PROSPECTS LOOK GOOD

FOR BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT COM-
ING TO KERRVILLE

To Build Tabernacle For 1910
Assembly

Another boost for Kerrville and the "Hill Country" is the decision of the special committee of the San Antonio Baptist Association that the grounds that now form part of the "My Ranch" property, situated on the river front opposite the Lowry addition are in every way suitable for the purposes of an assembly grounds for the Baptists of southwest Texas.

The Rev. Weston Bruner and Rev. R. F. Stokes, of San Antonio, to whose judgment the matter was left, viewed the location in company with R. A. Cochran Friday morning and have signified their intention of making a favorable report to their brethren and express their confidence that 1910 will witness a full-fledged Baptist encampment on the banks of the Guadalupe.

The tract of land in question comprises about 30 acres and it is the intention to start in on the improvements at an early date.

The Business Men's Club may well congratulate themselves upon the so far successful outcome of their negotiations.

Business Men's Meeting.

A meeting of the Kerrville Business Men's Club is called for Monday night, July 5th. Business of importance to be transacted. A. F. THOMPSON, Secretary.

Graduation in Cactus Center.

The sharp who was expected to address our graduates missed the stage at Dead Horse Crossing, so we called on Pecos Bates—He had tried the higher learnin' 'for he took to punchin' steers And he used a Latin cowbrand, so we didn't have no fears. "Kids," says Pecos to the students, "when you're goin' through his life Hit the trails that lead to quiet, and away f'm scenes of strife: Don't get so you must smell powder 'fore you go to sleep at night—Onc't a week is plenty often for a man to start a fight. "Learn to read men jest like horses, by the roolin' of their eyes; Keep a six-gun allus handy, jest to guard agin surprise; When you play cards pick your company, and point out to each one there That you'll call an undertaker if the game ain't on the square. "And when you're runnin' cattle on life's broad and open range, Keep a bite and sup for pilgrims that are homeless, cowed and strange, For if learnin' crowds out charity the game ain't worth a rap— And now mosey up here, scholars, 'cause diplomers are on tap!" —Arthur Chapman in the Denver Republican.

KERRVILLE ON ROUTE

Big Auto Endurance Test Race, Denver, Colorado, to City of Mexico

ENTHUSIASTS VISIT KERRVILLE

Are Making Log of the Course to be Followed

A party of automobile enthusiasts arrived in Kerrville on Saturday night of last week in a private touring car. In the party were Gus Franks, N. J. Hayes, E. J. Jones and Dr. G. M. Fairfield, all of San Antonio, and members of the Alamo City Automobile Association. In conversation with a Sun reporter Dr. Fairfield, who is secretary of the Association, said: "This is to be one of the greatest endurance contests ever tried in America. The original intention was to go by way of El Paso, but for various reasons that route has been abandoned. Our organization has induced those having the matter in charge to pass through Kerrville, San Antonio, Uvalde and Eagle Pass, entering the sister republic at the last mentioned place. We have the matter of mapping out the way and making a log of the route from Kerrville to the Mexican border."

The party left Kerrville Sunday morning in their car, and began the work of checking over the route. The contest will take place some time in October and will have perhaps fifty participants.

The Faculty Complete.

The faculty for the school year 1909-10 of the Tivy High School will be made up as follows:

H. W. Morelock, Superintendent; Wm. Dietel, Assistant Superintendent, 8th and 9th grades; E. J. Koenig, 7th grade; Miss Susan Moore, 6th; Miss Alma Granville, 5th; Miss Hazel Ogle, 4th; Miss Ora Wood, 3rd; Miss Mable Davey, 2nd; Miss Beatrice Wier, 1st. Mexican School: Wilbur Deering. Colored School: W. W. Johns.

"Daddy Knows."

The following plain, straight-forward, unadorned with any kind of fiction, comment made by William Allen White in the divorce proceedings of William Jennings Bryan's daughter from her husband, regarding the status of "daddy" in the family, contains a world more of solid truth than poetry. It reads this way:

"The moral of the Bryan girl's tragedy is that daddy knows. He sees bad men, who have some good in them. He sees designing men and weak men and all sorts and conditions of men. And he knows. More than that, his heart is just as soft as yours and if the man is any part of a man you will be happy, but daddy knows. Trust him. Believe that if there is any show for you at all, daddy won't object. Daddy is not the crank he seems. Daddy wants you to be happy. He has all the high hopes for you that you have for yourself, and when daddy says no—daddy knows. If girls would only remember that, this would be a brighter world. For daddy, who isn't of much use around the house, and generally supposed to be considerable of an "it" one way or another, at home—daddy who seems to have forgotten all about the golden land of romance in which youth lies, old daddy's memory is long, and his soul is wrapped up in you, my dear—daddy knows. Daddy sometimes can't tell the little girl why he opposed the man she selected, sometimes, may be, he doesn't know himself. But men judge other men a lot more leniently in many ways than women do. You may be sure then, that "daddy know." —Laredo Times.

FROM THE OUTSIDE LOOKING IN

A VISITING SCRIBE

Life at the Encampment Grounds
Good for the Appetite

"The Passing Show," a San Antonio society paper, was pleased to send its representative to the "Hill Country" in the person of Mrs. A. H. Cadwallader. What Mrs. Cadwallader thought of Kerrville is best told in her own words, and the following article we have "lifted" bodily from the columns of The Passing Show:

FRIENDLY VISITS TO OUR NEIGHBORS
—KERRVILLE—

"Ain't no past, ain't no future, ain't no nothin' but the breeze— A whisperin' and a sighin' through the wavin' cypress trees."

—J. E. Grinstead,
Mountain Sun, Kerrville, Texas.

The editor of the Kerrville paper, beautifully named The Mountain Sun, says that if he told all the truth about Kerr County and its people he would not be believed. He claims that the Master Craftsman of the universe put all the best of his wonderful skill into arranging this neck of the woods and we who are sojourning here believe it.

Its latitude is identical with that of Jerusalem and the Hill Country of Judea. Like David "We lift up our eyes unto the hills" and are helped.

North of the camp is Mt. Tivy, clear-cut in the sun. On the very top, and pointing still higher, is a tall granite shaft marking the tomb of Joseph A. Tivy, one of Kerrville's early settlers.

On the evening of a partial eclipse of the sun we climbed to the top of Tivy and stood by the grave of the old Confederate soldier. The view was simply matchless and beyond description! We no longer wondered that the veteran warrior chose this spot for his last resting place. It is impossible to drive to the summit and loving friends must have carried the casket to its last resting place among the clouds.

