Talks About The "Locked Gates."

HERE are a few people who spend a great deal of their time studying over the mysteries and the peculiarities of life. There are also a great many who give so little thought to psychological, or if you prefer it to spiritual things, that they hardly realize that there is anything to them except the flesh and blood and bones of the animal man. The former class are called idealists, or sentimentalists—some people call them fanatical fools. The latter class are cold blooded realists,—and there be those who question their wisdom. It is a well known thesis, and a highly tenable position, that the line of demarkation between the wise philosopher and maudlin fool is so extremely narrow that few people are able to discriminate.

Without raising a question as to which of the two classes is composed of philosophers, I am going to talk a little about "The Locked Gates."

When I get to thinking about the impassable barrier, the "locked gate" that is between me and the past, I have often wondered if it would not do some good to talk just a little to young people about it. I do not think it either wise or prudent for parents to continually wear long faces and talk preachments to their children, but young boys and girls have no means of knowing just how things look "over the locked gate," unless some one tells them of it, and tells them to look for themselves. I think it is wrong to expect boys and girls to be men and women. God intended that they should be boys and girls and should enjoy the things that youth has loved since the human family have graced the earth, but I also believe in the assertion that the precepts that are inculcated into the very nature of a child, during its early years, are the anchor posts upon which the superstructure is raised that in after years becomes the beautiful edifice of the noble man or woman.

There can be no doubt that some occasional food for sober reflection is wholesome for they boy or girl, and will neither retard their physical growth, nor rob them of their youthful pleasure. The fact is that we often underestimate the mental strength and psychical inclination of boys and girls. I once heard a young woman discussing a man who was considered to have mental ability, in the community where he lived, and she said:

"Do you know, I used to wonder when I was a girl, if what people said of that man was really true. I would hear my parents and other older folks express the opinion that he was a very able man. He always talked to me about some childish, simple matter, so I finally reached the conclusion that he was really a smart man, but thought I was silly and talked to me in a strain that I could understand and I didn't like it."

"Well, I seem to have gotten so far from the "locked gate" that I expect you are wondering how I could tell that it was locked at that distance, but I am coming back to it.

Every twenty-four hours in life there is a gate shut behind us and locked by Time. It shuts with a spring and there is no key that will unlock it. Each day's journey is separated from the next one by a gate. The gates are not high, and you can see over them all along back the way, but you cannot pass even the last one that was closed. I knew an old man once who would sit for hours apparently in sad reverie, and one day I asked him if he was in trouble, and he said:

"Not exactly that, and yet I am troubled too. It is this way, son. I have been looking over the locked gates, and away back yonder I can see where I spent a day walking in the beautiful garden of my mother's love and I did not stay in the walks, but trod on some sweet violets and tender plants. That night when the gate was locked I thought of them, but I could not go back to straighten up the bruised and broken stems. Still further on I see another place where thorns and weeds and broken brambles are. Where the vine of love is torn and broken from the trellis of my poor old mother's heart and I have left her weeping in the midst of the wilderness of sorrow. There are many sections of the road I passed that are not flower gardens, but that one is the most desolate one of them all and I could not endure it, were it not that the very next one to it is the most beautiful one of them all, for there I can see myself kneeling at my mother's knee, sobbing out my prayer for forgiveness, and as she takes me to her breast, the flowers of love burst forth in blooms of dazzling beauty and the bells of joy peal out an anthem in my heart.

"On another morning I passed through another garden and a lily grew beside the way. It was the purest, whitest lily I had ever seen and I put forth my hand to break the stem. Under the spell the lily seemed to prefer that I break its stem and carry it away, but in my heart a voice said, 'if you break the stem the lily will fade and die.' I like to look back at that garden for I did not break the stem, and that lily grew on, one of the purest, truest flowers that ever grew in the garden of life."

After that I used often to visit the old man and listen at him talk of the things he saw over the "locked gate." Pretty soon I began looking over the gates. There is nobody who can look over the gates without seeing some unpleasant thing. Some bruised and broken flower that he would like to go back and bandage and straighten again,—only he can't do it—bu, sad indeed must be the declining years of that man or woman, who, when looking back along the way, sees garden after garden full of brambles. Here a little child, reaching out its loving hands, its face tear-stained, because there was no warm love in mother's heart to take it to her breast. A few journeys further on and there is a little grave piled high with flowers in the hope that they would obstruct the view so she could not see the other garden, but it could not be hidden and even through the blinding tears of grief it plainly could be seen.

"There is no escape from seeing over the 'locked gates.' God in His infinite wisdom has so constructed the human mind that the bitter sting of grief, becomes dulled, and we forget, for the time, the unhappy things that occur, but there always comes a time when that retrospective view is taken.

"Some people say it is wrong to look back and refer us to Lot's wife, and the horrible misfortune that befell her for looking back. Many people are continually preaching, "look forward, and forget what is behind you," but I once lived the life of a woodsman and became accustomed to taking my bearings, shaping a course that I desired to travel, then looking back occasionally to see if I was going straight. I believe it is good for the moral and spiritual welfare to sometimes take a good, long, sober look "over the locked gates," and I know it will be a source of much happiness in years to come, my young friends, if you will strive to plant as many flowers in the gardens as you gather, if every time you hear the latch click on a gate you will look over it and see if there are broken stems along the way and if so the next day place a perfect one between you and it. My wish is that when the snows of life are drifted deep upon your brow you can look over the locked gates and smile gladly at the things you see.

