the year's work for the Haskell Garden Club of 1983-84, by reports of all the committees, and the installation of the officers for 1984-1985 by one of our most efficient public school teachers, Mrs. Tom Hairgrove. Mrs. Hairgrove used a large coloring book with a phrase "color me" depicting the duty of each new officer. The last page was most appropriate for all members, "color me present," which is very important in order to have all club members present at each club meeting. The club officers for 1984-85 were: President, Mrs. Callie Robison; First Vice-president, Mrs. J.O. Blankenship; Second Vice-president, Juanita Rhea; Recording Secretary, Lorene Dewey; Treasurer, Mary Bischoffhausen; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Cody West; Parliamentarian, Marsha Whittemore; Reporter, Juanita Dunnam.

Marsha Whittemore.

The State awards were for The National Land Trust (Wild Basin Wilderness); World Gardening (World Hunger Relief); 100% Presidents' Book; Honorable Mention Scrapbook (division A, class 2); Honorable Mention Yearbook T-16 (class 2, Bronze).

In the business meeting, projects and programs were discussed and how to make our flower show better; conclusion, every member taking part.

Several brought horticulture, Mrs. Ira Davis, roses and helethye; Juanita Rhea, aliums, Nettle McCallum and Mrs. J.O. Blankenship. It was a surprise after such a cold winter.

"The mix-master", an arrangement by Juanita Rhea, was taken from the "Stamford Flower Show" from the theme using "Road Signals".

Visitors were Marie Bartley, Viola Tidwell and Mrs. J.A. Mayfield from Weinert. Our new member, Mrs. Bill (Jackie) Nenir was present.

Hostesses were the club officers which served punch and cookies before the members toured three gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. V.C. Hobbs, 1305 N. Ave F has one of the most unique gardens with genetic beds of English style, using mesquite branches to hold water under all the shade trees in the back yard, up against the fence, close to the house, any where the water is needed, get his grass is green, trimmed very neatly with vegetables among over seventy different flowering plants as wild primroses, ginger cosmos, zinnias, gazanios, ochillies pink, echinacea, daisies, standing cypress, hydrangea, Mexican sun flower, carlina jane, sweet peas, and many more too numerous to mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nemir have really worked their yard over which will be a show place some day. I know Jean McMillin would be well pleased if she could see it now, for she really worked in her yard in years passed. In the front beds are Japanese box wood, copper plants, dwarf Euonymas, Italian cypress marks the door, six red bud trees, Arizonaash, red ornamental plum trees in the front yard, on the south side a small vegetable garden, going on around in the back yard, a peach tree, gardenia brush, roses, iris, flowery crab apple and several other bushes.

Juanita Rhea closed in a small porch glassed in with shelves and numerous plants including a tomato vine which is already producing tomatoes, ivys running across one side.

Soil Stewardship Week Set

High winds have kicked up dust storms this spring throughout much of Texas, and heavy rains that are sure to come sooner or later will rob more lands of precious topsoil. All this points to a greater need for soil conservation. And calling greater attention to soil conservation is what Soil Stewardship Week is all about.

The annual nationwide observance will be May 27 - June 3 this year, with the theme "Conservation: A Common Commitment."

"Commitment is what is needed for everyone to reduce the loss of our valuable soil and water resources," says Dr. B.L. Harris, a soils specialist.

"We must all make a commitment to work toward this common objective, for it is from these natural resources that we reap the food and fiber that enables our very existence," emphasizes Harris, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The Extension Service is joining the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts and the State Board plus the Soil Conservation Service and other in this weeklong observance.

"We must accept primary responsibility as caretakers of God's earth," adds the specialist. "We are prepared to eat the fruit, but often we leave the task of caring for the land to a handful of people who sincerely care about perpetuating our forests, preserving our rivers and renewing the topsoil."

Harris emphasizes that there is no time like the present to join the common commitment to soil and water conservation. "Our long-range food supply may depend on it. Our farmland is under a lot of pressure—from erosion, urbanization and pollution. Everyone can help conserve our natural resources."

"Let's keep America, the beautiful, and America, the greatest agricultural country on this earth," says Harris. "Join in local conservation efforts to protect our soil and water resources."

LAWN AND GARDEN TIPS

Q. My neighbor told me if I have fewer weeds in my garden I'll also have fewer insects. Is this true?

A. Your neighbor is right; it is true. A weed-free garden makes it harder for insects to get a foothold and that makes them important factors in pest control. Another way to head off damaging pests is to plant different garden vegetables, or at least plant them in different areas each year.

Even the most conscientious preventive measures are not likely to solve all your pest problems. When there are large numbers of insects, or noticeable insect damage, you'll probably need help from insecticides. One of the most widely recommended insecticides for lawn and garden use is Sevin® carbaryl insecticide. It controls over 200 lawn and garden pests, is biodegradable and contains no harsh smell.

For a free brochure on keeping your garden weed- and insect-free, write to: P.O. Box T2014, Research Triangle Park, NC 27709.

'Toast To Grains' Set Today

Wheat producers and homemakers from Haskell County will join in a Rolling Plains "Toast to Small Grains" May 17 at the annual field day at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Chillicothe.

"A number of special events for women has been added to the program this year," say Lou Gilly and Max Stapleton, Haskell County Extension agents.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. The program for homemakers will be from 10 a.m. until noon in the headquarters building at the Experiment Station. During this time, producers will tour research plots at the station. Lunch will follow these programs.

One special feature will be a demonstration of pasta making, with ideas and recipes for varying the home menu. This will be presented by Carolyn Halsell, Childress County home economics agent, and Mary Streit, agent for Hall, Motley, Stonewall and Throckmorton Counties.

