Death of J. E. Newton

Mr. James Ervin Newton, a pioneer citizen and Confederate veteran, after an illness of two weeks, entered the peaceful rest Wednesday, June 10, at his home at Kerrville, and was buried in Mountain View cemetery, by the side of his beloved wife, who had preceded him two years.

Mr. Newton was born in Sumpter County, Ala., October 12, 1837, and had been a resident of Kerrville for twenty years. He volunteered in the Confederate army in 1861 and served faithfully during the war.

Mr. Newton first settled in Wilson County, Texas, and was always held in the highest esteem in every relation of life, and was a consistent member of the Baptist Church.

Funeral services were held at his residence on Thursday, June 11, by Rev. S. J. Drake, and at the grave the burial service of the Confederate veterans was read. The following comrades of the Kerrville Camp acted as honorary pall bearers: J. R. Burnett, A. M. Morriss, T. M. Bradwell, N. H. James, S. J. Scott, and J. D. Leavell. A large number of friends attended the services.

Mr. Newton left surviving several children, W. E. Newton, Elmer Newton, Mrs. Chas. Wesch, and Miss Susie Newton of Kerrville, Frank Newton of Granger, A. C. of San Marcos, James C. of Dallas, and Mrs. Joe Hunter of Gonzales County, and several grandchildren, all of whom have the sympathy of all our people.

Our Common Enemy, the Fly

Ed. Advance:

In view of the fact that the medical world is practically agreed on the importance of preventative measures as the best means of combatting disease, and thereby assisting in the physical uplift of mankind; and in view of the further fact that the common house fly is known to be a common and most potent factor in disseminating disease, I desire to submit the following remarks relative to the habits and characteristics of the fly, together with a few hints that may be useful to some of our citizens in ridding their premises of this great nuisance and propagator of disease:

Until recent years it was the current belief that the house fly was a useful insect, owing to the fact that it destroys substances prejudicial to the health of mankind. At the present time it is known to be a dangerous enemy, and every effort should be made in destroying filth rather than permit flies to live to do that work.

This insect conveys the causes of disease in a purely mechanical way, by carrying germs on its feet, hairy legs, sucking proboscis or mouth parts. It has the habit of alighting on all kinds of substances, particularly food and excrementitious matter and in this way is a medium for the direct transmission of the germs of disease. If it were not possible for man to get rid of the waste products which are destroyed by flies in some better way, flies would be necessary, but owing to their disease carrying tendency and their great danger to humanity, it becomes necessary for human beings to destroy these effete substances and not leave them to the maggots or fly larvae.

Flies are a great source of milk contamination and thereby a factor in the causation of intestinal diseases in children. A single fly may carry as many as 6,600,000 bacteria. Intestinal disease is more frequent wherever and whenever flies are most abundant, and they, and not heat of summer, are the active agents in its spread.

HOW TO KILL FLIES

To clear a room of flies, carbolic acid may be used as follows: Heat a shovel or any similar article and drop thereon twenty drops of carbolic acid. The vapor kills the flies. A cheap and perfectly reliable fly poison, one which is not dangerous to human life, is bicromate of potash in solution. Dissolve one dram, which can be bought at any drug store, in two ounces of water, and add a little sugar. Put some of this solution in shallow dishes and distribute them about the house.

Sticky fly paper, traps and liquid poisons are among the things to use in killing flies, but the latest, cheapest and best is a solution of formalin or formaldehyde in water. A spoonful of this liquid put into a pint of water and exposed in the room will be enough to kill all the flies. They seem to be fond of this water. Care should be taken to place it beyond the reach of children. To quickly clear the room where there are many flies, burn pyrethrum powder in the room. This stupefies the flies, when they may be swept up and burned.

Pyrethrum powder may be placed in a pan on a hot stove or heated by other means. The powder should not burn, only smolder. It gives off a dense white smoke that will kill flies, but is otherwise harmless. One ounce should be used to each hundred cubic feet of air space. Rooms during and after fumigation should be tightly closed. After opening, the dead or stupefied flies should be carefully swept up and burned.

If there are flies in the dining room of your hotel, restaurant or boarding place, you are not treating your customers right, and they should demand that you exterminate the flies.

Very Respectfully,
H. E. Williams, M. D.

PROTOCOL FOR HUERTA'S SUCCESSOR IS SIGNED

MEXICAN-UNITED STATES DELEGATES AFFIX SIGNATURES IN PRESENCE OF MEDIATORS.

PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT LIKELY

The Pact Provides Manner of Transferring Executive Power at Southern Republic's Capital—Mexican Delegates Satisfied.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Delegates from the United States and the Huerta government Friday formally affixed their signatures, in the presence of the mediating representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile, to the first protocol of the series through which it is hoped to restore peace in Mexico.

A government is to be constituted in Mexico of a character to be later provided, which shall be recognized by the United States on (date to be fixed), and which from that day forward shall exercise public functions until there shall be inaugurated a constitutional president.

The brief protocol was significant of two things:

It makes no mention of General Huerta as the provisional president, and it omits the method of transfer which the Mexican delegates and mediators suggested and to which the United States objected on the ground that its retention would be tantamount to recognition of the existing regime.

Earlier in the evening there was an outbreak among democrats which showed the deep feeling that has been aroused by the bill. Senators Vardaman of Mississippi and West of Georgia came near to blows, creating a scene such as had not been witnessed on the floor in many years.

Up to the last minute no one in the senate was positive a vote could be taken Thursday night. As it became more and more apparent, however, that no amendments could pass and that the leaders expected to sit through to the finish, the temptation to make long speeches ceased to be attractive and several votes were taken toward the end without a roll call.

The vote in favor of the bill follows: Democrats—Bankhead, Bryan, Chilton, Clark of Arkansas, Culberson, Fletcher, Gore, Hitchcock, Hughes, James, Johnson, Kern, Lea, Lee, Lewis, Martin, Myers, Overman, Owens, Pittman, Pomerenne, Squires, Shafroth, Sheppard, Shively, Simmons, Smith of Arizona, Smith of Georgia, Smith of Arizona, Smith of South Carolina, Stone, Swanson, Thompson, Thornton, West, White, Williams—37.

Republicans—Brandegee, Burton, Colt, Crawford, Gronna, Kenyon, McCumber, McLean, Nelson, Norris, Root, Sterling, Sherman—13.

The vote against the bill: Democrats—Ashurst, Chamberlain, Lane, Martine, Newlands, O'Gorman, Rensdell, Reed, Vardaman, Thomas, Shields—11.

Republicans—Borah, Brady, Bristol, Burleigh, Catron, Clapp, Clark of Wyoming, Cummins, Dillingham, Du Pont, Goff, Jones, La Follette, Lippitt, Page, Perkins, Smith of Michigan, Smoot, Sutherland, Townsend, Warren, Weeks, Works—23.

Progressive—Poindexter. Total, 35.

Insurance Companies Licensed. Austin, Tex.—The department of insurance and banking Friday granted a license to the Beneficial Life Insurance Company of Salt Lake City. This company has a capital stock of $200,000 and surplus of $176,841. It is entering the insurance field of Texas for the first time.

Renewal of Licenses were granted the Northwestern Mutual Fire Association of Seattle; Ladies' Catholic Beneficial Association of Erie, Pa.