Captain Tivy donated to the city of Kerrville the site occupied by the Tivy High School and gave other property to assist in sustaining it.

It is just a nice walk from the Assembly Grounds to the city and frequent trips back and forth are made by the campers. Strangers tho' you are, every man, woman and child greet you as you pass along the streets of Kerrville. This friendly spirit has much pleased the visitors. The campers have not been forgotten in the social functions of the Mountain City and frequently leave camp to attend "something or other" given in honor of this one or that one.

The event of the week was a banquet at the St. Charles hotel, given by the Alumnae Association of the Tivy High School; and the younger set in camp were bidden to the home of Major Rumschel, where the local baseball team was feted because they were winners in a recent contest. The camp itself was not without its social occasions.

The auditor of Bexar county had a visit from his mother, Mrs. Ramsey. She brought with her from San Antonio a large, delicious chocolate cake. Immediately the word got out and we were summoned to a "party" on the hillside.

"Open the door and walk right in," said the hostess, "the latch string is on the outside," and we were daintily served in the open and spent a delightful afternoon.

One of the campers had a birthday this week. In good old Presbyterian style we passed around the basket, sent to Kerrville for a present, had a presentation speech in the dining hall, and closed the evening by making and serving "fudge."

minster to the onward march of time. Sometimes we ask each other what day it is, but we forget it right away. In camp it is as the mountain poet says, "Ain't no past, ain't no future, ain't no nothin' but the breeze A whisperin' and a sighin' thro' the wavin' cypress trees."

Nothing matters much in the heart of the woods. The only thing noted with regularity is the bell that summons us to the dining hall. And well we may heed its call, for Tom, King of the Kitchen, is an expert in cookery as evidenced by his well-prepared meats and vegetables.

A Clearing House For Old Magazines.

If you wish to get rid of your accumulation of old magazines and at the same time have some one else enjoy them, notify Geo. W. Walther and he will send for them, place them on a special table in his Recreation Hall where a notice invites anyone to "take a few home."

Mr. Walther reports that the demand is greater than the supply and that many people are more than pleased to avail themselves of this opportunity to get good reading matter free.

Sunday School Class Entertained.

Mrs. C. A. Cochran tendered a reception to her Sunday school class and a few invited guests Thursday evening at the Baptist parsonage on Jefferson street. It was an informal affair and took the form of contests which were both novel and amusing, in which the poetic love of color and artistic arrangement, together with the keenness of the olfactory organs, were all put to test.

Miss Mary Rawson qualified as poet laureate; Clyde Coleman took the prize for the best display of spring millinery, his creation rivaling in riot of color, dame name nature herself and the Rev. R. H. Cochran was awarded the diploma certifying to his acuteness of smell. Refreshments were served, after which the class formed a permanent organization and elected officers as a Philathea class.

The District Court

The Criminal cases for trial on the docket were reached Monday in the Kerr county District Court. Three of the thirty talesmen summoned for jury duty failed to appear, and before the week was over a new batch was recruited by order of court as follows:

Henry Barton, J. B. Hyde, Walter Griffen, N. B. Smith, Otto Paakrontz, B. B. Lowrance, Ed Goodwin, L. G. Burleson, G. E. Dowdy and W. E. Newton.

The cases tried were all for minor offenses.

The case of Bird Williford was dismissed; in the case of Henry Grant the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal, as they also did in the cases of C. A. Jerrigan; Henry Baker and Sam Nesby Sam Jones pleaded guilty to simple assault and Roy G. Glenn was convicted of giving liquor to a minor and fined $25.00.

Hot Baseball.

A bag of single tickers from Comfort visited this town last Sunday and proceeded to do things to the Kerrville nine. When they finished the "Hill Country" ball tossers were in an uncomfortable frame of mind with the score 17 to 7, in favor of Comfort. Old Sol did his best to furnish a hot time for all. One of the features of the game was a home run by Karger.

A nine from Fredericksburg is the next team the Kerrville boys expect to cross bats with.

Church Tea.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian Aid Society will give a sale of work at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Henke, Thursday July 15, at 4 to 7:00 p. m. Ice cream and cake, tea and sandwiches will be served. Everybody invited to attend.

Unreliable Indications.

"Foreign travel is very improving," said the studious girl.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne; "although you can't always tell where a person has been by the pictures on hte postcards he sends home."

Steins Are Burglar Alarms.
In a New York rathskeller they have devised a novel way to protect the ornamental steins on the shelf running along the side of the room. Each stands upon a burglar alarm connection and when one is removed a contact is made, a drop falls on the annunciator indicating the position of the table and a bell rings. In a second half a dozen waiters are in attendance at that table and the stein goes back on its peg. The proprietors have lost so many valuable pieces of bric-a-brac that they were constrained to adopt this measure. Since the alarm system has gone into effect there have been many surprises, but no losses.

Military Attache's Duties.
The duties of a military attache are to make himself thoroughly acquainted with every change that takes place in military affairs and to report from time to time on the mobilization, armament and equipment, of the power to which he is accredited. The task is one of no little difficulty, as a military attache must be thoroughly alive to all that concerns the professional interests, be diplomatically and socially "persona grata" and must refrain from procuring information in an underhand manner. In time of war the privilege of being attached to the headquarters staff of an army is usually conceded to representatives of friendly nations.

South Carolina Horse Swappers.
The horse swapper's business is rather flourishing in this section just now. Many old plugs change hands and many jockeys are made to rejoice for a short while, at least until they find out that the other fellow knew something that he forgot to tell; then he loses confidence in his former friend—and doesn't look upon him as being the pink of perfection as he did before, but they get better as soon as they have time to think it all over and realize that this is not the first time the trick has been turned, and probably not the last. Perhaps the other fellow will do the turning next time.—Calhoun X-Ray.

Humor of the Stump.
During a campaign an "old timer" took the stump in Indiana. Whether he gathered many lost sheep into the fold of his party or not, he certainly did not detract from the humor of the situation. On one occasion a crowd of people gathered to hear him speak.
"Fellow citizens," he roared, "our opponents are resorting to every form of villainy, to dishonest and underhand tricks, to inconceivable rascality, to the corruption of voters, but we warn them—" his thunder shook the roof—"we warn them, fellow citizens, that is a game that two can play at."—Judge.

