VOL. XXII.

KERRVILLE, KERR COUNTY, TEXAS, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1904.

NO. 20

One Year Ago

I began calling your attention to the fact that I was ready to talk Holiday goods to you. Also to the fact that I was here to stay, and would treat you, honestly, I am here yet. You that traded with me last year know now that you did not pay too much for your goods. Come again. Come soon. Give me ample time to get what you want, if I do not have it in stock. Will be pleased to sell you a dollar button to a diamond necklace. The same goods for less than city prices. Your money back for any good reason.

Smith Convicted.

Waco, Texas, October 27.—The jury in the case of Addison Smith brought in a verdict tonight at 11 o'clock giving the defendant twenty-five years in the penitentiary. Smith is charged jointly with his aged father, I. E. Smith, and his mother, Catherine Smith, with the murder of the late Deputy Sheriff Ike Grubbs, who was killed in Bell county in August, 1903. The case came to this county on a change of venue and has been on trial since Monday, at which time Addison Smith asked for a severance. The cases of the other two defendants, who were given a severance, were reset for Nov. 28.

The deceased officer, with Deputy Sheriff L. E. Sparks of Bell county, went to serve on the Smith place a writ of removal and get possession of the property. The defendants claimed the writ was not a valid one and when officer Grubbs entered the house he was killed instantly. No one was in the house but the boy and his mother. The boy claims he shot to save his mother. The young man is only 21 years old. He heard the reading of the jury without even a change of expression. The case has attracted a great deal of attention over the State.

Denied Having Negro Official.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 29.—A negro postmistress is a hard matter to find in Caldwell county. At least Deputy United States Marshal Lancaster found that to be the case.

He received a notice a few days ago from the postoffice department at Washington to proceed to Mackey, Caldwell county, and arrest a negro postmistress, Mattie Mackey, on a charge of embezzlement.

Deputy Lancaster arrived at Lockhart and asked if the people there could inform him where the postmistress was supposed to have an office. The officers there stood him down that there was not, nor never had been a negro postmistress at Mackey. At the postoffice the postmaster knew of a postoffice named Mackey, but indignantly denied the fact that a negro was serving as postmistress. The town is a small negro settlement and the woman had been in office two years.

Nevertheless Deputy Lancaster proceeded to Mackey, ten miles from Lockhart, and found the woman and placed her under arrest. She was carried to Austin. At the preliminary hearing she was admitted to bail in the sum of $500, which she gave and was discharged. She is accused of embezzling $260.

E. J. Martin Critically Ill.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 31.—E. J. Martin, general freight and passenger agent for the San Antonio & Aransas Pass Railway, is critically ill at the Santa Rosa hospital. Mr. Martin has not been in the best of health for the last year, and is suffering from a stomach complication. Recently he returned from Colorado, where he spent some time to recuperate. Upon his return here he apparently improved slightly. Several days ago his malady took a turn for the worse and he was removed to the hospital for treatment.

Boy's Throat Cut By Negro.

Paris, Texas, Oct. 31.—Great excitement prevails at Arthur City on Red river, twenty miles north of here in the Indian Territory, over the murder of Fred Pritchard, fourteen years old, grandson of Dr. Middleton, one of the most prominent men of that section, by a negro boy eighteen years old, named Tyler Birdson.

It is alleged the murderer has been captured by United States officers and jailed at Antlers.

He is said to have confessed the crime, stating the deed was committed because Young Pritchard had refused to shoot craps with him.

Pritchard's throat was cut from ear to ear.

Mildred Clifton Sentenced.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 30.—Mildred Clifton, charged with the killing of Abe Patterson, a young man from Johnson county, in this city, on the night of December 24 last, whose trial was in progress in the Fifty-eighth District Court last week, was found guilty of man-slaughter. Her punishment was assessed by the jury at four years in the penitentiary. An appeal will be taken from this finding.

The case was given to the jury about 9 o'clock Saturday. Shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning the jury announced that it had agreed on a verdict and it was about 11 o'clock when the court received it.

The indictment against the defendant was returned Jan. 9 last.

Officers Stood Off.

Paris, Texas, Oct. 29.—Tobe Thompson, a Swede, who has a truck garden in West Paris, is standing off nearly a dozen officers, who at 10 o'clock are surrounding his place waiting for the moon to rise so they can see how to get at him. Thompson, it is alleged, ran his family away from home this afternoon and barricaded himself in his house after killing a neighbor's dog and threatening to kill the neighbor and burn the house. Officers went after him, but he was armed with a shotgun and they were convinced that he would not be taken alive, so they returned for help. By the time the posse got to his place it was dark and he had gone into the garden.

Cattle Killed By Cold.

