

Toughlove group to be organized

An organizational meeting for a local chapter of Toughlove, a self-help program for parents troubled by teenage behavior, will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 25, in the Community Room of Haskell National Bank.

The meeting is for parents only. Details are available by calling David Smith at 864-3472 or Sharlyn Hudson at 864-3275 (after 5 p.m.).

Designed to offer help to parents suffering with problems at home because of children with drug problems, rebellious attitudes and other difficulties, Toughlove offers help in dealing with the problems.

Organizers of the movement urged parents to attend the meeting, pointing out it will take courage to participate in such a program. "But they need to step out of their closets of shame, guilt and fear," they said.

Toughlove describes itself in this way:

—We are a support group, not a therapy group.

—We are a parent support group. Parents and kids meet separately for peer support.

—We deal in behavior, not in emotions, even though emotions are considered and respected.

—We do not act as professional counselors. Each group can recommend helpful professionals.

—We have no affiliation with any religious or political group.

—We cannot give immediate answers to problems; what we can do is show you that you are not alone, that you have rights and worth and deserve to be treated with respect.

—We have a "process for change" that you can use as a guide. We offer supportive confrontation and selective support to help you to make changes, first for yourself and your well-being, then for your teenager.

We give no guarantees. We do not tell you what to do. We can give suggestions, hope and sharing. There are no prescriptions. You make your own plans and get support from the group to follow through with your decisions.

City election filing period comes to a close

No new candidates had filed for city offices Wednesday morning as the filing period entered its final day.

Prospective candidates still had until the end of the day to file at City Hall.

Mayor Abe Turner and Councilman Kenny Watson both have filed for re-election. Claude Payne also has filed for the City Council.

Flashback

A little eating stand, which stocked a few groceries to sell to the public, was probably the first business in Haskell. It was established in 1884 by L. M. (Pretty) Smith.

The first "real" business was opened by W. F. Draper who ordered a stock of groceries and whiskey to stock a store he opened in August 1884 on the west side of the square.

The town's second store was a grocery and dry goods store opened by William Harvey on the north side of the square.

Where's Haskell? Weimar teacher wonders

Where's Haskell?

That's what a Weimar teacher wanted to know last week when she called Peggy Adams concerning the TECAT test for teachers.

It seems that the Weimar teacher had been notified that she is supposed to take her test in Haskell.

The Texas Education Agency says that efforts were made to assign test-takers to examination sites within their own school districts when at all possible.

Babysitting services will be provided during most services. People with small children are

NBC News to feature former teacher

One-time Haskell County music teacher Edythe DeWitt will be featured on a segment of the NBC Nightly News show in late February or early March, she has informed the Free Press.

She wrote: "Tom Brokaw called me to say he was sending a crew from New York to my studio in Detroit (Texas) for a film with me and my students. They came—six men and two vans. They filmed all Monday afternoon and all day Tuesday—me, my students and even my cats.

"Mr. Brokaw, who directed the filming, said he didn't know when it would run, but no earlier than the last week of February or the first week in March. So I guess we will just have to watch every day."

Ms. DeWitt said she had heard from a number of ex-students from here after the Free Press published an article about her in December after she was named "Teacher of the Year" by Texas Monthly magazine.

She taught music in Rule in the 1920s. From the late 1920s to the early 1930s she operated a music and dance studio in Haskell. She is now 83 years old and is still teaching music in Detroit.

The Nursing Home was decorated with hearts all around for the Valentine's Day party held Friday. Delicious refreshments of cake and punch were made and served by the Christian Missionary Ladies. Highlighting the festivities was the crowning of the King and Queen. This year's Valentine King and Queen were L.J. Dunn and Emmie Trussell. First runners-up were Rosa Woodring and Clinton Langford, with Lector Thomason and Patrick Martin second runners-up. Thank you to the Christian Missionary Ladies and to Vivian Shaw for all her help with the decorations. You helped make the party a success.

Gena Decker and Stacey Martin delivered Valentine candy made by the Haskell Future Homemakers Association, to each resident. Everyone really enjoyed them. Thank you girls for making our residents day a little brighter.

Progressive Study Club has meeting

The Progressive Study Club met in regular session at 7:30 p.m. February 1985 with Mrs. Kenneth Quattlebaum president presiding.

The meeting was called to order by the president Mrs. Kenneth Quattlebaum. She welcomed the guest, Mr. Bill Perry and 4 of his Webelow troop, Pack 136, Brandon Hester, Shawn Jordon, John Headstream and Brad Lane.

Mr. Perry told the club about the Webelow pack and explained the things they were learning to enable them to go into the scout program. They presented the club with a certificate of appreciation for their contribution. The Webelows had purchased tents with their donation. The boys passed around pictures showing the tents used in an overnight camping trip.

The president ask for roll call. The minutes were read and approved of the January 9, 1986 meeting. The corresponding secretary read a letter requesting the club to send a contribution for a gift for the GFWC Mesquite District president Mrs. Jim Drain and also for the Texas president. Mrs. Thula Perry made a motion we give $15.00. $10.00 for the District president and $5.00 for the State president. Mrs. Sandy Horton second. Motion carried.

The president discussed the GFWC Mesquite District Spring Convention to be held at the Kiva Inn in Abilene March 21-22.

Mrs. Thula Perry made a motion we send Mrs. Kenneth Quattlebaum to Abilene. Mrs. Mildred Berry seconded motion, motion carried.

Mrs. Kenneth Quattlebaum turned the program over to Mrs. Sandy Horton.

Mrs. Horton explained the club did not have a single entry for the Sesquicentennial Essay Contest then Mrs. Horton introduced our very special guest Mrs. Duane Gilly, County Extension Agent Home Economist.

Mrs. Gilly brought a very interesting slide program on fashion from the year April 1838 to 1980. The program was the life of Amanda Matthew and their children. Mrs. Gilly showed slides of the clothes worn by each member of the family, the materials they were made of, how Amanda used different things for dye to color her cloth. The number of dresses and other clothing that was used. She showed slides down through the years showing several weddings and Christmases and how the fashions changed and how Amanda changed the same dress for several years. This program certainly made us appreciate the fabric shops and dress shops.

Mrs. Gilly told us the books the slides were taken from have been placed in the county and school library. Sandwiches, punch and cookies were served by the hostesses Mrs. R.C. Couch Jr., Mrs. R.A. Lane, Mrs. Mildred Mancill and Mrs. W.H. Pitman.

Bisquick wants recipes

Create an original recipe for a dinner entree that's quick, delicious, affordable and appealing to contemporary tastes. And make sure that none of the ingredients is a baking mix that's been around since 1930.

That's the premise of The Bisquick Invitational, a national event that challenges professional chefs and cooks to invent main dish recipes made with Bisquick baking mix.

Anyone who is a food preparation professional can enter a recipe in the Invitational, including chefs, cooks, caterers and cooking teachers.