Country of Perfumes.
A great part of the world's perfumes are made in Grasse. Over 2,000,000 pounds of roses and 4,000,000 pounds of orange leaves are gathered there annually. Mountains of flowers may be seen there, as in a milling country there may be seen mountains of wheat. In the Caspian district there is a lake so strongly perfumed that it causes headache. This lake's banks are of white salt crystals, its waters are mauve in color, and its odor is like that of violets. It is Lake Mangushlak. The seaweed Polydeystris violacea gives the lake its hue and smell.

Despised Wood Is Valuable.
Time brings revenges, even in the timber trade, and a humble conifer long treated with contempt seems, literally, to be on the point of getting a rise in the world. "Hitherto the black spruce," says the Durdree Advertiser, "has been despised by our few British foresters as of meager commercial value, the yellowish timber being soft and easily indented, though very light and long of grain. It has lately been discovered that, by virtue of the last named two qualities, this tree furnishes by far the best wood for aeroplanes. As yet the black spruce has rarely been planted by our sylviculturists save for ornament or shelter."

The Chicagoan in Paris.
"What kind of an eating house do you call this?" asked the man from Chicago as he entered a queer-looking establishment in Paris.
"This is one horse restaurant, Monsieur," explained the garcon. "You can have ze horseflesh in any style. How would you like yours?"
"Horse in any style, eh? Well, suppose you have mine carried."

Laundry Accomplishments.
A well-known usher in a suburban church overslept himself last Sunday, and had to don clothes in a hurry.
"What in the world's the matter with this?" he asked, struggling and wrestling with his shirt.
"Oh, I guess the girl boiled it a little too long, dear; that's all," replied his wife.
"Looks to me as if she had fried it!" said the man.

Embarrassed.
"Your wife always says she is afraid something has happened to you when you are away from home longer than usual."
"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "I'm getting positively ashamed to go home with the same old truthful explanation about being detained by work instead of having something interesting to talk about."

Red-Headed Girls and Autos.
"Automobiles and red-headed girls both flourish abundantly in this invigorating climate," says the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, "giving us one more point of superiority over Charleston." But will not our contemporary admit that the Rochester red-headed girl flourishes a little too abundantly? We think that she should be five feet four or five and weigh not over 110, but our impression is that the Rochester beauty flourishes to the weight of about 140 and sometimes 160. The ideal is a lissome, willowy and slim and not an abundant flourisher.—Charleston News and Courier.

Dainty Ankle Strap Pumps

Every young lady who delights in cool, comfortable footwear should take a look at these dainty constructed Ankle Strap Pumps. This is an all-patented style and really makes the feet look several sizes smaller because of the full vamp. The low top makes the shoe delightfully cool and comfortable. We are greatly pleased with this "Star Brand" style. It is easily the neatest pattern being shown this season, and the fact that it is a "Star Brand" shoe is proof in itself that it is well made and will hold its original and intended shape. BEGGAR FLASHED HUGE ROLL
 Mendicant, Refused Alms, Took Novel Method of Getting Even with Man Who Jeered Him.

Flashing a roll of bills in the face of a haughty individual who had refused to give him alms and who had added further insults to this injury by heaping ridicule upon him, a very typical beggar at Cozacoan pulled off a stunt that brought down jeers upon the uncharitable young man, says the Mexican Herald.

This beggar would have passed muster anywhere for one of the finished type, and could safely have walked unarmed at midnight through a wilderness infested with thieves without his poverty once being questioned. There was not a whole thread in the warp and woof of his shirt that extended from seam to seam, and only an expert sartorial artist could have detected which openings were those originally made in the garment for putting it on and off. Just what portion of those rags was solid and strong enough to retain the roll of bills is a marvelous enigma.

Welcome Snow in April.
 A snow flurry in April is still looked upon as a blessing in some parts of New England, where plates, cups and all sorts of dishes are placed to catch the flakes. Every drop of the melted snow is carefully collected and bottled and labeled "April Snow," for use as an eye water. It was once considered an infallible cure for granulated eyelids and styes.

AS HIS MISTRESS HAD DONE.
 Chinese Cook, Like All His Race, Capable Only of Imitating the Acts of Others.

"Chinese need to be taught to be more self-reliant," said the woman who employs a Chinese cook. "The other day I ordered my cook to make a pudding for dinner, stopping a minute to see if he followed my instructions, for I had taught him to make this particular pudding. He had seen me smell the eggs before putting them into a bowl and he began by putting the first egg to his nose. He seemed on the right road, so I left the kitchen for a minute. Returning I discovered that he had used five eggs instead of three as I had taught him. Taking him to task for not following my instructions he answered 'Yes, three here (pointing to the bowl) two here (indicating where he had thrown the others). Same as you.'

"It dawned on me that when I had taught him to make the pudding I had found the second and third eggs that I had broken to be bad and had thrown both away. He had simply done what he had seen me do—after smelling the second and third egg he had thrown them away."

Pompadour is a Talented Cat.
 Pompadour, a large Thomas cat owned by M. S. James Howe of Skowhegan, Me., is noted for his intelligence and sagacity.

A short time ago he called another cat to his aid to rid the house of a large number of mice. He directed the strange cat to stand by the door leading into the shed while he (Pompadour), slowly worked a string that had a piece of cheese fastened to it, alluring the mice into the kitchen. That night 40 or 50 mice were slain by Pompadour and his assistant.

Mr. Howe lives some distance from the postoffice and usually sends his mail by the last evening train. As soon as he has his letters ready he ties them to Pompadour's neck and the cat carries them to the postoffice.

Manicuring a Horse.
 A horse's hoof is really the same thing as the toe or finger nails of human beings or of animals having toes. The hoof grows just as a toe nail does and more rapidly on unshod horses than on those wearing shoes. Its growth is much faster on horses that are well groomed and well fed, upon an average of a third of an inch a month. The hind hoofs grow faster than the fore hoofs. The toe of the hoof being the longest part, it takes longer for it to grow down there than at the heel. The new hoof grows out any cracks or defects in the whole, gradually working down to where it can be cut off, just as with human finger nails.

Slang.
 Slang words and phrases are pioneers of the language to be. Some of these pioneers die on the plains, not virile enough to cross the centuries, and the perists rot with them. The really apt slang words inherit the earth, the people and the dictionaries.

They are born on the athletic field or in the stress of crowded life, where short cut speech is a necessity. You find them first in the yellow journals and the mouths of babes.

If you are responsible for any of the babes you have to be a purist pro tem. Don't fret too hard! You are merely bearing language in the making. Ten years settles a word in the dictionary—or in oblivion.—From the Nautilus.

