B. Y. P. U. Social

On last Friday evening the monthly social of the Baptist Young Peoples Union was held in the Sunday School Auditorium. After an entertaining program, rendered by the young people, consisting of Piano and vocal solos and readings, two amusing contests were had for which prizes in the form of jokes were given. The Anatomy contest was very funny, the prize being awarded to Mr. Howard first and the booby to Sidney Deering and partner.

The other contest was one for which each guest was asked to bring their picture taken when they were youngest, these were numbered and all were required to guess the identity of the photos. Some laughable stakes were made. The prizes were presented to Lewie Moore and Miss Newman and Walter Coleman and partner. At the close of this, refreshments of hot chocolate and cake were served. Over 50 were present. These socials are given with the intention of developing the social life of the B. Y. P. U. and their friends are cordially welcome.

RAILROADS APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

The Common Carriers Ask for Relief—President Wilson Directs Attention of Public to Their Needs.

The committee of railroad executives, headed by Mr. Frank Trumbull, representing thirty-five of the leading railroad systems of the nation, recently presented to President Wilson a memorandum briefly reviewing the difficulties now confronting the railroads of the country and asking for the co-operation of the governmental authorities and the public in supporting railroad credits and recognizing an emergency which requires that the railroads be given additional revenues.

The memorandum recites that the European war has resulted in general depression of business on the American continent and in the dislocation of credits at home and abroad. With revenues decreasing and interest rates increasing the transportation systems of the country face a most serious crisis and the memorandum is a strong presentation of the candle burning at both ends and the perils that must ultimately attend such a conflagration when the flames meet is apparent to all. In their general discussion the railroad representatives say in part: "By reason of legislation and regulation by the Federal Government and the forty-eight states acting independently of each other, as well as through the action of a strong public opinion, railroad expenses in recent years have vastly increased. No criticism is here made of the general theory of governmental regulation, but on the other hand, no ingenuity can relieve the carriers of expenses created thereby."

President Wilson, in transmitting the memorandum of the railroad presidents to the public, characterizes it as "a lucid statement of plain truth." The President recognizing the emergency as extraordinary, continuing, said in part:

"You ask me to call the attention of the country to the imperative need that railway credits be sustained and the railroads helped in every possible way, whether by private co-operative effort or by the action, wherever feasible of governmental agencies and I am glad to do so because I think the need very real."

The conference was certainly a fortunate one for the nation and the President is to be congratulated for opening the gate to a new world of effort in which everyone may co-operate.

Y. W. A. of Kerrville

The Young Woman's Auxiliary of Kerrville met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Boyd Jetton.

A very interesting and helpful program was rendered, the subject being "Missions." Some of the many good works which have been accomplished in Burma, China, and Cuba were discussed. One of the most interesting features was a real letter from China, read by Mrs. A. P. Robb.

Three new members were also received. Then followed a liberal free will offering.

Delicious refreshments were served, after which we adjourned to meet Dec. 3, at the Sunday School Auditorium.

A REMARKABLE WAR STORY

Frederick Palmer Now Witnessing Fulfillment of Prophecy Described in "The Last Shot."

Frederick Palmer, the author of the remarkable story, "The Last Shot," is a typical cosmopolitan. He not only knows war and the men who make war, but he knows the world and has been practically all over it.

Mr. Palmer is a native of Pennsylvania, born at Pleasantville in that state in 1873. He was residing in England at the time the Greco-Turkish war of 1895 began and went to the front as a correspondent. At the close of this war he went to the Klondike as a correspondent. He was in the Orient in 1898 when the war between the United States and Spain began, and was with Admiral Dewey at the battle of Manila, reporting it for the London Times and a number of American newspapers. He remained with the American army in the Philippines throughout the campaign against Aguinaldo. When the international expedition for the rescue of the foreign residents in Peking was organized at the time of the Boxer uprising in China he joined it in the capacity of a correspondent for his papers.

From 1900 to 1903 Mr. Palmer saw service in the Central and South American and the Macedonian insurrections. With the breaking out of war between Japan and Russia he joined the first Japanese army in the field as the representative of the London Times and Collier's Weekly, and was almost the only correspondent who saw active service with the Japanese army. He was in Constantinople during the Turkish revolution of 1909, and was with the Bulgarian army throughout the Balkan war of 1912-13.

In addition to this active career as a war correspondent, Mr. Palmer has circled the globe with Admiral Dewey, and again with the American battleship fleet in 1907-8. He is familiar with every capital of Europe, and has a personal acquaintance with a very large number of prominent European government officials and military and naval commanders.

Mr. Palmer is now at the front reporting the present war for the papers he represents, and is witnessing the fulfillment of the prophecy contained in his notable story, "The Last Shot."

We have arranged to print Mr. Palmer's remarkable story, "The Last Shot" serially in these columns.

There are many important problems in our complex civilization that will yield to co-operation which will not lend themselves to arbitrary rulings of commissions and financing railroads is one of them. The man with the money is a factor that cannot be eliminated from any business transaction, and the public is an interested party that should always be consulted and happily the President has invited all to participate in the solution of our railroad problems.

The enormous gas flow in the well of the White Point Oil and Gas company at the White Point field, eight miles north of Corpus Christi, continued unabated and with such fury that oil men are unable to curb it. TEXAS FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

ADOPT MANY RESOLUTIONS OF WIDE RANGE FOR BETTERMENT OF CONDITIONS.

FAVORING PRISON REFORMS

Compulsory Education, Child Labor Laws, Protection for Girls Traveling to Frisco Exposition, Protection of Bird Species, Etc.

Galveston, Tex.—The seventeenth annual convention of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs adjourned on Friday morning, after passing resolutions favoring prison reform, a campaign for compulsory education and child labor laws, the apportionment of half the fund provided under the Smith-Lever act for the instruction of women in home economics, opposing partisan politics in state educational institutions, pledging the moral support of the federation to the work of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, approving action by the federated clubs looking to the protection of girls traveling unattended to San Francisco exposition in 1915, approving the good roads movement and the protection of bird species in Texas.

The convention also adopted a constitution and by-laws presented by Mrs. J. C. Terrell of Marshall and instructed its members to let the regents of the University of Texas know that the federation wanted equal rights for boys and girls in State University courses.

Professor E. H. Shurtler of the University of Texas public speaking department told of the work of the inter-scholastic league in enlightening the general public in educational work. Reports on the work of the federation in Texas toward universal peace and improved kindergartens were given by Mrs. Mary L. Christensen of Port Arthur and Mrs. A. B. Griffith of Terrell.

The convention did not bind its committees to work for all the resolutions adopted. Some of them were referred to the executive board with instructions to consider the advisability of active support. Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, in urging that some of the measures be left to the discretion of the executive committee, said that her purpose in making this request was to avoid overloading the legislative committee with work which might lessen the effectiveness of their campaign for compulsory education, child labor laws, and other immediate necessities. Referring the resolutions to the executive committee did not mean, she said, that they would be tabled, for by their passage they were given the moral support of the federation.

Resolutions which were so referred were the resolution asking members to write their state representative to vote for an increased appropriation for the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, the resolutions on prison reform, good roads and the conservation of birds.

In the resolution on prison reform, abolition of capital punishment, and of the fee system was advocated and manual training and better quarters for convicts favored.

Other resolutions passed favored the standardization of music teachers in the state, the election of women to school boards and the appointment of a state woman inspector of schools. Governor Colquitt had requested the federation to work for the establishment of hospitals in each county, and the movement was given the moral support of the federation. A resolution favoring the establishment of a federation magazine was passed. The report on resolutions was read by Mrs. J. I. McDowell of Big Springs.