The place of the bread group in good nutrition will be discussed by Carol Arndt, King County home economics agent. How different wheat varieties are used in food products will be explained by Dr. Earl Gilmore, resident director of research for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Vernon-Chillicothe.

Several exhibits of special interest to women will be on display.

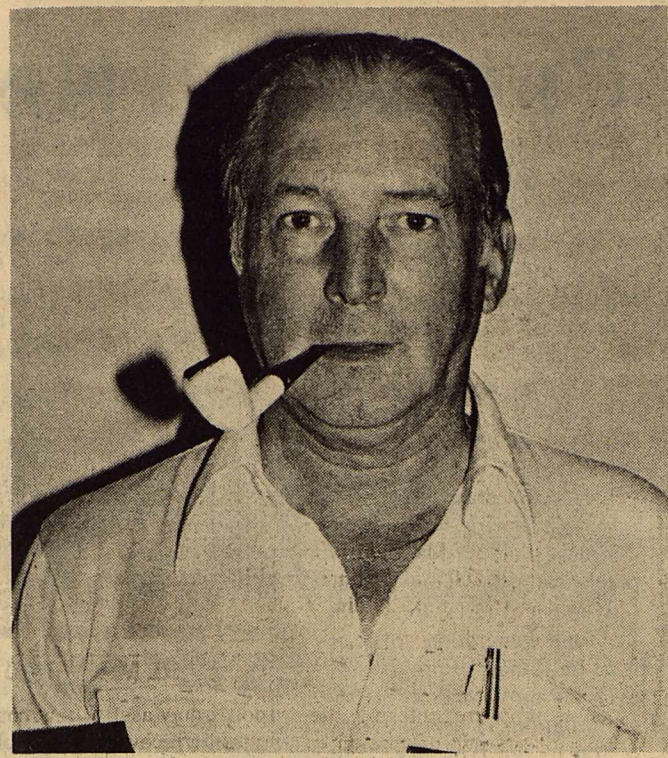

One of these will be a computer analysis in which homemakers can itemize dishes served at a family meal and receive a printout of their nutritional value. This program by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be coordinated by Wichita County home economics agents Barbara Cornelius and Cheryl Mapston.

A television public service announcement telling the importance of wheat in Texas will be shown. It was prepared by the Extension Service and is being seen on stations across the state.

An exhibit by Morrison Milling Co. of Denton will show how flour is milled. Another by the Extension Service will trace wheat from grain to loaf.

Ways to decorate with wheat will be demonstrated by Pat Hall, Vernon artist.

Books Can Aid Toddlers Learning

A toddler's first books can be learning experiences that he can touch, feel, and see. A creative parent can create a book individualized to a toddler's own needs, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

"See-feel-look" books teach a number of lessons.

*Heavy-duty zippers, buttons, and snaps teach hand-eye coordination and manipulation. They also help a child learn words to accompany the actions: "open, close, zip, unzip, button, unbutton, snap, unsnap."

*Unbreakable mirrors teach self-awareness and identification of parts of the head: "hair, eyes, teeth, mouth, chin, tongue."

*Bright, colorful pictures of familiar objects reinforce lessons of representation—that the picture is a likeness of a three-dimensional object the toddler can touch with his hands. Discussing and naming the contents of the picture, the objects, their size, shape, and color, the people in the pictures, and what they are wearing or doing helps speech and language comprehension.

*Scrap materials (terry cloth, vinyl, sandpaper, velvet, corduroy, satin, fake fur) aid visual-tactile discrimination of different textures and feels. Describing and labeling the individual sensations—"rough, smooth, soft, hard, fuzzy, bumpy" also gives language practice.

Books can also be made of cloth and stitched together securely. Pages can be made of heavy paper or cardboard and covered with clear plastic. Both methods produce a washable book that can be looked at and handled for many learning hours.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month from birth to six years old. For more information and a free sample newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

New Book Depicts Wildflowers

COLLEGE STATION — "Texas in Bloom" — that's an apt description of much of the Lone Star State right now, and it's the title of the newest book from the Texas A&M University Press.

The 143-page book is filled with color photographs that depict the wild flowers of the state and have appeared over the years in "Texas Highways," the magazine published by the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Two Texas A&M researchers win presidential award

COLLEGE STATION — Two Texas A&M University researchers have been named winners of new $100,000 Presidential Young Investigator Awards, presented to a select group of scientists and engineers chosen by the National Science Foundation.

Announcement of the awards was made by the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy.

The Texas A&M recipients are Dr. Klaus Hollig, 30, an associate professor of mathematics, and Dr. Robert Lucchese, 27, assistant professor of chemistry.

Lady Bird Johnson provides the foreword for the book, which is part of the Texas A&M publishing house's Louise Lindsey Merrick Texas Environmental Series. Glen Evans is the author of a 13-page introduction to the 145-photo presentation, and Frank Lively and Tommie Pinkard of "Texas Highways" join in the preface.

"This book, "Texas in Bloom," will be treasured by thousands of us who want our country to keep the beauty of the landscape as we remember it in our youth and to leave this splendor for our grandchildren," writes Mrs. Johnson who founded the National Wildlife Research Center in Austin.

The works of 14 Texas photographers are featured in the book.

Mayfield Completes DPS Training

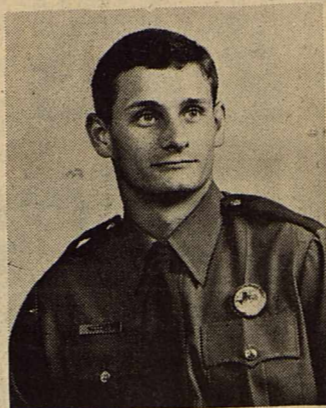

Trooper Carl Wayne Mayfield, 21, has recently graduated from the Department of Public Safety Training academy and assigned to the Drivers License Service in Fort Worth.