DRIFTING SNOWS.

Throughout this life the drifting snow,
From strangely tempered winds that blow

It here and there in feathery drift,
Or through some small and hidden rift,
In varying picture tells life's tale,
From babyhood to waning vale.

The snows that trim a downy couch,
That will for baby's pleasure vouch,
Are filmy soft, like late spring flakes;
And as he clasps his hands and makes
Wry faces with his lips of rose,—
So, in the Spring of life, it snows.

And next, the laughing winds of May,
Like happy youth at merric play,
Will shake the snows from apple blooms
And drift it 'round fair brides and grooms,
Who know not yet, life's Autumn
woes,—

Soft fall the flakes of early snows.
Ahon, fell winter's chilling blasts
Find ships of life, with quant, bare masts,
Ice locked, in silent port of age;
While sleet and hail and hard flakes
rage,
Pile high on brows deep seamed with
woes,—
Thus, in life's winter, fall the snows.

THE THREE WORLDS

SUBJECT OF INTERESTING BIBLE LECTURE AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH LAST WEEK

An appreciative audience gave the closest attention on Tuesday night, February 4, at the Baptist church in this city, to Evangelist E. W. Brenneisen of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Allegheny, Pa., on the theme, "The Three Ways of the Bible."

THE FIRST WORLD.

That this subject had no reference to three separate earths or planets, but instead of dispensations of eras of time, was first explained.

The first world or dispensation was represented as being a period of 1656 years, beginning with the creation of man and ending with the flood, referred to in 2 Peter 3:5 and 6. "The heavens were of old and the earth standing out of the water and in the water, whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water perished."

In a logical manner it was then reasoned that not the literal heavens including sun, moon, stars and the whole planetary system, nor yet the physical "earth," perished nor were destroyed by the flood of Noah's day, but that the Biblical expressions were highly figurative and symbolized the "heavenly" or religious order or ministration of that period. Scriptural proof was then adduced to show that angels from heaven had the power or rule during the "world that then was." Amongst other citations of the Bible, the apostle Paul's language, "For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection the world to come whereof we speak?" Heb. 2:5, carried the thought that at one time the world was in subjection to angels. But they evidently were not successful in subduing or blessing mankind for the "earth," the social order before the flood became very corrupt, as shown in Gen.

6:1-5. In fact the "heavens" (the angels) became contaminated with the "earth" (human institutions) and are thereafter referred to in scripture language as the fallen angels which kept not their first estate reserved in chains of darkness unto the judgment of the great day, (see Jude 6 and 2, Peter 2:4-5)

THE SECOND WORLD.

The second dispensation, it was then claimed, is a period of time from the drying of the flood to the second coming of the Lord and the introduction of the long looked for millennium. In Bible terms it is called by Paul "the present evil world" and by the Lord "this world," for he said when brought before Pilate: "My Kingdom is not of this world—if my Kingdom were of this world then would my servants fight—now is my Kingdom not from hence." Whose Kingdom is then "this world?" Paul answers by calling the devil or satan "the god, (or mighty one) of this world." 2 Cor 4:4. Peter calls this dispensation "the heavens and earth which are now." 2 Pet. 3:7 in contrast to the "heavens and earth" before the flood, and therefore again has not reference to the literal planetary system but instead to the symbolical signification and when Peter goes on and says of the closing of this dispensation that "the heavens" being on fire shall be dissolved and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, it was warmly contended from other scriptural statements, that not the literal elements composing the physical planets, etc., would be consumed but that there were other elements becoming heated by constant friction, viz: the rich element and the poor element, the capital and the labor element, the financial element, social element, religious element, etc., and will soon burst out into a flame of anarchy under the guise of socialism which will envelop the whole earth and destroy the existing order of things.

THE THIRD WORLD.

The third world or dispensation it was then shown would rise out of the ruins of the present order, not by the power of any institution promulgated, fostered, or evolved by any of the degraded, fallen and selfish human race, such panaceas, for instance, as are advocated by many well meaning, but nevertheless deluded, socialists and other political economists of the entire world, but instead by the second coming of the Lord himself, "whose right it is" and who will be fully able to bring beautiful harmony and order, peace and righteousness out of the chaotic conditions of society, by the complete establishment of his Kingdom of righteousness for which all Christians continue to pray, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is done in Heaven." This glorious time is referred to in the Bible as "The new heavens (the spiritual control of Christ at his second advent) and the new earth (re-organized society) wherein dwelleth righteousness" 2 Pet. 3:10 to 13. It is also denominated "The world to come," "The world without end" and signifies the restored paradise on earth, as it is written, "the times of refreshing that shall come from the presence of the Lord—the times of restitution of all things spoken of by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:19 to 21.

The Watch Tower Bible and Tract society of Allegheny, Pa., who Mr. Brenneisen represents, is doing a noble work in its free distribution of literature which is reclaiming many avowed infidels as well as establishing the faith of all thinking Christians in their Bibles by encouraging study through the medium of their absolutely free Bible School of Correspondence, entirely undenominational and non-sectarian. All are inductive lessons—"Do You Know?" and "Which is the True Gospel," including "What Say Scriptures About Hell," an examination of every Bible text containing the word "Hell."

