CONSTRUCTION

Construction on the Haskell Memorial Civic Center is rapidly taking shape. The foundation is complete and most of the supporting structure is in place. Sufficient funds have been received to complete the basic structure and Civic Center officials are hopeful that additional funds will be received to complete the interior and furnishing of the facility by the time construction gets to that stage.

Hardly a day goes by that we don't receive several offers to buy a syndicated column of some sort. Most of them are offered to community newspapers because the larger papers around the country didn't buy them and small weekly and semi-weekly newspapers are the last hope of the author.

This week we received a unique offer for four regular columns written specifically for community newspapers in agriculture based areas.

Printed below is one of the regular features. Your comments about the column are invited. If enough favorable input is received birthright to be whatever animal they were meant to be.

This stirs some interesting thoughts. There may already be maladjusted animals running loose on our farms, Yorkshires crossed with Poland-Chinas or Herefords bred to Angus, that are balanced on the edge of psychic disintegration, ready to explode.

Somehow though, I don't think these animals, whether 500 or 5000 pounds, are aware of their specieshood or lack of it. But in this somewhat absurd movement I detect a plaintive human whimper. For I don't think it is the animals that are losing their identity. I think the profound identity loss is by our fellow humans inhabiting the planet's cities and suburbs. After all, the animal which has had to adapt the most rapidly to new environments and new circumstances is not the farm animal, but the human animal. Eighty years ago the vast majority of Americans lived on farms, and the space of twenty square miles of small towns and farmland would often envelope a person's entire world. Now, that has changed. But urban America still retains a mystic connection, a sense of lost identity to an idealized farm life. They don't particularly want to do anything to insure the family farm's survival, but they want to believe that there always will be happy, hard-working farm families tending a few chickens in a country paradise that never existed. This protest against high-tech hybridization of animals may be a way of protecting their fantasy of farm life from the realities of modern agriculture. After all, I suppose it's just as hard to imagine Grandma down on the farm slopping a hog the size of a 47 Studebaker, as it is to think that she owes half a million dollars on the place. This idyllic conception of rural life would not be harmful if it was a city-dweller's private tragedy to mourn while sitting in the traffic fumes. Unfortunately it affects farmers. In many ways, it is the urbanite's belief that fresh air and nice sunrises are all that farmers need to live that disrupts our message about the need for positive farm reform. We know it's a far different world on the farm now, filled with much harsher realities than what our city brethren believe. There have to be technical changes to make us more productive and economic changes to keep us alive. It's a new age. If the farmer is to survive and the rest of the world to eat we're all going to have to adapt to the fact that things have changed down on the farm.

Revival

The First Christian Church of Haskell will be having a weekend Revival beginning this Friday evening at 7:30 P.M. The evangelist will be Johnny Joslin, a former professional rodeo cowboy turned preacher. Bro. Joslin is now serving as a missionary in Southeast Oklahoma where he grew up. He has preached revivals throughout the Southwest and Mid-West while still serving a local congregation ir Southeast Oklahoma.

On Saturday evening, anyone who wishes to do so is encourage to watch the Christmas parade from the steps of the First Christian Church building and then come on inside for our services with Bro. Joslin where they will receive a very warm welcome. Phil Harris serves as minister of the church.

Bar-B-Que

The congregation of the Greater Independent Baptist Church located at 302 N. 3rd and Ave. C will be serving barbequed chicken ribs, and brisket with all of the trimmings, on December 1 at 11 a.m.

Donations of $3.50 per plate wil be accepted.

we will begin publishing the column on a regular basis.

COURAGEOUS COGITATOR

There is so much to worry about in this world-keeping your health, keeping your job, keeping the world from being blown apart, keeping static cling out of your socks-that the time certain people devote to feeling abject horror over relatively insignificant things astounds me.

A case in point: a recent national news report centered on whether farm animals whose genetic makeup is altered to make them bigger or grow faster suffer psychological cruelty.

Geneticists using advanced techniques can now inject genes of human growth hormone into animal embyros that will produce and elephant-sized cow that gives three times more milk than a typical animal, or a steer that grows to maturity in only six months.

Genetic alteration has been going on since the dawn of history. We've always selectively crossed different breeds of cows, pigs or horses to obtain better livestock. But gene splices are like a breeder's dream come true-a chance to speed the hybridization work leading to better animals that could take hundreds or thousands of years with present methods.