Six Invitational participants whose recipes are judged the best will receive a $500 cash award and an expense paid trip to New York in June. They will be guests of honor at a luncheon featuring their recipes and attended by food editors and writers from the national media. They will also be the subjects of a national publicity campaign.

All participants will have the opportunity to be selected as media spokespersons who will appear in television and newspaper interviews on behalf of Bisquick.

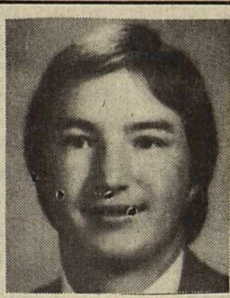

Entry blanks and complete rules can be obtained by writing The Bisquick Invitational, P.O. Box 5402, Dept. 861, Minneapolis, MN 55469 or calling 1-800-328-6787 Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. CST. Entries must be postmarked by midnight Tuesday, April 1.

Many Invitational participants will be featured in news stories that will be sent to their local media.

TAX PLANNING

Written By
Gerald Rodgers, CPA

HOME OFFICE DEDUCTIONS (What Qualifies?)

If you use your home for business or bring work home from the office, are you entitled to a tax deduction for "home office" expenses? The tax law is quite explicit about what home office expenses are deductible and who can deduct them.

Expenses are deductible only if you use a portion of your home exclusively and regularly as:

- (1) Your principal place of business for a given trade or business that you conduct, or
- (2) Your place of business where you meet or deal with customers, clients, or patients in the operation of your business. (Telephone contact is not enough to qualify.)

The law interprets "exclusively" in a very strict sense. You must use the business portion of your home only for business; any personal use of that portion of the home will disqualify any home office deduction. For example, a "home office" cannot double as a guest bedroom or a sewing room. Carrying on investment activities at home will not entitle you to a home office deduction unless you are considered a "trader" in investments.

Two exceptions to the exclusive use rule should be mentioned. One exception is for those who provide licensed day care in their homes. The other allows a deduction for expenses connected with inventory storage when the home is the sole location of a retail or wholesale sales business.

Home office expenses of an employee must satisfy the same exclusive and regular use tests and, in addition, the use of the home office must be for the convenience of the employer.

What expenses are deductible if you qualify? You may deduct prorated rent, insurance premiums, utility bills, repairs and maintenance, real estate taxes, and interest on your home mortgage, but not in excess of the gross income generated by your home office.

Many smokers try to kick habit

More than 4 of every 10 cigarette smokers tried to kick the habit during last November's Great American Smokeout, topping all records for participation in the nine-year-old event, the American Cancer Society announced today.

According to the official survey conducted for the society by the Gallup Organization, an estimated 23 million—42.6 percent of the nation's 54.5 million smokers—succeeded in either avoiding cigarettes completely or cutting down on their tobacco intake during the day-long moratorium against smoking on November 21.

Of the participants, about 7 million were able to make it through the day without lighting up. Approximately 16 million tried to curtail their habit by smoking less.

Prior to the 1985 Smokeout, participation in the event reached an all-time high in 1984, when approximately 20 million smokers tried to spend the day away from tobacco, according to last year's Gallup survey.

The 1985 survey also revealed that, among those who gave up cigarettes for the day, about 3.7 million were still not smoking four to five days after the Smokeout.

"Every year, the Great American Smokeout breaks its own records for participation," said Charles A. LeMaistre, M.D., of Houston, the Society's national president. "The statistics indicate that there is a growing desire on the part of the American public to extricate itself from a most dangerous habit."

The poll also revealed that more than 8 out of 10 adults - 87 percent of the American public - expressed awareness of the event.

The survey was based on telephone interviews with a representative national sample of 1,211 men and women, 18 years of age and older. It was conducted November 25 and 26, four to five days after the 1985 Smokeout.

According to Dr. LeMaistre, the arrival of a new year gives smokers added incentive to quit. "The Society salutes those who were successful in quitting for the smokeout, and hopes that they will consider staying quit for good. For those who didn't get through the day, it's never too late to quit."

Dr. LeMaistre added that would-be quitters can get assistance in breaking the habit in a variety of ways:

—For smokers who don't have the time or desire to attend formal quit-smoking courses, the American Cancer Society's "FreshStart" program is available in audio and video cassettes. Produced by Simon and Schuster, the publishing company, "FreshStart: 21 Days to Stop Smoking" is available in video stores, major book chains and other retail outlets. Hosted by comedian Robert Klein, a former smoker, the programs use a day-by-day format that takes quitters from "Quit Day" to "Off the Hook." The material is presented in a positive and realistic manner, guiding smokers through all aspects of quitting, including physical addiction, withdrawal symptoms and psychological dependence.

—ACS Units throughout Texas regularly offer "FreshStart" quit clinics at no charge.

Youngsters susceptible to earache

Along with colds and flu, winter weather also can be the season of earaches, particularly for infants and young children.

The Texas Medical Assn. says untreated ear infections can lead to hearing loss.

An infection of the middle ear, usually caused by a virus, but sometimes caused by bacteria, inflames the cells lining the middle ear cavity. The disorder often develops when viruses from an infection of the nose and throat, such as a cold or measles, travel to the middle ear.

Acute middle ear infections occur often in children. At least half of them have an infected middle ear at some time, and repeated attacks of the problem often occur.

Symptoms include a feeling of fullness in the ear along with severe stabbing pain. Hearing loss in the affected ear and fever can also occur.

If the infection is caused by bacteria and is not treated, the pressure of pus within the middle ear may eventually burst the eardrum. This produces a pus discharge that is accompanied by sudden relief from the pain. If the infection is caused by a virus, the symptoms are similar, but the problem will usually clear up without bursting the eardrum.

Untreated bacterial infections can become chronic. This is a far more serious condition than an acute infection. This happens when an acute infection either never completely clears up because some of the organisms that caused it remain in the ear, or it eventually clears up but leaves a site that is particularly susceptible to subsequent infection. Pus produced continually from the chronic infection eventually causes a hole to form in the eardrum and often damages or destroys the small bones of the middle ear.

If you or a child has an earache, and particularly if the condition is recurring, check with your physician. Early treatment of earaches often can prevent further complications.

Workshop to focus on issues

Abortion, the role of women, church and state, biblical authority, war and peace, and other issues that divide Christians will be among the topics considered at the 1986 Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission Workshop, Feb. 24-26, at Gambrell Street Baptist Church, Fort Worth.

The Christian Life Commission (CLC) is the social action and moral concerns agency that speaks to, but not for, members of churches in the 2.3 million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas.

"Reconciliation will be the theme as workshop participants examine divisive issues within churches," said Joe Haag, associate director, CLC.

combination of materials and activities in the areas of high blood pressure control, nutrition, smoking and exercise. The program is based on the fact that each individual is responsible for his or her own health. The program modules encourage employee interest in disease prevention and demonstrates the positive aspects of a healthier life, leading to greater productivity.

"Heart at Work" is working in companies," says Dr. Winters. "We expect to see a decline in health-related costs and absenteeism as a result."

