TALKS ABOUT THANKSGIVING DAY AND THE SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING.

Next Thursday, November 29, is "Thanksgiving Day" and the schools will be closed, services will be held in the churches throughout the land, and 80,000,000 of people in our great nation will be touched in one way or another with the Thanksgiving spirit. Except the annual celebration of the birth of Christ, there is no more beautiful custom known to the Christian nations of the earth than our own Thanksgiving Day. I say our own Thanksgiving Day because, the United States was the first nation of the earth to adopt the custom of setting aside a day of prayer and Thanksgiving and making it a national holiday. Very little has been written about Thanksgiving Day, and definite history as to its origin is not easily obtainable. It is known, however, that the first day set apart for a day of general thanksgiving was so observed by the Pilgrim fathers in old Plymouth colony about the end of the year 1620. The beautiful Christian custom gained in favor and for 243 years the governors of the various American colonies and states issued annual "Thanksgiving Proclamations." During this time, up to the great Civil war, though the national government was then 87 years old and had been presided over by fifteen presidents, yet, so great was the power vested in the state governments and the respect for state rights, that none of the chief executives had seen fit to consider it the duty or the privileges of the Federal government to issue a proclamation setting forth a day of national Thanksgiving. Indeed, the old custom, that prevailed in colonial times, of each governor issuing his Thanksgiving proclamation became so thoroughly rooted into the hearts of the American people, and they became so jealous of the prerogative, as due to the chief executive of each state, that the custom still prevails throughout the land, notwithstanding the fact that the issuance of a national "Thanksgiving proclamation" by the president, has long since become an unwritten law.

The first proclamation setting a day of prayer and thanksgiving for the people of the United States as a nation, was issued by President Lincoln on the 20th day of October 1864, in which he set apart the last Thursday in November as "Thanksgiving Day." Every year since that time the president of the United State has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation and only twice in the forty-two years that have elapsed since then have our people celebrated any other than the last Thursday in November. In 1866 President Johnson, in his proclamation set the first Thursday in December and in 1866 President Grant set Thursday, November 18th as Thanksgiving Day. Since that time the last Thursday in November has been recognized as Thanksgiving Day. I have given this little bit of history for the benefit of the boys and girls and for any others who may not have gone to the trouble to investigate. The Pilgrim fathers on the first Thanksgiving Day did not meet in their places of worship to offer thanks for an abundant harvest. As well as I remember the story, they had raised no crops and ships had been sent to England for a food supply. The little colony was reduced to the last extreme and had pitched their tents along the cold and rigid coast of New England and were living on clams and crabs. Just when the brave settlers had almost given up hope, they saw a sail far out at sea. The ship had come, and they had a feast, and after the feast they offered up prayer and thanksgiving and made a pledge to the munificent Providence that had wrought their rescue, that they would set aside a day of thanksgiving and prayer every year thereafter, so when we celebrate Thanksgiving Day we are only keeping the pledge made 286 years ago which grew this great nation.

As a nation, the United States has an innumerable multitude of things to be thankful for in this good year, 1906. As a state, Texas has a countless list of blessings for which to give thanks to a wise and munificent Providence. We have not to kneel upon the bare ground of a bleak and uninhabited coast and give thanks that our lives have been spared, that we may continue to our labors in a land inhabited by savage people and infested by ferce wild animals. We have not to praise God that in His mercy he has spared us from hunger and destitution. Our nation is at peace with all the world and is making the most wonderful progress that any country has ever known, statistics show that the United States has the smallest per cent of paupers of any nation on earth and the largest per cent of home owners.

Our state has been wonderfully blessed this year, abundant crops have been grown to reward the labors of our farmers. The barns are full and the garners are bursting with the richness of the harvest. Every line of business is prospering. All our people have profitable employment and contentment is the portion of our citizenship. From every home throughout the land, the blue smoke from peaceful happy hearthstone rises like an incense to heaven. Autumn has come and the leaves are red and gold and brown. The wild deer darts across the vale and the turkey cock struts upon the mountain. Tinkling sheep' bells sound a sweet accompaniment to the music of laughing rill and purling brook. Truly, before us lies a wondrous picture, painted by the matchless hand of God, with the mystic brush of nature upon the face of our beloved Southland.

I hope that Thanksgiving Day will be fittingly observed, especially in Texas, and most especially in Southwest Texas, where we have such wonderful bounty to be thankful for. I do not think it is the will of our kind Providence that our thankfulness make us sad, indeed, I think that men like birds, should be happiest when they sing their morning song of praise. Feasting is proper on this great occasion and I trust that there will be no family in all the land whose board will not be bountifully supplied on that occasion, and that good men and women in every community in Texas will see to it that no unfortunate shall fail to feast next Thursday. It is to be devoutly hoped that no untoward circumstance shall befall in the world on that day, that our nation should be spared even the smallest calamity, and that the white winged dove of peace and contentment may so hover over our matchless Lone Star State on that day, that the occasion may not be marred by a single misdeed within her environs on Thanksgiving Day.