MAN OF TRUE FEELING

Bereaved Husband Needed No Special Place When It Came to Shedding Tears.

One day last summer a German entered the establishment of a photographer in a southern town and, after several glances about the place, observed, mournfully, that the photographer did not seem to have the properties essential to the taking of a picture he desired.

"I should like a picture of myself weepin' beside my wife's grave," he said. "Maybe you fix a grave here in de shop for me."

"I am afraid I haven't the necessary accessories," said the photographer. Then, with an attempt at facetiousness, he suggested: "Couldn't we arrange to have the portrait made at the grave itself?"

"Dot's in Bennisylvania," sighed the German. "It would be too expensive to go there. Yust you fix up some kind of grave here in de shop. I could weep on dot. It's no drouble for me to weep anywere."—Harper's Weekly.

OLD FRENCH DIAL RING.

"A dial ring," said the curio dealer. "A French dial ring of the eighteenth century. You can tell the time with it." The ring, of gold, was beautifully chased, and where the stone sparkles usually there was set a tiny sun dial. "All you have to do," said the dealer, "is to stand in the right way, holding the dial so that the sun strikes it, and a tiny shadow will tell you the hour. Such a ring," he concluded, "is more a curio than an accurate timepiece. It is good only in the locality it is made for, and even there, unless it is set toward the right point of the compass, it will be several hours out of the way."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TO STUDY BAFFIN ESKIMOS

German School Teacher Plans to Live with Arctic Tribe for Three Years.

The project of Bernhard Hantzsch, a Dresden school teacher, who, from the beginning of 1909 until the end of 1912 intends to pass the time in the exploration of Baffin land, living among the Eskimos without any European companion, is arousing interest in scientific circles, says the Kansas City Times. Hantzsch will renounce all the comforts and accessories of civilization. He purposes to attach himself to a migratory tribe, learn the language and adopt the habits of the natives. In the summer he will live under skin tents and in the winter in snow huts, and will wander with the tribesmen throughout the length and breadth of the land. In this way he will be enabled to acquire a thorough acquaintance with the customs of the Eskimo and he hopes to obtain valuable data relating to the natural history of the country. The explorer expects to be able to make his way along the western coast northward by 1912 and there hopes to fall in with a whaler on which he can return to Europe.

THIRST FOR KNOWLEDGE.

Lord Dunedin, the lord president of the court of session, has apparently an insatiable thirst for knowledge, says the Westminster Gazette. When he was studying Rumanian three years ago much was said of the idea of a man of 55 years learning a new language. This winter the lord president is one of the non-matriculation students at Edinburgh university, where he is attending a special course of lectures on German literature. Lord Dunedin is a brilliant conversationalist, a keensportsman and incidentally before he was a lord was one of the first M. P.'s to arrive at the house on a bicycle.

Keeping Open House.

Everybody is welcome when we feel good; and we feel that way only when our digestive organs are working properly. Dr. King's New Life Pills regulate the action of stomach, liver and bowels so perfectly one can't help feeling good when he uses these pills. 25c at Rock Drug Store.

THE BIRTHPLACE OF BEAUTY.

It was no wonder, of course, that there should be handsome women in California. They are creatures who have whatever they want, and certainly they would want to be nowhere else than here with the poinsettias and the mocking birds; under the blue skies, and in the perfect weather, where they can display themselves every hour of the sunlit day. A fair land for fair women—that's the idea—and our own women still the handsomest of all. And why not? This is the birthplace of beauty as well as its rendezvous.—Los Angeles Times.

FEWER SAILING VESSELS.

In spite of the progress of economy in building and operating sailing vessels they are being crowded out by steamers. The capacity of all sailing vessels, both home and foreign, carrying the exports and imports of the United States, has declined 50 per cent in 30 years. Prior to 1881 the capacity of sailing vessels in this trade exceeded that of steamships, but in 1906 the tonnage of steamships was nearly 11 times that of sailing vessels.

TOO SOON FOR THAT.

"Mrs. Gaddie writes me from her new home that she hasn't any friends there to speak of."

"Why she told me she had made quite a number of friends since she went there."

"Then I suppose when she says she has 'none to speak of,' she means she hasn't learned enough about them to begin to knock them yet."—Philadelphia Press.

HAS LIVED AND LEARNED

Mr. Killikinton on Way to Revive His Views as to Humor of An Old Song.

"You remember," said Mr. Killikinton, "that grand old song, 'Grandpa's teeth are plugged with zinc?'"

"Well, I always supposed that that zinc business was simply a grotesquely humorous flight of fancy. I never thought that anybody's teeth could really be filled with zinc; but now I am not so sure about that."

"Lately I have had four teeth filled, and no two have been filled with the same material. One was filled with amalgam, one with gold, one with porcelain and one with gutta percha; and now the material they used to fill grandpa's teeth with in the song doesn't seem to me anything like so ridiculous as it did."

"I have seven teeth yet to be filled; and if the dentist keeps on as he has begun, using something different for every tooth, why, I wouldn't be surprised if before I got through I had one tooth at least filled with zinc."

REGULAR NIGHTMARE.

"Well, Bobby," said young Lightwit, as the small brother of the only girl entered the grocery, "how are all the folks, and what can I do for you this morning?"