HEART AT WORK

An employee wellness program developed by the American Heart Assn., helps reduce health-associated costs through prevention of heart and blood vessel disease. Program modules address high blood pressure control, proper nutrition, smoking cessation and regular exercise. Both large and small companies can use the package, which can be tailored to employees' specific needs.

Wellness program developed

Heart and blood vessel diseases took their toll on the state's workforce last year. Of the almost 52,000 Texans who died from cardiovascular diseases, nearly 11,000 were under age 65.

"Replacing that lost workforce is a major expense for Texas companies," according to William L. Winters Jr., M.D., president of the American Heart Assn. in Texas.

"It has been estimated that the average employee with high blood pressure costs a company between $270 and $460 a year in lost output," he said. "An employee who smokes costs the company from $624 to as much as $4,500 per year in lost productivity, absenteeism and insurance costs.

Furthermore, a top executive's death from a heart attack can easily cost a company a half million dollars," said Winters.

The American Heart Assn. has developed a low-cost employee wellness program, called "Heart at Work," to address these problems. It is designed to reduce health-associated costs through prevention of heart and blood vessel disease. "Heart at Work" provides employees with a program designed to bring lasting changes in health habits, and provides companies with a program for building a supportive culture or environment for their employees.

According to Dr. Winters, "Heart at Work" offers a

Seasonless wardrobe saves money

Although the stores may be filled with "spring" clothes, you can save money by thinking in terms of a seasonless wardrobe.

Seasonless wardrobe planning simply means buying items you can wear year-round, says clothing specialist Becky Saunders. This maximizes the wear you get from each item and expands your wardrobe.

A seasonless wardrobe is built on clothes made of fabrics appropriate for different climates, says the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

Lightweight wool, for example, is comfortable in spring and early summer as well as fall. Linen fabrics that were once worn in the summer only can also be used throughout the year.

Loose knit sweaters made from natural fibers can be worn by themselves in the summer and over other clothes during cool weather.

The specialist points out that "layering" light to medium-weight clothes over one another and mixing different prints and textures are fashion trends that make it easier to develop a seasonless wardrobe.

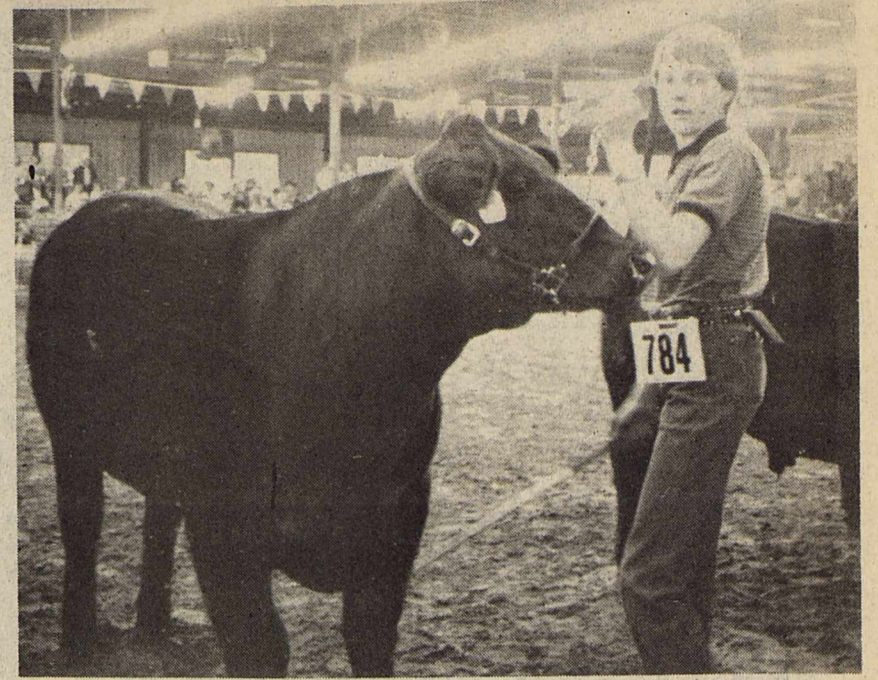

"When shopping for year-round clothing it's important to avoid extremes and choose basic clothing in medium color tones, print sizes, fabric weights and textures for maximum wear," says Saunders. "You can always add a seasonal fashion touch with an inexpensive item or accessories."

It also pays to buy clothing you can mix and match with items already in your wardrobe, she adds.

Think about both your work and leisure clothing needs as well. "Typical wardrobe needs will vary seasonally for some special activities, such as sports, but for everyday activities most our clothing needs are remarkably similar year-round," says Saunders.

The Haskell Co. Ambulance Memorial Fund needs your support. You never know when you or a loved one will need these services. What would happen if someday they weren't there because you didn't give your fair share? Think about it...

Teachers to air grievances in Austin

Haskell County teachers are being solicited to join teachers from across Texas in a caravan to Austin this week to air their grievances to the governor and the public.

Paint Creek teacher Randy Stone is coordinating the local effort.

Teachers are being asked to form car pools and caravans. Speeches, skits and signs are encouraged.

The rally will be climaxed at noon Saturday when the teachers appear on the steps of the State Capitol in Austin.

On Thursday (today) a group will present a set of grievances to Gov. Mark White in Austin.

The grievances were prepared by a group called the Texas Educators Organization to make the public aware that its backers are calling for new government leadership in the State of Texas.

The grievances listed are as follows:

1. We feel it is wrong that control of our schools has been removed from the local level. School administrators and members of local school boards, who were elected by members of the community in true American fashion, are now powerless and voiceless, and have become a rubber stamp organization subject to the whims of our present governor.

We feel that the different areas of Texas have such vast differences and needs that a centralized authority cannot expect to form a mold to which all districts, teachers and students must conform. We feel that control of the schools should be returned to the local schools.

2. We feel it is wrong for the governor to have removed members of the State School Board who were elected in true American fashion, and to have replaced them with appointed individuals sympathetic to the governor's wishes.

3. We feel that the state-run education agency has failed to uphold its end of the agreement between teacher and state. It is wrong that the certification originally issued a teacher is now invalid until a teacher passes yet another test.

We feel that here in America it is wrong to be found guilty until proven innocent. We as teachers would like to know, if we do take the competency test and pass this "trial by fire," what is the tenure of our certification at this point?

4. We recognize the need for constant review of Texas education, but we feel it is wrong to allow the competency test to take precedence over evaluations by principals, department heads and administrators. We also feel it is wrong to use a written test to determine whether or not a teacher is competent in the classroom.

5. Expediency and the lack of positive discussion with educators allowed legislation to be passed without adequate funding. We also feel that the untold millions of dollars of taxpayers' money used to manufacture and administer the TECAT test was ill-spent.

We feel that the unwanted career ladder, a form of merit pay, was not adequately designed or funded. It has caused dissension among educators. It has pitted one teacher against another to compete for money and has blurred the primary focus of education. Educators are here to educate children, not to make a profit.

