FIFTH YEAR, NO. 40

KERRVILLE TEXAS, THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1917

Red Cross Benefit Games

Much interest is being shown in the Red Cross baseball games that are being played between Kerrville and Center Point. The Kerrville team went to Center Point last Thursday and in a very close game won by the score of 2 to 1. About $35 was raised for the Red Cross, and the largest crowd ever seen at a baseball game in Center Point witnessed the contest.

Center Point is here today for a return game and practically every business house in town is closed for two hours this afternoon in order that the employees can attend the game. Both teams are at their best, and the best contest of the season is expected. The finance committee are counting on about $100 clear which will go to the credit of the local auxiliary to the Red Cross.

Big Sale of Wool

The highest price ever paid for wool in Texas was the record made Thursday afternoon when 1,225,000 pounds of the Kerrville country product were sold by Capt. Charles Schreiner and his son, A. C. Schreiner, to Boston firms for about $700,000. The prices paid are almost double those of last spring.

Of this amount about 600,000 pounds of the eight-months' clip were sold to A. Cummings, representing Brown & Adams of Boston, and about 650,000 pounds of the twelve-months' clip to Henry Burns, representing Hallowell, Jones & Donie of Boston. While the prices, which vary according to the classification and clip of the wool, were not given out, Captain Schreiner said they were very satisfactory and that market conditions are due to the demand on account of the war and the fact that very little is being imported.

Surber-Lewis

Mr. Louis Surber and Miss Ruby Lola Lewis were united in marriage Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lewis, in this city. Judge E. H. Turner officiating. Both are popular young people of this community and their many friends will join us in extending many good wishes.

Don't send off for printing because perhaps you can get it a little cheaper. The local printer needs the printing business of Kerrville just as much as the merchant or other man needs the patronage of home people.

Just received a complete stock of the celebrated Aladdin Aluminum ware. Best yet. See it at Mosel, Saenger & Co.

Death of P. W. Drew

Pierce William Drew, born in County of Cork, Ireland in 1835, died at his home in Kerrville, Texas June 27, 1917, at 5 o'clock p. m. He was stricken with paralysis on Friday afternoon of last week and fell upon the porch of his home. Neighbors went to his assistance and his physician was called and gave him what relief it was possible to give. Loving friends came and nursed him tenderly until the end.

Mr. Drew came to America about thirty years ago and had lived in Kerrville and vicinity all that time. He was a man of strong intellect and wide experience and unswerving in his convictions of right, but tender and sympathetic in his nature as a child. His father was an Episcopal clergyman of very high standing and the early Christian training counted for much in the life of the son.

Three years ago he united with the Baptist church of which he had served as sexton for ten years. He loved his pastor and the membership as well as the many warm friends he leaves in this community. He never married and while he lived a lonely life in his home, we believe there is no man in the county who could count more loyal friends nor one who more appreciated his friends than Mr. Drew. He had no relatives in this country.

The funeral will be from the Baptist church at 4:30 this afternoon after which interment will be made in Glen Rest cemetery.

Terrell Family Arrive.

Comptroller H. B. Terrell and his family arrived from Austin Tuesday night and have rented the Scholl residence for the summer. We are glad to state that our report last week that one of Terrell's party was killed in an auto wreck and Mrs. Terrell fatally injured was a mistake. None were killed and all are recovering nicely, though it was a very narrow escape.

Five Sons Enlisted

W. P. Cowden of Center Point was in this city yesterday. Mr. Cowden has the honor to have five sons in the army and navy, which is a record that can hardly be beaten anywhere.

THE IMMIGRANT

The term immigrant includes English, French German, Russian, Italian, Mexican, etc.

Immigrants do the mining, road building and the iron, steel and stone work of this country almost exclusively. Also a great deal of farming is done by the immigrants. For these reasons the labor of the immigrants is a highly desired factor in the economy of this country.

The immigrants are raised in foreign countries. They were fed and clothed and nursed while they were children and not fitted to work by their respective countries. There they were sent to school and there they received training in their trade. The raising of the immigrants does not cost this country either time or money. This is another reason why those foreign people are so warmly welcomed by the economists of this country.

Still, it is a very disagreeable experience to be an immigrant. While the labor of the immigrants is highly desired, they themselves are ignored, underestimated and often despised. The "native" American communicates with the immigrant only in business matters and ignores him socially, entirely. Even for an immigrant of high education it is a difficult matter to get socially adequately recognized.

These days the immigrants are especially unpopular. It should not be that way. America claims to fight for the emancipation of the peoples of the old world, and I doubt not that this is true. America sends her sons and her money in order to do this. Would it not be proper at the same time to pay a little more attention to the social emancipation of the foreigners here at home. Would it not be proper to lay aside the prejudices people have against the foreigners and try to understand them, and mutually help to bear the burden war has laid upon us?

Telegram

Capt. Chas. J. Seeber received the following telegram from General Hulen which is self explanatory:

"The number of men to be drafted by the Federal Government in your community will be reduced by the number of men who have taken the oath of enlistment in the Texas National Guard up to and including midnight of June 30th. Your community will not receive credit for these enlistments after Saturday."

Capt. Seeber urges that all sign up and take the oath before three o'clock Saturday as he must make a report at that exact hour, but the enlistment will remain open until 12 o'clock.

The Sun and Substance of being a subscriber to this paper is that you and your family become attached to it. The paper becomes a member of the family and its coming each week will be as welcome as the arrival of anyone that's dear. It will keep you informed on the doings of the community and the bargains of the merchants regularly advertised will enable you to save many times the cost of the subscription.

Volunteer Enlistment Closes

June 30

Texas' quota of volunteers is fixed at 16,000. We have raised about 6,000!

General Crowder has set June 30th to muster these volunteers into State service. The number then mustered in will measure our patriotism.

Through thoughtlessness or ignorance of the fact that no volunteers can enlist after June 30th, we may seriously reflect upon the courage and gallantry of our great State, which has ever stood at the forefront in the discharge of patriotic duty. Shall she now be shamed?

Again, the individual who fails to enlist before June 30th will forfeit his right to select the branch of the Army in which he is to serve, and also the privilege to serve with his friends and neighbors as comrades in the ranks.