"Oh, the folks ain't got no kick comin' except Mame. I hear her tellin' maw she dreamed about you last night," answered Bobby.

"And what did your mother say?" queried Lightwit, bending over the counter eagerly.

"Maw said she'd have t' cut out mince, pie and pickle lunches, 'fore goin' t' bed after this—and I want a nickel package of crackers and 2 cents' worth of milk, rejoined the youngster."

Neighborhood Favorite

Mrs. E. D. Charles, of Harbor, Maine, speaking of Electric Bitters, says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness, weakness and general debility. Its action on the blood, as a thorough purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alterative tonic is sold under guarantee at Rock Drug Store. 50c.

SOUNDED LIKE DRINKS.

Hans was the big, good-natured German who received the pet dogs of summer tourists and placed them in the baggage car. The other day Hans made out the following report:

"Received four bulldogs, six poodles, three pugs and two 'half-and-halves.'"

The station master was puzzled. "Hans," he said, reading the report for the third time, "what in the world does 'half-and-half' mean. You must be thinking about drinks?"

"No, dey vas French poodles."

"But why do you call them 'half-and-halves'?"

"Because dey was half shaved und half not shaved."

IN SIGN LANGUAGE.

During the Russo-Japanese war certain correspondents wanted to purchase some eggs in Manchuria and none of them knew the local name for them. They tried all the languages they knew, but in vain, until one genius sat down on his haunches, waved his arms and said "cluck-cluck." Another correspondent tells how he was once in a hurry to catch the train from Moscow to St. Petersburg and as the droschky came up he remembered that he had forgotten the Russian for "station." There are many restaurants and other resorts in Moscow named after the capital. "Peterburg—puff, puff!" said the correspondent, and the driver smiled with understanding.

The Strongest Fence

Science proves that the strongest fence, because constructed throughout on scientific lines, is the

ELLWOOD FENCE

SIMPLE—SCIENTIFIC—STRONG

The Reasons:

1st—Each horizontal extension of the ELLWOOD is a steel cable, consisting of two heavy wires intertwined.

2d—Each of these cables is tied to each other cable by a continuous heavy wire lapped tightly about every cable—not tied in a crooked "knot" or twist to weaken the strength of the tie wire at the bending point. (Wrap a wire around your finger and the wire is not weakened, tie a wire up in a hard knot and you cannot untie it without breaking, it is so much weakened.)

THAT IS ALL THERE IS TO ELLWOOD FENCE—

Heavy steel cables lapped about and held together by steel wire, forming uniform meshes. Simple, isn't it? No chance for weakness in any part; uniformly strong. The reasons for the superiority of ELLWOOD FENCE are not hard to find. This company owns and operates its own iron mines and furnaces; its own wire mills and six large fence factories—either one of the six being larger than any other fence factory in the world. These facts should be convincing.

We Handle ELLWOOD Fencing in Car Load Lots and Carry all Styles of Fencing and Gates. Come to see us, We'll talk Fence economy to You

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

The Sun wants a correspondent in every community in this section of Texas, but we must enforce our iron clad rule in regard to signatures. You may use any pen name you like, but we must know who writes the story or it will not be published. Understand, we do not want to publish your name if you want it withheld, but it must be written somewhere on the manuscript. We want correspondents, and will furnish stationery to any one applying for it. EDITOR.

President Roosevelt is again singing that inspiring hymn, "Somebody's lied."

What is this devoted country coming to? If the Federal Congress and various State legislative bodies keep on taking falls out of stock gambling and other questionable methods of separating people from their money, it will get so after a while that a gentleman (?) will have to work for money the same as the common rabble, doncher know.

Since the big rains no one in this part of the country is worrying about the financial condition. The range will be fine in two weeks, it is already good enough for the stockmen to feel no uneasiness about the outcome of the winter so far as stock is concerned. If a financial pessimist should pass through this section now, fat cattle would wink at him through the barbed wire fence, and even the sheep would discountenance his prophecies.

Doing without a thing themselves is not so hard on some people as seeing some one else possess it. Selfishness has caused a great deal more discontent than has poverty. Men often go to greater lengths to keep the other fellow from getting a thing, than they would be willing to attempt in an honest effort to acquire it for themselves.

The Republicans are quarrelling, and their leaders are insinuating that there is not ground for such overweening confidence in certain of the party chieftains as is desirable at the beginning of a great political battle. Looks like there might be some chance to put to proof the old saying about what happens when a certain class of people fall out.

Williamson county will hold a corn show at Georgetown today. Kerr county held her corn show at the West Texas Fair in Kerrville last fall, and the showing would have been a credit to any county in the state. By the way, it is right now time to use extra care in the selection of good seed corn from which to grow the prize winning corn for this year's fair. The 1908 exhibition of the West Texas Fair will be the biggest event of the kind in the history of the southwest.

Great benefit will result to the farmers and stockmen of Kerr county from the fine rain that fell on Saturday of last week. Small grain will now make a fair crop with very little more rain. The ground is in fine condition to receive the crop of corn that farmers are about to plant. The additional moisture in the ground will start the grass and weeds growing at once and will furnish fine range for sheep during lambing time. Taking conditions all around it has been several years since the prospect for prosperity in all lines of business was more flattering than at this time.

