City to code ordinances

The City Council entered into an agreement Monday evening with the Municipal Code Corp. of Tallahassee, Fla., to re-code and classify all city ordinances.

Action came during a Council meeting at which Dale Barstow of the Florida firm explained how the program works.

The project will take about 14 months. The City's cost will be approximately $7,000 over two years.

When completed, all city ordinances be will coded and abstracted into a single volume. Obsolete and unusable ordinances will be deleted.

Councilmen discussed ways in which the City may assist in industrial development and expressed a willingness to work with any industry which may be interested in locating in Haskell.

The Council also authorized the sale of a used police car. The 1982 Plymouth will be advertised for bids.

The rest of Monday's Council meeting was pretty well limited to discussion on subjects presented by City Administrator Robert Baker. Among them:

Preparations are being made to remove the old railroad depot from city property. The building was sold some time ago to Chief Escebedo.

An application to continue tax service has been withdrawn. The City has been without tax service since March 1 when the franchisor discontinued his franchise. Councilmen expressed their concern that the community has no cab service at this time and their hope that someone will be interested in providing the service.

West Texas Utilities will begin replacing 171 street lights in the city March 25. Old street lights will be replaced with energy-efficient sodium street lights. The project will begin in the northeast section of the city.

An inspection team from the State Parks and Wildlife Commission will inspect the local swimming pool in April and then make a recommendation to that commission concerning the city's request for a grant to renovate the pool. In the meantime, the State Health Dept. has notified the city that the pool will be allowed to be open this summer, providing it meets the clean-water standards.

Three candidates for School Board

Three men, including two incumbents, are candidates for positions on the Haskell School Board.

Present board members Mike Guess and Pat Henry have filed for re-election to three-year terms. Also filing was Lonnie Hodgins.

The school election is scheduled for Saturday, April 5. Balloting will be in the Community Building of Haskell National Bank.

Seymour group performs April 12

The "Imitation Stats" of Seymour will be in Haskell April 12 for a benefit supper and musical for the Haskell Memorial Civic Center.

All money made from the event will go toward the air condition compressors at the Civic Center, which will cost about $13,000.

Tickets are now on sale by officers and directors of the Civic Center.

Flashback

Prairie dogs were a great nuisance in the early days of Haskell County.

The state passed a scalp law which went into effect in July 1891, providing a bounty on prairie dog scalps. Often, wagon loads of dogs would be taken to town and sold to merchants or others for them to scalp and put in claims against the county. During a single month in 1892, Haskell County paid bounties on 20,431 prairie dog scalps.

After about two years, the bounty law was repealed.

Haskell man is candidate

A retired West Texas Utilities employee from Haskell has filed as a candidate for the Texas Silver Haired Legislature.

C. O. Holt, who retired as WTU plant superintendent in 1976, is one of seven candidates for representative of district 3, which includes Haskell, Knox, Kent, Stonewall, Throckmorton, Scurry, Fisher, Shackelford, Stephens, Mitchell, Nolan and Callahan counties.

Other candidates are Joe W. Craig of Sweetwater, Delbert D. Downing of Snyder, Paul S. DuLaney of Clyde, Faye Nichols of Throckmorton, Hartense Spicer of Jayton and Willie A. Taylor of Loraine.

In addition, voters of those areas will help elect an at-large candidate to represent all 19 counties of the West Central Texas region. At-large candidates are Jaynie R. Bower of Abilene, Roy V. Cartee of Cisco and Jerome V. Ray of Comanche.

By law, candidates must be at least 60 years old. Only registered voters 60 or over may vote.

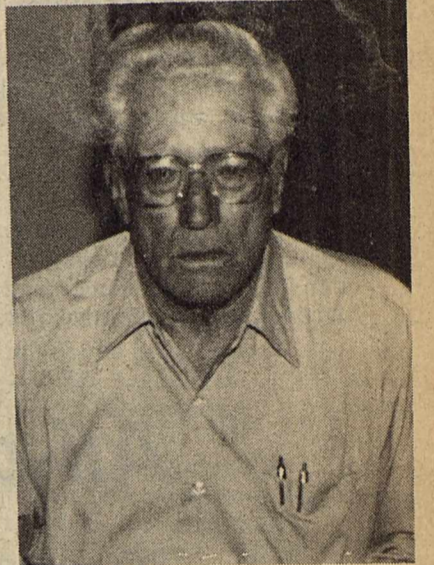

Tentatively, the local election will be held at the Experienced Citizens Center in Haskell during the month of May.

Those elected will meet for a three-day training session in Austin in July, during which time they will be briefed on the legislative process, issues facing senior citizens and other issues and procedures.

For conversion program

Farmers signing up

Deadline for signing up for the government's new program to take erodible cropland out of production is Friday, March 14, but farmers must take certain preliminary steps before they sign up.

The program has proved quite popular in Haskell County and agricultural officials expect several thousand acres to qualify for the conversion.

Before signing up, farmers are required to visit the local Soil Conservation Service office, and they must establish their cropping history on the land for the past five years, which means a visit to the local office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Once land is verified, landowners must submit a bid to their county ASCS office indicating the amount of annual rental payment they want from the government for keeping the land out of production. The bid should be based on returns from expected crop production on the land. Worksheets to help them determine a bid price are available at their County Extension office.

Those who qualify must enter into a 10-year contract and must establish permanent cover (trees or grass) on the land to protect it from wind and water erosion. Costs involved in establishing and maintaining this cover will be shared 50-50 with the government.

"The program is hailed by federal officials as being the greatest soil conservation effort in U. S. history," said Dr. Bill Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Extension Service. "Certainly, it has the potential for taking a lot of erodible cropland out of production and protecting it from the ravages of wind and water erosion."

According to Harris, some 45 million acres are being targeted for the program nationally over a five-year period, with 11.5 million of those acres being in Texas. During the current year, 5 million acres across the U. S. and 825,000 in Texas are targeted.

Landowners will be bidding against other landowners in specific regions with regard to land rental payments, Harris noted. No more than 25 percent of the cropland in any one county will be accepted into the program unless determined otherwise by the Secretary of Agriculture. Also, annual rental payments will be limited to $50,000 per farmer and will be in addition to annual commodity program payments.

City tax revenues rise for January

The City of Haskell received a check for $11,648.20 last week from State Comptroller Bob Bullock as its share of local sales taxes collected in January.

It represented a substantial increase over the check for $10,010.55 received for the same period last year.

This year's tax receipts to date come to $45,478.04, up slightly over the $45,256.33 which had been received at this time last year.

Rule received a check for $2,277.54 last week, compared to $1,541.48 for the same period last year. For the year, Rule has received $7,169.31, compared to $5,088.40 during the same period in 1985.

Rochester also showed a hefty gain. Last week's check was for $1,161.12, while last year it was $632.98. For 1986 to date, Rochester has received 2,996.85. During the same period last year, Rochester had received $2,159.94.

So far this year, the five county communities have received $56,359.66. For the same period last year, the total was $53,439.21.

Haskell's check last week was the largest of any area city of comparable size. Stamford received $10,984.25. Seymour got $11,111.08; Olney, $11,185.73; and Post $11,477.16.

Other area cities and the amount of their checks last week included Hamlin, $6,013.54; Knox City, $5,855.22; Anson, $5,480.43; and Munday, $3,249.63.

Welcome signs to greet visitors

Visitors coming into town will soon be greeted by attractive lighted signs, welcoming them to Haskell—"The Hub of the Rolling Plains."

Now under construction, the signs have been made possible by donations, including $2,400 from the City of Haskell, $1,200 from Haskell County and $500 each from the Lions Club, Kiwanis Club and Rotary Club.

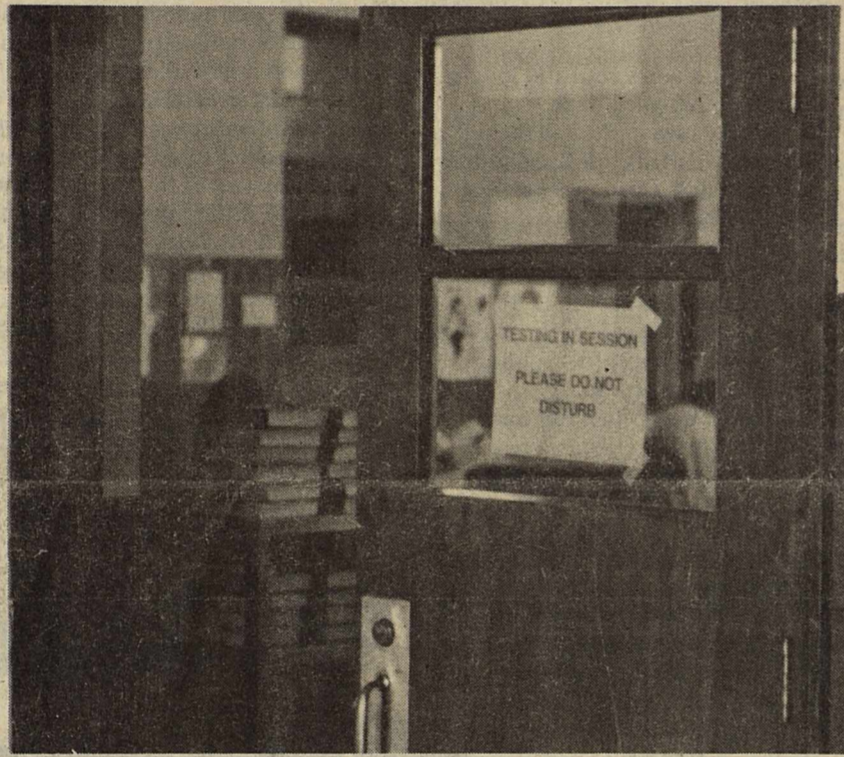

The Haskell Chamber of Commerce is in charge of fund raising, design, building and installation. Serving on a Chamber committee for the project are Tom Richardson, Sam Bitner and Bob Brandon.

Sports banquet

Tickets to the Haskell High School All-Sports Banquet are now available at The Drug Store, Sport About and the High School office. They are priced at $6 each.

The banquet will be at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 19, at the Civic Center.

This year's banquet will be catered by Flora Pace of Haskell. Entertainment will be provided by a group of high school athletes.

BEHIND THESE DOORS

Only teachers were permitted behind these doors Monday as the TECAT exam was given at Haskell Elementary School.

Teachers await results of TECAT

About 130 Haskell County educators traded places with their students Monday and took the controversial basic-skills test.

The testing program, required by the state's 1984 school reform law, went along smoothly, despite the fact that most teachers had objected to the requirement.