After the 30th of June he must serve under the draft wherever he may be assigned!

Why should he lose the right of choosing to serve as infantryman, cavalryman or artilleryman with boys of his own neighborhood, town and State by delay? Surely no real man will hold back in the vain hope that by taking the "chance" he may escape service to his country in her hour of need. Wake up! Save your State's good name; save your country! Serve while the war is on foreign soil. It will be worse if the battles are fought in our own land.

New Court for Kerr County

The new law passed by the last Legislature restoring civil and criminal jurisdiction to the County Court of Kerr County went into effect June 20th and now Judge Wallace will hold court on the first Mondays in February, May, August and November, and each term to run three weeks. His court will have jurisdiction of all criminal cases below the degree of felony and all civil cases where the amount involved is more than $200 and below $500, and concurrent jurisdiction with the district court in all cases involving an amount above $200 and up to $1000.

Presbyterian Church.

The Presbyterian Sunday School will open at ten o'clock Sunday morning. We want every member to be present and invite all visiting friends to attend. The school will make a special offering to the Red Cross fund. We know that everyone is interested in this most important agency for relieving the awful suffering from war and famine and we ask every parent to see that each child brings an offering for this cause.

Through Mr. Herbert Hoover the President has asked that every pastor preach a patriotic sermon on Sunday morning. The subject of the sermon at eleven o'clock will be "The Spiritual Obligation to Public Service," and all the members and friends of the congregation are urged to be present. W. P. DICKEY, Pastor.

Civic League Notes

The Kerrville Civic League met in regular session Saturday, June 23rd with good attendance. Various matters of business were transacted and good reports were had from standing committees showing they have all been at work.

The League offers special thanks to all who so willingly assisted with the banquet, also to the Boy Scouts for their help with the clean up work. Press Committee.

Carlos Bee Addresses

Large Audience

Senator Carlos Bee of San Antonio spoke to one of the largest crowds ever assembled at the court house here Tuesday night in behalf of the Texas National Guard. He was introduced by Judge Lee Wallace in his usual pleasing manner. Bishop J. S. Johnston gave the invocation after which the audience sang America. Senator Bee made a masterful speech, in which he stressed the point that young men should enlist now in the National Guard and thereby preserve the honor and fidelity of our State. The result of his speech was noticeable in the number of new recruits that came into the local company, and it is expected that Kerrville will give double or triple her share of volunteers to fight for our Country.

Patriotic Demonstration

A patriotic parade was staged on the streets of Kerrville Tuesday afternoon when a large number of automobiles took part in a parade boosting enlistment in the local company of National Guards that is being organized by Captain Seeber. Much interest is being shown in the recruiting up to full strength by Saturday night when enlistment will cease.

Revival Meeting.

The revival meeting at the Baptist church is creating quite a good deal of interest and the congregations both morning and evening are unusually large. Rev. B. G. Holloway, enlistment evangelist under the State Mission Board, is doing the preaching and C. S. Cadwallader of San Antonio is conducting the singing. Both preacher and singer are considered among the best in the State and each service is a spiritual treat to all who attend, and hear the Gospel in sermon and in song.

An invitation is extended to everyone to attend the meeting. All Christian people are urged to cooperate with their presence and their prayers in order that Kerrville may have a great religious awakening.

Services are held at 10:00 a. m. and 8:15 p. m., song service beginning 15 minutes earlier.

Airdome Sold.

Mrs. T. A. Schofner has sold the Airdome Theater to J. F. Edwards of Cuero, the sale having been consummated this week by W. D. Pultz, the real estate man. Mr. Edwards and wife have moved to Kerrville to make their home and expect to operate a first class show at 5 and 10 cents beginning Friday night, and running six nights in the week.

Juice of Lemons!
How to Make Skin
White and Beautiful

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands. Adv.

Serious Work to Do.

TRAVELS 40 MILES FOR MORE TANLAC

J. D. Hawkins Says His Wife Gained Fifteen Pounds on Three Bottles.

SUFFERED 20 YEARS

Wife's Improvement Has Been Wonderful—All Her Neighbors Talking About How Much Better She Looks.

"I'm taking a forty-mile trip to get more Tanlac," was the remarkable statement made by J. D. Hawkins, a well-known and prosperous farmer, in Jacob's Pharmacy, Memphis, Tenn., recently.

"Yes, sir," he continued. "I live at Bartlett, Tenn., and I drove eight miles to Raleigh this morning to catch the trolley to Memphis, which is twelve miles more, so when I get home that will make forty miles I've traveled to get this Tanlac, and that's proof enough of what I think about it."

"I declare I never saw or heard of a medicine doing as much good as this Tanlac has done my wife. She has actually gained fifteen pounds on three bottles of it and besides it has relieved her of troubles that have been weakening her down for nearly twenty years. She suffered with indigestion and everything she would eat made gas and gave her severe pains in the stomach. She had no appetite at all and suffered with nervous headaches until she couldn't sleep at night. She was so tired all the time that she couldn't do any of her housework at all. I was just about to give up in despair, for we had tried everything we could get hold of, when I read about Tanlac and got a bottle for her."

"Well, sir, she has taken three bottles so far and her improvement has just been wonderful and that's the reason I am making this trip, because I don't want her to be without Tanlac. She can do all her own housework now and is relieved of the indigestion and has a good appetite. Her nerves are quiet and the headaches are all gone and she can sleep well at night. She is gaining in health and strength all the time and the neighbors are all talking about how much better she looks."

"I certainly do endorse Tanlac, for after what it has done for my wife, I believe it is the best medicine in the world."

There is a Tanlac dealer in your town.—Adv.

He'd Come Back.

A boy who had done something to incur the wrath of his mother and then had taken to his heels was hotly pursued for some distance by her.

Finding it was useless to continue the pursuit, and almost beside herself with rage, the old lady shouted at the top of her voice:

"I'll give anybody sixpence to catch that boy."

The boy instantly stopped and, turning around, shouted in reply:

"Give me the sixpence and I'll come back!"

German Tires First.

During this recent fighting one of the high schools in a German town, which accepted flight, and for an hour they did every trick known to flying—stalling, banking, side-slipping, looping—in order to get in the first shot. It was the German who fired first, though he showed himself master of his machine.