Of couse there are dangers in fiddling with the natural order of things. Thinking back to Dr. Frankenstein, it's terrifying to contemplate the unintentional melding of a body the size of a panel truck with the brain of any one of several criminally deviant cows or pigs I have known personally.

However, I don't think the commentator was as concerned about the physical perils as the psychological effects of animal high-tech hybridization.

He argued that the unfortunate results of these experiments would be that the hybrid animals would lose an essential part of their identification with their species; their cowhood or pighood, if you will. In effect, by manipulating their genetic pattern and disrupting their sense of oneness with their genetic compatriots, we would steal their

Christmas Party Set December 6

The Women's Missionary Union of the East Side Baptist Church will hold a Christmas party for children on December 6, at the church, from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m.

The WMU ladies will serve stew for the meal and then presents of toboggans, socks, and gloves will be handed out to the children.

Following the party the children will also be given a food package to take home with them.

The East Side WMU ladies are hoping to be able to assist some 8-10 families in this way.

The RA's and GA's will also have a part in helping with the party, according to Debbie Mitchell of the WMU.

Commodity Distribution Set Dec. 6

Editorial

Well, I came back to work Monday, and felt as though I was what got stuffed over the Thanksgiving break.

Unfortunately, I picked up a few extra pounds, just as many of the rest of you did.

I also picked up an incurable guilt complex for being so very selfish!

Last night, the news showed the dying and starvation in Ethiopia. It aired just as I was finishing off a chocolate chip cookie, and the sight of those people left me more than just nauseated. There I was, indulging in a snack, when there were people in the world who had not eaten anything for weeks.

I went to bed with a heavy heart, and got up with one Monday morning.

I cannot believe that in 1984, we still have starvation, sickness, and poverty with us. In such an advanced, technological world, I would have figured something of that importance would have already been eliminated.

I still feel that there is something wrong with a country which is willing to spend trillions of dollars enhancing its ability to blow another country off the face of the earth with nuclear weapons when just a portion of such huge amounts of money could be more constructively used to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, shelter the homeless, and attend to the sick.

Well, I cannot afford to subsidize the entire world, just as you cannot. But, we have a problem with the hungry in Haskell, and we can do somthing about this.

Among the many programs and changes mandated by HB 72 was one concerning tutorial services. It dictated that any student failing a course or an element of a course be provided with a tutorial program at least twice a week. The local board of education was provided the option of making attendance compulsory or voluntary. The board and administration set down in session and established a policy. The board opted to make tutorial optional, we established payscale for tutoring teachers, and a method of selecting these teachers. We, then embarked upon this new adventure in education. The staff involved wondered how many and who would want these services. Would we face an empty classroom? Would our students refuse to attend? Could we help these students in the limited time we had established? After six weeks in the program, we have found many of our fears unwarranted. We have averaged about 25 students in attendance at each session at each campus. The students have been prompt. They have shown a valid interest for self improvement. The tutoring teachers have not suffered from the fatigue figure as gravely as I feared. We definitely feel that we have helped some students

Book Tells History Of Historical Markers

The people who helped heritage shape Texas were as varied and as colorful as the wildflowers that sweep the state. Take, for example, Belle Boyd, beautiful the Confederate spy who used her feminine wiles to lure information from Union soldiers. Or how about "Choctaw Bill" Robinson, a Baptist minister who came to Texas in 1848 and preached with a gun beside his Bible until his death at the age to 89. These figures and many others are brought to life in a new book published by the Texas Historical Commission entitled Shadows on the Land, Anthology of Texas an Historical Marker Stories. The book is a compilation of more than 50 stories written from research information available through the THC's Marker

Department. The stories first appeared in the newspapers across the state, where they generated widespread interest in the state's historical marker program. Each story includes the location of the historical marker discussed, and 14 photographs illustrate the tales.

With more than 9,000 historical markers in Texas, the THC's marker program is an ongoing reminder of the people's history, acting as a reflection of the state's rich cultura and diversity. In addition, the markers chronicle the history of the architecture, events and archeology that helped determine the development of modern-day Texas.

