names nine to board

The presidents of nine civic organizations of Haskell were named to the board of directors of the Haskell Memorial Civic Center during the organization's meeting last Tuesday.

New board members include Phil Harris of the Lions Club, James Davis of the Kiwanis Club, Dickie Greenwood of the Rotary Club, Bill Comedy of the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Pat Quattlebaum of the Progressive Study Club, Mrs. Selina McGuire of the Young Homemakers, Betty Hook of the Brazos West Art Assn., Mrs. Callie Robison of the Garden Club and Bud Turnbow, director-at-large.

Officers of the center are R.C. Couch Jr., president; Tom Watson, vice president; Mrs. Delight Jones, secretary; Abe Turner, treasurer; and Mrs. Carolyn Everett, assistant treasurer.

Other directors include Mrs. Mattie M. Felker, Mrs. Juanita Dunnam and Mrs. Jerrene Couch.

Directors were informed by Watson that work on the kitchen area is about to get underway again. The installation of cabinets and sinks will complete the kitchen

Watson also informed the directors and officers that a schedule of activities for the spring is already beginning to fill up. One of the main events on the spring slate, he said, will be the performance of a benefit concert April 12 by the Imitation Stats of Seymour. The Civic Center will sponsor the benefit to raise money for further completion of the center.

A number of Sesquicentennial events scheduled for the spring will be announced later.

Members adopted a revised copy of the by-laws and also heard a financial report for 1985.

Officers and directors ask that anyone wanting to reserve the Civic Center for a date this spring needs to do so by contacting Watson, who is in charge of scheduling and bookings. Some dates already are taken so it is necessary that reservations be made in advance.

Funds to pay for the kitchen project are available, but officers and directors said that money will be needed to install the large compressors which will run the air conditioning units in the center. The installation of the compressors will be the next major expense item. Donations for this project may be made at any time.

Watson files

City Councilman Kenny Watson filed Wednesday morning as a candidate for re-election. Earlier, Mayor Abe Turner had filed as a candidate for re-election as mayor. Councilman Larry Gilliam, whose term also is up for election in April 5 city election, has announced that he will not be a candidate.

Filing deadline Roewe lambs. for City Feb. 19

Filing period for candidates for the city election is 5 p.m. Feb. 19. The Morales, Matt Lane, Leiza Morales. Free Press reported last week that the deadline is Feb. 9.

The mayor and two councilmen - Patrick Perez. Reserve Grand will be elected in the April 5 Champion - Kirk High.

director of the Cotton Division of during the previous season. the U.S. Dept of Agricultural said this week that cotton production was high throughout the area in contrast to the very low yields of the past two seasons.

As of last week, Haskell County gins had ginned 72,779 bales. Through Jan. 23, the USDA Cotton Classing office in Abilene had classed 638,000 bales, compared to 267,000 last year and 297,000 bales the year before.

Local cotton prices were mostly steady to a half-cent per pound higher for low micronaire cotton during the past week. Spot prices

CCC loan entries have been heavy this season, Manly said. More cotton was placed with the CCC loan program than during any other season in the past 20 years. Typical area qualities secured loans mostly 46 to 55 cents per pound through the Form I and G loan programs. Manly estimated that 75 percent of the crop would be entered into the CCC loan.

Cottonseed prices paid producers also were lower during the current season, Manly said. They ranged mostly $50 to $65 per ton, compared to $85 to $105 per ton during the previous season. Manly said the quality of cotton produced in the area this season was about average for grade. There was less white cotton than usual but there also was a lower percentage of spots and tinges.

About 87 percent was lightspotted, with grade 42 accounting for 49 percent. About 31.5 percent was reduced in grade for bark or grass content, compared to 38 percent last year.

Micronaire readings were 84 percent within the 35 to 49 range, compared to 69 percent last year. Strength was the only quality factor that was superior the previous season, averaging 24.6 last season and 23.4 grams per tex breaking strength for HVI classed cotton this

City to request grant for pool improvement

The City of Haskell will request a grant of $126,000 from the State Parks and Wildlife Commission to renovate the city swimming pool and bath house.

A resolution passed at Tuesday night's council meeting authorized City Administrator Robert Baker to make application for the grant. The City would be committed to put up half of the funds, including $20,000 in cash and the balance in in-kind

Included in the project will be a filtration system for the pool, a

State leaders asked to attend Perry benefit

A number of state political leaders have been invited to attend a fund-raising chili supper for State Rep. Rick Perry in Haskell Monday,

The event begins at 6:30 p.m. at the Civic Center. Tickets, priced at $10 each, may be purchased from various supporters of Perry. They also will be available at the door.