MONEY LIES UNCLAIMED

PLACED IN BANKS AND FORGOTTEN OR CANNOT BE LEGALLY DRAWN OUT.

It has been variously estimated that in the banks of this city there are from $200,000 to two or three millions of dead or unclaimed deposits. In most cases these accounts come from small balances left by depositors who have withdrawn their accounts and have neglected to go after the odd sums which remain after the main account is taken out. Then, too, persons after lodging their nest egg often never appear again. In case there is no will the heirs know nothing of the money. This often happens in case of a miser, who thinks his relatives are over anxious to obtain his money. He makes the deposit, rewrites the certificate, and the money is as much concealed treasure as if he had taken out a brick in a fireplace and hidden a stocking full of gold dollars behind it.

In this city there is a man well known to all bank officials whose sole business it is to look up heirs for these unclaimed accounts. He finds out what sums are lying dead, and, if he can, under what circumstances they were deposited. Then by different means, known only to himself, he finds the lawful heirs, who gladly give him a fat commission on the money so unexpectedly coming to them.

Some time ago the state tried to take these sums from the banks and keep them as a government trust. This was successfully opposed in the courts by the banks, the credit of the institutions being held adequate for the trust. Now, no bank pays interest on deposits unless the depositor appears once in fifteen years and has his deposit vouchers renewed.

"We have not many dead accounts, but such as we have give raise to many curious instances," said yesterday an official of the trust company of America, one of the largest deposit companies in the United States. "Not long ago two negroes appeared with a white friend, who said they were the lawful heirs to a sum which had been lying on our books untouched and unclaimed for years. The white man gave us proof positive that the negroes were the lawful owners of the money, and the expression of joy on the faces of the two when they received their money is impossible to describe."

In England there is no legal provision for unclaimed bank accounts, as there is in this country and in France, where the law requires that every five years all banking institutions shall publish the names and last known addresses of owners of dormant or unclaimed accounts. It has been estimated that in chancery, the bank of England and the thousands of private banks there is a total sum of over $12,000,000 unclaimed.

The thought of so much wealth lying unused, unowned and unsought, has driven many persons insane. These weak minded individuals have given bank officials many a bad half hour. One old man kept calling for many years at a certain banking institution asking for sums of money which he declared had been left to him. It was all a delusion, of course, but he would never believe so, and after each denial at the bank he would retire, consoling himself with the belief that, as the interest was compounding, his money was increasing every day.

There are several reasons for money falling into the great unclaimed, the commonest being, strange to say, that the owner forgets all about it. Dollars and cents are about the last thing people nowadays forget, but there are many depositors whose accounts lie unclaimed for this very reason.

An old woman was received at a county poor farm up state not long ago. Old age and sickness had made her incapable of caring for herself and for years she had had no one to care for her. She was just an ordinary pauper. In removing her wrecked garments for new and cleaner ones it was found that an old paper had been sewn in the lining of the dress, of the fashion of thirty years ago. The paper proved to be a certificate of deposit for about $500. It was in the name of the new inmate and was dated twenty-five years ago. The old woman said she remembered nothing of it, and, in fact, more than half believed that some one was putting up a joke on her. She was inclined to disown the money. Some old time friends of hers remembered that twenty-five years ago the woman had sold a small piece of land for $500. She had probably deposited the money. Old age, setting down upon her faculties soon after, had robbed her of memory of it.

Another reason that money lies unclaimed is that the owner dies, the receipt is lost and the existence of the deposit is unknown to the next kin. This seems to have a peculiar fascination for heirs. Banks are continually besieged by relatives or friends who, having seen the man enter the bank during his life, became convinced that he must have made deposits there of which they are being conscientiously kept in ignorance by the bank itself. Occasionally inquires do lead to the discovery of unrecorded deposits and in such cases the money certainly comes like a gift from the gods to the unexpected inheritors.

An amusing incident in this connection was told by a public bank officer who had been in the habit of advertising from time to time for lapsed depositors having considerable sum to their credit. One of these, an aged spinster, was thought by her relatives to be dead. But a few days after the advertisement appeared she walked into the bank and presented her receipt. Hardly had she left the officer after receiving back her voucher when a young woman appeared and declared proudly that she was a niece of the advertised spinster, whom she now called to represent, honestly believing her to be dead. "What do you want to know?" inquired the official.

