Back on Their Jobs

You know, when you try to invite everybody to a party, you're sure to leave out some by oversight. So it is was with us last week in trying to give a list of the soldier and sailor boys of Kerrville who are back in their former positions. One we left out was our young friend, Sam C. Sutton, who is back with the Bitel Lumber Company, but with a promotion to manager of that large business in Kerrville. Pardon us Sam for the oversight. If we missed others it was not intentional and would be glad to have our attention called to any other omissions.

Mark Mosty of the U. S. Navy, received his discharge the other day and arrived home Sunday morning. He is back in the Postoffice greeting his many friends and is now Assistant Postmaster, taking the place formerly occupied by Rudolph Stehling.

Mrs. L. A. Leinweber.

Mrs. L. A. Leinweber, for many years an honored resident of this county, living in Ingram community, died in San Antonio Sunday evening at 8 o'clock after a long illness. She leaves a devoted husband and several children, as well as many other relatives and friends to mourn her departure.

The body arrived yesterday afternoon and was interred at Nichols cemetery. Time will not permit a more lengthy obituary this week.

H. P. Patterson of Shelbyville, Tenn., was in Kerrville yesterday trying to arrange to move his family here.

SCHOOL NEWS.

Kerrville Public Schools will reopen Monday, February 3. Pupils from homes where there is any form of a contagious disease, will be required to present a doctor's certificate, saying that their presence in school will not endanger the health of other children, before they will be permitted to report to their rooms for school work.

I wish to urge all pupils, who can to re-enter school Monday and to be prepared for examination on all high school work which has been assigned. There will be four months and one week of school, and much can be done in that time, if all who are concerned will do their best.

Lt. Raymond A. Franklin of Devine has been selected to teach Mathematics for the rest of the term. He comes to us with a good record.

Found His Automobile But Thieves Escape.

H. R. Allen of Kingsville passed through Kerrville Sunday on his return home from Ozona where he had been for his automobile which was stolen in San Antonio a few days ago. The thieves, two young men, "soaked" the car at a Garage in Ozona and ordered $100 worth of repairs of various kinds done on it then skipped before they could be arrested. Mr. Allen had to pay $150 at the garage to get his car. The thieves went to Ozona by way of Del Rio and Comstock. Officers are still after them.

Million Dollar Loyalty Loan Drive by Texas Baptists

Texas Baptists will begin their "Loyalty Loan" drive throughout the State for $1,000,000, Sunday Feb. 9th. February will be known as the "Million Dollar Month." They have in the State twelve large schools with assets of over $4,000,000. There are 227 teachers with 5250 enrolled students this session up to Nov. 1st.

The names and locations of these schools are as follows: Baylor University, at Waco; Baylor Medical College, at Dallas; Baylor Female College, at Belton; Simmons College, at Abilene; Howard Payne, at Brownwood; Marshall College, at Marshall; Wayland College, at Plainview; Rusk Junior College, at Rusk; San Marcos Academy, at San Marcos; Southwestern Baptist Seminary, at Fort Worth; Burleson College, at Greenville and Decatur College at Decatur.

The Baptist General Convention in December authorized the issue of $1,000,000 in bonds to be known as the "Loyalty Loan." The object of which is to refund or pay all the debts on the various schools, at a uniform rate of interest at 6 per cent. There will be retired annually $50,000 of these bonds at the same time an annual campaign for $300,000 each fall will be carried on for ten years, making $3,000,000. Interest and principal will be paid on the bonds, a sinking fund will be created and cash will be provided to make necessary equipment, etc.

I cannot now go into the full details of the plan. But on the opinion of such business men as R. E. Burt of Houston, M. H. Wolfe of Dallas, T. C. Yantis of Brownwood, J. Dabney Day of Dallas, Cullen F. Thomas and others. There is no question as to its success. It is estimated that the "Loyalty Loan" will save over $15,000 per year, and in ten years $150,000 with the "Loyalty Loan" and Cash Fall subscriptions combined. At the end of ten years all debts will be paid and $1,250,000 in cash will be invested in new improvements at the various schools as they may need.

This method of financing the Baptist Schools system has been under advisement for more than two years, being under consideration before the war. After careful investigation the Bond issue was authorized by the last convention.

Methodist Church Notes

The church will be open for regular services on next Sunday. We have been shut down now for two weeks, but we hope it has not so demoralized us that we have gotten out of the habit of coming to church. Let us be there next Sunday. Not only be there but come in a spirit of prayer. Pray for the service before you come. The subject for the morning service will be prayer.

Special attention is called to the service Sunday evening at seven thirty. Rev. Schleifer, of the Lutheran church will give an address on the spiritual conditions and church work in continental Europe, and the task of reconstruction. He will give you something worth while, and you will miss a treat if you do not hear it. Come and bring all the family, and Bill's family. The address will be in the Methodist Church, Special Music that night. This meeting is under the auspices of the Laymen's club. We would remind the Junior and Senior Leaguers that we are expecting them all to be on hand. There is no good reason for us to have to build from the bottom again because we have been shut down for two weeks. Lets get to work now!

On Wednesday night, Feb. 5th, the prayer meeting service will take on a new feature. After a very short prayer and devotional service there will be a debate on the subject "Resolved That Moses was a greater Leader than Paul." Affirmative: A. Scobie, A. L. Starkey. Negative: J. J. Starkey and C. W. Moore. This promises to be both entertaining and instructive. The speakers will be limited to seven minutes each.

Saturday Feb. 8th. is the Boy Scout Anniversary. The following directions are for troop No. 2. Let all the boys meet at the Club Room promptly at ten o'clock Saturday morning. We will then spend some time in arranging the room in better order. In the afternoon we will take a country hike. Then at night the club will have a social in the Club Room, each boy inviting the girl he likes best. Sunday Feb. 9th. will be Scout Sunday. All the Scouts, including troops 1 and 2, are requested to come in a mass to the evening service. This service will be for the Scouts, and in their honor. The pastor will preach a Boy Scout sermon and there will be special music. All the people of the town interested in the Boy Scout work, and in the Boys, are cordially invited to attend this service. The Camp Fire Girls will also attend in work.

uniform. A section of the church will be reserved for these organizations.

We call special attention to the Scouts of the Scout exhibition Feb. 22. Both troops will exhibit in the Club Room of troop No. 2. Every Scout should decide immediately what he wants to make, and let the Scout know, so all the boys will make the same thing. We want a variety of things. The League Societies was to have been the first week of the quarantine, will be held on Thursday night, Feb. 6th, in the church. All the Leaguers and prospective Leaguers are urged to be on hand.

ROY T. HOUTS, Pastor.

Bandera Letter.

The death of Mr. Herman Mansfield, which occurred at his home last Wednesday from Influenza, was a great shock to this community. Mr. Mansfield was one of our most prosperous stock-farmers and president of the Bandera State Bank. He leaves a devoted wife and three sons to mourn his death. They have the sympathy of many friends throughout the county.

Jodie Sauter, the eighteen-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Sauter of Tarpley, was shot and probably fatally wounded while hunting Wednesday afternoon. His uncle, Loss Dean, had become separated from him, and seeing what he thought was a deer fired with his 30-30 rifle and found that he had wounded his nephew. He was taken to Hondo for treatment and very little hope is held out for his recovery.

Mrs. Mary Carmichael has returned from an extensive visit to her son John, in Arizona, her son Hal at Uvalde, and her niece, Mrs. J. M. Cavender at Sabinal.

