Asks the Question, "Where is the Organ and the Girl That Used to Play It?"

HERE are many questions that come up as we journey along through life, and often they concern things of the past that are not known in these times. Of late I have been wondering a little about the rise and fall of the Organ, and the question has several times recurred to me, "Where is the Organ, and the girl who used to play it?" The real young people, that is those who are not yet willing to tell the truth about the number of mile posts they have passed on the way of life, do not know much about the advent of the organ as a feature of household entertainment. Those who remember the time when no one but a man of importance in the community, one having the means to pay $125 for the pleasure of his family, could indulge his fancy for music in the home. Right here I want to say that I hope no one will think he perceives a vein of levity in this article, for it is not so intended, indeed I think there has been no one agency, except it be the Christian religion and education and the organ has long been a part of each, that has done more for the enlightenment of our people.

From the time when Mason & Hamlin made an organ that they sold for $250, about thirty-five years ago, to the date when there was a Chicago Cottage organ, sold on the instalment plan for $60, in almost every rural home in the country, covered a period of a quarter of a century. I don't know how it is that historians have overlooked this theme. I do not purpose giving a history of the instrument, in fact there is no history that I know of that would tell when the first organ was made. There is a statement made by somebody some where, (but it is made in a tone that sounds very much like the gentleman wanted to put "alleged" in parenthesis after it,) that the organ was invented about 200 years before Christ, by one Ctesibius. It seems that th-

old fellow was a Greek, and some thing of a machinician. He figured out the bent syphon, the pump, and the art of "wind jamming," so to speak. One day while he was experimenting with some scheme of jamming the breeze through a bamboo pole a little splinter got lodged across the aperture at one end and emitted a melodious sound, also so to speak. From that humble beginning, in the little shop of the old Greek "handy man," in Alexandria, Egypt, 200 years or more before the birth of Christ, the organ "evolved" until they reached the zenith of their glory in the famous pipe organs with as high as 96 stops and 5,000 pipes. But all that has nothing to do with our story. The thing we have to deal with is not the pipe organ, but the plain, modest, reed affair that had about five octaves and seven stops I remember with what pride the girls used to refer to the fact that "our organ had nine stops," when talking to some neighbor girl whose father, out of his love for his children had done without a new coat in order to make the first payment on an organ that had only seven stops. Don't you remember the beams of honest joy that lit up the tired faces of the parents when the oldest girl became sufficiently adept in the manipulation of the instrument to play "Capt. Jenks" for the neighbors when they came in. And then there was the tuning, that came very near ruining all the organs in the world at one time. There got abroad an idea that a stiff, brass reed could be out of tune, and there was of course a lot of grafters ready to tune them at so much per tune. I remember an old fellow by the name of Prof. Perry came to my father's house to "tune the organ." He put in two whole days pulling out reeds with a thing like a miniature cant hook, knocking dirt daubbers' nests and mouse houses out of the reeds, and when he had finished, pronounced the instrument in "perfect tune." I remember the night he got it fixed he played a few tunes for the delectation of the family, and I suppose incidentally to pay for his night's lodging. He was a fine, portly looking old fakir, and I hope he is playing a harp in the New Jerusalem, if so be that he has passed to his reward, for I almost disgraced myself by laughing at him because he "wauled" his eyes when he began to make real fierce music.

But, says some one, you are getting a long way from the girl and the organ. No I ain't, she has been there all the time, but you couldn't see her. She had on one of those plain waists with the skirt gathered on very full, and just the least mite shorter behind than in front, on account of carrying around the file of the county paper. The dress was made of plaid gingham, and had green glass buttons on it. The girl's hair was "done up" on top of her head, and she wore a woolly jacket I know, because I got a bunch of it as big as a crow's nest off of one of the front buttons on my coat. Can't you remember how you used to stand up by the organ and yell like a savage while she was playing, just because some one said you could sing. A lot of awful noise has been created "in the name and by the authority" of music, but the organ is a mild mannered instrument, and could never inflict the punishment that could be caused by a piano, operated by a girl that

FUNNY THINGS

FROM THE PAPERS.

By The Old Gate.

"When the old farmer asked you where you were last night I heard you tell him you were playing with two farm hands," remarked the first boarder from the city.

"You bet I was," laughed the second boarder from the city.

"What were playing? Cards?"

"No, just playing Cupid's game of hands. You see, these farm hands belonged to the pretty daughter of the old farmer."—Chicago Daily News.

Not What They Wanted.

A small town in the far West was looking for some one to teach its school, and applications for the post were few, as the district was remote, and its population somewhat too new to furnish many possessed of the necessary education.

One morning, however, a candidate appeared. He was a tall, rather gaunt youth, whose accent unmistakably proclaimed him as hailing from New England. The trustee, in whose hands the appointment lay, knew pretty well what the town wanted, and he asked the stranger to give his qualifications as quickly as possible.