"How much my aunt left me," was the reply.

"I can't well tell you," replied the banker, "but you can find out by asking your aunt at No. Blank street." The heir retired somewhat confused.

It will hardly be believed that there are depositors who, having lost their receipts, really think they have no right to their own money, but such is the case. This class of unclaimed deposits is, of course, small, but it is true that some, after losing their voucher, become indifferent after hunting for a time and finally grow into the firm conviction that their deposit is forever lost to them. Some without a voucher cannot remember at what bank they make the deposit.

Some save up for rainy day, which either never comes or when it does is not wet enough to require an inroad into the deposit, which lies untouched until it is forgotten. Others move away from the neighborhood where they have made a deposit, and put off a withdrawal until too late.

Funeral expenses and deposits against possible sickness saved up and placed in banks to be left untouched and unreferred to for the owner's entire lifetime are often unknown to his heirs and relatives.

The ways of some persons with their ready money are strange. Many a banker knows from professional experience that many a sum unclaimed lies dormant for the single reason that the owner had married and for personal gain conceals the fact of having money in the bank.—New York Tribune.

TRAPPED BY A PRAIRIE FIRE.
Experience of Northwestern Farmers Who Tried to Save Properties

William Tews, a German farmer living in the vicinity of Chalk Buttes, had a thrilling experience in a prairie fire which started near the Buttes and was carried rapidly southward by a high wind. Tews was plowing in a field when he noticed the approach of the fire and immediately undertook to save his farm property by back-firing.
Just as he started the second fire the wind veered suddenly and he found himself completely surrounded by flames. There was no possible way to break through the encircling ring of fire. So Tews threw himself face downward upon the ground and the fire rushed over his body. His clothing was burned from his body and his arms and limbs were terribly charred. His right hand will have to be amputated and there are small hopes of recovery. The fire continued to sweep onward and burned his farm, containing ten head of live stock, his farm implements and the grain he had saved for winter use.

Mrs. Tews found her husband lying unconscious in the field and succeeded in dragging him into the house, where medical aid was summoned.

As the flames continued southward they gained some momentum and John Anderson, a homesteader who had been in the country but three days, found himself surrounded. He had been building a shack on his claim when the fire caught him. His clothes were burned partially off and his shirt entirely burned, leaving him bare-chested. He received bad burns about the face, hands and limbs but it is thought he will recover, although he is now in a serious condition.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

I and Thou.

It is said that an old Quaker's wife once complained to him that some of her neighbors were queer people and the old fellow replied: "Yes my dear, everybody in the world is queer except me and thee, and sometimes I think even thou art a little queer."

That old Quaker voiced the sentiment of every son of Adam when he finds people who do not agree with him. We find men in all walks of life who have unbounded confidence in the fact that they are not "queer" in any way, but they overlook the fact that when a fellow gets drunk everything and everybody looks drunk to him.

For instance, we find a man in some line of business that is perhaps a monopoly in his town. He enjoys the patronage of every class of people in his community. He tells them that it costs a certain sum to produce his wares, and he probably tells the truth, and he must therefore have a certain price in order to make a legitimate profit. This man is very probably honest up to the time he gets a lot of good dollars from the various branches of trade in his town, then other people begin to look queer to him and he says to himself, "now I need certain articles and if I knew the grocer up the street, the clothier round the corner, the hardware man only a block away, the druggist, the implement dealer, etc., were not a pack of liars and thieves, if I had any confidence in my neighbors I would buy from them and keep my money at home, but as it is I will send it to a certain mail-order house--I know they are honest, because they say so." Grown men and women actually accept such idiotic arguments as that, when they would ridicule the idea if some neighbor should say, "Brown is the most honorable and scrupulously honest man I ever saw and when asked to prove it would say, 'I don't like to prove it, he admits it.'" By what line of reasoning can intelligent people arrive at a conclusion that a mail order house is more honorable than a home merchant a hustler, when he wants something in your line; he comes over and selects it, pays the price and supposes you are honest because he never knew you to steal. When he wants work done if you need a job he gives it to you when the work is finished you get the money. When money is needed for a public enterprise he "digs up the coin," and cheerfully says, "It's a good thing, lets push it a long." He may be queer, but if so, it is strange things don't look queer to him.