TEXAS SENATE AND HOUSE PROCEEDINGS

BOTH BRANCHES OF TEXAS LEGISLATURE HAVE BEEN HOLDING BUSY SESSIONS.

TO ABOLISH POOL HALLS

Senate Votes to Abolish Pool Halls of State on April 1—Dry Measure to Be Submitted to People on May 24.

Austin, Tex.—Neither house of the legislature was in session Saturday. Quite a number of members went home for the first time since the session started. Several others were absent, being members of committees of visitation to the several state institutions.

There were a number of committee meetings during the day and quite a few bills will be reported to both branches this week.

Friday's Senate Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—The senate Friday passed what was regarded as an important bill, and one that provoked considerable discussion—the Dorough bill, providing for the creation of private corporations to operate garages, automobiles—by a vote of 22 to 6. It had been slightly amended. The bill, it was stated, might affect the jitney question, which had been dealt with by several of the large cities.

The Dudley bill providing for the double platoon system for paid firemen in towns of more than fifteen thousand inhabitants was finally passed after it had been amended by Mr. Carlisle so as not to apply to cities with a population of 70,000 or over, except by act of the commissioners of such cities.

Friday's House Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—The submission of the equal suffrage amendment is a fact. It was accomplished Friday when the house gave final adoption to the senate joint resolution extending suffrage to women. The vote was 105 to 9. The resolution had previously passed the senate 28 to 9. The question is to come before the people on May 24.

The first of the general appropriation bills for the present legislature came before the house Friday from the judiciary department. It was offered by Charles G. Thomas, chairman of that committee.

The bill calls for an appropriation of $2,470,276 for the two years. The amount for the first year is $1,234,138, leaving $1,236,138 for the second year. This is about $50,000 more than this department was allowed by the Thirty-fifth legislature.

Jefferson St. John introduced a bill on criminal jurisdiction to report favorably and Francis Green introduced by Mr. our Mexican intended for the protection of men and boarding house keepers being grave.

Supervisors bills provide for a lien on baggage where a guest fails to settle; for the payment of those who give the hotel keepers bogus checks and drafts, and provide for bringing witnesses to testify in such cases where the amount involved is less than $50.

Austin, Tex.—The senate Thursday finally passed a bill which abolishes all pool halls of the state on April 1. The bill makes it a misdemeanor to operate any pool hall for profit, and fixes the punishment at a $200 fine, or a jail sentence of from 20 days to one year.

The date for the beginning of the Glascock-Parr election contest in the senate was Thursday set by the committee on privileges and elections, for Tuesday, Feb. 4, at 2:30 p. m.

A resolution offered also provides that the hearing shall be held in the senate chamber; also that the chairman of the committee shall be authorized to issue subpoenas for witnesses. The witnesses are to be paid $2 per day and allowed 3 cents a mile each way. A court reporter is to be employed to take the testimony.

Thursday's Senate Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—A busy day was spent by the senate Thursday and all bills on the calendar were disposed of and other business was transacted.

The following bills were passed under a suspension of rules:

By Mr. Hopkins—Providing for the clearing of streams of timber and underbrush by land owners to prevent such streams from choking.

By Mr. Woods—Providing that the attorney general compile and distribute a peace officers' manual.

By Mr. Willford—Providing that sheriffs take bonds of defendants in misdemeanor cases during recess.

By Mr. Dorough—To incorporate drilling companies to drill for water, gas or oil.

By Mr. Alderdice and Others—State depository bill providing for the deposit of state funds in banks which Bill Affecting Schools.

Austin, Tex.—The house committee on constitutional amendments has reported favorably on the resolution offered to permit the voting of a special tax of 50c on the $100 of property valuation, the money to be used to provide transportation for pupils and for consolidating school districts. A favorable report has been voted by the educational committee on the bill for free textbooks for children.

pay interest thereon and give security.

By Mr. Willford—Providing for suits against different bondsmen by state and school districts when officers sued here held office more than two years.

Thursday's House Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—A bill offered in the house Thursday by W. M. Tidwell of Ellis county increases the value of a homestead under which a person can declare indigency. The figure of the bill is $500. Under the present law indigency can not be declared if a homestead valued at more than $1,000 is owned.

On the recommendation of the committee on privileges and elections the house voted to seat Sam E. Johnson of Blanco county, whose place as representative of the Eighty-seventh district had been contested by A. M. Benner.

Enrollment of the bill to sell state quarantine property along the coast and border to the federal government was ordered in the house Thursday.

Wednesday's Senate Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—The senate Wednesday finally adopted the house resolution submitting the dry measure to the people of Texas on May 24, the vote having stood 30 to 1, the lone negative vote was cast by Senator Clark of Schulenburg. The entire senate voted on the proposition, the first time the full vote has been cast this session.

The executive session of the senate Wednesday confirmed all recess appointments submitted by Governor Hobby.

Wednesday's House Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—The house finally adopted the equal suffrage resolution Wednesday by a vote of 122 to 6, and the senate adopted its own resolution by a vote of 25 to 9. To complete the submission of the proposition one of the houses still have to adopt the resolution of the other. Like the prohibition amendment, the resolution will be submitted May 24.

Interlocutory decrees for all divorcees granted in Texas are provided for in a house bill introduced Wednesday by E. B. Horton of Dallas.

Final committee action on the house joint resolution to revise the court system of the state will not be taken until many prominent jurists and lawyers of Texas have been heard.

Tuesday's Senate Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—Senate committee on constitutional amendments Tuesday reported favorably on the house statewide prohibition amendment, and accepted the date fixed in the house, May 24, for voting on the proposition. By a viva voce vote, the senate Tuesday passed to third reading the house statewide prohibition amendment and also the senate woman suffrage amendment to the constitution.

The senate committee amendment fixing the date for voting on woman suffrage on August 16 was stricken out and this left the date as originally intended, May 24. This means that the people will vote on statewide prohibition and on woman suffrage on May 24.

Tuesday's House Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—Complete revision of the court system of Texas as recommended by the State Bar Association was proposed in the joint resolution offered in the house Tuesday by John Davis of Dallas. This amendment provides for three steps in the courts of the state. There would be magistrate courts, district courts and a supreme court of fifteen justices. The magistrate courts would correspond to the present justice courts. The district courts would have jurisdiction similar to that of the present courts of that character.

The amendment would make the chief justice the business manager of the state judicial system. He could designate the kinds of cases to be tried in any district court of the state.

A feature of the proposed system is that no cases could be refused a hearing before the supreme court because of the errors in preparation. Cases would be heard on their merits only.

Monday's Senate Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—In the senate Monday Mr. Cousins introduced a welfare bill to regulate the employment of women and minors and to establish an industrial welfare commission to investigate and deal with such employment, including the fixing of a minimum wage, and providing penalties for violating the act.

Senator Bailey obtained the adoption of a concurrent resolution requesting the Texas delegation in congress to urge upon the war department to give preference to the discharge of soldiers who are farmers and stock raisers that they may return to their farms and ranches.

Senator Dorough introduced in the senate a public utilities bill placing service corporations under the jurisdiction of the railroad commission, except those utilities owned by municipalities and those where contracts to purchase have been made between the corporation and the cities.

Monday's House Proceedings.

Austin, Tex.—The woman suffrage amendment was reported favorably by the house committee on constitutional amendments Monday. The amendment, as reported, carries a provision that none but fully naturalized citizens be allowed suffrage, and the date for submission to the people is fixed for May 24.

Without delay or debate, the house Monday voted to submit to the people of Texas the question of statewide prohibition. But one dissenting vote was cast. There were 121 votes for the measure.