There are boys in our air service who have killed six or seven Germans in single combat. A few have accounted for many more, and go off again for a morning's hunting of men as though on a good adventure. Yet they know the risks and the fortune of war. They cannot have all the luck all the time. When the turn comes it is quick to the end; or, if hit and left alive, they do amazing things up there in the high skies to save the final crash.

A few evenings ago two of our young officers were attacked by five hostile aircraft, and both were wounded, one in seven places, but they destroyed one of the German airplanes and landed safely, though their own machines were pierced by many bullets.

On another evening of the battle of Arras two hostile aircraft were engaged by one of ours and forced to land, though one of our officers had his collarbone broken by a machine gun bullet.

AERIAL BATTLES FULL OF THRILLS

Most Dramatic Feature of New Warfare Developed on European Battlefields.

WRITER GIVES VIVID PICTURE

Young Aviators Take Deadly Risks and Do Work of Terror in Same Spirit Knights of Old Went Forth to Battle.

London.—Nothing that the great war has developed is more dramatic and thrilling than a battle between aviators amid the clouds. It has come to be a common occurrence for a detachment of airmen to ambush themselves behind a cloud bank, sweeping down suddenly from cover upon their opponents.

A correspondent with the British armies east of Arras sends this description of aerial warfare:

There have been hours when I have heard overhead a continual tattoo of Lewis guns and when a great sweep of sky has been racked out with white shrapnel clouds following our flying squadrons engaged following our hostile machines. One cannot follow the progress of these aerial battles. It is only rarely that one can distinguish an enemy machine from ours, except by cloudlets of our anti-aircraft barrage. But far and high one sees the daring specks chasing through the blue, touched sometimes by sunlight, so that for a moment they are all golden or glistening or white as snowflakes, and down to one comes the loud drone of engines and the little hammer-knocks of Lewis guns.

Look Like Butterflies.

Our soldiers on the march stare up at the war above their heads, so aloof from them, so dreamlike, and the men on the supply columns get their glasses out and laugh when one of our kite balloons is headed down suddenly with great haste. "Old Rupert has got the wind up," they say; "a Boche plane must be sneaking round." It is no joke when a German airman descends out of a cloud and hovers over a battery, signaling back to his guns. I was in such a situation the other day, and had to crouch with the gunners below a bank while shrapnel bullets from our own "Archies" whipped the ground about.

Red wings have come into the sky, for the new German fighting machines have crimson planes, so that they look like butterflies when the sun is on them. Enemy airmen have been trying to compete with our own by swooping low above marching troops and gun teams and using their machine guns in a way which adds new perils to war. But, though they fight behind their own lines with great skill and courage, they do not come over our country in any such numbers as our men invade theirs.

These boys—for they are absurdly young in the average age—take all these deadly risks and do all this work of terror with the same spirit as the young gentlemen of England who rode out with Sir John Chandos and Sir Walter Manny to seek combat with French knights many hundred years ago along the roads where our modern men-at-arms go marching today.

ENLISTS DESPITE GLASS EYE

Man Rejected at First Finally Wins Place in Marine Corps on Recruiting Duty.

New York.—Eskild Bagger has attained his ambition. Three weeks ago he took the examination for the Marine corps, passed and thought he was in, but as he stooped to pick up his clothing a glass eye dropped on the floor.

Undiscouraged, he had been going almost daily seeking enlistment. Captain Evans has informed him that he has received orders to reward his patriotic fervor. He was enlisted in the Marine corps reserve, class 4, and assigned to duty in the recruiting division.

Shoemakers Discover That Leather From Hides of "Man-Eaters" Is Useful.

New York.—Shark hunting promises to become a general and profitable industry along the coast of the Eastern states, since shoe manufacturers have discovered, by exhaustive experiments, that leather tanned from the hides of "man-eaters" is highly applicable for the purposes of ordinary footwear.

New York fishermen are preparing to carry on the hunt on a gigantic scale for the "sea tigers" come north this spring. While the industry in its infancy does not promise to be over highly remunerative, boat owners are confident with specialized methods catches of sufficient size to warrant exclusive attention to it will be their reward. In addition to the leather properties of the shark it produces an oil that is said to be the slowest drying lubricant known. It also is used in the manufacture of certain brands of waterproof paint.

ALL YEAR COLLEGE TERMS

American Universities Are Seriously Considering the Plan as a War Expedient.

New York.—Many American universities, it is learned here, are seriously considering making the college year consist of four terms of 12 weeks each, with only four weeks vacation a year. It is also proposed, by certain changes in the curricula, to teach as much in two of the new terms as was formerly taught in three terms, or the whole college year.

These measures are suggested as a war expedient. It is admitted the new arrangement will not be quite as effective as the old method; but the advocates argue better results will be obtained from the plan than by trying to continue with the old system when young men have little time for education and are in more of a hurry than formerly to get into the army of some other active life.

GERMANS INVENT DEADLY PENCIL

Sharpen It and It Explodes, Maiming or Killing the Sharpener.

TAKEN FROM SWEDISH NOBLE

Baggage Contains an Amazing Collection of Bombs, Poisons, Bacilli of Deadly Diseases and Other Tools of Death and Destruction.

Christiania.—An amazing collection of bombs, poisons, bacilli of deadly diseases and other means of death and destruction has been seized by the authorities here as part of the baggage of Baron von Rosen, a Swedish nobleman and alleged to be a German agent. The baron fled to Norway after his activities had aroused the Swedish authorities. He was arrested, but as he could not be convicted of violating any Norwegian law, he was released with a warning to leave the country.

Baron von Rosen's field of operations was along the Swedish-Finnish border. His purpose is supposed to have been the destruction of Russian food and munition stores, but what success he had is not known. When he fled from Sweden last January part of his baggage was seized by the Swedish authorities and found to contain a large quantity of high explosives, packed in tin cans marked "corned beef." It remained, however, for the Norwegian police to uncover the real extent of his equipment.

"Table Salt" Was Explosive.

