One case each is listed for evading arrest, theft by lodging, driving while license was suspended and unlawful possession of a prohibited weapon.

KRUEGER OF TEXAS

TEXAS FLOOD DISASTERS

WASHINGTON—When the news last week reached me that the Guadalupe River was flooding, my mind leapt back to the parched hillsides and drought conditions that I had seen in the Hill Country just three days before. And I thought back, as well, to my memories of the 1972 floods in New Braunfels when the Guadalupe rose 40 feet in our back yard, and extended for over a quarter of a mile from our back steps across the pecan bottom land that we usually look on from our home, for only the tops of those tall trees stood visible. Since the Guadalupe runs behind the back yard of the house in which I have lived since I was six years old, I have had ample opportunity to witness the sudden and sometimes devastating power with which it can rise. Even so, its strength and force are awesome when it floods.

Several counties in the Hill Country and West Texas went from drought disaster to flood disaster in a matter of hours. We know we are not likely to control that flux in nature, but we can as citizens work to help one another when disaster strikes our neighbors. We can do this as individuals and we can do it collectively through our government and its programs.

Upon learning that several Hill Country rivers had left their banks, I immediately went personally to Bandera, Kerr, and Kendall counties to see whether I could assist the people there. In particular, I wanted to assure that federal disaster assistance was promptly dispatched. And while I was on my way to these counties, I assigned three staff members from San Antonio, San Angelo, and Washington to stay in the three worst affected counties and to work with the county officials there to assist them in gaining the emergency federal relief, immediately following their being named as disaster areas by President Carter.

The stories of heroism, of lives lost, of terror amid fast rising water in the night have now been told by friends and through the news media. Even so, the loss felt by a businessman who has seen his entire inventory of over 100 cars destroyed by flood waters that washed them away, or by families whose few possessions disappeared into the flood waters of the night makes a harrowing tale. I witnessed one area in Bandera where, I was told, 40 houses had stood. It looked like an undeveloped subdivision that had never seen any building at all.

By now, my own staff members have returned to their offices, and federal officials have taken up their responsibilities in various counties to see that aid reaches the disaster areas. This aid includes temporary rent-free housing for up to one year for some families; low-interest, long-term loans for some businesses; food stamps and commodities for the needy; federal assistance for roads and public services for devastated communities. The flooded counties will need all of these services. The initial damage estimates run to several millions of dollars.

It is reassuring to know that "the big government" and "federal bureaucracy" that often are criticized can in fact respond swiftly. And it is reassuring to know that communities can again coalesce and work together as Bandera, Center Point, Comfort, Albany, Graham and other communities are doing.

Like many of the great cypress trees that withstood the swirling waters, these communities also have the strength to prosper for many future years.

Referendum Set For Sheepmen

Norm Rousselot of Sonora, president of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association, and George C. Taylor, president of the Texas Wool and Mohair Warehouse Association, are hitting the campaign trail to urge passage of the National Wool Referendum. Voting will take place Aug. 21 through Sept. 1, and ballots will be mailed to all sheep and lamb producers who received an incentive check in 1977 by the ASCS office.

The American Sheep Producers Council is funded by deductions from wool incentive checks received by sheep producers. Each time a new farm bill is passed, the secretary of agriculture is required to determine - by means of a national referendum - whether wool producers wish to continue the promotion deductions. The secretary establishes the time and rate to be voted on. The issue must pass by two-thirds of the producers voting. At the present time the deduction rate is 1½¢ per pound on wool and 7½¢ per 100 lbs. on unshorn lambs sold.

Because the 1978 farm bill had a substantial increase in the incentive payment, the secretary must conduct a referendum. Because of the increasing need for promotion and advertising for wool and lamb, the National Wool Growers Association has requested that the deduction be increased from 1½¢ to 2½¢ on wool and from 7½¢ to 12½¢ per 100 lbs. on unshorn lambs sold. Theoretically this deduction is for the amount of wool on the lamb. For each 100 lbs. of lamb the deduction would be 12½¢ (unshorn lambs sold).

The incentive payments producers receive on wool come from the duties on imported wool. These payments compensate U.S. producers for the lower wool production costs of importing countries. Thus, the lamb and wool promotion program of the ASPC is actually paid for by our competition in other countries. The very small amount that it takes out of each producer's pocket is completely compensated by the increase of 37.5% in the incentive level for 1977, with additional increases for the next four years based on cost of living increases. The incentive rate jumped from 72¢ to 99¢ for the 1977 marketing year, and will go to $1.08 for the 1978 marketing year.