Among those who have been invited to attend are Rep. Gib Lewis of Fort Worth, speaker of the house; Rep. Bruce Gibson of Godley, chairman of the Finance Committee; Rep. Charlie Evans of Hurst, chairman of the Government Organization Committee; Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls; Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene; Rep. Randle Riley of Round Rock; Rep. Pete Laney of Hale Center, chairman of the State Affairs Committee; and Rep. Mike Millsap of Fort Worth, chairman of House Administration.

Perry has announced his candidacy for re-election to the 64th Legislative district, which includes Callahan, Haskell, Hood, Palo Pinto, Shackelford, Stephens, Throckmorton and Young counties.

lighting system and complete renovation of the bath house. The State Health Department has demanded that a new filtration system be installed at the pool.

Councilmen also discussed with City Attorney Joseph Thigpen the possibility of civil action against David Todd of Abilene, who was the engineer on the airport project. The City claims that the engineer's design resulted in a cost $76,000 over the contract price.

Thigpen and Baker will go to Austin to discuss the matter with the Texas Aeronautical Commission and Attorney General.

In other action Tuesday, the Council granted Chief Escobedo an extension until Feb. 28 to remove the old depot from city property. allowed a zoning request from Dave Miller to place a trailer on a lot on South Ave. G and held further discussion on the proposed city plumbing ordinance.

Friday deadline for paying '85 taxes

Friday is the deadline to pay 1985 taxes without having penalty and interest added, according to John Grissom, chief appraiser for the Haskell County Appraisal District. Taxes not paid by Friday will begin accruing interest and

Accounts not paid by June 30 will be handed over to the district's delinquent tax attorney for collection and an additional 15 percent will be added to the past due amount.

Delinquent taxes cannot be avoided by selling or transferring the taxes property since taxing units hold a lien on each item of taxable property. In addition, law makes each person who owns taxable property on Jan. 1 personably liable for the taxes.

Chamber banquet scheduled March 22

The 50th annual banquet of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce will be Saturday, March 22, beginning at 7 p.m. at the Civic Center.

Theme will be the Texas Sesquicentennial and guests are invited to dress western, country, prairie clothes, if they like, in keeping with the state observance.

A sing-song of Texas tunes is scheduled, along with bits of history and special music.

Officers for the coming year and new board members will be announced and Haskell's Most Outstanding Citizen will be presented.

After the introduction of out-oftown guests, past presidents of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce will be recognized for their leadership. A special table is traditionally reserved for them and their guests.

A chuck wagon supper is planned and tickets at $7.50 each will be available the first week in February from any member of the board of directors or the Welcoming Committee and at the Chamber Haskell County was created by the Texas Legislature Feb. 1, 1858. Although the area had been platted, not a single white man lived here.

At the suggestion of John Henry Brown, a legislator and the author of "Brown's History of Texas," the county was named for Charles Ready Haskell, a Texas revolutionary soldier.

Haskell was born near Nashville, Tenn., in 1817. He joined a company formed by Capt. Burr H. Duval in Kentucky and followed its fortunes to its fateful Palm Sunday, March 27, 1836, when he was killed along with the rest of the command at Goliad.

Numerous articles of Haskell County's history will appear in the Free Press centennial edition to be published in June to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the newspaper and the 150th anniversary of Texas indepen-

Welfare Board hears good report

The Haskell County Child Welfare Board received a very good report from Mrs. Linda Haynes, county representative to the Texas Dept. of Human Services, at the regular session Jan. 21.

Thirty-four children in 10 families were provided with Christmas gifts of food, clothing and toys which were wrapped and delivered by Mrs. Haynes with the help of Joe Cortez on Dec. 23 and 24.

This was made possible because there was such a good response by the community to having children's pictures taken with Santa Claus on the Saturdays when the drawings were taking place in December. The board wishes to thank everyone who donated. Brian Burgess donated the film.

The board is also very grateful to the First United Methodist Church of Haskell for wrapping and labeling the gifts and for a generous cash donation; cash donations from the Haskell Ministerial Council, which were delivered by the Rev. David Green; East Side Baptist Church of Haskell, Trinity Baptist Church of Haskell and Mrs. B.L. Kuykendall of Haskell, Weinert Church of Christ and the Friendship Class of the First Baptist Church of Weinert for clothing; Adult I Department, First Baptist Church of Haskell for food and toys; Kayla Pannell for toys; Mrs. Gordon King of Abilene for dolls; Vickie Josselet of Little Kritters for clothing; the Drug Store for paper goods and miscellaneous items; and Headstream Mental Health Clinic for a Christmas tree. Your interest in needy children is appreciated and your generosity made the Jury Room look like Santa's workshop, as indeed it was.