After the baron had been ordered out of Norway those parts of his baggage which had not been seized in Sweden arrived at Christiania and were turned over to the police. Among the articles found were cans of explosives marked "table salt," bottles marked "mouth wash," containing cultures of dangerous bacilli, identified by the state health laboratory; boxes of lump sugar, each lump concealing a small glass vial filled with bacilli of anthrax of glanders, and several explosive pencils.

The latter article is an ingenious infernal machine and a departure in frightfulness, so far as the authorities here are aware. It has the appearance of an ordinary pencil, but if sharpened a drop of acid concentrated in a thin glass tube is released and, acting on other concealed chemicals, causes an explosion sufficient to maim or perhaps kill the sharpener.

Sought to Infect Animals.

One scheme of Baron von Rosen in which the poisoned sugar lumps were to figure is believed to have been directed against the great traffic stream which the war has called into being between the northern Norwegian town

RECRUITING IN CHINATOWN

Color bearer of the American Junior Naval and Marine Scout which escorted by a battalion of naval scouts and a company of marine scouts, has been recruiting its ranks among the Chinese boys of New York's Chinatown. A number of enlistments have been procured and it is expected that shortly the organization will have formed a battalion composed exclusively of juvenile Orientals, but without staunch Americans. The American Junior Naval and Marine Scouts aim to train the boys in the work of the United States navy and the marine corps. If on becoming of age they desire to serve their country, little further training is necessary. More than 40,000 boys are members of the organization, scattered through 38 states.

HOME BY XMAS IS SOLDIER'S PREDICTION

Lincoln, Ill.—"I'll be home for Christmas dinner."

That is the message received by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thompson of Lincoln, Ill., from their son, Capt. John Thompson of the Canadian army in France, in a letter which has just arrived.

"We'll win the war now, for there's nothing that can stop us since America has entered," Captain Thompson writes.

FIND NO BUG IN THROAT

Widow Loses Accident Insurance When Autopsy Fails to Prove Her Assertion.

Kansas City.—The fact that an autopsy failed to find a bug which J. M. Freeman told his wife had lodged in his throat, resulted in the Kansas City court of appeals reversing a $4,000 verdict the widow had gained against the Loyal Protective Insurance company of Boston.

Freeman, a Howard county patent medicine vendor, had an accident policy. He died of pneumonia. The court held that since no foreign body was found in his throat he could not be said to have contracted the disease, as claimed, by "accidental or violent" means.

Wears Shoes to Bed, To Punish Parents.

'SEND THEM CANDY'

Officer's Advice to Women Wanting to Aid Soldiers.

Suggestion Explained by Fact That Men Need More Sweets Than They Get in Their Rations.

Somewhere asked someone in the quartermaster's department what she could do to make life for the soldiers at the front, wherever that might be, more attractive.

"Do they need sweaters, or wrist warmers, or what can I make them?" she queried.

"Don't knit," said the man quoted. "Make them candy." They crave sugar and they need sugar."

So the young woman in question promptly went to the nearest candy shop and placed an order that a pound of candy be sent every other day to the particular soldier in whom she was interested.

Years ago, when the Boer war was raging, Queen Victoria once celebrated her birthday or some other festal day by sending a package of sweet chocolate to every Tommy fighting in South Africa. And some of her subjects staying safely at home said to themselves and each other: "Why on earth is the queen sending sweet chocolate to men who are giving their lives for us? Why doesn't she send them something they need?"

Today most of us have come to recognize the food value that lies in sugar. We have learned that pure candy, if it is eaten as a food, is wholesome. It is harmful when it is eaten between meals, and so spoils the appetite. We know, too, that the more hard physical work we do, the more sugar we need, because it is an easily assimilated fuel food.

Hence today the quartermaster's mandate that we send candy to the front, although it at first seems strange, is easily understood. The rations of the soldiers are carefully balanced, but still, many of them, living outdoors all the time, crave more sweets than they can get, and are benefited by them.

So add to your list another chance to help the men at the front—and send them candy.

Plato or Socrates?

If Socrates is conceded to rank as the greater, or more influential, of the two philosophers, it is largely because of the devotion and ability of Plato, his admirer and biographer. According to Plato's "Apologia," Socrates was really the supreme man of his age, foremost in originality and in thought. Plato's great humanity—his unconscious prophecy of Christianity was an exhibition of that—his application of philosophy not simply to morals in the abstract but to a nation, or a personality, has won him great popularity in all ages, and there are many who put the Stagirate in the second place, and consider Plato his exponent as the greater, and more influential of the two. Really, it is wise not to attempt comparison of these great Grecians, but to read thankfully what their wisdom has given to the world.—Exchange.

Honey Earliest Sweet.

Until the beginning of the sixteenth century honey was almost the only sweet known and quite the only one generally used, it being available without preparation. The Old Testament refers to Palestine as "a land flowing with milk and honey," synonyms for "richness and nourishment, and mutually complimentary. Our pioneers located "bee trees" and some of us still remember the midnight journey to the tree, which was felled and its treasure, a mingled mass of splintered wood, broken comb and dead bees, brought home to be strained and the wax melted down. Modern beekeeping has entirely changed this crude proceeding, and the up-to-date apiarist handles his bees almost as freely as his chickens.—Exchange.

An Anonymous Book.

Two young ladies of literary tastes were once discussing their reading, when one of them remarked: "I have been engaged with a delightful work for a week past." "Indeed; what is it?" "Anthony Trollope's autobiography." "Who is the author?" "Really, I don't know. I have looked over the title-page and through the preface, but I can't find any reference to the author at all. Whoever it is is a charming writer, and seems to have known the novelist very intimately." "I'll get it and read it, but it is so provoking, isn't it, that so many delightful authors of late are writing anonymously?"

Cowardice and Bravery.

To make men cowards give them continually ease with every comfort and pleasure; to make men brave give them continually hardships, hardships, hard work, with every discomfort and misery. As ease and pleasure weaken and soften the soul, producing cowardice and fear, so hardships and misery strengthen and harden the soul, making it determined and brave; as only pleasure makes a man live life, only misery will make him detest it.

Whep Fortune Finally Smiles.

"Now that we have money she wants to build a castle and I want to raise chickens."—London Answers.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly deprecated, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with a narcotic.

Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Woman's Duty to Serve and Conserve

By ARCHBISHOP JOHN J. GLENNON. Woman's duty is to serve and conserve—to serve those who have left their homes, and to conserve the homes they have left.

SOME SMILES

Luxuriousness. "You should be content with simple fare." "It can't be managed. The prices now entitle everything edible to be classed as a luxury."

Served Him Right. "Serves me right for pretending." "Huh?" "I talked a lot of highbrow talk to my new girl and now she has gone and bought me a set of Emerson's essays for a birthday present. I could have used a fancy vest."

A Matter of Necessity. She (pouting)—I believe you would sooner play cards with papa than sit in the parlor with me.

The Way They'd Like to Do It. "How much is this hat?" asked Mrs. Spender sweetly, of the salesgirl.

He Got It. Judge—What do you mean, young man, by getting into trouble of this kind?

Without Doubt. "Mrs. Offended," asked her friend, "weren't you nearly distracted when you heard of the death of your fifth husband?"

Going, Going, Gone. Few black-faced comedians ever evoked louder applause than did Ben Jones in police court, says the Detroit Free Press.

Smiles. "You want to raise a ruckus?" "No, I want to raise a ruckus."

SHUT YOUR EYES AND SWING HARD, PING BODIE'S PLAN

"You've Got to Take Old Man Confidence to the Plate With You," Says the Fence Buster. If you have an ambition to attain fame all that is necessary is to out-guess the pitcher, grab your bat like it was your last dime and swing with all your might.

Ping Bodie. "Ping cracked out twenty home runs while amassing a batting average of something over .300 last year on the Pacific coast."

Prominent Men in Khaki. A striking instance of the quality of Uncle Sam's reserve engineers was furnished at the ceremonies when Columbia University conferred the honorary doctorates on Marshal Joffre, Vice Premier Viviani, Lord Curilla, and the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour.

A Small Message of Cheer. It is a mistake to think that everything has gone up on account of the war. Ostrich feathers, for instance, are lower than ever.

Flashlights. The reason a big man will stand around and listen when his wife is jaxing him and have mighty little to say in his own behalf is because he knows that she is 50 per cent right.

Never allow chicks to run in the yard where the fowls are, and never keep them in the same house with fowls, if you want them to be free from disease and to grow fast.

In order to grow well, chicks must have a variety of food so that they can obtain from that food the different elements needed to make bone, muscle, blood and feathers.

Every farmer should raise a large flock of poultry this season, not only because prices of poultry products will be high, but because this country and its allies in the war will need all the poultry and eggs that can be produced.

Honey Regarded as a Luxury Rather Than Standard Sweet. We seem to regard honey as a luxury rather than as a standard sweet.

Claims Chorus Girls Should Make the Best Housewives. Chorus girls ought to make the best housewives, provided they were given a chance, according to Elsie Adler, a musical comedy prima donna.

Viewed from the standpoint of the actual qualities that nature has bestowed upon her, the American chorus girl, as a class, is best equipped to be the mother of our next generation.

Instead of giving children so much candy, which is often adulterated, natural craving might be satisfied by a sweet which comes to the table in a pure and wholesome form, not added to or subtracted from by any chemical process.

IMITATION IS SINCEREST FLATTERY but like counterfeit money the imitation has not the worth of the original.

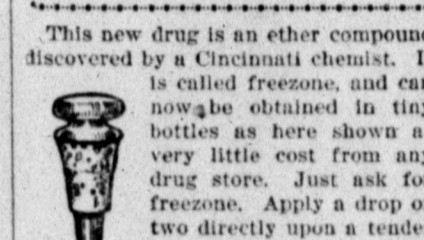

Incubable. "Daughter's voice has been a great expense to me."

SUBSCRIPTION $1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Kerrville, Texas.

Our honored General John J. Pershing, now on French soil, has flashed the news home, "I'm ready for the troops." Information is to the effect that he has formed a great base camp for the first contingent of American soldiers which are expected to be transported to the war front by Sept. 1st. In fact it will not be that long before a large number of them will be with Pershing at the front. Let us give these boys and our general our unstinted support and our prayers as they shall take up arms and follow Old Glory to ultimate victory in the bitterest war struggle of the ages.

Automobilists would do well to get a copy of the new Motor Vehicle Law passed by the last legislature which goes into effect July 1st. It may appear rigid and unreasonable in some respects, but the intent of its passage was to safeguard the public, both owners and non-owners of cars. Many of the sad accidents would be averted if such laws were already in force and carefully observed.

Catholic Church Notes

(By Father Kemper)

The Daughters of Isabella held a special meeting at the Catholic Women's Club in San Antonio and appointed Miss Matilda Funke to be hostess of the vacation camp which they will conduct this summer in our St. Mary's Park. Miss Funke will probably be here on Friday so as to prepare for the opening on July first. Miss Angeline Kemper, corresponding secretary for the camp, motored to the Alamo City in her Buick to attend this meeting, and at the same time to bring back Father Kemper who had spent the week at the St. Louis college in an annual spiritual retreat for the diocesan clergy.

Last Sunday the Mexicans held a Red Cross rally in the school hall of Our Lady of Guadalupe in order to demonstrate not only their loyalty to our flag but also their willingness to contribute to this worthy cause.

Picnic at Camp Verde

There is to be a basket picnic at the Camp Verde spring on July 4th for all of Kerr County. It has been planned to make this in the form of an old fashioned basket picnic with the old fashioned entertainment, and all are cordially invited to be present with a well filled basket and prepared to spend the day in rest and enjoyment. Camp Verdeites have the reputation of being good entertainers, and they suggest that we come out and spend a "sane" Fourth of July.

LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads 'round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

ALWAYS WANT LITTLE MORE

This Human Tendency Makes Possible One Woman's Odd but Useful Trade With Auto Owners.