In faultless English the youth proceeded to set forth his pedigree, naming his father and grandfather and showing a marked tendency to dilate upon an ancestry which, if proven, should easily have gained his admission to the Sons of the Colonial Wars.

The Westerner had been looking puzzled, and after a few minutes he interrupted the story.

"Now, look a-here, young man," he exclaimed, "there's been some mistake. What we want is a man to teach school and not one for breeding purposes."—Harper's Weekly.

The One Who Rules.

Once upon a time a youth who had commenced to navigate the sea of matrimony went to his father and said: "Father, who should be the boss, I or my wife?"

Then the old man smiled and said: "Here are 100 chickens and a team of horses. Hitch up the horses, load the chickens into the wagon, and whenever you find a man and wife dwelling stop and make inquiry as to who is boss. Whenever you find a woman running things leave a chicken. If you come to a place where the man is in control give him one of the horses."

After seventy-nine of the chickens had been disposed of he came to a house and made the usual inquiry.

"I'm boss of this ranch," said the man.

"Got to show me," said the boy.

So the wife was called, and she affirmed her husband's assertion.

"Take whichever horse you want," was the boy's reply. So the husband said: "I'll take the bay." But the wife didn't like the bay horse, and she called her husband aside and talked to him. He returned and said: "I believe I'll take the gray horse."

"Not much," said Young Missouri. "You'll take a chicken."—Twentieth Century Review.

Stuck on the Smooth Going.

Near the village of Clayville, in Boone county, resides a young man who, until recently, had never seen a railroad train. One day a couple of weeks since a friend, who had himself just beheld the wonder, persuaded the more verdant youth to accompany him to a nearby station on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas and see the train. He arrived a little ahead of the train, and, getting impatient, he walked up the track to meet it. When he saw the monster approaching he turned about and ran down the track as if his life were at stake. "Toot, toot," shrieked the locomotive, slowing up; but the youth only ran the faster. He reached the station completely out of breath. "Why on earth didn't you cut across?" exclaimed one of the bystanders. "Cut across?" exclaimed the uncouth countryman. "If I had struck the plowed ground the thing would have caught me."—Mokane Post.

An Uncertain Job.

Michael Callahan, a section boss for the Southern railroad in the little town of Ludlow, Ky., has a keen Gaelic wit. One warm afternoon, while walking along the railroad tracks, he found a section hand placidly sleeping beside the rails. Callahan looked disgustedly at the delinquent for a full minute, and then remarked:

"Slape on, ve lazy spalpeen, slape on, fir as long as you slape you've got a job, but when you wake up you ain't got none."—Exchange

"Backward, turn backwark, oh time in thy flight; feed me on gruel again just for tonight. I am so weary of sole leather steak, petrified doughnuts, and vulcanized cake; oysters that slept in a watery bath, butter as strong as Goliath of Gath; weary of paying for what I can't eat, chewing up rubber and calling it meat. Give me a whack at grandmother's jam; let me drink milk that has never been skimmed; let me eat butter whose hair has been trimmed; let me once more have an old fashioned pie, and then I'll be ready to curl up and die."—Ex.

Man who is born of woman is of few days and full of prunes. He cometh forth like a roaring lion and fleeth when no man pursueth save one little weazenfaced policeman. If he hath plenty of money in his purse he erecteth a rough house, yea, but when he is broke he swalloweth his rath and sneaketh from the house so quietly the cat seeth him not. He sippeth the juice of the sour mash tree and prophesieth in a loud voice as he cheweth the Marachina cherry. His friends drinketh in his word of wisdom in gladness and desert him not so long as he hath coin. Then they laugh ha, ha and seel eth another prophet. He goeth straight home in a circle and sweareth loudly because enemy hath moved his house onto another block. He findeth the door ajar and breaketh off a button hook in the lock before he remembereth the combination. Like a thief in the night he steal eth into his room. His favorite rocking chair riseth up to greet him and they spend eth the night on the floor. Such is man.—Harpoon.

Notice to Exhibitors.

Those who intend to have exhibits at the fair will please take notice that the entertainment is but a little way off. The fair opens Wednesday, August 19, and all exhibits should be in place the day before where it is possible. No exhibit can be entered after 9:00 a. m. the first day of the fair. The Lady Manager makes a special request that all articles intended for exhibition in the ladies' hall be entered on Tuesday, (the day before the fair opens) so we can have the house ready when company comes. We hope that everybody will have something to exhibit in one or another of the classes. We desire to make a special appeal to the ladies for flowers for the floral exhibit in the big conservatory. Mr. Lee Mosty, a practical nurseryman and florist, will be in charge of the conservatory, and will give all shrubs and pot plants entrusted to him the utmost care. We also desire to make special request for curio exhibits. Mrs. H. Remschel is in charge of this department, and she will furnish any information desired in regard to such exhibits.

Thanking the public for the liberal support in the past, and cordially inviting the people to come and feel at home at their own fair, we are

Yours for the biggest one yet,
THE DIRECTORS.