Sue Miller, treasurer, reported that expenses for candy canes which were given to those having pictures made, education material and supplies for the Christmas parade float had been paid.

Pam Aycock, Betsy Nanny and Linda Haynes represented the board at the Dec. 5 meeting with the Hon. Rick Perry concerning the work and aim of DHS and needed legislaton having to do with child abuse intervention and treatment.

The election of officers was postponed. Shirley Mickler and Brian Burgess, whose terms expired, were asked to continue to serve and they consented. It is the desire of the board to increase the membership on the board. Nancy Norman of Abilene informed members that there will be an orientation for new members Feb. 11 in Seymour and anyone may

Mrs. Haynes reported that programs would soon be presented Rule and also Haskell Elementary School.

The board voted to see about placing the Spider Man Comics, which stress the importance of a child's telling about sexual abuse, in the hands of every school child in Haskell County. The schools will be contacted by Shirley Mickler, Sue Miller and Mary Martin. Nancy Norman will check on the availability of the comics.

Social Security funds restored, says Stenholm

Senior citizens have no reason to fear that their Social Security trust funds have been depleted by disinvestment, Congressman Charles Stenholm

Use of Social Security investments to keep the government operating during a debt-limit crisis late last year caused a great deal of concern among the nation's elderly. Congress responded to the Treasury Secretary's disinvestment procedings by passing two separate pieces of legislation, requiring that all losses that had been incurred to the trust funds be restored.

Grace Womack fund established

A fund for Grace Lancaster Womack has been set up at Haskell National Bank.

Mrs. Womack is currently taking radiation treatments on an outpatient basis. These are expected to continue for some time.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution to the fund may call the bank (864-2631) or send a contribution to Haskell National Bank, P.O. Box 998, in care of the Grace Lancaster Womack Fund, No. 58-730-3.

In a mid-January letter to officials in Congress, the Treasury Department advised that all requirements of both laws had been fulfilled. During a period from Dec. 12 through Jan. 2, money was restored so that the trust fund now contains the amount it would have had if no disinvestment had occurred, a Treasury official reported.

While this recent problem has been resolved, many lawmakers are concerned that similar actions should not occur in the future. Stenholm became one of the first sponsors of legislation which would specifically prohibit any future disinvestments of Social Security when the government is running short of cash because of a debt-ceiling crisis. The bill would also require the Managing Trustee of the Social Security funds to provide Congress with notice when the issuing of checks would be potentially endangered by the debt ceiling.

"There is no reason for this practice to be repeated," said the area's representative. Congress and the Administration are at fault for allowing such a situation to arise. It is time for everyone to stop playing with this political football.

Stenholm was also critical of private groups and individuals who attempt to capitalize on senior citizen's fears by developing their own fund-raising through scare

Condiments add sodium to diets

You can carefully avoid the salt shaker and still be getting significant amounts of sodium from the condiments and sauces you use to flavor food, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

A sodium intake of 1,100 to 3,300 milligrams daily is considered safe and adequate for a healthy adult, says Mary K. Sweeten. One teaspoon of salt contains 1,938 milligrams of sodium or almost two-thirds of this daily amount.

While the specific amount will vary somewhat according to brand, recent figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture illustrate the sodium content of popular seasonings, condiments and relishes.

Among the sauces, soy sauce contains the most sodium with about 1,029 milligrams per tablespoon. One tablespoon of Teriyaki sauce contains 690 milligrams, chili sauce 227, Worchestershire sauce 206, and barbecue sauce 130 milligrams.

Some favorite condiments add smaller amounts of sodium to the diet, notes Sweeten.

Two from here graduate from nursing school

Marilyn S. McGhee and Sylvia Jo McGhee were among five students who graduated Friday from the Stamford Memorial Hospital School of Vocational Nursing.

Graduation ceremonies were at St. John's Methodist Church in Stamford. The address to graduates was by Mrs. Harry Haynes and the invocation and benediction were by the Rev. Phil McClendon.

Diplomas were presented by Don Hopkins, administrator, assisted by Jonnie Shaw, RN, instructor. Lamps were lighted by Bobbie Connally, RN, director of nurses.