A facetious advertiser in a Texas daily heads his advertisement with a picture of a "Painted Indian" holding a couple of healthy looking guns on a citizen, while the aforesaid citizen is holding his hands like an exorter at a camp meeting reaching for heaven. According to the legend inscribed thereon the "armed host," representing the fellow who runs the business, is saying through clenched teeth, "Hold up! We want your money." No matter how you approach this advertisement, it is extremely funny, but we wonder if some people who have no sense of humor will not think that it is meant for the truth, either before or after taking.

The State Text Book Commission is down to it work, and will have quite a job reading all the 400 books submitted. Every publishing house will have a fair showing. In order to secure this each publisher has sent a representative to Austin to watch the Governor and his associates on the commission, and to see that they are honest. It looks rather queer to see members of the legislature who voted for the anti-lobby bill at Austin representing a publishing house before the commission. If they have been retained to "show the goods" it is evidence of a new departure in business that the publishers did not engage the services of a competent bookseller, whose salary would in all probability have been much less than the fees of the lobbyists.

There were probably few people in America who had ever heard of Major Edward A. Plummer, until he "called on clergymen, physicians and lawyers" to assist him in making a fight against the divorce evil. This was, perhaps, as good a way as the doughty Major could have found to break into the limelight of the public press, and he is entitled to publicity "on his nerve." But, his crusade against the divorce evil will cut but little ice. There are many causes for men and women who do not love each other unarriving. As long as that continues to occur there will be business in the divorce courts. The parties to a divorce suit are usually about as much to blame, as the fellow who looks into the muzzle of a gun that "he didn't know was loaded." In almost every divorce case in the world the parties, out of self-respect, put up with conditions until the conjugal bands are strained to the breaking point, before a separation by law is asked for. No sensible man or woman will question the statement that divorce has a strong tendency, as a custom, to lower public morals. But the retrograde movement of human society, and the stifling of all the finer sensibilities of human character for gain of wealth and place, is responsible for the evil, more than are the individuals. The tendency of modern times is to live fast. Fast living is not conducive to thinking, and the man or woman who does not think is not safe either mentally or morally.

It is conceded that Ohio will go for Taft for the Republican nomination for President. Well, that is no sign of a duck's nest, there are plenty of men that can carry their own precincts, and yet never win out in a county election.

The current issue of the Literary Digest cites a large number of authorities to prove the statement that the recent panic was not merely a rich man's disaster. We do not know anything at all about what effect it has had upon the poor people, as there are no poor people in this part of the country. The hardship that the "stringency" has worked upon the rich and near rich is evidenced by the fact that a grand jury has indicted Charles W. Morse, the former New bank president and steam ship magnate, for grand larceny, and are going to make an attempt to force the gentleman to tell what became of the pitiful little $20,000,000 that he was alleged to have had before the finances of the country were fooled with.

This is the year for Kerr county to raise a banner crop of fruit of all kinds. For two or three years past fruit has not done very well, and orchards owners have allowed their trees of all kinds to become neglected. February is the month in which trees should be pruned in this climate. Get busy and prune up the trees. Every old tree that has a few green, live limbs on it will bear fruit this year. Of course the editor of this paper does not know a bit more about the prospect for a fruit crop than you do, only you may have had no time to think that the dry winter, and uniformly cool weather has given the buds little opportunity to swell. Consequently the bloom will not be sufficiently advanced when the late frost comes for it to be killed. Anyway, whether you have faith in our prophecy or not, just cut this out and paste it on the wall, then go ahead and trim up your orchard, it will help the looks of the place and it won't cost much.

Campaigns are opening up, and the people are again confronted with the matter of electing a lot of men that they are willing to have go to Austin and make legal medicine. The newspapers and newspaper writers are expressing widely varied opinions as to what kind of pledges should be exacted of the various candidates. It occurs to this writer that a promise to do the utmost to repeal some laws, to so amend others so as to bring them within the pale of reason, and finally to restrict the product of the legislative mill to such a point as will bring it reasonably within the law of supply and demand—the demand for new laws in Texas is very light. When such promise as this is had of the aspirants for legislative office, it might be well enough to require of every candidate for executive or judicial office a pledge that the law will be enforced, regardless of what the political outlook may be, or the effect of their action, within the provisions of their lawful duty, upon the result of the coming election.

Six Years of Progress and Prosperity.

In August, 1902, W. A. Fawcett came to Kerrville, from Gonzales county, and organized what is known as the firm of W. A. Fawcett & Company, dealers in furniture and household goods. From the time of its organization the house has been prosperous. During the six years of good, substantial business progress there have been many changes in the firm, but through it all Mr. Fawcett has been the head of the firm and has guided it safely in the way to marked success. The business policy of the firm has been up to the highest standard, and its methods of getting and holding the confidence, and consequently the trade, of the people are along the lines of modern merchandising. Associated in business at the present time is Mr. W. C. Peterson, an old and highly respected citizen of Kerrville, who came here many years ago from Gonzales county, and who is one of the safest, and most conservative business men in town.

This enterprising firm has recently completed its new home on Water street, between Washington and Mountain, and moved into new quarters this week. The handsome structure was erected by Davey & Schott, Kerrville contractors, and is one of the handsomest business houses in town. The building is of concrete, 50 feet front by 60 feet deep. It has a solid glass front, and is built and finished on modern lines of architecture throughout.