Millinery to Sparkle With the Frost

ALTHOUGH the small hat has triumphed for four seasons it shows not the slightest sign of losing ground. And for midwinter, with fur a furure and many brilliant trimming novelties at the milliner's hand, the small hat cannot be outtrived for beauty. Velvet and furs look unusually well with the many metallic trimmings which will sparkle along with the frost as long as winter lasts. Besides the endless number of turban shapes there are small hats with straight brims, made of metallic net or lace, and velvet crowns for those who prefer brimmed shapes to the turban. Among the most elegant of models are those having half the brim of velvet, bordered with a wide flange of silver or gold lace or net, and the crown of velvet. For a hat of this kind the trimming is often a collar of mink or ermine or fitch. Sometimes a big floral bound with fur, having each petal bound with fur, is used for garniture, and sometimes brilliant silk and velvet roses are used. Hats of this kind are rather difficult to make and require perfect workmanship and the best material. Occasionally a moderately wide-brimmed hat emphasizes just how becoming the brimmed hat can be. Usually it is trimmed with a broad band of ostrich. An example of this style is shown in the picture, and for shape and manner of trimming it cannot be improved upon. In the pretty velvet turban at the right a narrow fringe of curled ostrich extends about the top of the coronet and the edge of the crown. An applique of fancy braid gives a touch of color at the side. Metallic ribbons are used in bows to finish turbans of this kind. This is an excellent model for women of middle age. More distinctly suited to the matronly wearer is the turban with a wide fur band about the coronet, headed with a band of steel beads. The crown is extended to simulate a loop of velvet at the center and overhangs the coronet at the back like a tam. This method of draping the crown gives the turban the necessary height. A collar of white fox fur is effectively worn with this smartly designed hat. Collars and boas of ostrich serve the purpose of fur. They are made in many colors and combinations of colors and are very popular.

To Be Worn With Tailored Suits

THE making of neckwear has grown into a business of really great magnitude, and those who manufacture collars and frills for the necks of women kind keep designers as busy as those who create millinery. These designers follow the trend of fashion, but must produce variations in all types of neckwear that will captivate by their daintiness and beauty and have something of novelty to recommend them. Just now there are several distinct types of collars that are fashionable, leading off with the De Medici type, which will maintain its supremacy. Then there are roll-over and turn-over collars, and those that take their inspiration from the sailor collar. Added to these are frills that extend all around or only part way around the neck. These several types are elaborated in all sorts of ways. There are medic collars with veestes, others with capes, and still others combined with berthas. And they are made of lace or net or sheer embroidery or organdie, embellished with fine, narrow laces with hemstitching, tucks or cords. All other types are made with as great variety in construction and material. In finishing neck frills, velvet and satin ribbons and ribbon flowers are added to them, while the medic and sailor types, with turn-over and roll-over collars, indulge in fine embroidery, in evenly laid tucks, and in inserted cords, with hemstitching and

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director Sunday School Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 29

CHRIST CRUCIFIED.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 15:22-29. (Luke 23:39-43). GOLDEN TEXT—Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.—Isa. 53:4.

Last Sunday we saw Jesus on trial before Gentile power. Today's lesson brings us to the central event of his saving mission to men. We must read all four accounts of this event attentively, reverently, humbly, for it cannot be treated even as other events in the life of our Lord.

I. The Procession to Calvary, v. 21. 'Twas a physically exhausted Christ that left the judgment hall. A night of vigil, mocking, buffeting and without food since the previous evening left him too weak to bear the cross. Then it was that a son of Africa, Simon of Cyrene, was "impressed" to bear the burden. The Romans demanded that the victim bear his own cross. He accepted the human help, but refused the aid of the drug, Matt. 27:34. Luke gives us at this point the incident of the weeping woman. Mark 15:22 seems to indicate that Jesus had to be assisted to the place of the cross.

On the Cross. II. The Place, Calvary, vv. 22-27. Here we see him, the brightness of God's glory and the express image of his person, the incarnation of truth, in whom dwelt the fullness of the God-head bodily—"crucified." Sin has done its worst. The Scriptures are fulfilled, Ps. 22:16, Zech. 12:10. It was necessary for our salvation that he should die exactly as he did, Gal. 3:10, 12; John 3:14; Deut. 21:22. Deeply the parting of his garments was prophesied, Ps. 22:18. The presence of two malefactors had also been foretold, Isa. 53:9, 12.

III. The Passers-by at Calvary, vv. 28-32. The people and the priests joined in heaping scorn upon him. Even those that were crucified with him "reproached him." Yet he loved them all. There seem to have been no gibes for the two thieves, John 19:19, II Tim. 3:12. The cry of the mob now is, "save, thyself" (v. 30), "Twas spoken in mockery, but it was necessary for the good shepherd to give his life for the sheep, John 10:11, and by no means to use his power in saving himself. They did not believe in him after the resurrection of Lazarus; is it to be believed that they would have accepted him had he "saved himself"? To have saved himself would have been for him to take himself out of the hands of God—an act of disobedience.

IV. The Person on Calvary, vv. 33-40. In the midst of this awful scene, in the confusion of the mingled cry of the mob, there is sounded one note of triumph. As Jesus was thus "lifted up from the earth" (John 12:32), one of those, his companions, ceased to revile him, and cried out, "Art thou the Christ?" and, to be literal, "If so, save us." The other seems to have had his vision cleared, for he rebukes his fellow criminal by saying that their condemnation was a just reward for their deeds. Turning to Jesus he exclaims, "Remember me . . . in thy kingdom." The answer was immediate and significant, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise." This is a graphic illustration of the whole meaning and symbolism of the cross, in his undying hour the Savior of men loosed this sinner from his sins and granted him the right to fellowship with him in the life beyond. Jesus hung upon the cross three hours.

Bearing shame and scoffing rude, In my place condemned he stood, Sealed my pardon with his blood, Hallelujah! what a savior.

His Faith Triumphant.

Then God drew the curtain, for even he could not look upon that scene (II Cor. 5:21; Heb. 1:13). We do not believe the eclipse theory, but rather that God caused the darkness, another illustration of the closeness of man and nature, Rom. 8:20, 21 R. V. The dying cry, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me," was uttered when Jesus sensed the full and complete realization of being separated from the Father. Death is not annihilation, but separation, and Jesus was separated from God the Father because of our sins, Isa. 53:6. Yet in that terrible moment his faith does not waver, for he cries, "My God." Conscious of his personal innocence, but suffering for the sins of others, his faith is triumphant.

This lesson suggests that all who study it yield themselves to a searching self-examination. Such a manifestation of divine love should call forth our utmost confidence and our unquestioned trust in our divine redeemer. The revelation of the enormity of man's sin as seen on Calvary ought to fill us with an uncompromising hatred of sin. The story of the Savior's sufferings ought to impel us to a constant conflict with sin. Those who witnessed the event: that day saw him "stricken, smitten," but God was in him reconciling the world to himself.

CATTLE QUARANTINE NOW ON IN TEXAS

Live Stock Sanitary Commission Takes Action Against Foot and Mouth Disease.

Fort Worth, Tex.—The quarantine forbidding the importation of cattle from all states and sections in America, north and east of Texas, except Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana and Arkansas, is officially established and will be maintained and enforced by the live stock sanitary commission of Texas; with or without the indorsement of Governor Colquitt, according to W. N. Waddell, chairman of the commission. A copy of the proclamation establishing the quarantine was forwarded to the governor Saturday.

"I have refrained from commenting on the power of the commission to establish and enforce a quarantine without the indorsement of the governor," said Mr. Waddell. "However, we have accorded him the courtesy of requesting his indorsement of the quarantine and an official proclamation indorsing the quarantine desired by the commission.

"I am sure that the matter of deciding whether the quarantine is desirable and necessary will be left to the commission, because it was for this kind of work that the commission was instituted.