LATEST FROM THE COUNCIL FIRE RECORD CREDITS ARE OF THE GREAT POWERS GRANTED TO TEXAS CITIES

Territorial Acquisition by Force to Prejudice Claims Before the Peace Council.

Paris—A series of international events of the highest order have taken form at recent meetings of the council of the great powers, and the military commanders on all the fronts. These may be summed up as follows:

First, the issuance of a solemn warning to the world that the possession of territory gained by force will seriously prejudice the claims of those who use such means and set up sovereignty by coercion. This declaration was framed by President Wilson.

Second, the appointing of a commission of the highest military authorities, including the British minister of war, Marshal Foch, General Diaz and General Tasker H. Bliss, to carry forward early demobilization and establish proportionate allied and associated forces on the western front.

Third, discussion of territorial claims on conquered German colonies, with hearings of interest to Australia, New Zealand and South Africa on German East Africa and the German island groups of the Pacific.

Fourth, approval by the council of the striking of a medal for all troops taking part in the war.

Fifth, authorization to M. Pichon, the French foreign secretary, to draft instructions for the joint mission which is to proceed to Poland.

The foregoing embrace some of the most difficult questions before the peace conference and, with the projected action on the league of nations, indemnities, punishments, labor and international highways, it goes far toward clearing the slate of most of the large subjects before the conference.

Senator Bell of Foard has just introduced a bill in the Texas legislature extending one year the benefits of the seed loan act of the fourth call session of the Thirty-fifth legislature. In view of the copious rains throughout the State, and the good season now in the ground, the first in three or four years in the west, Senator Bell thinks the State should extend its credit a year, so that the seed again may be planted and the fields produce food and feed.

A Word About the Kidneys

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anurie Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anurie Tablets, which can be secured at the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that uric acid will no longer form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

CAROLYN AND PRINCE HAVE ANOTHER ADVENTURE WHICH BRINGS THEM NEW LAURELS.

Synopsis.—Her father and mother reported lost at sea when the Dunraven, on which they had sailed for Europe, was sunk, Carolyn May Cameron—Hanna's Carlyn—is sent from New York to her father's uncle, Joseph Stagg, at the Corners. The reception given her by her uncle is not very enthusiastic. Carolyn is also called by the stern demeanor of Aunt Rose, Uncle Joe's housekeeper. Stagg is dismayed when he learns from a lawyer friend of his brother-in-law that Carolyn has been left practically penniless and consigned to his care as guardian. Carolyn learns of the estrangement between her uncle and his one-time sweetheart, Amanda Parlow, and the cause of the bitterness between the two families. Prince, the mongrel dog that Carolyn brought with her, and the moon companion of the lonesome girl, is in disfavor with Uncle Joe, who threatens to dispose of him, but Prince becomes a hero and wins the approval of the Corners by routing a tramp in the act of robbing the schoolteacher. The following Sunday, while Carolyn and her uncle, accompanied by Prince, are taking a walk in the woods they encounter Amanda Parlow. Prince kills a snake about to strike Amanda, and Stagg and Amanda speak to each other for the first time in years. Carolyn is dismayed when she learns from Chet Gornley, her uncle's clerk, that she was left practically penniless and is a "charity" orphan.

"So, you see," added the child, "I am charity. I'm not like other girls that's got papas and mummies. Course I knowed that before, but it didn't seem—seem so hard as it does now," she confessed with a sob. "My dear! my dear!" cried Miss Amanda, dropping on her knees beside the little girl, "don't talk so! I know your uncle must love you."

"Oh, Miss Mandy!" gasped Carolyn May, "don't you s'pose he loves other folks, too? You know—folks he'd be-gun to love ever so long ago?"

The woman's smooth cheeks burned suddenly and she stood up. "I'm most sure he'd never stop loving a person if he'd once begun to love 'em," said Carolyn May, with a high opinion of the faithfulness of Uncle Joe's character.

"Do you want to know if your Uncle Joe loves you?" she asked Carolyn May at last. "Do you?"

"Oh, I do!" cried the little girl. "Then, ask 'im," advised Miss Amanda. "That's the only way to do with the Stagg. If you want to get at the Stagg, put with it, square, and ask 'im."

"I will do it," Carolyn May said seriously. "After the child had gone the woman went back into the little cottage and her countenance did not wear the farewell smile that Carolyn May had looked back to see."

Gripping at her heart was the pain she had suffered years before and the conflict that had seared her mind so long ago was roused again.

"Oh, Joe! Oh, Joe! How could you?" she moaned, rushing herself to and fro. "How could you?"

That very night the first snow flurry of the season drove against the west window panes of the big kitchen at the Stagg homestead. It was at supper time.

"I declare for't," said Mr. Stagg, "I guess winter's onto us, Aunt Rose."

This snow did not amount to much; it was little more than a hoar frost, as Mr. Stagg said. This might be, however, the last chance for a Sunday walk in the woods for some time and Carolyn May did not propose to miss it.

On this day she earnestly desired to get him off by himself, for her heart was filled with a great purpose. She felt that they must come to an understanding.

On this particular occasion Uncle Joe sat down upon the log by the brook where Miss Amanda had once sat. Carolyn May stood before him.

"Am I just a charity orphan? Didn't my papa leave any money at all for me? Did you take me just out of charity?"

"Bless me!" gasped the hardware dealer. "I—I wish you'd answer me, Uncle Joe," went on Carolyn May with a brave effort to keep from crying.

Joseph Stagg was too blunt a person to see his way to dodging the question.

"Hum! Well, I'll tell you, Carlyn May. There isn't much left, and that's a fact. It isn't your father's fault. He thought there was plenty. But a business he invested in got into bad hands and the little nest egg he'd laid up for his family was lost."

"Then—then I am just charity. And so's Prince," whispered Carolyn May. "I—I s'pose we could go to the poor-house, Prince and me; but they mayn't like dogs there. You're real nice to me, Uncle Joe; but Prince and me—we really are a nuisance to you."

Joseph Stagg had become quite excited. "Bless me!" he finally cried once more. "How do you know I don't love you, Carolyn May?"

"Why—why— But, Uncle Joe! how do I know you do love me?" demanded the little girl. "You never told me so!"

The startled man sank upon the log again. "Well, maybe that's so," he murmured. "I s'pose it isn't my way to be very—very—s'p'fulik. But listen here, Carlyn May."

"Yes, sir."

"I ain't likely to tell you very frequently how much I—I think of you, Ahem! But you'd better stop worrying about such things as money and the like. What I've got comes pretty near belonging to you. Anyway, unless I have to go to the poorhouse myself, I reckon you needn't worry about going," and he coughed again dryly.

"As far as loving you— Well, I'll admit, under cross-examination, that I love you."

"Dear Uncle Joe!" she sighed ecstatically. "I don't mind if I am charity. If you love me, it takes all the sting out. And I'll help to make you happy, too!"

CHAPTER IX.

A Find in the Drifts. Before the week was over, winter had come to Sunrise Cove and The Corners in earnest. Snow fell and drifted, until there was scarcely anything to be seen one morning when Carolyn May awoke and looked out of her bedroom windows but a white, fleecy mantle.

This was more snow than the little girl had ever seen in New York. She came down to breakfast very much excited.

Uncle Joe had shoveled off the porch and steps, and Prince had beaten his own dooryard in the snow in front of his house. For he had a house of his own, now—a rookey, warm one—built by Mr. Parlow.