IMPROVING REPRODUCTIVE MANAGEMENT—Cow-calf producers need a written plan to improve reproductive performance in their herds, says a livestock specialist with the Extension Service. The plan should fit the situation and should include a review of the herd's reproductive performance, goals or objectives, inventory resources, a reconsideration of goals based on available resources, and methods and alternatives to reach the goals. The plan should be continually evaluated

Forty or fifty years ago, the electric bill was most often called the "light bill". In thousands of homes, Mr. Edison's illuminating invention wasn't the only electrically powered appliance, but most people associated electricity with the most visible benefit - light.

Today, with the help of electrical energy and the appliances it powers, our tasks become easier and our lives more enjoyable. At West Texas Utilities we're working to provide you a continuing dependable source of electrical energy now and in the future.

Remember Reddy supplies the energy, only you can use it wisely.

Something new will be added to the program of Robert Lee School this year. Breakfast will be served each morning before classes begin. Students will arrive at school about 20 minutes early in order to have a light breakfast at 8:10 before classes begin at 8:30 a.m.

Regular price for the breakfast will be 25 cents, but students who qualify will be served breakfast free or at a reduce price.

The early morning meal will consist of fruit juice, milk and a cereal product.

Prices for noon meals this year will be 55 cents for grades kindergarten through 6 and 60 cents for those in grades 7 through 12. Employees of the school will be charged 75 cents and visitors will pay $1.20.

Supt. Jimmy Bickley said this week that letters will be sent to all parents outlining conditions for qualifying for free or reduced priced meals.

In addition to the money paid by students and others for meals, the lunchroom program received a subsidy from the federal government and many of the commodities used in preparing meals. No additional personnel is expected to be needed in implementing the new program, Bickley said.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS ABOUT CANDY

Proteins, minerals, vitamins, carbohydrates, fats or combinations of these nutrients are provided by the nonsugar ingredients, such as chocolate, nuts, fruits and milk, used in candy. These ingredients contribute to the nutritive merit of candy, as well as to its texture and taste.

A good, balanced diet includes six basic essentials: proteins, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins, minerals and water. At least two (and usually more) of these are found in every ingredient used in the manufacture of candy. For instance, molasses has a good amount of calcium and iron, and chocolate liquor contains riboflavin, calcium and iron.

Recent research has shown that it's no longer necessary for diabetics to eliminate sugar entirely. In fact, indications are that overweight is far more likely to affect diabetes than any other nutritional factor.

Facts from a pro on driving to survive.

Q. At sundown, should I drive with my parking lights on and then later turn on the headlights?—P. L., El Paso

A. Never drive with just your parking lights on because others may think the car is parked. As the name implies, parking lights are meant to be used when you have to park on an unlighted road at night. The law requires you to switch your headlights on a half hour after sunset and leave them on until a half hour before sunrise.

Q. I like to have music playing while I'm driving. Is it dangerous to wear stereo headphones and listen to music while driving a car?—S. B., Dallas

A. It could be very dangerous, especially if you are driving in city traffic or on the expressway where you must be particularly alert to the driving conditions around you. Not only does loud music tend to take your concentration off the road, but it prevents you from hearing horns and sirens. Even driving with your radio and air conditioner on and your windows rolled up could impair your hearing enough to be hazardous. If you do use earphones or play the radio loudly, try to compensate by keeping your eyes moving. Use your rear view mirror and turn your head to see all possible hazards that may develop.

Q. While driving in a west Texas rural area, I saw a tractor with no license plates on the highway. My friend says that is legal. Is he right?—H. S., Odessa

A. Your friend is right. According to Texas law, tractors and other farm vehicles do not have to display a license plate if they are being operated temporarily on the highways. They also do not have to be inspected when driven temporarily.

MRS. WALTER FLOWERS

Vicki Gartman and Walter Flowers Are Wed in Friday Church Ceremony

Vicki Ann Gartman and Walter Jay Flowers were married at 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11, at the Robert Lee Baptist Church. The Rev. Roy Epperson, pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gartman and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and carried an arrangement of white daisies, baby's breath and white ribbon on a white Bible.

For something old the bride had an heirloom handkerchief of her grandmother's, Mrs. Bryan Gartman, and borrowed a pearl teardrop necklace from the groom's mother. She wore the traditional blue garter. Her dress was new.

Daryl Copeland, organist, and La Nell Flowers, soloist and sister of the groom, provided wedding music.

Lighting the candles were Jana Gartman, sister of the bride, and Bob Flowers, brother of the bridegroom.

The church altar was decorated with two baskets of yellow gladioli white and yellow carnations, and white daisies; two seven-arch candelabra accented with yellow bows; and green garland around the vestibule. The pews were marked with yellow bows.