Trooper Mayfield was one of 62 cadets recently commissioned as state troopers in graduation ceremonies in Austin. Trooper Mayfield is a native of Haskell and assumes his new duties immediately.

Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director, said he is especially pleased at the quality of people who are entering the law enforcement profession.

"These men and women were carefully selected from a large group of applicants to undergo an intensive 18-week course," Adams said. "They have been trained to uphold the laws of this state in routine as well as difficult law enforcement situations."

"Today's Texas trooper is required to handle many varied tasks in addition to traffic enforcement. The trooper may assist in narcotics arrests, recovery of stolen vehicles and investigation of theft cases. A broad range of law enforcement responsibilities will face the trooper who has chosen to serve his fellow Texans," Adams said.

The DPS training course included instruction in traffic law, criminal law, arrest procedures, accident investigation, and numerous other law enforcement related topics.

Matthews Receives Ruth Lester Award

Watkins Reynolds Matthews of Albany, has received the Texas Historical Commission's Ruth Lester Award for outstanding service to Texas heritage conservation. The award, the state's highest honor in the field of historical preservation, was presented in Lubbock on May 5 during the THC's annual Historic Preservation Conference.

Mr. Matthews has been an avid preservationist for more than forty years. He is responsible for preserving historic structures on Lamshead, a ranch near Albany that has been operated by his family for more than 100 years. He also has promoted the Fort Griffin Fandangle, a folk-drama presenting frontier life of the region in song and dance. Mr. Matthews, whose family has been central to the development of ranching in West Texas, is an avid supporter of ranching history.

The Lester Award is named in memory of Mrs. Ruth Lester of Jefferson, a former leading state preservationist and member of the THC. This and other THC annual awards are given to encourage local preservation work and to increase public awareness of heritage conservation activities in Texas.

The Historic Preservation Conference is an annual reunion of county commission members and other Texans interested in preserving the historical treasures of their towns, counties, and state. County historical commissions play a major role in this preservation effort as official arms of county governments, and in cooperation with the THC, the state agency responsible for leading and coordinating heritage conservation programs. The conference is partially funded by a grant from the Texas Committee for the Humanities, a state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The Texas Historical Commission's educational and consulting programs include workshops, publications, and other services in the areas of preservation, restoration, archeology, downtown revitalization, and museology. The THC is also Texas' liaison office with federal agencies on projects involving preservation.

Letters To The Editor

(EDITORS NOTE: The Haskell Free Press will publish letters to the Editor dealing with any subject. All letters must be signed but names will be withheld by request. All letters are subject to editing for length and liability.)

Dear Editor:

Doubtless 16-year-old Ramiro Alvarez of Guayaquil, Colombia has heard of the justifiably famous reputation of Texans for hospitality.

So he will be even more perplexed when he gets word that he will not be able to come to Texas next fall as scheduled, to live with a U.S. family and attend high school for the 84-85 school year in exchange for a U.S. student to his home and country. The family which agreed to host him has changed its mind. Ramiro's family will honor their commitment to host a U.S. student.

It is hoped, through your cooperation in publishing this letter, a Texas family will volunteer to host Ramiro, not only to uphold the state's reputation, but because they would actually enjoy doing so and would mutually benefit from the experience.

Texas families willing to host an "A"-average Junior with hobbies including basketball, volleyball, soccer, running, skating and swimming will be interested in knowing that Ramiro's father is a civil engineer and his mother a housewife. There are three other children in the family. Ramiro has fair English.

Hosting families provide a bed (he can share a room), 3 meals a day and transportation to school and church. He has his own money for personal things and is fully insured. He will be a member of the family, share in the tasks and is deductible for tax purposes.

If interested, please call the Western Office of International Fellowship collect at 602-284-1413, or write P.O. Box 1212, Sedona, Arizona 86336. I.F.I. has both boys and girls from other countries who would like to come to the U.S.

Dear Editor:

The St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Wheels For Life Bike-a-thon is over for this year and, looking back, we want to sincerely thank the citizens of Haskell for their generous support.

We are extremely proud of the riders and the hard working volunteers whose efforts made this a success. We appreciate very much the publicity given by the Haskell Free Press and Radio Station KVRP.

Because the disease that St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is battling can strike any child anywhere, this money will be helping to save children's lives all over the world.

Your help was an important part of this event, and you performed a very worthwhile service acquainting the citizens of Haskell with the life-giving work being done by St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. For that, we are very grateful.

It is a wonderful feeling to know that the people of our community are concerned and caring individuals and, on behalf of the children of St. Jude's, I want to thank each and every one who helped.

Sincerely,
Betty Dulaney

Improve Fish Habitat Now

Falling water levels in many reservoirs across the state are understandably alarming to fishermen, but low lakes offer easy opportunity for improving fish habitat.

Officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department say putting tree limbs and brush in lakes can attract and hold game fish, and the practice often is easier when lakes are down.

"Too many lakeside landowners use low-water periods as an opportunity to clear brush and structure out of the lakebed, when they should do the opposite," said Ernest Simmons, inland fisheries management chief.

Brush reefs offer a haven for minnows and other small organisms, and the decomposing material creates a food chain which ultimately attracts the larger predators such as largemouth bass and crappie.

"Most of the reservoirs in the western half of Texas are quite low right now," said Simmons. "For instance, Lake Falcon has been more than 20 feet low for more than a year. Lake Amistad is down about 15 feet and is still dropping steadily, as are Lakes Travis, Medina, Buchanan, Canyon and Corpus Christi."

In these extreme cases of low water levels, fish habitat actually can be constructed on dry land, with the expectation that the water eventually will rise and cover the structures.