"I am going to do exactly what I think best and proper to protect adequately the live stock industry of Texas from all danger of the foot and mouth disease. The quarantine is being maintained and enforced by the commission.

Federal Reserve Banks Opened. Washington—Although the twelve federal reserve banks began business only Monday, the federal reserve board already has before it plans for widening their field of operations and increasing their store of cash. Telegrams began to reach the treasury department shortly after Secretary McAdoo issued his formal announcement to the banks to open their doors. They contained a federal reserve agents of all the banks telegraphing their congratulations and their promises of co-operation in making the system a success.

TEXAS FARMERS TO RAISE HORSES FOR ALL WORLD

Demand for Good Animals is Here Now and Will Continue for a Long Time to Come.

Everywhere in Texas the cotton situation occasioned by the European war has caused our farmers to consider the diversification of farm products and has especially directed their attention to the necessity of raising more live stock. Land owners as well as the real tillers of the soil have come to a recognition of this necessity, and the fact makes the brightest outlook for the future of Texas and its preponderating agricultural interests.

We have had too much of King Cotton. Formerly, before the all-prevailing sentiment in favor of raising cotton exclusively as a money crop possessed our people, one of the chief industries of Texas was the raising of horses and many breeding farms for the production of thoroughbred sires were established, but the one-crop idea of recent years has well-nigh destroyed the opportunities for breeding good horses and many of the breeding farms have gone out of existence.

Texas farmers have now, and will have for years to come, excellent opportunities to breed horses for all the world, both of the kind required for farm work and the breeding stable, and they should take advantage of the opportunity. No phase of farm life offers the pleasure, relaxation and interest to the farmer as does the breeding of a few good horses from his farm mares. The young colts are a source of perpetual interest for every member of the farmer's family from the day they are foaled until in their old age they find themselves in the far off breeding stables. Through all the vicissitudes of a thoroughbred colt's life the pride of the producer never wanes.

Safe Either Way. A farmer in a cyclone district was building a superb stone wall. He was building the wall stanch and solid, five feet across the base and four feet high. A stranger stopped his horse and said to the farmer:

"You're taking a lot of trouble with that wall."

"You bet," the farmer answered. "I'm putting her here to stay."

"What's the good of that?" sneered the stranger. "A cyclone'll come along and she'll blow over just the same."

"Well, let her," said the farmer. "She'll be a foot higher if she does."

Not to Be Thought of. "Now let us put our heads together and see if we can't arrange matters."

"Put our heads together? That would hardly do, Maude. Your green wig and my purple hair won't harmonize."

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH! IT'S MERCURY AND SALIVATES

Straighten Up! Don't Lose a Day's Work! Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels With "Dodson's Liver Tone."

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. Take a dose of the vile, dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work. Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you feel sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone. Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store or dealer and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot sallyate or make you sick. I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

FOUND TIME FOR AMENITIES

How British and Boers Exchanged Compliments During the Long Siege of Kimberley.

During the Boer war Mr. Rhodes was shut up in Kimberley, and the Boers constantly shelled the town with long-range artillery. They were not very successful, for with 300 big shells they only killed 12 people.

Meantime, Mr. Rhodes accomplished the extraordinary feat of getting a cannon built at his works inside the town. It was a regular modern rifled gun, and fired shells—also homemade—on each of which was stamped, "With compliments of C. J. Rhodes."

The Boers themselves were not without a sense of humor. During Christmas, 1899, they were besieging Ladysmith, and on Christmas eve they fired ten plugged shells into the town each with a piece of plum pudding inside, and each bearing the words, "With the season's compliments."

Two of the shells were found by the ear, and it was discovered that, like Mr. Rhodes, they were homemade, having been cast in a foundry at Johannesburg.

HOW TO HEAL SKIN AND SCALP TROUBLES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes, and similar itching skin and scalp troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stops with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.—Adv.

MADE THE VICTORY CERTAIN

Gunner's "Announcement Naturally Brought Joy to the Heart of Artillery Captain.

With a ringing cheer the enemy advanced to attack the intrenchments. "Fire!" hoarsely shouted the artillery captain, and the roar of the guns responded, but without checking the steady advance of the enemy.

One piece remained undischarged. "Why don't you fire?" demanded the captain.

"I don't know if it's loaded," responded the gunner.

A gleam of joy lit up the stern features of the commander.

"Then victory is ours!" he shouted. "Fire it and let's find out!"

The discharge mowed down the advancing column and the assault was repelled.

"Twas ever thus.

Ought to Have Been. "I wonder if there was a hot time last night."

"Where?"

"At Smith's house-warming."

Gasoline at the Poles. The Amundsen and Scott expeditions were greatly hindered through losing much of their gasoline—a loss that, in fact, had much to do with the disaster that befell Captain Scott.

Mr. B. T. Brooks of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research thinks he knows what caused the loss. At low temperatures, he says, ordinary tin tends to pulverize. At 54 degrees below zero it pulverizes quickly and may pulverize, although more slowly, at a higher temperature.

Now, hard solder usually contains a large percentage of tin, and so, of course, disintegrates in the same way. Consequently the gasoline cans are likely to leak at the soldered seams. Mr. Brooks suggests that polar explorers carry their supplies of gasoline in containers made of glass, or of some metal unaffected by extreme cold.—Youth's Companion.

For Domestic Animals. Horses, cattle and sheep are liable to sores, sprains, galls, kicks, bruises and cuts, and Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh is the standard remedy for such cases.

When you consider how valuable your stock is, having the Balsam always on hand for them is a cheap form of insurance. Adv.

Our Early Chinese Trade. The rapid growth of our early trade with China is shown by the fact that the 27 vessels carrying in 1805 nearly five and three-quarters millions' worth of goods to Canton, represented a larger fraction of our total foreign commerce than our trade with the whole of China does today.

The silver imported to balance American trade with China averaged more than two and a half millions annually in the 30 years down to 1827, and reached a maximum of seven and a half millions in 1818.—John Ford, in Youth's Companion.

WHY CATCH COLD

One-half of the Deaths and Two-thirds of the Sickness is the Direct Result of Catching Cold.

Nothing could be of greater vital interest to the family than to know how to avoid catching cold.

COLDS THAT KILL. If it be true, as one famous doctor says, that catching cold can be avoided, think what it means. Two-thirds of the sickness that now oppresses the people would be avoided. Serious interference with business. The anguish of anxious parents. The blasting of many brilliant dreams. All these things would be largely done away with if people knew how to avoid catching cold.

Catching cold is a very common experience in numerous households. People have come to believe that there is no way to avoid it.

CAN BE AVOIDED. People are taught in the "ills of Life" how to avoid the ceaseless drain that catching cold makes upon the vital organs. Get it and read it and judge for yourselves of its value and practicability. It is issued by the Peruna Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

THE KERRVILLE ADVANCE

Published Every Thursday at Kerrville, Texas, by T. A. Buckner.

SUBSCRIPTION $1.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

Entered in the U. S. Mails as second class matter at Kerrville, Texas, on Oct. 17, 1912, according to act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The most successful advertisers the world has ever known are those that advertise the most when money is scarce. Some people are always looking for bargains, but when times are hard everybody is looking for bargains.

Australia, under British government, is one of the strongest wool competitors of the United States, and England has forbidden the export of Australian wool to any other than British ports. The American demand for wool and mohair will probably consume the American crop.

"Did booze ever do you any good," is part of a sign displayed over the gates of the Illinois Steel Company. Nearly all companies have put a ban on alcoholic drinks, and at the recent "Safety First" convention in Chicago alcoholic drinks were condemned by reason of the dangers from accident and the impairment of efficiency caused by them. The North Carolina board of health has condemned their use as inimical to the public health.