It must be confessed that, although Uncle Joe paid for the building of his doghouse, it never would have been built by Jeddiah Parlow had it not been for Carolyn May.

At noon Uncle Joe came home, dragging a sled—a big rookey one, glistening with red paint. Just the nicest sled Carolyn May had ever seen, and one of the best the hardware dealer carried in stock.

"Oh, my, that's lovely!" breathed the little girl in awed delight. "That's ever so much better than any sled I ever had before. And Prince could draw me on it, if I only had a harness for 'im. He used to drag me in the park. Of course, if he saw a cat, I had to get off and hold 'im."

Mr. Stagg, once started upon the path of good deeds, seemed to like it. At night he brought home certain straps and rivets, and in the kitchen, much to Aunt Rose's amazement, he fitted Prince to a harness which the next day Carolyn May used on the dog, and Prince drew her very nicely along the beaten paths.

By Saturday the roads were in splendid condition for sleighing.

So Carolyn May went sleighing. Out of sight of the houses grouped at The Corners the road to Yawn seemed as lonely as though it were a veritable wilderness. Here and there the drifts had piled six feet deep, for the wind had a free sweep across the barrens.

"Now, there's somebody coming," said Carolyn May, seeing a moving object ahead between the clouds of drifting snow spray. "Is it a sleigh, Priney, or just a man?"

She lost sight of the object, then sighted it again.

"It must be a man. It can't be a bear, Priney."

The strange object had disappeared again.

It was just at the place where the spring spouted out of the rocky hillside and trickled across the road. There was a sort of natural watering trough here in the rock where the horses stopped to drink. The dog drew the little girl closer to the spot.

"Where has that man gone to? If it was a man."

Prince stopped suddenly and whined and then looked around at his mistress, as though to say, "See there!"

Carolyn May tumbled off the sled in a hurry. When she did so she slipped on a patch of snow-covered ice and fell. But she was not hurt.

"There! that's where the water runs across the road. It's all slippery—Oh!"

It was the sleeve of a man's rough coat thrust out of the snowbank that brought this last cry to the child's lips.

"Oh, oh! It's a man!" burst from Carolyn May's trembling lips. "How could he be here?"

She plumped down on her knees and began brushing the snow away. She uncovered his shoulder. She took hold of this with her mittened hands and tried to shake the prone figure.

"Oh, do wake up! Please wake up!" she cried, digging away the snow as fast as possible.

A shaggy head was revealed, with an old cap pulled down tightly over the ears. The man moved again and grunted something. He half turned over, and there was blood upon the snow, and a great frosted cake of it on the side of his face.

Carolyn May was dreadfully frightened. "The man's head was cut and the blood was smeared over the front of his jacket. Now she could see a puddle of it, right where he had fallen on the ice—just as she had fallen herself. Only, he had struck his head on a rock and cut himself."

"You poor thing!" murmured Carolyn May. "Oh, you mustn't lie here! You must get up! You'll—you'll be frozen!"

"Easy, mate," muttered the man. "I ain't jest right in my top-hammer, I reckon. Hold hard, matey."

He tried to get up. He rose to his knees, but pitched forward again. Carolyn May was not afraid of him now—only troubled.

"I'll take you to Miss Amanda's," cried the little girl, pulling at his coat again. "She's a nurse, and she'll know just what to do for you. Come, Prince and I will take you."

Then she guided the half-blinded man to the sled, on which he managed to drop himself.

Prince pulled, and Carolyn May pulled, and together they got the sled, with the old sailor upon it, to the Parlow carpenter shop.

Mr. Parlow sid back the front door of his shop to stare in wonder at the group.

"For the great land of Jehoshaphat!" he roared. "Carlyn May! what you got there?"

"Oh, Mr. Parlow, do come and help us—quick!" gasped the little girl. "My friend has had a dreadful fall."

"Your friend?" repeated the carpenter. "I declare, it's that tramp that went by here just now!"

Mr. Parlow made a clinking noise in his throat when he saw the blood.

"Guess you're right, Carlyn May," he admitted. "Call Mandy. She must see this."

Miss Amanda's attention had already been attracted to the strange arrival. She ran out and helped her father raise the injured man from the sled. Together they led him into the cottage.

He was not at all a bad-looking man, although his clothing was rough and coarse.

Miss Amanda brought warm water and bathed the wound, removing the congealed blood from his face and neck.

When the last bandage was adjusted and the injured man's eyes were closed, Mr. Parlow offered him a wine-glass of a home-made cordial. The sailor gulped it down, and the color began to return to his cheeks.

"Where was you goin', anyway?" demanded the carpenter.

"Lookin' for a job, mate," said the sailor. "There's them in town that tells me I'd find work at Adams' camp."

"Ha! didn't tell you 'twas ten mile away from here, did they?"

Miss Amanda gets some surprising information from the old sailor and she, in turn, gives Joseph Stagg a shock. Read about how it happened in the next installment.

Confined to Her Bed Days at a Time

But Doan's Brought a Quick and Lasting Cure.

Mrs. Herrman Ruschke, 177 Fourth St., Long Island City, N. Y., says: "The pains in my back were almost unbearable. I always felt tired and listless and found it almost impossible to attend to my housework. Gradually the pains increased—day by day my suffering became worse. Oil-castor blisters of light and black specks would appear before my eyes and dizzy spells would come over me. My hands and feet were swollen and my head pained me so at times I thought it would split. My kidneys annoyed me, too. I became dependent. Sometimes I would have to take to my bed for three or four days at a time. I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills, so I began taking them and was soon back in perfect health again. My cure has stood the test of time, so I am only too glad to recommend Doan's to other kidney sufferers."

Mrs. Ruschke gave the above statement in April, 1916, and on April 4, 1917, she added: "I repeat all I have said about Doan's Kidney Pills, for they have cured me of kidney complaint."

THE KERRVILLE ADVANCE

F. A. BUCKNER, Editor and Prop.
Mrs. Mattie Buckner, Associate Editor

SUBSCRIPTION $1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Kerrville, Texas.

About The Depot.

In our comments last week, we stated that Kerrville needs a depot. Our attention was called to the fact that there is a new, well built, commodious, depot on the railroad tracks built upon ground bought by the Railroad company expressly for a depot. But we were reminded that although this depot has been built nearly four years, the company has been prohibited from opening it up for public use by process of law under suits filed by residents of the city of Kerrville. So the railroad company feels that it has used diligence and gone to extraordinary expense to give the people here a depot where they wanted it.

The Advance, along with a large majority of the people of this city and adjacent territory, is in earnest about the needs of the people here in the way of railway depot. We want one somewhere. We don't care where, just so it is accessible to the general public. If the company could be allowed to open the building they have erected, well and good. If it is impossible under court rulings to do this, then something else ought to be done. The old shack of a makeshift that we have been putting up with for these past five years is a disgrace both to the company's interests and to the town. Let's get out of it some way. This paper is ready to do anything honorable and reasonable to help the situation. At one time we were against moving the depot, but now we are for a depot, somewhere—but as soon as possible.

The Boston Herald, after admitting that to William Jennings Bryan, Kempe, the credit of carrying his name and the nation over to acceptance of the popular election of United States Senators, and conceding that his muchridiculed grape juice policy has now been nationally indorsed, goes on to say that "Bryan further urged the federal income tax, making peculiarly bitter drives against Mr. Justice Shiras, whose changed vote had thrown out the legislation along this line in the Wilson Bill in the Cleveland administration," and concludes by asking: "What else has Bryan stood for?" Well for one thing, he has stood against militarism in the United States, and not so long ago, was ridiculed for taking the position that if the country ever needed defenders, millions of them would spring from the ground. How nearly he was right is exemplified in the demobilization problem now confronting the Government. It was easier, apparently, to get defenders into the ranks than it is to get them back to their homes.