"Anyone who owns or has access to boat docks, bulkheads or fishing piers should arrange to place brush reefs around them to improve fishing," said Simmons. The brush should be weighted to sink to the bottom, and preferably moored to the dock, particularly where a current is present, he noted.

These structures can be "sweetened" for even better fishing by sinking sacks of cottonseed meal or soured grain, which attracts bait fish and catfish to an area almost immediately. A bale of hay, or portion of a bale, sunk with the brush also attracts bait fish, some anglers believe.

Reefs can be built of whatever brush or tree limbs are available. Cedar (juniper) is commonly used in the western half of the state, although it probably is less effective than willow and some other soft-barked species.

Simmons added that in some cases grasses or weeds can be planted in areas of the dry lakebed, and if they have sufficient time to grow they can form an excellent natural fish attractor when inundated.

HHS Names Cheerleaders

The cheerleaders for next year were chosen Wednesday for the junior high and high school.

Returning as junior high cheerleaders are Christina Camacho and Joy McKeever. The new members of the squad will be Dawn Langhofer, Loutina Hadaway and Teresa Unger.

McKeever was elected as head cheerleader.

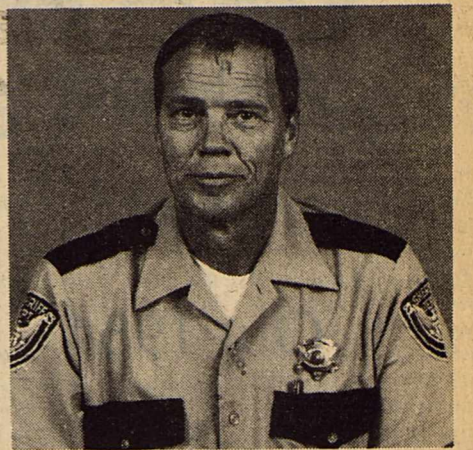

The high school cheerleading squad will consist of four returning members: Stephanie Browning, Denise Burris, Holly McBroom and Kelly Wallace.

The new members are Rhonda Adams and Mindy

Smith. McBroom was elected head cheerleader.

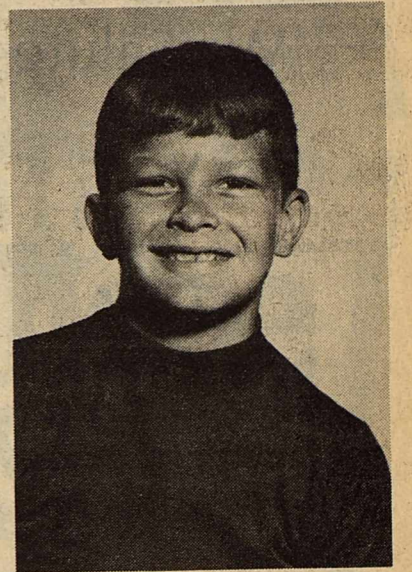

All cheerleaders were judged in three categories. First, they were evaluated by the teachers and grades were checked for an 80 average overall. Second, they were voted on by the student body. Third, they tried out before three judges, who rated them on their overall appearance, spirit, skill, crowd communication and general execution of the yell.

Tornado Season Approaches

Tips To Improve Chances Of Survival

When the storm sirens blare and the radio warns that a "twister" is on the way, what can you do to improve your chances of surviving a Texas tornado?

For one thing, studies show that if you're in your house, you should stay there. Only 3 per 1,000 people in houses hit by tornadoes are killed-or, put another way, 99.7 percent survive. This somewhat comforting statistic is especially welcome to the older workers enrolled in the Texas Farmers Union Green Thumb employment program, because most of them live and work in the northern half of the state so often assaulted by spring storms.

More than 60 Green Thumbers from 8 counties attended a training session at the Wallace Center in Colorado City, on May 7, 1984, and learned how they could save their lives if a tornado should come their way.

"In the case of severe storms, there truly is no place like home," said Green Thumb Director Diane Parrish of Waco, "provided your home is a sturdy house."

Parrish used a slide presentation to illustrate the kinds of tornadoes that can develop and to describe the techniques most likely to enhance survival. Slides of twisters that hit Lubbock, Waco, Wichita Falls, San Angelo, Clarendon, and northeast Texas were used in the presentation.

According to Parrish, most tornado deaths result from head injuries caused by flying debris. People in mobile homes are at much greater risk, and in fact may be even more vulnerable than persons in cars.

"The key to survival is to stay in your house and put as many walls as possible between you and the tornado," she said, adding that most tornadoes approach from the west and southwest. "And don't try to outrun the storm-many people are killed when they try to escape in a panic."

Also addressing the group was Edith Fuqua of Texas Department of Human Resources, who presented a film called "A Time To Mourn", which dealt with "elder" or "parent abuse".

Mitchell county extension agent Debbie Christian discussed way to prevent food poisoning and gave tips on preventing food spoilage.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

One of the basic foundations of the U.S. Constitution is providing due process of law for people accused of crimes. But in our enthusiasm to provide such fair treatment, we too often have forgotten the victims of crime.

Our criminal justice system has evolved into one that grants all rights and privileges to the defendant while providing little or no assistance to the victims. That is why I have joined in sponsoring a bill designed to correct this uneven application of justice.

The Victims of Crime Assistance Act of 1984 would create a fund in the U.S. Department of Treasury to compensate victims of crime. It also would involve victims in the criminal justice process by giving them privileges such as addressing parole boards on how they were affected by crimes against them.

Compensation provided through this bill would be funded through criminal fines paid to the government and through certain profits from literary, visual and audio productions relating to particular crimes. In other words, law breakers, not taxpayers, would pay for the fund. This fund would be administered by state governments.

I believe these measures are necessary because justice involves more than just ensuring that the defendant receives a fair trial. Justice also is honoring the rights of the victims and, when possible, providing just compensation.