"Charity begins at home," that old phrase has been worn out until it would take eleven thousand thicknesses of it to make a decent cob web and still it is true, when it is not distorted. The proper interpretation of that wise saying is:

"If you want to buy anything, buy it from your home merchant if he has it, if not buy it at the nearest place you can. If you are a merchant and you want a line of stuff that is manufactured in Texas, buy it in Texas. If you have a job to give out, give it to your neighbor if he can do it. If a house has $100,000 business every year and loses all the profit it will never get a single dollar ahead. If a community produces an abundance of wealth, yet sends all the profits of business to some other community or state it will eventually become a commercial and social bankrupt. A woman who is a gossip and a man who is a loafer are poor things in any community but they are shining light compared to a woman who goes visiting and takes a mail order catalog along and tells her neigh-

Superior Clothing

There may be a few people in the world who would think there was no difference between Dan Patch, the famous racer, and a ten dollar pony. There may be some people who think a good coat, vest and pants is a suit of clothes and that there is no difference in them, but there is an aristocracy in clothes the same as in horses. Every article we sell is a thoroughbred in its class. In the first place we never buy from any but reliable houses; if any article proves unsatisfactory to our trade we never buy that article again. We have a nice line of clothing for men, youths and boys, in clay-worsted, black unfinished worsted, tebbetts, silk mixed worsted, etc.

In over-coats we have Travettes in grey and black, Meltons in blue and black, ulsters in all grades and colors. Boys over-coats all sizes. Every garment in our clothing department is the result of the best tailoring experience in America and stands strictly on its merit. The quality of the cloth is first class and the fit and workmanship cannot be excelled by modern clothes makers. We invite you to call on us for your clothing wants and guarantee satisfaction.

bor "you can get this article by 'sending off' for 98 cents and the home merchant wants a dollar for it," or the man who stands on the corner and tells the people who will listen to him "that house over there is skinning people right and left. I know their cost mark."

The whole matter sums up in the fact that the only foundation upon which the social and commercial structure of a community can safely build is that of "mutual interest" and every citizen who hopes to be rather a help than a detriment to his town should get to thinking seriously what "mutual interest" means.

OUR THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Thursday, November 29, is the day set apart by the President of the United States and the chief executive of Texas a day of thanksgiving to be fittingly observed by all the people. As the season approaches we are constrained to give expression to our customers of our own appreciation of the prosperity our country has enjoyed during the year just closing, and to extend our sincere thanks to the people of this section who have tendered us such excellent patronage out of the unusual prosperity they have enjoyed. For our customers we wish a continuation of the abundance now in the land, and we wish to assure them that we will ever try to merit the liberal patronage this firm has enjoyed during the whole of its existence.

We call your attention to the fact that we were never better prepared to supply the wants of our customers than now. Every department in our house is well filled with good honest serviceable goods. When you buy from us it is not a question of trying an article—it has already been tried and not found wanting. We do not need to use flaming posters to apprise the world of the merits of our stock, satisfied customers, by hundreds, among the best people in Texas, or in the world, for that matter, are the medium through which we advertise the incontestable value of our wares. They are continually proclaiming the merits of our merchandise, by return-year after year to buy from us. If there is a commercial aristocracy in which it is possible for one business concern to stand above others, because of a long career of upright dealing and honorable conduct, there is also an aristocracy of trade drawn from the better element of all classes of people in the country. We are proud to say that we enjoy just that kind of patronage, and that we owe to it the position we occupy in the mercantile world of Southwest Texas. Once more thanking you and wishing that nothing may be lacking from your board to make the feast complete on Thanksgiving Day.

Your friends,

Chas. Schreiner Company.

Timely Discovery Saves House.

The resident of Mr. J. P. Grider took fire Monday morning about 7 o'clock from a defective flue. The building is a frame structure and was in a light blaze when neighbors discovered it and turned in an alarm. Quick work on the part of a few men extinguished the flames before the arrival of the fire company. A stiff wind was blowing at the time and had the discovery been delayed a few minutes longer it would have been destroyed.

Our Store is the Good Saint's Headquarters in Kerrville

Dolls, Toys and Games

Our Buyer visited Doll land and selected the belles of the realm—blondes, brunettes, wax, china and every kind and character of doll known. We have an unusually handsome assortment of these goods and we have plenty to go round. Every little lady in this section of Texas can have a Christmas doll from our store and still the supply will not be exhausted. A visit to our Toy Department is a glimpse into toyland. We have a carefully selected stock of late toys from the smallest to the most up-to-date mechanical toy made.

Books and Stationery

In this department we are always at home to our friends. Of course this is a year round business with us, but at this time we always make special preparation for Holiday trade. Here you will find the latest novels, books for grown folks and for children, for boys and girls, picture books for the little tots, and every kind of book that Christmas buyers are looking for. Our stationery and writing material department is just now very complete in every detail—the most fastidious taste can be easily satisfied and our prices will warrant purchasing.