The lower story will be used by W. A. Fawcett & Co. for a show room for modern furniture, a large stock of which they have just received. The upper story will be used as a lodge room by various local organizations of secret societies. This firm and their new home are a credit to the town, and it is gratifying to every good citizen to see such evidences of their prosperity.

EFFECT OF GOOD CLOTHES.

Everybody of intelligence knows the old, threadbare platitude, "clothes don't make the man." Of course you know that is true and so do we all, but just the same when people go away from home, or go to any place where they would like to create a favorable impression they always put on their "good clothes," and they do it because they know that while clothes do not make a man either better or worse, still they help to make the impression. It is right and proper to wear the very best clothes you can afford. There are many brands of ready-made clothes that fit well and give excellent service, but no conscientious merchant will tell his customer that they fit as well, look as well or give as good service as tailor-made clothing. We know that is not true, and so do you, but in order to get neat tailor-made clothes herebefore the difference in price was so great that few men could afford to wear them. Realizing this we have tried every kind of made-to-order scheme that appeared to us as being possible, and while some gave good service, still on the whole, the business was unsatisfactory.

At last we have hit upon the right thing and we are now offering it to the trade. The new way is this: We have employed a real expert tailor. We have a large line of samples from which you may select cloth for a suit—looks like the old way don't it? but it is not. When you have selected the cloth you want, our tailor takes your measure. When he ascertains the amount of cloth required WE BUY THE CLOTH from one of the largest woollen houses in America, and it is delivered to the tailors, they make the clothes and we deliver them to you. There is no chance for a cutting scant to save money—the tailor has nothing to do with buying the cloth—we do that.

The result of this method is that you get tailor-made clothes, made by an expert tailor, from the cloth you order—not about what you want, but exactly what you want and as you want it. It will cost very little more than ready-made goods, and will be worth a great deal more. Our new line of Spring and summer samples of strictly all wool cloths and worsteds are now ready for your inspection and our Mr. Watts will take pleasure in waiting on you.

CHAS. SCHREINER CO.

A. E. Burge, a large ranch owner of the divide, spent several days in Kerrville this week. Mr. Burge says the finest of rains have fallen in his section, and predicts a very prosperous year for the people throughout the State.

"Opportunity Knocks at Every Man's Door Once," It is Knocking at Yours Now.

San Antonio's real estate is now a marketable commodity, and is attracting the attention and capital of outside investors from all parts of the country, especially so because of its comparative cheapness, as there are few cities in the United States of equal population where values have so much room for expansion.

Opportunities for profitable investment are holding out their hands to you right now.

Will you take advantage of this invitation? What investment is safer than real estate? Why not put your savings where they will help you earn more; where you know they will increase, and where you will not be worried over any financial flurries? You will know that your money is safe and is being added to by the increase in the value of the property. You owe it to yourself to make your money earn its full value. Here is an opportunity for you to make more in a year, purchasing lots in Keystone Park, than by any other form of legitimate investment. Compare the price of property in other cities like San Antonio, and even in other parts of San Antonio (for instance in Beacon Hill, one of the best parts of the city, vacant lots 50 feet from the east edge of Keystone Park are selling for $400.00 and $450.00 and along that side of Beacon Hill many nice houses are already located) and you can see the profits that will be made on this property will be enormous. Consider what these lots will bring when San Antonio has a population of 150,000, and growing as rapidly as she is, the census of 1910 will show the realization of this prophecy. You can make no mistake, then the quicker you invest the larger the profits. INVEST NOW.

A Proper Answer.

"What part of speech is kiss?" asked a high school teacher of one of her pupils the other day.

"A conjunction," replied one of the smart girls.

"Wrong," said the teacher severely. "Next girl."

"What kind of a noun?" continued the preceptress.

"Well, both common and proper," answered the shy girl, and she was placed at the head of the class.—Ex.

"I remember the case of a farmer's wife who refused a tramp a night's lodging."

"Well, then, ma'am," said the tramp, "would you mind if I slept in that meadow there behind your barn?"

"No," said the woman, "you may sleep there if you like."

"One thing more, ma'am," said the tramp, "before I say good night: Will you please have me called at 4 sharp? I want to catch the cattle train to market."—Ex.

An Old Sale Bill.

The following unique sale bill taken from the Marion Telegraph was recently discovered at Wells-ville, Mo., and gives an idea of the change that fifty years has brought:

Both Satisfied.

Little Willie is always appreciative and seldom fails to compliment those who give him pleasure. A Wisconsin Little Willie was no exception to the rule:

It is said that a Prairie du Sac minister was invited to take dinner with a family of his church a few days ago. As they were leaving the dining room after the meal the good man turned to the hostess and said: "Sister, I scarcely ever get such an excellent dinner." Before she could reply, little Willie, aged seven, rejoined: "Same here."—W. P.

Trouble For the Editor.

"I can't keep the visitors from coming up," said the office boy dejectedly. "When I say you're out they don't believe me. They say they must see you."

"Well," said the editor, "just tell them that's what they all say. I don't care if you check them, but I must have quietness."

That afternoon there called at the office a lady with hard features and an acid expression. She wanted to see the editor and the boy reassured her that it was impossible.