The most intelligent advertisers do not now attempt, nor do they desire, to control editorial policies. They have found that such control exercised by them merely decreases the advertising value of the medium. Advertising to be effective must command the confidence of the readers. The "big" advertiser is the most intelligent advertiser. When he spends his money to advertise his wares, he expects to get more money in return. To him advertising is a detail of his business. Long ago he learned that a newspaper to have real drawing power as an advertising medium must possess the confidence of the reading public. Public confidence is not possible in a newspaper whose opinions are for sale or are shaped and slanted to mercenary ends. It must be free.

KERRVILLE

Is the county seat of Kerr County, has a population of about 2500, is situated 70 miles northwesterly from San Antonio, and is the terminus of the Kerrville branch of the S. A. & A. P. railroad. It has two daily trains to and from San Antonio, and daily mail routes, carrying passengers in hacks, to Ingram, Junction, Rock Springs, Harper and other places north and west of Kerrville, and also a daily line to Fredericksburg. From Kerrville to Fredericksburg is 25 miles; to Bandera and Medina City, 25 miles; to Junction, 60 miles; to Rock Springs, 80 miles, Harper 21 miles.

Kerrville has electric lights and a splendid system of water works. The sum of $20,000 has been spent on the streets and $40,000 has been voted for road improvements in this precinct.

The elevation at Kerrville is 1750 feet. The Guadalupe river, which heads 30 miles north of Kerrville, runs through the city. On the east side where the city is located, there are high bluffs on the river, and on the west side is a fertile and beautiful valley, and mountains surround the city on the east and west. The Guadalupe valley is occupied by thrifty farmers and ranchmen and the mountain regions, among which there is considerable valley, creek and arable land, there are large ranches of cattle, horses, sheep and goats, all of which do well in the Kerrville country. The land generally is well wooded, principally with live oak, Spanish oak and cedar, and the range is good, and water excellent.

Our farmers grow wheat, oats and all other small grain, cane and alfalfa, cotton and corn, and fruit and vegetables do well. Kerrville is one of the largest wool markets in the state, and large quantities of wool, mohair, cotton, oats, cattle, etc., are shipped from this point.

The climate of the Kerrville country is unsurpassed. The winters are short and generally mild and invigorating owing to the dryness of the climate and the prevalence of sunshine. The summers are cool and delightful, and the mountain air is pure and bracing. Game abounds in the Kerrville country, and fishing in the Guadalupe, especially north of Kerrville, is good. Kerrville and the adjoining towns are popular resorts for health and recreation.

The Kerrville Commercial Club, any of the different Realty Companies, or any of our citizens, will be pleased to give prospective residents or visitors further information.

I have a 32-acre place opposite Schreiner's mill on the river that I will lease for the coming year.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN EAST

Battles Between Russians and Germans in Poland, Where It Is Said 7,000,000 Men Are Engaged, Is Fiercest of Present War.

Summary of News to Date.

The veil of secrecy has been drawn over the battles between the Russians and the Austro-German forces. Headquarters of both armies are now confining themselves to the briefest statements concerning the hostilities, merely saying that fighting is in progress.

News coming from unofficial sources, however, shows that the German advance has penetrated further into Poland than had been disclosed previously, and that Warsaw is threatened for a second time. General von Hindenburg's army has advanced as far as the Lovicz-Skierniewice line, which means that the Germans have covered two-thirds of the ground to the Polish capital, from which they are now only forty miles distant. Further south in Poland, however, the Russians are said to have been repulsed between Radom and Kielce.

The battle in East Prussia seems to have died down, but the Russians continue to advance in Galicia and are still fighting on the Czenstochowa-Cracow front.

The battle in Poland in the direction of Lovicz is the most critical one, and while the Germans have the greatest confidence in General von Hindenburg since his defeat of the Russian General von Rennenkampf in East Prussia, London and Petrograd military observers express the opinion that Russia's overwhelming superiority in numbers of men again must tell, as was the case when the Germans made their first attack on Warsaw.

In Flanders and in France the armies seem to be enjoying a long deserved rest, for the only remaining evidence that the belligerents are facing each other is an occasional bombardment with heavy guns. Infantry attacks have temporarily ceased, and while the generals are laying their plans for their next move, the men are getting a chance to rest and tidy themselves up after a month in the water-soaked trenches.

An eyewitness with the British headquarters, in a long statement made public Monday, gives official confirmation of the reported heavy losses the Germans have suffered in their attacks on Ypres. He speaks of decimating battalions, of hundreds of dead left before the trenches and of batches of bodies found in farm houses. The casualty lists of British officers show that the British forces also have suffered severely in the fighting.

The Servians are making a stand against the Austrians in well-chosen fortified positions on the Kolubara river, but as the Austrians command superior forces and Serbia is without allies near enough to offer her assistance, it seems apparent that unless other Balkan states come into the war Serbia is faced with defeat.

Reminiscent of the early days of the war is the report that Belgrade has been called upon to surrender. This city, the capital of Serbia, was under bombardment for weeks and was relieved only when the first Russian advance in Galicia compelled the Austrians to look after their northern frontiers. Now the Servians, like the Montenegrins, are back in their own country and the Austrians, unmindful of the second invasion of their northern provinces, are endeavoring to destroy the two little armies.

The recruiting campaign which is being carried on throughout the British Isles has resulted in bringing many men to the colors. Troops with banners flying and bands playing marched Sunday through the east end of London to Victoria Park, where speakers addressed the crowds from early morning until late in the evening.

Two big battles, either of both of which may have decisive results, are being fought in Poland, and a third conflict of almost equal importance is progressing in East Prussia.

Of the three battles that which is now at its height between the Russians and Wartha rivers, and in which the Russians claim partial success, is exciting the greatest interest. The Germans, it is believed, have brought up by their line of strategic railways in Posen and Silesia at least half a million men in an effort to break the Russian line at this point. Weather conditions, the frozen ground and the situation of the battlefield favor a battle decisive to a degree not equalled on any other field in the present war.

The other battle in Poland is taking place on the Cracow-Czenstochowa front, and both the Russians and the Germans claim it is proceeding satisfactorily for them. In East Prussia the Russian advance is moving slowly through the country surrounding the Masurian lakes, which is difficult of passage. In Galicia the Russians are moving steadily westward and at the same time are seizing the passes of the Carpathians.

There is now almost a complete absence of infantry attacks in the western arena and the artillery fighting is of much less violence. All that region about Dixmude through which the Yser canal passes is inundated and the only serious fighting at present appears to be taking place to the south of Ypres, where cannonading of considerable intensity is in progress. Very bad weather, which necessarily hampers operations, has been experienced and snow has fallen in some places. There has been no important action in the French center, but in the Argonne region the Germans have made vigorous attacks, which, the French say, were repulsed. On the French right wing the Germans have retaken the village of Chauvencourt, part of which they blew up a few days ago. The activity of the Germans in the vicinity of Rheims has slackened.

The advance by Austria into Serbia is creating uneasiness in Bulgaria as to the future of the Balkan states. The question as to whether Bulgaria should remain neutral or throw in her lot with the allies was discussed Friday in the sbranje. Leaders of the democratic party suggested that the allies should be consulted as to their intentions regarding the Balkans' future.

Italy, too, has been affected by the Austrian advance and her ambassadors at the European capitals have been called home to confer with the cabinet. Marquis Imperiali, Italian ambassador to Great Britain, will leave for Rome immediately.

The Germans are sending very strong forces of men and guns into the country between the two rivers, where the battle must be fought, hoping that in this confined area the Russians will not be able to deploy their enormous forces to advantage as they have done in practically all the previous battles.

Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander in chief, however, can choose his own battleground and probably will select it as far from the German lines of communication as he can.

The British prime minister, Mr. Asquith, has announced that the British government has decided to declare the whole of the North sea to be in the military area and that therefore all subjects of the enemy found in neutral vessels in those waters would be liable to detention as prisoners of war. Oil and copper, he has further announced, will be declared contraband of war.

The prince of Wales, who is now at the front in France, has been made an aide de camp to Field Marshal Sir John French.

English Soldier Laid to Rest.

London.—The body of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, borne on a gun carriage, moved slowly through the streets of London Thursday to its last resting place in St. Paul's Cathedral. The streets were lined with troops while hundreds of thousands of civilians stood with bared heads in a cold rain as the funeral passed.

The cortege reached St. Paul's at noon, where services were held before a reverent throng, including King George. The body was interred alongside the remains of Wellington, Nelson, Wolseley and other famous Britons.

Lord Roberts died from natural causes last week at the headquarters of the British army in France. He was 82 years old. The body was returned to England Wednesday and Wednesday night it lay in his residence at Ascot, where brief services, attended by Lady Roberts and her daughters, were held.

It is recalled that just sixty-two years ago Thursday the body of the duke of Wellington was interred in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Lord Kitchener, secretary of war; Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, Lord Grenfell, Admiral Sir E. H. Seymour, Sir Evelyn Wood and other prominent naval and army officers followed the caisson bearing the flag-draped coffin.

King George was not in the procession. He drove from Buckingham palace direct to the cathedral cortege. This is the first time England's king has attended the funeral of a national hero since the burial of Wellington.

Preceding the caisson was a battery of Indian artillery, given this place of honor because of Lord Roberts' lifelong devotion to the king's Indian troops. His final visit to France was for the purpose of welcoming the Indian contingents and looking after their needs.

Washington.—The United States government has directed Ambassador Henry Morgenthau at Constantinople to ask the Ottoman government for an explanation of the firing by Turkish land forces at a launch from the American cruiser Tennessee proceeding from Vourlah to the American consulate at Smyrna, Asia Minor.

How Cruiser Sets Traps.

New York.—How the German cruiser Karlsruhe sets its traps for ships of nations at war with Germany was told in detail Friday by one-time passengers of the Vandyck, captured by the Karlsruhe, who arrived Friday on the Sao Paulo from Brazil.

From Captain Hans Fritsch, a member of the German naval reserve, commanding the steamer Asuncion, to which those aboard the Vandyck were transferred after the Vandyck had been captured by the Karlsruhe on Oct. 26, the passengers obtained their information.

Captain Fritsch said that the Karlsruhe was accompanied by four captured merchant vessels, manned by prize crews. The flotilla, when there was reason to believe a merchantman was near, spread out over a line about 150 miles long. When a vessel flying the enemy's flag was sighted by one of the ships the wireless notified the cruiser, and the Karlsruhe, with superior speed, would dash in and make the capture.

Captain Fritsch said the Karlsruhe had captured seventeen ships in or near equatorial Atlantic waters.

Captain Fritsch said that the Karlsruhe had captured the following vessels: Aug. 31, Maple Branch; Sept. 1, Strathroy; Sept. 14, Highland Hope; Sept. 17, Indrani; Sept. 21, Maria; a Dutch vessel, with contraband of war aboard, and Rio Icyana; Sept. 22, Cornish City; Oct. 5, Maria de Larrinaga and the Melitade; Oct. 6, Farn; Oct. 7, Lycronna; Oct. 8, Cervantes; Oct. 9, Pruth; Oct. 11, Condor; Oct. 18, Ganton; Oct. 23, Hurndale, and Oct. 25, Vandyck.

VILLA'S MARCH ON CAPITAL DELAYED

RETIRING CARRANZA TROOPS HAVE TORN UP RAILROAD LEADING TO CAPITAL.

CARRANZA'S ARMY LEAVES

The City of Mexico is Without Police Force and the National Palace Has Been Deserted.

El Paso, Tex.—The occupation by Villa troops of the City of Mexico has been delayed. It probably will not occur until after the evacuation of Vera Cruz by the American forces. This was indicated Sunday when it was learned that the retreating Carranza troops from Queretaro last week tore up several miles of railroad track leading into the City of Mexico.

Villa, who is at Irapuato with 10,000 men, has telegraphed the headquarters at Aguascalientes that General Felipe Angeles, commander in chief of the Villista artillery, is in position with 100 field and siege guns at Guadalupe, state of Jalisco, and is prepared to bombard the ancient capital of the state unless the large Carrancista garrison, which was left there by Obregon when he captured it from the federals, capitulates. While Angeles is in command of 14,500 men before Guadalupe, Augustin Serbin, Villa's daring little artillery commander of the north, is advancing on Tampico from the direction of San Luis Potosi, according to semi-official advices received from San Juan by the commanders at headquarters in Aguascalientes.

The constitutional convention, supreme in power now that Carranza has practically evacuated the City of Mexico, is going south toward Queretaro from Aguascalientes. The Villa army is pushing on south from Irapuato and is being preceded by a pioneer train of 2,000 men in command of General Carlos Dominguez y Rubio, who is repairing all of the railroad lines and reporting the positions of the enemy along the route. He has reached San Juan del Rio station and is being followed by the main command under General Villa, reports from the military telegraph say.

General Eulalio Gutierrez, provisional president ad interim, is trying to bring his brother, General Luis Gutierrez, into line, although he persists in remaining loyal to Carranza.

The Mexican capital Sunday was without a police force and without a public functionary. The National Palace is deserted, save for an occasional attendant guarding halls and doorways.

At the headquarters of General Obregon a council of war was held Saturday night to decide whether the complete evacuation of the City of Mexico, ordered by General Carranza, should be complied with. All the generals with the exception of General Blanco, attended the conference. He declared, in a signed statement, that he would not desert the capital and leave it to the marauding bands of Zapatista adherents who occupy the surrounding suburban towns.

As an evidence of good faith, General Blanco has ordered his men to take possession of the abandoned police station and has appointed Colonel Samuel Vasquez chief of police, the former chief having abandoned the city and gone to Carranza's headquarters.

Every member of the cabinet except Jose Reynoso, minister of finance, has left the City of Mexico. He declares he will remain to guard the funds left in his care until such time as he can deliver them to the responsible government.

All public buildings, banks and other institutions, as well as the schools, have been closed. There has been, however, no serious disorder.

It is predicted that the Aguascalientes convention will reassemble in the City of Mexico within a week. General Obregon left the capital Monday. He set free all the political prisoners.

Troops Leave Vera Cruz.

Washington.—Brigadier General Frederick Funston's infantry and marines, numbering about 6,000 men, Monday hauled down the stars and stripes which have been flying over Vera Cruz since last April and evacuated the Mexican port in accord with instructions from President Wilson. The five battleships at Vera Cruz and Tampico and the string of vessels on the west coast will remain indefinitely. They will continue to afford by their presence protection to Americans and be in readiness to meet emergencies.

Matamoros is Busy Fortifying.

Brownsville, Tex.—Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, the garrison of which is favorable to Carranza, has been busy fortifying and clearing the outskirts of the city as if against an attack, although there are no present indications of trouble in this vicinity.

Rome.—For the first time since his election Pope Benedict Sunday delivered an address in St. Peter's. Fifty thousand people heard his holiness speak on "Faith." Afterward the "Te Deum" was intoned.

SALAZAR ESCAPES FROM UNITED STATES CUSTODY

Former Mexican General Held at Albuquerque, New Mexico, Makes Bold Dash for Liberty.

Albuquerque, N. M.—General Jose Ynez Salazar escaped from the Bernalillo county jail at Old Albuquerque Friday night.

