Robert Lee Swelters Under 100 Degree Temperatures

Robert Lee has joined the rest of West Texas the past couple of weeks in an effort to make it through an unusually long and unusually hot spell. Temperatures have climbed to or beyond the 100 degree mark every day for more than two weeks, causing lots of discomfort, losses to farmers and ranchmen and problems for water department.

Long range forecasts are not very optimistic about any immediate let-up in the dry and torrid weather. Seems pressure areas, fronts, and other factors which determine the weather just aren't right for a break in the heat and drouth conditions.

The City of Robert Lee

Water Situation Slightly Better

The water problems of Robert Lee are a little better this week, according to city water man Gary Williams. He said the situation "has improved a little, but there is still plenty of room for further conservation of water by Robert Lee users."

The city council decided several weeks ago that an every-other-day watering plan would relieve the strain on the filtering plant sufficiently to keep everything going.

Williams said the plan has worked to some extent and water usage is down a little. He noted, however, that the continued dry weather, along with 100-plus temperatures over the past week or more, have continued to drain out just about all the water he can pump into the mains.

Williams said, "If this dry hot weather keeps up, we're going to need some more help". He urged everyone not to waste water and to water lawns, gardens, etc., only on the days assigned.

City officials said the filter plant was designed to handle 600,000 gallons daily, but usage has been running more than that amount, keeping storage facilities low.

has no problem of not having enough water, but there is a problem at the filtering plant where the equipment has a hard time keeping up with the amount of water being used.

Farmers and ranchmen are complaining about their crops and pastures drying up, and have an additional problem of providing water for their livestock.

Meanwhile, citizens of the area are staying indoors with their air conditioners as much as possible, and helping West Texas Utilities Co. reach new highs in the amount of electricity used each day. A spokesman for WTU said the usage is at a new high but the plants have not yet been required to produce to their maximum capacity.

"A good wet cool northern is what we need," one local citizen remarked.

Fire Destroys Sparks Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sparks was completely destroyed by fire on June 30. The structure was burned to the ground when the Robert Lee Fire Dept. arrived. The home was located 14 miles west of Robert Lee and three miles off the Sterling City highway.

Mrs. Sparks and her daughter were at home by themselves when the fire was discovered. They had no telephone and were without transportation, and had to walk to the highway before they could get help.

Fire Chief Gary Williams said the house was "burned to the ground when we got there". All the contents, including furniture and personal property, was destroyed. Mrs. Sparks said the whole attic seemed to be burning when the fire was discovered.

Williams said he could not definitely say what caused the fire, but it was presumed it was caused by faulty wiring in the attic.

HOW TO PREPARE AN AIR CONDITIONER FOR SUMMER

If you're like most of us, the first time you tested your air conditioner for the summer was the day it got hot. What happens if it didn't work, you probably (1) called for a service technician, (2) went out to buy a new one, or (3) suffered. Service technicians, of course, are very busy because of all the other calls they get this time of year. And the stores are often jammed.

Even if your air conditioner did work, it might work a lot more efficiently with a little help from you.

Follow a simple checklist so you can get the most from your air conditioner this summer.

-- Trim Bushes, shrubs. Free air circulation around the air conditioner is essential to good, efficient performance.

-- Check filter. Just as bushes can restrict air flow on the outside, a dirty filter can restrict it on the inside. Be sure to clean the filter and check it about once a month for the entire cooling season.

-- Check coils, inside and out. Dirt accumulation on the coils tends to reduce efficiency. Such accumulation is most likely to occur on the outside coils. If cleaning is indicated, you'll probably need the help of a professional who can steam clean the coils.

-- Check the Power Cord It's just plain common sense to check the power cord for peeling or cracked insulation.

However, if you doubt that the air conditioner will make it through the summer due to old age, start shopping for a new one soon. If you do decide to replace your old air conditioner with a new one, we suggest that you consider one of a bit smaller capacity than the old unit. Not only could it help keep down the initial purchase price, a smaller unit likely would cost less to operate and may do a better comfort job than a unit that is somewhat oversized.