Militant Suffragettes Explode Bomb. London.—Militant suffragettes staged one of the most dramatic acts of their campaign Thursday, when they exploded a bomb in Westminster Abbey at the very moment King Hon. Reginald McKenna, secretary of state for home affairs, was delivering an optimistic speech in the house of commons regarding the government's method of dealing with "the wild women." It did little damage.

SENATE PASSED THE PANAMA REPEAL BILL

PANAMA TOLLS MEASURE CARRIES BY VOTE OF 50 TO 35 AFTER BITTER STRUGGLE.

SENATORS NEARLY HAVE FIGHT

The Passage of the Bill After a Long Fight Lasting for Several Months Is Conceded a Victory for the President.

Washington.—The long and bitter fight in congress to repeal the clause of the Panama canal act exempting American coastwise shipping from tolls came to an end Friday when the house, after brief debate and without the formality of a conference, accepted by a vote of 216 to 71 the senate amendment specifically reserving all right the United States may have under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty or otherwise.

Washington.—Repeal of Panama canal tolls exemption for American coastwise shipping passed the senate Thursday night by a vote of 50 to 35. The passage of the bill after a bitter struggle that has lasted for several months is conceded another victory for President Wilson. Although thirteen republicans came to the aid of the democrats who voted for the bill on final passage, the president initiated the movement in his party for repeal and it was behind him that many democrats who voted "aye" lined up on the last test.

The senate was weary with its long grind of debate, its weary watching for any attempt to gain a parliamentary advantage, and by the time Vice President Marshall put the question for the passage of the bill the oratory had died down, the chamber was quiet and the vote was taken with little excitement.

Earlier in the evening there was an outbreak among democrats which showed the deep feeling that has been aroused by the bill. Senators Vardaman of Mississippi and West of Georgia came near to blows, creating a scene such as had not been witnessed on the floor in many years.

Up to the last minute no one in the senate was positive a vote could be taken Thursday night. NATIONAL PASTIMING

AGUILAR MAY CORRAL HUERTA

Trying to Cut Off Retreat of Huerta and Cabinet in Case They Try to Leave Capital.

Washington.—Railroad communication between the City of Mexico and Vera Cruz is menaced by constitutional forces, Brigadier General Funston reported Thursday to the war department.

From sources in touch with the constitutionalists' agency it was learned the particular object of the activity of Carranza's troops in Vera Cruz state is to cut off all means of retreat for Huerta and his cabinet in case they determine to quit the capital.

The constitutionalist forces in Vera Cruz state, numbering about three thousand, are said to be disposed so that they might cut not only the railroad between the City of Mexico and Vera Cruz, but also the line between the capital and Puerto Mexico. The forces are under command of General Aguilar.

Interruption of communication between the capital and the eastern seaboard has been in contemplation by the constitutionalists for the last six months, it was said. It had been understood the South American mediators are prepared to make an appeal for Huerta's personal safety in the event his government collapses before the conclusion of the peace conference.

Administration officials were not greatly alarmed over threats to cut communication between the City of Mexico and the gulf ports, because virtually all Americans who wanted to leave the capital and nearby points reached safety some time ago.

General Funston reported that rumors of a contemplated federal attack on Vera Cruz persisted to the point where they could not be entirely ignored. War department officials, however, were not inclined to regard the rumors seriously.

General Funston was unable to say how many federals remained in the territory between the capital and the gulf.

Canal Tolls Exemption Repeal Bill. Washington.—The senate Wednesday cleared away most of the legislative barriers in the way of a final vote on the canal tolls exemption repeal bill, and unless there are unforeseen developments in the fight, which has raged in congress over this measure for many months, will come to a close before adjournment. Votes taken Wednesday on the amendments designed to preserve any right the United States possesses under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with Great Britain to exempt American ships from payment through the Panama canal indicated that the forces of the repeal will win by a substantial majority.

Colombia Ratifies Treaty. Bogota, Colombia.—The Colombian congress in special session Tuesday ratified the treaty with the United States by which Colombia is to receive $25,000,000 and certain concessions in the settlement of the long standing dispute between the two countries over Panama.

Splendid Gas Well Bright in Ardmore, Okla.—The Apple and Franklin Oil Company, in the Healdton field, brought in a gas well Wednesday making 15,000,000 feet, that was found below 1,100 feet and beneath the oil sand. This is the first gas found beneath an oil sand.

Italy Stricken by Workers' Revolt. Rome.—The general strike proclaimed Tuesday as a protest against repressive measures taken by the government in connection with the demonstration at Ancona Sunday, when several men were shot down, is gaining in intensity.

Four Girls' Bodies Found in Creek. Sapulpa, Okla.—Cut and bruised and bearing evidences of foul play, the bodies of Beattie Reynolds, aged 16, and three other girls, sisters—Bertie Sanders, aged 9; Zuliah Sanders, aged 11, and Vina Sanders, aged 14—were found floating in Rock Creek, near Sapulpa, Okla., Wednesday.

Liano Ships Twenty Cars Live Stock. Liano, Tex.—Twenty cars of stock were shipped from Liano Tuesday to live stock markets.

CLUB WOMEN VOTE SUFFRAGE

A Climax to a Fight of Years—Illinois Supreme Court Gives Women Right to Vote.

Chicago, Ill.—In one of the most spectacular and exciting meetings ever held in Chicago, the twelfth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs Saturday passed a resolution officially endorsing equal suffrage.

The action came as the climax to a struggle extending over many years, during which the convention repeatedly has refused to consider the question of woman's rights as an issue. It has broken the oldest custom of the organization and ended harmoniously a session which had every indication of becoming a parliamentary riot.

The vote on the resolution assumed the proportions of a thunderous roar as nearly two thousand delegates shouted their stand on the question. Argument and Roberts' rules of order were forgotten from the moment the resolution was read. The few negative votes which were cast scarcely were discernible in the mad cheers which followed the fall of the gavel announcing its passage.

"Illinois" was sung by the Illinois delegation preliminary to the dramatic reading of the resolution in favor of suffrage. Mrs. C. G. Depulston, chairman of the committee on resolutions, was recognized then and the following resolution was read:

"Whereas, The question of political equality of men and women is today a vital problem under discussion throughout the civilized world; therefore, be it Resolved, That the General Federation of Woman's Clubs give the cause of political equality for men and women its moral support by recording its interest and belief in the principle of political equality, regardless of sex."

Scarcely had the convention favored the principle of female suffrage when news was brought that the Illinois supreme court had upheld the state law giving women the right to vote for statutory offices. Opinions of the women differed as to the effect of the endorsement of equal suffrage.

Volcano in California Active. Redding, Cal.—Mount Lassen finally erupted with volcanic fire Sunday and one man was killed, one injured and one driven temporarily insane as a result of the terrific outburst from the crater, which had been latent for many years.

Lansing, Graham, a lumber man from Viola, Cal., was crushed by a rock blown from the fissure in the mountain. His eight companions fled when they saw that Graham had been killed. One of the other observers, it is said, was seriously injured.

Two new craters in addition to the one blown open May 30 burst from the mountainside Sunday. Fire from them was seen from roofs in various towns at considerable distance.