Dr. James Kemp, Haskell superintendent, said he felt most teachers did well on the test. The superintendent, who was required to take the test himself, was one of those who felt beforehand, and still feels, that the test does little to measure a teacher's competence.

Most teachers seemed to feel that the test, known as the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers (TECAT) was a "moderate" one. All teachers and school administrators must pass the exam to keep their jobs under the 1984 reform law. Those who failed Monday's test will have another opportunity to pass in June.

Weinert places two on all-state team

Weinert placed two players on the six-man all-state football team announced last weekend.

Quarterback Shannon Forehand and end Ricky Perez were chosen for the offensive team.

It was the second year as an all-stater for Forehand, who helped lead the Bulldogs to the state semifinals. Perez, a junior, also had a big hand in the Bulldogs' big season which saw them lose only two games, both to state champion Jayton.

Still another Weinert standout, Ed Perez, received honorable mention.

Jayton put four players on the all-state team, including center Tim Carey, end Patrick Hamilton and running back Trey Richey on the offensive team and linebacker Ricky Martinez on the defensive unit.

Haskell runs at Munday

Haskell track teams, both boys and girls, will be in Munday Saturday to compete in an invitational track meet.

It will be the second outing of the season for both squads, the boys having opened last week at Anson and the girls the week before at Stamford.

In Anson last Saturday, only six Indians competed, but Haskell turned in a respectable performance, finishing third in a field of nine teams.

The 440-yard relay team took first place in the meet with a time of 45:54. Making up the quartet were Stephon Brockington, Mark Young, Steven Rodriguez and Fred Shaw.

The same quartet combined to take second place in the mile relay with a time of 3:43.99.

Individually, the Indians took three second places. Louie Torres was second in the 880, Shaw was second in the 100 and Brockington was runnerup in the 220.

Young took third place in the 440 with a 53:31 reading which was just a half second behind the winner.

As a team, Haskell accumulated 69 points. Host Anson was the team winner with 100 points, and Hamlin squeezed out Haskell for second place with 70 points.

Abilene Christian High was fourth with 48 and Rotan had 44 for fifth place. Three teams, Stamford, Trent and Winters, tied for sixth place with 36 points each. Aspermont was ninth with 31 points.

Coach Jimmy Lisle said he expected to have more participants in this week's event at Munday. The spring break, illnesses and other distractions combined to curtail the number of available athletes for the Anson meet.

Coach George Martin's Maiden tracksters, who did not compete last weekend at Anson, will be going for their second team title in as many outings. Two weeks ago, the Haskell team easily won the Reunion Relays in Stamford, accumulating more than twice as many team points as any other school.

Two relay teams and eight individuals won first places at Stamford as Haskell took 10 first places in the 15 events.

Seventh grade track team opens season

By Lance Hanson

The seventh-grade tracksters traveled to Hamlin last Saturday to compete in their first track meet of the season.

The sprint relay won but was disqualified.

Jonathon Dever and Johnny Billington received second and fourth, respectively, in the 220.

In the 110 high hurdles, Morgan Kreger finished sixth.

In the 800 meter run, Renee Garcia and Bernie Gonzales finished second and fourth, respectively.

The mile relay team, made up of Billington, Dever, Renee Garcia and Jeremy Fuentes, received a first place ribbon.

Jay Miller received a second place ribbon for his effort in the shot put.

Rusty Stocks and Renee Garcia jumped for a fourth and sixth place, respectively, in the high jump.

In the mile, Carlos Mendoza finished fourth and Bernie Gonzales finished fifth.

All-district

Three Paint Creek girls

Kay Fischer of Paint Creek and Shonda Miller of Aspermont tied for most valuable player honors on the 25-A all-district girls' basketball team announced last week by district coaches.

Fischer was just one of three Paint Creek players on the team, the others being Rhonda Coleman and Gina Calk.

Rounding out the first team were Martisha Lewis of Aspermont, Marci Stevenson of McCaulley and Cherri Feagan of Roby.

Evonne Vanderbilt of Rule made the second team. Other second-team members were Tammy Mauldin and Dena Williamson of Roby, Carol Kirby of McCaulley and Lori McCoy and Marla McCoy of Aspermont.

Angela Tibbetts of Rule and Sharlene Grisham of Paint Creek received honorable mention.

Tennis team opens season at Hamlin

The Indian varsity tennis team travelled to Hamlin to play Hamlin and Anson.

In the singles matches, Stephen Klose beat Hamlin's No. 1 player, 8-2. Klose took control of the match and never let Hamlin's player get untracked.

Johnny Wilson lost to Hamlin's No. 1 player, 8-2, and Anson's No. 2 player, 8-6.

Kelly Klose was then matched against Hamlin's No. 2 player. Although this was a close match, Klose fell short and was defeated, 8-6.

He then teamed up with Stephen Klose to play Hamlin's No. 2 doubles team. Due to a mixup in scoring, the match was not completed. Hamlin was ahead, 6-5, when the match was stopped.

Scott Schaake and Tim Johnson had better luck in their doubles match. They faced Hamlin's No. 1 team, which proved to be an easy win as the Haskell duo prevailed, 8-3.

The team then played Anson's No. 1 team. The score was tied at 7-7, but Schaake had his serve broken to put Anson up 8-7. The Anson team then went on to win, 9-7.

The Indians will next be in action April 5 when they travel to Quanah for the Quanah Tournament.

Rule, Paint Creek boys honored

Headed by Bobby Joe Walker, the co-most-valuable player, Rule placed three players on the district 25-A all-district basketball team for the just-completed season. Paint Creek had one.

Danny Carreon of Roby tied with Walker for most valuable player honors.

Joining Walker and Carreon in the all-star lineup were Rule players Glen Vanderbilt and Alfredo Valerio.

Paint Creek's Jamie Braly also was on the all-district team, along with a couple of Aspermont standouts, James Baker and Victor Garcia.

Keith Medford of Paint Creek was chosen for the second team. Rounding out the second team were Ronnie McNeil of McCaulley and three players from Roby, Bruce Williams, Jerry Carreon and Benny Carreon.

Another Rule player, Wade Welborn, received honorable mention, as did Jeff Branson of Roby, Brian Helmuth and Martin Farnsworth of McCaulley and Ken Hayes and Timothy Meador of Aspermont.

Social Security

The second-quarter schedule of the district Social Security representative's visit to Haskell has been announced by the Abilene office.

The representative will be at the City Hall Annex at 9:30 a.m. April 3-10-24, May 1-8-22 and June 5-12-26.

Golf team schedules tournaments

By Kelly Strickland

The Haskell boys' golf team will play its first tournament March 20 at Haskell Country Club.

The Indians have six tournaments scheduled for their season.

Members of the team this year are Sam Beakley, Brad Bevel, Jerry Davis, Kendall Larned, Eric Mullen, Jeff Neal, Kelly Strickland and Michael Wallace.

Returning lettermen from last year's district championship team include Davis, Larned, Strickland and Wallace.

The team is coached by Jim Dan Raughton.

Tax officers meeting here

Members of the West Central Texas Chapter of the Texas Assn. of Assessing Officers (TAAO) held their quarterly meeting March 3 at the Port Hole in Haskell.

The program was brought by Jenny Brazell of the Paint Creek Independent School district and had to do with using records from the County Clerk's office.

A roundtable discussion on appraisal, assessment and collections was helpful to all.

Sagerton planning another Jamboree

Another Double Mountain Jamboree, a country music show, will be held Saturday evening in Sagerton.

The decision to have another jamboree was made due to the huge success of a previous jamboree held several weeks ago.

More than 300 people, from throughout the Big Country, attended the first event.

This week's show, like the first one, will begin at 7 p.m. in the Sagerton Community Center.

The public is invited to come out and enjoy an evening of country music. There will be a concession stand with plenty of food and drinks.

The show will feature three bands, including Country Grass, a bluegrass band from Tye. Weldon Rogers of radio station KDWT in Stamford will again serve as master of ceremonies.

George Anderson of Aspermont, who originally organized the jamboree, said: "We are looking forward to the second jamboree, and we hope that it will be as successful as the first one. We have a lot of support from citizens and musicians alike in providing entertainment of this kind, in a good clean family environment for those who share a love for country music."

Teachers

the first exam is expected to be about 10 percent, with the rate dropping to 5 percent after the second test. If the prediction proves accurate and if Haskell is average, one or two local teachers could be among the estimated 10,000 statewide who will no longer qualify as teachers.

Teachers will be notified whether they passed or failed by May 1. Except for being informed of whether they passed or failed, they will not know how they did on the test.

scheduled for three days in the fall, Sept. 29-30 and Oct. 1. During this session, the group will function along the lines of a legislative body, passing legislation, forming committees, etc. Although the Silver Haired Legislature has no legal status, its actions and desires will be submitted to the State Legislature for consideration.

Silver haired legislators will receive no salary and will be responsible for their travel expenses to Austin for the session, as well as for the training session. They will not be officials of the state.

The Texas Legislature created the Silver Haired Legislature to:

-provide older Texans an opportunity to become knowledgeable about the legislative process through involvement,

-develop a forum for older Texans for discussion of senior citizens' issues, debating these issues and establishing legislative priorities for the Texas Legislature to consider, and

-Provide advocacy training enabling delegates to continue their role within the community and offering informed assistance to policy makers.

Holt has been a resident of Haskell since January 16, 1953, when WTU transferred him here from McCamey as its power plant superintendent. He had been with WTU 30 years when he retired.

He and his wife Ruby have a son, C. O. Holt Jr., who was reared here and graduated from Haskell High School and McMurry College. The younger Holt is now with the Federal Reserve Bank in Houston.

Iron intake not always barometer

Getting enough iron in your diet is not simply a matter of eating iron-rich foods, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

Iron intake is determined both by the amount of iron-rich foods eaten and how well the iron is absorbed into your body, says Dr. Alice Hunt.

"Generally, iron added to foods or taken in the form of supplements is not absorbed as well as that which comes from natural food," she explains.

Since many factors influence the absorption of iron from foods and additives, taking an iron supplement does not automatically insure you're getting an adequate amount, Hunt points out.

The maximize your body's absorption of iron, the nutritionist recommends the following:

•Eat red meats regularly. They are the best source of iron and also facilitate iron absorption when eaten with other foods. Select lean cuts and remove the visible fat before cooking.

•Eat fruits and vegetables rich in vitamin C such as citrus fruits and juices, dark green vegetables, and tomatoes. Vitamin C rich foods will substantially increase the absorption of iron from other foods.