Two masked men scaled the fence around the jail shortly after 9 o'clock and attacked Deputy Sheriff Charles Armijo. He was alone, another deputy having been called away a few minutes before, it is said, by a fake telephone call.

Armijo reached for his revolver when one of the attackers hacked at him with a bowie knife and the other attempted to shoot him with an automatic revolver, but it jammed. He was overpowered and handcuffed to a post outside. Armijo is suffering from knife wounds. The masked men found the keys and released Salazar and then climbed into a taxicab and were whizzed toward Albuquerque, while Salazar got into a buggy and drove off.

Salazar was brought to Albuquerque from Fort Bliss last Sunday to be tried in the United States court on a charge of perjury alleged to have been committed in his attempt to obtain his release from the internic camp at Fort Wingate, New Mexico, on habeas corpus proceedings.

THE $135,000,000 COTTON LOAN FUND COMPLETE

The Fund Was Oversubscribed to the Amount of $300,000—Money Now Available.

Washington.—The country-wide effort to furnish aid to cotton producers and find a bottom for the cotton market came to a successful conclusion Tuesday when Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo announced the completion of the $135,000,000 cotton loan fund. In making his announcement Mr. McAdoo declared the success of the plan was now assured.

The secretary's statement came at the end of a day devoted to efforts to secure the subscriptions necessary to complete the $100,000,000 portion of the fund assigned to banks in non-cotton producing States.

Earlier in the day Mr. McAdoo issued a denial that the fund was about to fail and stated that it still lacked only a few million dollars to insure success.

Following this, Mr. McAdoo, Paul M. Warburg and W. P. G. Harding, members of the federal reserve board in active charge of the pool plan, took active steps to gather in the remaining millions. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York, of which Mr. Warburg was a partner before he came to the board, agreed to subscribe $2,500,000. At a luncheon given by John Skelton Williams, Bernard M. Baruch of New York said that he might invest in the fund up to $1,500,000. His offer was taken to the extent of $1,000,000 and the fund completed.

A few hours after Mr. Baruch's offer, word was received from several banks that they were willing to subscribe to an amount of $2,500,000, but their assistance was not needed. As it stands, the fund is oversubscribed about $300,000.

Brenham, Tex.—Mrs. T. H. Fischer, aged 85 years, won sweepstake prizes at the Waco Cotton Palace for crochet work. This is the third year she has achieved this distinction. At the Washington County fair, held in Brenham, Mrs. Fischer enjoyed the distinction of winning the first prize in crocheting.

Austin, Tex.—Governor Colquitt has issued his proclamation invoking a quarantine against the importation of cattle from thirty-five states, District of Columbia and Dominion of Canada on account of prevalence of hoof and mouth disease.

Local Option Election Refused.

Houston, Tex.—For the second time within a period of a few weeks a request for the holding of a local option election by two or more combined school districts has been refused by the county commissioners court. This was the application of citizens of school districts Nos. 17 and 30, which include Crosby and Huffman.

BALANCE KEPT BY NATURE

Increase of the Human Race Seems to Be Regulated by Wars and Other Devastations.

Every year, according to scientists who attempt to keep the general records, at least 80,000,000 human beings are born on this earth and 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 die. This indicates a daily birth rate of about 220,000 and a death rate of 180,000. The daily increase in population therefore is about 40,000. The total population of the globe is estimated at 1,800,000,000. The ravages of war do little to impede the increase. Far more effective have been the upheavals of nature. The Franco-Prussian war killed about 130,000 in seven months. The death roll of the Russo-Japanese reached about 200,000. A single earthquake (1737, in India) has been estimated to have caused 200,000 deaths. The fatalities of the Messina earthquake in 1908 cannot have been far short of 100,000. A tidal wave in 1896 drowned 27,000 persons in Japan, causing a greater loss of life than the whole war with China in 1894. The earthquake in Japan in 1703 is said to have killed 200,000 people. The Lisbon earthquake in 1755 destroyed 50,000 human lives, while 40,000 were lost in the same year in earthquakes in Persia.

Starting the Day Wrong.

There was a gloom on the face of the New England farmer. "What's the matter, Elijah?" asked his nearest neighbor. "Flapjacks given out over to your house?" "Worse'n that," said Elijah. "You know, 'twasn't apple yeast 't was raisin yeast." "Sartin'!" said the other. "Can't you make it?" "No, 't was apple pie noon and night." "I can, because I've got to," said Elijah, "but I tell you, it upsets me starting in the day wrong like that."

A Substitute River.

One of the perplexing problems encountered by coaches of the various "varsity" racing shell crews, that of providing better means for winter training than is offered by the ordinary rowing machine, has been met satisfactorily at Syracuse university through the installation of an indoor rowing tank, provided with mechanical means for simulating the passage of the boat through the water. This provides what might almost be called actual rowing, besides keeping the men in condition.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By DANE COOLIDGE

Author of "The Fighting Fool," "Hidden Waters," "The Tension," Etc. Illustrations by Don J. Levin

"Who is that man?" asked Gracia, as she reined in at his side. "Do you know him?"

"Sure do!" responded Hooker jovially. "He's the best friend I got in Mexico!"

"Kai, Amigo!" he called, as the Yaqui came quivering down the hill, and, apparently oblivious of the oncoming pursuers, he rode out of the trail to meet him. They shook hands and Amigo dashed his familiar smile, glancing shyly over the horse's back at the daughter of the Aragonas.

"I knew the horse," he explained, with a gentle caress for Copper Bottom. "My people—up there—kill Mexicans! Where you go?"

"North—to the line," answered Bud, pointing up the pass.

"My man!" frowned the Yaqui, glancing once more at the woman behind. "Muchos revolucionos!"

"Where?" asked Bud.

"Everywhere!" replied Amigo with a comprehensive wave of the hand. "But no matter," he added simply. "I will go with you. Who are these horsemen behind?"

"Rurales!" responded Hooker, and the Yaqui's black eyes dilated.

"Yes," nodded Bud as he read the swift question in their glance. "He is there, too—Del Rey!"

"Que bueno!" exclaimed the Indian, fixing his eagle glance upon the riders. He showed his white teeth in a smile. In an instant he saw his opportunity, he saw his enemy riding into a trap, and turned his face to the pass.

"What Amigo had waited for, the opportunity he had watched for, was at hand. Del Rey should pay the price of that near the Yaqui carried. Not again would the bolt go astray, and his people should have one less Mexican to fight after that day. The hatred of generations lay behind the thoughts of the Indian. He cared nothing for the grievance of the girl, and he would not kill Del Rey for that, but for his own reasons.

"Come!" he said, laying hold of a latigo strap, and as Hooker leaped on up the steady incline he ran along at his stirrup. In his right hand he still carried the heavy Mauser, but his sandaled feet bore him forward with tireless strides and only the heaving of his chest told the story of his effort.

"Our men!" cried the warrior's pride on and on. So at last they gained the rugged summit, where the granite ribs of the mountain crop up through the sands of the sea and the valley slopes away to the north. To the south was Del Rey, still riding after them, but Amigo beckoned Bud beyond the reef and looked out to the north.

"Revoluciones!" he exclaimed, pointing a sun-blackened hand at a distant ridge. "Revoluciones!" he said again, waving his hand to the east. "Here," waving toward the west, "no!"

"Do you know that country?" inquired Hooker, nodding at the great plain with its chains of parallel Sierras, but the Indian shook his head.

"No," he said; "but the best way is straight for that pass."

He pointed at a distant wedge cut down between the blue of two ridges, and scanned the eastern hills intently.

"Men!" he cried, suddenly indicating the sky-line of the topmost ridge. "I think they are revoluciones," he added gravely. "They will soon cross your trail."