Catholic Church Notes

(By Father Kemper)

Classes will be resumed at Notre Dame Institute and Our Lady of Guadalupe School next Monday if the health-officer, who is burdened with the responsibility, sanctions the lifting of the ban. It is possible, that the measles may get a stronger hold in our community and prevent him from raising the quarantine. We do not envy his delicate position and pledge our earnest cooperation in whatever measure he judges best for the welfare of the community, knowing that he too sympathizes with the unfortunate students. Between the two parochial schools we have over two hundred pupils, and they are doing the best they can in this torn up scholastic year.

In case church services are permitted next Sunday the customary ceremonies for Candlemas day will be carried out before mass. On the following day the annual blessing of St. Blase will be given at St. Mary's Church after the morning functions, if any are held.

"There is a Reason"

Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.) HAVE YOUR OWN DAIRY—KEEP A COW

Let the Boy Make a Pet of the Family Cow. This Animal Produced in One Year Nearly a Ton and a Half (2,903 Pounds) of Milk, Which Tested 5.6 Per Cent Butterfat.

FAMILY COW AS FOOD PRODUCER

One Good Animal Will Keep Family of Five Supplied With Dairy Products.

RIGHT FEED AND ATTENTION

Permanent Pasture of Best Grass Available Should Be Provided—Profitable Feeding Requires Knowledge of the Cow.

One good dairy cow properly fed will supply all the milk that is needed by the average family. A cow producing on the average of two gallons of milk each day will supply a family of five with one gallon of whole milk, which is about three glasses for each person, and there will be enough milk left to make one-half pound of butter daily—sufficient for the family. Such a family cow will also furnish approximately three-quarters of a pound of cottage cheese, which is a most palatable meat substitute when it is properly made. As a meat and muscle builder it is fully equal in the human diet to meat, pound for pound. There will be about three quarts of buttermilk and whey which can be used for bread making.

The feeding of a dairy cow should be governed by the cow's capacity to produce milk. Owners of dairy herds, who have kept a daily record of each cow's production, have found that some cows respond to an increased allowance of feed and return a good profit on it, while others are limited in milk capacity and overfeeding them is unprofitable. Profitable feeding requires a knowledge of the cow as well as of the values of feeds.

A permanent pasture of from one to two acres of the best grass available should be provided for the family cow if possible. Some shade and fresh, clean water are always desirable in the pasture. For winter feeding the United States department of agriculture gives the following general rules: 1. Under most circumstances the cow should be fed all the roughage that she will eat up clean, adjusting the grain ration to the milk production. Only when the cow tends to become overfat should the quantity of roughage be restricted.

2. A grain mixture should be fed in the proportion of one pound to each three pints of milk produced daily by the cow, except in the case of a cow producing a flow of 40 pounds or more, when the ration can be one pound to each three and one-half or four pounds of milk. An even better rule is one pound of grain each day for every pound of butterfat produced by the cow during the week.

3. Feed all the cow-will respond to in milk production. When she begins to put on flesh cut down the grain.

Feed Balanced Rations.

For the most profitable milk production the cow must be fed a balanced ration at the cheapest price such ration can be provided. By balanced ration is meant the combination of such a proportion of nutrients and in such quantities as the cow requires to maintain her bodily functions and as she can utilize in the production of milk. These nutrients are classified as protein, carbohydrates and fats. Protein is one of the principal constituents of milk; fats and carbohydrates perform much the same functions, that is, produce energy and heat, and in the balancing of a ration are usually mixed together. If the cow is given a ration containing an excess of either element, the excess is liable to be wasted; hence the economical importance of a balanced ration. Corn silage, corn stover, timothy hay, millet hay, prairie hay, hays from the common grasses, straws of the various cereals, and cottonseed hulls may all be classed as low in protein content, while legume hays, such as alfalfa, the clovers, cowpeas, soy beans, and oat and pea, are classed as roughage high in protein.

Compounding a Grain Mixture.

A few simple rules for making up a grain mixture are given briefly below: 1. Make up the mixture to fit the roughage available. With roughage entirely of the low-protein class the grain should contain approximately from 15 to 22 per cent of protein, while with exclusively high-protein roughage the grain ration need contain only about 13 to 16 per cent.

2. Select grains that furnish the various constituents, especially protein, at the least cost, using home-grown grains if possible.

3. Be sure that the mixture is light and bulky.

4. The mixture should be palatable.

5. See that the grain has the proper physiological effect upon the cow. The family cow should be provided with a dry, well-lighted stall, which should be cleaned daily. Every two or three weeks it is a good practice to scatter slaked lime about the floor of the stall, which will aid in keeping the place dry and prevent the growth of harmful germs. The stall should be kept well bedded with straw, sawdust or other such material that will absorb the moisture and make the cow comfortable. The cow's comfort should always be kept foremost in the mind of the owner, as it is an aid to increased milk yields.

COW FOR EVERY FARM

Every farm should have at least one dairy cow. More may be kept if it is desirable or profitable, but there should be at least one cow. The farm-family richly deserves the best of food, and from the standpoint of economy it should have inexpensive milk produced by the farm cow is not expensive. What other animal can so well utilize the grass plots around the house and barn throughout the summer? In the winter it will be necessary to give her some commercial feed, but the cost on any farm will not be great. Even with this the cow is profitable, for she produces milk that furnishes plenty of bone and muscle-building material for the young people, and gives strength to the older members of the family. Dairy dishes in any form add variety to the meal. Milk can take the place of many purchased foods also at a great saving in cash and health. Maybe there should be more, but surely one cow to the farm.

Parasites Cause Great Losses.

There are thousands of species of parasites belonging to the animal kingdom already known to man, and new ones are continually being discovered. Some of them appear to be quite harmless; others are most injurious, and some produce conditions for which no cures have been discovered. The loss to the live stock industry in the United States from animal parasites amounts to hundreds of millions of dollars every year, and in addition to this damage certain of these parasites can be transmitted to man, either in meat or in other ways. It was for the purpose of investigating such parasitic organisms with the view of developing methods of prevention, control and treatment that the zoological division of the bureau of animal industry was established.

Protecting the Manger.

Horses that gnaw the upper edge of their mangers can be broken by nailing an old buggy tire around the top. They can't gnaw that.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR G. O. P. TICKET

DEATH OF ROOSEVELT THROWS WIDE OPEN RACE FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION.

SENATORS ARE CONSIDERED

Lowden of Illinois the Only Governor Mentioned—Rapid Progress Being Made in Ratification of the Prohibition Amendment.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington.—It has become apparent since the death of Theodore Roosevelt that the Republicans had largely settled upon him as their candidate for 1920. While there were candidates in other parts of the country and many more would have had the support of delegations from their own states and communities, it is evident from what is heard on all sides that the one thing that would have prevented Roosevelt's nomination had he lived would have been his own determination not to be a candidate. Those who were intimately associated with him during the last few months are aware that he had determined not to be a candidate, for he knew better than anybody else the precarious condition of his health. He might not have made any such announcement for some time, but it is known to have been in contemplation.