•Look for processed foods that are enriched. Some white bread, rolls, crackers and cereals are enriched with iron. Check the nutrition labels on these and other refined grain foods to make sure you are getting an enriched product.

•When you cook acid foods, such as tomato sauce, use an iron pan. Significant amounts of iron can leach from the pan into the foods.

•Don't drink coffee and tea at meals. Coffee can decrease iron absorption by as much as 39 percent and tea, by 87 percent when consumed with a meal. But there is some research to show you can counter the effect by eating a food high in vitamin C along with these beverages at a meal.

•Don't go overboard on fiber. Bran and other high-fiber foods can interfere with iron absorption. However, you're only likely to run into problems if your diet is already low in iron and you regularly eat large amounts of high-fiber foods or bran supplements.

State logo protected by patent

To paraphrase the warning on cigarette packages, the illegal use of the Sesquicentennial logo can be damaging to your pocketbook, not to mention the restrictions on your personal freedom for the next few years.

As a registered trademark with the United States Patent Office, the official Texas Sesquicentennial Commission logotype is protected by stringent Federal statutes rigorously enforced through the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U. S. judicial system.

Individuals using the Sesquicentennial logotype without permission are subject to fines of not more than $250,000 or imprisonment of not more than five years.

Those trafficking in counterfeit goods or services bearing the Sesquicentennial logo are subject to the same penalties.

A Sesquicentennial View From The Attorney General's Office: 150 Years The People's Lawyer

The Convention of 1836 created the Office of the Texas Attorney General on March 17, 1836, and chose David Thomas to fill it.

Texas law combines Spanish and Mexican legal traditions—particularly in the areas of community property, homestead exemptions, water rights and debtor relief—with Anglo-American common law. But neither the Spanish colonial regime nor government as organized under the Acta Constitutiva of Mexico had a corresponding official; thus, David Thomas was the first Attorney General of Texas.

His term lasted one day short of a month. Thomas died on April 16th, the victim of an accidental gunshot wound he suffered while traveling to join Sam Houston at San Jacinto. Texas President David Burnet appointed Peter Grayson in Thomas's place. Nine men served the Texas Republic as Attorney General and all but Thomas were presidential appointees.

Texas became a state in 1846. The first four AGs after statehood were also executive appointees. A constitutional amendment in 1850 made the office elective, however, and Ebenezer Allen was the first Attorney General to win at the polls. Except for a brief period under the Constitution of 1869 during Reconstruction, the AG has been an elective office ever since.

According to political scientists, AGs in British and American legal history are different from lawyers in private practice because they "really have only one client—the people, or the state." Many Texas AGs have admirable records as the lawyer for Texas and all Texans, although as Texas has grown and changed, so too have the responsibilities of the People's Lawyer.

Texas came into the Union cash poor but land rich. And the primary way that AGs served as lawyers for the people was to prosecute those who made fraudulent claims for land from the public domain.

Making sure we get our money's worth from our public lands—the lands that support our public schools and universities—continues to be a major part of the Attorney General's job. But with the end of Reconstruction after the Civil War, Texans worried about a number of issues, particularly about the growing power of large corporations like banks and railroads. Because of their concern, when they wrote the Constitution of 1876 they included the instructions that the Attorney General must:

especially inquire into the charter rights of all private corporations, and ... take such actions in the courts as may be proper and necessary to prevent any private corporation from exercising any power ... not authorized by law.

With these instructions, the AG's Office took on one of its most important modern features, what former Attorney General Will Wilson called being a "corporate policeman." And the first AG to really police corporations was James Stephen Hogg (1886-1890).

Jim Hogg, Attorney General 1886-1890.

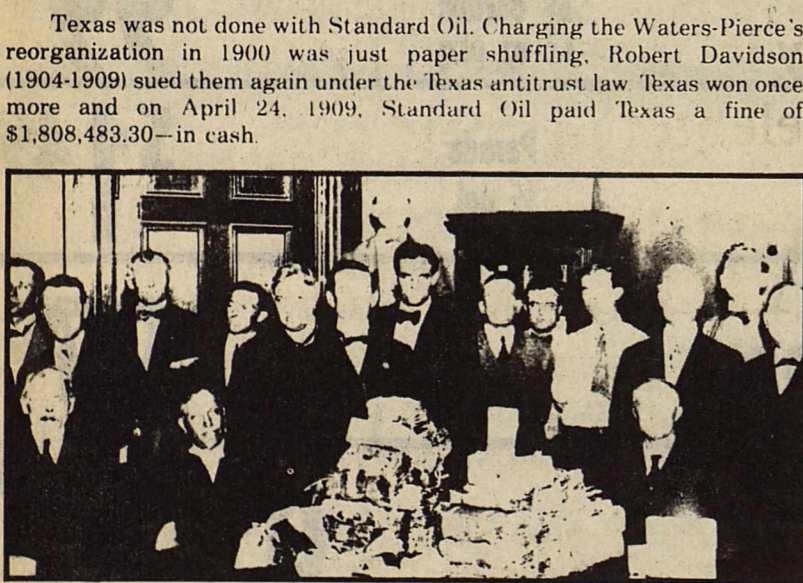

His first targets were the unlicensed insurance companies that preyed on unsuspecting Texans. As Hogg saw it, it was the state's responsibility to "strengthen and protect legally operating concerns from the 'wildcats' and at the same time protect the public against any fraudulence whatsoever." And he drove the wildcats from the state, an action one company took with good humor:

The Masonic Mutual Benevolent Association, formerly located at Fort Worth, Texas has moved its domicile to Texarkana, Ark. to avoid the annoyance of a prosecution instituted at the insistence of Attorney General Hogg.

Railroads were next. Hogg sued the Texas Traffic Association for being a combination created by Colin Huntington and Jay Gould to restrain competition among railroads. And won. He filed suit against several railroads charging them with land fraud. The suits dragged on into the 1890s but ultimately 1½ million acres were returned to the public domain. And he filed suits to get railroads to sell their lands to settlers in a timely fashion.

After two terms as Attorney General—during the second of which he helped write the Texas antitrust law, second in the whole country—Jim Hogg was elected Governor (1890). His successors as AG carried on the tradition of People's Lawyer. Charles Culberson (1890-1894) defended the constitutionality of the Texas Railroad Commission before the U.S. Supreme Court. And won. Martin Crane (1894-1898) sued the Waters-Pierce Oil Company under the Texas antitrust law, charging the company with being nothing more than an arm of Standard Oil. That case also went to the U.S. Supreme Court. And Texas won again.

Texas was not done with Standard Oil. Charging the Waters-Pierce's reorganization in 1900 was just paper shuffling, Robert Davidson (1904-1909) sued them again under the Texas antitrust law. Texas won once more and on April 24, 1909, Standard Oil paid Texas a fine of $1,808,483.30—in cash.

The Waters-Pierce Fine, $1,808,483.30 paid in cash on April 24, 1909. Attorney General Davidson is seated at the left of the table. To his left, also seated, is the Waters-Pierce Attorney, Judge Perkins.

Robert Davidson won 135 antitrust suits during his term as AG and his successors, particularly Jewel Lightfoot (1910-1912) and Benjamin Looney (1913-1919), also chalked up solid records as trust-busters. But the Texas population and economy were growing, expanding the areas in which the People's Lawyer had to fight the encroachments of special interests.

Highways were among the first of the new areas to get the AG's attention. Transportation has always been a concern of the office, but in the 19th century railroads were the problem. By World War I, however, Texans were becoming dependent on roads and highways. Dan Moody (1925-27) made statewide headlines in 1925 with his investigation into corruption in the Highway Department. Moody found what he called "unconscionable" contracts that had the state paying three times the going rate for construction and repairs on Texas highways. Moody's suits recovered more than $1 million in state funds.

After Spindletop, the oil industry took on a power and significance that made the Waters-Pierce litigation seem unthinkable. But on November 12, 1931, Jimmie Allred (1930-1934) shocked the nation's business world by bringing suit against Standard Oil, fourteen other oil companies, and two petroleum associations for violating Texas antitrust laws. Allred earlier had sued public service corporations that illegally did retail merchandising and cotton gins whose charges were too "nearly uniform." "Those were only practice suits," wrote the Austin American, "but the big gun was held in reserve. It was fired Thursday."

New uses of cotton are hailed

The introduction of 100 percent cotton slacks offering a permanent press and a durable crease and the continued success of all-cotton bedsheets in the home fabrics market highlighted Cotton Incorporated's annual report at the Beltwide Cotton Conferences in Las Vegas.

The 100 percent cotton slacks, which require only minimum care, represent an effort by Cotton Incorporated to revitalize textile technology originally developed more than a decade ago. The improved process is now available in fabrics from mills, including among others, J.P. Stevens, Burlington, Graniteville, Greenwood Mills and Springs Industries, as well as manufacturers and retailers including Sears Roebuck, J.C. Penney, Farah Apparel Company, The Thomson Company, The Haggard Company, Seminole Manufacturing and Troutman Industries. The introductions followed intensive marketing programs by Cotton Incorporated's staff to promote the new durable-press process to the textile industry.

Similar efforts by Cotton Incorporated's home fabrics marketing department helped fuel mill interest in 100 percent cotton sheets. Five mills introduced six all-cotton easy-care bedsheets products in 1985, including Fieldcrest's Royal Velvet collection and Martex's Perry Ellis designer line. Additional product introductions for the mass-merchant market appeared from Stevens' Tastemaker and Lowenstein Company's Pacific Division.

Despite a generally difficult year for the textile industry, Cotton Incorporated reports gain in overall market share for U.S. Upland cotton. Total consumption of all fibers for the apparel and home fabric areas (excluding carpets) was down 2.8 percent, while cotton fiber consumption was up almost 2 percent, bringing cotton's share of market from 41.7 percent to 43.3 percent. In apparel, total fiber consumption was down 1.4 percent, with cotton fiber at a 2.6 percent increase, raising its share of market to 42.7 percent from 41 percent. While total fiber consumption for the home fabric market was decreasing 5.2 percent, cotton's share of market rose from 46.9 percent to 47.6 percent.

"Cotton's continued gains in a depressed marketplace demonstrates the consumer's strong predisposition to our fiber," says Cotton Incorporated president and CEO Robert J. Boslet. "That's the message we carry to mills, manufacturers and retailers — if you want to survive in tough times, you have to give the consumer what he or she wants, and that is quality cotton apparel and home fabrics."

Boslet also notes that despite the strong value of the dollar, which continues to hamper exports, U.S. cotton exports for 1984-1985 were more than one million bales higher than a five year running average beginning with 1945. However, Boslet cautions the expected continued strength of the dollar will continue to make exports difficult throughout 1986.