A reception, hosted by the Pink Ladies Hospital Auxiliary of Stamford, honored graduates and their families immediately after the graduation ceremonies.

Also receiving diplomas were Deanna Johnson, Jamie Mueller and Brenda Whitworth of Stamford.

To get degree

Paul C. Williams, a Hardin-Simmons University student from Haskell, has completed the requirements for a bachelor of science degree and will receive a during spring diploma commencement exercises May 10.

There is not one successful industry today that is operating the Ranchers of the past used same way it operated 50 or 60 years ago. To stay in business those successful industries have had to change with the times," says Troxel.

"Your father or grandfather went to town once a week or month, overhauled the old truck instead of State Senator and Mrs. Ray buying a new one, built fences didn't have air-conditioning and the old ranching techniques won't pay for the way ranchers live now," the specialist points out.

Modern lifestyles often include a Both Senator and Mrs. Farabee brick, air-conditioned house, a pickup and two cars, trips to livestock shows and annual cattlemen's meeting, and driving into town six times a week, he adds.

"The saddest part is that even modern ranching may never pay for a modern lifestyle," says Troxel.

"Adopting new technology doesn't necessarily mean profits,' he adds. "Ranchers should improve their management policy instead. Overall management must be improved and more importantly, goals and objectives need to be determined. Plans should be determined to improve the ranching business. In order for a ranch to survive, historical ranching needs to be history.

Richard Vincent receives degree at Brigham Young

Richard M. Vincent of Haskell received a BS degree in psychology from Brigham Young University in December.

He was one of 1,333 graduates from 43 states, the District of Columbia and 36 foreign countries who received diplomas at that time from the Provo, Utah, school.

BYU is owned and operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormons) and is the largest private, church-related university in the United States. It has an enrollment of more than 26,000 students representing all 50 states, the District of Columbia and 93 foreign countries.

Olney names Greenwood vice president for tape 'goof-up'

Dickie Greenwood has been named vice president branch manager of the Haskell office of Olney Savings.

Greenwood is a graduate of Tarleton State University in Stephenville with a BS degree in Agricultural Business.

Greenwood began work for Commodore Savings Association in May 1982 as a loan officer in the Stamford office. He was vice president branch manager of the Haskell branch at the time of the merger with Olney Savings.

Before joining Commodore, he was employed by the USDA--Farmer's Home Administration as an assistant emergency loan supervisor.

Greenwood is currently serving as president of the Haskell Rotary Club, treasurer of the Haskell Industrial Foundation, director of the Haskell Memorial Civic Center, Inc. and director of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce.

Tommy Varner, an assistant coach at Baird High School, said the scene flashed on the screen 30 seconds after the drug awareness program ended.

Dusty Garrison, Perry's legislative aide, said Perry saw the tape-without the added attraction-and wanted schools in his district to benefit from the "excellent program."

Mike Fickel, director of House Technical Services in Austin, said the nude scene was from his personal copy of a movie.

Video Vision will offer rental of video cassette tapes and video cassette recorders (VCRs) to customers for a single night, multiple nights or an entire weekend. Gigi Barnett, operator and system manager of Video Vision and Harmon Cable Communications, said "we wanted to add video tape rentals to our existing cable business to provide complete home entertainment options for our customers, both cable subscribers and non-subscribers.' "Video Vision will have an excellent selection of tapes available to please all ages, and entertainment tastes including family films, recent releases, drama, comedy, westerns and much more."

Special Video Vision discounts are available to Harmon premium movie service cable subscribers, according to Barnett. Subscribers to HBO and/or Disney or Showtime will be entitled to such benefits as automatic membership in the Video Vision Movie Club, a $20 value, discounts on movie tape rentals, on free movie rental per month, and 24-hour advance movie reserva-

"Harmon Cable Communications is excited to bring this additional home entertainment source to the residents of Stamford, Haskell, Munday and Rule", said Barnett. "We are anxious to open our doors on the third and to begin rentals to our customers and friends. Video Vision will provide complete VCR hook-up and play back instructions to all customers renting a VCR with their movie tapes. "Our customers will be delighted to find how easy it is to connect a rental VCR to their TV when they have cable service, and we'll be happy to help them with their first time connection."

Harmon Cable Communications business hours have been expanded to accomodate Video Vision customers. Video Vision hours will be: Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. until 7 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

It is a miracle there are whooping for the decline of the cranes is their migratory flight. Whooping cranes summer in Wood Buffalo National Park in alberta, Canada. In early November, when heavy northwest winds rake that section of the northlands, the whoopers with brand new chicks, take to the air. Their flyway through midwestern America takes them 2,500 miles before they reach their asylum at the Port Aransas Wildlife Refuge. Enroute they must locate lake beds and irrigated grain fields for food, and dodge power lines, fences and aircraft.