Many victims suffer severe financial problems as a result of crimes inflicted upon them. These losses can come in the form of lost or damaged property as well as medical expenses. Neither federal nor state governments are presently able to adequately protect the victims of crime for its devastating physical, financial, emotional and psychological consequences. The federal government spends far more resources on rehabilitation and education of prisoners than it does on assisting victims.

This trend is frustrating for law-abiding Americans. The public's respect for the law has become seriously diminished as it perceives that only the perpetrators of violent crime, and not the victims, are entitled to justice and protection from their government.

In addition to creating a compensation fund for crime victims, the act also would encourage states to provide direct financial assistance to victims of crimes within their borders, regardless of the victim's residence or jurisdiction of the crime; assist local governments and agencies in providing services to crime victims and promote such services across the nation, and establish a safe, welcome environment for victims to participate in the criminal justice process.

These measures place most of the power and responsibility in the hands of the states. This is appropriate since criminal justice is largely the responsibility of the states. However, the act also would improve the federal government's assistance to victims of federal crime.

The concepts encompassed in the Victims of Crime Assistance Act of 1984 are a long time coming. I hope Congress acts favorably on this bill designed to serve the law-abiding people of this country.

Texas A&M Press Publishes First Novel

COLLEGE STATION — The 10-year-old Texas A&M University Press has broken tradition by publishing its first novel. However, it's not just a normal novel; it's a reprint of "The Wonderful Country," a western classic by Tom Lea.

"The Wonderful Country," originally released in 1952, is set along the Texas-New Mexico-Mexico border area with the central character a young man who kills his father's killer.

"This is a story that is at least as much about a region, its color and its life, as it is about the characters' difficulties," noted one reviewer when the book was released more than 30 years ago.

The 357-page book includes numerous drawings by the author, who is perhaps equally respected for his writing, paintings and other forms of art.

Lea, who resides in El Paso, designed the Texas A&M University Press' logo at the quest of Frank Wardlaw, a publishing house's first director.

"The reappearance of this much-loved classic will entice a new generation of readers. Southwesterners, cowboy western addicts, students of borderlands cultures, observers of Hispanic-American relations — and will inspire renewed respect for Lea's devotion to his country," predicts Lloyd Lyng, who succeeded Wardlaw.

Organization Seeks Host Families

Nacel Cultural Exchanges, a non-profit organization now in its fourth year in Texas and Arkansas, is seeking host families for 125 French students ages 13-19 in its annual exchange program July 1 - July 28. Interested families should contact Sue Kimbro, 2105 Wood St., Texarkana, TX 75501 (214-794-8273).

"Families are especially needed for boys" said Mrs. Kimbro, who explained that most of the applications she has received are requests for girls and that 60% of the French students are boys. Students are matched to families according to preferences expressed by families and mutual interests.

For the past 27 years the purpose of Nacel has been to foster international understanding by arranging four week summer homestays in France and the United States. This July 5300 French students will experience our culture by living with American families at the same time that 1400 American students will be living with French families. Students from this summer's host families will be offered the opportunity to take part in the 1985 reciprocal French Homestay Program.

Already, 65 families in northern Texas and in Arkansas have applied to host these French teens coming to our area; but 60 additional families are still needed to host. "Being part of a family is the best way to experience a country's culture and language" said Mrs. Kimbro, a high school French teacher, who has coordinated the Nacel Exchange for the past 4 years. "Hosting gives us a chance to show people the best of our country...our families."

The French students, who have studied English for 3-8 years, provide their own airfare, insurance, and spending money; and the American families provide the welcome and include them in their daily lives for the month of July.

Texas A&M Site Of Conference

THE WOODLANDS — Representatives from the United Nations and other global and hemispheric organizations — some 70 persons in all — came from as far away as Brazil and Canada and went away feeling as though they had attended a productive conference.

What they attended, however, was a planning session for a food and water conference which will be held at Texas A&M University May 26-30, 1985, with implementative workshops set for The Woodlands near Houston the following two days. The conference is officially entitled "Water and Water Policy in World Food Supplies."

Texas A&M President Frank E. Vandiver set in motion the mechanism for the conference as the first step in establishing Texas A&M as a "world university." Shortly after assuming the presidency of Texas A&M in the fall of 1981, Dr. Vandiver had published an article outlining his "world university" concept under which approximately 25 universities capable of "making a difference in coping with 'four horsemen' type problems" would link themselves together on at least an informal basis.

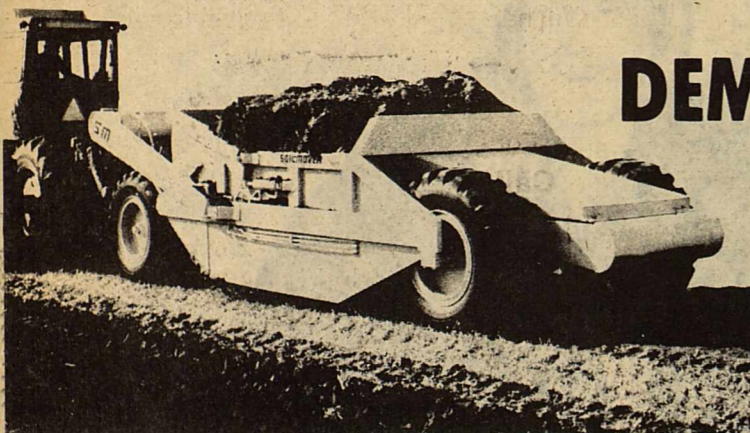

Vandiver envisions the universities gaining "world university" designation by their deeds, and he sees Texas A&M's sponsorship of the 1985 food and water conference as the first such major step for the Texas land-grant and sea-grant institution.