Silver and Novelty Goods

We have this season an unusually large and well selected stock of beautiful articles in plated silverware and Sterling Silver novelty goods. No cheap, worthless stuff, but every article having in addition to its beauty, the sterling quality of real value to recommend it to holiday shoppers, can be bought in single piece or sets. It is a pleasure to us to show these goods and we will be glad to give you the benefit of our experience in making your selections. In this, as in every other department, the signet of "honest value" is on every item.

China and Cut Glass

We are especially proud of the showing we make in this line. We have many hundreds of dollars in these goods and they are pretty and also serviceable. We selected them with a view to offering our trade a line of articles that, while they are fit adornments for the table of a Rajah, they are also serviceable for every day use and will last a life time. We have cut glass in single pieces and sets, china sets, half sets, or any way you like it. One of the most attractive things ever shown in Kerrville is our stock of hand painted china goods. Let us show you.

Miscellaneous Christmas Gifts

It would be impossible for us to give anything like a detailed account of our Christmas stock. We have almost anything you might ask for. Toilet sets, manicure sets, shaving sets, glove and handkerchief cases, handsome line of celluloid goods, games, medallions and pictures. There is no lack of variety in the scope of our stock. The store is full of goods, and if you don't happen to see just what you want it is because we had no place to put in on display. Call for it, we have undoubtedly got it.

KERRVILLE BOOK STORE DEPARTMENT

MAIL order buying is a sure way to run down your own town. It is a wrong that people should think over seriously.

If the president was so well pleased with the progress made on the Isthmian canal it is strange he should change some of the bosses on the big dump.

WHILE the Iowa Mothers' Congress is wasting time "resolving" the spanking proposition a great deal of much needed spanking is probably left undone at home.

THE big daily papers are stooping to a kind of sensationalism that is sickening to decent white people and will only put the negroes up to doing things that will eventually make them trouble, by publishing scare head stories about protests against plays and lectures. If the papers will let such things alone, few people will ever know them.

A MAN by name of Wm. Taylor attempted to open a box of dynamite with a chopping axe at Bedford, Ind. The explosion killed two men and wrecked the powder house. Taylor evidently belonged to the same class of people who become intimate with the business end of a gentle mule, assure themselves that there is no danger in an unloaded gun, or disagree with a woman.

It is a bad thing to give people free advertising when they try to get it, but to visit such an avalanche of unsolicited newspaper notoriety upon an unfortunate and unprotected woman as has been given Anna Gould in recent months is positively criminal. Anna Gould was simply a woman with a lot of money and not enough brains to select a husband. The only difference between her and a lot of other women is that she had lots of money. The American press started out a good many years ago to reform the people. At the rate things are going now it will be only a short time until somebody will have to try a hand at reforming the press. The public may want such sensational rot at the Castellane affair, but no one whose mind is not diseased thinks it best for the public to have every thing it wants.

HOLDING cotton for higher prices has always carried with it an element of chance, as many farmers even in this section of Texas are painfully aware, but the holding of corn and oats, for a better price, has on the other hand almost always been a safe proposition. Harvest oats in Kerr county, this year brought 30 to 32½ cents per bushel in the local market. The same oats are bringing today 42½ cents per bushel with a prospect of further advancement. Who ever heard of a single instance in recent years where cotton held for a like length of time brought an advance of more than 25 per cent. It would be well for farmers to bear this in mind when harvest comes around next year. Local dealers say that only a small quantity of oats has so far been shipped into this section this winter and that was because farmers were too busy to haul grain to the market. It is believed that there is almost enough oats in the granaries of the country to supply the demand. The farmers of this section may always be assured that by holding grain until winter he will get for it what the same grain from other states well cost laid down here. When we ship it away we get the same that northern farmers get, less the freight.

It is Cloak Time

And every lady in the country who has not purchased her winter wrap is invited to inspect our stock. Every garment in the house is properly tailored, of the best and latest fabrics and strictly up-to-date in style. We will take pleasure in showing you through the line.

Dead.

W. M. Hunt, who came to this place about five months ago from Clay, Ky., died Tuesday morning. The body was shipped Wednesday to his former home for interment.

Mr. Hunt had just recently purchased the drug store at Ingram and was going to take charge of the business in a few days, when he fell seriously ill. Deseased came to this country in quest of health, but was thought to be much improved.

M. G. Lowrey returned Sunday from a two week's visit to Colulla.

Rural Route for Kerrville.