The book is written by Myra Hargrave Mcllvain, an Austin freelance writer and public speaker. She is the author of 6 Central Texas Auto Tours and Texas Auto Trails: The Southeast blisters that usually begin to dry out and crust over after five days. A funny feeling or sharp pain can precede the rash, but pain more often occurs during or after the rash.

Normally, the pain will gradually go away as the rash disappears, and recovery follows. But this is not always the case.

Older people can experience pain for months or even years after the rash clears up. The rash can involve almost any part of the body and can lead to blindness if it occurs near the eyes and is left untreated. The virus that causes shingles remains dormant in the body because the virus is never totally eliminated after a person recovers from chicken pox. ### Stenholm Is First Boy Scout Award Recipient

On December 6 the Chisholm Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold its first annual Distinguished P Citizens Award Dinner and <sup>n</sup> has selected Congressman W Charles Stenholm as the first m recipient. The award will be given each year to a person from the 91/2 county Council who has given significant service to our area. This e service does not necessarily include participation in the Scouting program. Also the recognition dinner will be non political or the Boy Scouts could no be a part of it according to Dr. Jim Webster, Chairman of the Steering Committee. "It just so happens that the person who was choosen by the Steering Committee happens to be a leader in our great American political process" said Webster.

The location will be the Petroleum Club, located on the 19th floor of the First State e Bank Building and will start at 7:00 p.m. Although there will be no single speech, those appearing on the program include former Congressman Omar Burleson, Rep. Gary Thompson, and Abilene

Mayor David Stubbeman. General Pintard M. Dyer, a member of the Exective Board of the Chisholm Trail Council, will present the award. Dr. John Stevens will serve as Master of Ceremonies.

Endowment Fund of the Council. The purchase of a ticket to the dinner is a $150 contribution to this fund. According to Webster, seven by percent of the operating budget of the Council in 1985 will need to come from interest from the Endowment Fund and an estimated fifteen percent by 1989. Only the interest can be used from this fund so a $150 contribution now could well be in reality a gift of ten times that much over the next 100 years. A fifteen hundred dollar contribution will reserve a Ray Herring of Munday bravely crawled into an electric utility truck bucket July 6, 1983, to rescue a fellow Knox County man and was awarded the 1983 Texas Rural Heroism Award for his lifesaving efforts.

The search is under way for a 1984 rural hero, says Ben Bullard of Waco, president of the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council which presents the annual award.

The 1984 recipient will be announced April 1, 1985, at the 46th annual Texas/Southwestern Safety Conference and Exposition to be held at the Shamrock Hilton Hotel in Houston. Deadline for submitting 1984 entries will be March 1, 1985, Bullard said. Send all nominations to Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, Box 489, Waco, Texas 76703.

in supporting seat belt use. College reports, adding that Physicians should encourage the risk can be reduced substantially (50% to 60%) if patients through counseling seat belts are used. Although and by example to wear seat belts, says the ACP, and some claims of negative effects from seat belt use are medicine should be involved in researching reasons for the made, these effects are minor low frequency of seat belt use in comparision to the risks and the motivations for involved in neglecting to wear them. The College cites two Automobile-related injuries primary ways of motivating are the greatest single cause people to buckle up: by making it the law to do so and by teaching them--through media campaigns, television advertisements and the like-the importance of using seat belts.

of Studies existing mandatory systems show that they not only induce many more people to wear seat belts, they bring about marked reductions in automobile-related deaths and injuries and reduce the cost of health care. For example in Victoria, Australia (one of the first countries to decree and enforce the wearing of seat belts), the compliance rate is about 75% and road fatalities have been reduced by 20% in urban areas, 10% in rural.

"There is no doubt that the use of seat belts can save many lives and prevent serious injuries," claims the College--but despite the seat belt's effectiveness and low risk, few people are willing to use it. (According to the ACP. even the most generous study estimates that only 10% to 15% of drivers and passengers wear seat belts.)

Toliver To Play In Aztec Bowl

Former Haskell football player, Sam Toliver, will be playing in the Aztec Bowl, December 15, which will be held in Mexico City, Mexico.

Toliver is a linebacker for the Tarleton State University Texans, and has enjoyed, with his team, a 4-1 conference season.

The Texans will be playing the Mexican All Stars in the game, which will be played at 4 p.m.

This will be the second meeting for the teams, and Tarleton leads in the win-loss column after they won the last game 42-8 before a crowd of be 30,000.