6. We feel it is wrong to have removed the power of regulating the participation in extracurricular activities from the University Interscholastic League, when in fact, the 76-year-old UIL had a "pass/play" section long before our present governor presented his version. We find fault with the present duration of the penalty, and with the fact that the penalty is not applied to the entire student body. The penalty affects only those students who are interested enough in school to participate in extracurricular activities.

7. We feel that the input of educators into this educational reform package has never been fully utilized.

8. We feel that because of the legislation passed we are heading toward the education of only the elite instead of the American idea of educating the masses.

Farm magazine celebrating 100th birthday

The Southern-based farm magazine, Progressive Farmer, celebrated its 100th anniversary Feb. 10.

In 1886, the first issue was published in Winston, N.C., by a former Confederate Army officer who saw that farmers were being ignored by the Reconstruction government. Col. Leonidas L. Polk also saw that North Carolina had no effective state agricultural department and no agricultural college.

Polk decided to fight for progress for farms, and his main weapon was a newspaper devoted to "agriculture and all its problems," Polk wrote.

Progressive Farmer, first a statewide publication in North Carolina, purchased the Southern Farm Gazette in Starkville, Miss., in 1908, and pioneered regional editions for different areas of the South. It later purchased several other smaller Southern farm publications.

The February issue with the cover painting by N. C. Wyeth features a special anniversary section with photographs of rural Southern life and text by Charles Kuralt. Kuralt is also writing a book, "Southerners" for Oxmoor House, the book division of Southern Progress, to be published in September.

HHS drama students rehearsing for play

The Haskell High School sixth-period drama class is working on a one-act play for the University Interscholastic League contest in March.

The cast consists of Lynn Dewey as Doctor Henning, Tim Johnson as Baker, Michael Wallace as Carter and Scott Schaake as Edson.

Stage-crew members are Kelly Wallace, Kelly Strickland, Josh Reid, Lance Hanson, Edward Nava, Cheryl Strickland and Denise Johnson.

Dewey received all-star cast honors last year, while Wallace received honorable mention.

"We hope our experience will help us win this year," said Mrs. Glenda Drinnon, drama teacher.

The contest will be March 22 in Rotan.

Munday man postmaster at Weinert

George D. Haynie has been appointed new postmaster at Weinert. His appointment was effective Feb. 1.

Haynie, 54, a native of Munday, has served as clerk in the Postal Service since joining the organization in 1967.

Postmaster selections are made on the basis of merit from a list of qualified candidates submitted to the section center manager by a Review Committee. The Review Committee, composed of a sectional center director from the same sectional center, a postmaster from the same sectional center and a sectional center director or postmaster from a different section center, reviews the applicants for the position and recommends to the manager the candidates for interview. The manager then selects and recommends to the regional Postmaster General appointment of the candidate who best meets the position requirements.

Haynie graduated from Munday High School and studied accounting at Texas Tech University. He is a retired volunteer fireman and is an active member of the Munday Chamber of Commerce.

Haynie has an 11-year-old daughter, Kammi. He plans to reside in Weinert.

Plant that pecan tree properly

After a good crop such as the one in Haskell County this year, a lot of backyard gardeners turn their thoughts to growing their own tasty morsels. Also, many commercial growers are continuing to expand operations.

One of the keys to growing pecans, whether in the backyard or in a commercial orchard, is to plant the trees properly so that they get off to a good start, points out Dr. George Ray McEachern, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Tree planting time is at hand -- January and early February are the best times -- and McEachern offers a few guidelines.

To begin, select a tree 4 to 8 feet tall as soon as nurseries get supplies. Plant as soon as possible, using care not to let roots dry out or freeze.

Dig the hole only as large as the tree's root system. If the hole is too deep, the tree will settle and this can cause poor growth or death.

The taproot should sit in the bottom of the hole. If the hole cannot be as deep as the length of the roots, cut back the taproot to fit the hole.

Pack original soil around roots as tightly as possible. Packing the soil in 2- to 3-inch layers is better than watering to pack the soil. Use adjacent soil to complete filling the hole, not light soil, sand or potting soil. The tree can drown in rainy weather if light fill soil is used on clay land.

Plant the tree at the same depth it grew in the nursery row. Look at the colors to determine the soil line: the bark is gray and the root is dark brown.

Cut off the top half of the tree at planting to balance the stem and roots and to force growth close to the soil line.

Wrap the lower 18 inches of the trunk with aluminum foil to prevent side shoots, sun scald and rabbit damage. On large plantings, use a mixture of white latex paint and water (one part paint to three parts water).

Build a basin around the tree to hold water and give each tree five gallons of water immediately after planting. Make sure trees do not go longer than 14 days without water.

These are some basic steps in planting pecan trees that can lead the way in getting them into production in a few years, says McEachern.

Bonds save U.S. money

The U. S. Treasury has estimated a 1985 tax savings of $270 million for the nation's taxpayers as a result of Americans purchasing $5 billion in Series EE Savings Bonds for fiscal year 1985.

A cost-effectiveness summary by the Department of Treasury, Bureau of the Public Debt, estimates that every $1 billion of savings bonds saves $54 million (5.4 percent of sales) in national debt service costs. This figure is based on the benefit of replacing market borrowing with the sale of savings bonds. In each case, the interest cost of redeemed savings bonds was compared with that of marketable securities of comparable maturity.

The sale of EE Savings Bonds to finance the public debt reduces the need for the government to borrow in the open money market in competition with private business. This helps keep interest rates down and makes more capital available to private concerns to expand with increased business, profit and employment.

Indians test Morton in bi-district tonight

"They are tough!" That's about the only way Haskell Indian Coach Jim Raughton knows to describe the Morton team his Indians will face Thursday in a bi-district playoff game in Lamesa. The game starts at 7:30 p.m. in the Lamesa High School gymnasium. The winner moves into next week's area playoff (probably Monday or Tuesday) at a yet-undetermined site. The loser calls it quits for the season. The area winner advances to the regional tournament that weekend to determine the Class AA entry in the state tournament. Morton, champion of district 5-AA is the No. 1 rated Class AA team in Texas. Haskell also has first-class credentials. The Indians posted their fourth consecutive 20-win season, finishing the regular campaign and the district playoffs with a 20-7 record. They completed the two halves of the district 6-AA season with identical 4-1 records, losing each time to Hawley. They finished second behind Hawley in the first half and then finished first in the second half of the district season after beating Hamlin in a playoff to determine the second-half winner. They lost to Hawley in a playoff for the season championship. Offensively, the Haskell team is led by sophomore Mark Young and senior Sammy Baker. Through district play, Young averaged 19 points per game, while Baker was only a fraction of a point behind that figure.

POSTER WINNER

Jason Hilliard was first-place winner in the 1986 Conservation Poster Contest of the Sandhills Soil and Water Conservation District. Jason, 12, is the son of Ronald and Edith Hilliard of Odessa and is a student at Sam Houston Elementary School. He is the grandson of Elmer and Bernice Hilliard of Haskell and Rex and Sena Mae Murray of Rule.