Biggest Noses, Worst Colds.
 "One thing I have noticed," said the ear and nose specialist, "is that people with the biggest noses have the worst colds in the head. I don't know which is cause and which is effect; whether the nose is big because a succession of severe colds has extended the cartilage or whether the colds are heavy because the nose affords such ample breeding space. The one thing I am sure of is that the combination prevails."

Terrors of Anticipation.
 "You look so pale and thin. What's got you?"
 "Work. From morning to night and only a one-hour rest."

SPANIARD SEEN AT HIS BEST.
 Illustration of Courtesy and Hospitality It Would Be Hard to Find Match For.

Havelock Ellis, in his "Soul of Spain," has revealed intimately and charmingly the temperament of the Spanish people. According to him, the Spaniard is still fundamentally primitive. In proof of his possession of the primal instincts of hospitality and charity he quotes the following anecdote from an Aragonese newspaper of a few years ago, at a time when there was much distress in Aragon.

A laborer out of work came on the highroad determined to rob the first person he met. This was a man with a wagon. The laborer bade him halt, and demanded his money.

"Here are $30, all that I have," the detained man replied.

"There is nothing left for me but robbery. My family are dying of hunger," the aggressor said, apologetically, and proceeded to put the money in his pocket; but as he did so his mind changed.

"Take this, chico," he said, handing back $20. "One is enough for me."

"Would you like anything I have in the cart?" asked the wagoner, impressed by this generosity.

"Yes," said the man. "Take this dollar back, too. I had better have some rice and some beans."

The wagoner handed over a bag of castoles, and then held out five dollars, which, however, the laborer refused.

"Take them for luck money," said the wagoner. "I owe you that."

And only so was the would-be robber persuaded to accept.—Youth's Companion.

A Thrilling Rescue.
 How Bert R. Lean, of Cheney, Wash., was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he wrote, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor here. Then I paid $10 to $15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." For Lung Trouble, Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Croup and Whooping Cough its supreme. 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Rock Drug Store.

How He Kept His Clothes Dry.
 Among a large shooting party on a Scottish grouse moor was a certain elderly professor whose skill with his gun was hardly equal to the profundity of his intellect. Suddenly a heavy storm of rain came on, and as there was no shelter on the moor the shooters got thoroughly drenched through. At least, all but one suffered—the professor. He had mysteriously disappeared when the rain came on, and he did not rejoin the party until the sun was shining once more. To the amazement of the others the erudite one was as dry as a bone. The others, drenched and disgusted, inquired of him how it was he had escaped a wetting. "Directly the rain came on," replied the professor, "I went off by myself, stripped off my clothes, and sat on them until the storm was over."

Of Interest to Farmers and Mechanics.
 Farmers and mechanics frequently meet with slight accidents and injuries which cause them much annoyance and loss of time. A cut or bruise may be cured in about one-third the time usually required by applying Chamberlain's Liniment as soon as the injury is received. This Liniment is also valuable for sprains, soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. There is no danger of blood poisoning resulting from an injury when Chamberlain's Liniment is applied before the parts become inflamed and swollen. For sale by all druggists.

Snakes of East Africa.
 For one thing, East Africa must have credit; snakes are not numerous, as they are in the south, at least I never have seen many. There are pythons, but they do not appear to be dangerous. I shall never forget how, down in South Africa during the war, I once awoke and found a black mwamba in bed with me.

This snake is absolutely deadly. It frightened me so that after the whole thing was over I went out and was sick. Fortunately I was quite ignorant of the fact that it was under the blankets with me and rolled out unconcernedly. Had I known it was there, in all probability it would have struck me.—Forest and Stream.

The nights are fine and cool in the "Hill Country."

THAT the weather the past week has been warm, nobody can deny. The heat wave has enveloped the whole country and in less favored sections than our own, many cases of prostration have been recorded. That we should feel the heat in mid-summer is not to be wondered at; it is the cool nights, and the accompanying refreshing sleep that "knits up the raveled edge of care" that is peculiar to Kerrville and is a special source of refreshment that enables us to greet the morning sun as it breaks over the hill's crest and to perform each duty as it comes to hand.

THE effort in the U. S. Senate to place in the class headed luxuries "the cup that cheers, but not inebriates," was a total failure, so to speak. Senator Bailey, in support of the movement, claimed that in his sojourning among the farming people of Texas he had rarely seen tea served. It is probably such a long time ago that the Senator associated intimately with that class of people that his memory has failed him as to just what was served, and in more recent years among his alleged associates champagne suppers were more in vogue than tea parties.

SUNDAY is the "glorious Fourth" and the day after is the fifth, in lots of places, the day after has been a day of recapitulation and often of amputation. If you are sane on the fourth the chances are that you will be safe on the fifth. True patriotism is an affair of a day plus three hundred and sixty-four.

THE idea of making useful the old magazines you have read as advocated by Mr. Walther in another column should meet with general approval and cooperation.

THE "story of Texas" by W. T. Carter Jr., is No. 7 Bulletin by the department of agriculture, and has to do with the soils and their possibilities in the different parts of Texas. Primarily it was intended as a book for children but is worthy of perusal by grown-ups as well. It is free on application to the commissioner of agriculture.

These bright, moonlight nights remind us that Texas has the loveliest and most effulgent moonshine of any state in the union—and the most of it!—The Hondo Anvil-Herold.

The above is a beautiful sentiment, but there are some states in the union where similar publicity would result in a call from the Internal revenue officers.

It is easy to be good—for nothing, these hot days.—The Texas Sun.

OUR STATE UNIVERSITY.

With the beginning of the session 1909-10, The University of Texas enters upon the twenty-sixth year of its existence. While a review of the history and achievements of the University will not be attempted, it is proper to say that the hopes and aims of the founders of Republic, who incorporated provisions for the University in the fundamental law of the land, are beginning to be realized. Past accomplishments are but predictions of future successes. The ideas and ideals now embodied in our great institution must and will be enlarged and perpetuated. Standing as it does at the head of the State's educational system, the University has led the way in our educational advancement. She is allied to our public schools with the strongest ties, and has steadily and wisely helped them, as most potent factors making for the welfare of Texas. Her thousands of sons and daughters scattered over our great State are deeply interested in every movement that seeks to promote its welfare, and especially in plans for the enlargement and betterment of its educational system.