Karen Rasco served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Betty Flowers and Karen Kay Flowers, sisters of the bridegroom, and Stella Bickley. They wore yellow formal length dresses and carried a stem of white daisies with yellow ribbon streamers.

Mike Stephens of Austin was best man. Groomsmen were Kerry Gartman, brother of the bride, and George Abalos and Lyn Sockwell, both of San Angelo.

Richard Long and Douglas Herford seated the guests.

Carla Wojtek presided at the registry table.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Members of the houseparty included La Nell Flowers, the groom's sister of San Angelo, Judy Blair of Sterling City and Rhonda Hood of Robert Lee, sisters of the bride, Linda Gartman of Rosebud, sister-in-law of the bride, and Neila Walker and Emma Lee Bickley, both of Robert Lee.

Mrs. Flowers is a 1978 graduate of Robert Lee High School. Her husband is a 1976 RLHS graduate and attended Angelo State University. Both are enrolled at Texas Tech University for the fall semester. He is employed by Feagins Implement Co. of Lubbock.

After a wedding trip to New Mexico, the couple are at home in Lubbock.

The groom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner at the church fellowship hall.

Mrs. Willie Clark recently spent two weeks in Medina with her daughter and family, the Bill Craddocks. While there, she attended the wedding of her grandson, Frank Craddock, which took place Aug. 5 at Medina Baptist Church. Also, Mrs. Clark experienced the heavy rains and flooding that occurred in and around the Medina area. She reported that it was sad to see the aftermath of the storm and surprising what damaging results flood waters can cause.

CORRECTION

(The following information concerning the wedding of Sheila Roberts and Robert Bruce Hammerton was inadvertently omitted from the story in last week's Observer. We are sorry for the error.)

A 1975 graduate of San Angelo Central High School, the bridegroom is attending ASU and is employed at San Angelo Center.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner in Chimney Rock Steak House in San Angelo.

The couple will reside at 850 Paint Rock Road, Apartment 8-1A, upon returning from a wedding trip to Colorado.

Grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harmon and her great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harmon, all of Robert Lee.

TELETHON NEEDS LOCAL VOLUNTEERS

The Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon is looking for local groups to man pledge centers in Bronte and Robert Lee. The Muscular Dystrophy Association provides all supplies, orders phones, provides posters, and if needed, will help find a suitable location.

Across the Big Country groups such as Jaycees, EDA Sororities, Jayceettes, BSP Sororities, Church Youth Groups, FFA Chapters, ALA Chapters, Square Dance Clubs, and C-B Radio Clubs help with the Labor Day Drive.

Last year over $26.8 million was raised in the 22½ hour TV spectacular. Many centers were manned by local fire fighters or local letter carriers, both of whom have been with Jerry over 20 years.

Big Republicans Helping Loeffler

Tom Loeffler, Republican congressional nominee from the 21st District, is getting out the big guns in his battle against Democrat Nelson Wolff in the November General Election.

Loeffler, a native of Mason and now an attorney in Kerrville, was assisted Wednesday when former President Gerald Ford made a fund-raising appearance in San Angelo.

Former Texas Governor John Connally will be on hand Labor Day in Kerrville when Loeffler formally kicks off his fall campaign.

Wolff won the Democratic nomination and Loeffler the Republican nomination in May primaries. They both would like to get the job now held by Bob Krueger, who is Democratic nominee for U.S. senator.

Hill Backs Tax Relief Proposal

Attorney General John Hill is urging agricultural groups to begin organizing support for the proposed tax relief constitutional amendment approved this week by the special legislative session for a vote by the people Nov. 7.

"One of the most important features of the proposed constitutional amendment adopted by the legislature Tuesday is tax relief for farmers and ranchers," Hill said.

"This same proposal, to tax agricultural land on the basis of its productivity instead of its value, had failed when it came up for a vote before the same legislators only a year ago.

"Now that the proposal will be part of a package of tax relief for homeowners, elderly citizens and the disabled, as well as farmers and ranchers, I am very optimistic that the prospects for tax relief for our agricultural producers have changed from bleak to excellent in just one year.

"I am especially pleased that this tax reform for our farmers and ranchers was one of the key issues in my campaign for governor. By developing this issue during the campaign, I believe the drastic needs of farmers and ranchers for tax relief were given the additional push they needed to secure approval by the legislature.

"The next step is voter approval of the tax relief package at the polls in the general election Nov. 7, and I urge all agricultural organizations to rally behind adoption of the amendment.