Toliver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Toliver of Haskell. On the sidelines as a coach for the Texans of TSU will be former Haskell man, Coach Bill Pringle.

Pringle is in his first year at TSU this year, after a 25 year stint in high school coaching in Texas and California.

second ' He is in charge of the TSU offensive line.

Use Proper Gun For Deer Hunting

What kind of gun is legal for deer hunting in Texas?

This is a question which often bounces around bunting camps and sporting goods houses this time of year when thousands of Texas hunters are heading for the deer lease. Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials said the regulations are fairly liberal but there are some types of guns and other devices which are prohibited for deer hunting. "Probably the most-asked question is can I use a .22-caliber rifle to hunt deer," said Capt. Harold Oates, inland game and fish law enforcement supervisor. "The answer is that only firearms utilizing centerfire ammunition can be used, therefore, rimfire .22s are definitely prohibited." Another frequent question involves automatic weapons. "Semi-automatic rifles or shotguns which require the trigger to be pulled and released for each shot are legal, but true automatic guns of the machine-gun type are not," Oates said. There is no restriction on number of cartridges or shells loaded in firearms for deer hunting. Shotguns are limited in range but they can be used for deer hunting in all counties, loaded either with buckshot or rifled slugs. They are especially popular in thick East Texas woods where shots generally are close and telescopic sights are not as effective.

"Handguns are legal for taking deer as long as they use centerfire cartridges," Oates added. However, as with archery, a hunter should not attempt to hunt deer with a pistol unless he or she has practiced enough to be an accomplished shooter.

Archery provides fodder for more confusion among hunters. A long bow and arrow may be used both during the archery only deer season and the general gun season. During the archery only season archers may take antlerless deer without an anterless deer hunting permit, but during the general gun season archers must obtain anterless permits in counties where they are required, Oates explained.

Crossbows are prohibited for taking all game species. For further information on hunting and fishing regulations, consult the various hunting regulations booklets now available at department offices and license outlets across the state.

begun, too. Donations of cash, toys, food, and coats are already filtering into the Fire Station, and the Goodfellows are hoping that Haskell will really open up their hearts this year so that the needy in town can perhaps have the best Christmas ever.

Chairmen of the drive are Darold Roberson and Phil Harris, and the Lion's Club Goodfellows are hoping to help at least 40 families in town. Some of these families have several children, who would not otherwise be getting anything for Christmas. Donations of money, canned goods, any edibles, and good warm used coats in all sizes being sought as are contributions to the Goodfellows. All of these things can be left at the Fire station and Lions members will accept cash contributions, as well. Cash contributions may also be brought to the Free Press, or they may be mailed to the Free Press, Box 577, Haskell, 79521 This project has been one of the Lions Club's ventures for the past several years, and last year the project brought in $1.180.

Over the years, there have been hundreds who have been helped by the project.

Applications can still be picked up at the office of the Chamber of Commerce, at 2:30 p.m. on Dec. 8 and Dec. 15, then the applications will be reviewed by a committee of townspeople who will make the selections. Those receiving the packages will not know it until the Goodfellows arrive at their door on December 22 to deliver the packages.

If you cannot make a monetary contribution, then bring a can of food, or a toy, or a good used coat. But do what you can to help the Goodfellow give a Merry Christmas to those who would not have Christmas...the poor, the elderly, the unemployed, the children in these families.

Every contribution will be appreciated!

Heart Disease Deaths Down

For the first time since 1952, deaths from heart disease in 1983 accounted for less than 45 percent of all deaths in Texas.

In the last 29 years, the percent of all deaths attributable to heart disease slowly rose, peaked in the early sixties and then slowly low. Over half of all deaths were caused by heart disease as recently at 1966.

The American Heart Accosiation credits this dramatic turnaround to improvement in lifestyle and related cardiovascular risk factor levels, increased efforts in prevention, and innovations in diagnosis and treatment. However, it is not possible to determine whether the declines in heart death reflect a reduction in the frequency of attacks, an improvement in life expectancy after an attack, or both.

American Heart Association computations using Texas Department of Health vital statistics show that 51,416 people died of heart and blood vessel diseases in 1983.