"No difference," answered Bud with a smile. "I am not afraid—not with you here, Amigo."

"No," but the Indian suggested Amigo to read no jest in his words. "It is better that you should ride on—and I will go with you."

He smiled encouragingly, but a wild light was creeping into his eyes and Hooker knew what he meant. He desired to be left alone, to deal with Del Rey after the sure manner of the Yaquis. And yet, why not? Hooker gazed thoughtfully at the coming rurales and walked swiftly back to Gracia.

"This Indian is a friend of mine," he said, "and I can trust him. He says it will be better for us to ride on—and he will take care of the rurales."

"Take care!" questioned Gracia, turning pale at a peculiar matter-of-fact tone in his voice.

"Sure," said Hooker; "he says there are revoluciones ahead. It will be better for you, he says, to ride on."

"Madre de Dios!" breathed Gracia, clutching her saddle; and then she no longer said weakly.

before him, where Del Rey came galloping in the lead.

"You go now!" he said, speaking with an effort, and Hooker understood. There was no love, no hate left in that mighty carcass—he was all warrior, all Yaqui, and he wanted Del Rey to himself.

"We'll be going," Hooker said to Gracia, returning swiftly, and his subdued tones made her start. She felt, as one feels at a funeral, the hovering wings of death, yet she vaulted into her saddle and left her thoughts un-said.

They rode on down the valley, sparing yet holding back, and then with a roar that made them jump the heavy Mauser spoke out—one shot! And no more. There was a hush, a long wait, and Amigo rose slowly from behind his rock.

"God!" exclaimed Hooker, as he caught the pose, and his voice sounded a requiem for Manuel del Rey.

Then, as Gracia crossed herself and fell to sobbing, he leaned forward in his saddle and they galloped away.

Though men may make a jest of it in books, it is a solemn thing to kill a man, even to be near when one is killed. If Gracia had slain Del Rey herself in a passion her hot blood might have buoyed her up, but now her whole nature was convulsed with the horror of it and she wilted like a flower.

An hour before she had burned with hatred of him, she had wished him dead and sought the man who would kill him. Now that his life had been snipped off between two heart-beats she remembered him with pity and muttered a prayer for his soul. For Hooker, for De Lancey she had no thought, but only for the dashing young captain who had followed her to his death.

Of this Bud had no knowledge. He realized only that she was growing weaker, and that he must call a halt, and at last, when the walls of their pass had widened and they rode out into the open plain, he turned aside from the trail and drew rein by a clump of mesquite.

"Here, let me take you," he said, as she swayed uncertainly in the saddle. He slid down into his arms and he laid her gently in the shade.

"Poor girl," he muttered. "It's been too much for you. I'll get some water, and pretty soon you can eat."

He unsnaked the canteen from his saddle-flap, gave her a drink, and left her to herself, glancing swiftly along the horizon as he did their mounts to graze. But for her faintness he would have pushed on farther, for he had seen men off to the east; but hunger and excitement had told upon her even more than the day-and-night ride.

For a woman, and sitting a side-saddle, she had done better than he had hoped; and yet—well, it was a long way to the border and he doubted if she could make it. She lay still in the shade of the mesquite, just as he had placed her, and when he brought the sack of food she did not raise her head.

"Better eat something," he suggested, spreading out some bread and dried beef. "Here's some oranges I got from Don Juan—I'll just put them over here for you."

Gracia shuddered, sighing wearily. Then, as if his words had hurt her, she covered her face and wept.

"What did you tell that man?" she asked at last.

"Why—what man?" inquired Hooker, astonished. "Ain't you going to eat?"

"No!" she cried, gazing out at him through her tears. "Not until I know what you said. Did you tell that Indian to—kill him?"

She broke down suddenly in a fit of sobbing, and Hooker wiped his brow,

"Why, no!" he protested. "Sure not! What made you think that?"

"Why you rode over and spoke to him—and he looked at me—and then—he—killed him!"

She gave way to a paroxysm of grief at this, and Bud looked around him, wondering. That she was weak and hungry he knew, but what was this she was saying?

"I reckon I don't understand what you're driving at," he said at last. "Wish you'd eat something—you'll feel better."

"No, I won't eat!" she declared, sitting up and frowning. "Mr. Hooker," she went on very miserably, "what did you mean this morning when you—laughed! I said I hated poor Manuel—and you said—well, what you did—and you laughed! Did you think—oh, you couldn't have—that I really wanted him killed?"

"Why, sure not!" cried Hooker heartily. "I knowed you was fooling! Didn't I laugh at you? Say, what kind of a feller do you think I am, anyway? D'ye think I'd get an Indian to do my killing?"

"Oh, then didn't you?" she cried, suddenly brightening up. "You know, you talk so rough sometimes—and I never do know what you mean! You said you guessed you'd have to kill him for me, you know, and—oh, it was too awful! I must be getting foolish, I'm so tired out, but—what did you tell that Indian?"

Bud glanced at her sharply for a moment and then decided to humor her. Perhaps, if he could get her quieted, she would stop talking and begin to eat.

"He asked me who was after us," he said, "and I told him it was Del Rey."

"Yes, and what did he say then?"

"He didn't say nothing—jest lined out for the pass."

"And didn't you say you wanted—him—killed?"

"No!" burst out Bud, half angrily. "Haven't I told you once? I did not! That Indian had reasons of his own, believe me—he's got a scar along his ribs where Del Rey shot him with a six-shooter! And, furthermore," he added, as her face cleared at this explanation of the mystery, "you'd better try to take me at my word for the rest of this trip! Looks to me like you've been associating with these Mexicans too much!"

"Why, what do you mean?" she demanded curtly.

"I mean this," answered Hooker, "being as we're on the subject again. Ever since I've known you you've been talking about brave men and all that; and more'n once you've hinted that I wasn't brave because I wouldn't fight."

"I'd just like to tell you, to put your mind at rest, that my father was a sergeant in the Texas rangers and no hundred Mexicans was ever able to make him crawl. He served for ten years on the Texas border and never turned his back to no man—let alone a Mex. I was brought up by him to be peevable and quiet, but don't you never think, because I run away from Manuel del Rey, that I was afraid to face him."

He paused and regarded her intently, and her eyes fell before his.

"You must excuse me," she said, looking wistfully away. "I did not—I did not understand. And so the poor Yaqui was only avenging an injury!" she went on, reaching out one slender hand toward the food. "Ah, I can understand it now—he looked so savage and fierce." But—she paused again, set back by a sudden thought—"didn't you know he would kill him?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered Hooker quietly. "I did."

"Then—then why didn't you—?"

"That was between them two," he replied doggedly. "Del Rey shot him once when he was wounded and left him for dead. He must have killed some of his people, too; his wife wept for all I know. He never would talk about it, but he come back to get his revenge. I don't shoot no man from cover myself, but that ain't it—it was between them two."

"And you?" she suggested. "If you had fought Del Rey?"

"I would have met him in the open," said Hooker.

"And yet—?"

"I didn't want to," he ended bluntly. "Didn't want to fight him and didn't want to kill him. Had no call to. And then—well, there was you."

"Ah!" she breathed, and a flush mounted her pale cheeks. She smiled as she reached out once more for the food and Hooker resolved to do his best at gallantry, it seemed to make her so happy.

"So you were thinking of me," she challenged sweetly, "all the while? I thought perhaps I was a nuisance and in the way. I thought perhaps you did not like me because—well, because I'm a Mex as you say."

"No, ma'am," denied Hooker gazing upon her admiringly. "Nothing like that! When I say Mex I mean these low, pelado Mexicans—Don Juan tells me you're pure Spanish."