"The news of our accomplishments, at a time when cotton growers are having difficulties, is a welcome assurance that our fiber will be in a strong position once we emerge from the current price situation," says Cotton Incorporated chairman of the board and cotton producer J.S. Stephens. He urges the continued support of producers to further cotton advances in 1986.

Cotton Incorporated's annual report at the Beltwide Cotton Conferences on January 6th included presentations from Boslet and Cotton Incorporated chairman, J.S. Stephens, as well as department heads of the research and marketing divisions.

Storm warning test

A test of the storm warning system in Haskell is planned for 5 p.m. Monday, March 17.

All three sirens will be tested. Tom Watson said the test should be 30-60 seconds in duration.

Seat belts

Enforcement of the new belt law is off to a vigorous start, reports the Texas Coalition for Safety Belts.

The Department of Public Safety issued 5,797 safety belt citations in December, the first month of the penalty phase.

Motorcycles can be dangerous

Motorcycles are fun, inexpensive to run and easy to ride. They also are dangerous, and injuries are almost 100 percent guaranteed in the event of an accident.

In one large-scale study by the Texas Dept. of Transportation, it was discovered that 98 percent of motorcycle accidents resulted in injury to the rider. The University of California Davis Medical Center reviewed the medical records from 1980 to 1983 on patients injured in motorcycle accidents. The findings showed that injured motorcyclists were hospitalized for an average of 21.2 days. The average for a patient with an open fracture and a non-motorcycle cause of injury was 13.1 days.

"The extended length of hospitalization underscores the severity of most motorcycle accidents," the report stated.

Other findings:
Thirty-nine percent of the victims were younger than 20; 82 percent were younger than 30, 92 percent were male and 75 percent of the injured motorcyclists had no insurance.

Use of safety helmets and motorcycle training courses should reduce the incidence and severity of injuries, the report concluded.

The Haskell Co. Ambulance Memorial Fund needs your support. You never know when you or a loved one will need these services. What would happen if someday they weren't there because you didn't give your fair share? Think about it...

Rice Springs Care Home

This week we would like for everyone to get to know Ethel Bradford better.

Ethel was born Nov. 15, 1899, in Van Zant County as Ethel Benight. She had four brothers and three sisters, all of whom are now deceased.

She went to Peacock in 1919 with her family. She married Dec. 3, 1922, at the age of 23 to Sam Bradford on their front porch.

Sam and Ethel had three children. One daughter passed away at birth. Another daughter, Faye Cox, and a son, G. A. Bradford, both live at Peacock. They have two grandchildren, Donnie Cox and Brenda Bradford, and one great-granddaughter, Carrie Ann.

Sam and Ethel were farmers in Peacock before retiring and coming to Rice Springs Care Home in 1972. Sam passed away in February 1985.

Ethel is still active and tries to attend as many activities as legs will allow her to walk to. She is an encouragement to everyone, and everyone should get to know her.

We regret the loss of Katy Casey this last week. Our prayers and sympathy go out to her family and friends.

History surrounds Texas fort

By O.C. Garza
Media Chief
Texas Tourist Dev. Agency

It sits on a small knoll outside of Goliad, fenced in limestone much like it was in 1749 when the Spanish built Presidio La Bahia at its present site. Throughout its two centuries, the fort has seen some interesting history.

Presidio La Bahia is the most fought-over fort in Texas history, having sustained blows from six national revolutions or wars for independence. America's cattle industry had its beginning at La Bahia with the soldiers protecting and overseeing the vast herds of the nearby Rosario and Espiritu Santa Missions.

The heart of Presidio La Bahia's past, however, is tied to the Texas Revolution. On Oct. 9, 1835, one week after the "Come and Take It" battle at Gonzales, a group of Texas militia entered Goliad and attacked the Mexican garrison at the presidio. They were victorious. Later that year, on Dec. 20, the first Declaration of Texas Independence was written at La Bahia, signed by 92 citizens and distributed throughout Texas settlements.

Col. James Fannin was in command of the Presidio La Bahia on Feb. 16, 1836, when a message, requesting aid, from Commander William Travis at the Alamo was delivered. Fannin refused this request in writing. The refusal was delivered to the Alamo the day Santa Anna and the Mexican army approached San Antonio. Travis again sent a message to Fannin requesting reinforcements. This time Fannin and his troops began the march to San Antonio only to turn back when a supply wagon broke down. They returned to the presidio.

Fannin sent a third of his force to Refugio to help evacuate Anglo settlers. This force was confronted by General Don Jose Urrea's army of a thousand Mexican troops. The Mexican army was too strong; the Texas force retreated to the woods.

Word of the Mexican victory at Refugio reached Fannin. On March 19, Fannin decided to abandon the walls of Presidio La Bahia and fall back to Victoria.

The army, shielded by a ground fog, moved out that morning. The sun burned, the fog lifted, and Fannin's pack animals, exhausted from too many heavy guns, weakened. With Coletto Creek and sheltering trees only a mile away, Fannin ordered a halt to the procession in a small depression on the open prairie.

General Urrea's army attacked. For the entire day, under a sweltering sun and from below the level of the Mexican army, the Texas force fought well. The large Texas cannons were useless since there was no water to cool the pieces after they were fired.

The next morning, completely surrounded by Urrea's superior force and unnerved by the cries of his suffering wounded, Fannin considered surrender. When first light brought a bombardment from large Mexican field guns, Fannin surrendered. Unconditionally. The Texas force was marched back to Presidio La Bahia and held in the chapel.

Fannin knew of Santa Anna's and the Supreme Government's standing orders that "anyone captured bearing arms against Mexico would be shot." Still, Fannin and his men believed they would be permitted the honors of war. Santa Anna did not.

On Palm Sunday, March 27, Fannin's men were divided up into three columns and marched outside the fort. The Mexicans, on orders from Santa Anna, massacred 352 of Fannin's troops. Miraculously, a handful of Texans bolted into the woods and somehow eluded the cavalry that was waiting to chop them down. They lived to tell the tale of the Goliad Massacre. Fannin and his officers did not. After finding out the fate of his men, Fannin and his officers were also massacred.

Later, at the Battle of San Jacinto, the wary cry "Remember the Alamo! Remember Goliad!" would inspire the Texas army to defeat Santa Anna's army and win Texas independence. The men killed at Goliad were not forgotten.

Today, the fully restored Presidio La Bahia is considered the world's

Heat slacks off state budget crisis

AUSTIN—The Governor's race is heating up, especially in the Democratic primary, and a fire of unknown determination damaged part of the Texas Supreme Court Building last week, but the heat slacked off the budget crisis for the first time in weeks.

Funds from two sources were moved closer to help state government make up a projected $1.3 billion shortfall. The U.S. House of Representatives passed legislation to around" in Crowder's business and making other political threats to keep him out of the campaign.

GOP Race Heating

The Republican race is heating, too, and no one really believes that the "speak no evil of fellow Republicans" pact is still intact.

Kent Hance is running television ads criticizing both his opponents, but stops short of naming them. He implies that Tom Loeffler is too inexperienced and Bill Clements is too old.

Hance last week also said publicly for the first time that he endorsed liberal Democrat Lloyd Doggett in '84 because of party pressure, which was why he switched to the Republican party.

House Investigation

A Texas House committee investigating claims that Texas Supreme Court Justice C. L. Ray gave favored treatment to a San Antonio attorney may subpoena Ray to testify.

Ray was reported as saying he sent word he would sign statements in exchange for not being subpoenaed.

The committee chairman, San Antonio Rep. Frank Tejeda, aims at keeping the hearing public. Tejeda is involved in a state Senate race with Rep. Tommy Adkisson.

Teacher Testing

A state district judge last week refused to halt the teacher literacy test expected to go ahead as planned this week.

More than 200,000 Texas teachers are expected to take the test, and a good many of them are angry at the idea. The Texas Education Agency estimates about 10,000 will fail the basic skills exam.

Capitol watchers are wondering whether angry teachers, who carried White to the Governor's Mansion in '82, will defect to either Briscoe or Crowder and force White into a primary runoff or defeat. Briscoe and Crowder have been getting lots of cheers wherever and whenever teachers meet this day.

Short Takes

The Railroad Commission voted Jim Nugent as chairman, replacing retiring Buddy Temple at the gavel. Temple's aide, Clark Jobe, was appointed as the third member.

The new Goddess of Liberty statue is scheduled to be placed on top of the Capitol at the end of May. Delays in casting the replica of the old, deteriorating statue and brisk March winds have caused Capitol architects to wait until then.

Editor: The Texas Department of Human Services (DHS) has announced that all DHS employees will carry photo identification cards with them while carrying out their job duties in local communities.

If, at any time, a person has reason to suspect that someone who identifies himself as an agency employee is not a DHS staff member, they should request to see a photo identification card. Individuals can also call the local DHS office to verify employment of any DHS employee. They may also contact the local police or law enforcement agency for assistance.

Out of the Past

20 Years Ago March 10, 1966

An eleventh hour flurry of political excitement Friday stirred Haskell on the eve of the deadline for filing for a place on the ballot in the April 5 city election, with two seeking the mayor's post and six in the running for the three councilmen slots.

Candidates for mayor are incumbent J. E. Walling Jr. and the Rev. Douglas B. Finch. Announcing for councilmen were incumbents R. L. Stephenson, Otho Nanny and Raymond Davis, along with Carl Anderson, Buster Gholson and Jim Sampson.

Luther Walker, Haskell Chamber of Commerce manager for the past 14 months, has resigned that position to serve in a similar capacity in Plano.

Incumbents Dr. Frank Cadenhead and Mrs. B.B. Gilmore are the only candidates for election to the school board.

Perry Turnbow, 6-5 senior from Haskell, was a unanimous selection for the all-district basketball team. Also making the team was Ronnie Josselet of Haskell.

The Lon Pate Chapter of Quill and Scroll presented sweaters for scholastic achievement Monday to Jerre Colbert, English; Steve Munday, history; Keith Chapman, math; and Darrell Davis, science.

The Free Press has been informed that the Wichita Valley Railroad forces have completed the grade between Seymour and Munday and began this week grading on the section between Munday and Haskell.

Haskell's building boom continues and you can't look anywhere without seeing a new house.

Messrs. S. W. Scott and R. E. Sherrill went to Abilene Wednesday.

Mr. J. A. Clendennen, one of the old timers of the west side, was in town Thursday.

Mr. S. R. Rike gave a dinner Wednesday to the bachelor friends of his pre-nuptial days.