Reagan County knocks Maidens from playoffs

State championship dreams of the Haskell Maidens went down the tubes in Big Spring Tuesday night as the Maidens dropped 64-55 decision to the unbeaten Reagan County Owlettes in an area playoff.

The district 6-AA champion Maidens, who had reached the area meet with a victory over Shallowater in a bi-district tilt Friday, dropped behind the Owlettes 14-9 in the first quarter and never managed to catch up, although the game remained close from start to finish.

Despite 44 rebounds to Reagan County's 24 and a better shooting average from the field, 42 percent to 36 percent, Haskell was unable to stop the Big Lake team which has now won 29 consecutive games.

Twenty turnovers, compared to only five by the winners, helped spell the Maidens' doom.

Julie Roewe paced the Haskell scoring with 21 points on 10 field goals and a free throw. Lori McGee added 13 points. Tamala Randle scored 7 points and Patricia Henry had 6.

McGee and Roewe had 16 and 15 rebounds respectively.

From the field, the Maidens hit 26 of 63 shots for 42 percent, while the Owlettes connected on 28 of 79 for 36 percent. Haskell was 3 of 6 from the free throw line; Reagan County was 8 of 11.

Haskell wound up the 1985-86 season with a 21-5 won-loss record. The team advanced farther in the playoffs than any previous Haskell team.

Before the area game, Haskell had lost four of 25 games, two of the losses by a single point and two more by two points. The Maidens were a perfect 10-0 in district 6-AA play.

Coach George Martin praised the team for its great season. He said he was grateful to the parents for "sharing the girls with us."

"We love our seniors and we appreciate everything they've given," the coach said. "Our younger girls have gained the experience of playoff competition and this will carry over into next season."

Haskell squeaked by Shallowater in a bi-district game in Snyder last Friday by a 52-49 score. Haskell led throughout most of the game, but had only a one-point margin going into the fourth quarter.

Roewe led the scoring with 16 points. Randle added 12.

Maidens dominate all-district teams

The Haskell Maidens placed three players on the first team and two on the second team of the 6-AA all-district team announced Wednesday morning by district coaches.

Making the first team were Tamala Randle, Julie Roewe and Denise Young. Second-team members were Lori McGee and Patricia Henry.

Volleyball league planned

Teams are being formed for the semi-annual mixed volleyball league sponsored by the First Baptist Church of Haskell.

Those wishing to play should call

864-2581 to get signed up.

Play will begin March 11. The season will be climaxed with a tournament the second week of May.

Socks made for walking

For a daily half-hour walk or a trip to and from the neighborhood store, one pair of ordinary socks is sufficient. But for longer walks or extended hikes, two pairs of socks are recommended.

Thin, well-fitted inner socks, made from silk or olefin will reduce the friction between your shoes and your feet and prevent painful blisters. Thicker, more absorbent wool outer socks will soak up perspiration, insulate and reduce pavement pounding to save your shoes as well as your feet.

Experienced Citizens Center

Senior citizens enjoy their own facilities

By Wendell Faught

One of the busiest places in Haskell is at the Haskell County Experienced Citizens Center during noontime on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

On a normal day, about 200 of the center's 750 members are fed their noon meal. Those able to do so make a $1.50 donation to the center, but no one is denied service.

Marsha Whittemore, director of the center, said an average of 205 meals a day were served last year. These include meals which are delivered by volunteers three times a week to those unable to come to the center.

Vans are run three times a week in Haskell to pick up people who need transportation. Vans also make three trips a week to Rule and one trip to Rochester (Monday).

To be eligible for the meals and the other services offered by the Experienced Citizens Center, a person must be at least 60 years old or have a spouse meeting that age requirement. (If only one of a married couple is 60 or over, both are eligible.) There are no other requirements.

The 1980 census reveals there are approximately 2,250 people in Haskell County who are eligible for services.

A number of supportive services are offered by the center. Members look out for each other, Mrs. Whittemore said. If someone is ill, one of the other members will see if there is anything which can be done. If a familiar face fails to show up for some activity, someone will call to find out if something is wrong. "We make telephone calls on a daily basis," said Mrs. Whittemore.

Open all day, the center serves as a social center for a number of members. Domino games and other social activities are popular. There are planned classes, such as arts and crafts.