"Oh, now you make me jealous," she pouted. "If I were only a Yaqui—and big and black—"

"Never mind," defended Bud. "He was a true friend, all right, and true friends, believe me, are scarce."

There was a shade of bitterness in his voice that did not escape her, and she was careful not to allude to Phil. His name, like the name of her father, always drove this shy man to silence, and she wanted to make him talk.

"Then you ought to be friends with me," she chided, after a silence. "I have always wanted to be your friend—why will you never allow it? No, but really! Haven't I always shown it? I remember now the first time that I saw you—I was looking through my hole among the passion-flowers and you saw me with your keen eyes. Phil did not—but he was there. And you just looked at me once—and looked away. Why did you never respond when I came there to look for you? You would just ride by and look at me once, and even Phil never knew."

"No," agreed Bud, smiling quietly. "He was crazy to see you, but he rode right by, looking at the windows and such."

"The first time I met him," mused Gracia. "I asked about you. Did he ever tell you?"

Bud hung his head and grinned sheepishly. It was not difficult to make out a case against him.

And so Gracia had not wanted Del Rey killed as he thought she did. She was not the vicious woman he had thought her for a time. She was just the gentle, noble girl he had sworn to protect and conduct across the border to her fiancé. Again came the desire to claim her. But there was not only Phil to be thought of but the fitness of himself to be the mate of this woman.

"Is it something I have done?" she asked at last. "Is that why you never liked me? Now, Mr. Hooker, please speak to me! And why do you always sit so far away—are you afraid of me? But look—she moved closer to him—here we are alone, and I am not afraid of you!"

"Of course not," answered Bud, looking across at her boldly. "Why should you be—you ain't afraid of nothing!"

"Is that a compliment?" she demanded eagerly. "Oh, then I'm so happy—it's the first you ever said me! But have I been brave, like a man?"

"Sure have!" remarked Hooker impatiently, "but we ain't there yet. Only thing I don't like about you is you don't eat enough. Say, don't pick up them crumbs—let me pare off some more of this jerked beef for you. Can't nobody be brave when they're hungry, you know, and I want to bring you in safe."

"Why?" she inquired, as she accepted the handful of meat. "Is it on Phil's account?" she ventured, as he sat gazing stolidly at the horse.

"You were such friends, weren't you?" she went on innocently. "Oh, that is why I admire the Americans so much—they are so true to each other!"

"Yes," observed Hooker, rolling his eyes on her, "we're fine that way!"

"Well, I mean it!" she insisted, as she read the irony in his glance.

"Sure! So do I," answered Hooker, and Gracia continued her meal in silence.

"My!" she said at last; "this meat is good! Tell me, how did you happen to hear smile as honestly; "don't you worry none about me—I like you fine."

He slipped away at this, grinning to himself, and sat down to watch the plain. All about him lay the waving grass land, tracked up by the hoofs of cattle that had vanished in the track of war. In the distance he could see the line of a fence and the ruins of a house. The trail which he had followed led on and on to the north. But all the landscape was vacant, except for his grazing horses. Above the mountains the midday thunder-caps were beginning to form; the air was very soft and warm, and—He woke up suddenly to find his head on his knees.

"Ump-um-m," he muttered, rising up and shaking himself resolutely, "this won't do—that sun is making me sleepy."

He paced back and forth, smoking fiercely at brown-paper cigarettes, and still the sleep came back. The thunder-clouds over the mountains rose higher and turned to black; they let down skirts and fringes and sudden stabs of lightning, while the wind sucked in from the south. And then, with a slash of rain, the shower was upon them.

At the first big drops Gracia stirred uneasily in her sleep. She started up as the storm burst over them; then, as Bud picked up the saddle-blankets and spread them over her, she drew him down beside her and they sat out the storm together. But it was more to them than a sharing of cover, a patient enduring of the elements, and the sweep of wind and rain. When they arose there was a bond between them and they thrust and parried no more.

They were friends, there in the rush of falling water and the crash of lightning overhead. When the storm was over and the sun came out they smiled at each other contentedly without fear of what such smiles may mean.

CHAPTER XXVII.

As the sun, after a passing storm, comes forth all the more gloriously, so the joy of their new-found friendship changed the world for Bud and Gracia. The rainbow that glowed against the retreating clouds held forth more than a promise of sunshine for them, and they conversed only of pleasant things as they rode on up the trail.

The dangers that still lay between them and the border seemed very remote now, and neither gave them a thought. There was no one in all the wide world but just these two, this man and woman who had found themselves.

Twenty miles ahead lay the northern pass, and from there it was ten more to Gadsden, but they spoke neither of the pass nor of Gadsden nor of who would be awaiting them there. Their talk was like that of children, inconsequential and happy. They told of the times when they had seen each other, and what they had thought; of the days of their childhood, before they had met at Fortuna; of hopes and fears and thwarted ambitions and all the young dreams of life.

Bud told of his battle-scarred father and their ranch in Arizona; of his mother and horse-breaking brothers, and his wanderings through the West; Gracia of her mother, with nothing of her father, and how she had flitted in order to be sent to school where she could gaze upon the upstanding Americans. Only Bud thought of the trail and scanned the horizon for rebels, but he seemed more to seek her eyes than to watch for enemies and death.

They rode on until the sun sank low and strange tracks struck their trail from the east. Bud observed that the horses were shod, and more tracks of mounted men came in beyond. He turned sharply toward the west and followed a rocky ledge to the hills, without leaving a hoof-print to mark the way of their retreat.

Those hoof-prints brought Bud back from the land of dreams in which he had been wandering to a realization of the dangers that lurked about them. But a little way ahead was the pass they must cross, and he suddenly realized that they could not safely do so in the broad light of day. He must not take such chances of losing his new found happiness.

Says Moon is Oval Shaped.

Astronomers will await with interest details of the "experiment" carried out by Professor Stillest at Bologna by which he claims to have demonstrated that the moon is oval shaped.

The moon is more easily measured than any other heavenly body, but though it has been measured thousands of times no difference has been detected between its polar and equatorial diameters. A clergyman recently put forward the theory that the side of the moon always turned away from the earth is of the same size and shape as the great pyramid which, according to Revelations, forms the "New Jerusalem." Eventually, so asserts the author of the theory, the moon will fall on the earth, and the hemisphere turned earthward will bury itself in our planet, while the pyramidal New Jerusalem will project above the rack and ruin of the elements as the Celestial City, where the faithful are to spend eternity.

This remarkable lunar theory has been published with a preface by the bishop of Exeter.

Domestic Menace.

On matters of feminine dress we seldom venture to express an opinion unless it be occasionally a word in defense of that liberalism which permits a woman to consider her freedom and comfort as well as her appearance.

But we are prompted now to utter protest against the progress of American fashion designers, who, with a free field for the first time in history, can think of nothing better than to mimic the military uniforms of Europe.

Is it not enough that we should have the horrors of the war thrust upon us by the news, filling our imaginations, coloring our dreams? Is it not enough that there should be signs of a military epidemic in all our magazines, articles on strategy, stories of fighting and bloodshed? Must we have the world's nightmare intensified by the very clothes the women wear?—Chicago Post.

His "Name."

A young spark, notorious for his conceit, was boasting in the presence of several gentlemen about the conquests which he had gained over the female heart.

"Look," said he, "here's a handsome present I had from my last innamorata," at the same time handing round a beautiful cigar-case.

All admired the article, which had an indorsement of its quality stamped upon it.

"Very nice gift," remarked one of the company. "I perceive your lady-love even had your name put on the case."

"Well, that's queer," answered the bonaster. "I never noticed it."

"Look again," rejoined the candid one. "The case is distinctly marked 'Real calf.'"

It Happened in Boston.

"Did your husband cut his false friend with acerbity?"

"No, mum, wild a razah."