Be sure to attend all meetings of the Sunday School Convention, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Prof. C. A. Arnold and Mrs. V. A. Godbey will be there, and Prof. Bledsee, the singer, will be with us. Rev. Fred Carter will conduct the music Friday night, he regrets having to leave the next day, but we have fortunately been able to secure Prof. Bledso to take his place for the rest of the convention.

My Picture.

By JOE SAPPINGTON.

It will be remembered by my friends that I promised them a while back that I was going to publish a book just as soon as I could write it and borrow money enough to have it published. Among other things solemnly promised that my picture should ornament the front page of said book and being a man true to his promise I have just had a dozen pictures made of myself that cost me a dollar and six bits in cold clammy cash. I am going to send one of these pictures off and have a cut made of it to use in my book.

While the picture is not a bad one, yet it is not what my wife and mother-in-law would like for them to be. Of course a one legged man with a cataract in his left eye can tell at a glance that it is the photograph of a highly intelligent man, yet the camera failed to reveal to the naked eye some of my strongest points and brought out in the most uncalled for and unsolicited manner some of my weakest parts.

What would be the conclusions of a stranger beholding my picture for the first time? He would conclude at a glance that I was a bald headed man with a nose slightly out of plumb and who had passed through some forty odd summers.
In all probability he would not observe the firm set determined jaw, the closely compressed lips, the proud haughty stare, the marble brow, eagle eye, the classic chin, the heaving bosom, the Grecian nose, the long sweeping eye lashes and last but not least a pair of well matched gothic ears.

When my pictures were delivered to me, I didn't like them any better than did my wife and her mother and sent the photographer word by the boy who delivered them that he would have to do the work over or I would maul his head off on sight, or words to that effect. My wife's criticism of the pictures dissatisfied me with them more than anything else. Among other things she said that the pictures looked like that of a man who had been brought up on a bottle and had suckled his big toe until he was 10 years old. Little did she know she was kindling a fire in my bosom that would cause me to go forth and stain my hands in human gore. She saw after it was too late what she had done and tried to undo the fearful work she had set in motion. But alas! it was too late now; nothing could save the photographer who had taken my hard earned money and had given me nothing but twelve long-necked bald-headed caricatures of myself in exchange.

When I grabbed my hat and announced in a loud, vicious voice that I was going to whip the photographer or die trying, my wife became alarmed and clung to me and begged me for her and our children's sake to have no trouble with the photographer. She said she was only joking about the pictures, that they were simply splendid and asked her mother if she didn't think they were good pictures of me. Her mother replied if there was anything wrong with them that it was not the photographer's fault. But I pulled loose from her and left hurriedly for the photographer's place of business.
I became satisfied with my pictures in less than two minutes after my arrival at the studio, for just as I entered he knocked a fellow down and proceeded to kick him down a long flight of stairs to the side walk, who weighed at least 50 pounds more than I did. During the few seconds in which he was engaged in kicking this fellow down stairs, was all the time I need to change my mind about my pictures. All at once it occurred to me that they were the handiwork of a first-class artist and looked just like me. I came to this conclusion without removing them from my hip pocket where they were nestling by the side of a two pound rock that I had for the purpose of battering the picture man's head with, if he should be so foolish as to give me any of his jaw.

When he returned from kicking the fellow down stairs he walked up to me with clinched fists and in a voice that sounded like thunder asked what I would have. I told him in a meek squeaky voice that I didn't want a thing on earth, that I had called to tell him how well pleased my entire family, including my wife's mother, were with my pictures. He seemed to be surprised at my pleasant attitude toward him, and remarked that the boy had delivered my message and if I were not perfectly satisfied with the pictures that he stood ready and willing to give me satisfaction. He may have been offering to do the work over, but he kept his fists doubled up all the time he was talking so I took no chances and told him the work suited me exactly and that the boy had either lied about the message or had misunderstood me. When I returned home that evening I told my wife, who came meeting me, that the photographer begged so piteously that I didn't have the heart to strike him. She said that I had exhibited far more bravery by refraining from striking the poor man than if I had struck him.
She also promised me that she would never again arouse the warrior blood of my ancestors in me, for she said she had spent the most miserable two hours of her life not knowing how the fight would come out between me and the photographer.

Photography has made some wonderful strides within the last 34 years. When I was a small boy it was almost as trying an ordeal to sit in front of a camera for your picture, as it was to have a tooth pulled. To have a successful photo-made yourself you had to sit in front of the picture machine and hold your breath for five minutes before it got in its deadly work.
But now all you have to do to get a photograph of yourself is to step in front of a 3-legged instrument, smile pleasantly while the photographer jerks a cord and pulls your leg for a $5 bill all at the same jerk.