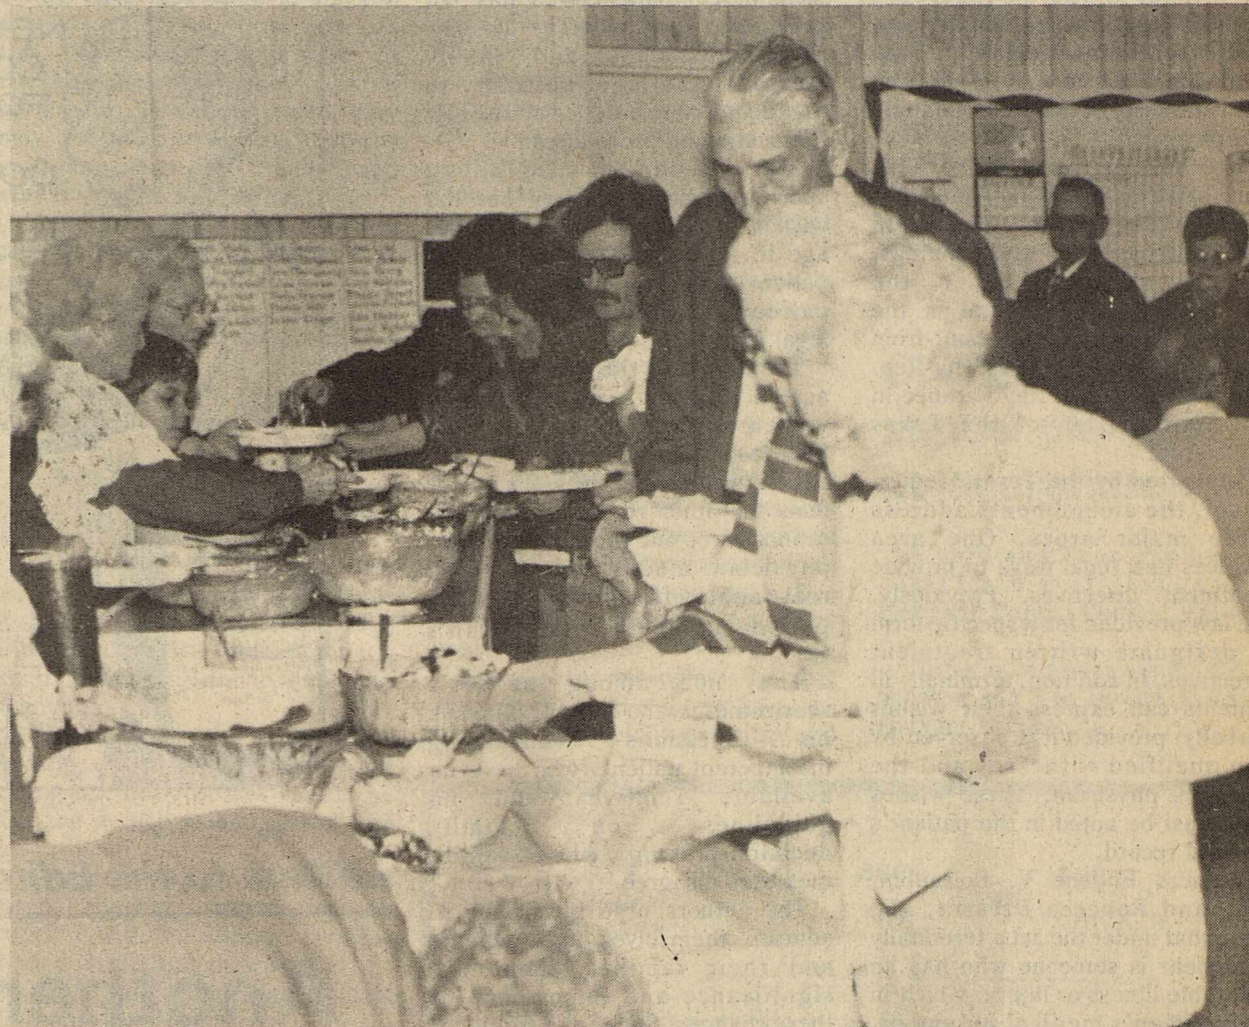

And there are fund-raising activities. This past Friday, for instance, there was a salad supper, open to the community. Members donated both the food and the labor required for the function. Similar events are held on a frequent basis.

Thousands of voluntary hours have been contributed by members in servicing the functions of the center, which also serves as a distribution point for the monthly issue of surplus food commodities to eligible citizens.

In addition to receiving the services offered, members enjoy visiting with friends, making new friends and the opportunity to give oneself to others.

Haskell County operates the program, partially through a grant from West Central Texas Council of Governments in Abilene. Federal funds from the Older American Act come through the Texas Dept. of Aging. Federal funds make up approximately 42 percent of the center's annual budget.

Participant contributions and fund-raisers raise enough to more than match the federal

SALAD SUPPER

About 300 people attended the salad supper Friday night at the Haskell County Experienced Citizens Center. Members regularly hold fund-raising events such as this, as it is necessary to raise local funds to keep the program afloat.

funds—$44,000 to $45,000 a year. Donations for meals generate $25,000. The senior citizens would like to see the day when the center is entirely self-supporting so that it may continue in the event federal funds are cut off.

The center opened with only its support services in November 1977. The nutritional (meal) program was inaugurated in February 1979. The present building was constructed in 1980, originally 30x80 feet. It was enlarged in 1982-83 through donations to a memorial fund, established in the memory of Norman Bevel, a staff volunteer. A third addition in 1983 increased the building to its present 46x96 size. More donations and voluntary labor made this possible.

The land on which the building is located was owned by Haskell County, which also assisted financially in the construction. The county retains title to the property.

In addition to Mrs. Whittemore, there are three part-time staff members, Maurice Boles, head cook; Loree Hamilton, assistant cook; and Tommi Barbee, office assistant.

Five part-time workers are provided through the Green Thumb program. They are Neat Bevel and Sylvia Gibbs of Haskell, and Earlene Hennigan, Adelle Bogard and Estelle Norman, all of Rule. All work in the nutrition program.

Mrs. Whittemore estimates there are 135 volunteers who have given more than 20,000 hours of their time while working on the building and the various activities and programs.

Herren attends insurance meeting

C. H. Herren of the Herren Agency recently returned from a national crop insurance meeting in Orlando, Fla., sponsored by the National Association of Crop Insurance Agents and National Ag Underwriters, Inc.

Purpose of the meeting was to inform agents of changes in the Crop Insurance Program for 1986, as well as other issues related to the new farm bill.

Herren said the major improvement in the crop insurance program for 1986 is that farmers can now have their crop protection based on their own actual production history.

In addition to the intense training on program changes, Herren said the meeting was highlighted by two keynote speakers, Congressman Ed Jones, chairman of the Sub-Committee on Conservation and Credit, and former Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

Jones talked about crop insurance and its importance to American agriculture, stating that it is the only form of disaster payments available to farmers of America.

Bergland discussed the future of agriculture and the economic dependence the non-agricultural segment has on American farmers.

Inactive teachers may take TECAT

Persons holding valid Texas teaching certificates but not currently employed in Texas public schools may now register to take the TECAT (Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers) in order to retain their certificates.

Registration packets may be obtained in the superintendent's office. A packet includes a registration form and instructions, as well as a study guide.

Test dates for the open administration are April 12, June 28, July 12 and Oct. 5. Cost to register is $30.

If there is enough interest in the Haskell area, a workshop in test preparation and the scoring procedures will be held Monday, March 24, in the Haskell High School Library at 7 p.m. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Successful performance on the TECAT is required for employment in Texas public schools after June 30 for all persons holding Texas teacher certification. This requirement was mandated by House Bill 72, passed by the Texas Legislature in 1984.

Natural Death Act

Changes in the Texas Natural Death Act expand the rights of individuals and families to direct the withholding and withdrawal of life-sustaining procedures from terminally ill patients. According to the official journal of the Texas Medical Assn., these changes make such treatment decisions less confusing because they clarify the legal authority of the patient, family and physician.

The editorial in the February issue of Texas Medicine states that although the act, as amended in 1985, still has a few shortcomings, it "now stands as one of the broadest and most liberal in the country." The changes result from passage of House Bill 403 by Rep. Bob Bush and Sen. Ray Farabee in the 69th session of the Texas Legislature.

Supported by the Texas Medical Assn., the amendments address three major areas. One area involves new legal ways to provide treatment directives. Previously, the law provided for a specific form to designate written treatment directives. In addition, terminally ill patients can express their wishes verbally, provided it is observed by two qualified witnesses and the patient's physician. These wishes also must be noted in the patient's medical record.

Authors Eugene V. Boisubin, MD, and Rebecca Dresser, JD, write that under the act a terminally ill patient is someone who has an incurable illness or injury, which in a physician's medical judgment, will result in death—despite life-sustaining procedures. They add that all directives take effect if the patient becomes "cosmose, incompetent, or otherwise mentally or physically incapable of communication." They note that the wishes of any patient who remains competent always override the wishes in a directive.

A second major change addresses the terminally ill or incompetent patient who has not provided a directive. The act now gives guardians and family members the legal authority to decide to withhold or withdraw life-sustaining procedures.

The amendment also allows specific persons to carry out the wishes of patients who are under age 18. These persons include the patient's spouse, if over age 18; the patient's parents; and patient's legal guardian.

The authors write that under the act, a physician must honor a written directive unless he or she believes it does not truly reflect the patient's current desires. If a doctor feels for other reasons he or she cannot carry out the directive, the physician needs to make a reasonable effort to transfer the patient to another physician's care.