Clburne, Tex., Oct. 28.—Water Moore of Godley was here today and reported the loss of many head of cattle in his portion of the country by recent heavy rains and cold weather. He stated that S. L. Carroll had lost fifty head, Sam Hardcastle also lost fourteen head, and it was further reported that W. Oldhouse of Cresson had lost seventy head, Willis Souther of Godley four head of cattle and one horse, Mrs. Wilson of Cresson fifty head and other residents lost from one to twenty-five head. The sudden change of temperature and the forty hours of rain was too great a shock for cattle to overcome and they gathered in herds and died. The total loss to stock-raisers has not yet been estimated, but it is already known that it will amount to several thousand dollars.

H. W. Tremlett Seriously Hurt.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 31.—The first accident to occur during the existence of the present Fair came on Sunday afternoon in the main exposition hall, resulting in the serious injury of H. W. Tremlett, of 220 East Mitchell street in a very peculiar manner.

He was a spectator in the crowd watching the "boxball" game in the main hall, and Wallace Newton was about to bowl. Someone in the crowd jostled Newton's arm, and the ball of boxwood flew wild, striking Tremlett squarely in the forehead, and rendering him unconscious. Dr. Bowen, who was in the building, was summoned and attended him, causing his removal to his home. He is said to be in a serious condition.

Lovers Flee For Lives.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 31.—Jealousy, as the result of the pangs of disappointed love, caused West End to ring with pistol shots on Saturday night and caused two negroes to have a run for their fun.

Lula Neeley, a negro woman was filled full of love, anger and possibly something of a liquid nature, went in search of E. H. Penn, who she claims once loved her and to whom she was engaged to be married.

She found him in one of the small buildings in the grounds of Peacock's school having a chat with Allie Barnes.

According to the allegations of Penn and Allie, Lula slipped round the house until she spied them through the window, and opened fire with a big six-shooter.

Only two shots were fired but Penn and Allie made out at the back door and did not wait to see if there were any more loads in the gun.

A charge of assault to murder was filed against Lula this morning by both the other negroes. She will have a hearing before Judge Umschied.

A War Incident.

Port Arthur, Tex., Oct. 29.—There is an old Confederate veteran resident here, and occupying a very prominent place in business circles, who had a very trying experience during the civil war. As he is a modest gentleman, and does not like public notoriety his name will be withheld. Along in '63 he lived in Tennessee with his widowed mother and young lady sister. Their home was in the disputed territory, one day in the Federal lines and the next in the Southern. The officers of the Federals would generally make their headquarters at his mother's. At this time he was a well-known lad of 14 years. One day a Federal regiment camped on their premises and the lieutenant colonel commanding made his headquarters at the home. The young lady sister, passing by, drew the colonel's attention and he remarked how comely she was and hinted darkly at his intentions.

The boy overheard the remarks and reported them to his mother. She said, "Son, you are our only protector, and, if necessary, must die in defending your sister's honor." The mother and sister together occupied a bed in the far corner of their sleeping room and the boy lay upon a pallet spread between the bed and the door. He owned a double-barrelled gun and had charged both barrels heavily with buckshot. About midnight, some one tried the door, but it was locked. A heavy kick burst it open and in walked the lieutenant colonel. The boy was ready for him and fired, emptying one load into his breast and the other into his head after he had fallen. The firing roused the camp, the soldiers rushed in and would have mobbed him but for the major of the regiment. He drew his sword, and, standing over the boy, threatened to kill any one who would harm him. He was taken under guard, court-martialed and sentenced to be shot. His mother had a good friend in Washington, and to him she appealed to see Mr. Lincoln and lay the case before him. When this was done Mr. Lincoln sent instruction to General Grant to investigate the case, which he did and ordered the boy released, but so for there were threats that he would be mobbed. General Grant put a guard of fifty soldiers over him and sent him through the lines, when he joined the Confederate army and served during the rest of the war.

A Postal Fraud.

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 29.—Mr. C. B. Anderson, chief of the Postoffice Inspecting Department for this district, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon. Mr. Anderson has just accomplished a very shrewd piece of detective work in the apprehension of a man who was practicing fraud by the use of the United States mail, which Mr. Anderson says handsomely remunerated the man until, as is always the case, he was finally taken into custody.