A long time ago they made photographs on glass plates and called them "Daguerreotypes." The strange thing about the daguerretype was that as soon as you died your picture would begin to fade and finally vanish. My mother had one of these pictures of old Uncle Bill Sappington that she kept in a silk plush case and I remember with what awe I used to gaze upon it. Uncle Bill had been dead for many years and the last time I saw his picture he had faded away except his ears and nose. It probably took his nose and ears longer to die than the rest of his body; who knows.

Now in conclusion let me assure the public that my picture will positively appear at all hazards on the front page of that book I am going to publish and which will cost a dollar. The first 7,000 sending me a quarter will also receive a small lock of my hair tied up in pale blue ribbon.—Wills Point Chronicle.

Entered at the postoffice in Kerrville, Texas, for transportation through the mails as second-class matter. Advertising rates made known on application.

Mr. Taft is credited with saying, "There are bigger things in the world than money." This makes a feller wonder if Bill ever went up against a good strong roll—when the other fellow had it.

The roster of members of the House of Representatives who were renominated, and stand for reelection, shows only 44, 10 of whom are members of the famous "rogues gallery." Besides that Lieutenant Governor Davidson and Attorney General Davidson have been renominated.

Senator Paulus, of Hallettsville, has the support of this paper, and should have the endorsement of every right minded person in the State of Texas, in his effort to secure the passage of a bill providing for an additional insane asylum for Texas, to the end that the inhuman practice of incarcerating insane persons in county jails be abolished.

There is a great element of uncertainty attached to all speculation as to the course of the 31st Texas Legislature. Out of 133 members of the House, 89 are new, untried men. The fact that they are men who have not before undertaken the duties of office does not anger that they will not be able to do their part, but the fact that they have never been tried, makes the same element of danger to Texas, that untried soldiers make to an empire in time of battle. A few years ago the fight was against usurpation of the people's rights by corporate wealth, but the fight from now on in Texas will be against socialistic tendencies of radicalism. We know that it has long been unpopular for a public man, or for a newspaper, to take the ground that there were certain rights to which corporations were entitled under the constitution, but it is nevertheless true. When the time shall come, if come it ever does, when there is a majority in both houses of the Texas Legislature in favor of giving every man, every individual and corporation in the State of Texas equal and exact justice, there will again be the grave danger of swinging the pendulum too far the other way. Nothing but conservatism is wise.

GREAT MISTAKE.

Several Texas editors were nominated on July 25 to become members of the 31st Legislature, but Editor Grinstead, of Kerrville, is not one of the number. He served in the 30th and is a poet and humorist, but he will stay at home this winter and attend to biz. Lucky man—Wilson County Journal.

The man trouble is that the poet and humorist of the Mountain Sun committed the unpardonable error of regarding the 30th and the political conditions attendant upon that session in a serious light. His sense of humor for once failed him when it was most in demand. It is deplorable, nevertheless. They will miss Grinstead down at Austin.—S. A. Express.

Yes, yes, I thank you boys for the nice things you say about me, but truly the further I "get by" my defeat, the better I like it. It is better to be absent, and "missed," than to be present and unhappy. I served in the ranks of the minority in the 30th, and from the way things are shaping up now it looks very much to me as if I would have been in the same predicament again had I been elected. A lot of people will read this and say, "sour grapes," but that is wrong. All that would have been necessary to elect me was a little lying, but "the game wasn't worth the candle."

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEEMAN FOR THE 24TH DISTRICT.

There was quite a little excitement over the matter of selecting a member of the State executive committee for the 24th District. In this matter we had a beautiful illustration of Robert Burns' famous statement that "the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft a-glee." The anti-administration gang in the city of San Antonio had laid plans for the election of Selig Deutschmann, and at the first opportunity proceeded to make good the scheme. The result was that Mr. Deutschmann was duly elected by Bexar county, without reference to the balance of the district, and he held the office for just one fleeting day. When the committee on credentials and representation met the matter was brought before that body and the work of the morning was undone. The election was declared off, and on the following day, after Bexar county had held another caucus in which the vote of the county was cast as a unit for Will A. Morriss, the entire Senatorial District delegation met and duly elected Mr. Morriss member of the State executive committee for the 24th Senatorial District. Bandera, Kerr, Kendall and Gillespie counties had one vote each in the caucus, and they voted solidly for Morriss, who is a Kerr county man, though now living in San Antonio. The State convention elected Morriss, and no protest was made by any member of the Bexar county delegation.

Mrs. Flora Evans.

Mrs. Flora Evans died at her home at Ingram, Friday, August 7, at 5:00 a. m. Mrs. Evans had been ill but a short time. Deceased was the widow of Rev. H. C. Evans. She was born in Arkansas, December 27, 1840, and came to Texas in her childhood. She was married to H. C. Evans, July 11 1869. Mrs. Evans was the mother of six children, two sons and four daughters, five of whom are now living. The funeral, which took place Saturday, was conducted by Rev. Moses, of Ingram. The burial took place at the Nichol's burying ground.

Republican State Convention.