At a called meeting of the Commissioners' Court Thursday, C. D. Long tendered his resignation from the office of county and district clerk, which was accepted. The court appointed J. W. Meadors to fill the unexpired term.

A grading outfit of the Wichita Valley Railroad has established a camp on Lake Creek, 16 miles north of Haskell and is working this way.

Phone ring translated 'important'

By Wendell Faught

It's difficult to imagine today how people of all those past centuries got by without telephones.

It's also easy to envy them.

I never cease to be amazed at how Alexander Graham Bell's invention can take precedence over face-to-face contact.

Wait 30 minutes in someone's outer office for an opportunity to visit with him about something, finally get your turn, and immediately someone "bucks the line" with a telephone call to the guy you've been trying to see. For some reason, the ring of the bell is translated "important."

You don't have time to eat lunch, but decide to get a quick hamburger on the run. By the time you get your order and start to pay for it, the phone rings. The cash register takes a timeout, while the cashier talks to Aunt Susie, or whoever.

Those are just a couple of examples of how a phone call to someone else can irritate you. Even more demoralizing are those calls to you.

Schedule a lunch with someone and it's almost 10-to-one that the phone will ring a couple of minutes before noon. If you decide to ignore it and go on to your date, you won't get to the front door before you succumb to the repeated sound of urgency emitted by the ring.

Usually, and especially in small towns, people don't seem to mind a telephone call—if it's from someone they know. Even local salesmen don't bother local people since most of them realize it's just a means of contacting the greatest number of people in the shortest possible time.

But the guy from E. F. Hutton who tries to talk you into putting five grand in Advance Investors when you don't know how you're going to make the next house payment can be a bore.

We called them filling stations.

Now, we call them service stations.

And Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said Texas may be able to use almost $157 million in refunds from Exxon Corp. collected last week for pricing violations.

Meanwhile, the Texas House cut 19 percent and the Texas Senate 13 percent from their budgets, totalling $11 million in savings.

Briscoe and White

The governor's debate that wasn't going to be... is now on. Governor Mark White made it official at his press conference, but not the way he would have liked.

His chief Democratic primary opponent, Andrew Briscoe, went to the Capitol press conference and reporters quietened down to let him personally ask the question, "When are you going to debate, Mr. White?"

An angry, tight-lipped White told Briscoe he would show up at the League of Women Voters televised debate.

Runoff Ahead?

Since White declined the debate invitation a few weeks ago, both Briscoe and Don Crowder have been accusing White of ducking, and Democratic Party insiders say the gap is apparently closing between them and White. A runoff is in range.

Briscoe, sparked by fire-brand grassroots organizer Kent Olson, is thought by most to be gaining support. Crowder wages an even heavier campaign war.

Last week he accused party chairman Bob Slagle of showing favoritism to White, which Slagle denied.

Crowder also accused White of under-handed tactics: hiring a law firm to "snoop

Group warns of smoking ills to the unborn

The American Lung Association of Texas has set aside the month of February to remind women who smoke during pregnancy that they are smoking for two: Their unborn babies and themselves.

Studies covering 500,000 births have shown that a woman who smokes during pregnancy significantly increase her risk of having a miscarriage, a stillbirth, a premature baby or baby with low birthweights. The new born infant faces increased risks from respiratory disease syndrome and Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. In addition, children of smokers tend to be smaller and shorter and have more respiratory ailments and to score lower on math and verbal tests than children of nonsmokers.

The Lung Association has an information kit for pregnant women who smoke. Questions such as: "What are some specific effects of smoking during pregnancy?" are answered in the comprehensive question and answer portion of the kit. The kit will be distributed free of charge during February.

Workshops for nurses and other healthcare professionals will be held at three locations around the state. Physicians will present physiological information concerning smoking during pregnancy. Each hospital or clinic represented will receive extensive information and materials to be used when counseling expectant mothers about the hazards of smoking.

For more information about smoking during pregnancy contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 3520 Executive Center Drive, Suite G-400, Austin, Texas 78731-1606 or call toll-free 1-800-252-LUNG.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Watching Washington

A lengthy illness can wipe out the financial resources of an elderly person—even someone of means who has worked and saved for a lifetime. Medicare isn't much help in these situations.

A 71-year-old Houston man ran up $95,000 in hospital and doctor charges. After Medicare benefits were paid, he still owed $43,000. In East Texas, a 70-year-old woman was left with a $26,000 debt when an illness exhausted all of her Medicare coverage.

Long-term illnesses such as these people experienced strike fear in elderly persons across the United States. They know that with the increasingly sophisticated and costly array of medical services available today, they might survive their illness only to be ruined financially.

Medicare currently covers all reasonable hospital fees for up to 60 days, once a $492 deductible charge is paid for each period of hospitalization. After 60 days, patients pay a share of the costs which increases with the length of the hospital stay. After 150 days, the patient must pay all charges.

The Medicare and Medicaid programs are designed to help those most in need of medical care—the elderly. Although persons 65 and older make up 12 percent of our population, they account for 33 percent of all health care expenditures. They consume 31 percent of all hospital services, 28 percent of physician services, 24 percent of all prescription drug sales, and 80 percent of nursing home costs.

But it is these very people—the elderly living off savings or fixed incomes—that Medicare fails to help with the overwhelming expenses that can result from a serious, long-term illness.

In 1984, I introduced—and have since continued to push for—legislation that would protect older Americans against such catastrophic medical costs.

I am pleased that the President recently expressed interest in developing a plan to extend Medicare coverage to long-term hospitalization. Members of my staff already have met with White House representatives to discuss the details of my proposal.

The Bentsen Catastrophic Insurance plan is self-financing and will not add to the solvency problems facing the Medicare trust funds.

Its increased hospital benefits would be financed by an additional Medicare premium of some $3.75 a month. But in return, Medicare recipients would be covered for all reasonable hospital charges after the deductible is paid, no matter how long their stay. In addition, the $492 deductible charge now required for each hospital stay would be limited to two such payments a year.

My bill would provide optional coverage to pay 100 percent of all reasonable doctors' fees, after a deductible and initial out-of-pocket expenses are satisfied. The increased physician benefits would be financed by another premium of some $10 to $12 a month, assuming full participation.

This is a sound, reasonable and low-cost approach to providing such Medicare coverage for long-term hospital care.

Older Americans need to know they are protected from the financial ruin that can accompany a lengthy, serious illness.

Medicare deductible increases to $492

The Medicare hospital insurance deductible, the amount a Medicare patient is responsible for when he or she first receives hospital inpatient services in a benefit period, increased to $492 in 1986, Glyn Hammons, Social Security manager in Abilene, has announced.

Also scheduled to increase are the per-day amounts patients are responsible for after specific lengths of stay in a hospital or skilled nursing facility, Hammons said.

After 60 days of inpatient care in a benefit period in 1986, Medicare will pay for all covered costs except $123 a day. The 1985 figure was $100.

For each reserve day, Medicare will pay for all covered costs except $246 a day. The 1985 figure was $200.

After 20 days of care in a skilled nursing facility, Medicare will pay all covered costs except $61.50 per day. The 1985 figure was $50.

The basic monthly premium for Medicare medical insurance will not change from the 1985 rate. Some people pay more than this rate because there were periods of time they could have had this protection but did not.

The monthly premium for hospital insurance for those people who are not otherwise eligible for this protection will be $214 in 1986. The premium was $174.

The medical insurance annual deductible will remain $75, unchanged from 1985.

More information about Medicare and Social Security can be obtained at the Abilene Social Security office, located at 142 South Pioneer. The telephone number is 698-1360. Free publications can be obtained there which give more information.

Weight control presents problems

Maintaining the proper body weight for the best of health is hard work. Just ask anyone who is overweight or obese how many times he or she has tried to lose weight by eating and exercising properly in order to feel healthier.

Overweight is defined as excess weight up to 20 percent more than the individual's desirable weight. Obesity is excess weight beyond 20 percent of desirable weight.

Determining what body weight is desirable varies from person to person. There are a number of ways to calculate how much a person should weigh, some more accurate than others. Variations in body frame types, metabolic rates, lifestyles, age, sex and ethnicity are important factors in calculating an individual's desirable weight.

The Texas Dept. of Health has launched a common-sense information campaign called "Lean for Life" identifying four important elements of weight loss, which an individual can apply to his or her own circumstances. They are: (1) know yourself; (2) eat smart; (3) get moving; and (4) get together (get help and support from others). By following these guidelines you can better plan and implement the kind of weight loss you need to be lean for the rest of your life.

"Know yourself," means that anyone wanting to lose weight should take inventory of why he or she is overweight, what kinds of foods and eating habits contribute to being overweight, and how much weight to lose for good health. By keeping an accurate diary of everything he or she eats, complete with the time and circumstance of each item, such as a bowl of ice cream while feeling depressed, the individual will be able to identify tendencies to eat too much food. Such tendencies are easier to change when they are clearly recognized.

"Eat smart" is making a habit of eating nutritious foods in sensible quantities. Many people who are overweight pay too little attention to the nutritive values of the things they eat. An inexpensive pocket-sized calorie counter booklet lists the number of calories and other items in the more common types of foods. Nutrition information on food labels gives specific numbers of calories, sugar, salt and cholesterol per serving. These are two ways weight conscious individuals can learn more about what they eat.

"Get moving" means to begin and maintain a regular exercise routine. Exercise is essential for using extra calories and for burning stored body fat. It is wise for a person choosing an exercise program to consult the family physician first. Whatever the exercise, it should be started slowly and increased to a 20-30-minute session, at least three times a week. Pick an exercise program that will be fun for you.

"Get together," the fourth part of the weight-loss program, stresses the cooperation of friends and family members. Persons closest to the individual who wants to lose weight can offer support and encouragement by serving or sharing low-calorie foods compatible with the individual's diet, and by joining in exercise sessions.

These four elements of the Lean for Life program are flexible and for a good reason. The TDH Lean for Life Advisory Committee, which designed it, wanted to recommend the basic elements all overweight people need to help them become slimmer and healthier. The program acknowledges that each individual's weight problem is unique.

Program on brush control set

Haskell countians interested in knowing more about chemical brush control are invited to a meeting Monday at the Knox County Courthouse in Benjamin.

Sponsored by the Knox County Livestock and Range Committee and the Wichita-Brazos Soil and Water Conservation District, the meeting will begin at 9 a.m.

The program will cover all aspects of chemical brush control. J. F. Cadenhead, extension range and brush control specialist, will discuss present recommended chemicals for brush control and Dr. Bill Dahl, professor of range management at Texas Tech, will talk on the timing of chemical applications for brush control.