As the matter now stands, the Republicans are considerably at sea and there are many different names mentioned in connection with the presidency. And the candidates are from every section of the country, not confined to what has heretofore been the presidential highway, the states of New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Among those who have been mentioned in connection with the Republican nomination in 1920 are Senators Lodge and Weeks of Massachusetts, Senator Wadsworth of New York, Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, Senator Harding of Ohio, Senator Watson of Indiana, Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, Senator Sherman of Illinois, Senator Townsend of Michigan, Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, Senator Cramm of Iowa, Senator Borah of Idaho and Senator Johnson of California.

There is an absence of the usual crop of gubernatorial candidates. Usually there are a half-dozen or more governors who are considered available presidential material in the pre-convention talk, but this year there is no suggestion of governors, with the single exception of Frank Lowden of Illinois. On the other hand, a number of army officers are mentioned, with Pershing at the head, Leonard Wood a good second, and Provost Marshal General Crowder considered available. And since the return of Gen. Clarence Edwards and his popularity in the New England division, the famous fighting Twenty-sixth, there is suggestion that he would be available. Edwards was the friend of Mark Hanna, the confidant of Secretaries Root and Taft in the war department, and is known to more public men than almost any other man in the army.

The rapid manner in which the constitutional amendment for the prohibition of liquor is being ratified by the different states seems to indicate the fulfillment of the prediction that the United States will be dry by constitutional amendment one year from next March. By the last of March three-fourths of the states may have ratified the amendment, and if so it will go into effect one year after ratification. It is observed that the fight in various states by the liquor interests and all possible legal obstacles are thrown in the way of the adoption of the prohibition amendment, but the prohibition march goes steadily forward.

There is nothing new under the sun," as some ancient sage has remarked. Now comes forward George P. Cronkwell of Boston with an interview in which he asserts that the principle of a concert of nations to govern the world is a very old idea and was talked about before Columbus declared that he could circumnavigate the globe. The Boston man said also that William Penn, the man who founded Pennsylvania, urged the identical principle 240 years ago that is now agitating the world. Pretty soon some Chinaman will hop up and assert that the idea was put forth by Chinese statesmen back in the "steenth dynasty, before there was any civilization outside of the flowery kingdom.

President Wilson believes in the power of oratory. At the time he decided to increase largely the military establishment on account of war conditions, back in 1915, he made quite a lengthy tour in the middle West, making frequent speeches in favor of the plan. It was his belief then that he aroused a strong public sentiment for the increase, although the legislation which followed was a failure so far as the army was concerned and when we got into the war everything had to be done over again. In carrying out his plans for a League of Nations he has made a similar campaign tour, for his speeches in France, England and Italy have been largely for the purpose of creating public sentiment in favor of the league. It is understood that if the opposition to a League of Nations treaty should be strong enough to control more than one-third of the United States senate, which would defeat the treaty, the president will make a tour of this country for the purpose of creating a public sentiment in favor of the league. President Wilson has on several occasions said that congress will obey the will of the people and he has no hesitancy in going out and creating public opinion. No doubt this would be very disagreeable to those who are known as the reactionaries in the senate, but they could not help themselves.

Whether or not the talk about General Pershing as a possible presidential candidate has been the cause of complaints and criticisms of the management of the army in Europe, it is certain that something is at the bottom of an effort to create an unfavorable impression of the man most prominent in the military service of the country. The complaints about the condition of the embarkation camp, the complaints that officers have not received due recognition, the complaints that men were unnecessarily sacrificed in the last days of the war and seemingly with the idea of giving General Pershing a black eye. That there is politics in it to some extent one must believe, because assertions are made that General Pershing is not really popular in the army and that the retraining soldiers and those to be returned will not be enthusiastic for him if he should be a candidate for the presidency. One thing is certain. If this war does not develop a president, it is the first war the country has ever had that failed to do so.

From 1884 to 1919 is a long span of years. That is the period during which Henry Cabot Lodge and Theodore Roosevelt were close personal and political friends. They made their first political fight together in 1884 at the convention which nominated Blaine. They were against the Plumed Knight, and since that time they had been together on nearly every political proposition that came before the country, particularly on the subject of civil service reform, which brought them in closer alliance than almost any other issue. They were also lieutenants in the fight to make Tom Reed speaker 30 years ago. Senator Lodge would not go to the Republican national convention in 1912 because he did not want to be put in the position of antagonizing Roosevelt, although he did not believe that his candidacy at that time was opportune. In the convention of 1916, however, Lodge voted for Roosevelt on the second ballot.

Any man who seriously proposes to annex territory to the United States is sure to start something. Every acquisition of territory has aroused bitter opposition. History tells us that was the case in regard to the Louisiana purchase, the annexation of Texas, the acquisition of territory from Mexico after the Mexican war, and again when Seward bought Alaska from Russia. It is within the memory of men still living how opposition to General Grant's proposal to acquire Santo Domingo was strong enough to overthrow a presidential policy. Plenty of people can remember the bitter contest against acquiring Hawaii and the Philippines. But with the exception of Santo Domingo, which is nominally under our control, nearly every movement for the acquisition of territory has been successful.

Perhaps that is what makes Senator Ashurst's proposition a real subject of debate. He wants to add Lower California and a large slice of the northern part of Mexico to the United States, and puts up some pretty good reasons for the acquisition. Just as Tom Reed complained bitterly about "buying Malays at $2 a head," alluding to the $20,000,000 paid for the Philippines with their 10,000,000 population, so there will be a great deal of opposition to taking over the peons and semi-savage tribes of northern Mexico, even if we get a large slice of land with it. However, the world is becoming somewhat topsy-turvy and geographical lines are being redrawn in the old world, and perhaps the influence will spread to this continent, notwithstanding the ringing declaration of Senator Elihu Root at the Rio Janeiro conference when he told all of the Latin-American republics that the United States did not desire a foot of their territory.

While there is talk of rushing everything in the way of legislation in order to avoid an extra session, it may be mentioned that the house of representatives devoted four or five days to hearing a contested election case, strange as it may seem, the contest came from Alaska, a territory having a delegate who has no vote. The time was when contested election cases excited considerable interest in the house of representatives. It was a contested election case which precipitated the fight when Tom Reed counted a quorum in the Fifty-first congress, provoking one of the most bitter partisan struggles that has ever been known in the history of congress. Much of the time in the debate in the Alaska case was taken up by the men who are battling for the seat, in a long rehearsal of election conditions in the territory.

Relic of a Lost Race.

At Casa Grande, near Florence, Italy, is the ruin, with walls still standing, of what probably was the still common house erected on the southern plains by a race of pueblo builders that probably had departed elsewhere or had been merged with wilder tribes even before the passing to the westward of the Aztec south-bound pilgrims about the year 1300.

War Is Given Credit for Hastening Adoption of Prohibition—Campaign Carried on for Years.

The country has hardly awakened yet to the realization of the fact that it has voted itself dry. The ratification of the Sheppard amendment to the federal Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, came so suddenly, after more than half a century of battle, when the cause of the prohibitionists many times seemed almost hopeless, that even the leaders of the dry movement have difficulty in realizing that, so far as can be foreseen now, their fight has been won.

States in black on this map are the thirty-six that made the amendment, while those in white are the thirty-four that have not yet done so.

CENTER POINT OF PROHIBITION

The Sheppard amendment, which has just been ratified by more than three-fourths of the states of the Union, the number required to make it effective, becomes the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution. The resolution providing for its submission to the state legislatures, introduced by Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, was finally adopted by congress December 18, 1917. On January 10, 1919, less than thirteen months after the adoption of the resolution by congress, ratification of the amendment by the states was accomplished.