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 13.—While the Democrats were discussing prohibition in San Antonio, the Texas Republicans were discussing the Democrats, in Dallas. The Republicans held a very harmonious convention. The convention seems to have been unanimous in its belief in the iniquity of democratic principles and policies. Cecil A. Lyon was endorsed by the convention, and his policies of handling the Texas branch of the Republican pie counter were perpetuated in loud encomiums.

Charles W. Ogden, of San Antonio, was not nominated for Governor as the Republicans of this section of the state confidently expected. John N. Simpson, of Dallas, was nominated for Governor, and Mr. Ogden for Lieutenant Governor. Simpson was a Democrat until he was called on to follow Bryan's flag.

There is more speculation today about the probable outcome of the gubernatorial race than has ever been known in the state of Texas. There are more Republicans in Texas today than ever before, but there are also more Democrats. No one supposes such a thing as a Republican Governor even within the bounds of a possibility, notwithstanding there has been a great political typhoon blowing in the Lone Star State for some months, with good prospects that a forecast of a political outlook that did not predict squally weather ahead would be held in doubt by the wise ones for some time to come.

A complete State ticket was nominated, and the Republican State organization is going to do its best to earn the federal patronage the members of the party are getting. Cecil Lyon was reelected State Chairman, H. R. Richter was elected State committeeman from this, 24th, District.

Judge and Mrs. Julius Real returned Thursday evening from Dallas, where they had been attending the Republican state convention.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The three days beginning Tuesday morning of this week were three history-making days in Texas politics such as have not been seen since the memorable Hogg-Clark campaign. There was never what might be called an open breach in the convention, but there were times when it seemed that such a thing was inevitable.

We are unable to give more than a synopsis of the proceedings. When the returns were all in it was found that submission had carried by a good safe majority. When the convention met it was discovered that there was a much safer submission majority of the delegates than the antis had supposed.

After all the wrangling and "medicine making" was over, the convention got down to business and disposed of work in short order. There was really only one demand for specific legislation that could be made under the new primary law, and that was submission. The submission plank went into the platform with a whoop, and as follows:

"We demand the submission by the 31st Legislature of the State of Texas of a constitutional amendment to the people of the State of Texas, for their adoption or rejection, prohibiting within the State of Texas the manufacture, sale, gift, exchange and interstate shipment of spiritous, vinous and malt liquors and medicated bitters, capable of producing intoxication except for medicinal and sacramental purposes.

"We recommend that the prohibition amendment by the recent primary election be submitted to all qualified voters at a special election to be held in 1909. We declare that at such election a vote for or against the amendment shall not be considered a test of Democracy, as it is not the purpose of this convention to commit the Democratic party for or against State prohibition."

When the smoke of battle had cleared a little after the submission matter was settled, one anti looked at another and said: "Judge, how do you feel now?" "How do I feel?" replied the Judge, "why, I am like the fellow who had been run over by an automobile. When the machine had passed he got up and examined himself, then began to make a great roar about it. Another fellow who was standing near said, 'you ought not complain, you got out of that very lucky.' 'Yes,' replied the injured one, 'but look at the son-of-a-gun, it's comin' back again.' That, continued the Judge, 'is the way I feel about this submission business.'

All the balance of the alleged "platform" is a real Democratic instrument, in view of the fact that every "plank" begins with the words "we recommend," "we favor," etc.

There are a lot of things in the platform that are good, and if put in effect, would be good for Texas. Much of it, of course, is inclined to be political bombast.

When the matter of adopting the platform was attended to, the State nominees were duly proclaimed. Judge A. B. Story, of Lockhart, was elected State Chairman. The election of the State committee was ratified by the convention and adjournment was had. Every effort was made to preserve the harmony of the party, but every intelligent man in the convention went away from San Antonio knowing that there are two great factions in the Democratic party of Texas; and that each of those factions is split.

FULL RENDITION LAW CAUSES TAX RATE TO SLUMP.

The comptroller's department estimates that the total assessed valuation of property in Texas for 1908 will reach $2,250,000,000 under the full rendition law. This is an increase of $650,000,000 over last year. Under this showing it is figured that when the automatic tax board meets on August 15 to fix the tax rate it will reduce the rate from 12 1/2 cents to 6 1/2 cents, and the school tax from 20 cents to 16 2/3 cents.—San Antonio Light.

RAMS FOR SALE.

We will have for sale at the Kerrville Fair a carload of Michigan Merino rams, consisting of heavy shearers, Delaines and Rambouillets, in both registered and high grades. If you are needing any rams this fall, don't fail to see this lot, as they will be sold at figures consistent with the price of wool.

Merited Praise.