TP&WD Urges Water Safety

Water safety officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said high winds and waves have swamped several boats recently on Texas reservoirs.

Fortunately, no injuries or fatalities resulted, but each year similar incidents result in drownings.

Officials said weather forecasts should be heeded before planning an outing, and boats should not be launched when wind advisories are posted by the Weather Bureau. Wind-warning flags are raised at some reservoirs when dangerous conditions are expected.

If caught on a lake when high winds hit, boat operators are advised to head for the nearest sheltered shoreline. Never attempt to swim to shore, even if the boat is overturned.

State law requires that a U.S. Coast Guard-approved floatation device (life vest or life preserver) be aboard for every occupant of the boat, and children 12 years old and under must wear the device any time the boat is underway.

When rough conditions occur, all occupants should be wearing life vests, officials said.

For further information on water safety contact the Water Safety Education Section, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School, Austin, Texas 78744.

Salute To 1984 Seniors

My first impulse was not to write a column about our graduates this year because I have a son in this class. However, I feel I should honor this group at least with a column because of the record they have established in school and school related activities. The class of 1984 has done some outstanding things. They were recognized in elementary school for their energy and their determination. During their junior high years, leadership qualities began to emerge in several of the youngsters. The group has proven themselves in numerous ways during their high school years. Several of the students have established excellent scholastic records. They have not been afraid of tackling hard courses and stretching their abilities. One of the graduates, Fred Barnett, has been accepted in West Point, the first Haskell graduate to be so honored in a long time. They have been a part of a rather amazing co-curricular success. The athletic teams, the band, the FFA, the FHA, the War Whoop and The Chieftain have all benefited from their hard work, dedication, and leadership.

"Senioritis" has been less of a factor this year than any spring in my memory. These students have continued to be students. They have maintained their discipline, their work in academics classes, and their attitudes. They truly seem to know where they are coming from and where they are going to go. They have refused to surrender to the "silliness" often involved with a milestone in life such as high school graduation. These are good kids. Haskell High School will miss them—especially their leadership.

What does the future hold for this group of young adults? Generally, they are a rather serious group with rather defined direction in their future plans. Because of their developed work ethic and determination, many avenues are open to them. Many of their personalities will allow them to mix with people in "people oriented" careers. Several of the students have indicated an interest in the professions. Because of their leadership abilities, several of these students probably will assume leadership roles in the community. Their work ethic will give them a strong base for future success. My personal congratulations are extended to this class of 1984. Thanks for the memories of success on the gridiron, in the gym, in FFA contests, etc.; but, most of all, thank you for being such good people.

No Charge For Social Security Records

No charge is made by Social Security to obtain a Social Security card or a record of your earnings, according to Glyn Hammons Social Security district manager in Abilene.

"Although various private companies advertise the availability of their assistance in such matters," Hammons said, "these services are provided by your Social Security office without a fee."

Anyone wanting a Social Security card for the first time must complete an application and submit original or certified documents establishing age, identity and citizenship or legal residence to the Social Security office. Applicants age 18 or older must apply in person.

Those wanting to change their names must submit the marriage certificate or other evidence attesting to the change. If a duplicate of a lost card is needed, only proof of identity is required. All documents submitted will be returned.

"A simple pre-addressed card requesting a record of earnings is available from all Social Security offices, he states. It may be annotated "QC" for a record of quarters of coverage or "estimate" for a ball park figure of what benefit you may expect, hammons added.

Call 698-1360 for more information about Social Security. If you prefer to visit the Abilene office, it is located at 142 South Pioneer.

New DPS Warrant Service In Operation

A Texas Department of Public Safety officer has been honored for his contribution to the establishment of a new DPS traffic warrant service system.

Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director, presented Highway Patrol Captain Ed Pringle, 58, of Waco with the Medal of Merit during recruit graduation ceremonies in Austin on May 11. Pringle is a 35-year DPS veteran.

"This award is in recognition of Captain Pringle's leadership in implementing a computerized data bank for DPS traffic warrants," Adams said. "Formerly, when these warrants were issued, DPS troopers attempted to physically locate the violators. Considerable time was expended to find the drivers who failed to respond to traffic charges. By utilizing this new system, we've been able to save manpower while significantly increasing the number of warrants served."

A total of 18,205 Highway Patrol warrants were served in the first three months of this year compared to 6,918 served during the same period in 1983. Thirty troopers who had been serving traffic warrants full time have been reassigned to other duties.

The warrant data bank is constantly updated with the names of persons for whom warrants have been issued after failing to respond to the DPS traffic citations. When these persons come into contact with police officers again, a routine check will reveal the presence of any DPS traffic warrants. If it is determined that a warrant exists, the violator will be taken before a magistrate unless he chooses to pay the fine set by the court. The DPS does not share in fines resulting from its enforcement activities.

The DPS director said the traffic warrants are being served through a variety of contacts with police officers, including driver license renewal, routine license checks and violator stops.

"Our troopers are encourring drivers with as many as 10 outstanding traffic warrants on file," Adams pointed out. "It is to the violator's advantage to respond to the ticket by either appearing in court to answer the charge or paying the fine set by the judge. Persons who ignore the ticket will normally face a separate charge of failure to appear in addition to the original charge."

Persons desiring to determine if they have an outstanding DPS warrant should inquire in person at a DPS office as this information will not be released over the telephone.

TAX PLANNING

Written by Richard E. Rodgers, CPA

Watch Your Tax Planning

In a recent ruling the Internal Revenue Service has agreed to allow an overpayment on your 1983 tax return to apply toward your April 15th, 1984, estimated tax payment, even though you file the tax return at some later date on extension. This is a new ruling and reverses the IRS's prior position.

On a different note, the new tax bill before Congress proposes several significant tax law changes.