President Wilson to Christen Canal. Washington.—President Wilson next March personally will lead the international fleet of warships from Hampton Roads to Colon to participate in the formal opening of the Panama canal by passing through on the bridge of the world famous old battleship Oregon as leader of the long line of fighting craft of all nations, and then, after proceeding northward, enter the Golden Gate at the head of the immense armada and attend the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco.

Lightning Kills Six Persons. London.—Lightning killed six persons and injured several others on Wadsworth Common Sunday. Four were children. Many buildings in South London were struck.

Oklahoma Needs Harvesters. Austin, Tex.—Owing to unusual large harvests this year in Oklahoma, the labor commissioner of that state in a telegram sent to Texas Labor Commissioner J. A. Starling advises that there is a shortage of from 3,000 to 5,000 harvest hands to gather the crops, and he requests that Commissioner Starling aid him in securing labor. The Oklahoma commissioner advises that wages are $2.50 and board.

Adlai E. Stevenson Dead. Chicago, Ill.—Adlai Ewing Stevenson, vice president of the United States through the second Cleveland administration, died Saturday at a hospital in Chicago after an illness of several months. His three children were at his bedside.

Miss Burleson Recovered. Washington.—Miss Lucy Burleson, daughter of the postmaster general and Mrs. Burleson, has returned home from Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, where she underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils.

Crockett Postmaster Nominated. Washington.—The president Saturday sent to the senate the nomination of J. W. Hall to be postmaster at Crockett, Texas.

SYNOPSIS.

Jackson Jones, nicknamed "Broadway" because of his continual glorification of New York's great thoroughfare, is anxious to get away from his home town of Jonesville. His uncle, Judge Spotswood, who is a miser and a miserly man, is averse to the idea of his nephew leaving the town in which he has succeeded to his father's interest. Judge Spotswood makes a proposition by his extraordinary means to take a place in the town of New York. Broadway, who is a miserly man, is at his disposal. Broadway makes a second time in heading for his favorite street in New York. Four years pass and Broadway suddenly discovers that he is not only broke, but heavily in debt. He applies to his uncle for a loan and receives a package of chewing gum with the advice to chew and forget his troubles. He quietly seeks work without success. Broadway gives what is intended to be a farewell to his New York friends, and before it is over becomes engaged to Mrs. Gerard, an actress and a very giddy girl. Broadway's wife is a very giddy girl and her youthful fiancé, but fails to better the situation. He learns that Broadway is broke and offers him a position with his father's advertising firm, but it is declined. Wallace takes charge of Broadway's affairs. Broadway receives a telegram announcing the death of his uncle. Peter Pembroke of the Consolidated Chewing Gum company offers Broadway $1,500,000 for his gum plant and Broadway agrees to sell. Wallace takes the affair in hand and insists that Broadway hold off for a bigger price and rushes him to Jonesville to consult Judge Spotswood, who was Uncle Abner's attorney. Broadway finds his boyhood playmate, Josie Richards, in charge of the plant and falls in love with her. Wallace is written with Judge Spotswood's daughter, Clara. Josie points out to Broadway that by selling the plant to the trust he will ruin the town built by his ancestors and throw his employees out of work. Broadway decides that he will not sell. Wallace receives an offer of $1,500,000 from the trust and is amazed when Broadway turns it down. Broadway explains the situation as set forth by Josie and Wallace agrees that it is Broadway's duty to stick by the town and his employees. He authorizes an announcement to his worried employees that the plant will not be sold.

"Yes, he's stopping at the Grand hotel."
"When did he get here?"
"Last evening."
"Have you seen him?"
"Yes."
It was plain enough that Higgins' most vivid suspicions were aroused. He looked at her accusingly. His voice was even louder than it had been. "He got here last evening, eh? Then that settles it." He went to her desk and leaned across it as if indicting her. "He came here with that trust fellow, didn't he?"
Now she, in turn, was really surprised. "What trust fellow?"
"Pembroke, one of the head men of the Consolidated."
None but a fool could have doubted her amazement and her worry as she rose and walked closer to him. "Is Pembroke here in town?"
"Oh," he sneered. "You didn't know that, eh?"
"I certainly did not."
"He did not quite believe her, yet took a certain pleasure in imparting the distressing news to her, on the chance that she was truthful and had not before heard it. "Well, he's here. Several of the men saw him and recognized him. I suppose he's here with Jones to close us out. Is that it?"
"I don't know any more about it than you do, Higgins."
This did not impress or interest him.

"The Business Will Need Your Attention."

"You say the young fellow's stopping at the Grand?"
"Yes."
"Well, nobody here knows anything about it."
"I believe he registered under another name." She could have bitten off her tongue for letting this slip out.
Instantly the man assumed that this confirmed his most unfavorable prognostications. "Ah, ha! Well, what did he do that for?"
"How should I know?"
"Well," he shouted. "I guess I do! It's because he is a sneak! He knows it's a rotten thing he's doing and he's afraid of the consequences." He strode up and down the room in deep and heavy thought. "The men are not in a very good temper, and, you mark my words, there'll be the devil to pay around here before this day's over unless we get some satisfaction and find out exactly what he intends to do!"

Josie looked at him with cold and angry eyes. For an instant she had been frightened. She had got the better of her fear now, and in her voice were both contempt and warning. "I wouldn't talk like that, if I were you, Higgins!"
He approached her threateningly. "Oh, you're on their side, are you? I thought so!"
Again he went close to her, almost as if he meant to do her some violence. His face was black with rage.
"I never did believe in you. I told the men this morning. For all we know, you've been working for the interests of the trust all the time!"
Her wrath was boiling fiercely now, and she showed the stuff of which she was made. She went closer still to Higgins, never wavering; giving back no inch, although he towered above her, shaking with wrath, and worked his clenching fingers ominously.
"That will be about enough now, Higgins; you get out of this office."
"I'd like to see anybody try to put me out till I'm ready to go!" he shouted.
To his amazement and to hers, it now developed that they had had a listener. An unexcited voice spoke from one side.
"Good morning, Miss Richards."
She whirled, recognizing instantly the tones. "Good morning, Mr. Jones."
Higgins stood there speechless, gazing at the newcomer with dropping jaw. Jackson waited not a second after he had greeted Josie, but marched up to the belligerent foreman and stood facing him, small but determined, not six inches from the powerful, red-shirted figure.
Instantly the foreman's manner changed. From the bully he became the fawn. "Oh, hello, Mr. Jones! I didn't know you were in town."
"Yes, you did," said Jackson slowly. "Miss Richards just told you I've been standing out there listening to what you had to say. I remember you, Higgins. The only good thing I remember of you was that you were funny when you had cramps in the swimming hole. You always were a grouch and forever nosing in other people's affairs. Now, I want to tell you something. This plant belongs to me, and it's nobody's business whether I keep it, or sell it, or give it away. Do you understand?"
"Well," said Higgins, half in apology, half dully, "the men asked me to come here and get the information."
"They didn't ask you to come here and insult this girl, did they? Now, I'll put you out of the office, and throw you out of the plant, and drive you out of the town if I hear any more red-fire talk out of you."
He paused, and Higgins stood, quite dumfounded.
"The trust isn't going to buy this plant," Broadway continued, while not intently, gratefully, startled by the overwhelmingly good news, "for the simple reason that it isn't for sale, and you can go and tell the men I said so."
Higgins now was much abashed. "I'm sorry I was hasty, Mr. Jones. I didn't mean to lose my temper."
"You don't want to lose your job, do you?"
"No, sir."
"Then go on; get out of here."
"Yes, sir." The big workman turned to Josie. "I hope you'll forgive me, Miss Richards. I know I've got a rotten disposition, but my heart's in the right place."
"I understand," said Josie, who had known him all her life.
"I'll tell the men what you said, Mr. Jones," he said to his employer—that employer who had, in the past, employed no one more important than a butler, a chauffeur, a Jap cook, or temporarily, a waiter or a bellboy. It gave Broadway quite a little shock. "Gosh! What a relief it will be to them! It's made a different man out of me already."
To his amazement he broke down, blubbering like a mammoth child.
"Well, what are you crying about?" said Jackson, utterly nonplussed.
"Because I'm happy," said the contradictory Higgins. "There'll be others to cry outside. You don't know what it means to us—it saves our homes and families, too, maybe." With that and still intently blubbering, he left them.
"Can you beat that?" asked Broadway, turning back to Josie. "He's a nice, cheerful little fellow! I'd like to be around him a whole lot!"