The Sun is usually slow to gush over any public performance, but always ready to pay tribute to real merit. In this connection we wish to compliment the management of the operetta 'A Fete in Flowerland,' which was given at Pampell's opera house on Wednesday night of this week. There was not a number on the extensive program that was not marked by the highest order of excellence. This was easily the best home talent entertainment ever seen in Kerrville. Praise is due each individual that took part in the performance, and especially due to Mrs. John W. Burney, to whose pronounced ability as a musician, and consummate skill as an organizer, is due in a large measure the perfect success of the entertainment. The operetta was given for the benefit of the Episcopal church. The house was packed, and a handsome amount was netted to the church.

County Clerk Frank Newton and wife, of San Antonio, were guests at 'My Ranch' last Sunday.

Ask your post master about the special 'Campaign Rate' he has to offer on the St. Louis Globe Democrat (Daily or Weekly) and the St. Louis Republic.

McElroy-Moore.

E. H. McElroy, teller of the Chas. Schreiner bank, of this city, and Miss Sweet Moore, were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Moore, at Center Point, Sunday evening, August 9th, at 8:00 p. m., Rev. J. M. Streater officiating. After the ceremony the newly wedded pair returned to Kerrville, and are now at home to their friends in this city.

Miss Moore has been very popular in Center Point and community since her childhood, and counts her friends by the number of people who know her. Mr. McElroy is a young man who stands the peer of any in this country. Like his charming bride he is of an excellent old Kerr county family. Kerrville business circles know and are proud of Mr. McElroy, and the Kerrville social world will be happy to welcome this young married couple, and join us in wishing them godspeed on the journey of life, where all admit that thistles grow, but each will hope that these two may find more flowers than thorns.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

At the regular August term of the Kerr county commissioners' court held in this city this week a full attendance was present. The session was a short one, but much important business was transacted.

The report of the treasurer was read, examined and adopted. The report showed the county's affairs to be in excellent condition, and ably cared for.

The tax levy for 1908 on the $100 valuation, was made as follows:

Advalorem for the general fund	$.20
Road and bridge fund	.15
Courthouse and jail fund	.03
Special fund	.01
Jury fund	.01

Total $.40

A petition by W. D. McBryde and others for a change in the North fork road, was granted, as was also a petition by J. M. Webb et al. for a change in the Johnson creek road.

For ensuing year Kerr county will have $1,200 to expend upon the public roads. The sum has been apportioned as follows:

Precinct No. 1	$ 350.00
" " 2	260.00
" " 3	240.00
" " 4	350.00

Other matters of minor importance were disposed of. There is especial cause for gratulation in the fact that the county tax of Kerr county is no more than 40 cents on the one hundred dollars valuation. This is beginning already to show the beneficial effects of the full rendition law.

Stores Will Be Closed.

We call attention to the fact that the stores in Kerrville will be closed every day of the fair. On Wednesday, the first day, they will close at 10:30 a. m. On the other days they will close at noon. Keep this in mind, and make your purchases in the forenoon. Saturday, the day after the fair closes, will be a trades day, and a day in which to straighten things up before Sunday. The management of the fair greatly appreciates this concession upon the part of the business men, and hope that the people will remember the closing hours and accommodate their purchases to them. H. REMSCHEL, President.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davison, of No. 379 Gifford, San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at Rock Drug Store. 50c.

Why James Lee Got Well.

Everybody in Zanesville, O., knows Mrs. Mary Lee, of rural route 8. She writes: "My husband, James Lee, firmly believes he owes his life to the use of Dr. King's New Discovery. His lungs were so severely affected that consumption seemed inevitable, when a friend recommended New Discovery. We tried it, and its use has restored him to perfect health." Dr. King's New Discovery is the King of throat and lung remedies. For coughs and colds it has no equal. The first dose gives relief. Try it! Sold under guarantee at Rock Drug Store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

What is Best For Indigestion?

Mr. A. Robison of Drumquin, Ontario, has been troubled for years with indigestion, and recommends Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets as "the best medicine I ever used." If troubled with indigestion or constipation give them a trial. They are certain to prove beneficial. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at all druggists.

Largest Single Sale of Monkeys.

It is stated upon good authority that since the growing cotton in the Brownsville country has given place to the sugar industry, Col. Jesse O. Wheeler, editor of the Brownsville Herald, had disposed of the 5,000 monkeys that he had on his experiment farm. Several years ago Col. Wheeler conceived the idea of solving the labor proposition by importing monkeys to Texas and training them to pick cotton. He first shipped a thousand and from Central America, and put them on his smallest ranch, consisting of about 65,000 acres. The new kind of stock prospered, and last spring there were a few more than 5,000, corral count, on that ranch. He had only started a small colony of monkeys on one other ranch when he decided to discontinue raising them. The chief cause for this action was not that monkeys do not make excellent cotton pickers, but Col. Wheeler planted this year 35,000 acres of sugar cane. Just before the cane was ready to begin the harvest a herd of several thousand monkeys made a raid on it one night and destroyed more than 100 acres. After that the entire herd of monkeys was moved to a larger ranch, and were sold as fast as contracts could be made. It is said that 3,000 were sold at one time to a large sausage factory in Chicago, to be used, presumably, in turning the small mills. The last information given out about the matter was to the effect that Col. Wheeler had fenced 80,000 acres of land in one body with woven wire fence, and was in the market for 200,000 armadillos. His purpose is to start an armadillo ranch and the largest basket factory in the world.