Of those deaths, diseases of the heart accounted for 39,849 deaths; hypertension caused 344 deaths; cerebrovascular disease caused 8,914 deaths; and atherosclerosis 1,315 deaths. Other diseases of the arterioles arteries. and capillaries caused 944 deaths. Just over 11,000 (21.5 percent) of all deaths from cardiovascular diseases in Texas occurred in individuals under age 65. The American Association defines Heart death prior to age 65 as premature.

the common Despite misconception of heart disease striking mostly men, 26,479 victims were male and 24,937 were female.

Heart disease affected over 43 million people in the United States this past year, and is expected to cost our economy $72.1 billion in 1985. Cardiovascular disease is a serious and significant health problem in need of attention and

and and and and

The American Heart Association belives that heart disease is largely preventable, and states its mission as "the prevention of premature death and disability from cardiovascular diseases." The major underlying cause of heart disease is artherofell again to its current new sclerosis-a build-up of fatty deposits inside the blood vessels that restricts and blocks the flow of blood. Studies have shown that high levels of cholesterol in the blood, smoking and high blood take a leadership role in the pressure all contribute greatly prevention of heart and blood to the chance of developing atherosclerosis.

The American Heart Association highly is successful at saving lives. Its goals are accomplished at the community level where public contributions to support its cause are received. Through extensive research, community service and public education, the American Heart Association continues to vessel disease.

Indians Defeat Seymour In Season Opener

By Janet Wilke

In their opening game of the basketball season, the varsity Indians slipped past the Seymour Panthers, 39-30, in what Coach Jim Raughton could have termed a rather lackluster performance.

"I felt that our team was just plain nervous. We were not able to control the tempo of the game like I would have liked, and we were not aggressive on the offensive boards. We have to improve these things before the next game," concluded Raughton.

In scoring, the Indians and the Panthers had the game all tied up at 8 points each in the first quarter, then the Indians went ahead by three, 18-15 at the end of the first half. In the second half, the third quarter showed that the Indians were still ahead but only by a one point margin, 26-25. In the fourth quarter, the Haskell team was able to finally score 13 points, their biggest margin of the night to win 39-30.

High point of the game was Shane Hadaway, with 21. Robert Ivey also tossed in 12 points, to be the only other player in double figures. The Indians were only assessed 7 team fouls, and in the free throw shooting dept., the team completed five of their 6 attempts.

and 17 completions for 39%. Haskell was able to snatch 10 offensive and 14 defensive rebounds against Panthers. Leading were Shane rebounds Hadaway and Robert Ivey, who both had 8, respectively. Haskell fourced Seymour into 9 interceptions, and the Indians had 11 steals. David Adams had four of the team's six assists to lead in that area.

In the first quarter, the Indians completed 3 of 11 field goals, in the second quarter, the Haskell team had 4 of 12 shots completed from the field.

In the second half, the Indians shot 4 of 9 from the field in the third quarter, and in the final quarter, the Indians shot 6 of 12 from the field.

While Coach Jim Kaughton was not as pleased with the game as he would have like to have been, the Indians meet Seymour again Tuesday night, to try and regain some of their old form from last year.

Texas Property Taxes Near $7.2 Billion

Property taxes totaling nearly $7.2 billion were levied in Texas during 1983 by some 3,118 local taxing units, according to the State Tax Board's Property (SPTB's) annual report for the 1983 tax year. As Ron Patterson, SPTB's executive director, pointed out, "The property tax continues to be the primary revenue source for school districts, cities, counties and special districts such as junior colleges, utility districts, etc." Overall, the statewide property tax levy rose by more than $637 million from the $6.5 billion in property taxes levied in 1982, representing a 9.72 percent rate of increase. That rate of increase, however, is down from the 14.4 percent increase in levies from 1981 to 1982. "During 1983," Patterson said, "50.15 percent of all property taxes in the state were levied by school districts, while the city share of the levy was 20.38 percent. Counties levied 17.95 percent of the taxes, while special districts accounted for 11.52 percent of the 1983 levy.' The reported property tax levy per capita in Texas for fiscal year 1983 was $416.86, compared to $376.61 in 1982. However, when adjusted to a base year of 1970 for changes in the consumer price index (CPI), the real per capita levy for 1983 falls to $162,47, compared to $151.50 in 1982 and $129.27 in 1970.