The war is given the credit for hastening the adoption of prohibition in this country. The economic aspect of the question was emphasized by the war emergency, and the handwriting on the wall was seen when congress passed a law providing for national prohibition as a war measure, to become effective July 1, 1919, and to continue until the armies of the United States have been demobilized. If this law goes into effect, as contemplated, the country will go dry July 1, although the constitutional amendment will not become effective until one year after its ratification by the required number of state legislatures.

Text of Amendment. The text of the resolution embodying the amendment, which has now been adopted is as follows: JOINT RESOLUTION PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES. Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, two-thirds of each house concurring therein, that the following amendment to the Constitution be, and hereby is, proposed to the states to become valid as a part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of the several states as provided by the Constitution: Section 1—After one year from the Taxes Hitherto Derived From Traffic in Liquor Will Have to Be Obtained Elsewhere. New problems of government are raised by prospective stoppage of the traffic in liquor. The hundreds of millions of dollars derived from internal revenue will have to be obtained from other sources. Laws for enforcement of the amendment also will have to be passed by congress.

ratification of this article the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Section 2—The congress and the several states have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Section 3—This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several states as provided in the Constitution within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the states by the congress.

CHAMP CLARK, Speaker of the House of Representatives. THOMAS R. MARSHALL, Vice President of the United States and President of the Senate.

I certify that this joint resolution originated in the senate. JAMES M. BAKER, Secretary. This resolution was adopted by the senate on August 1, 1917, by a vote of 65 to 20, and by the house of representatives on December 17 by a vote of 282 to 128. House amendments were adopted by the senate December 18.

Mississippi First to Ratify. Mississippi was the first state to ratify the amendment, both senate and house acting on January 8, 1918. Virginia, Kentucky and South Carolina took similar action during the same month and North Dakota soon followed, but in most states action was delayed until this year, when the various state legislatures convened. Then the states took action on the amendment in rapid succession. Following North Dakota the states acted in the following order until Nebraska, the thirty-sixth to act, completed the ratification: West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, South Dakota, Massachusetts, Arizona, Georgia, Louisiana, Florida, Michigan, Ohio, Oklahoma, Idaho, Tennessee, Minnesota, West Virginia, California, Texas, Delaware, Arkansas, Illinois, North Carolina, Kansas, Alabama, Iowa, Colorado, Oregon, New Hampshire, Utah, Nebraska.

Before Congress 40 Years.

Bills providing for nation-wide prohibition by legislation and resolutions, proposing constitutional amendments for the same purpose have been before congress almost continually for more than 40 years. Senator H. W. Blair of New Hampshire proposed the first amendment in 1876. This provided only for the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of spirituous distilled liquors for beverage purposes. He introduced a similar measure nine times, changing it in 1886 to include all alcoholic liquors.

Congressman Holson of Alabama introduced the famous "Holson resolution" in the house December 19, 1913. The resolution came to a vote December 22, 1914, but received only 137 votes, while 258 were necessary for its adoption.

There is a probability that anti-prohibition forces will attempt to secure an amendment of the ratification vote in several states and will attack the legality of the action of congress. In San Francisco a court order has been secured restraining Governor Stephens temporarily from signing the ratification of the amendment. It has been stated that similar action may be taken in other states, including Arkansas, Colorado, Maine, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, Utah, Washington, Missouri and Nebraska. In these states, it is declared, all action taken by the state legislatures may be submitted to the people under a referendum.

Attorneys for the liquor interests claim that there are many points on which the amendment may be attacked in the courts and plans have been made, it is declared, for action along these lines.

POLITICAL ISSUE FOR FIFTY YEARS

PROHIBITION PARTY PERSISTED IN WHAT SEEMED LIKE HOPELESS BATTLE.

Women Have Been Prominent in Movement Through W. C. T. U.—Frances Willard Won World-Wide Fame.

Nation-wide prohibition has been a political issue in the United States for the last fifty years because of the activities of the Prohibition party. Other organizations, including the Anti-Saloon League, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and others, which passed out of existence after careers extending over various periods of time, have fought for state and national prohibition, but the Prohibition party has continued in existence for a longer period of time than any other anti-liquor organization, and it has continued in the face of discouraging defeats.

The Prohibition party will celebrate its fiftieth birthday next September. It was formally organized at a convention held in Farwell hall, Chicago, in September, 1869, when 19 states were represented by 500 delegates.

For several years the formation of such a party had been discussed because the leaders of the Republican and Democratic parties had virtually ignored the advocates of prohibition. The Good Templars, organized in 1851 as a society of total abstainers, urged such action, and other leaders believed it necessary. At a state temperance convention held in Pennsylvania in 1867 the plan was first publicly broached, and two years later on May 29, 1869, the call for the Chicago convention was put out by the grand lodge of the Good Templars in session at Oswego, N. Y. A committee to formulate the plans was named, comprising John Russell, Detroit; J. A. Spencer, Cleveland, O.; James Black, Lancaster, Pa.; John N. Stearns, New York, and Daniel Wilkins, Bloomington, Ill. The convention called by this committee organized the party on September 1, adopted a platform and appointed a national committee of which John Russell was chairman.

Nearly three years later, on Washington's birthday, 1872, the new party met in convention in Columbus, O., to place a national ticket in the field. James Black was nominated for president and John Russell for vice president. Mr. Black was a prominent Good Templar and also was one of the founders of the National Temperance Society and Publication House and of the Camp Meeting Association at Ocean Grove, N. J. Mr. Russell, also a leader of the Good Templars and a Methodist minister, was known as the father of the Prohibition party; for he published a newspaper, the Pennsylvanian Herald, which led the way in advocating the organization of the party for national action.

In all their devotion to the cause, the Prohibition leaders had no hope of success in the election of 1872, and they were not disappointed. Their ticket received only 5,697 votes. This did not discourage them, and four years later they put Green Clay Smith of Kentucky and Glendon T. Stewart on the ticket. These gentlemen received 9,737 votes. General Neal Dow of Maine, who had gained fame as the author of the Maine Prohibition law, was the next presidential candidate, in 1880, with H. A. Thompson in second place on the ticket. They polled only 10,893 votes.

St. John's Hot Campaign.

When the plans were being laid for the campaign of 1884, Frances E. Willard and her fellow workers of the W. C. T. U. entered the field. They sent to the Republican convention a great petition asking that consideration be given the plans of the temperance advocates, but it was ignored and even thrown into the dirt on the floor, and Miss Willard promptly turned to the Prohibition party. Her help was welcomed and John P. St. John of Kansas was put at the head of the cold water ticket. Already he was a notable figure, for he had fought in the Civil war as lieutenant colonel of the 143d regiment of Illinois volunteers and later served two terms as governor of Kansas. He was a Republican, but his party thought him too warm a friend of the prohibitionists and he was defeated for re-election in 1882.

Accepting the Prohibition nomination, he went into the campaign with all his vigor and delivered stirring speeches all over the country, especially paying attention to New York state, where the fight between James G. Blaine and Grover Cleveland had made things very warm. St. John was one to beat the Republicans, and he succeeded, for the Prohibition vote was large enough to let Cleveland win New York state and, in consequence, the nation. The Prohibitionists polled the surprisingly large vote of 150,625. The Prohibition convention of 1896 split the party over woman suffrage and money. The "free silver" minority formed a Liberal party, with Bent-

New Mexico, California, Ohio, Nevada, Washington, North Dakota, Mississippi, Missouri, Kansas, Louisiana and Utah.