Twenty-six years ago the University was launched with only two departments, academic and law, in inadequate quarters. Today the University maintains five well-equipped departments, each with its own especially adapted buildings. From a student enrollment of 221 the first year, it has now reached a total of 2573. The present is the greatest era of expansion in the institution's history, and how to provide for the large influx of students with the scanty means provided is a difficult problem for the Board of Regents to solve. In their care for the interests of the University, and in their endeavors to subserve and promote them, they should have the co-operation and backing of the people of Texas, whose servants they are. More and more the University is winning its way into the confidence and affection of our people. It richly deserves their support and devotion to its interests.

The Value of a Brain.

One good strategist is worth several armies. That is why Napoleon could accomplish more than all his marshals together. It was he who said: "You can never outnumber a brain."

That is why the single Robert E. Lee, south of Mason and Dixon's line, was more formidable than all the union generals together. Had Lee served with the north rather than the south, said Lincoln, the war would have ended two years sooner.

Thus, too, the greatest living military writer, Lecompte, has declared that one Moltke, on the side of the French, in 1870, would have turned the scale in favor of France.—Uncle Sam's Magazine.

BECAUSE MIND IS UNPOISED

Scientific Reason for the Existence of the Criminal—Abnormality in His Life.

The life of the criminal is simply an unpoised life. If a person were perfectly poised, wrongdoing would be so repugnant that it would be unthinkable, says a writer in Success.

It is the one-sided, the unpoised mind that goes wrong. It is just as normal for the balanced mind to choose the right, the good, as for the magnet to draw to itself whatever is kindred.

Just as the needle in the mariner's compass always points to the north star, no matter how thick the fog or how the tempest rages, there is a needle within every human being which always points to the north star of rectitude, of right, of truth, no matter what storms of discord, of weakness or of crime may be raging in the individual mind. Nothing can prevent this little indicator from pointing to the right, no matter how far the individual may drift from it, how low he may sink in vicious living.

CAT WHIPPED GOPHER SNAKE

Reptile Was the Aggressor and Paid for Its Temerity with Its Life.

Now comes an account of a fight that took place near Laton between a large gopher snake and a house cat. This contest was witnessed by Dr. C. W. Hardman, who says that the spectacle was worth going a long way to see. The feline was the victor; but the snake did not succumb until after he had fought for an hour.

The snake started the trouble by striking at pussy while the latter was out searching for stray mice. No sooner had the cat recovered from his surprise after being slapped than he returned the compliment. Of course pussy was rather frightened at the start, but he recovered quickly. As the snake recoiled after the slapping episode, Tabby ran in and with a quick movement dug his claws into the snake's body. The snake struck back but fell short. Then Tabby ran in and scored again. By this time the gopher snake was pretty angry. He struck at Tabby again and again, but he failed to land. Meanwhile the feline kept up its systematic attack until the reptile bled to death from its numerous wounds.—Fresno Herald.

The Don's Opinion.

Fashion is as inexorable in men's as in women's dress. The undergraduate is, perhaps, the most telling example of this. It is so even a century ago, when Oxford led the way in adopting the new nankeen trousers that were to supersede tight breeches and top boots. Just about that period a don of Trinity met an undergraduate, arrayed in all the splendor of the new fashion. "Young man," said the don, severely, "you will come to no good. You wear nankeen trousers and keep a dog." The young man afterward became Dr. Sumner and bishop of Winchester.

Gems of Thought Lost Forever.
Mr. Jingle suddenly turned back his cuff and wrote upon it. It happened in an interval of the passing the champagne.

"Do you often take notes in that way?" asked a woman who set by him, much interested.

"Often," the poet returned, "but the trouble of it is, that when I read it over the next day I can't for the life of me make out what the notes are that I meant to take. Then the shirt goes into the wash and there's an end of it. What's the use, anyway?" as the waiter again passed the tall glass of champagne into his outstretched hand.

"True," the woman assented, quietly. "What's the use?"

An Artist's Lucky Number.

"I have not in my painting career so far saturated myself in the spirit of the ancients as to embrace all their superstitions, but I do confess to a small superstition regarding the number seventeen. I have always found this a most lucky number for me. My wife was 17 when I first met her, and the number of the house to which I took her when we were married was 17. My present house did bear the same number; and the first spade was put to the work of building it on August 17. This was in 1885. I had then been in possession of the place for three years, during that time designing and making plans and sketches for the house. It was on November 17, 1886, that we took up our residence there."—Strand Magazine.

The Popular Girl.

The popular girl is found in every city, village, and hamlet. She is a girl full of fine sympathy and wide understanding; she talks to the talkless and listens to the talkative, and leads on the bashful and flirts with the flirty. She is full of simple tact and kindness (when in company), coupled with a merry, cheerful disposition (when anyone besides her family is around), and a sufficient amount of reserve and dignity (when reserve and dignity is necessary), to be popular with men. The popular girl has many sweethearts to choose from—and nearly always chooses the wrong one. She nearly always gets married more or less, and sometimes makes a perfectly good match.

Dog Tried to Save Woman.

Following the death in Bellevue of Mrs. Mary Casper it was revealed she had inhaled gas with the intention of killing herself, and that for an hour Hector, a powerful St. Bernard dog, had worked tirelessly and fruitlessly to drag her to safety before she was taken to the hospital. If her head had not been jammed between the kitchen stove and a partition in her home the faithful animal would have dragged her from a tube through which the gas flowed. Many rents in Mrs. Casper's frock showed how desperately the dog had worked to save her life.—New York Press.

MADE THE EULOGY A FARCE.

Bishop Potter's Illustration of the Inadvisability of Relying Too Much on Notes.

The late Rev. Henry Codman Potter greatly objected to the use of notes. At one time he was addressing a number of young theologians on the importance of not being too closely confined to a manuscript. By way of illustration he told the following anecdote about a clergyman who was called upon to officiate at a funeral.

"When the minister arrived at the town where the deceased had lived he had just time to make a few inquiries about his traits and achievements, the results of which he noted on a memorandum. His eulogy at the service, as reported, was about as follows:

"Our dear brother, whom we mourn to-day, was a man of rare character and ability. He had a mental capacity of a—referring to his notes—'Daniel Webster, the tact of a—again consulting his memoranda—'Henry Clay, the pertinacity of a—another reference—'Ulysses S. Grant. We can only mourn him with profound and sorrowful regret now that he has gone to meet his—another reference to his notes—'God.'—Judge.

CRITIC'S USE IN THE WORLD.

Fault-Finding Healthful if One Makes Up His Mind to Abide by It.