Patterson noted that the property tax accounted for 41.54 percent of the total state and local tax burden in 1983, compared to 38.06 percent in the previous year. "Revenues from some state taxes, mainly the sales and oil production taxes, dropped in 1983," he explained, "and resulted in the property tax representing a larger portion of the total state and local taxes."

Using levy information reported by school districts, SPTB calculated the distribution of the 1983 school tax levy among the various classes of taxable property. The figures indicated that business taxpayers including mineral producers paid just over 52 percent of the school taxes in 1983, while owners of single-family residences paid slightly over 30 percent. Farm properties, including rural acreage, were allocated less than eight percent of the school tax burden while other classes of property together paid over nine percent of the levy.

Complete reappraisals by county appraisal districts can change a property category's share of the tax levy. Reappraisals were conducted in 35 county appraisal districts during 1983. Paterson explained that reappraisals help ensure that the appraisal roll meets the constitutional requirements that values be equal and uniform, and that all property be appraised in accordance with market value.

'When local taxing units reduce their tax rates in proportion to the increase in values, a reappraisal will not produce an overall increase in tax revenues. Rather, it serves to equalize taxes among the various property categories,' he said.

He added that the relationship between appraised values and tax rates is maintained by the state's "truth-in-taxation' statute contained in the Property Tax Code.

truth-in-taxation The provisions require all taxing units to calculate and publicize an effective tax rate before adopting their actual tax rate. The effective tax rate produces the previous year's revenue for maintenance and operations, using current values of property that was taxable in both the previous year and the current year. It also includes the tax rate needed to pay the taxing unit's debt obligations for the upcoming fiscal year.

"Closely tied to truth in taxation are the rollback provisions of the Property Tax Code," said Patterson. "These provisions give taxpayers an opportunity to limit tax increases in all taxing units."

In all units except school districts, the rollback process can be used in the same tax year to reduce a tax increase to only eight percent over the calculated effective tax rate. In school districts the tax increase limitation is implemented in the following

M.A.D.D. Working To Rid America Of Drinking Drivers

In last week's edition we printed the numbers of deaths each year which were attributed to DWI. This week, we will explain the operation of a Lightner. When he killed her, group called MADD (Mothers he had been out of jail for only Against Drunk Drivers), who two days, having been are working to rid the highways of this nation of drinking drivers.

About 26,000 are killed under the influence of alcohol.

In April of 1982, Busch faced a parole violation of his past record of DWI of probation in conjuction with annually, and one person is killed every 23 minutes in an alcohol-related accident. On the average weekend night, one out of every ten drivers on the road is drunk, and 80 percent of all fatal crashes occur between the hours of 8 p.m. and 8 a.m.

The above stats were taken from information obtained for MADD from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the National Safety Council.

And, in another project carried out by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, more than 75 percent of all public school students are drinkers by the age 16. Sixty percent of all of the high school seniors in this country drink at least once a month, and twenty five percent of all seniors have been found to take a drink as often as once a week. Forty nine percent of the teenaged drinkers drank while in their vehicles, and 23 percent drove after having consumed alcohol.

On June 28 of this year, President Ronald Reagan signed into law House Resolution 4616, which raised the legal drinking age to 21.

The new law, which will become effective in two years, upholds the 21 year old drinking age by witholding 5 percent of the state's federal highway funds (not including their highway safety fund) in fiscal 1987 and by witholding 10 percent of their highway funds in fiscal 1988. Those funds could be restored if the state subsequently raised its legal drinking age to 21.

Additionally, the new law could also add a state sponsored program to combat driving while under the influence of a drug to the criteria under which states could receive incentive grants under Public Law 97-364 to combat drunk driving.

And, it also provides incentive grants, up to five percent of current highway safety funds, for states that enacted mandatory minimum sentences for persons convicted for drunk driving offenses. Sentences for the first conviction would be two days in jail or 100 hours of community service and a 90 day license suspension; But, the saddest statistic of second conviction would carry a ten day jail term and one year license suspension, and a third conviction would carry a and cars, and 40,000 are 120 day jail sentence and a three year license suspension. consideration.

Mothers Against Drunk Drivers conducts a variety of programs designed to help those who have been affected by drunk drivers, either by having lost a family member to a drunken driver's attempt at driving. It has something for the young, old, and all ages in between.