Farmers and ranchmen should remember that life is not long enough for a fellow to do without any rest or pleasure. Take three days time, attend the fair, meet your old friends, have a good time, and when it is over crops will look better, stock will look fatter, and you will feel better satisfied with life.

Chronic Diarrhoea Relieved.

Mr. Edward E. Henry, with United States Express Co., Chicago, writes, "Our General Superintendent, Mr. Quick, handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy some time ago to check an attack on the old chronic diarrhoea. I have used it since that time and cured many on our trains who have been sick. I am an old soldier who served with Rutherford B. Hayes and William McKinley four years in the 23rd Ohio Regiment, and have no ailment except chronic diarrhoea, which this remedy stops at once." For sale by all druggists.

San Antonio International Fair.

Everything is being placed in readiness for the great International Fair, which will open in San Antonio this year on September 26, and will close on Oct 11, and all indications promise that one of the greatest crowds that ever attended any Fair in Texas will visit San Antonio during the exposition.

A large force of men have been engaged for some time in putting the big exposition buildings, and Diarrhoea Cured.

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail," writes John H. Zirkle of Philippi, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Philippi Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle cured him and he has not suffered with the disease for eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, and although sixty years old, can do as much work as a young man." Sold by all druggists.

the spacious grounds in order, and this work is almost completed.

The race track, which is the Mecca of tens of thousands during the Fair meeting, has been thoroughly renovated, and experts have pronounced it to be one of the best in the State in its present condition. Two hundred thoroughbreds and about half as many quarter horses are already training on the track for the race meeting, and it is expected at least 600 thoroughbreds and from 200 to 300 quarter horses will take part in the racing program.

Live stock owners from all over the United States have entered their cattle, horses, goats, sheep,

For Sore Feet.

"I have found Bucklen's Arnica Salve to be the proper thing to use for sore feet, as well as for healing burns, sores, cuts, and all manner of abrasions," writes Mr. W. Stone, of East Portland, Maine. It is the proper thing too for piles. Try it! Sold under guarantee at Rock Drug Store. 25c.

poultry, mules, bees, etc., for the premiums offered by the San Antonio International Fair Association, and judging from the number and quality of the entries thus early received, this feature of the present year's Fair will exceed all previous exhibitions.

Farm implement manufacturers of the North and South, have also acquired space to exhibit their wares, and even the large and representative exhibit in this line at last year's Fair, is already surpassed in the entries thus far received.

High class amusement attractions from New York and several of the other large cities of the country have been secured by the Fair Association, and included in the number are several free attractions, to which the patrons of the Fair will be welcome, gratis.

Convention rates of one and one-fifth fares for the round trip will be in force during the entire period of the Fair, and in addition to this low rate, a very much lower special rate, of a fraction of a one way fare for the round trip, will be in effect on a half a dozen or more special days during the exposition. One of these days will be September 30, which is "San Antonio and Mexico Day" and on which the largest crowd of the Fair will be in attendance.

ELLWOOD FENCE

SIMPLE—SCIENTIFIC—STRONG

The Reasons:

1st—Each horizontal extension of the ELLWOOD is a steel cable, consisting of two heavy wires intertwined.

2d—Each of these cables is tied to each other cable by a continuous heavy wire lapped tightly about every cable—not tied in a crooked "knot" or twist to weaken the strength of the tie wire at the bending point. (Wrap a wire around your finger and the wire is not weakened; tie a wire up in a hard knot and you cannot untie it without breaking, it is so much weakened.)

THAT IS ALL THERE IS TO ELLWOOD FENCE—

Heavy steel cables lapped about and held together by steel wire, forming uniform meshes. Simple, isn't it? No chance for weakness in any part; uniformly strong. The reasons for the superiority of ELLWOOD FENCE are not hard to find. This company owns and operates its own iron mines and furnaces; its own wire mills and six large fence factories—either one of the six being larger than any other fence factory in the world. These facts should be convincing.

GEORGE BOWLES

some fool, in an unguarded moment, had told that she was a genius. He told the truth, but he should have used the word "evil" before genius.

Now, I have told you about the girl, and I want my answer. Where is she, and where is the organ? Did you get a girl like that for a wife? Have you got the organ in your home today? There are thousands of such girls, and thousands of organs, but you can't find them now. Ask a girl if she can play the organ, and if she don't happen to be the one that plays for Sunday school and church she will probably give a kind of silly simper and tell you that she "plays no instrument except the piano."