In relating the story yesterday, Mr. Anderson said: "This party, who is now under arrest, inaugurated an entirely new method of fleecing his victims. It was quite original, and I have never heard of it being practiced before. He would make friends with strangers in whatever place he might happen to be and who appeared to be and wayward, but who was well dressed—in fact, with every earmark of the prodigal son. The man would learn from these parties who were their best friends and wealthiest relatives and who would most probably succor them in case of adversity and necessity. Then, with some plausible excuse, he would induce them to write a letter. This letter he would take to a neighboring town and by cleverly imitating the writing of the former associate would induce a letter to the relatives and best friends of the parties. He would say that he was sick and needed money and would ask that a telegram be sent indicating how the funds had been sent. Sceldom was it that this was not successful. With the telegram the man would identify himself at the postoffice, express office or bank and secure the money. Then he would proceed to some other town and repeat his operations. I do not know how much money he secured altogether through these machinations, but it must have aggregated a handsome amount, as I happen to know his last acquisition was $50. He is now in jail and will soon stand trial and probably be sent to the United States Penitentiary for several years."

Pickpocket Caught.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 29.—George Duffy, a visitor to the fair, had an exciting chase after a pickpocket on a moving train to-day, which ended in the recovery of his pocketbook and the fall of the robber from the train. The pickpocket sat beside him, then hurriedly changed his seat. Mr. Duffy felt for his wallet, but it had disappeared. He reached the platform in time to see the man with it in his hand grasped it, giving the robber a stiff punch in the face, causing him to fall from the train. He disappeared in the chaparral.

Head Split Open.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Oct. 29.—A carpenter named Brown was found prostrated in the Rogers house about 6 o'clock this evening with several ugly gashes in his head and his forehead split open. Passers-by heard the man's moans and saw another man coming from the house. A brick mason was arrested and stated that he did the deed with his fist.

This statement is discredited, as it is impossible to have inflicted such gashes with a fist. It was undoubtedly done with some blunt instrument. Brown was semi-conscious to-night, but can speak. He is in a critical condition. Both are strangers here and undoubtedly had a difficulty.

CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM

An eminent physician says: "That rheumatism is the direct result of improper eating and made absolutely cured by leaving out of your dietary, animal foods of all kinds and living on cereals, fruits, nuts and vegetables. A diet consisting of milk and cereal foods will cure the most acute form of Rheumatism, while those who live mainly on animal foods, cannot escape it."

Peculiar Shooting.

Beaumont, Tex., Oct. 28.—A shooting affair with a somewhat peculiar termination occurred at Woodville yesterday afternoon and resulted in Manager Heath of the Cruse hotel at Woodville being dangerously injured in the stomach and in John English, who lives in this city, receiving a slight wound in the palm of his left hand from the bullet which penetrated the body of Heath.

It seems that Mr. English, who resides with his family in this city at Franklin street and avenue A, making the regular run from Rockland to Beaumont on the passenger train of which Mr. W. T. McCormick is conductor and English a brakeman. The train reached Woodville at 4:45 p. m. yesterday and made the usual short stop. Heath was at depot when the train reached the little place and when English left the train Heath is alleged to have approached the brakeman and rebuked him for having solicited business on the train for the Stewart house, a rival hotel of Woodville. The men quarreled and agreed to settle their differences by punishing each other with their fists.

A lively fistfight is said to have been pulled off with English getting the better of the argument, when Heath is said to have lost his temper and to have attempted to draw a revolver from about his person.

The two men were clinging at the time. In the struggle the weapon caught in Heath's clothing and was discharged, the bullet entering one side of his body, penetrating the stomach, coming out on the other side and penetrating the palm of English's left hand, which was grasped around the body of his opponent.

English broke away when he perceived that his adversary was wounded and Heath is said to have fired four shots at English, but his aim was wild and none of the bullets took effect. Heath was arrested by the sheriff's department and removed to his home in Woodville for medical attention. He is said to be mortally wounded.

After his exciting experience Mr. English took his train, which had been waiting for him, and returned to the city. So far as is known here—no complaint has been lodged against him in Tyler county.

Russia a Garden of Races.

The Russian population is perhaps the most mixed of all nations and is quite up in large measure of conquered peoples who still remember their overthrow with bitterness. Probably not far from one-third of the whole—from 40,000,000 of the 50,000,000—are true Moscovites. Around the central Muscovites are grouped Lapps, Finns, Germans, Lithuanians, Poles, Little Russians, Ruthenians, Roumanians, Greeks, Georgians and Tartars, with Jews and Gypsies scattered through the south and west. These are all in European Russia, and this is nothing to the medley in Asiatic Russia, where there is an almost endless variety of races. Each of the races mentioned speaks a different tongue, and there are at least six different religions among them, without counting sectaries, such as the Dukhobors. Bitter political hatred of Russia burns fiercely among the Finns, Poles and Armenians; while symptoms of active revolt are reported among Georgians and Turcomans along the Asiatic frontier.

Does Not Respect Old Age.

It's shameful when a youth fails to show proper respect for old age but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. 25c, at Rock Drug Store.

Conspicuous by His Absence.