Did you ever stop to consider how important is the critic? If it were not for this person of opinions, then every one would jog along in the same old rut from year to year, make the same faults eternally, and never get ahead. True criticism is the peach stick that makes the youngster sit up and behave, the lash that makes the older man shrug his shoulder and tug harder at his burden, and yet we all have a wholesome contempt for the glib-edged criticism until, like the bad dose of medicine, it has telling effects and we are really recovering from a bad malady. When you get real earnest and want to know more and more, you will take the medicine and lick the spoon, but if you think you have no need of it you will be just as obstinate and mean as the ash cart mule in the alley and you will never go any way but backward. Honest criticism over the beautiful work of one's heart is not pleasant, in fact, it is pathetic in a sense, but it is so helpful that a person should be willing to abide by it. If we were never criticised about the singing, painting, writing or other talents in which we hope to succeed, then there would always be a sameness about everything, but, once the spur is felt, it means making a change, and, what is more, usually for the better.—Houston Post.

Can't Move Him.

"Yep, th' cunnel is used to cyclones. He had half a dozen of 'em at that ranch of his out in Kansas. He was tellin' me yesterday 'bout the worst one. It unroofed his house, an' crushed his barn, an' blew two miles of fence clean over inter th' nex' county."

"Pretty stiff blow."

"Yep, Ninety-mile-an-hour. Th' cunnel says he crawled out of the cyclone cellar after it was all over, an' what do you suppose was the first thing he saw?"

"Give it up."

"He looked across his back lot, an', by gum, ther was his hired man still sittin' on th' fence!"

Bill Nye's Editorial.

Bill Barlow, the editor of Bill Barlow's Budget, is one of the most unique figures in American journalism. To a few of his friends he confided the first humorous paragraph of his former editorial associate, Bill Nye. There had been a railroad accident. The locomotive was lost in the river, two passenger cars were destroyed, the express car was smashed, but no one had been fatally hurt. This is the way Bill Nye described it:

"For upward of 20 years repairs have been repeatedly promised the old South Bridge. Hoping against hope, and waiting until distracted, the old bridge became discouraged at last, and yesterday just laid down in the gorge with a passenger train."

The Man to Be Watched.

Always suspect a man who affects great softness of manner, an unruffled evenness of temper, and an enunciation studied, slow and deliberate. These things are all unnatural, and bespeak a degree of mental discipline into which he that has no purpose of craft or design to answer, cannot submit to drill himself. The most successful knaves are usually of this description, as smooth as razors dipped in oil, and as sharp. They affect the innocence of the dove, which they have not, in order to hide the cunning of the serpent, which they have.—Colton.

Boy's Purchase Not of Such a Practical Nature as Fond Father Had Hoped.

On the day the boy was 11 years old he visited an artist friend. The artist likes boys. He entertained the boy royally. He gave him a gun and cigarette coupons worth $2.50. The boy was proud of the gun, but he thought still more of the coupons.

"What are you going to get with them, son?" asked his mother.

"I don't know," said the boy.

His mother was about to offer a few suggestions, but the boy's father interfered.

"Just let Jim alone," he said. "Let him pick out his own prize. He knows what he wants."

"But he'll get something foolish," argued the practical mother.

"No, he won't," said the father. "That boy's got the best judgment of any boy I ever saw. He won't throw his money away. He'll come home with something useful—something that he needs right on the spot. I wouldn't be afraid to bet on that."

So the mother finally gave in. On Saturday the boy went downtown to exchange his coupons for a prize. When he came home the family was gathered at the dinner table talking about him.

"Come, dear," said his mother, "show mother what her little man got."

They sat expectant while the boy unwrapped his prize. After a little they spoke. The mother said: "What did I tell you?" and the father said: "Well, I'll be darned!"

The boy had bought a razor.

NOT JUST WHAT SHE MEANT

Fair One's Loving Protestation Sounded Somewhat Odd to Passionate Wooer.

It was, indeed, a beautiful night. The gentle zephyrs played musically amid the delicate fronds of the turnip-tops, and wafted from far-distant fields the subtle perfume of the luscious onion and the fragrance of decaying cabbages.

"Betsy," he whispered, as they sat together on the fence surrounding Mrs. Filligan's pigsty, "how beautiful you be! Jes' think of it, Betsy. When us be married us will have a pig of our own! Think of that, Betsy!"

"Jan," she whispered, a note of resentment in her voice, "what do I care for pigs? I shan't want a pig when I've got you!"

Then all was silent once more, save for the musical frolics of the zephyrs already mentioned.—London Tit-Bits.

Stomach Trouble.

Many remarkable cures of stomach trouble have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at all druggists.

That Settled It.

The commissioners in lunacy were nonplussed. The man on whose mental condition the courts had appointed them to pass seemed perfectly sane. In spite of all testimony to the contrary. His every action, his every remark was rational. They were about to give up in despair when matters took an unexpected turn. "Oh, doctor, permit me to return the umbrella I borrowed from you last week," said the patient.

And then, at the thought of earning their fees with no qualms of conscience, the learned men decided that anyone who would voluntarily return a borrowed umbrella should be placed under restraint.

This simply proves how trifles will ever mold our destinies.

Doesn't Care for the Just Man.

Do you know it is not a compliment to be called a just man? It carries with it an intolerant spirit, a mean disposition, and a fault-finding manner. There must not be too much justice in this country. The deeds must be filtered and sugar coated. The just man is the man who demands that everybody come up to his standard. Ever think how hard a job that is? We have our own standards and it keeps us busy measuring up to them, but to have to measure up to some other man's standard is awful, simply awful.—Lawrence (Kan.) Journal.

The Busy Biographer.

"Don't you want to live in the minds of posterity?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "although it is a little discouraging to see how much more interest posterity seems to take in a great man's weaknesses and peculiarities than in his national achievements."

WHEN WISDOM IS FORGOTTEN

Extraordinary How Business Men Can Be Induced to Dabble in Silly Speculation.

In all vision there is a blind spot; every savant is a fool upon some topic. This is exemplified by the readiness with which the most astute business and professional man will dabble in speculation—such as mining and allurements similar.

What man of ordinary common sense would think of buying a house which he had never seen and his agent had never seen; or a horse, or a gun, or almost anything into which he is putting money, without privilege of examination and expectation of using that privilege? And yet the majority of men will invest, "sight unseen," as the boys say, in a mine, in an oil well, in a rubber plantation, merely upon the word of a machine-made prospectus.

Somehow ninety-nine out of a hundred men who thus invest, as a side issue, seem to anticipate that chance will overlook their utter disregard of business principles and will work a miracle in their favor. They go upon the theory "A fool for luck." This is why speculation of this nature is fallen into evil ways, and why a gold mine so often proves a gold brick.