Postmaster Chas. Real is making an effort to secure a rural mail route out of Kerrville. After investigating the requirements of the postal department, Mr. Real feels assured that with the co-operation of the people a route can be established following the Medina road from Kerrville to the Spieer lane, thence down Turtle creek to the mouth of said creek, thence up the river to Kerrville. It is believed that a sufficient number of families on this route to secure the rural mail service. Mr. Real will make a tour of the route next week and endeavor to interest the people in the matter. A rural mail route is of inestimable value to the people who reside in reach of it and the project should meet with the approval and support of all the farmers and ranchmen along the proposed route.

Things Worth While

It is not really worth while for a man, or firm to struggle to make money and in the struggle make pitfalls for himself. The selling of inferior goods will make rapid profits for a while, but it won't last. During the ten years we have been in business in Kerrville, we have adhered to the policy of handling honest goods. If we have found that an articles did not meet the demands of our trade we quit handling it. We need the money that accrues from a fair profit on honest, serviceable merchandise, but we do not need the money secured by selling inferior goods at prices that should buy the best. Hence we handle only first-class goods in the lines we carry and we invite the careful inspection of every article we offer for sale. There are many items that you cannot afford to buy without looking deeper than the outside—an excellent piece of goods may make a poor suit if not properly made—Good leather makes poor shoes when not properly put together and so on down the line. Every thing we sell will bear inspection. It is proper quality and the more you examine it the better you will be pleased. We won't sell anything that we do not make a profit on, nor will we take an unjust profit on any article. The price is the same to prince or peasant. An absolutely square deal to every body. Your money's worth for your money. You are always welcome at our store.

A TRUE ELEPHANT STORY.

All elephant trainers will tell you that it is one thing to have an "educated elephant" on your hands, and quite another to make him show college training. As is well known through circusdom, all highly trained menagerie animals come from Germany, likewise the finest animal trainers for their skill and patience is always rewarded by enormous salaries when their students have graduated in the first-class of any animal college. Americans are acknowledged as supreme in daring parachute air flying, etc., but to the stolid, steady German belongs the palm for real subjugation of the wild beasts of the forest.

Several weeks ago, by cable, the Van Amberg Shows were offered "the best trained elephant in the world," and it was suggested an immediate reply would be advisable, as others were negotiating for the wonderful pachyderm. Always on lookout for any feature that could strengthen the already well-behaved performing herd of elephants, the director-general at once cabled the shipment of this new marvel, and a week ago "Kaiser" trumpeted his respects to the menagerie in winter quarters. After a few days' rest the wonder was tried out by one of the trainers, and alas, alack, there was nothing doing. He was the most confidential elephant they had ever seen. The trainers were in despair, for the great beast could not or would not understand them, so they reported to the management that "Kaiser" would give no performance, but seemed to be actually growing more and more vicious every day. This is one of the dilemmas of show life. The first inclination was to ship the elephant back to the Fatherland, when the happy thought struck the management, "Where is Herman Webber? He is the real conqueror, for the elephant is certainly intelligent enough, and in all probability has been trained in Germany."

Webber reached the winter quarters and immediately asked for some cinnamon cake, and handing Kaiser a chunk, the elephant at once looked pleased and grateful, and making a low bow to the German trainer, threw up his trunk for more. Then the trainer spoke in German, and with words of command the huge beast did everything in the elephant category, and now Prof. Ferris is studying up a plan whether to teach him all over in English again, or make a German elephant school out of the rest of the herd.

FUNNY THINGS

FROM THE PAPERS.

A certain young man who detected a piece of bark in his sausage went to the butcher's shop to know what had become of the rest of the dog. The butcher is reported to have been so affected that he could only give a part of the tale.—Exchange.

Something New.

"He's got a new plan to exterminate mosquitoes."

"Coal oil, I suppose?"

"No; his idea is to cross them with lightning bugs so that you may see them coming and thus swat them more easily in the dark.—Philadelphia Press.

An Analogous Case.

A short time ago an aged lady went on board Nelson's flagship, the Victory. The different objects of interest were duly shown her, and on reaching the spot where the great naval hero was wounded (which is marked by a raised brass plate), the officer remarked: "Here, Nelson fell." "And no wonder!" exclaimed the old lady; "I nearly fell there myself."—Answers.

Asked to define the word "gentleman" a wise old guy replied as follows: "A man who is clean both outside and inside; who never looks up to the rich nor down to the poor; who can lose without squealing and win without bragging; who is considerate of women, children and old people; who is too brave to lie, too generous to cheat and takes his share of the world and lets other people have theirs."—Burlington County Ledger.

What She Meant.

They were dancing. The music was heavenly. The swish of her silken skirts was delightful. The fragrance of the roses upon her bosom was almost intoxicating. "Ah," she said, looking up into his face and smiling sweetly, "you remind me of one of Whitman's poems!" A sudden dizziness seemed to seize him. It was as if he were floating in a dream. When he could catch his breath to speak, he asked: "Which one?" "Oh, any one," she replied, "The feet are mixed in all of them."