Permit requirements and liability will be presented by Ronald Bertrand of the Texas Dept. of Agriculture.

A question and answer period will follow the program.

Rat control demonstration to be today

A demonstration on the control of rats in barns will be conducted today (Thursday) in Munday, and all those interested are invited to attend.

The demonstration begins at 9 a.m. at the barn of Larry and Cindy Thompson, behind their house northwest of the Munday football field.

Randy Smith and Judy Loven, wildlife damage control specialists, will conduct the program.

Government offers bargains

Amid the flurry of post-holiday sales many consumers may be unaware the federal government can be one of the better places to shop for good values on a range of products shopping malls can't match.

The U. S. General Services Administration (GSA), the federal government's multi-billion dollar business manager, conducts about 1,000 surplus property sales nationwide every year featuring items no longer needed by the government.

Sale merchandise includes practical items that are useful around the house, such as furniture, appliances, laundry and cleaning supplies and equipment, paint, hand tools, electronic gear and photo equipment. Some sales feature more exotic items—ideal for that hard-to-buy-for person on everybody's gift list—like electric generators, polar ice breakers or portable missile launching pads.

The most popular item is what the government refers to as "vehicles." Last year GSA sold some 34,000 of them—cars, station wagons, light trucks and other special-purpose vehicles, including vans—at public auctions. The vehicle sales brought proceeds of $54 million to the government, most of which was used to replenish the government's automotive fleet. The balance went into the U.S. Treasury's coffers.

GSA sells surplus government property to the general public by competitive bid, using one of three methods. In all cases awards are made to the highest responsive bidder. No preference is given to individuals, dealers, or groups, including veterans and religious organizations.

Condition of merchandise varies. Some items may be in excellent condition, while others may need repair or have value only for salvage or scrap. GSA informs prospective bidders when an item is deficient, but the agency also cautions would-be buyers to inspect items before making bids. Ample inspection periods are provided in advance of all sales for the convenience and benefit of the shopper.

GSA generally replaces cars and other vehicles in the government's fleet after six years of 60,000 miles. The vehicles are maintained consistent with manufacturers' recommendations and usually are equipped with air conditioning, power steering, brakes, radio, automatic transmission and radial tires.

A person who buys a used government car or truck can expect to pay market value. Prices are keyed to various used car guides published periodically by trade associations and commercial firms.

Consumers should heed GSA's warning to beware of private firms which advertise and sell information on how the government disposes of its surplus property. No matter what these companies claim, it is absolutely impossible to buy a new World War II jeep, still in its original packing crate, for $49.

These firms often ask $10, $15, or even $20 as fees for promises of savings which may never be realized. Information about GSA government surplus property sales is free—and there is no charge to participate.

To obtain the necessary information, simply call or write: Surplus Sales, Federal Supply Service Bureau, U. S. General Services Administration, 819 Taylor St., Fort Worth, Texas 76102.

State sanctions promotional goods

"Buy Official." That is the phrase you will hear often as the Texas Sesquicentennial celebration shifts into high gear in 1986.

"The Texas Sesquicentennial Commission has officially sanctioned more than 70 commemorative and promotional products to be sold during the Sesquicentennial celebration," says Lynn Nabers, the commission's executive director.

"Texas earns a royalty from the sale of these products, royalties that go to support tourism, the arts and activities associated with the Sesquicentennial," Nabers said. "So look for the official logo on products before you buy. You'll be helping Texas when you do."

"Buy Official" public service announcements have been produced and distributed to the 650 television and radio stations in the state.

With more than 7,000 events scheduled in the 254 counties of Texas during 1986, Nabers indicated that some manufacturers may claim, overtly or implicitly, to have a product sanction that does not exist.

"The Attorney General's office is prepared to move swiftly against counterfeit operations and level fines amounting to $5,000 per day for violations," Nabers added.

If the cone you are using for an after-school snack has a hole in the bottom, push a piece of banana down in the base before scooping the ice cream.

Stamford Electric sets annual meet

Election of three directors to fill expiring terms will highlight the 47th annual meeting Saturday of the Stamford Electric Cooperative. The meeting will be in the Stamford High School auditorium.

The cooperative, a rural electric distribution facility, furnishes electrical energy to parts of six counties, including Haskell, Jones, Fisher, Shackelford, Stonewall and Throckmorton. The cooperative serves more than 6,000 meters and has over 2,300 miles of line, says general manager Jerry Terrell.

Saturday's meeting will begin with a barbecue at 5 p.m. for members and invited guests. A business meeting will follow at 6:30 p.m., said President John E. Youngquist.

Terms of three directors are expiring. Leroy Lundgren of the Ericksdahl community and Robert L. (Bobby) Reves, Jr., of the Berryhill community have been nominated for Place 1. Nominees for Place 2 are incumbent Carl Thompson, who lives south of Anson, and Leon Blankenship of the Union community. Incumbent Sam Turner and John Pike, both of whom live near Rule, have been nominated for Place 3.

For the 17th time, The Round-Up Boys will provide musical entertainment for the annual meeting.

ABOUT YOUR CHILD

by Kathie Boatman, B.S., M.E.
Certified L.L.d, M.R., Ed. Diagn.

IS YOUR CHILD FAILING ONE OR MORE SCHOOL SUBJECTS?

In our rapidly moving and changing society, it is only natural that school is progressing in giant strides. Children are expected to learn more at an earlier age than when we were in school. The importance of education is so apparent in today's world, that children are feeling a great deal of pressure. Sometimes, this pressure may come from parents, teachers, or peers, but more frequently, it is a pressure that the child feels and places upon himself. Even the extremely bright child can feel this way.

And a vicious cycle begins. Pressure leads to anxiety—anxiety leads to one bad grade—one bad grade leads to a lack of confidence—a lack of confidence leads to more pressure, more anxiety—more pressure, more anxiety leads to more bad grades—and soon frustration becomes another part of the vicious cycle, and the cycle produces failure, and the child falls further behind regardless of his aspirations and true abilities.

Let's break the cycle! Give your child the opportunity to find out that a problem in school does not mean that you are "dumb", "stupid", "spoiled", or "lazy". Give your child a chance to re-new his confidence in himself and his abilities. Sad but true, most parents have trouble "working with" their child on school-related matters.

Let me help you and your child. I have 16 years of teaching experience. I have the necessary qualifications and certifications. More important, I have developed a program that is child-proof. Children, little or big, enjoy their classes and results are proven by grade improvement, test scores, and observable behavior.

Why wait? At one time or another, nearly everyone needs a little help and support in school. For more details or information, please call, come by, or write:

Houston LIVESTOCK SHOW CALF SCRAMBLE 3/1N

BIG WINNER

Haskell FFA member Jerry Davis receives a round trip ticket for himself and his parents to any Continental Airlines destination from the airlines' Ray Dickens for his efforts in wrestling a calf across the finish line in the calf scramble at the Houston Livestock Show. He also received a $600 calf purchase certificate from Danaco, one of the sponsors of the event.

Two win in calf scramble event

Two FFA members from Haskell came out winners in the calf scramble at the recent Houston Livestock Show.

Jerry Davis and James Bradley Bevel each captured a calf to become winners in the scramble.

For winning, both Davis and Bevel received $600 calf purchase certificates to buy a registered beef or dairy heifer to be fed, fit, groomed and brought back to the 1987 Houston Livestock Show for special showing competition.

In addition, Davis will receive a free round trip for himself and his parents from Continental Airlines to any Continental destination in the United States, Mexico or Canada in recognition of his efforts in wrestling his calf across the finish line.

The calf scramble event involves 28 youngsters chasing half as many calves on the floor of the Houston Astrodome. Contestants are required to catch a calf, halter it, and drag it across the finish line in order to win.

Those winning $600 purchase certificates are required to keep accurate records of their animals and to submit monthly progress reports to both the Houston Livestock Show and to their individual sponsor throughout the following year.

The entire project is supervised by the winner's vocational agriculture teacher or county extension agent. The project officially ends when the winner brings the animal to the following year's Houston Livestock Show.

With support from numerous sponsors, the Houston Livestock Show has put more than 10,000 quality animals valued at more than $2 million into the hands of Texas youth.

A research study conducted by two Stephen F. Austin State University professors reports that through the purchase of feed and supplies, as well as the purchase of calves from purebred herds, the calf scramble program generates more than a half million dollars in economic activity each year throughout the state.

SCRAMBLE WINNER

Brad Bevel is flanked by his ag teacher, James Bevel, left, and Mary Francis and Robbie Robertson of Longhorn Machine Works after he won a $600 calf purchase certificate in the calf scramble at the Houston Livestock Show. The award was sponsored by Longhorn Machine Works.

In 1895 the bell was given to Cuero Fire Department, then in 1939 was returned to the tower of St. Mark's Church, where it still rings today.

Heart attack signals important to know

Knowing the early signals of a heart attack and how to help a possible heart attack victim are important. The most common symptom experienced by heart attack victims is chest pain, but this can differ among individuals. Most often the pain is in the midchest; sometimes it radiates to the neck or left shoulder or goes down the left arm. Victims often experience weakness and shortness of breath. A patient acutely ill with a heart attack will appear pale and cool, but may be sweating profusely.

If some one around you experiences heart attack symptoms, you can best help—possible save a life—if you know several things: 1) the fastest route to a hospital equipped to handle heart attack emergencies; 2) how to do CPR; and 3) how quickly to call a doctor, the hospital and/or an ambulance.