The public has itself to blame. Mines, oil wells, rubber plantations can be made sources of profit, and are made sources of profit; but they should not be played as one plays a slot machine.—Edwin L. Sabin, in Lippincott's.

Trouble Makers Ousted.

When a sufferer from stomach trouble takes Dr. King's New Life Pills he's mighty glad to see his Dyspepsia and Indigestion fly, but more—he's tickled over his new, fine appetite, strong nerves, healthy vigor, all because stomach, liver and kidneys now work right. 25c at Rock Drug Store.

WANTED ALL TO UNDERSTAND

Small Maiden's Somewhat Startling Explanation of the Omission of Grace.

A tiny girl of seven gave a dinner the other day, for which 12 courses were laid, and that number of small maidens sat down to dine. It was a real little girls' dinner, and the hostesses presided, sitting at the head of the table. She had been very anxious, in looking forward to it, to do everything as it should be done.

"Mamma," she asked, "shall we say grace?"

"No," said mamma; "it will be a very informal dinner, and I think you need not do that."

That meant one ceremony the less to go through, and was a relief. But the little lady was anxious to have all her guests understand it.

So, as they gathered about the table she explained:

"Mamma says that this is such an infernal dinner that we need not have grace to-day."

Slight Misunderstanding.

An Italian organ-grinder recently escaped a fine by his wit. He had been playing before the house of an irascible old gentleman, who furiously and with wild gesticulations ordered him to move on.

The Italian stolidly stood his ground, and played on, and at last was arrested for causing a disturbance.

At the court the magistrate asked him why he did not leave when he was requested to do so.

"Me no understand' mooch Ingleese," was the reply.

"Well, but you must have understood by his motions that he wanted you to go on."

"Na na," was the rejoinder; "I think he come to dance."—Weekly Magazine.

Men and Their Mustaches.

"In Europe," the barber said, "it is the fashion for men to wear their mustaches long and trained carefully at the ends, in which shape they must be looked after at the cost of much time and trouble. Here it is the fashion for men to wear their mustaches short, which may not be quite so pretty, but it is vastly more convenient and comfortable, and is of the country characteristic, it is doing away with surplusage and keeping the decks cleared for action.

"No man who has had his mustache trimmed short once," the barber said, "would ever let it grow long again."

Qualified.

The great magazine editor sneered. "What right have you," he asked, "to think you'll ever make a poet?" "Well, sir," the youth said timidly, "I've been fasting man in a side show for the last two seasons."

FUTURE SPHERE MAPPED OUT

Budding Genius Seemed Set Aside to Some Day Adorn the Legal Profession.

"That boy," said the second hand book dealer, nodding toward a freckled faced lad swishing a feather duster around promiscuously, "is a wonder in his way."

"Well, I don't care what he is in his way," responded a testy customer, who frequented the shop, "so long as he doesn't get in mine, which he does every time he can."

"I know, I know," sighed the dealer, "but what am I to do? He is my only stepson and he's got to have a job. Yesterday I gave him a copy of 'Dr. Syntax' to put where it belonged and did he do it? Oh, yes, he done it—nit. I found it to-day over there among those books marked 'Medical.'"

The testy customer grunted with a sort of satisfaction.

"But that is nothing to what he did a month ago," the dealer went on. "One day he came to me with a copy of 'The Reign of Law' and asked where he should put it. 'Don't you know where it ought to go?' said I, provoked that a boy of his size didn't know a novel by the feel of it. 'I wasn't sure,' said he, 'whether it ought to go under the head of 'Meteorological' or 'Legal.' Now, what do you think of that? He ought to know enough to go in out of the rain, oughtn't he?"

The testy customer grunted again and chuckled.

"Let him alone, let him alone," he said. "He'll be a fine lawyer one of these days."

SWIFTER THAN THE PIGEON.

Swallow Easily Outdistances Companions in Flight Between Compiegne and Antwerp.

A citizen of Antwerp has put to a test the celerity and homing instinct of the swallow as compared with pigeons, a London correspondent of the New York Sun says. He caught a swallow in its nest under his roof at Antwerp, made a red mark on its feathers and sent the bird with a consignment of 250 carrier pigeons by train to Compiegne, in northern France, a distance of 147 miles.

The birds were released there simultaneously at 7:15 the next morning. The swallow without the slightest hesitation made for the north and disappeared like a flash. The pigeons circled laboriously around before deciding which direction they should take.

The swallow reached its nest in Antwerp in 67 minutes, while the pigeons took four hours and seven minutes to cover the distance. In other words, the messenger of spring flew at the rate of nearly 132 miles an hour, while the speed of the pigeons only slightly exceeded 35½ miles an hour.

Earthquake Fears.

Mankind are strangely inconsistent in the matter of running risks. There is no danger that appalls the imagination more than the danger of earthquake, and yet those parts of the world that are most subject to earthquakes seem never to have been therefore shunned by human beings. An earthquake is an "act of God," and men are clearly helpless against it. Like death, no one knows when it may come; but, unlike death, it may never come to all, and therefore men fear it less than death.—London Times.

Playing on the Street.

In France children are not allowed to play in the streets, and women do not promenade on the highways, declares an automobilist who is surprised that the law should allow such things in this country, with the consequence of constant liability to accident. Children in this country are not taught to respect the rights of other people, and rush in front of automobiles and street cars in a way that is not known in any other country.

TALE OF BRITANNY FOLKLORE

Piper Who Played for the Unholy Korrigans, and the Curse Thereby Entailed.

The korrigans are the black dwarfs of Brittany who dwell in the sacred Druidic circles at the menhirs and count their cash in the moonshine. When mere mortals encounter them by night the korrigans force their visitors to dance with them around and around, slugging monotonously the names of the days of the week from Monday to Sunday. This is the theme of the best-known tradition dealing with them, the story of Lao and the korrigans. Lao was a prize piper and came to set the dance at the parson of Amfor. Women, terrified at their discovery of a korrigian town, besought him to avoid the little black folk, but he laughed them down. Bravely enough he went to the korrigian town, but terror came over him in the dark when he heard whispered sounds and dimly saw dark shadows marching with him in the gloom. Then the moon rose and the little creatures bade him play for their dance. All night long he played upon his pipes and the little people capered about him on the grass. Not a note did he raise until the moonlight faded and the cock crow, sounding dawn, gave the signal for his companions to vanish. All the night he had played, obedient to the magic cry "Pipe, prize piper, pipe and set the dance of the korrigans!" Exhausted with the coning of the day, the bag-piper left his pipes and he fell asleep at the foot of the menhir, and the last sound which fell upon his drowsy ears was "Sleep, prize piper, sleep! Thou hast set the dance of the korrigans; never more shalt thou set a Christian dance!"