CHAPTER X.

There was another than the foreman who was happier than ordinary words would have expressed, now that Jackson Jones had stated, with what seemed to be finality, that he intended to continue at the business which had made his fortune and had made Jonesville. But Josie felt a strange need for reserve in her young employer's presence, a need which she had not felt the night before and one which she could not explain.
Her impulse was to rush into extravagant praise after he had sent the foreman out into the works to tell the men that he should not sell his patrimony to the trust, but for some reason which she would have found it difficult to explain fully she said not a word about it. Instead, she turned to him with matter-of-fact expression and the words of commonplace occasions.

"Did you have a good night's rest?"
He felt like saying something full of emphasis, whether in access of joy or sorrow he was not certain, but he knew that any words which he could use to her would be inadequate to furnish him relief, and so hailed her commonplace question with a thrill of real relief.
"My back is broken," he said with an expressive grimace and a writhing of the Grand.
"The Grand?"
He nodded with another serio-comic facial antic.
She laughed. "Is it as bad as that?"
"There are men in prison for doing less than running a hotel like that!"

Judge and Mrs. Spotswood.

Almost he made the revelation of their startling midnight wanderings, but caught himself in time.
"Why don't you open your uncle's home?"
"My uncle's home?" he said, a little startled.
He had not thought of that. The suggestion probably did more to drive home definitely to his inner mind the true significance of his decision to take up the business than anything which had previously occurred. His uncle's home!
After his father's death it had been his home; it had been the only semblance of a home which he remembered, and his memories of it were harsh enough, in some details almost repellent. His uncle had been hard; he had had but little understanding of boy nature, the house had been a sort of prison from which he could escape at intervals each day.
He had not even thought of opening it; it never had occurred to him that he could ever live another day of his life there.
But, now she spoke of it, why not? The place was grim, old-fashioned, inhospitable, forbidding, as so many old New England houses are, and as so many more New England houses were ten years ago; but that atmosphere was more that of its occupant than that of the old place itself. It must have been a joyous and free-minded Jones who chose the site for it, for it was very beautiful; it must have been an artist Jones who chose the plans for it, for its design was of that beautiful, pure old colonial which (barring skyscrapers) is the only architectural merit America has yet originated, and then which nothing is more truly beautiful; it must have been a social Jones who added the great wing to it, for in that wing were bedrooms, sitting rooms, and a great dining-room quite plainly meant to welcome many guests.
His memories of the house were gloomy and unattractive, for from it both his father and his mother had been taken to their final resting places, and in it he had spent few joyous hours. All the happiness of his youth in Jonesville were associated with the homes of others, public places, out-of-doors; he had heard very little laughter in the old homestead. But might it not house happiness? He realized that it would make an ideal setting for pure joy. Still, it was in Jonesville! That made him wince.
"You don't think it will be necessary for me to live in this town, do you?"
She nodded. She was rather glad to feel that it was right for her to nod. She would have shrunk from revelations of the sorrow which would certainly have filled her heart if it had transpired, now, that Broadway was not to remain in Jonesville. She even shrank from an acknowledgment of this in her own heart.
"The business will need your attention," she said gravely.
He waved a hand which he tried to make appear as if dispensing privileges, but which, he knew, seemed more that of a shirker.
"Go right on with the business. Don't pay any attention to me."
She looked at him very gravely. Then, dropping her eyes, she took some papers from the desk, went to a filing cabinet, deposited them with care in their allotted places, and slowly went back to her desk. As she went, turned she did not again raise her eyes to his.

"Have you thought of what we talked about last night?" she asked.
She made him most uncomfortable. He had begun to wonder, for the first time in his life, if, possibly, he did not have a conscience. He had never taken any obligation very seriously; suddenly it seemed necessary for him to consider many things with solemn, pondering mind. He did not like it. It distinctly made him nervous. What was the use of being heir to all his uncle's property if riches brought the very thing which he had thought they might preserve him from—dull care?
"Oh, I had an awful night," he mourned. "I could have slept this morning, but the Ladies Aid began to rehearse their minstrel show across the street, so I got up and ordered breakfast."
Having gone thus far he stopped, as if there could be nothing further to be said, but she did not understand the reason for his sudden silence.
"Yes," she inquired.
"Did you ever breakfast at the Grand?" he asked pathetically.
"No," she smiled.
"I dare you to!" he challenged.
"It's the best hotel in town. All the theatrical troupes stop there."
He nodded grimly. "The troupes that play in Jonesville probably deserve it."
She did not quite approve of this. She was sure that she had seen some wondrous acting there in Jonesville. Had she not wept her eyes out over a new play, entitled "East Lynne," the previous winter? Had not another novelty, which the bills announced came straight to Jonesville from a metropolitan run of many weeks, and which was known as "The Two Orphans," held her spellbound for an evening? Had not the leading men in these productions been invariably very different in their appearance from any of the Jonesville youth, and therefore romantically attractive; had not the leading women worn enormous jewels and extraordinary, yellow hair which she had envied fiercely? Her own hair was rich, dark brown.
She looked at him somewhat roidly. It was plainly time to turn from gossip to pure business.
"I've worked all the morning with the auditor upon a statement which shows the year's business up to the first of this month," she notified him gravely. From an upper drawer of the big desk at which she had been seated she secured a long, formidable-looking paper and, rising, approached him with it. "Do you care to go over it now?"
He eyed it askance, as if it might have been a dangerous thing and liable to sting. Business! Should he ever really discover how to feel the slightest interest in it or understanding of it? What a tiresome looking thing it was.
"No, not right now," he told her. Almost shivering. "I—Mr. Wallace promised to do all that for me."