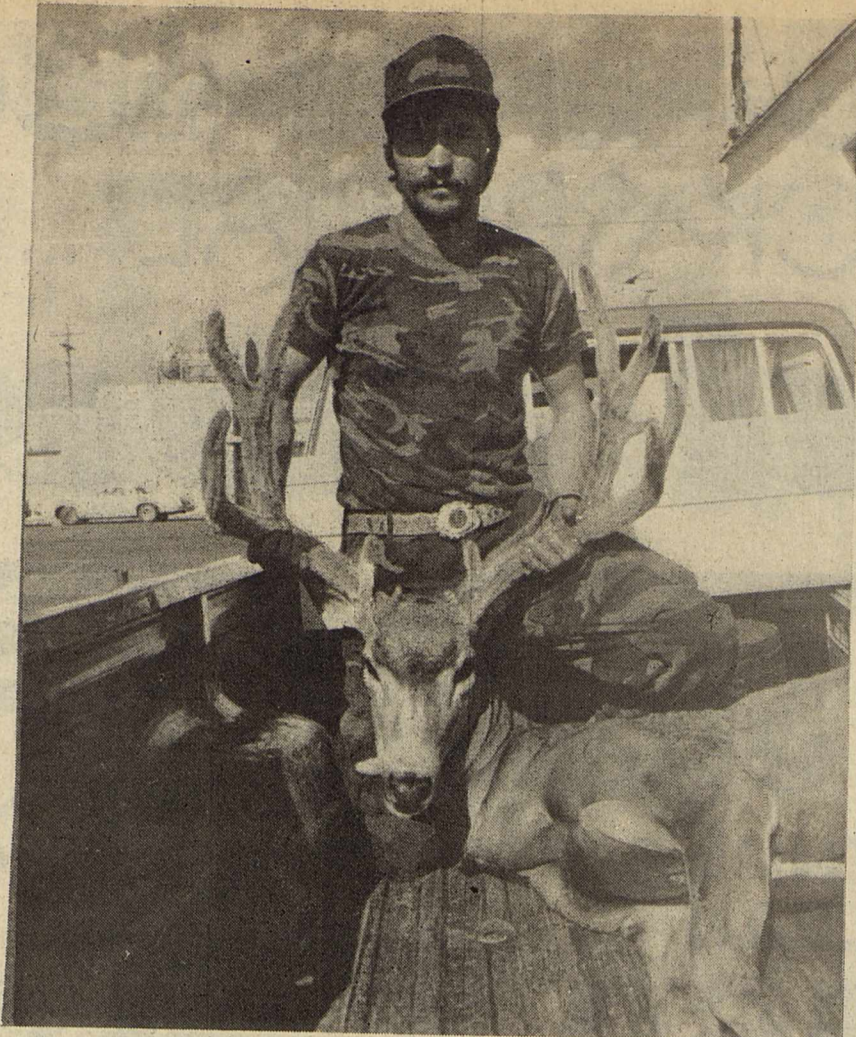

CPT is a technique that can keep a heart attack victim alive until an ambulance and medical treatment is available. It can be learned in only two or three hours and requires only minimal practice thereafter. In your own area, you can find out where CPR instruction is available through your local American Red Cross chapter.

Gramm calls for implementation of new farm bill

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm has urged the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture to implement the 1985 farm bill as rapidly as possible to benefit Texas farmers.

"Time is of extreme importance to many farmers in Texas and I urge the department complete implementation as soon as possible."

BAGS DEER

Rich Brazell of Vernal was able to down a deer on Taylor Mountain on the last day of the recent archery season. The buck had three points on one side and five on the other. Brazell, a biologist for the Forest Service, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Brazell of Paint Creek.

Booklet gives guide to government acts

In most cases, you can get information from the federal government simply by writing to the right agency. But sometimes the agencies are not willing to give out the information you need.

In that case, you must make your request under the Freedom of Information Act. This law allows you access to most agency records, with certain exceptions. And another law, the Privacy Act, allows you to learn what the government has on file about you.

You can learn how to use these acts to your benefit by sending for a copy of the booklet, "Your Right to Federal Records." Published by the U. S. General Services Administration in cooperation with the Department of Justice, "Your Right to Federal Records" provides questions and answers about how to use each act, and describes the exceptions where information does not have to be released. It also includes the text of the Freedom of Information Act.

For your copy of "Your Right to Federal Records," send 50 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 452P, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

TAX PLANNING

Written By
Gerald Rodgers, CPA

SOME IRA TIPS

Individual Retirement Accounts are becoming increasingly popular as a way to shelter some income from taxation while building funds for retirement. Here are some facts that may be helpful.

- Your 1985 IRA contribution cannot be made any later than April 15, 1986. You can no longer get an extension for making your contribution simply by extending the filing date for your income tax return.
- There is no minimum IRA contribution requirement; the maximum contribution is $2,000 per year. You can skip a contribution for any year if you wish, but you cannot make up missed contributions in future years.
- Pay the trustee's fee separately and not out of your IRA funds. You can then take the fee as a miscellaneous itemized tax deduction and leave more money to grow tax-free in your retirement account.
- You can't contribute to your IRA after you reach age 70½. But if you have a non-working spouse under 70½, you can make a contribution of up to $2,000 to his or her IRA.
- Alimony payments are considered earned income for purposes of determining allowable IRA contributions.
- Advisors sometimes suggest that you borrow money to make an IRA contribution if you don't have the cash. Before doing so, compare the yield in your IRA and the borrowing rate. Also, give thought to whether you'll have funds later in the year to repay the loan. If you won't have, don't borrow.

Promotions increase consumption of cotton

At a time when domestic mill use of cotton is already up a whopping one million bales over last year's projections, Cotton Incorporated is urging growers to continue to go after "the hearts, minds and pocketbooks" of consumers.

"Cotton is on a roll," said Cotton Incorporated President Bob Boslet. With industry observers linking Cotton Incorporated in part to the dramatic increase in domestic mill use (an estimated 6.4 million bales compared to USDA's first projection in May of 5 million bales for the 1985-86 crop), the need for aggressive research and promotion is urgent, he said. "It's working for cotton."

Kevin McDermott, director of market research, Calcot Ltd., said the amount of cotton moving on the cotton system (the spindles that can spin cotton) has gone from 57 percent in 1981 to nearly 65 percent today.

"Annually, this eight percent increase results in an additional 800,000 bales of U.S. cotton being consumed each year. The reason is favorable cotton prices relative to synthetics and Cotton Incorporated. We have to give CI and their promotion credit for this long-term gain."

Domestic use is expected to continue to increase, however exports are expected to be down.

Boslet's comments came during Cotton Incorporated's annual report held in January in Las Vegas during the Beltwide Cotton Conference and the Southern/Southeastern Cotton Ginners Conference in Williamsburg, VA.

"For the first nine months of 1985, cotton's share of all fibers (excluding carpet) was 43 percent, compared to 40 percent in 1984 and 34 percent in 1975," he said.

"Using current prices and deducting imports of products made of foreign cotton, we estimate one percentage point to be worth $35 million to growers. With a three point gain in our share, that means our 1985 budget of $18 million delivered to growers nearly $6 for each $1 assessment—in new business."

Boslet said 1985's gain also helped protect past gains in market share—worth around $350 million in 1985 alone.

Highlights of the report included the development of durable press all-cotton slacks, the growth of cotton in bed sheets and the success of cotton's national television advertising.

"In the early 1970's, it was nearly impossible to find a popularly priced cotton product. Today, there are shirts and sheets, socks and jeans; sweaters and underwear—100 percent cotton and Natural Blend—from K Mart to Saks Fifth Avenue, from coast to coast," said Cotton Incorporated Chairman Jake Stephens, a grower from Litchfield Park, Ariz.

George Todor, senior vice president for marketing, said several companies are now offering durable press all-cotton slacks. He also reported on victories in home furnishings.

"Value added, no-iron all-cotton and Natural Blend sheets continue to be introduced by all major mills. This is a major trend in the sheet market, which consumes over 800,000 bales of fiber annually."

"In 1977, we only had one all-cotton sheet, and you had to iron it. Today, there are 26 all-cotton and Natural Blend sheets on the market," added Boslet.

With a limited advertising budget, Cotton Incorporated is targeting its television commercials to certain sales periods—such as white sales and back-to-school, said Tom Akeson, senior director of marketing services.

"We're directing the ads towards the baby boomer generation, particularly women. Our ads will appear on news programs such as the Today Show and soap operas such as General Hospital."

Backaches common American ailment

An aching back has been called the great American pain because so many people are affected each year. Backaches are one of the most common causes of work days lost through illness, says the Texas Medical Association.

The vast majority of backaches are often called "non-specific" because they have no obvious causes. There are also no obvious, easy cures. Most non-specific backaches are probably due to a strained ligament that causes surrounding muscles to go into painful spasm. Some people, however, tend to develop back pain when they are under stress, just as other people commonly develop tension headaches.

Although a non-specific backache is often very painful, there is virtually no risk of complications. Such backaches generally heal without treatment, but unfortunately they also tend to recur.

There are several things you can do to protect your back and lessen your chances of backache. When lifting heavy objects, keep your back straight; bend your knees and let your legs do the work. Avoid high heels; they force your stance into an unnatural position that strains your back. Select a firm, high-backed chair whenever you sit and use a cushion to support the small of your back. Sleep on a fairly hard bed and use a relatively flat pillow or none at all. If you are overweight, try to lose weight. It strains your back to carry extra weight.

If you do get a backache, there are measures you can take to ease pain and speed healing. Take simple painkillers such as aspirin or aspirin substitutes as instructed on the package. Apply heat to the painful area to ease discomfort. Lie flat on your back for as long as you can on a bed with fairly hard mattress. It may help to put a pillow under your knees.

If your backache persists for more than three or four days despite these measures, consult your physician.

Weed population should be heavy

Texas ranchers can expect to see heavy weed populations on rangelands in 1986.

Weeds were plentiful last year following the drought of 1984 which reduced competition from grass cover points out Dr. Tommy Welch with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University system, and good rains last fall should get weeds off to a fast start in 1986.

"Many winter annuals have germinated and are currently in the rosette stage," notes Welch, a range brush and weed control specialist. "Among these is annual or common broomweed, one of the most common weed problems in Texas. Another weed that infests many acres in western ragweed, a perennial. Both of these plants can be controlled easily with herbicides. "Controlling weeds with herbicides is a practice that will produce substantial returns for cattlemen," says Welch. "Dense weeds will significantly reduce production of desirable forage on rangeland. In addition, a heavy weed infestation will cause considerable livestock losses."

However, Welch points out that with the exception of poisonous weeds such as bitterweed, sheep and goat raisers may not want to control weeds since they are important part of sheep and goat diets.

Weed research and weed control result demonstrations have shown that grass production will increase when unwanted broadleaf plants are controlled, the specialist emphasizes. Generally, a pound of grass has been produced for every pound of weeds controlled. An increase in grass production of 750 pounds per acre will pay for a herbicide application.

If a weed problem is identified early in the season, herbicides may be applied to provide efficient and economical control, says Welch. He encourages ranchers to check rangeland for weed infestations in January and February.

"Most troublesome annual weeds and western ragweed are easy to control if a herbicide is applied at the proper time and growth conditions," Welch points out. "Weeds such as annual or common broomweed, camphorweed, bitter sneezeweed and western ragweed are easily controlled with 2,4-D when plants are small and growth conditions are good."

Herbicide mixtures are available for plants that are more difficult to control, especially many of the perennial poisonous plants. These mixtures include the commercial formulations Weedmaster (1:3 mixture of dicamba and 2,4-D) and Grazon P+D (1:4 mixture of picloram and 2,4-D). Banvel (dicamba) and Grazon PC (picloram) may be tank mixed with 2,4-D at the same 1:4 ratio.