Specialists explain that an air conditioner does two things to make a room cool and comfortable. It cools and it dehumidifies. A unit too large for a particular room will cool the room quickly, then the compressor will cycle off. Since dehumidification occurs only while the compressor is operating, an oversized unit may not dehumidify sufficiently.

A slightly undersized unit, on the other hand, will operate the compressor more of the time, and thereby control humidity more effectively. In the past, the capacity of many room air conditioners was determined by estimating the size of the area to be cooled, and then adding a bit for good measure. The result is that many units in service today are larger than necessary.

Added to that is the recent trend to insulation and weather stripping, brought on by the increasing cost of heating. The same insulation that helps keep a house warm in the winter will help keep it cool in the summer therefore reducing the load on the air conditioner.

Eagles mate for life and return to the same nest every year.

 lowship of Christian Athletes, Sunday school class student and senior class officer. He has also been awarded class favorite, Danforth "I Dare You" award, Most Talented and highest ranking boy in senior class.

Richard, who plans to major in animal science, was one of 50 recipients of Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo scholarships presented at the state FFA convention.

The Show, which also presented 50 four-year, $6,000 scholarships to 4-H Club members during the State 4-H Roundup in June, this year became the largest donor of agricultural scholarships in the United States. During the coming school year, the show will have 245 students, representing a commitment of $1.24 million, on scholarship in Texas colleges and universities.

The winners, carefully selected from hundreds of applicants, are the best in the state from the standpoints of academics and leadership. The only requirements made of the students are that they major in some form of agriculture at a college or university within the confines of the state.

While the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo makes available the funds for the scholarships, it does not select the winners. The evaluation of applicants and final selection of FFA winners is carried out by the appropriate personnel of the Texas Education Agency.

In presenting the scholarships, Show President Allen H. Carruth said that the presentation of each scholarship is far more than just a gesture of good will.

"The scholarship program is a direct result of the show's concern for youth and its strong commitment to agriculture. The presentation of each scholarship is an assurance that an outstanding youngster will get the chance to earn a college degree and to work in the field of agriculture.

First Screwworm Case for County

Coke County producers reported their first screwworm cases of 1978 during the past week. The first case was submitted by Finis Millican. The case was taken from a cow near the old city lake east of Robert Lee.

Raymond Bloodworth submitted the second case from near Silver.

All producers are encouraged to check their stock and submit samples of all worms cases that are found. The Mission officials must confirm a case before sterile flies will be dropped on a suspect area.

We hope rain will come soon. But the screwworm situation could worsen if one or more cases are not found and reported if wetter weather is received.

We have received a number of calls about prussic acid poisoning during the past couple of weeks. The reports coming from Coleman and Brown Counties, where numerous cases have been reported, have many producers in this area worried since we have similar growing conditions. Generally speaking, however, we have escaped the prussic acid problem up to this point.

Anytime a sorghum grain plant is stressed, technically speaking, prussic acid could be formed. But, fortunately, only certain plants under certain conditions seem to be bad about manufacturing prussic acid. Should we receive some rain, we can expect to see an acid build up in some of the Johnson Grass, Sudan Grass of Sorghum-Sudan Hybrid Grasses.

There are a few situations that bear watching should we receive some rain. They are as follows:

1. Immediately after the rain if the rain comes in the heat of the day and/or the plants were suffering prior to the rain. The combination of moisture plus the cooler temperature seems to be a prime time for acid formation.

2. Any new growth from stressed plants following rain.

3. Plants that look alright at night or early in the morning, then wilt down during the afternoon heat - particularly young plants up to 18 inches in height.

4. Regrowth following mowing, particularly where moisture is short and regrowth is difficult.

5. Plants just inside the field gate where you may have run over the end of the rows with your pickup and regrowth starts or the plants that are bruised from some cause.

There are other conditions that may cause a plant to form prussic acid, but we have mentioned the more common ones.