She put the statement back into her desk, a little disappointed. "Then he'll be here this morning?"
"Yes, he'll be here right away. He had to go to the barber shop." He laughed. "I shave myself, thank God!" he added fervently.
Her manner now became more serious and rather puzzling. It was not as if he had done anything which displeased her, it was not even as if she thought he might; it was only that of the delightful woman who is wondering if, presently, she may not think he might. She was not suspicious, she knew it; men always know when women are beginning to wonder if they had not better very soon begin to wonder. It's the only intuition mere men have.
Presently, while he waited, acutely conscious that some unpleasant element had entered into the situation, but densely ignorant of its character; and while she calmly went about the business of her office management, at which, it may as well be stated now as ever, she showed unmistakable signs of a perfect competence, she went to a completed filing cabinet, extracted from it certain other papers, carried them across the room to the desk near which he had found a seat, laid them on that desk, then slowly turned and faced him.
"Do you know that Mr. Pembroke, of the Consolidated, is here in town?"
To her great satisfaction, which she would not for the world have admitted, he did not hesitate before he answered; he did not try to beat around the bush; he indulged in no evasions or delays of any kind whatever.
"Yes, I know it," he said promptly.
It may be that some detail in his tone or manner reassured her, at any rate her voice, when she spoke next, was free from a certain icy hint of criticism which undoubtedly had crept into it.
"Did he come here with you?"
"No; he followed me here."
"Have you seen him?" She made no attempt to offer an excuse for cross-examining him; she evidently asked the question as an interested party who has a right to be informed. Was she not a citizen of Jonesville and an employe of the Jones Pepsin Gum Company?
"No; I have not seen him, but Mr. Wallace saw him last night and turned down his offer, too."
Instantly the reserve, which, intangible but perceptible, had affected her, dropped from her. She was no longer in the least suspicious.
"Oh, I'm so glad!" she exclaimed cordially.
But he failed to note this circumstance; he failed to ward against oncoming danger. As a matter of fact he was not thinking of her as an employe of the Jones company; he was not thinking about Jonesville, he was considering his own pressing need for money and the delightful possibility that through Pembroke, in one way or another, that need must be relieved. He rose and paced the floor with light and hopeful tread, wholly without apprehension.
"We gave him to understand that we wouldn't sell for less than a million and a half." He said this half proudly. Then, with the accents of a hooper: "We expect him here at eleven o'clock with his answer."
Her face took on a puzzled and disapproving frown. "But you just gave your word to the men that—"
Now he spoke definitely and crisply. No one listening to him could imagine that he did not mean exactly what he said; that he had not carefully considered every meaning of each syllable that he was uttering.

HAD THE TIME OF HER LIFE
Woman in Sanitarium for Alcoholics Found Herself the Pet of All the Inmates.

"No woman knows what it means to be truly popular until she has dined at an alcoholic cure institute," a woman said. "I acknowledge that that is about the last place on earth to go to seek popularity, but a colorless woman, who unfortunately has been denied popularity elsewhere is bound to find it at the institute. I did. I was not sent up as an alcoholic. I had a relative who had been persuaded to take the cure. As I was the only person on earth who had stuck to him through thick and thin, he urged me to see him through the institute ordeal."
"I went. I ate there with him. There were 14 other patients at the table, all men. The first two days the ordeal of eating three meals a day with 15 dips sitting to the right, to the left, and in front of me nearly drove me crazy, but for the sake of my relative I stuck it out."
"Then I began to be popular. I was

BARESPHOTOSECRET

Method of Taking Multiple Photographs Is Explained.

Scheme Showing Four or Five Likenesses of Same Individual on One Plate Has Always Had Air of Mystery.

New York—The scheme of showing in a photograph four or five likenesses of one individual has always proved an attractive one because of a certain air of mystery surrounding it. To the average person it is quite mystifying how the different poses can be secured of the same individual all on one plate. The attached sketch shows how this may be effected.

There are two special mirrors with frames only on three sides, each five feet high and three feet wide, placed at an angle of about 75 degrees, the angle being formed by the edges of the glass alone.

The subject sits at a table, with his back to the camera, facing the right angle formed by the mirrors. The camera then points at the back of his head and the reproduction obtained from the combination of the mirrors results in showing on the plate a reproduction which looks as if five men were sitting at the table, each an exact duplicate of the other.

Not the least important feature of this scheme is that of securing the right light with the proper diffusion. In this case a Cooper Hewitt mercury vapor lamp is suspended directly over the man's head, and about half way between the location of the man and the mirrors. White cheese cloth is placed over the top of the mirrors in order to further increase the diffusion.

'PORT' WINE MADE IN LONDON

Spurious Article Is From Raisins and Currants, Not Portuguese Grapes.

London.—All is not port wine that is so labeled. A reporter was informed that a large quantity of spurious wine is made in London and designated "port," although neither it nor any of its ingredients has ever been near Portugal. The technical description of port wine, as given by an expert, is as follows:

"The words port or port wine when used by themselves denote a fortified wine of a particular type and having particular characteristics as to sweetness, color and bouquet. Made from fresh grapes grown in Portugal and shipped from Oporto."

This description does not apply to a large quantity of the so-called "port" wines sold in London. As a matter of fact the cheap "ports" are nearly all made in London. The manufacturers make the wine quite openly and their factories are subject to the inspection of excise officials, but as they make it from dried currants or raisins and use in the manufacture a certain amount of real port wine they avoid the payment of import duties.

THE KERRVILLE ADVANCE

Published Every Thursday at Kerrville, Texas, by T. A. Buckner.

SUBSCRIPTION $1.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

Entered in the U. S. Mails as second class matter at Kerrville, Texas, on Oct. 17, 1912, according to act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Bluff and Bluster

Last Saturday, after long advertising, there was a state rally of the Ferguson forces at Dallas, and from the daily papers it appears that the crowd numbered not more than 1500. According to the Express and Light, San Antonio was to send out a special train carrying 200 or more, but the Light admits that there were only 25 from that city and claims that 20 of the 25 are for Slaton for Congress. It is claimed, however, that the meeting made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers, and Gov. Colquitt, Col. Jake Wolters, Jonathan Lane, and others claim Ferguson's nomination.

While the Ferguson forces, backed by the breweries and distilleries in and out of the State, are engaging in bluff and bluster, Tom Ball, backed by the moral forces of the State and by thousands of progressive Democrats who oppose Ferguson's black pledge to veto all laws regulating the liquor traffic or prohibiting liquor contributions in politics, is steadily marching on to victory. At Palestine on Monday, Ball spoke to an audience of 3000, introduced by Ex. Gov. Campbell, and wherever he speaks he meets with large audiences and great enthusiasm.

Rev. Hubert D. Knickerbocker of Waco, who is called by Mr. Ferguson the "biggest Methodist preacher in Texas," favors Col. Ball for Governor, and says, speaking of Mr. Ferguson: "A man that in the face of the ruthless, death-dealing, heartbreaking ravages of the liquor traffic, will promise to let it alone, has got something the matter with his heart. A man that will seriously propose to emancipate all the tenant farmers by such a plan as Mr. Ferguson's land rent regulation scheme, has got something the matter with his head."

Uvalde County is to vote on a $180,000 bond issue next week for public road and bridge purposes. Uvalde is a progressive county and her people will no doubt take advantage of this opportunity to improve her public highways. The two papers in the county are heartily in favor of the bond issue and that is a good sign.

Burn-'Em-Up Style Oratory.

Clarence Dubose, staff correspondent for the Dallas News thus described the Ferguson rally held at Dallas last Saturday:

C. C. McDonald of El Paso and State Senator T. H. McGregor of Austin, who are particularly well known for their "burn-'em-up" style of stump oratory, gave the crowd just what it wanted. Home and State, Dr. Rankin, Thomas B. Love, "the Colonels," and particularly Clarence Ousley and R. M. Johnston, to say nothing of Thomas H. Ball himself were discussed in blunt terms, to continuous cheering and applause and almost constant interruptions of acquiescence from those in the audience.