In the American Magazine we read of a woman who has made a comfortable living through supplying passengers to automobiles and vice versa. The writer visited her to learn her method and she was preparing to tell of her experience when the telephone rang. "You wish to go to Concord Saturday afternoon?" I heard my hostess inquire and then, after looking into a record book which lay on the desk near the telephone, she added, "Yes, I can accommodate you. A car will call at your home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. . . You say you are coming back Thursday? There is one seat left in a car which is coming in at 4:30 in the afternoon. Will that be satisfactory? All right. . . Yes, I will send my statement to your husband. Good-by." "Just then an automobile drove up and a gentleman entered. 'I am taking my family up to our camp at Brunswick for the summer,' he said. 'My car will make the trip twice a day from now until the first of September. You can list it to leave here at ten o'clock in the morning and five in the afternoon; coming down it will leave Brunswick at seven in the morning and two in the afternoon. It will come by Concord.' "When I mentioned the question of price, the agent said, 'The prices are based on the mileage on each dollar which passes through my hands. I pay the car owner a certain price per mile for each passenger carried, and then I charge the passenger this sum plus my commission. This does away with any dealing between the car owner and the people he carries. "At first I was afraid my idea would not work, for I could hardly believe that a man who could own an automobile would be interested in saving so small a sum as a dollar or two, but I have found few who would not put themselves out a bit to save a little money—no doubt that is why they are able to own an automobile."

Genius and Rules.
Genius may be a late bloomer and may violate the conditions felt to be binding upon mere talent or mediocrity, but for all that genius is not genius because it occasionally breaks rules, and no writer can serve as a model for the young who does not conform to certain principles. The object of the linguistic branch of education is to fit each pupil with the ability to make himself clearly understood, and this can best be done by teaching him to observe such rules as will tend to make his speech similar to that of his hearers. If after acquiring so much he finds that he is a literary genius, he may go forward and devise new forms for himself all well and good, but general education is for average people, and the only safeguard against dialects or a confusion of tongues is the teachings of such common principles as will apply throughout the country.

Not So Funny After All.
Canon Alinger was very fond of children and set out one night to attend a party given "by children for children." "Don't announce me," he said to the servant. Leaving his coat and hat downstairs he quietly opened the drawing room door, where the buzz of voices announced the presence of company. Dropping on his hands and knees he entered, making strange noises distinctly resembling the neighing of a horse. Aware of a dead silence, he looked up, and found the guests assembled for an eight o'clock dinner regarding him with disgust, not unmixed with alarm. The children's party was next door. Do Not Eat When Tired.
The average person does not take enough rest. He works all day, eats his midday meal in a hurry in between pressing office appointments, comes home late and seldom rests before sitting down to dinner. In a state of complete physical and mental exhaustion dinner is eaten and as a consequence of this fatigue the digestive organs are unable to do their work properly. If the sufferer from indigestion could arrange to rest half an hour or even fifteen minutes before each meal, with the same amount of time allotted to rest afterward, his stomach would soon digest the food put into it and his trouble would be at an end.—New York Evening Telegram.

Fish as Brain Food.
"Fish is a brain food." Here is an assertion that we hear repeatedly, given forth with great solemnity. There is, however, no foundation whatever for the belief that fish contains any particular elements that adapt them especially as food for the brain or which support mental efforts. The value of fish as food to persons engaged in mental labor is found in the fact that fish do not contain large quantities of those materials that demand much physical exercise or exertion for their complete consumption. As the brainworker is seldom physically active, the value of fish as food for him is due to what is not contained in the fish. Disappointed.
"Was the mass meeting a success?" "Oh, yes." "But I just now met Githers, who was present, and he told me the meeting was a fiasco." "Sh! Githers was the only prominent citizen there who didn't get a chance to make a speech."

Without food for all, neither the United States nor her Allies can crush the enemy. The great corn crop may be the real life saver for us
ROBERT H. MOULTON

American Farmers Will Win The Great War

THE farmers of the United States are on the firing line of the great war today. Their plows are worth many cannons. The seed they sow is worth regiments of men. For no army can fight without food and no nation can sustain war without food. The allies, our allies, are beginning to feel the pinch of want, not in the same degree as the people of central Europe, but that will come unless America puts forth all her energies to supply them.

But it is most essential to feed America first. Even now a large class of our people are feeling the weight of food shortages. Food riots and partial famines are threatened by crop failure in the United States. So it is up to the American farmer to do his best.

Many conditions have contributed to bring about the situation in which there are hunger riots in a land so rich naturally. Much of the shortage of food is primarily due to costly habits of eating which for many decades have been holding all classes in their clutch. The time is at hand when the nation will appreciate the many valuable articles which before Columbus came the Indians were developing. There are many food products native to the Western world which have been unaccountably neglected.

The most striking examples of unused value in foods is the corn crop. Every other nation in the world is eager for American corn, and yet this cheap and highly nutritious cereal is neglected in the land which is its main source of supply. What wheat was to the armies of old, corn could be to the forces of the United States.

The legions of Hannibal and of Caesar subsisted on the whole wheat; Gaul's conqueror in his "Commentaries" tells how soldiers chewed frumentum as they marched. To this day Roman and Punic skeletons are unearthed on the old battlefields of Europe and the skulls are firm and hard because of the valuable salts and bone-building constituents which came from the wheaten diet of the ancient soldier.

Corn is no less valuable as a builder of brave and sturdy men. The favorite ration of Davy Crockett was parched and ground corn, which he carried with him into the depths of the forest. It was a saying of his that if a man had a gun and ten pounds of parched corn he could easily live a year. His diet was a trick learned from the Indians, who were able to withstand the fatigues of warpath and hunting trail because of this simple and quickly assimilated food. The corn, rich in starch and protein, parched until it was made quickly digestible, was mixed with water. A cupful of this most simple of all the elixirs had the effect of almost instantly strengthening the tired body.

The government of the United States urges upon the people of this country that at least one-fourth part of cornmeal be added to wheat flour in the making of bread. As a matter of fact, corn has been used in the form of a fine flour for centuries by various tribes of Indians, and when well enough ground it is fully as palatable as the wheaten product.

The coarse cornmeal bears little resemblance to the impalpable powder of corn which the primitive races of this continent made by grinding between stones and that by hand. The outer covering of the kernels is scraped off after soaking them in hot water to which a little lye has been added. This flour is mixed with water at times, and the white liquid resulting is quaffed with much relief. It is an emergency ration of the highest food value.

Whittier has sung the praises of the dish of samp and milk by homespun beauty possessed. The hominy block in the time of Daniel Boone was an adjunct of the cabin of every settler. It stood at the edge of clearings as a mark of the diet to which those steel-thewed pioneers looked for strength.