In California court action has been taken to restrain the governor from certifying the action of the legislature to Washington. Every resource of the distillers, with resources of approximately $1,000,000,000, it is said, will be employed in the supreme effort to save their businesses. A meeting of the distillers' committee will be held at New York on January 28 to adopt a definite program. It is pointed out, however, that the federal constitution itself does not contemplate any state action on amendments except by the legislature, and action by the legislature, even in states with referendum laws, has heretofore been deemed final.

Senator Sheppard said he was not disturbed over the projected fight of the liquor interests and declared no loopholes to invalidate the law would be found.

Results in Later Years. The candidates since 1884 and their vote are as follows: 1888, Clinton B. Fisk, New Jersey, and J. A. Brooks, Missouri, 249,945 votes. 1892, John Bidwell, California, and J. B. Cranfill, Texas, 270,710 votes. 1896, Joshua Levering, Maryland, and Hale Johnson, Illinois, 138,753 votes. 1900, John G. Woolley, Illinois, and H. B. Metcalf, Rhode Island, 209,469 votes. 1904, S. C. Swallow, Pennsylvania, and George B. Carroll, Texas, 258,205 votes. 1908, Eugene W. Chaffin, Illinois, and Aaron S. Watkins, Ohio, 233,231 votes. 1912, Eugene W. Chaffin, Arizona, and Aaron S. Watkins, Ohio, 208,923 votes. 1916, J. Frank Hanley, Indiana, and Dr. Ira Landrith, Tennessee, 214,340 votes.

Women Prominent in the Fight. For many years the women have been prominent in the prohibition movement, for the evils of intemperance bore heavily on their sex. To them must be given a very large share in the credit for the success of the fight. They started it publicly on a large scale in 1873 in Ohio with a crusade to pray the saloons out of existence.

This movement, inaugurated by a little band of women who held prayer meetings in saloons when permitted and on the pavements outside when not allowed to enter, spread like wildfire throughout the nation and was denominated by the press a "whirlwind from the Lord." Many saloons were swept out of existence, but it soon became evident that prayer must be accompanied by action if they would prevent the return or the reopening of the saloons once closed.

The call for organization was issued from Chautauque, N. Y., in August, 1874. The convention was held in Cleveland, O., November 18-20, 1874, and at that meeting there was organized the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Delegates were present from 17 states.

The plan of work was presented by Frances E. Willard and most of the later worked out in the W. C. T. U. At this convention Miss Willard offered also the famous resolution: "Resolved, That recognizing the fact that our cause is, and will be, combated by mighty, determined and relentless forces, we will, trusting in him who is the Prince of Peace, meet argument with argument, misjudgment with patience, denunciation with kindness, and all our difficulties and dangers with prayer."

Pursued Many Goals to Its Goal. From its very earliest years the W. C. T. U. sought out a variety of avenues through which the children of the nation might be educated in the principles of total abstinence and the adult work for the absolute prohibition of the liquor traffic. Out of the juvenile work grew the Loyal Temperance Legion for the children, and the Young Peoples' branch for the young men and women. Later the children were organized as "Young Campaigners for Prohibition."

Over forty departments were organized, and carried on to some degree in every state and territory, and in from ten to twenty thousand local unions. Among these were: Temperance work in Sunday schools, which, with scientific temperance instruction in public schools, brought practically all the children in the nation in touch with temperance truth; medical temperance; mothers' meetings; flower mission and relief; equal suffrage; moral education and race betterment; oratorical and declamatory medal contests; Christian citizenship, and child welfare.

For World Prohibition.

The World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union was founded in 1883 by Miss Willard. It is organized in 40 nations, with a total membership of over half a million. In 1884 Miss Willard sent out from her home office in Evanston, Ill., addressed to each government of the world, an appeal for total abstinence, purity of life, and against the manufacture and sale of opium, with this call for world prohibition: "We come to you with the united voices of representative women of every land, beseeching you to raise the standard of the law to that of Christian morals, to strip away the safeguards and sanctions of the state from the drink traffic, and to protect our homes by the total prohibition of this curse of civilization throughout all the territory over which your government extends."

This "polyglot" petition, as it has been termed, is historically significant, for it was the first world-wide proclamation against the legalized liquor traffic.

Killed Twenty-Six Rattle Snakes.

Comfort News:
On Sunday afternoon two sons of Henry Seidensticker, a well known farmer of this community, were engaged in setting traps in their Uncle Dan Seidensticker's pasture about three miles east of Comfort, when they saw a large rattlesnake glide into a hole under a ledge of rock on the south side of the Big Hill.

The boys examined the place and saw that it contained a number of snakes. So they went home and reported their discovery, and on Tuesday their father and uncle returned to the place with them. They were equipped with a fishing pole having fish hooks fastened upon its tip, and proceeded to investigate the snake-hole, which was but a few inches in diameter at its mouth and gradually widening as it extended back into the hill.

No sooner had the pole been thrust well back into the cavern than a sound arose within which seemed to the snake hunters like a half dozen mowing machines, all running at once. And as the grappling hook found lodgement in the flesh of a fat snake, and he was drawn out squirming and striking, the din of their rattling became louder and louder.

In this way twenty-six rattlers were taken from this den, but before the place could be entirely cleared of its deadly lodgers, a heavy rain storm drove the party of snake catchers to seek shelter, and the completion of the job had to be left for some other day.

The Messrs. Seidensticker brought the twenty-six snakes to town Wednesday, and they were indeed a sight worth seeing, several of them being very large, and the aggregate mass of them producing an impressive and gruesome effect. Some one suggested weighing them, and it was found that the bunch of snakes weighed 53 pounds net.

Red Cross Column

(By Mrs. J. W. Burney)

From the smallest hamlet in America, from the smallest group of Americans gathered anywhere outside of America, has come a generous outpouring of devotion, labor and money in the interests of Humanity. As these gifts are gathered together through the Chapters, the Divisions, and finally through the great port warehouse in New York they become a mighty stream flowing toward devastated Europe. With marvelously little interference from the dreaded submarines, this stream has crossed the Atlantic and there has been directed where the need was the greatest. Again, through the willing hands of thousands of Red Cross workers, under the guidance of Commissions in every belligerent country, these gifts have reached their destination and brought joy and happiness to millions of human beings, soldiers and civilians alike.

In all history there has never been a work of mercy carried on by an entire nation such as that which has been guided and developed under our beautiful white flag with its red cross. It is an privilege to every one of us to have taken part in such a work. As long as we live we will never forget the intense satisfaction and joy of having toiled early and late. I firmly believe that as a result of the work which has been done by the American Red Cross, a new idea as to the duty of mankind has come into being and will never die. Those familiar words: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," are truly exemplified in the spirit of the Red Cross. The way in which these words may be transformed into action has been pointed out to every man, woman and child who has helped in making the American Red Cross what it is. More than that, the helping hand and the friendly spirit which has reached millions of strangers through the ministrations of the Red Cross, have carried this message to them as it could be carried in no other way.

The people of the world are truly the members of one great family more than they ever were before. President Wilson in speaking the other day before a great gathering in Rome said the following: "There is only one thing that binds nations together - if you exclude force, and that is friendship and goodwill. The only thing that binds men together is friendship, and by the same token the only thing that binds nations together is friendship. Therefore, our task at Paris is to organize the friendship of the world, to see to it that all the moral forces that make for right and justice and liberty are united and are given a vital organization to which the peoples of the world will readily and gladly respond." Surely, if what we have done in the Red Cross during this war has served in the slightest way to bring about the end for which our President is striving, it will aid one more satisfaction to those already in our record of accomplishments.