As you know, prussic acid poisoning can and usually does kill animals rapidly. Actually, the poisoned animal suffocates. If an antidote material can be administered immediately an animal can be saved. But, like cyanide poisoning, when the oxygen in the system is cut off, death occurs fairly rapidly.

If you plan to graze a field of Sorghum, Johnson Grass of Sudan that has stressed it would be wise to take some precautions. First, turn the animals in the field on a full stomach. An animal full of hay will be less affected by the plant material that may be toxic. Secondly, purchase a bottle of the antidote from your veterinarian. You may be able to save an animal that has been poisoned. A third measure would be to watch your animals for an hour or two after you place them in the field.

Should we receive moisture and regrowth occurs, normally the toxic period will last from 10 days to two weeks.

Two common beliefs we have heard mentioned have no bearing on prussic acid formation and/or toxicity. The first one is that animals that have been in a field will have resistance to prussic acid. This is not necessarily true. That animal can still receive a lethal dose of acid. The second belief we have heard is that Sorghum or Johnson Grass with white powder material on the leaves will be more dangerous. The whitish powder has no connection with acid formation. Stress and regrowth following stress are the major factors that contribute to prussic acid formation.

The collected bones of a 160-pound man weigh only 29 pounds.

SHEILA ROBERTS IS HONORED AT BRIDAL SHOWER

Sheila Roberts, bride-elect of Robert Hammerton, was honored with a bridal coffee, Saturday morning at the Robert Lee Baptist Church.

Each was wearing a corsage of yellow daisies with mint green ribbons representing the bride-elect's flowers and colors.

The gifts were displayed in the fellowship hall in a wedding atmosphere. Refreshments were served in the church yard under a covered walkway. From the serving table covered with a yellow and white checked gingham tablecloth were served sausage balls, cheese-olive balls, banana-nut and squash cake squares, a fresh watermelon bowl filled with melon balls, pineapple, bananas, strawberries, and green seedless grapes. Daisies and ivy around the melon base served as the centerpiece. A choice of fresh orange juice or coffee-punch was served from a wooden serving cart. To complete the setting were hanging baskets of fern, large pots of ivy and a large yellow and white pot of yellow daisies. Guests were served and then seated under the large tree in the church yard.

Fifty-nine guests registered. Hostesses were Bobbie Allen, Donna Ash, Edna Havins, Joan Davis, Laura Herford, Pam Bauerlein, Mary Beth Drennan, Margaret Epperson, Mary Bessent, Dean Percifull, Nancy Rasco, Karen Rasco, Melinda Strickland, Zola Hatley, Joann Runnion, Opal Jacoby, Joydell Deen, Gene Quisenberry, Frankie Hood, Nell Hines and Geneva Cook of Winters.

"Ole Coke County" Pageant Being Rehearsed for Showing July 28-29

Rehearsals and other plans for the presentation of "OLE COKE COUNTY, Home of the Rabbit Twisters" are going ahead at full speed as the cast and other workers prepare for the presentation of the production Friday and Saturday, July 28 and 29.

Lucile Bryan, author and director of the pageant, said that memberships in the Coke County Pageant Association, Inc., are still available and everyone in the county is invited to purchase a membership and support the project.

The play will be presented on the two nights in the new amphitheatre located in the Robert Lee County Park. The amphitheatre has GRASS INCREASED--Forage production has been increased tremendously in the pasture to the left of the fence. Brush has been controlled and improved grasses have been seeded. The pasture received periodic rest periods and proper grazing to maintain the stand.

Brush Control Very Important Part Of Range Improvement Program

Heavy infestations of brush has long been a problem for ranchers. This problem can be traced back to the abuse and heavy use of our rangeland beginning when man first settled this region. According to records at the experiment station near Sonora, early settlers in the region were stocking at a rate of one animal unit to every five acres. Over use of the palatable forage plants resulted in vacancies in the plant cover. These vacancies provide invading plants a foothold. With continual abuse of the land and left untreated, these invading plants will completely infest rangeland.