Gov. O. B. Colquitt and James E. Ferguson were given rounds of applause when they came upon the platform at the afternoon rally. Mr. Ferguson sat at the rear of the stage during the afternoon meeting. Gov. Colquitt sat upon the first row of stage seats, and when he arose to make his first speech for Ferguson, the Governor was given one of the most marked demonstrations of the day.

Advertising Talk.

Lack of advertising on the part of merchants in their local papers is largely responsible for big business done by mail order houses throughout the country. The mail order house man has caught the idea that there is virtue in printer's ink, and he works it to the limit. By judicious advertising they make the people want what they have to sell.

The best plan to combat the scheme is for merchants to wake up and use the columns of their local papers. The live newspaper man is not slow to see this, and is putting the proposition up to his local merchants, with good effect.

When tyranny and injustice ruled the people were bossed by feudal lords and barons, and "masterless men" were like stray dogs and subject to be kicked or shot. But since the great principle was established on American soil that government derives its powers only from the people and not from kings, lords and barons, "Masterless men" are men who are their own masters and who do their own thinking, and they are the masters of political lords and bosses.

Barksdale is to have a newspaper. Editor Dollahite is moving the Lytle Herald plant to that place and Lytle is without a newspaper.

For Sheriff and Tax-Collector

The Advance is authorized to announce GEORGE MCELROY as a candidate for the office of Sheriff and Tax-Collector of Kerr County at the ensuing November election

Good roads always contribute to the social advancement of the community. While the towns and cities are greatly benefited by good roads leading from the country to the towns and cities, rural people are beneficiaries, farmers not only advance on account of the saving in marketing their products, but they improve their social, educational and religious standing, because of good roads. Really there is no argument for poor roads, nor against building and maintaining good roads.

Courtesy means keeping your troubles to yourself. And yet a good many people who would apologize profusely for stepping on another's corns, or even stumbling against him, will not hesitate to pelt him with a recital of so many miseries that at its conclusion he feels inwardly bruised and sore. If politeness forbids our causing another any physical discomfort, it doubly forbids making him miserable by loading him by the story of our troubles.

After hearing speeches from C. C. McDonald, Barry Miller, T. H. McGregor and O. B. Colquitt at the Dallas Ferguson rally Saturday some of the delegates returned to their homes with the story that the Temple candidate would be elected by a majority of 75,000 to 100,000. The figures are about right but the majority will be for Ball instead of Ferguson. Mark the prediction.

The farmer who lives on a first class road and provides his family with a telephone and an automobile has solved the problem of having the advantages of the town or city without going to the trouble of moving in.

BURNETT IMMIGRATION BILL HAS HARD TIME GETTING THROUGH SENATE.

SENTIMENT AIDS POLITICS

Secret But Persistent Opposition to Clause Which Provides for the Exclusion of All Defectives From Other Lands.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—There are bunkers, pits and hazards in the senate in the way of the safe passage of the immigration restriction bill introduced by Representative Burnett of Alabama...

Webb Succeeds Clayton. Representative Clayton, the author of the anti-trust bills which bear his name, has been appointed to a federal judgeship...

Mr. Wilson at that time saved the situation for Leader Underwood, because if Mr. Clayton, conservative Democrat, had entered the senatorial fight...

Oppose Inflation Immigration. The senate has just received a report from the committee on immigration of the American Genetic association...

Much Milder Antagonism. Curiously enough there is antagonism which shows itself in subtle ways to the provision of this bill which would make it virtually impossible for defective aliens to come into the United States...

Pay for Space, Not Weight. While the commissioners have kept to themselves the actual details of the report, it is known that its main feature is a proposal to substitute payment to the railroads for space instead of for weight of the mails...

Investigation. It is said, showed the railroads would be obliged to carry at least 7 per cent of mail stuff free, thus imposing a loss of 14 per cent upon them during the first two years of trial.

About Anti-Trust Bills. Is President Wilson to win his fight in the senate for anti-trust legislation? There is every evidence at this writing that the measure will go through the house of representatives...

Some men in Washington say it will make precious little difference to the trusts of the country whether Mr. Wil-

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By O. E. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

LESSON FOR JUNE 21 THE GREAT REFUSAL.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-22. GOLDEN TEXT—"Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Luke 16:13. (Read also entire verse.)

The story of this rich young ruler is one out of the ministry of our Lord that has made an indelible impression throughout every succeeding generation. This is so because it is so vital, vibrant and vivid a revelation of our every-day experience.

I. An Eager Young Man, vv. 17-22. This man is an arresting figure. Much may be said in his favor: (1) He was young (Matt. 19:22); (2) He was in earnest, "came running" (v. 17); (3) He was educated, "a lawyer" (v. 17); (4) He was rich, Mark 10:22; (5) He was loved by Jesus, Mark 10:21. That he had lived a clean life is revealed by the answers he made to Jesus. Moreover he must have been a man of some courage, belonging as he did to the ruling class, the Pharisees, yet he came running into the presence of Jesus and cast himself at his feet.

II. The Master's Exhortation, vv. 23-31. As a great teacher and philosopher Jesus took this occasion to point out the perils of riches. Nearly every man is willing to run the risk. We have, however, but to look about us to see illustration after illustration of the truth of these words. "How hardly" increased wealth, decreased piety. "How hardly" men seek to tone down this picture, but have no right so to do. The only safety is found in the words of verse 27, "with God all things are possible."

III. The Master's Exhortation, vv. 32-34. As a great teacher and philosopher Jesus took this occasion to point out the perils of riches. Nearly every man is willing to run the risk. We have, however, but to look about us to see illustration after illustration of the truth of these words. "How hardly" increased wealth, decreased piety. "How hardly" men seek to tone down this picture, but have no right so to do.

IV. The Master's Exhortation, vv. 35-37. As a great teacher and philosopher Jesus took this occasion to point out the perils of riches. Nearly every man is willing to run the risk. We have, however, but to look about us to see illustration after illustration of the truth of these words. "How hardly" increased wealth, decreased piety. "How hardly" men seek to tone down this picture, but have no right so to do.

V. The Master's Exhortation, vv. 38-40. As a great teacher and philosopher Jesus took this occasion to point out the perils of riches. Nearly every man is willing to run the risk. We have, however, but to look about us to see illustration after illustration of the truth of these words. "How hardly" increased wealth, decreased piety. "How hardly" men seek to tone down this picture, but have no right so to do.

VI. The Master's Exhortation, vv. 41-43. As a great teacher and philosopher Jesus took this occasion to point out the perils of riches. Nearly every man is willing to run the risk. We have, however, but to look about us to see illustration after illustration of the truth of these words. "How hardly" increased wealth, decreased piety. VII. The Master's Exhortation, vv. 44-46. As a great teacher and philosopher Jesus took this occasion to point out the perils of riches. Nearly every man is willing to run the risk. We have, however, but to look about us to see illustration after illustration of the truth of these words. "How hardly" increased wealth, decreased piety. AN APPEAL TO WOMEN

By One Who, From Her Past Experience, is Capable of Giving Sound Advice.