They note among the act's shortcomings, the lack of guidance on decisions concerning incompetent patients who have no available relatives and no guidelines on family decision-making when family members disagree.

The authors urge physicians to educate themselves and patients and their families about the significance and importance of these changes. Suggested forms for providing treatment directives are available free of charge from the Texas Medical Assn. Write to TMA, Office of Medical Ethics, 1801 North Lamar Blvd., Austin, TX 78701.

Proclamation

Whereas, many veterans of America's Armed Forces, who have served their country in war and peace, are now hospitalized and separated from families and friends. Let us not forget the sacrifice of these veterans who fought with full measure of their valor and loyalty to protect our country. I urge the citizens of Haskell, Texas, to find appropriate ways to pay tribute to these men and women through community ceremonies, activities and visits to veterans hospitalized in VA medical centers, nursing homes and domiciliaries.

Our Nation is eternally grateful for the contributions our hospitalized veterans have made to the cause of world peace and it is fitting and appropriate to pay special tribute and honor their sacrifices.

THEREFORE I, as Mayor of Haskell, do hereby designate the week of February 14, 1986 as "SALUTE TO HOSPITALIZED VETERANS WEEK" in the City of Haskell and urge appropriate recognition thereof. In testimony whereof, witness my hand and the Seal of the City of Haskell this 12th day of February, 1986.

Letters to the Editor

Another recalls Pinkerton

Editor: The letter from Ruby Wilson which you published in a recent issue of the Free Press rekindled some fond memories of my childhood days in the Pinkerton community.

We moved to the J. E. Cloud place, right across the road from the Pinkerton Church, in the 1930s and I enrolled at Midway School in the fifth grade. My dad, the late Claude Ashley, who served two terms as Haskell County Commissioner, Precinct 1, told me there had once been a school and a post office at Pinkerton.

Mrs. Wilson is right: Midway was a very good school. Its principal, C. B. Ramsey, was the song leader and a Sunday School teacher at Pinkerton. I learned more under his tutelage during the few years I had him at Midway than I learned in the rest of the public school years put together.

Even during those hard times, Mr. Ramsey ramrodded a bond issue to finance the first and only gymnasium Midway ever had. Its cost was something like $5,000, I believe, and Mr. Ramsey used his shop students to help build it. He later became principal of Haskell High School, I think.

So what is the answer to Mrs. Wilson's question? What has happened to Pinkerton? On the rare occasions when I travel the Rule-Haskell highway, I never pass the road that leads north to Pinkerton without remembering those days with great fondness.

I remember the Wilson family well, and also the Bairds, the Edwards, the Caseys and the Ingrams. All were friends, and good neighbors.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—How bad is it, doctor?

Real bad, son. We're going to have to cut—some $1.3 billion, in fact.

Last week was bad news. Comptroller Bob Bullock made no bones about it when he told state leaders, reporters and others that Texas faces a real financial crisis: the current state budget will come up some $1.3 billion in the red.

The loss could amount to $6 billion over the next four years, he said, because of declining oil prices, cuts in federal aid and other factors.

Bullock recommended "interfund borrowing" by state agencies to keep the state solvent until the Legislature convenes next January, but State Treasurer Ann Richards warned that further drops in oil prices will scuttle that strategy.

Gov. Mark White said a special session was not needed and promised to unveil next week his plan to avoid red ink. He said restrained planned spending could deal with the shortfall.

Unemployed Farmers

Gov. White stole a page from Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's book last week when he announced his plans to spend $300,000 teaching new jobs to out-of-work farmers.

The contract, under the Job Training Partnership Act, was signed with the South Plains Community Action Association in Levelland to train farmers shut down by bankruptcy foreclosure or inability to get financing.

Hightower has opened a farmers' hotline from his office to help farmers facing foreclosure and needing job training.

Brown Eligible

Lake Jackson state Sen. Buster Brown belatedly won a spot on the ballot last week when the Texas Court of Appeals decided he was eligible after all to run for Texas Attorney General, but he's still not out of the woods.

His own Republican Party chairman, George Strake, plans to ask the Texas Supreme Court to overturn the appeal court and rule Brown ineligible.

Strake refused to allow Brown to file in the GOP primary since the constitution prohibits lawmakers from seeking any office which they had voted a pay raise. Brown claims the Legislature passed a salary rollback provision clearing him and others to run for higher office.

Now Strake says it's best for all that a definitive ruling is obtained from the highest court.

LITTLE RAILROAD...
In the 1860's Brownsville was a land-locked city. Brownsville got its start with the establishment of Fort Brown in 1846. All supplies were brought in from Port Isabel by wagons. During the Civil War a railroad was built to speed up delivery. It was called the "Little Railroad" because its locomotives were slightly larger than a present-day auto and it ran on narrow gauge tracks.

Changing Faces

Lots of new faces will be seen in the next Legislature, especially in the House of Representatives. Some 18 incumbents are retiring, including 8 committee chairmen described as "part of the brain trust" of the House.

In the Senate, the four retiring senators have 51 years of collective experience between them.

Even House Speaker Gib Lewis, a Democrat, faces a reelection threat, according to one Texas GOP official who claim's Gib's district is 60 percent Republican now. But state Democrats hope to pick up at least five GOP seats.

Early Texas Primary

One retiring senator, John Traeger of Seguin, also chairs the Southern Legislative Conference which recommends moving the Texas presidential primary from early May to mid-March.

Traeger says Mark White will include the issue in a special session, if he calls one this year.

The plan calls for Texas to participate in a "Super-Tuesday" primary with as many as 12 to 15 other Southern states, most likely Florida, Tennessee, North Carolina and Missouri.

The idea is to increase Texas and Southern influence in the selection of presidential nominees.

Governor's Race

Although he urged Kent Hance to switch parties and run for governor, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said last week he will not endorse any of the three Republicans running against Mark White.

Whether Gramm continues to quietly support Hance remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, Democratic challenger Don Crowder sent a letter to Mark White threatening to crash White's news conferences and campaign appearances if White refuses to debate.

"Governor, I intend to discuss the issues with you before this campaign is over whether it takes place in a television studio or at your weekly press conferences," the letter said.

Crowder and others have accused White of dodging debate ever since he declined a League of Women Voters invitation last month.

Clarification

This column recently contained a report that Hightower and five members of his staff flew from Austin to Amarillo via state airplane to see the movie "Country" at a cost to the state of $4,800.

Andy Welch, the commissioner's information officer, immediately wrote this columnist to set the record straight. Purpose of the trip was a meeting of the Texas Farmers Union at which Hightower spoke. The award-winning movie "Country," which depicts the farm foreclosure crisis, was part of the program.

Hightower and his staff met with approximately 150 farm families concerned with the lending practices of the Farmers Home Administration.

Further, Welch explained the trip by state airplane cost considerably less than the $1200 reported in a San Antonio newspaper, and was cheaper than commercial air fares. The $4800 cost appearing in this column was a typographical error.