The authorship of the significant phrase "conspicuous by his absence," which has been used unnumbered times, is in loose dispute. The London Saturday Review gave it to Shakespeare; the New York Times Saturday Review described it as "a clumsy adoption of a French phrase"; a correspondent of the last named review, correcting both, says it was "really an adoption by Lord Broughton. I believe of an expression of Tacitus, who at the close of the third book of the Annals, describes the funeral of Julia, the sister of Bruns and wife of Cassius, who survived her husband and her brother for sixty-three years and died in the reign of Tiberius. Twenty images of her illustrious relatives or connections were carried before her bier, 'sed praefulgens Cassius atque Brutus, eo ipso, quod effigies eorum non vischatur.' This writer is correct, except as to the English adapter, and he and the others could have found all about it by consulting Bartlett's Dictionary of Familiar Quotations, where the phrase of Tacitus is quoted from the Bohn translation, as follows: "The images of twenty of the most illustrious families—the Maullii, the Quinctii and other names of equal splendor—were carried before it. Those of Brutus and Cassius were not displayed, but for that reason they shone with pre-eminent luster."

Music in War.

The value of music as a factor in war is being recognized by both sides in the struggle in the Far East. We are told that the Japanese army marched singing into the recent battle; and, if what we hear of their vocal abilities be true, this alone was enough to make the Russians want to run away. Now the St. Petersburg Novosti states that a number of popular bands and ballad singers have been sent to the front, who are to go from regiment to regiment and entertain the Russian soldiers. The Russian peasant is intensely fond of music, and the nation possesses a great wealth of folk songs, which are handed down from generation to generation by professional singers or reciters, who are able to exercise a remarkable influence over their listeners. The Cossack or soldier songs are said to be bold and stirring compositions, full of freshness and vigor inspiring feelings of loyalty, courage and contempt for death. Altogether, the two armies promise to remind us of the days of the "valiant troubadour," the "minstrel boy," the ancient British bard, and even Tyrtaeus and the melodious Miriam.

"Sightseer's" Headache.

"Academy" or "sightseer's" headache is one of the numerous ills of modern civilization. According to recent observations of Mr. Simeon Snell, described in the London Hospital, there is reason to attribute it, in part at least, to strain on the muscles that turn the eyeballs upward. A lady who found no inconvenience in visiting the theater when she sat in the dress circle always suffered from severe headache when she sat in the orchestra, where she had to look up. The same effect is produced in picture galleries, especially in looking at pictures hung above the line. Cyclists who lean over the handlebars and turn their eyes up to look ahead have the same trouble, and so do composers and people in many other occupations requiring continued use of the elevator muscles. The eyeballs move from side to side with less strain and discomfort than up and down.

How Japs Avoid Consumption.

Consumption is a rare disease in Japan. Even in winter coughs are of rare occurrence, and this despite the fact that the real Japanese do not heat their rooms with anything more than an hibachi—a tiny charcoal stove—that does not send the temperature of the room up to any appreciable degree, but serves mainly for heating tea, for warming the hands or for supplying the fire for a cigarette or pipe for the men of the household. When Japanese women wish to feel warmer, they add clothing, just as they would do when going into the street. The Japanese look upon full, deep breathing as being the most vital function of life.

Artificial Snails as Food.

As escargots, or snails are not much eaten in this country, the discovery that artificial snails are made will not worry American epicures. In Paris it is different. Public knowledge of this enterprise came about through the suit of a Paris workman against his employer for injuries received in manipulating for a machine for fabricating snails. It was explained that the employer bought empty snail shells from the dustmen and rapickers. Having cleaned out the shells, the defendant and his people filled them with "mou," that is to say lights, or cat's meat. This soft, spongy stuff, before being cramed into the shells was cut into corkscrew shape by very improved machines. When the shell was filled some liquid fat or grease was poured into it, and the trick was done. The fabricated shells were sold usually at 20 centimes the dozen. Sometimes, when there is a great run on snails, the manufacturers get a good deal of their "raw material" from Germany. It is affirmed that there are actually some epicures in Paris who prefer the snail to the genuine article, even when the latter has been among the vine leaves in Burgundy. The artificial escargot is said to have a special flavor, which is highly appreciated.

Our 9,000 Coast Lights.

There are 9,000 burning lights and signals stretched along the American coasts, forming a perfect link, so that the navigator never need be beyond sight of one of the beacons. One thousand of these are located on the Atlantic coast, 1,500 are scattered along the rivers and inland waterways, 500 on the Great Lakes and 200 on the Pacific coast. Of the grand total, including lighthouses of different classes, buoys, beacons and danger signals, 3,000 are lighted, giving forth their warnings at night time. Of these a score or more throw a beam of 100,000 candle-power. To maintain the lighthouse service a corps of over 4,000 men is constantly employed and a fleet of more than fifty vessels. No service in the world exceeds our own in completeness and efficiency. A modern American lighthouse of the first class, costs between $100,000 and $200,000, and of this about one-third is spent for the electric light and apparatus alone. Beside one of them Egyptian Canopus or Rhodes' "perfect idol, with profulgent brows," whose rays stream down the purple seas to Mizraim, would shine as tapers in the Mediterranean night, with no place among the seven wonders of the world; and hardly worth noticing.