A grave faced man walked up to the door of one of his customers and rang the bell. The wife of the customer came to the door. "I have come," said the sad faced man, "to learn when you intend to bury your husband; I thought I would attend the funeral."

"You are laboring under some terrible mistake," said the wife, "my husband is not dead."

"Why he surely must be," said the sad faced man.

"I know that he is not. How in the world did you get that impression that he is dead?"

"Why he told me a week ago that he would pay me the $2.50 he owed me yesterday if he was alive."—Exchange.

A Bryan Anecdote.

"We don't need the tariff as it stands today," Mr. Bryan said in his speech at Bridgeport, "and it can't be justified by any argument made previous to ten years ago. When a republican talks about the possibility of reforming the tariff it reminds me of a story I heard years ago." Mr. Bryan told the story of the merchant who chased the thief out of his store after the man had donned a new coat from a pile on the counter. He called, "Stop thief!" and a policeman joined in the chase and called, "Stop thief!" and finally the policeman shouted, "Stop or I'll shoot!" The merchant seized the officer and begged, "If you shoot him, officer, shoot him in the pants; the coat belongs to me."—N. Y. World.

A Warranted Suspicion.

"My wife was arrested yesterday."

"You surprise me. What was the trouble?"

"She got off a trolley the right way and a policeman thought she was a man in disguise."—Ex.

A New Excuse.

"Really," said Slopay, "you'd have to excuse me today. I'm not well and besides you'll have to see my wife about this bill."

"Oh, come," cried the collector "you contracted this bill yourself and you should pay it yourself without trying to—"

"But I tell you I'm not myself today."—Philadelphia Press.

As a steamer was leaving the harbor of Athens, a well dressed young passenger approached the Captain and pointing to the distant hills, inquired: "What is that white stuff on the hills, Captain?" "That is snow, madam," replied the Captain. "Is it, really?" retorted the lady. "I thought so myself, but a gentleman has just told me it was Greece."—Harper's Weekly.

"Is your wife getting ready for Christmas?"

"I think so. I heard her order the grocer to send her an empty sugar barrel, and I noticed the other night she was reading an article entitled, 'How to Make Mission Furniture at Home'"

"But what's the sugar barrel for?"

"Oh, that's for a table leg."

A Jefferson City man told his wife when rebuked by her about his late hours that he stayed away because his home was not made pleasant for him, so the faithful wife next day took up the parlor carpet, scattered sawdust over the floor, brought in some tables, covered them with glasses and bottles and cheese and crackers and bologna, provided a case of beer and waited contentedly and with a smiling face the return of her better half. She can't understand why, after one glance at the arrangements made for his comfort, he faced about and slammed the front door and stayed out later than ever.—Mound City (Mo.) Jeffersonian.

Which Was Hit?

Patrick Murphy, while passing down Tremont street, was hit on the head by a brick which fell from a building in process of construction.

One of the first things he did after being taken home and put to bed was to send for a lawyer.

A few days later he received word to call, as his lawyer had settled the case.

He called and received five crisp new $100 bills.

"How much did you get?" he asked.

"Two thousand dollars," answered the lawyer.

"Two thousand, and you give me $500! Say, who got hit by that brick, you or me?"—Boston Herald.

The Strongest Fence

Science proves that the strongest fence, because constructed throughout on scientific lines, is the

ELLWOOD FENCE

SIMPLE-SCIENTIFIC-STRONG

The Reasons:

1st—Each horizontal extension of the ELLWOOD is a steel cable, consisting of two heavy wires intertwined.

2d—Each of these cables is tied to each other cable by a continuous heavy wire lapped tightly about every cable—not tied in a circular knot or twist to weaken the strength of the wire at the bending point. (Wrap a wire around your finger and the wire is not weakened, tie a knot up in a hard knot and you cannot untie it without breaking, it is so much weakened.)

THAT IS ALL THERE IS TO ELLWOOD FENCE—

Heavy steel cables lapped about and held together by steel wire, forming uniform meshes. Simple, isn't it? No chance for weakness in any part; uniformly strong. The reasons for the superiority of ELLWOOD FENCE are not hard to find. This company owns and operates its own iron mines and furnaces; its own wire mills and six large fence factories—either one of the six being larger than any other fence factory in the world. These facts should be convincing.

We handle ELLWOOD Fencing in car load lots and carry all styles of Fencing and Gates in stock.