Not only are most invading plants of little grazing value, but also inefficient moisture users. While grass uses 400-600 lbs. of water to produce 1 lb. of grass, it requires 1700-1900 lbs. of water to produce 1 lb. of mesquite. Brush uses 146 million acre feet of water annually or 40% of the state's water usage.

Ways of controlling these invading plants can be done in several different methods, depending on the ones which most suit the situation. Rootplowing, grubbing, chaining, and aerial spraying are some of the most common methods used to combat this problem. These are only effective if the rancher follows up with proper management practices, such as proper grazing use and deferred grazing. Information concerning these practices can be picked up at the Soil Conservation Service, Coke County Courthouse.

Governor Wants to Cut School Taxes

Governor Dolph Briscoe this week said he is very interested in a proposal which could effectively reduce property taxes levied by Texas school districts. The proposal, as put forth by Representatives Jim Nugent of Kerrville and Lynn Nabers of Brownwood would dedicate one-fourth of the revenue from the State's general sales and use tax to reduce school ad valorem taxes throughout the state. "The Legislature currently is meeting in a special session to consider legislation and proposed constitutional amendments which would return a portion of the current and projected state surplus to the people of Texas," Governor Briscoe said, "I am extremely interested in any proposal which could result in a lowering of property taxes and particularly those levied by our Texas school districts."

Nugent and Nabers have expressed hope for a hearing early this week on their proposal.

Nugent and Nabers explained that to be eligible to receive additional state funds, under their proposal, a school district must reduce the ad valorem taxes it levies for maintenance and operation purposes by $200 for each $220 it will receive. The maximum amount by which a school district would have to reduce its taxes would be 50 percent. The "new" state money, the two House members said, would be distributed to school districts on a per Average Daily Attendance (ADA) basis with the 1978 share being $220 per ADA.

"The existence of the surplus in the State Treasury and the projected surplus has to mean that the State is taking too much money from the pockets of Texas taxpayers. In our opinion it is time to return part of that money to the taxpayers and we think our approach is most equitable," Nugent and Nabers said.

Preliminary statistics show the proposal would have the following effect in Coke County:

| School District | Reduction in Property Tax | "New" State Funds |
|-----------------|---------------------------|-------------------|
| Bronte ISD | 24% | $6,349 |
| Robert Lee ISD | 15% | $5,883 |

"New" State Funds means the amount of additional state money to be received by a school district in excess of the amount the district currently is raising through ad valorem taxes for maintenance and operation purposes.

Vincent Named WTU Director

Dr. Lloyd D. Vincent, president of Angelo State University, has been named to the board of directors of West Texas Utilities Company.

His election was announced Friday morning in Abilene at a regular WTU board meeting, which was attended by Dr. Vincent.

He was presented by Durwood Chalker, president and chief executive officer of WTU, who said he was "immensely pleased" at having Dr. Vincent become a director.

Chalker told the board that Dr. Vincent has been "much more than just a college president; since he moved to San Angelo in 1967. He mentioned Dr. Vincent being chosen by the San Angelo Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development as Citizen of the Year in 1975 for "outstanding leadership and abilities so generously given to his community during the year."

"This means," Chalker said, "that WTU must share him with other good and worthy extracurricular affairs."

"The fact that most of Angelo State's student body comes from West Texas Utilities service area and that its campus is in one of the company's principal cities appeals to us," Chalker said, "but we were attracted to Dr. Vincent because of his own accomplishments."

Dr. Vincent holds three degrees, including the Ph.D. in nuclear physics, from the University of Texas at Austin. He taught physics at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, at Texas A&M University, and at Sam Houston State University before becoming president of Angelo State.

He also participates in numerous professional activities, and has held leading positions in educational organizations.

Dr. Vincent takes the place on the board formerly held by W.K. (Bill) Ramsey, who was WTU's district manager at San Angelo before retiring July 1.