Interest free loans among family members and between shareholders and corporations have been a much disputed area between taxpayers and the Internal Revenue Service. Under the bill, interest free loans from corporations to shareholders and employees and loans between family members will all be treated more favorably for the government.

The bill proposes that there be no deduction for the use of business cars, planes, or yachts, unless the taxpayer can show that the vehicle is used 90% or more for business.

The $100,000 estate tax exclusion on pension plan and IRA benefits would be eliminated.

Mutual fund capital gains may be taxed less favorably as ordinary income.

The present 15 year life for cost recovery on most real estate would be lengthened to either 18 or 20 years.

The taxpayer benefits in the proposed legislation are rather minor. The capital gain holding period would be reduced from one year to six months and those taxpayers using spousal IRA accounts would have a higher contribution level.

We encourage you to contact us in reference to the resulting legislation and any effect it may have on your tax planning.

Small Business Administration Offering Toll Free Answers

Prospective and present small business owners in Texas continue to use the U.S. Small Business Administration's toll free "Answer Desk" telephone service to get help on problems connected with their business and with the Federal Government.

From October through March, for example, 1155 Texas residents called the toll-free number (800-368-5855). Of the total calls, 652 callers requested information on financial assistance, according to Philip J. O'Jibway, director of the SBA's Lubbock office.

"SBA's 'Answer Desk' provides a valuable and popular resource to more and more small business persons in and around the country," said O'Jibway.

During the Fiscal Year ending September 30, 1983, the toll-free number received a total of 49,253 calls from around the country.

O'Jibway said that from October through March "Answer Desk" callers in Texas asked for help in other areas of interest as well as in financial assistance: 548 callers made inquiries about management assistance and some 20 persons inquired about procurement from the Federal Government.

"Some 'Answer Desk' inquiries involve issues that do not involve SBA," O'Jibway said. "Such calls are quickly referred to the proper government agency."

The Answer Desk is operated by the SBA's Office of Advocacy, and is open Monday through Friday (except for Federal holidays) from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. EST.

This service is not available in Hawaii and Alaska. In the District of Columbia, the "Answer Desk" number is 202-653-7561.

The toll-free number (800-368-5855) also has equipment for the hearing-impaired.

New Brush Control Techniques Offered By Researchers

Because of a long-standing interest in brush control for water conservation purposes, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is helping to spread the latest developments in mesquite control at this timely season of the year for spraying.

Texas Tech Research Scientists B.E. Dahl and R.E. Sasebee have learned that ranchers can obtain from 50 to 75 percent mesquite root kill with chemical sprays. Application of herbicides are most effective during the plant growth cycle when carbohydrates are being translocated to the root and basal bud zone of the plant. This event occurs 42 to 63 days after budbreak and again 72 to 84 days after budbreak. If budbreak occurs on April 15th, then the best time to spray would be between June 3rd and June 17th and between June 28th and July 7th. If the soil temperature at a 12-inch depth is over 75°F (preferably 80°F or higher), root-kill exceeding 50 to 75 percent can often be obtained provided the treatment occurs during the high carbohydrate translocation period.

Numerous herbicides, formulations and rates have been studied. Types of aircraft and application equipment as well as total spray volume and swath width have received a great deal of attention. Yet the average root kill remained consistently 20 to 25 percent statewide with a longevity of the treatment averaging less than seven years until this research breakthrough occurred. Although few herbicides are used to control mesquite, Dahl and Sasebee found that when one herbicide was effective, usually others were effective and vice versa. The effectiveness of all herbicides seems to be governed by carbohydrate translocation in the plant and soil temperature.

One benefit of mesquite control is: increase of carrying capacity of pastures, from one-half to three animal units on the same acreage as previously supported one animal unit. The actual increase will depend on the degree of mesquite infestation at the time of the treatment. This type of increased production should provide tremendous economic benefits to local ranchers and their communities. Longer term benefits are a reduction of soil erosion, increased recharge to ground water aquifers and increased wildlife production. Springs which have dried up as a result of heavy infestation reappear and flow again after a mesquite control program.

Recommended steps to successful mesquite control in West Texas are:

1. Note the exact date that the majority of the trees breakbud in the pasture(s) that are scheduled to be sprayed. Calculate from this date, the 42 through 63 day and the 72 through 84 day to obtain recommended spray periods.

2. Begin taking soil temperatures about 10 days before these optimum spray periods. Soil temperatures can be measured by driving a 3/8-inch steel shaft into the ground and inserting a glass thermometer into the hole. Allow the thermometer to come to equilibrium with the soil temperature before reading it, which takes about 10 to 15 minutes. Read it quickly and in the shade because the direct sunlight will cause the temperature to rise rapidly. (Laboratory thermometers are inexpensive and may be bought from any laboratory supply source.)

3. If the soil temperature is less than 75°F during the period 42 to 63 days after budbreak, and if you must spray, expect no root-kill. If soil temperature is less than 75°F, then postpone spraying until the later susceptibility period.

4. If soil temperature is over 75°F (preferably near 80°F or greater) during the period 72 to 84 days after budbreak, then spray. This is probably the most optimum time for controlling mesquite in West Texas. If soil temperature still is less than 75°F, postpone spraying until another year.

5. If trees are damaged by insects, etc. and not in full foliage during optimal periods for maximum control, postpone spraying.

6. As long as a herbicide is registered for use on mesquite, then the kind and formulation used is probably not as important as the time of application.

7. Always spray according to label specifications.

Additional information on mesquite control can be obtained from: The Department of Range and Wildlife Management, College of Agricultural Sciences, Texas Tech University, P.O. Box 4169, Lubbock, Texas 79409.