Miss Ethel Bonnell of Verde and Mrs. Janie Jones of Bonnie View, were visitors at the library room last Saturday.

Mrs. W. H. Brown entertains the Priscilla's on Thursday afternoon; these meetings are always looked forward to with a great deal of eagerness, for to drink tea, then "giggle, gabble, gobble and git," is such fun.

Winter is here with its piercing winds; tonight I pile my fire with green logs and musing over some sweet story of the olden time, wander into a rich realm of thought, until my eyes grow dim, thinking of those who are gone, they who cheered and blessed life with love. One by one they have dropped away. Life at the best is but a bubble that bursts as soon as it is fully rounded.

Miss Pearl Crosby of San Antonio, is stopping at the Avenue Hotel—she, by the way, is an authoress of some note—having passed through a siege or fever, is here for rest and quiet.

Mrs. J. D. Johnson of Tennessee, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Meeks, left yesterday for her home, Mrs. Meeks accompanying her as far as Rosebud.

Our National President, Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, made a call in November Ladies Home Journal for books to be donated for Center Point Sunshine Library and since then every mail comes laden with good literature, history and fiction, until we are now pressed for room.

If this cold-snap continues, society functions will be on the wane, visitors are few, traveling checked, altogether quite a subdued air reigns supreme, the woodmans ax makes the welkin ring and a right merry sound it is this kind of weather.

THE FAMOUS

FROM TOLAR, NEW MEXICO.

DEAR OLD MOUNTAIN SUN:

Well, as we are now quite at home, will be glad to drop a few more lines from this part of the State.

No, indeed, this is not like Texas at all my childhood home; this is comparatively a new place. One store, one blacksmith shop, a post office, a church house, a school house, one hotel and several dwelling houses constitute the little town, Tolar.

I wish to correct my mistake of last time; instead of it being the Rock Island railroad it is the Santa Fe that runs through our little town and country and to which it owes greatly its success, and today the 7th of November, the immigrant train brings her heavily loaded coaches of home seekers to our country from the northern states.

This is a very brilliant summer's day, still, and but our weather is very changeable; last Sunday three weeks ago all was still, but alas! what sounds came. It was like a huge, deep sigh, or moan or sob as if some great monster of the air breathed slowly and painfully from a vast distant over the plain; it grew cooler every instant and the wind blew harder. The heavens, indeed, were an ominous aspect. The sun had set, and every ray of his light had faded from the western horizon, yet the whole sky seemed to be illuminated with supernatural light—a bronze colored glare that made the moon and stars look pale and dim and that was reflected by the long white waving grass until the whole sphere seemed smouldering on the eve of bursting into a conflagration, while ever at short intervals come that low, deep, distant sigh, moan or sob across the plains. The snow fell fast for a short while, then the tiny patter of rain drops sounded to prove a change it rained, snowed and sleeted; each taking its course of time for three days and nights, then as though we had sped on wings of time to another climate, the morning dawned clear, bright and with a beautiful blue sky, then for more warm spring or summer weather. But for all that I do so like a change and this seems to be the place for it. Well, I was very much pleased to see one of my dear old friends and school mates in last issue, (the Calf Run Girl). Mr. Scholar we would be pleased if you would wake up from your long slumber and come to the front once more, be ye friend or foe; you surely will be pleased when I tell you the farmer and poor little Poet is still drifting further west where now she can look back on days gone by in that happy childhood home; but time changes as nothing else can do, and I am happy to say, I am as well pleased with my new home as my simple nature can express. Now to any of my friends who have not a home, here are the chances of one; only $28 for locating, filing and surveying, that is all the cost and you get 160 acres as a homestead, and after living on it five years or you can live on it fourteen months and pay the V. S. one twenty-five per acre, then you get a clear title and then taxes are levied on your land which are very small. Cotton cannot be raised here as the summer seasons are too short, (thanks for that). Corn, milo maize, white and red kafir corn, white and red peanuts, potatoes and beans are the staple products, and all kinds of garden vegetables do well, I am proud to say. I bid you adieu. Farewell for this time.

HOLIDAY GOODS

For the next six weeks our Holiday Goods Department will be the center of attractions in Kerrville. The "Christmas Spirit" is here now, come 'round and see the pretty presents, it don't cost a thing to look, it costs very little to buy from us. We take pleasure in showing them.

DRY GOODS

We are working on the theory and practice of being of the most use to the greatest number. Some of our neighbors haven't found it out yet but there is only one successful method of doing business and that is to be decent. Some people think there is no money in truth and honesty, but while we don't think we are any better than the next man yet we know that it pays to treat people right. Friends 'round. We want you to trade here because you want too. It's a good store and you know it as well as we do.