One type of program which MADD offers is the public awareness and education program, in which the basic idea that driving while under the influence of alcohol is not socially acceptable behavior is stressed. The local chapters work to educate the community about the seriousness of DWI and to the fact that all Americans have a responsibility to act, in adult, intelligent manner when faced

Clean Chimneys To Prevent Fires

Chimneys with heavy creosote deposits are a leading cause of home fires in the United States each year. Chimneys should be inspected annually for creosote build-up, and now is a good time to do so, says Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Cresosote is produced when wood burns. It escapes from a stove or fireplace in the form of smoke and condenses on the inside of the chimney. Creosote is highly flammable, and deposits one-fourth of an inch deep or more should be removed, emphasizes Nelson. Once ignited, creosote can burn at temperatures up to 3,000 degrees F. The strong upward draft caused by high-temperature chimney fires can lift burning creosote out of the chimney and onto the roof, possibly spreading the fire to the rest of the house, or even neighboring houses.

Chimney cleaning is a messy and sometimes dangerous task which may require climbing onto the roof. Although chemical cleaners are available, most have been proven ineffective.

Nelson suggest steel brushes to clean a chimney, using extension rods to reach the entire length of the flue. To avoid getting soot all over the house, fasten a sheet over the opening of the fireplace.

Chimney cleaning may best handled by a chimney veep. He will have a ction of brushes and will be able to spot improper installation of wood stoves or chimney damage, notes Nelson. Once the chimney has been cleaned, proper use of the stove or fireplace can reduce creosote buildup, he adds. The newer, more efficient stoves and fireplace inserts allow less heat loss through the chimney. This lower temperature inside the chimney encourages the accumulation of creosote, Haskell girls came into the game with three players less than they had expected. Lori McGee broke a thumb earlier in the week, and will be out Christmas, Mindy until Smith was out of the game, and Holly McBroom was not playing because of illness.

Hopefully, the team will be close to full strength when the two teams meet again, which will be after the Thanksgiving holidays.

Coming off of the bench to add a much needed boost to the team after some of the starters got into foul trouble were Denise Burris and Kim Lanier, who Martin praised for their efforts.

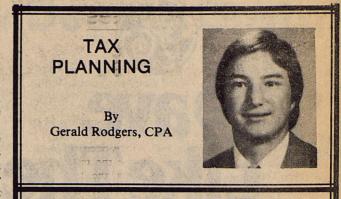

"Our entire bench will be a tremendous help this year as each of these girls will be called upon to contribute many times during the year," Martin explained.

Coach Martin said that the varsity girls would be working to move the ball more in future games, that they would be concentrating on their rebounding, and hoped to eventually get to the point they could move down court faster. He also said they would have to use their press this vear.

Future plans include working on passing the Medicine Ball, working on their power shots, and jumping rope to enhance their leaping ability.

"I was very pleased with the way the girls played off the air supply to the stove Tuesday. We were able to get everyone into the ballgame in the first half. As I said before, the bench will be of invaluable help this year as they will be called upon again and again to help out. All I can say is that if the people of Haskell want to see a real good running game of girls basketball they need to come out and watch these girls," commented Coach

MORE THAN 50% REQUIRED

An important provision in the 1984 Tax Reform Act concerns property used partly for business and partly for personal use. Such property must now be used more than 50% for business, or no investment credit or accelerated depreciation deductions will be allowed.

Therefore, computers, boats, airplanes, automobiles, trucks, and other property used partly for business and partly for personal entertainment or recreation will be subject to this

You may be wondering how the IRS will know if you use a boat or computer 40% or 75% for business. The burden of proof, beginning in 1985, will be on the taxpayer. You are required to keep adequate "contemporaneous records" to substantiate your business usage.

If a taxpayer doesn't have adequate contemporaneous records-that is, records kept currently during the year as the business usage occurs-no credit or deductions will be allowed for the item. If a taxpayer claims credits or deductions without adequate records to support them, he will be subject to negligence penalties.

The contemporaneous records must state the business use of the property as well as the business purpose.

Where business usage of equipment is more than 50% in the first year but decreases in later years, recapture of investment credit and deductions is required.

Tax return preparers will be required to advise taxpayers of the rules and get from their clients written certification that the taxpayer has kept adequate records. If you haven't already done so, you will want to check with your accountant for assistance in making this recordkeeping requirement as simple as possible, while still complying with the law so as not to lose your deductions.