Mayor McClellan's Tough Job.

Since New York city has decided to issue $37,000,000 worth of bonds in the coupon variety of $1,000 each the statistical sharps have been figuring. One of these amiable idiots secured a copy of Mayor McClellan's signature, and, after carefully measuring it, estimated that he would have to sign nine and one-eighth miles of name before all the bonds became legal. He figures that the mayor, working eight hours a day and keeping his nose right down to it, could not possibly get away with the job inside of fifty days. Another person, a lawyer, raises the question of the legality of the bonds if the mayor should try to have a clerk sign them for him. Mr. McClellan, like Hamlet, holds "it baseness to write fair," and his signature, even when he takes pains with it, is hardly legible. He is now groaning over the threatened infliction of having to write his own name 37,000 times and wondering how he may escape.

Getting Water in Philip pines.

A traveler in the Philippines writes: "You see that girl coming along the street carrying a long bamboo cylinder upon her shoulder? She is returning from the water-works, and is carrying home a good supply of clean drinking water. Yes, it is a big bamboo tube—surely eight feet long and twenty-two inches at least in circumference. The inside divisions have been forced out by means of a stick and the internal compartments all combined into one. It holds a lot of liquid."

By the death of E. J. Martin, General Passenger & Freight Agent of the San Antonio & Aransas Pass railroad, who passed away at San Antonio Wednesday, that company lost an able and efficient official, the towns along that road a staunch friend, the city of San Antonio a valuable citizen, and the social and business world of Texas, a good and lovable man. Truly may it be said, "a good man has gone to his reward." He was indeed one of nature's noblemen.

Next Tuesday will remove the scales from the eyes of many a hopeful political aspirant. The strain for the next three days will be very great. Only one candidate can be elected to each office, and the seemingly eternal spring of eloquence that has been flowing from the lips of American orators for the past few months will cease, while beautiful garlands of rhetoric will turn to ashes upon the lips of the gifted men who were willing to "save our country," but were not called to the task.

Death of E. J. Martin.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 3.—Edward J. Martin, aged 54 years, for the past decade general freight and passenger agent of the San Antonio & Aransas Pass railway, with headquarters and residence in this city, died at the Santa Rosa Infirmary at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon of a complication of stomach diseases.

Mr. Martin had been ill for more than a year, but it was only ten days ago that his trouble took an acute turn. He was taken to the hospital one week ago Tuesday, and it soon became apparent that he would not recover. He suffered somewhat during the last few days of his life, but Wednesday passed in comparative ease, and the end came peacefully and without pain.

He died surrounded by his family, consisting of his wife and daughter, Mrs. N. S. Graham of this city, his old friend, J. B. Brooks, traveling freight agent of the San Antonio & Aransas Pass, and his physician Dr. Amos Graves.

Mr. Martin was born at Louisville, Ky., Nov. 12, 1850. He entered the railway service Sept. 1, 1874, and from that date until his death was connected continuously with the Southern Pacific railway system. On June 1, 1879 he was made assistant general freight agent of the Southern Pacific, with headquarters at San Francisco. He retained this position until 1893, when he came to San Antonio to accept the position he held at the time of his death.

In his eleven years in the Texas field Mr. Martin became thoroughly identified with the railroad interests and with many and varied interests concerning public improvement and development. For this, and for his work in his own particular line, Mr. Martin enjoyed the privilege of seeing his name stand out as representing one of the fairest minded and most capable traffic officials in the Southwest.

The Pope as He Is.

Pius X, is of a good height, strongly made, even stout, and has a fine grace of carriage; his dignity is as great as his position, but utter without haughtiness or pomposity or pride of office, writes Booth Tarkenton in Harper's Magazine. He has none of the "magnetism" of the "popular preacher," actor or orator; nevertheless, he is remarkably magnetic; it is the magnetism of unmistakable goodness and goodwill to all the world. Everyone was laughing with excitement at the sheer pleasure of seeing him, and because he smiled a little. His voice, mellow, clear and resonant, yet gentle, has in it the quality of lofty and practical goodness that is in his face. It is a strong voice, too, with the strength of the man who could give an incorrigible lout a fine beating for the good of his soul; and it is what might be called a "brave" voice. A man with that kind of voice will not be afraid of anything that might happen to himself only. But, more than these things, it carries to one who hears it the benediction that exudes from the spirit of Pius X to all the world, all the time.