Baylor agent retires March 31

Lowell B. Cure, county extension agent/agriculture for Baylor County, has announced his retirement from that position effective March 31.

Cure was first appointed assistant county extension agent for Baylor County Sept. 1, 1965, a position he held until transferring to Childress as county extension agent/agriculture Feb. 1, 1968. He was named county extension agent/agriculture for Baylor County June 1, 1970, and has served in that capacity since.

Children can choke on food

What could hot dogs, hard candy, nuts and grapes possibly have in common?

The answer is small children can choke on them. In actuality, children can choke on almost any food, but they are most likely to have trouble with foods that are smooth, hard, slippery and/or just the right size to plug up the throat.

According to the Texas Medical Assn., when food becomes stuck in a child's throat the plug prevents the protective mechanism of coughing that might expel it. And if parents are in another room, they may not even be aware that the youngster is in deep trouble, and may be unable to breathe.

There are several measures you can take to prevent choking in children. And many of these measures also apply to older adults who may have trouble chewing and swallowing.

—Never leave your child unattended when he or she is eating.

—Because you may not be able to help when you are driving, don't allow children to eat in a car.

—Cook foods well and cut them into small pieces and avoid foods that the child is not yet capable of chewing. If you have doubts about a particular food, don't feed it to youngsters.

—Do not allow children to drink from a cup or eat unless they are sitting up. Baby bottles should be held by a responsible person and not propped.

—Remember that numbing topical teething anesthetics can interfere with the ability to swallow foods that require chewing.

—Ask your pediatrician what to do if choking does occur.

—Finally, don't unduly worry about the possibility of your tot's choking. It is important for them to be exposed to a variety of tastes and textures of foods. Just make sure that you are present when they're eating.

Child's eating habits can worry parents

A child's eating habits can be a source of constant worry for parents.

If you think your child overeats, undereats, is overweight or too thin, it's a good idea to check with your family doctor. A physician can use growth charts and medical tests to determine your child's growth rate. If the child is found to be growing well with no weight problems, you can stop worrying.

Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a nutrition specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, says children often go on eating jags, eating mostly one or a few foods for several days.

"Eating jags are usually temporary," Cooksey says, "so continue offering good nutritious food in a pleasing way."

When a child doesn't eat much, this may be a normal "slowdown" stage of growth. Eating will increase as nutrient needs increase, she explains.

If obesity is a problem, check to see whether your child is eating too many high fat or sweet foods, or just too much food. As snacks nutritious or do they contribute excess calories? Does your child get enough exercise? Is too much time spent at quiet activities that use few calories?

The nutritionist points out that many overweight children have one or more overweight parents, and children often follow their parents' eating habits. If this is the case in your family, she advises including more fruit, vegetables and low-fat foods such as skim milk, lean meats and broiled or baked foods in the family meals instead of sweets and other high-fat, high-calorie foods.

Some parents think all children need extra nutrients from vitamin pills or drops. But most children who eat a varied diet of meat, poultry and fish; breads and cereals; fruits and vegetables; and dairy products; get enough nutrients, Cooksey says.

Children who have eaten poorly balanced diets for a long time may require supplements, but let your doctor decide whether vitamins or mineral supplements are needed, advises the specialist.

Nine Haskell seniors take college courses

(From The War Whoop)

Preparing for college can be done in many ways: filling out applications, applying for financial aid and taking SAT and ACT tests.

But nine Haskell seniors are doing something in addition to this. They're taking college courses offered by Western College.

"I'm taking all of my freshman English, so I don't have to worry about it next fall," Kathy Morrison, senior, said.

Taking these courses helps to ease the pressure of the first semester at college. Students won't have to take quite as many basics at one time because they've already taken them.

The price per hour of these classes is cheaper than regular classes, Kelly Wallace said.

Along with easing the pressure, it also helps to lessen the price of college tuition, especially at the church colleges where the price per hour is high.

While taking these college classes has some advantages, there is one definite disadvantage.

"It can be difficult to budget your time between high school and college courses, especially during the last semester of your senior year," said Kendall Larned.

"It will be worth it next year, and that keeps me going," Rebecca Holt said.

Sherry competed in six events and received one first, four seconds and one third. She was second in Intermediate Pageant.

H-SU homecoming

A full slate of activities is scheduled during Hardin-Simmons University's homecoming Feb. 21-22.

"You Can Come Home Again!" is the theme of the two-day program.

Area meetings to explain reserve farm land program

Haskell County farmers can learn details of the Conservation Reserve Program contained in the new farm bill at either of two special meetings, Feb. 25 in Lubbock and Feb. 26 in Abilene.

Each meeting will be from 9 a.m. until noon and will include discussions by officials of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and the Soil Conservation Service.

The Lubbock meeting will be at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center north of the airport. It is on FM 1294 just east of I-27 at the Shallowater exit. The Abilene meeting will be in the jury assembly room on the third floor of the new courthouse. The meetings are two of five being conducted across the state by the Extension Service to help farmers reach decisions on program participation.

The CRP seeks to take millions of acres of erodible cropland out of production. Some 11.5 million acres will be eligible in Texas, but only 825,000 of these acres will be included this year.

The sign-up period is March 3-14.

To qualify, farmland must be classified as highly erodible by the SCS. Farmers with eligible land then may enter those acres into the program by submitting a bid to their local ASCS office. The bid is based upon what a farmer determines his annual return on the land would be if he kept it in production.

Bids will be reviewed by state and county ASCS personnel, and farmers will be notified whether or not they are accepted. If accepted, farmers will receive annual rent payments during the 10-year contract of the program. Annual payments will be limited to $50,000 per producer.

Land taken out of production under the program must be planted to a permanent cover of grass or trees, and various conservation practices must be used to maintain the land. Costs of establishing permanent cover and for conservation treatments will be shared with the government on a 50-50 basis.

Emily Thornhill gains membership into honor group

Emily Thornhill of Haskell has been inducted into the Psi Zeta chapter of Phi Theta Kappa at Western Texas College in Snyder.

Miss Thornhill is the daughter of Charles and Louise Thornhill and is a graduate of Haskell High School.

She was named to Who's Who in American High Schools and was a member of the FHA. At WTC she is an accounting major and a member of the Baptist Student Union. She was named to the Merit List for the 1985 fall semester.

Other inductees include Clayton Sorrells of Rule and Paul Sorrells of Old Glory.

Phi Theta Kappa is the only nationally recognized honor fraternity for students in American junior/community colleges. Organized in 1918, it was formally recognized by the American Assn. of Junior Colleges in 1929. The WTC chapter was organized in 1972.

To be eligible for membership in PTK, a student must be a full-time student and have a cumulative grade point average of 3.2 or more on a 4.0 scale.

Induction ceremonies for the new PTK members were Feb. 9 in the Fine Arts Theatre on the WTC campus. Danny Hunter, a former president of the WTC chapter and of the national organization, was guest speaker. Hunter is currently a candidate for state representative.