Views From City Hall

BY ROBERT N. BAKER City Administrator

The citizens of Haskell should be proud of our airport. We have excellent facilities for a community of our size. There are men and women pilots that try to make the airport a vital part of our city. They are willing, in times of emergency or real need, to give of their time to meet the needs of anyone in trouble. I know of several occasions where someone had to get to a hospital in another city, immediately. There was always a pilot and an airplane ready to meet that request.

The airport is also excellent for our business community. We have several oil companies that fly into Haskell on a regular basis. Business meetings are easier to arrange in Haskell if the participants can fly into the airport. Also relatives and friends frequently visit citizens in our community.

Costs of operating the airport have been the subject of many discussions lately. To clarify some erroneous information here is what we spent in our last fiscal year, which ended March 30, 1984. The budget for operating the airport was $20,786.00. The city actually spent $19,719.79. The budget for Aviation Fuel was $64,050.00 and we spent $59,101.05. The actual revenues from hanger rents, lease of land was $18,852.99. The revenues from sale of fuel was $75,062.27.

As you can see by the above figures it cost the city $866.80 more than we took in on operating costs; however, the money received from the sale of fuel produced a net gain of $15,961.22.

I don't mean to infer by these figures that the airport is not costing the city anything. We do expend time, with man-power, mowing and general maintenance of the airport. Also the city expanded funds to build new hangers previous to last year. The Texas Aeronautical Commission has issued a grant to the city to replace the current runway. This grant is for 75% of the cost. The city will have to come up with the additional 25%.

Even though we are not all pilots and own airplanes, I think it is comforting to know that if I really needed to get somewhere in the shortest time possible, I could rely on getting there because of our airport. Keep this in mind; the airport belongs to you, the citizens of Haskell. Come out and visit, talk to the pilots. You will find that the airport is good for our entire city and an asset to Haskell County.

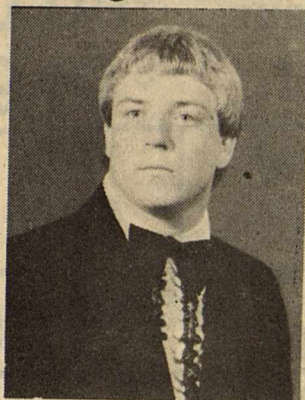

If there is an area of city business you want me to talk about, let me know.

Some $13,000 in scholarships and awards were presented at the annual Southwestern Oklahoma State University School of Pharmacy Convocation Ceremonies and Awards Banquet, held Friday, April 27, on Southwestern's Weatherford campus. Each of the Southwestern Pharmacy Students received the School of Pharmacy Achievement Awards, (front from left) Carole Clecker, Tulla; Cindy Fox, Sallsaw and Bonnie Woods, Haskell. (Back from left) Bill Bridges, Spearman and Shaun Chastka, Moore.

The biggest, newest and some of the fastest aircraft in the Air Force inventory have been confirmed for static display at the Dyess Air Force Base open house and air show Saturday, May 19.

The Military Airlift Command will be sending in the world's largest aircraft, the C-5 Galaxy and a C-141 Starlifter, while the 34th Tactical Fighter Squadron at Hill AFB, Utah will send an F-16 Fighting Falcon.

These aircraft and their aircrews will stand on static display beginning at 10 a.m., along with base's own B-52 bomber, KC-135 refueling tanker, T-37 trainer, and C-130 Hercules, several Confederate Air Force vintage aircraft, some Civil Air Patrol aircraft, four U.S. Army helicopters from Fort Hood, Texas, and possibly some Navy aircraft including the F-14, F-18, T-28 and P-3.

Performing throughout the morning will be the "Chuck Wagon Band" from Lackland AFB, the Dyess Square Dancers, and the Military Working Dogs and handlers of the 96th Security Police Squadron.

The air show portion of the open house will begin at 12:45 p.m., with a flyover of a KC-135 and B-52 and include an explosive ordnance display and demonstration. A five-man team from Fort Hood will then demonstrate rappelling techniques from a UH-1 helicopter at 1 p.m. A narrated training demonstration by four C-130s of the 463rd Tactical Airlift Wing will follow, and include a security police "Peacekeeper" vehicle offload exercise. And finally, a team of 463rd TAW combat controllers will attempt to set a Texas high jump record with a 25,000 foot high altitude low opening or HALO free fall. The majority of the professional displays, and several of the fund raising and refreshment booths, will be located in hangar 5020, according to Maj. Ron Aten, open house assistant project officer. Some items for sale at this year's open house include aircraft T-shirts, belt buckles, squadron cook books and B-1 ball caps. Food items include the standard hamburgers and hot dogs, but also feature polish sausages, corn on the cob, shish kabob, beef brisket and funnel cakes. The 463rd Organizational Maintenance Squadron will make it easy on the visitors' feet with a 25-cent train ride around the display area.

KTYE and KFMN Radio will both be broadcasting live from the open house.

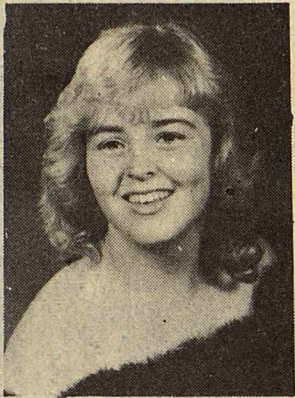

Professional displays will include a small computer demo by the 463rd training division; B-1 and B-52 mission film, a multi-faceted display, fingerprinting and demos by the 96th Security Police Squadron; B-52 electronic countermeasure equipment; a C-130 propeller and engine; and the Dyess Air Transportable Clinic, similar to a M*A*S*H unit.

Admission to the open house is free, and there will be acres of free parking.

Brightly colored — attention getting — Open-Closed Signs for your office or business. Comes complete with changeable letters in black or red. Also includes a sign for counter top use. See at the Haskell Free Press.