Herring Fisheries.

In certain northern countries of Europe the herring crop decides the financial condition of the common people. If it is 2,000,000,000 pounds there is money to burn; if much less, there is pinching. The herring catch of America is worth only about $1,000,000 a year, but is growing fast, and in time will reach great proportions. Schools of herring often cover an area of as much as twenty-two square miles, and as the fishes are so closely packed together as almost to sustain the weight of a man. Christ walked upon the Sea of Galilee; who knows that He did not find support on a school of fish? There is a single firm of fishermen on the Potomac river that has a haul of some five miles in length, and its fine tanks hold at one time 3,000,000 herring. The trouble with herring is that they are usually dirty and repulsive.

A Runaway Bicycle.

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c at Rock Drug Store.

Criminals in Chinatown.

For the most part the houses in New York's Chinatown are sorry affairs, relics of the old days of New York. They bring good prices, however—all the way from $75 to $150 or more a month—and require practically no repairs. They are rented by well-to-do Chinamen, who divide the floors off by wooden partitions into tiny apartments called rooms, which are suited to the opium smokers. Chinatown is inhabited by about 3,000 Chinamen. Some of them are reputable merchants, but the majority of them are known among their countrymen as "sports." They are gamblers and opium smokers, and many of them are of the worst criminal classes in China and have prices set on their heads. In the three crooked streets that comprise Chinatown one may meet at every turn some of the most dangerous men of the great cities of the Flowery Kingdom. Three or four of the most powerful of the assassination societies of China are in a prosperous condition here, and if a man be once marked for death by one of these organizations there is nothing on earth that can save him.

Egypt's Plague of Locusts.

Egypt is threatened with a plague of locusts, and the government has called out the army of forced laborers to combat the pest. Owing to the young locusts' habit of never turning back or aside when started in a certain direction, it is possible by digging trenches, sometimes miles in length to entrap the invading hosts and destroy them. That, of course, must be done before locusts can take to wing. At that stage nothing can stop their ravages, and they sweep everything before them.

Fitting Plays to Players.

If there is one thing that casts consternation upon the mental vitals of a dramatist and cause him to suffer like a gored ox it is the handy but blunt blue pencil of the ruthless stage manager. The occasion for all this torment is a simple matter. A "star" contracts for a play. It is delivered. Her stage manager, or, rightly speaking, "producer," is called in. The two conspirators read the play. Suggestions follow. The star's role, mayhap, needs strengthening, and this usually at the expense of other characters of the drama. Then the deadly work begins. Almost every successful play of modern times was constructed with some special performer in view. Miss Viola Allen, Richard Mansfield, Miss Julia Marlowe and Miss Maude Adams are cases in point. Hall Caine reconstructed "The Christian" to fit Miss Allen, and her success in this play surpassed almost any play of modern times. F. Marion Crawford constructed "In the Palace of the King" with Miss Allen especially in mind, and she again scored a pronounced hit, proving anew the worth of this proceeding.

Not a Sick Day Since.

I was taken severely sick with kidney troubles. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C., writes. Only 50c, at Rock Drug Store.

Jameson's Changed Fortunes.

Hardly seven years ago Dr. Jameson was convicted and sent to prison by a British jury, urged thereto by a British judge, and was universally reprobated by English public opinion. Now he is premier of Cape Colony. Not less romantic and striking were the earlier transformation scenes of his life. Assistant in London hospital; then fashionable physician in Kimberley during the great diamond boom; then friend and admirer of Cecil Rhodes, who persuaded him to throw mystic to the dogs and go as a special ambassador to Lobengula, King of the Matabeles. Dr. Jameson carried his diplomatic point by curing the tyrannous old chief of gout and won Rhodesia for the British empire. Then came his spogee in the famous raid on Johannesburg, when, with a few hundred troopers, he invaded the Transvaal. Jameson was made the scapegoat and served several months' imprisonment, being finally liberated on medical certificate. He was for two years an invalid and was for a long time not expected to recover. His star rose once more, however, and now he is Cape premier.

Kill Sharks With Dynamite.

In the British navy the engineers have a curious way of killing sharks. They seal up a dynamite cartridge in an empty can and put the can inside a lump of pork. The pork is thrown overboard on a wire which has been connected with an electric battery. When the shark takes the bait the engineer presses a button which explodes the cartridge and kills the fish.

Butter Forty-two Years Old.

A stone jar of butter was found on a farm near Lincoln, Neb., the other day. It was buried forty-two years ago, and when exhumed was found to be sweet and yellow, even though, as the voracious correspondent declares, the stone crock crumbled to pieces when exposed to the air.