One look at the Port Aransas Wildlife Refuge and you know this is prime animal land. The refuge harbors coyotes, javelina, wild turkeys, raccoons, alligators and lots of deer. But is is the birdlife that makes the sanctuary unique. Over 300 types of birds call the refuge home including herons, cranes, gulls, white and brown pelicans, geese, ducks, hawks, Roseate Spoonbills, and American Oystercatchers.

While the refuge itself provides good opportunities to view much of the wildlife, the best way to view the birdlife, and the whoopers, is aboard the M.V. Whooping Crane. The 65-foot boat follows the Waterway Intercoastal borders that refuge and offers spectacular closeups of the whooping cranes for "birders," photographers and nature lovers. There is an open observation deck on top and, if things get a bit too cold, a heated cabin below. The large cabin has a good galley, complete with coffee, hot chocolate, sodas, sandwiches, and snacks.

The trip is interesting and memorable. The skipper is Captain "Ted" Appel, an understudy to Captain "Brownie" Browne who began the tour operation. Like his mentor, Captain Ted's dedication to the whooping cranes is evident from the start. He is very knowledgeable about all the birds along the coast, spotting and identifying them very quickly, and is an expert on the whooping cranes. His commentary along the way is humorous, yet educational.

It is amazing how close Captain Ted can get the Whooping Crane to the endangered birds. With each pair of birds claiming a very specific territory and the boat passing them everyday, the birds get very predictable.

"A family of four usually shows up about now so I'll just put her ashore here and we'll see if they'll come," Captain Ted announces over the loud speaker. Within five minutes two adults and two immature whooping cranes are wading right next to the boat.

Weinert places eight on all-district team

The Weinert Bulldogs claimed eight positions on the offensive and defensive all-district teams selected by the coaches of the district 6-man football teams.

Heading the Bulldog players was Shannon Forehand, who was placed at quarterback on the offensive team and at safety on the defensive

Also named to the offensive unit were running back Louis Perez, end Ricky Perez, center Ramon Castorena and kicker Kevin White.

On the defensive team along with Forehand were end Johnny Perez and linebacker Ed Perez.

Three other Haskell County players were on the all-district team. They included offensive end John Mark Wyatt of Rochester, linebacker Bobby Walker of Rule and punter Richard Shaver of Rochester.

Included on the second team were Larry Reid of Rochester, Keith Medford of Paint Creek, Bobby Walker and Glen Vandervilt of Rule and James Wyatt of Rochester on offense, and Kevin Mathis of Rule, Jamie Braly of Paint Creek, Scott O'Neal and James Wyatt of Rochester, Lois Perez of Weinert and Alfredo Velerio of Rule.

Forehand and Jayton's Trev Richey were chosen to represent the district in the 6-man all-star game in Stephenville next summer. Alternate all-star selections were Ricky Martinez of Jayton and Braly of Paint Creek.

Merchandise your job talents A young person just out of school thinks that getting the first job is the toughest. But, as many of us

learn from expeience, getting a job

later in life can be just as difficult, or more so. Whether you're a recent graduate or an experienced worker, a booklet from the U.S. Department of Labor can help you.

Merchandising Your Job Talents (Item 106P, $2.75) tells you how to find out what jobs you're most suited for, how to learn about job openings, how to apply, and how to have a successful interview. For your copy, send your name, address, payment, and the item number to Consumer Information

Colorado 81009. The first step in merchandising your job talents is drawing up a complete inventory of your background and work experience. It is important to include your education, work history, military service, skills, special courses or training, volunteer activities, and awards. You can use this inventory to prepare a resume -- or have it handy for filling out job application

Center, Dept. MB, Pueblo,

As you apply for jobs, stress your work experience that is most revelant. Be brief in listing unrelated jobs. If you have a word processor, or access to one, you can tailor a resume for a particular job by rearranging and expanding or condensing your work and education backgrounds. But, be careful never to misrepresent yourself in a resume.

If you are invited for an interview, learn all you can about the company -- its product or service, standing in the industry, and number and kinds of jobs available. A job interview gives you the opportunity to merchandise your talents to the employer. It also enables you to appraise the job, the employer and the company. It gives you a chance to decide if the job meets your career needs, and whether you would like to work for the employer.