The Johnny-cake and the corn pone of the hardy mountaineers of the South bear abundant testimony to the body-building qualities of the staple from which they are derived.

Corn enters into the composition of patent breakfast foods, but long before the days of cartons and bright labels the Indians were making corn dishes which for delicacy of flavor and dietetic value put the products of this modern day to shame. They also constructed flapjacks which literally melted in the mouth.

The tortillas of the Central American countries are a form of corn which appeals to travelers. The tortilla is made of corn flour and is a first cousin of the pancake. Before it cools it is rolled up and a surprise party put inside it, usually a little high-seasoned meat. It is then kept for future use. A favorite breakfast in the Central American countries consists of two tortillas which have been heated before the fire. They and a cup of coffee are enough to satisfy even the hungriest Indian.

Totopzilt tastes much better than it sounds. It is a very thin, light wafer made by the Indians in the southern part of this continent. The corn from which the cake is made is first slightly parched and then pounded to a fine dust. The cakes are flake-like and not much thicker than wrapping paper. They are carried in small bags thrown over the shoulders of the hardy Indians.

Totopzilt is dry and crumply and yet delicious in flavor as well as sustaining in its qualities. The biscuit and crackers of civilization are tame in flavor as compared with this aboriginal provender. Corn flourishes in the fertile bottom of the middle West, under the lee of the mesas of Arizona, and even in regions of the Northwest, where until recently it had a hard time to escape the frost.

One of the greatest gifts which the Indians bestowed upon the world was this grain of gold. The general impression is that the redskin was merely a hunter, when in reality he was a walking experimental agricultural station. It is one of the favorite outdoor pastimes of the Indians of the Southwest to laugh at the government agricultural experts who have from time to time been sent out there to teach them how to grow corn.

The Indians profess great interest, and not to appear unappreciative, they used to plant corn patches alongside those of the federal apostles of modern farming. The government corn came up bright and green and soon withered away, while that of the Indians flourished like weeping willows by the river's brink. The Indians in order to avoid the killing dryness often lodged the kernels three and four feet below the surface in the bottom of holes made by their planting sticks. Hence the development of the deep-growing corn which often raises only its ears above the surface. The corn or maize is essentially a tropical plant which had its origin in Mexico and was adapted to this climate by the Indians.

The agricultural secrets of the Mandan Indians have recently been applied in the Dakotas with such success that the domain of the tasselled King-Corn has been much extended. The introduction of the Indian methods have made it possible for the farmer to grow a corn which can be harvested within 60 days after it is planted and thus escape the frosts which would ruin it even in its maturity.

Corn, therefore, should be an ideal food for both the soldierly and the civil population, for it now may be raised abundantly in practically every part of the country. Vast tracts could be devoted to the grain and many crops could be harvested. In winter the Americans could learn the value of the hog and hominy, of the flavor of that delectable compound of cornmeal and pig's head, known as scrapple, and could eat with zest fried mush and corn cakes. The summer would bring them corn flour and polenta and many other foods derived from the yellow cereal.

What the Insignia On Uniforms Means

In times of peace by means of the amount of gold braid and shiny buttons displayed the average man could usually guess the rank of an officer within a few grades, but in the stern days of war, when officers and men are clad alike in business-like khaki, there is little to tell a private from a major. There is, of course, a method in this, for it would not do in modern warfare to make officers conspicuous to the enemy.

In all branches of the service, infantry, cavalry and artillery, the same symbols or insignia of rank are used. The corporal, at the bottom of the scale of officers, is distinguished from the private by the chevron, consisting of two bars on the right sleeve. In the case of the sergeant, next highest in rank, the chevron is of three inverted V-shaped bars. All enlisted men, including these non-commissioned officers, wear on one side of their coats or blouses a bronze button with the number of their organization, and in relief crossed rifles for the infantry, crossed sabers for the cavalry and crossed cannon for the artillery. Coast and field artillerymen may be distinguished by the fact that in the case of the former in addition to the cannon there is a shell at the point of intersection of the cannon.

The second lieutenant, lowest in rank of the commissioned officers, may be distinguished from the enlisted man, despite the fact that he wears no insignia on his shoulder straps, by the gold marking on his collar. This symbol, as in the case of the enlisted men, is of crossed rifles, sabers or cannon, according to the branch of the service, and is worn by all regimental officers. On the other side of the collar are the letters "U. S." in gold. Infantry officers may be distinguished by the fact that the latter wear canvas leggings, while the officers have tan leather leggings.

First lieutenants have a silver bar on their shoulder straps, while captains have two bars. Of the field officers, the major wears a gold leaf, and the colonel a silver spread eagle. The brigadier general has one silver star, and the major general, the highest officer in our army at present, has two silver stars.

The campaign hats—broad-brimmed felt hats with stiff brims—afford another clue to the rank of the wearer belongs. The hats of all enlisted men are alike, but the hat cord around the crown reveals by its color the branch of the service to which the man belongs. A blue cord signifies infantry, a yellow cord cavalry, and a red cord artillery, either coast or field. The men of the quartermaster's corps have buff, the engineering corps red and white, the signal corps orange and white, and the hospital corps maroon and white hat cords. Officers of all branches wear gold and black hat cords, the insignia on their collars being the only indications of rank.

The insignia of the quartermaster's corps is a winged wheel crossed by a key and sword, of the engineering corps three turrets, and of the signal corps crossed flags. There are a few other emblems, but these are the most important.

In addition to the hat cords used in the service there are frequently seen on the streets the red, white and blue cords of the men who have been at Plattsburg or other camps, but who are not actually in the service. The home-defense men wear green and white hat cords and slate-colored uniforms to distinguish them from the regulars.—New York Sun.

PROTESTS OF ESTEEM.

"Is Higgins a patriot?" "I don't know. He says he loves his country." "That ought to settle it." "Well, he says he loves his family, too. If he doesn't treat his country any better than he does his family I doubt whether his love for country will make much difference."

EXPENSIVE INTELLECT.

"Old Bostely says he has a million-dollar brain," observed the man who was always picking up choice bits of information. "He's quite right," answered the other: "it would cost him fully that much to find out what's the matter with it."