Revolution Widow.

Mrs. Rebecca Mayo, the last surviving widow of a soldier of the revolution, is now over 70 years of age, though when she married Stephen Mayo, a soldier of the Virginia line, she was very young. She lives in Newbern, Pulaski county, Va., and congress recently increased her pension $25 a month.

Disasterous Wrecks.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers of Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Lung and Throat diseases by Rock Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Australia's New Premier.

In a note upon Mr. Watson, the new Australian premier, the Outlook of London says: "A compositor by trade, he, like many of the craft in Australia, became a prominent trade union leader in Sydney some twelve years ago. He is still in the prime of life, a sober-minded, self-contained, determined man, and one who recognizes clearly what he and his class want and what they can achieve by constitutional means. He is deemed a quiet, reserved business man, with a certain talent for intrigue in the sense that he knows perfectly well how to drive a hard political bargain with a harassed ministry, and has never failed to insist upon its execution to the letter. On the other hand, even his political opponents acknowledge that he acts up to his promises."

Nothing to Criticise.

Former Senator J. M. Thurston, of Nebraska, was walking down Broadway, New York, the other day with a friend when his attention was called by his companion to the more or less undraped stationary recently placed in front of the new Stock Exchange building, and of which there has been some severe criticism. The senator stopped and gazed for a minute. "Well, what do you think of it?" asked his friend as they proceeded on their way. "Do you see anything about it to criticise?" "No," replied the senator, laughing. "I don't see anything to it. I should just call it a plain everyday naked fact."

Meeting of All the Smiths.

The Smith family, not specifically, but generally, will assemble in Louisville this fall, if the plan of John Cabell Smith, a wealthy Kentuckian, is concurred in by the Smiths at large. Smith has issued a general invitation through the press to the Smiths of the country to assemble in Louisville for a three days' reunion, and he will defray all the expenses of entertainment. He says he is willing to spend $25,000 on his project, but that he will drop it unless he receives assurances that the Smith family of the United States will be represented by a fair proportion of those bearing the name.

FROM THE PAPERS.

You're Not So Many.

Say, when you think you own the earth,
And by some right of royal birth,
You think you are of nobler blood
Than those of us who're made of mud,
And by that are the best of any
Go count yourself—you're not so many.

Say, when you feel that you are what
The vast majority of men are not
And cannot be, because your make
Is far superior to theirs, please take
A little tumble, if there's any
And count yourself—you're not so many.

Say, if you have an idea that
You of us all know where you're at
And while mankind remains in doubt
You know just where you're coming out
Collect your wits, if you have any,
And count yourself—you're not so many.

Say, brother, if you have the gall
To think you really know it all;
To feel that you are wetter than
The ordinary, average man,
And that hereafter you will rise
To higher glories in the skies
Than those who do not have a penny,
Go count yourself—you're not so many.

A mouse is afraid of a man, a man is afraid of a woman and a woman is afraid of a mouse.

At a campmeeting a man who had been sitting under a tree listening to the sermon of the leather-lunged exhorter, suddenly sprang up with a wild whoop and commenced going through a number of contortions.

"Thank the Lord," said the revivalist, "the Spirit is struggling with another sinner."

"Spirit nothing," howled the man under the tree. "Any man who can't tell the difference between salvation and a lot of black ants isn't fit to preach in my opinion."

Two boys were seen playing in a back alley. Both of them were covered with mud, and one was holding a dog while the other fastened a tin can to the canine's tail. "Why is it," asked the man who discovered them, "that you boys are not at school instead of out here in the dirt abusing that poor dog? I would think your mother wouldn't stand for this sort of business for a minute."

"Say, mister, she hain't onto us," said the boys. "She's been away from home for a week makin' talks to women clubs about the way to raise a family."

A Snake Story.

Once upon a time there was a hunter who went out with his dogs for a long hunt, but soon all his dogs left him. In vain he blew his horn, time and time again; for the dogs would not return.

While wondering in a valley he came across a very large boulder which had fallen down the mountain side. Under this huge rock a rattlesnake had been imprisoned and the hunter, taking pity on the poor reptile, raised the rock and released it. Then the snake twined itself around his body and carelessly subbed its head against the man's cheek, thus showing its appreciation of his kindness.

The hunter thinking the snake must have been a pet, took it home with him, every night arranging the pillows on the foot of his bed for the snake.

One night the man awoke and finding his strange bed fellow gone, began a diligent search. The snake was found in his parlor, but what it was doing, you couldn't imagine! A burglar had broken in and the snake, being awakened, left its downy resting place and proceeded to arrest the intruder. It had wound itself around the body of the burglar, and holding him fast, had placed its tail outside the window and was vehemently rattling for the police.—Ex.