Be prepared: the interviewer may ask you what you liked best or least about a previous job, what you consider your strengths, how you handled a difficult task, where you hope to be in ten years, or any number of questions that require thoughtful preparation. You may want to review your inventory to refresh your memory.

Ask plenty of questions yourself, so that if you are offered the job, you will understand exactly what your duties will be and what the opportunities are for salary increases or promotions. It is generally wise to omit specific salary requirements from a resume -- wait until you learn more about a specific job's duties and responsibilities before deciding what the pay should be. Even if you aren't offered the job, you can profit from analyzing how you did in the interview, and what you

Another booklet that can help you in your job hunt is the list of Current Bureau of Labor Statistics Publications (item 509N, free). These BLS booklests cover employment and unemployment statistics, surveys of salaries by area and industry, occupational projections, individual occupations, and many other topics. To receive a free copy, send your name and address and the item number to the Pueblo address above.

When you send for Merchand-

Texas Baptists give record support

$58.3 million in 1985 through their Cooperative Program for missions support and also established giving records through their special offerings.

The 4,900 churches and missions gave $1.3 million more than their basic budget of $57 million and increased their giving by 7.1 percent over the previous year, more than twice the inflation rate, said Convention Treasurer Roger Hall.

More than $21 million of the Cooperative Program gifts went for Southern Baptist worldwide mission causes, including support of 7,000 missionaries in 105 nations.

The remainder of the Cooperative Program gifts went to help support state missions causes and Texas Baptist institutions including eight hospitals, four child care homes, a number of homes for aging and eight Baptist universities and San Marcos Baptist Academy.

In 1985, Texas Baptists increased their special state missions offering gifts by 135 percent over 1984.

Texas Baptists gave a record Churches and individual donors gave $7.6 million through the Mary Hill Davis Centennial Offering for state missions in 1985.

The goal is to raise $30 million through the special offering by the end of this year to help start 2,000 new churches as part of the "Mission Texas" effort.

The Mission Texas challenge was issued by Texas Baptist Executive Director William M. Pinson, Jr., who noted that statistics show more than half the people of Texas are not affiliated with any church.

"That many (2,000) new churches will be needed by 1990 just to keep pace with the exploding population," said Pinson.

To help raise the money to begin the new congregations, Texas Baptist churches were encouraged to triple their 1984 state missions offering gifts in 1985 and then to triple their 1985 gifts in 1986.

Texas Baptist gifts to the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering for missions totaled foreign $12,342,512 as compared to $10,987,694 in 1984.

Just not right

There's something that's just not right about a program announced the other day by the State Dept. of Highways and Public Transporta-

The program is one which invites municipalities to enter into yearlong contracts whereby they are reimbursed for issuing citations to persons who dump trash on state highway rights-of-way. Cities will be reimbursed $20 per citation.

While admiring the organization for its efforts in keeping the rights-of-way free of litter, the idea of paying a city for issuing citations just doesn't ring right.

Those who dump their garbage along the road should be cited and fined. But for a city to be rewarded for issing the citations borders on

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Watching Washington

To paraphrase an old saying: Never argue with a man who buys his ink by the barrel—or his paper by the ton.

The reference, of course, is to newspaper publishers who buy newsprint by the ton. That expense can now consume about 40 percent of a newspaper's operating budget, since between 1970 and 1980 the price per ton of newsprint skyrocketed from $168 to $500. And it's still going up.

As the price of U.S. newsprint has soared, foreign manufacturers have moved in to capture almost 60 percent of our newsprint market. We now import about seven million tons of newsprint a year, mostly from Canada. Part of the problem lies in the cost of raw materials. Paper mills were built on timbered lands to ensure a cheap, nearby source of wood pulp.

Some mills now pay to have wood shipped to them as the land around them has turned to other uses. The time is ripe to create a kenaf industry. Kenaf (keh-NAFF) is a woody fiber plant—a cousin of cotton—that stands about 10-14 feet tall and looks like bamboo. Kenaf pulp can be substituted for wood in making high quality newsprint, with few if any changes needed to current manufacturing equipment. And it can easily be grown close to established paper mills with dwindling wood supplies. Moreover, kenaf is not limited to use in newsprint. In Southeast Asia, kenaf pulp is used in a multitude of other paper products-everything from facial tissues and computer paper to grocery sacks and file folders. U.S. Department of Agriculture has known this for decades, but until recently there was little incentive to develop a kenaf industry. Now, there's

Since kenaf grows anywhere cotton will, cotton farmers could plant a more profitable crop at a time when cotton prices are plummeting and surpluses are piling up. With little new equipment, cotton-which yields some 400 pounds per acre at 55 cents a pound—could be replaced in part by kenaf-which yields some 10 tons per acre at $45-60 a ton. Reducing cotton acreage would also help stabilize the cotton industry.