ABOUT SOME GUYS

Fastidious One Learns English "As She Is Spoke."
Adds New Word to His Vocabulary in Course of His Conversation With Two Business Men.

The elderly gentleman with the silk hat and the white waistcoat approached the intelligent-looking, neatly clad young man and addressed him with an air of courtly grace.

"I beg your pardon," said he, "but this is my first visit to this town in many years. Would you be kind enough to tell me the name of the gentleman across the street? His face looks vaguely familiar; and it is barely possible that I knew him in the years before I went abroad to live."

The young man shot an alert look at the elderly gentleman, and then smiled sympathetically. "Do you mean that guy in the brown derby?" he asked. "That's my old man—Judge Smith."

The elderly gentleman drew back slightly. "I didn't refer to that—er—" He paused and brushed his hand over his eyes. "Did you refer to him as 'guy'?" he continued.

"Sure," replied the young man, with a somewhat puzzled air. "Was that the guy you meant?"

"No! No!" declared the elderly gentleman hurriedly. "I referred to the —guy with the white goatee."

"Oh, that guy!" exclaimed the young man. "I don't know that guy. He came to town yesterday to do some kind of business with the guy that runs the movie. Some of these guys around here ought to know who he is though."

The young man whistled shrilly, and beckoned imperatively to another prosperous-looking young business man who stood conversing with friends on the opposite curb. In response to the signal, the second young man crossed the street and questioned the first young man with lifted eyebrows.

"Listen, Ed," said the first young man, "who is the guy with the white goatee across the street? Hasn't he got something to do with the guy that started the movie show?"

"Search me, Jack," replied the second young man. "I never saw that guy before."

Closing his eyes as though in deep pain, the elderly gentleman stumbled off down the street, murmuring naught save the words: "Thank you, guys."

"Who's the old guy?" asked the second young man curiously.

"Some crazy guy, I guess," replied the first young man, shrugging his shoulders. "Two Guys and a Guy," is Puck.

Ripe Bananas Not Harmful.

The unripe banana consists largely of starch; this starch changes into sugar as the fruit ripens, and to sugar in its most easily assimilated form.

"The composition of the banana and the potato," says a report, "shows an interesting similarity both as regards total carbohydrate and the amount of the different mineral constituents. While the banana can hardly be regarded as a potato substitute, the fact that it has practically the same caloric value as the potato is worthy of note."

The doctors who made these experiments express the belief that whenever indigestion follows eating bananas it is to be assumed that the fruit was not ripe, for "no ill effects, discomfort or distaste were noted even after the consumption of large quantities of ripe fruit for several days."—Journal of American Medical Association.

Glug!

"Yes," said a traveling man, "I was once out of sight of land on the Atlantic ocean twenty-one days." Another man spoke up: "On the Pacific ocean one time I didn't see land for twenty-nine days." A bald man knocked the ashes from his cigar and contributed his bit: "I started across the Kaw river at Topeka in a skiff once," he said, "and was out of sight of land before I reached the other side."

"What!" demanded the man who had spun the first yarn. "The Kaw is not more than 300 feet wide at Topeka."

"Quite true," said the bald man quietly. "The skiff turned over and I sank twice."

Too Much Talk.

The French think the English people somewhat slow and serious. It is all a matter of comparison. A sour, taciturn Scott—a house painter, by the by—had been to England and returned to his native town. The lady of the house where he was working tried to get him to talk.

"You have been to England, they tell me, Alec."

"Aye."

"Were you there long?"

"Fower year."

"Well, what do you think of the English?"

"Gas bags"—solemnly, without the twitch of a muscle. The "conversation" ended there.

Poor Spongely.

Duffer—Say, young Spongely surely likes his cigarettes, doesn't he?
Puffer—Don't know for sure, but he likes the other fellows.

Evidently Not.

Hubb—I wonder why they call an ironing machine a mangle?
Betch—My boy, evidently you have never sent anything to a laundry.

KERRVILLE

Is the county seat of Kerr County, has a population of about 2500, is situated 70 miles northwesterly from San Antonio, and is the terminus of the Kerrville branch of the S. A. & A. P. railroad. It has two daily trains to and from San Antonio, and daily mill route, carrying passengers in autos, to Ingram, Junction, Rock Springs Harper and other places north and west of Kerrville, and also a daily line to Fredericksburg. From Kerrville to Fredericksburg is 25 miles; to Bandera and Medina City, 25 miles; to Junction 60 miles; Rocksprings 80 miles, Harper 21 miles.

Kerrville has electric lights and a splendid system of water works. The sum of $30,000 has been spent on the streets and $10,000 has been spent for road improvements in this precinct.

The elevation at Kerrville is 1750 feet. The Guadalupe river, which heads 30 miles north of Kerrville, runs through the city. On the east side where the city is located, there are high cliffs on the river, and on the west side is a fertile and beautiful valley, and mountains surround the city on the east and west. The Guadalupe valley is occupied by thrifty farmers and ranchmen, and the mountain regions, among which there is considerable timber, creek and arable land, there are large ranches of cattle, horses, sheep and goats, all of which do well in the Kerrville country. The land generally is well wooded, principally with live oak, Spanish oak and cedar, and the range is good, and water excellent.

Our farmers grow wheat, oats and all other small grain, cane and alfalfa, cotton and corn, and fruit and vegetables do well. Kerrville is one of the largest wool markets in the state, and large quantities of wool, mohair, cotton, oats, cattle, etc., are shipped from this point.

The climate of the Kerrville country is unsurpassed. The winters are short and generally mild and invigorating owing to the dryness of the climate and the prevalence of sunshine. The summers are cool and delightful, and the mountain air is pure and bracing. Game abounds in the Kerrville country, and fishing in the Guadalupe, especially north of Kerrville, is good. Kerrville and the adjoining towns are popular resorts for health and recreation.

The Kerrville Commercial Club, any of the different Realty Companies or any of our citizens, will be pleased to give prospective residents or visitors further information.

Ring phone No. 117 and tell us the news. We are paying rent on a phone for this very purpose. Who were your visitors from a distance the past week? Did you go away or did some of your family go away on a visit? What do you know anyway, that would be new?