Two men were driving across the country during a season of high water. They came to a stream where the bridge was gone and the stream a raging torrent. One of the men who was very religious said, "Brother, we will engage in prayer and then trust ourselves to Providence and cross the stream."

"Not on your life," said the first man as he prepared to climb out of the buggy.

"Don't you think, brother," said the first man, "that Providence can save us?"

"Oh, yes, I think Providence could pull us through all right, but I have a hunch that the Lord isn't going out of his way to save—fools. There is an oversupply of them anyhow."

A party who was a man of considerable consequence in a small town paid a visit to a great city. After he returned it was noticed that he expressed no desire to go again. Finally a friend from the city visited him and, after looking over the village, said, "I wonder Jim, how you can manage to stay in this little dried-up hole."

"Well," said Jim, "you may notice that I am some punkins fier, but when I went to the city and got off the cars I noticed a darn little grasshopper that had come in with a car of hay. I reckon, a-hoppin' along on the pavement in front of me. There were several persons that stopped to look at that durned grasshopper, but there wan't one that paid any attention to me. I don't want to live in a place where I don't out as much as a common grasshopper."

A good story which is probably familiar to most people is the one about the love sick boy in school. They were studying some sort of "ology," the one that traces a thought all the way along the line and shows that one thought or more will bring another sort of suggestology. The lovesick boy had the word "spirit" given him and it was his duty to tell what the word suggested to him. He did it in about the following language: When I think of spirits I think of ghosts, when I think of ghosts I think of graveyards, when I think of graveyards I think of heaven, when I think of heaven I think of angels, and when I think of angels I think of my sweet heart and then, O Lord, professor, I can't think of anything else.—Texas Seymour Banner.

"Speaking of winds," said Truthful James, "I took a claim out in Beaver county, Oklahoma. The first summer it was powerful dry and windy. I had two cows that I took down there with me and lariat 'em out on the prairie near my dug out so that they would be handy at milkin' time. Well, one day in July there come up a wind and when I went out to look for my cows blamed if they were anywhere in sight. Then I happened to look up and them two cows was a floatin' round in the air. The wind had blowed 'em out and up to the ends of the 200-foot picket ropes and there they was like anchored kites. The wind kept right on a blowin' till evenin' and held the two cows steady in the air about 80 feet from the ground for six hours. It was milkin' time and I was bothered to know how I was ever to milk them cows when a happy thought struck me all of a sudden. I went into the dugout and got a few ears of corn. Then I called the cows and showed 'em the corn. It worked all right. Both of 'em come a walkin' down the ropes as slick as you please; wan't neither one of 'em hurt a particle.

Hurt by Fall.

Mrs. I. A. Marshall was very seriously hurt Tuesday by falling down the elevator shaft at Chas. Schreiner Co's store. Mrs. Marshall and her husband were examining some tinware on shelving near the elevator. No one else was near. The elevator had passed into the upper story and the lady, forgetting that the shaft was open, stepped back and into it. Aside from being severely bruised, she sustained a compound fracture of the thigh bone. The injured lady was taken immediately to the home of Mr. A. Cravey, physicians summoned and every attention given her.

Colt Sold For $205.

On Saturday of last week, Potter Brown sold to W. W. Bogel, of Marfa, an 18-month-old colt for $205. The colt is 16 1/2 hands high, weighs 1300 pounds, and took first prize at the West Texas Fair. There is no place in America where better horses can be raised, than in Kerr county. Mr. Brown, whose home is three miles below Kerrville, in the Guadalupe valley, is well-known as a breeder of fine horses.

Painfully Burned.

Herbert Rawson, who is attending the pharmaceutical department of the State University at Galveston, was painfully burned by an accident with chemicals in the laboratory recently. Young Rawson was sitting on a table, while one of his classmates, who stood near, held a stick of phosphorus. The phosphorus became suddenly ignited from exposure to the air and the young man in his attempt to throw the burning chemical from him, struck Mr. Rawson and the burning phosphorus stuck to his hands and clothing, inflicting painful burns. Kert Keidel, a son of Dr. A. Keidel of Fredericksburg, who is also a member of the class, was painfully burned about the hands, while attempting to relieve Rawson of his burden of adhesive fire. The injured young men were taken to the hospital and are doing nicely.

Boy Was Found.

Dallas, Tex., October 27—A 10-year-old boy, who was lost from his widowed mother during the Galveston storm on the night of September 8, 1900, was recently located on a farm just east of Dallas and taken home.

The boy, it is said, came to Dallas looking for a home shortly after the storm, having made an unsuccessful attempt at locating his mother, and was taken by a farmer and given a good home.