"But I must see him!" she protested, "I'm his wife."

"That's what they all say," replied the boy.

That was why there is a new boy wanted there.—Catholic Tribune.

WORK ALSO FOR TO-DAY.

Some men do their work as the shepherds in the Delectable mountains did theirs. They spend so much of their time looking at the future, far-off things that they neglect that work in the present that lies close to their hand. It's well to make plans for the days that are to come. He who does not plan for the next month, next year, will find when that far-off time os at hand that his work is in confusion. But while thinking of the far-off time do you neglect your work to-day?

THE LUSITANIA.

How many persons could tell the origin of the name of the newest great Cunard steamship? Lusitania was a Roman province that at one time embraced the greater part of what is now Portugal and extended over into Spain. The Lusitania's sister ship, the Mauretania, derives her name from the ancient designation of northwestern Africa.

JOE SAP ON FINANCIAL PANICS

There is nothing on earth that excites the average man more than a financial panic and the less money a fellow has the more excited he usually becomes.

As an illustration of how excited some people will get, over the merest rumor of a financial crisis, take the case of Hank Fuller, back in the '90s. Hank came in an ace of giving a good mule thumps by riding him eighteen miles under whip and spur on a hot day in August in order to get to town, and withdraw the $7.50 he had on deposit in one of the banks before it went down with a crash, because some one had come by his house and reported the failure of a bank in New York City. Hank received the news of the New York bank failure at 2 p. m. while plowing in the field and he became so excited that he never took time to unharness his team, but jumped on one of his mules without a saddle, and "hit" out for town in a long lope.

There were four or five of us standing in front of the Citizens and Farmers Bank when Hank dashed up on his mule, with the trace chains dragging on the ground. We saw at a glance that he was awfully excited, and supposed that he had come for a doctor for some one who had happened to some horrible accident. His mule had his tongue out, was wet with sweat and covered with dust, and Hank's socks were hanging down below his shoe heels, and his overalls had worked clear up above his knees which exposed about three feet of naked leg. We all asked him in one voice what was the matter, but he made no reply but fell off of his mule and ran into the bank where we followed him just as they were closing for the day and almost yelled at the cashier: "Gimme my money, dad burn ye." The cashier looked at him with great astonishment and remarked: "Mr. Fuller, the bank is now closed till nine o'clock in the morning; is your demand so imperative that you cannot wait till morning?" "Wait hell," he shrieked, "you gimme my money outen that bank dad burn yer hide; I know all about yer dern banks goin to break. Now you fork over my money or I come over thar arter it, yer dern bank is wide open and I'm gwine to have my money if I have to ter yer dern bank down to git it."

The cashier turned to his book-keeper and inquired of him the amount to Hank's credit and was promptly informed that it was $7.50. Hank said that was correct, and the cashier filled out a check for that amount and told him to sign it, which he did in a laborious manner. The cashier and book-keeper went through their respective pockets and raised the $7.50 in small change and counted it out to him. Hank counted the money over four or five times, before he was convinced that he had not been cheated out of any of his deposit. He then put it in his pocket and heaved a deep sigh of relief and remarked to the crowd that had been attracted the bank by his wild appearance and wilder talk: "When they beat Hank Fuller by gosh they have to git up before day. Yes sirc they can't beat me outen my money." Being well acquainted with him I asked him what the trouble was and he told us how he had caught onto the banks all going to fail by the merest accident, and how he had taken time by the forelock by jumping on his mule and had come with the speed of the wind just in time to pluck his deposit of $7.50 as a brand from the burning.

We tried to reassure him and convince him of the solvency of the bank, but our talk had no effect on him and when he mounted his jaded mule a few minutes after receiving his deposit, he remarked: "You fellers can't fool yer uncle Hank if he does live in the forks of the creek. If I hadn't got thar when I did my money would have been gone, I don't keer a dern what uens say. When I arriv that bank man tole me the bank was closed dad burn him when I could see with my own eyes that it was wide open," and he turned the corner he looked back over his shoulder and said: "You can't fool old Hank dad burn ye."

Just a few weeks ago when the present financial panic struck the country and after our banks had limited their depositors to a withdrawal of $25 a day, one of the most excited men I have ever met was a fellow that had but $37.50 on deposit in one of the banks in this town. I was standing in a bunch of men discussing the financial situation when this fellow rushed up with his shoes untied, and his hair tangled and began to harangue the crowd on the great injustice and tyrannical methods that had been adopted by the banks in allowing their depositors to withdraw but $25 a day. He said that he had just learned of the great financial panic and had rushed around to the bank where he had hoarded up $37.50 and had demanded his entire deposit but had been informed by the cashier that he could have but $25 a day and that he would have to wait till nine o'clock the next morning before he could withdraw his other $12.50. He was awfully excited and said that the whole thing had been brought about to down the poor depositors.

A few days after the panic I interviewed a wood carver, who was carving stove wood for me at the rate of 75 cents per cord, in reference to the money panic that was sweeping like a Besom of destruction over this fair land of ours and he told me that the whole thing was brought about for the sole purpose of downing and oppressing the poor man. He also informed me that he had no money in any bank but if he had, that he would take it out if he had to wade through blood up to his neck.