Bud, Ky.—"I want to urge all weak women," says Mrs. Lizzie R. Barker, of this place, "to give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a fair trial, for I believe it will do for them what it has done for me.

I was a sufferer for 13 years, with such pains I could scarcely walk or stand on my feet. I had headaches, dizziness and fainting spells.

After many treatments failed to help me, my husband persuaded me to give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial, and I did so. Now I feel like a new woman. I am well of all these troubles, and can do all my household work, with pleasure.

When I commenced taking Cardui, I was not able to sit up. Now I am enjoying good health and do all of my work.

I shall keep Cardui in my home all the time. There is not any medicine that equals it for women."

We also, urge you to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, for your troubles. It has helped so many thousands of women in the past half century that we feel sure it will help you, too.

Prepared from perfectly harmless, vegetable ingredients, Cardui is the remedy for you to use. It can do you nothing but good.

Try it.—Adv.

WILLING TO GIVE AWAY PAPA

Youthful Logician Met Appeal to His Generosity With a Crushing Answer.

A mother was urging her little son to be generous, specifically in the case of a small comrade not well endowed with worldly goods.

"I wish you'd give your little wagon to Melville," she suggested. "He has so few toys and you have so many."

"I don't want to, mamma. I like my little wagon. Why doesn't his papa buy toys for him?"

"He has no papa, dear. That is the reason why I want you to be so particularly nice to him. It would be no virtue in you to give him what you don't want anyway. We should always be careful to share what we really prize. Now, as I say, Melville has no papa and—"

"Well, why don't you give him papa, then?" was the youthful logician's reply.

Useful Knowledge.

The very young lady was showing her school friend from another city about her native town. Presently the pair came to a little square adorned with a statue of the local Civil war hero.

"It isn't very much to boast of as art," said the sophisticated young chit, "but it's important to know about it because one usually asks one to meet one here."

Would Not Be Recognized.

"Oh, dear me!" wailed a telement mother, happening upon a sympathetic neighbor. "I'm in such trouble! My little Willie's got himself lost!"

"Well, don't worry," consoled the neighbor. "He'll soon be found. Everybody about the place knows him."

"But not today, I'm fearing. You see, he's just been washed."

EYE STRAIN Relieved by Quitting Coffee.

Many cases of defective vision are caused by the habitual use of coffee. It is said that in Arabia where coffee is used in large quantities, many lose their eyesight at about fifty. Tea contains the same drug, caffeine, as coffee.

A N. J. woman writes to the point concerning eye troubles and coffee. She says:

"My son was for years troubled with his eyes. He tried several kinds of glasses without relief. The optician said there was a defect in his eyes which was hard to reach.

"He used to drink coffee, as we all did, and finally quit it and began to use Postum. That was three years ago and he has not had to wear glasses and has had no trouble with his eyes since.

"I was always fond of tea and coffee and finally became so nervous I could hardly sit still long enough to eat a meal. My heart was in such a condition I thought I might die at any time.

"Medicine did not give me relief and I was almost desperate. It was about this time we decided to quit coffee and use Postum, and have used it ever since. I am in perfect health. No trouble now with my heart and never felt better in my life.

"Postum has been a great blessing to us all, particularly to my son and myself."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. Austin, Tex.—The supreme court overruled the permission to file a petition to fill the Pierce Oil Corporation against the secretary of the issuance of the supreme court, where the next step will be to the supreme court, where the next step will be to the supreme court, where the next step will be to the supreme court.

OIL CO. CAN'T RE-ENTER STATE

SUPREME COURT HOLDS AGAINST THE PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

Denied Petition to File Mandamus. Permission Was Sought by Corporation to Re-Enter State.

Austin, Tex.—The supreme court Wednesday overruled the petition for permission to file mandamus by the Pierce Oil Corporation of Virginia against the secretary of state to refuse the issuance of permit to do business in Texas.

In refusing to permit the petition to be filed, the court sustained the opinion of the attorney general to the secretary of state holding that the Texas statute forbids a permit being issued to a corporation in the class of that petitioning because it is a successor to the ousted Waters Pierce Oil Company and took over its property, assets and business.

Thereafter a law was passed forbidding a permit to be issued to a corporation which succeeds to the property and business of a corporation so convicted. The validity of this act is sustained by Wednesday's decision.

Among other things, the court wrote: "As the State has the right to entirely withhold its permission for a foreign corporation to transact business within its limits, it is within the power to provide that such permission shall be denied for such cause as it may prescribe whether based upon acts within the state or without it."

Following this, the court finds that the Pierce Oil Corporation, having succeeded to the assets of the ousted Waters Pierce Oil Company, and sets itself up to conduct the business of the ousted concern, it clearly comes within the definition of the corporations described in article 7805, revised statutes, prohibiting the admittance of corporations acquiring the property and business of the convicted corporation.

This marks the second attempt of the Pierce oil interests to gain entrance to Texas, they having attempted it months before when J. F. LIGHTFOOT was attorney general, who advised that permit be not issued pending an investigation to determine to what extent the new concern had acquired the property and business of the ousted corporation.

Penny Postage Is Not Wanted.

Austin, Tex.—The Travis County rural mail carries in session Monday went on record as opposing penny postage, as being in opposition to any reduction in postage until postal employees are paid "a living wage," as favoring better roads in Travis County, and they also recommended that the laws be amended so as to exempt rural carriers from jury service.

AUSTIN GETS NEXT LABOR CONVENTION.

The Seventeenth Annual Convention of the State Federation of Labor Adjourns at El Paso.

El Paso, Tex.—With the election of officers and the selection of Austin as the 1915 meeting place, the seventeenth annual convention of the State Federation of Labor passed into history when it adjourned sine die Friday. The following officers were elected:

President, Edward Cunningham of Bridgeport; secretary-treasurer, Geo. H. Slater, Galveston; chairman executive committee, T. C. Jennings, Beaumont; reading clerk, T. O. Riley, Fort Arthur; sergeant at arms, Howard Broyles, Dallas; delegate to American Federation of Labor convention, H. O. Gossett, Fort Worth; vice presidents, C. F. Kirk of Austin, C. E. Drake of Beaumont, W. H. Moore of Dallas, H. Ketchell of Denison, John R. Redmon of El Paso, T. E. Bays of Fort Worth, J. W. Young of Galveston, M. B. Gleason of Houston, B. R. Tomkinson of Palestine, Jess Forehand of San Antonio, William Alexander of Sherman, C. Corneliusson of Waco, J. A. Burton of Wichita Falls, F. S. Caro of Throckmley and J. C. Schmitt of Marshall; members of executive committee, Miss Eva Goldsmith of Houston, J. K. Ogle of Sherman, H. Ferguson of Thurber and C. S. Kellum of Austin.

The real contest developed over the selection of a delegate to the American Federation of Labor.

W. E. Carroll placed the name of W. A. Goode of Dallas in nomination for the place. Delegate Murphy of El Paso nominated H. O. Gossett of Fort Worth, and R. H. Campbell of Dallas seconded the nomination of Mr. Gossett, and in doing so said the Dallas delegation did not sanction the nomination of Delegate Goode. A Ludgate of Galveston nominated Captain E. W. Bock of Galveston.