"Proper grazing management combined with weed control will help improve grass cover," Welch points out. "And good grass cover on rangeland will reduce the potential for future weed problems. Weed control is a practice that will provide both short-term and long-term returns when used properly."

As long ago as 1801, giant cheeses have been presented to U.S. presidents. The cheese given to President Jefferson that year was made on the village green by the townspeople of Cheshire, Massachusetts. President Andrew Jackson received 2,000-pound wheels of cheese regularly from a cooperative in the state of New York.

Vietnam vets eligible for assistance

According to C. H. Herren, Veterans Service Officer for Haskell County, Vietnam era veterans are still eligible to receive Veterans Readjustment Appointments (VRA) with any Federal government agency that has openings for employment.

This is a noncompetitive appointment to Federal employment given to Vietnam era veterans who agree to participate in a training and/or educational program while working. Appointments are made only for veterans of the Vietnam era from Aug. 5, 1964, to May 7, 1975, and who were discharged or released from service under other than dishonorable conditions.

Eligible for the appointment is the veteran who has completed no more than 14 years of education (no more than two years beyond the high school level) and who agrees to take an approved course of education or training while working.

Eligible veterans being appointed to jobs at grades, 1, 2 and 3 will not be required to take written tests. For jobs at grade 4 or higher, the veteran will be required to meet the minimum qualifications which may include taking a written test.

VRA appointments may be made by any Federal agency, so an interested veteran may contact the personnel office of the agency where he may desire to work. Complete information can be obtained through such contact.

Ford Parker offers view of early history

Almost every Texas school child has heard the story of Cynthia Ann Parker, daughter of an early Texas settler, who was captured by the Indians and became the mother of Chief Quanah Parker.

A visit to Old Fort Parker, five miles south of Mexia on SH 14 makes that history come alive to the visitor.

In 1836, at the age of 9, Cynthia was captured by the Comanches who raided the fort. She lived with the Indians for 25 years, married Chief Pete Nocona and became the mother of Quanah Parker. She was recaptured by Capt. Sul Ross in the Texas Panhandle and held in captivity till her death in 1864.

Her son, Quanah Parker, originally fought the whites but later became friends with Col. Charles Goodnight and President Theodore Roosevelt. He and his mother are buried side-by-side in Oklahoma.

The completely reconstructed fort, with its high log walls and primitively furnished cabins, is a wonderful example of pioneer days in Texas. Cynthia's father, John Parker, is buried in the center of the fort's parade ground.

Escapee among most wanted

This is the same tune, second verse, for John DeWayne Christie.

Christie was selected for the Texas Most Wanted list back in November but was captured shortly before his story could be featured by media throughout the state.

Now he has been placed back on the fugitive list.

Christie and two other inmates at the Hopkins County Jail escaped from custody Jan. 30. One of the inmates was quickly captured.

However, Christie—who is wanted for the rape of a 14-year-old girl and the assault of the girl's mother—remains at large.

Hopkins County law enforcement officials say Christie, Milton Wilemon and James Corley escaped sometime around 10 and 11 p.m. Jan. 30. They theorize that Wilemon, who was a jail trustee, obtained a key and then unlocked an outside door to allow the inmates to escape.

Corley, 27, who was being held on charges of possession of a prohibited weapon, possessions of a controlled substance and felony theft of property, was arrested a short time later.

Wilemon, 21, who had been jailed on burglary charges and violation of parole, has eluded capture along with Christie.

Officials do not believe that Christie and Wilemon are still together.

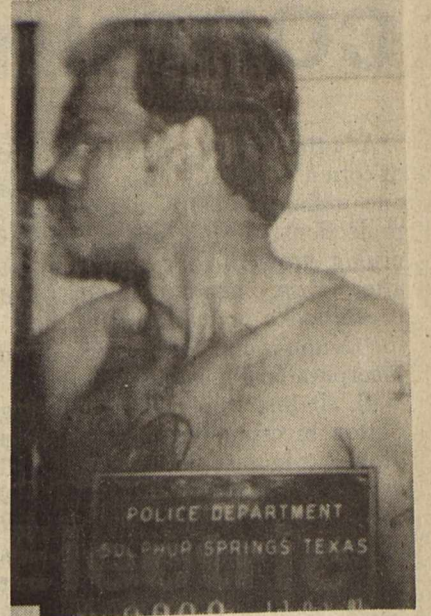

Christie, 33, was arrested at a Rockwall truck stop on Nov. 21, 1985, on warrants stemming from the sexual assault of a 14-year-old Sulphur Springs girl on Sept. 1.

He had been scheduled to stand trial early this month.

Police reports indicate the 14-year-old victim of the sexual assault was attacked by an intruder armed with a butcher knife.

However, the intruder ran into more than he bargained when he tried to attack the girl's mother. She bit the intruder on the neck and forced him to flee the house.

The September incident was not the first time that Christie had run afoul of the law. He had two prior convictions for sexually related offenses and had served time in the Texas Department of Corrections for indecency with a child.

Christie is a white male, 6-0, 170 pounds, with a light complexion, brown hair and brown eyes. He has a number of tattoos over his body, including a three-leaf clover on his left arm and a butterfly on his chest.

In addition to the aggravated sexual assault, assault and burglary charges he faced from the September incident, Christie now also faces escape charges.

A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by the Governor's office for information leading to Christie's recapture.

Anyone with knowledge of his possible whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Social Security changes processes

A new Social Security continuing review process is beginning, according to Glyn Hammons, Social Security manager in Abilene. The old process stopped in April 1984 while new rules were developed.

"The Social Security Disability Benefits Reform Act of 1984 and later regulations will make the process more effective, fair and easily understood," Hammons said. "Cases will be carefully and completely developed, and decisions to stop benefits will be well supported and uniform at all levels nationwide."

Hammons said that the biggest change is the new medical improvement review standard. "Benefits generally will continue unless there is substantial evidence of both medical improvement and ability to work. Before, only ability to work had to be shown."

There are some limited exceptions where benefits may stop without medical improvement, but they will apply in relatively few cases. For example, entitlement can end if a person is gainfully employed or has clearly benefited from medical advances or vocational therapy related to ability to work.

Another important change provides revised rules for more realistically judging a mentally impaired person's ability to work.

A beneficiary who appeals a decision that he or she is no longer disabled can have checks continue through a decision by an administrative law judge. If the appeal is unsuccessful, though, benefits must be repaid unless a waiver is granted.

The law requires that everyone who receives disability benefits be reviewed regularly.

Haskell area citizens who want to know more about disability reviews should contact the Abilene office at 142 South Pioneer, phone 698-1360.

DON' WAIT!

Let's go on a walking tour. We'll go through two homes "for sale" in the same neighborhood, priced exactly the same, of the same size. In fact, they are identical - except for a few minor things.

As we walk through the first house, you notice that it contains an attractive shade of new medium grade carpeting (Which also smells new). The walls have just been given a fresh coat of ivory/white paint. The windows and doors have also been painted, and they sparkle with "pride of ownership."

Next comes your tour of the second house. It becomes apparent, as soon as your feet touch the floor, that the carpeting is badly worn and in need of replacement. The walls and woodwork also cry out for attention, and the windows are in need of caulking. As you leave, the owners explain that a substantial decorating allowance is being offered to the purchasers of the home. Colorful carpet samples and swatches of paint are displayed proudly by the owners who say they will install new carpeting and spare no expense in painting and caulking the house.

If you were ready to buy, which home would you choose? Most likely your answer was House #1. Most buyers would feel the same way, and it points out an important selling tip: Always complete all fix-up, paint-up, replacement work before you try to sell.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give us a call at 864-2665 or come by our office located at 417 S. 1st.

Percentages of Cash Receipts by Commodity Groups in Texas, 1985.

Texas farm income takes dip

Texas farmers sold about the same level of agricultural commodities in 1985 as a year earlier, but net income continued to decline.

Cash receipts from the sale of farm and ranch products totaled about $10.1 billion last year, according to estimates by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of Texas A&M University. At the same time, net income dropped to about $1.4 billion, down from just over $2 billion in 1984.

While the level of cash receipts has been fairly steady over the past five years, net farm income for 1985 is estimated to be the lowest since 1980.

"Large crop and livestock supplies and reduced exports again resulted in low prices to farmers and ranchers during 1985," points out Dr. Carl Anderson, extension service economist. "At the same time, costs of energy, chemicals, interest and other production inputs remained high and pushed farm income lower."

Good yields resulting from favorable weather conditions boosted cash receipts from crops in 1985 while a weak market hurt the livestock industry, notes Anderson. Receipts from greenhouse and nursery stock, fruits and nuts, and agriculturally related enterprises such as outdoor recreation and hunting posted sizeable gains.

Estimated 1985 cash receipts from major commodities were as follows:

Beef cattle, $4.4 billion; cotton and cottonseed, $977.22 million; poultry, $548 million; dairy, $530 million; wheat, $528.5 million; sorghum, $447.7 million; vegetables, $412.9 million; related income (horses, fish farming, hunting leases and recreation), $409.9 million; nursery, $400 million; corn, $332.6 million; forestry, $225 million; sheep and goats, $189.5 million; rice $144 million; peanuts, $108 million; swine, $75.3 million; soybeans $50.1 million; pecans, $36 million; peaches and plums, $11.2 million; and citrus, $4.2 million.

Texas is expected to rank second among states in cash receipts in 1985 as it did in 1984, notes Anderson. It ranks first in sales of cattle and calves, sheep and wool, goats and mohair, cotton, cabbage, spinach, value of farm real estate, number of farms and ranches, and farm and ranch acreage."

"With a strong livestock and crop base, the future for Texas agriculture is favorable when compared to other states," Anderson emphasizes.

"Agriculture is one of the most important industries in Texas as it provides jobs for more than 20 percent of the state's work force. Including all agribusiness phases, agricultural production added some $32 billion in economic activity to the state in 1985." "The potential for Texas agriculture remains strong," adds the economist. "Major efforts by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, both agencies of the Texas A&M system, support the development of the state's agricultural industry to its greatest potential. Agriculture in Texas enjoys a relatively warm climate, productive soils, and excellent export and transportation facilities."

TFU president blasts budget

Texas farmers will have to tighten their belts another notch if Reagan's proposed 18 percent cut in the Agricultural Department's budget is approved in his national budget proposals for 1987, says the president of Texas Farmers Union.

"The administration is going to try to pay for their defense increase by taking funds from agriculture programs, which is at the bottom of the priority list," said Joe Rankin, president of the Texas Farmers Union.