The strangest thing about this money panic is that it was brought about to ruin the speculator, the capitalist, the merchant, the banker, the mechanic, the laborer, and last but not least the Farmer's Union man who was told last May that he must have fifteen cents a pound for his cotton.

To save my life I don't know who is to blame for this great financial panic as everybody seems to think that it was brought about for the sole purpose of ruining their own particular business. I wrote John D. Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan last week, asking them to please write me giving their views on the present financial crisis, and just as soon as I hear from them I will inform the public. The answer to my inquiries, from these two authorities on the financial situation that now confronts the United States will appear in the February issue of Joe Sappington's Remarks and Arrow. On sale at all the leading news stands in Texas at 10 cents a copy. —Joe Sappington's Remarks and Arrow.

TEXAS PRESBYTERIAN ENCAMPMENT.

The third annual gathering of Texas Presbyterians on their assembly grounds near Kerrville, Texas, will occur from July 16 to August 4. During the three years this enterprise has been on foot, it has been the means of accomplishing much for our church in the Southwest. But its beneficent influence has not been felt as much as it should be nor as its importance should demand. The encampment is not a private enterprise. It is under the direction of the Presbytery of Western Texas, to which body the land, nearly forty-two acres, belongs in fee simple.

The location is ideal. It is a high plateau, among the Guadalupe range of mountains, the land adjoining the railroad right of way, with a depot at the entrance to the grounds.

Our aim is to make this the gathering place for the people of our whole Church in the Southwest.

Last year there was a general demand that the Presbytery make arrangements to lease lots to individuals so that permanent summer homes can be erected. This has been done and now we have more than a hundred lots to let on a twenty year lease. A number of these have already been applied for, and others will be taken soon, and there will no doubt be several cottages erected between now and the time of the opening of the encampment. All the money thus received will be used in defraying our present indebtedness and in making further improvements. Our property with its present improvements is worth, at a conservative estimate, not less than $10,000. The indebtedness is about one-fourth of the present value of the property.

The hours of service will make large allowance for time for boating, bathing, fishing, mountain climbing, tennis playing, etc.

Rev. Hugh W. Hoon, San Antonio, who is chairman of the encampment committee, will always take pleasure in giving any information desired with regard to the encampment.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At a meeting of the board of directors held at the court house in Kerrville on Saturday of last week, the following officers were elected for the West Texas Fair for the ensuing year: H. Renschel, President; Arthur Real, Vice-President; Otto Dietert, Secretary and Treasurer. The dates for holding the 1908 Fair were set for August 13, 14 and 15.

A meeting of the board will be held on the 25th inst. to begin work at once upon the preparation for the fair. Last year's encampment was a pronounced success and encouraged by it, the directorate will make a greater effort, and expect to achieve greater things this year than ever before.

The fair will be a little earlier this year, and that will give farmers a better opportunity to prepare and save stuff for the big single farm exhibits. It is to be hoped that everybody will get right into the spirit of the enterprise and help to make the Fair a big winner this year.

WE LEAD IN MEN'S AND LADIES' FINEST MADE TO ORDER GARMENTS.

Exceptional values in Tailoring, see our 800 latest spring and summer styles, perfection in style and fit, your money back if this is not so. The fabrics are strong and serviceable, and the patterns are beautiful. As to style all the newest and best from the Metropolitan centers.

With 20 years experiences we have made a careful study of men's clothing, and believe we know the needs and wants of the public. We have spared no effort in securing well selected patterns and the finest fabrics in the United States of America.

The business man wants genuine clothing with style to it. We will always have the counterfeit with us, but the American-business man likes the genuine article. He wants to ring true, and to be true, in clothing he wants the fabric to be dependable and attractive in appearance, he wants garments tailored by hand as much as possible; he wants them to have a certain air and style that gives individuality.

The professional man wants a suit of distinctive character that exhibits every attribute of refinement and taste.

The young society man wants dash and snap in his garments that readily separate them from the common run of men's clothing.

The ladies want the latest. A woman's judgment is fearfully correct and severe, and her sense of appropriate coloring and models the very keenest. That is the very reason why we like to have them come and inspect our fashion plates and beautiful samples of cloth before placing an order for a Spring suit or skirt.

This in a small measure describes the magnificent tailoring service we offer.

Remember the person who wears one of our suits is the gentleman or lady of the hour.

All garments of this class will be brushed and pressed free of charge as often as necessary.

NEWMAN & WILLIAMSON.

Kerr County's First Rural Route.

Through the efforts of county commissioner Herman Schulze and other enterprising citizens of the Cypress creek community the first rural mail route will be in operation soon. The proposed free delivery route will be 22 miles long, with Comfort, which is just over the line in Kendall county, as a base. The new route will accommodate the large community of farmers in the Cypress creek valley, which is one of the best farming sections of Kerr county. This is a step in the way of modern progress that is not only highly commendable to those who have undertaken its perfection, but is a credit to the community in general. It is safe to say that if the amount of mail handled has anything to do with the anticipated change from the three-times-a-week schedule that the line will start with, to a daily service, it will not be many months until the people of Cypress creek will have their daily papers delivered to them every day at their homes. There is no more intelligent and well-informed community in Texas. The people of that neighborhood are reading people—farmers who farm according to modern methods and succeed. It is much to be hoped that since Mr. Schulze and his associates in this enterprise have broken the ice, it will not be long until other communities in the county have like service.