The first ballot, resulted in no election, there not being a majority of the votes cast received by either of the three candidates. Gossett received 176 votes, Goode 169 and Bock 70 under the rules of the federation, Bock, who received the smallest vote, was dropped on the second ballot. This resulted in the election of Gossett, who received 206 votes and Goode 170.

There was a hot fight for the next convention, which was won by Austin, the entire Galveston delegation supporting the Capital City.

SCORED ONE ON HIS RIVAL

Brown Had Overlooked Leap Year and Jones Was Quick to Mark the Point.

Irving Fletcher, the well-known advertising expert, said at an advertising men's dinner at Delmonico's in New York:

"A good advertisement never lies. It never deceives. For it can only pay by making life patrons, not transient ones."

"A good advertisement never lies, but it states its case as strongly as possible, and it avails itself of every point, however slight. There it is like young Jones."

Young Jones proposed at Lake wood to a pretty girl, but she said uncertainly, swinging her slim foot in and out of her slashed skirt: "I like you, Mr. Jones. But, then, I like Mr. Brown, too. And Mr. Brown is so devoted. He says he thinks of me 365 days in the year."

Poetic Tragedy.

"Bill," the poet gazed, staggering into his friend's room.

"Why, what's wrong?" the friend inquired, startled as he grasped hold of the tottering man.

"Wrong!" the poet muttered. "Ye Gods! I wrote a poem about my little boy. I began the first verse with these lines:

"My son! My pigmy, counterpart? "Yes? Yes?"

The poet drew a long, long breath as he took a new snuff out of his pocket.

"Read!" he blazed suddenly. "See what the criminal compositor did to my opening line."

"My son! my pig, my counterpart!" National Monthly.

Why Not Armor for Every Bullet?

An ingenious New York doctor has invented a bichloride of mercury tablet in which the antidote is combined with the poison, so that a person may swallow corrosive sublimate, intentionally or accidentally, with immunity.

It's a capital idea, and ought to be applied to poisons generally, and possibly Maxin might find some way of applying the principle to frearums. An automatic, self-resisting bullet, or something of that sort, would be of much greater utility than his silencer.

When I look at another woman I can't help thinking how much more beautiful she is than any of them. When the wind blows I am reminded that it is probably adding to the color of her cheeks. Whenever I pass a corner where she and I have stood together I have a strange empty feeling as if something were gone out of my life."

"When I look up at the sky, I cannot keep from remembering that it is above her. If I could only forget her for only a day, for only an hour, I think I might learn to hope again; but I can't get her out of my mind. It seems to me that the whole world is changed since she told me that I was never to see her again. I can't understand how anybody manages to keep on being happy. I would give almost anything to forget her." Chicago Record-Herald.

I could not put them in water nor do my regular work."

"I tried medicine and several different kinds of cream on them but they got worse instead of better. Nothing did me any good until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. And now my hands are perfectly well and all right." (Signed) Miss Ellen Tudor, Nov. 19, 1912.

A Rare, Rare Man.

William H. Hamby, short story writer and novelist, is a great lover of folks and makes friends with all sorts and conditions of men. One day while on an outing in the Ozarks he got a hill billy who was something of a character to accompany him on a fishing excursion in order to study the fish. The two men spent the day in the woods together and returned to camp old friends and then Mr. Hamby learned that he was not the only one on the expedition who had been studying his companion. As they shook hands in parting the hill billy said:

"I taken a likk' to yuh, but yuh shore be the queerest man I ever see. I've noticed you all day, an' yuh ain't took a drink, yuh ain't took a smoke an' yuh ain't cussed." Kansas City Star.

Pets and Broken Hearts

The dog of Mistral, the Provencal poet, died the day after Mistral's recent death. It is a fairly common thing for dogs, cats, canaries and other pets to die a few days or even hours after their masters. But do they die of grief? It is not likely. A Manayunk physician examined the corpse of a canary that had succumbed with its little mistress. The canary's death, the examination showed, was due not to a broken heart, but to scarlet fever, the malady to which its little mistress had herself succumbed.

From this and from kindred post-mortems it is surmised that pets, when they die simultaneously with their owners, have become infected with the disease that carried their owners off—measles, diphtheria, typhoid. The death-from-grief story is pretty, but, alas, it won't wash.

Skimpy.

A contributor to the American Magazine, tells the following story: "A clerk in one of the great jewelry stores on Fifth avenue in New York city exhibited to a rich and weary customer a lady's handbag, five inches square, made of platinum and fairly well covered on one side only with diamonds. The price was $9,000. The fact that one side only was covered with diamonds troubled the customer. Turning the handbag around and around, and looking at it from all sides over and over, he finally said, 'Very pretty—really. But I don't like one side without diamonds. Honestly, the thing looks skimpy—rather skimpy.' At an additional expense of $7,000 this difficulty was removed."

The Source of Uric Acid

Eating too much is a common habit that does a lot of harm. Meat, especially, forms uric acid and the constant dieting of acid-laden blood weakens the kidneys, rheumatoid causes rheumatic and nervous trouble, weakens the eyes, forms gravel and leads to dropsy and Bright's disease. Kidney weakness gives early warnings, however, such as backache and urinary disorders and can be stopped by prompt treatment. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended and most widely used kidney remedy.

KERRVILLE

Is the county seat of Kerr County, has a population of about 3500, is situated 70 miles northwesterly from San Antonio, and is the terminus of the Kerrville branch of the S. A. & A. P. railroad. It has two daily trains, to and from San Antonio, and daily mail routes, carrying passengers in hacks, to Ingram, Junction, Rock Springs Harper and other places north and west of Kerrville, and also a daily line to Fredericksburg. From Kerrville to Fredericksburg is 25 miles; to Bandera and Medina City, 25 miles; to Junction 60 miles; Rock Springs 80 miles, Harper 21 miles.

Kerrville has electric lights and a splendid system of water works. The sum of $20,000 is being spent on the streets and $10,000 has been voted for road improvements in this precinct.

The elevation at Kerrville is 1250 feet. The Guadalupe river, which heads 30 miles north of Kerrville, runs through the city. On the east side where the city is located, there are high bluffs on the river, and on the west side is a fertile and beautiful valley, and mountains surround the city on the east and west. The Guadalupe valley is occupied by thrifty farmers and ranchmen, and the mountain regions, among which there is considerable valley, creek and arable land, there are large ranches of cattle, horses, sheep and goats, all of which do well in the Kerrville country. The land generally is well wooded, principally with live oak, Spanish oak and cedar, and the range is good, and water excellent.

Our farmers grow wheat, oats and all other small grain, cane and alfalfa, cotton and corn, and fruit and vegetables do well. Kerrville is one of the largest wool markets in the state, and large quantities of wool, mohair, cotton, oats, cattle, etc., are shipped from this point.

The climate of the Kerrville country is unsurpassed. The winters are short and generally mild and invigorating owing to the dryness of the climate and the prevalence of sunshine. The summers are cool and delightful, and the mountain air is pure and bracing. Game abounds in the Kerrville country, and fishing in the Guadalupe, especially north of Kerrville, is good. Kerrville and the adjoining towns are popular resorts for health and recreation.

The Kerrville Commercial Club, any of the different Realty Companies or any of our citizens will be pleased to give prospective residents or visitors further information.