I joined forces with Senator Dennis DeConcini of Arizona last year to push through a farm bill amendment that allows the USDA to set up four small scale demonstration projects for making newsprint from kenaf, including one in Southeast Texas.

Farmers who grow this kenaf will be paid for their crop with surplus cotton, not cash. Paper mills have agreed to use kenaf in their newsprint, which newspaper publishers will evaluate.

The project will be completed by March 1987-lending credibility to kenaf as a crop and a pulp source, and providing the groundwork for a new industry which could bring millions of dollars into the farm economy. Meanwhile, interest in Texas is so strong that many businessmen and farmers in South Texas already are lining up to become part of the kenaf

The Bentsen-DeConcini amendment also allows the USDA to use surplus commodities to contract for demonstration projects on other promising crops, such as guayule, a natural rubber, and oil producing plants jojoba and crambe.

Establishing new crops with industrial or strategic uses could hardly be more timely. Our farmers need new sources of income and many manufacturers need such raw materials to remain competitive in the U.S. and

All Americans will benefit as we reduce our dependence on foreign suppliers and products, thus helping to cut our enormous trade deficit.

Young people rule advertising world

Years ago someone proclaimed that advertising models would be young, vibrant and beautiful (or handsome).

Famous fleamarket considers re-opening

Will the FLEAMK, the flea market that flourished in the old oil ank at Putnam during the 70s, live again?

R.W. Reynolds, owner and originator of the internationally known facility says that serious consideration is being given to opening it again in late Spring to serve as a sort of Sesquicentennial hospitality center along with offering the usual flea market accommodations. Spaces for dealers will be offered on a weekly or monthly basis.

In this 150th anniversary of the Independence of Texas with its influx of tourists, Reynolds is confident that the "tank", one of the most widely known spots in the area, will get its share of visitors. And, especially since it is planned to make provisions where cars can drive through the tank.

for better or worse. The male anglerfish uses its keen sense of smell to help locate a female. With his oversized buck teeth, the male bites onto the female and never lets go! With time his lips and mouth literally fuse to her skin. His bloodstream connects with hers, and his digestive tract and eyes atrophy. The male continues to breathe on his own, but becomes a parasite in all other ways.

The female continues to grow with age, although the male maintains a dwarf size. It is quite common to see a female 20 times larger than her tag-along partner.

Even though the male appears to have forfeited a life of his own, he serves a very important function. When the female spawns, he is there to fertilize the eggs.

Very little was known about anglerfish until recently," said Ray Sutton, wildlife manager of the International Wildlife Park in Grand Prairie. "For a long time, scientists thought the male anglerfish was the offspring of the female. It is not easy to study a creature which lives at 6,000 feet." Scientists gave anglerfish their name because of the unique way they catch their meals. Females have a huge mouth with an under-bite, which accounts for almost one-third their body size. A little tentacle with a nodule on the end extends from the forehead and hangs over the

This appendage serves as a fishing rod and lures for the female anglerfish, which hides silently and waits for meals to be attracked to the lure.

Mother Nature experimented with creativity when she designed anglerfish. With a unique way to catch meals and a lifetime mate, anglerfish will continue to lurk in the depths of the ocean.

Weed control in wheat pays dividends

Herbicides are often the first production costs to come under close scrutiny when wheat farmers examine ways to cut production expenses. Many farmers wonder if the cost of weed control eventually pays dividends.

Agronomists from Texas to the Dakotas generally agree that higher yields and a higher return on investment are possible with effective broadleaf weed control in wheat.

Even light or moderate weed infestations can adversely affect vields. "Just one tansy mustard per square foot reudces yields up to 10 percent," reports Allen Wiese, Texas A&M weed scientist.

State University Kansas Extension agronomist, Merrel Mikesell, remarks, "I would certainly try to control winter annual broadleaves in wheat because high weed populations can cut wheat yields in half."

Mikesell explains that annual broadleaf weeds, like tansy mustard, compete with wheat during the crop's critical growing state and in some instances reduce vields more than summer annuals. However, if not controlled summer annuals will prduce seeds and will become a problem for farmers if a field is rotated to a row crop.

VA disability benefits rise by 3.1 percent

According to C.H. Herren, Veterans Service Officer for Haskell County, the Congress has authorized an across-the-board increase in the service-connected disability compensation being paid to veterans of the Armed Forces of the United States.