"The steps taken by the legislature during the special session were important first steps in a well-balanced attempt at tax relief, and I commend the legislature for its actions. But I plan to continue to push for expansion of the reforms next year."

When shopping for credit, keep in mind that banks are less expensive, but they may require security and are more selective.

On the other hand, finance companies generally charge more and have higher penalties but will take more of a risk, according to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Opportunity for Both Young and Old

(Editor's Note: The following article was brought in this week and we thought it very worthy of publication. It calls attention to a splendid opportunity for young people to do something really worthwhile -- as well as some of us who are not so young.)

by Cy Brickfield

Some years ago, when retirement communities were beginning to dot the suburban landscape in rapidly increasing numbers, a colleague of mine observed that it would not be long before our nation's children would grow up without ever having the opportunity to know any old people on a regular basis.

Except for occasional visits with aging relatives, he predicted, the only time children might actually see older people close-up would be during carefully conducted class tours of retirement enclaves and senior centers. And even then, the children would be warned to keep their distance - to look, but not touch and above all, not to be touched.

Fortunately, it didn't happen quite that way - at least at a school a few miles from our nation's capitol. Right next to the school is a nursing home, many of whose residents are lonely, especially for the occasional company of a younger generation. In many cases, their own families no longer live in the Washington area, and are thus able to visit them only rarely, if at all. Some have no living relatives.

Two years ago, a teacher at the school initiated a bridge-building program which she called 'Adopt-a-Grandparent.' As a result, the halls of the nursing home now ring on frequent occasions with the sound of happy young voices, and young people and old people - who otherwise might never have come to know each other - have become friends. Accompanied by the teacher, the children visit their adopted grandparents three or four times each month.

At the beginning of each school year, there is a discussion in class about what nursing homes are and about older people in general. Each child is paired up with one or more of the nursing home residents who are participating in the program.

A lot of the children are a little apprehensive at first, so they start out very shy, and sometimes a little scared. It's beautiful to see how they become close and develop really warm friendships with the people in the home. They learn to respect them as human beings and adults who are fun to be with - not just old people in wheelchairs.

As in any good relationship, both young and old benefit from their ongoing involvement with each other. For the adopted grandparents, having their young visitors to call makes a healthy care institution occasionally seem like a real home. At the same time, the children are being made subtly aware of the totality of the human life cycle - a lesson that will serve them well as they grow up into adulthood and eventually old age.

Flood Victims Need Help

The American Red Cross is receiving contributions to be used in helping victims of disastrous floods which occurred early this month in the Texas Hill Country and in the area north of Abilene.

The Red Cross provided emergency feeding facilities, medical care and other assistance immediately after the floods. Now it is trying to help flood victims repair, rebuild and replace homes and property lost or damaged by the high water.

Anyone who wishes to contribute to the aid of flood victims should mail a check to American Red Cross, Box 25, Robert Lee, Texas 76945.

KRUEGER'S ATTENTION FOCUSED ON FLOOD—U.S. Congressman Bob Krueger listens as Bandera County Judge W. O. Hatfield recounts the tremendous losses in lives, property and livestock suffered by flood victims in the Texas Hill Country and West Texas. Krueger, whose home on the banks of the Guadalupe was for a time threatened by floodwaters below Canyon Dam, canceled his campaign schedule so that his full attention could be placed on helping flood-stricken areas. Krueger staff members from San Antonio, San Angelo and Washington were dispatched to fill the gap before federal assistance could be guaranteed. Besides Bandera, Krueger also visited Kerrville, Comfort, Albany, Graham and Abilene.

The Texas A&M University Animal Science Department is in the process of securing brands from each county in Texas. The brands, eight from each county are being placed on a certain wall and stairway in the new Richard Kleberg Animal Science Center. Each county's name is already on the wall along with some brands from a few counties.

We have been requested to secure brands from Coke County to be placed in the area reserved for Coke County. If you or your family has a recorded brand you would like to see used, please let us know. The county livestock committee will select certain brands if more than the allotted number is submitted.

In addition to the allotment of eight, each county will be allowed to select two brands of historical significance in addition to the allotment. If you have a suggestion for this category, please let us hear from you.

PECAN WEEVILS
The pecan weevil, in some years one of the most damaging pecan pest, will soon begin laying eggs in developing pecans. To prevent pecan weevil damage the adult female weevils must be controlled before they deposit eggs in the developing pecan. Once the eggs have been deposited control measures will not be effective.