I would not have you think I am knocking the organ as a musical instrument, because I think there has never been any sweeter music in the world than a family singing, while some plays the organ. No other instrument is so well adapted to sacred music as is the organ. No music on earth is as sweet as the blending of the voices of a happy family, while the organ was played by one of the girls we knew of, but who, with the organ, has passed. How many homes do you know where there is an organ that is played? "Where is the organ and the girl that used to play it?"

When a fellow begins to get old he is apt to become sentimental, if he has anything to become sentimental with; but there is good reason why an intelligent old gentleman or lady should get a bit "weepy" over the organ. In order to get full value of anything it is necessary to have been some time or another placed so you could fully appreciate it. If, perchance, there was a time in your life that you labored along a dusty, country road, alone in the world, footsore, weary, "a stranger in a strange land." Friendless, down east, homeless, struggling, in vain to rightly sail the uncharted sea of life; out of your course because you had not yet found the employment for which the Master Workman designed your character.

Like the immortal Goldsmith, perhaps, who with all his genius, with all his God given talent, was a tramp, and in such an hour said: "Remote, unfriended, melancholy, slow— Or by lazy Scheld, or wandering Po, Or onward where the rude Corinthian boor Against the houseless stranger shuts the door."

I say, if perchance, there has been an hour in life when you felt the nameless dread of night coming on, and knew not of a friendly shelter for your tired body, or a single kindly word to cheer your weary soul. If, as you walked the weary road, you came to a turning in the lane and there, amid the trees, stood a farm house, As you drew near you heard the notes of an organ, and a little anon human voices singing "Do they miss me at home, do they miss me." The voice that sounded like the voice of a girl you used to know perhaps. Or, maybe after a time the song would change to "Drifting with the tide." If after listening a while you dragged your weary feet on into the gloaming, while your throat seemed closed up, and a mystic hand was dragging at your heart strings. If you have seen and heard these things you can understand that feeling that creeps into the soul when the music of an organ, with the soft pedal on, played in the gloaming when katydid cry, reaches out from a past that has not, cannot and will not die, and lays hold of your very being.

It is said that each thing that comes into the world serves its purpose, and then passes away. This seems to have been the case with the organ. Few are left. The present generation knows little of them, and we who are older can only ask, "Where is the organ, and the girl that used to play it?"

Kerrville Public School.

The Kerrville Public School will begin Monday, September 14, 1908. This is a little later than usual, but a State law requires that each county have an Institute of not fewer than five days. All teachers must attend this Institute or run the risk of having their certificate canceled. It is much better both for the teacher and for the school to have this Institute at the beginning of the year rather than to break into the term after it has begun. For the above reasons it has been arranged with the County Judge to have the Institute beginning Monday, September 7, and continuing one week. This week of the Institute counts for a regular school week, and the teachers who attend receive their regular pay.

CHANGE OF TEXT BOOKS.

This year all of the present text books up to the High school will be changed with the exception of the histories and drawing books. This change was made under a State law by State authorities and not by any local Board or Superintendent. We have absolutely nothing to do with it. In a good many cases this change will doubtless work a hardship for the time being, but the books are obtained much cheaper by having the different book companies submit to a

"Commission" their bids, which are considered from two standpoints: First, merit; second, cheapness. Many may argue, "The old books are as good as the new." In several respects this is not true, as all school men know. Are your present improvements in machinery any better than the old kinds? Why are improvements along the line of school text books impossible? Once all educational affairs were treated abstractly. Now the human-sided interests play a leading role. "Yes, but," says one, "look at Mr. So and So, he never had these new text books and see how practical he is, see how he has succeeded." This is all true, but there is another truth left untold. Such a man succeeded not because of his education under those methods, but because of his lack of it. He had "get up and go" and he studied human affairs and prospered in spite of this drawback. But suppose his education, as under the new method, had properly related itself to life? Don't you think he would probably have been more successful? Knowledge is nothing but improved machinery. Do you prefer the old tools?

This change holds good for the State at large. If you move into another part of the State you don't have to buy new books, they are just the same there. I have heard men say that this change was only an opportunity to swell some people's pocket books at the expense of the school children throughout the State. If such an "outrage" were true or even possible, stop for a moment and consider in which case it could work most harm; to have it over once for all and have no more "swindling" for five years, or let each place control the adoption of its own text books and give them an opportunity every year indefinitely. From my own point of view I know of only two cases where I do not believe that the change will be for the best interests of the children of the State of Texas.

EXCHANGE OF BOOKS.

Pupils should all keep their old books and if they are in "good shape" they can put them in as part pay on the new books. By "good shape" is meant that the book must be entire, no part gone, though it may be just a little soiled. The book must also have been regularly used in the school where the pupil attended last year, not just any book he may happen to have on hand. This book should also be taken to the Book Store at the time you wish to purchase the new.

She Likes Good Things.

Mrs. Chas. E. Smith, of West Franklin, Maine, says: "I like good things and have adopted Dr. King's New Life Pills as our family laxative medicine, because they are good and do their work without making a fuss about it." These painless purifiers sold at Rock Drug Store. 25c.