This increase of 3.1 percent was authorized by House Resolution 1538, and was effective Dec. 1. Veterans in receipt of serviceconnected compensation will see Alabama, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Cook the increase in their payments of Feb. 1. At that time, they will receive the payments at the new rate, plus the retroactive amount for the month of December. The payments that will be received on eat at the Royal Inn. Those who March 1 should be in the newly established monthly rate.

The 3.1 percent increase means that the veteran with a 10 percent service-connected rating will see his monthly compensation payment go from $66 to $68. The rate for the 100 percent disabled veteran will be increased from $1,295 to $1,335 per month. Veterans rated 30 percent or more are entitled to an additional allowance for all established dependents, such as spouse, minor Kinsey of Abilene, Mr. and Mrs. and handicapped children, and Larry LeFevre and children had parents. The dependents allowance has also been increased by 3.1 percent, effective Dec. 1, 1985.

To those who want to experience conditions, rugged terrain and the rear of their wagons, those settlers headed toward a new home; perhaps a plot of backland soil or some hallowed rangeland in western Texas. Nothing was going It will be the largest train ever to stand between them and their

> Some of that pioneer determination is evident on the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train. Wagons roll at 8 a.m. sharp until the days get longer, then the wagons will depart ride the entire 3,028 miles on an iron-tired Conestoga wagon.

The threats from unseen dangers are not what they were a century-and-a-half ago. Still, a wagon train is not your ordinary mode of transportation. With the stars for a ceiling at night, the wooden wagon for absorbing bumps and a horse for propulsion, partakers of the wagon train will get a view of Texas unique to 4 m.p.h. vehicles and open-air camps.

Fourteen official sponsors will have wagons in the train, including a coach donated by the maker of Winchester arms. Many of the wagons are authentic Conestogas and even an original Studebaker wagon will traverse the entire route. A motorized trailer resembling an old-fashioned, oneroom school-house is also part of the chain. In it 25 children from families on the train will be taught a modern curriculum by a teacher and two aides.

Farriers and blacksmiths will be for hire to anyone needing to shoe horses. A water wagon, chuck wagon and a port-a-can wagon should make the trip a little more comfortable.

Public participation is invitedfrom a single day to the entire trip. Keep in mind we're talking primitive transportation here. While thousands of hardy settlers came to Texas in this manner, few were accustomed to the plush seats of Cadillacs. Either on wagon, surrey, buggy, horse or mule the journey can be made. To insure comfort, mammal riders are advised to bring extra girths, reins, saddle pads and lots of pillows.

Anyone interested in riding aboard a wagon must be at a designated campsite and find someone who has space in the coach. Those interested in just looking at this giant train are advised to meet the procession at one of the campsites or along the scheduled route.

The wagon train began its journey at Sulphur Springs on Jan. 2 with 83 wagons and 253 riders on horseback. The train will end at the Fort Worth Stockyards on July 4th. In between, the train will visit Houston, Kingsville, San Antonio,

San Angelo, Ft. Stockton, El Paso, Midland, Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene, Wichita Falls and most small towns along the route. Many towns and cities are honoring the train with barbecues, dances and celebrations. For a schedule of the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train or more information, contact the Texas Wagon Train Association at P.O. Box 167217, Irving, Texas 75016 or call 1-800-441-1986.

Reading program for children planned

Registration is underway for McMurry College's annual Super-Start Reading Program for children with reading problems in the first through third grades.

Dealdine is Feb. 20 and the program is limited to 48 students. Classes will be held from 3 to 4 p.m. each Thursday from Feb. 27 to April 24. Fee is $35 per student.

Elementary education majors with a specialization in reading will handle the instruction under the supervision of Dr. Ann Cook. The program is held in conjunction with diagnostic and remedial reading techniques. Each child will be tested for reading level and specific problems. He or she will then be assigned to an instructor for remedial and motivating activities.

Activities include using commercial games (Speak and Spell, Speak and Read, etc.) and teacher-made games which are designed to address the particular problems the child may have.

The program strives to create a "fun" atmosphere to decrease the stress of the child and provide a relaxed learning enviornment.

The Elementary Education students will plan individual programs for each pair of children they supervise in order to address the specific needs of each child.

An orientation program is planned for parents and children in the first class meeting, Feb. 27, and an awards ceremony is planned for the final class meeting, April 24.

To register, contact the McMurry education department at (915) 691-6257 or 691-6369.