Adults emerge from the soil in late summer usually after rains in early or mid-August and they move into the pecan trees to mate and deposit their eggs. After an egg has been deposited the larva will develop inside the pecan, cut a hole in the shell about 1/8 inch in diameter and emerge from the pecan as a fully grown larva in late October or November. Larvae will tunnel into the soil 4 to 12 inches. Much of the pecan weevil's 2 to 3 year life cycle is spent as a larva in the soil. Larvae that enter the soil this fall will emerge in late summer of 1979 with exception of about 10-20% which will emerge as adults during late summer of 1980 or 1981.

When pecan weevil infestations are severe this pest can destroy a large portion of the pecan crop. Feeding of adult weevils causes the nuts in the water stage to drop. After the kernel begins to harden the nut is susceptible to egg laying.

Adult weevil populations in the orchard will vary greatly from year to year but in heavily infested orchards pecan weevil populations will probably be present in most years. Frequently certain trees in the orchard are more heavily infested than others. Begin checking trees in August or immediately after rains to determine need for pecan weevil control. Probably the most often used method of checking weevil populations is jarring limbs to give indication of presence in trees at any given time. To accomplish this place a large sheet under a tree and jar the limbs with a padded pole. Weevils will drop to the ground and remain motionless for a short period of time. Number of weevils found on the sheet gives indication of size of population.

If population level indicates need for insecticide application it should be applied as nuts reach the gel stage, that is the transition from the water to the soft dough stage. This can be determined by cutting through the developing pecan kernel. Two or three applications of Sevin R may be needed to control pecan weevil infestations. Research has shown, however, that some weevils may emerge as adults as late as early October in which case a greater number of applications would be needed.

WAYS TO BE A WISER SHOPPER

BUY IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT YOUR FAMILY. Keep in mind how much your family will eat. A bargain for your neighbor is not necessarily a bargain for you. A small can is often the best choice for a twosome, for it gives mealtime variety and eliminates left-overs. A large size is not an economy if any of it is wasted or thrown out. For example, a three-pound can of shortening is often on sale. But if you seldom use shortening and a big can might turn rancid before the last third of it is used, then it is no bargain. But regardless of family size, the 1½ to 2-pound transparent bags of frozen vegetables are bargains for any size family. Take out what you need, reclose, and put back in the freezer. Savings can add up to 30¢ to 40¢ when you buy mayonnaise or salad dressing by the quart rather than the same amount in four small ½-pint jars. If you make sandwiches for daily lunches or a lot of salads, buy big.

BUY TO SUIT YOUR USE. Don't buy more quality than you really need. The best quality of the fanciest of anything may be sheer extravagance. A wiser tip is to buy the quality you need for the way you plan to use it. For example, canned peach halves cost more than sliced peaches. If you plan to make peach cobbler, sliced peaches are a better buy. Budget-priced canned tomatoes are perfect for stews, escalloping, or spaghetti sauce, while the fancy firm whole variety is better for serving as a vegetable or salad. Penny-saving shoppers learn to choose one quality for the table, another thriftier quality for cooking. Savings may be as much as ten cents a can.

BUY BY BRAND. It's a good shopping practice to make a mental note of the national and store brands you like. Brand identification speeds shopping and assures uniform quality. LEARN TO READ LABELS. Take time to read labels for here are the keys to many savings. It's wiser to read them in the store before you buy, but if that isn't convenient, do read them at home. Most modern labels give a wealth of information including brand, ingredients, size, weight, price and often serving ideas. If a clerk stood beside each product he couldn't tell you more.

CONSIDER THE DIVIDENDS OF CONVENIENCE FOODS. Convenience foods pay big dividends in time, effort and money saved. Government and university studies show that many convenience foods cost the same as or only slightly more than home-prepared foods. Dozens are actually buying time-saving, work-saving, waste-saving products. In some cases you are also buying skills like baking bread, making pie crust or cake, canning fruit, making cheese. To many women the convenience of having someone else do the work is well worth the few extra cents. However, if you have more time than money, you can make your food dollars buy more and perhaps gain a feeling of achievement by buying basic ingredients. Each woman must evaluate her time in terms of money.

THINK TWICE ABOUT SHOPPING SEVERAL STORES. A penny saved isn't always a penny gained. You don't gain anything by driving a mile to save five cents on a jar of mustard that you buy once a year. Time, energy and gasoline have value, too. Usually the best savings come in shopping carefully within one store to find the products which meet your own needs most satisfactorily. If you feel like a treasure hunt limit it to one store and in all probability you'll come out better every time.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

ACCIDENT CONTROL---

Farm accident surveys show that many farm and ranch work injuries could be prevented or made less severe with the use of appropriate personal protective equipment. This means the proper use of hard hats of bump caps, protective eye glasses or goggles, ear protectors, respirators and steel toe shoes, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.