Remedy for Burns.

For burns apply linseed oil and lime water. From experience I have learned to keep a bottle of this remedy in the kitchen with soft, clean pieces of old muslin, right where I can get them without a moment's delay. Apply the oil immediately, and bandage so that not a particle of air can reach the burn, and if it is just a skin burn no blister will form. Even if it is a deep burn this will give immediate and complete relief from pain; but of course a physician should be summoned at once if the burn is severe.—Exchange.

Brutal Indifference.

"It seems since his marriage Jack Thoruley has developed into a perfect brute."

"You surprise me! What has he done?"
"Why, the other night while his wife was regaling him with all the particulars of that choice Verifast scandal she noticed that he seemed very quiet. And what do you think! He was sound asleep!"

MADE DRUNK BY MOSQUITOES AD. THAT BROUGHT RETURNS

Small Pests, Not the Wild Animals, Are the Real Troubles of the African Hunter.

"The African mosquitoes intoxicate you. They inject so much poison into you that you are dazed, your eyes roll and you stagger and speak thickly. In a word, you're drunk," said a missionary.

"In the Nyassa country I'd always start getting ready for bed and the mosquitoes an hour before sunset. I'd set up my mosquito net with the utmost care. I'd clamp down its edges with valises and boxes. I'd light inside it three green wood fires, filling it with a bitter smoke that all insects are supposed to loathe.

"Finally I'd get in myself. I'd smoke big pipes of the black native tobacco, and I'd long miserably in that hot, smoky atmosphere for the dawn.

"Despite all my precautions quite 200 or 300 mosquitoes would get inside my net as soon as darkness fell. They were like a whirlwind in there. It couldn't have been worse. Their noise and their nipping made me feverish—made me really delirious at times.

"At last in exhaustion I'd get a few hours of troubled sleep, awakening for breakfast, drunk from the poison injected by hundreds of tiny needles into my veins.

"No, it isn't the elephants or the giraffes that trouble the African hunter, but the 'sneeters!'"

Girls in Profusion Ready to Accept Inducement Offered by Absent-Minded Man.

One male stenographer is not very happy just now, says a writer in the New York Times. His wife asked him to put in an advertisement for a maid. He consented, but absently, and only remembered his errand at the moment before setting out for his home.

He wrote and mailed the ad, making only one slight mistake. He offered $15 per week, instead of per month!

The next morning, at six of the clock, the front door bell rang.
"See who that is," said the wife, dreamily. He saw! Two Swedish maidens, one rosy German girl, a bonnie Scottish lass, a demure English woman, past her first youth; a number of females, age, appearance, manners, accent, all offering a rich variety, clamored for the privilege of serving in his $45 flat!

"You'd better get up—I didn't know times were as hard as this, poor things," he remarked to his wife.

She rose, and interviewed the various nationalities in a kimono. Her husband dressed hastily, with visions of an extra good breakfast floating in the air before him.

"Which did you take?" he asked, eagerly, as his wife returned.

These pages must not record the language before which a stricken man fled, dropping in at a restaurant for rolls and coffee. He entered his office and worded another ad., a sadder man, at any rate!

ARE ILL-MATED COMPANIONS

Remarkable Fact That Humor and Melancholy Seem Fond of Each Other's Company.

Too often humor and melancholy go together. They keep company like a girl who likes to dance, and a fellow who writes nice, gloomy poetry. They get tied together, but they don't hitch. They sympathize like oil and water—not. They tell us that some of the newspaper humorists, who actually make people laugh, are sometimes very grim and melancholy at home, and can't see a joke any quicker than anybody else, when it's on themselves. It's too bad that a humorist should thus belie his profession, but he's mortal anyway—and who doesn't? It was said that Lincoln had to make jokes to relieve care. He said: "Were it not for this occasional vent, I should die."

The vent of the humorist is melancholy. Let him kick the cat, let him complain of the oatmeal, let him look glum as an owl—he, too, is entitled to a little variety. Let him read "Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy," or "Mrs. Caudle's Lectures" for that matter—he's entitled to something pensive. By the way Burton also said has given in his "Anatomy" a picturesque description of mirth: "It is," he says, "a principal engine to batter the walls of melancholy." He must have had horse-play in mind. Our idea is that humor is a little eddy in the rushing millstream of life—where a fellow can rest awhile and fish.

MATERIALS OF STORK'S HOME.

Immense Nest Broken Up in A'sation—Town Found to Contain All Sorts of Plunder.

The following details concerning the structure and contents of a stork's nest investigated on the summit of the Cathedral of Colmar in Upper Alsace may be of interest.

The city architect has just delivered a public lecture there on "Storks and Their Ways." He described a stork's nest which was about thirty years old; it measured six feet across and was five feet in height; it weighed sixteen hundredweight, or over three-quarters of a ton, and it was such a solid mass that it had to be broken up by using a pickax. The nest was made of twigs of wood and clay and the materials filled 21 sacks.

The walls of the nest were found to contain 17 ladies' black stockings, five fur caps, the sleeve of a white silk blouse, three old shoes, a large piece of leather and four buttons that had belonged to a railway porter's uniform.

Cures for Sleeplessness.

In nearly all hospitals where there are patients in an excitable condition who cannot sleep and where it would be injurious to give narcotics, the following method is adopted: A hot water bottle is covered with flannel and placed at the feet. A thin tissue bag of thinnest silk rubber is partially filled with cold water and placed to the base of the brain. This is about ten inches long and six inches wide, as soft as silk and only half filled with cold water, so it does not feel bulky back of the head. In many cases the patient goes to sleep within a few minutes, because this draws the blood from the active brain, which is one cause of insomnia. When the patient is extremely nervous, a crack spread with bitter and sprinkled slightly with cayenne pepper is eaten. This heats the stomach. The stocking wound around the neck, not too close, yet rather snug, is an old method, for it does not retard the flow of blood from the head to the arteries, but it does retard the flow to the head, just as the cold water assists. All these methods are simple, effective and harmless.

NEW VERSION OF OLD STORY.

But Its the Same Absent-Minded Man with the Baby and the Kerosene Can.

A party of genial spirits were sitting talking on the topics of the day the other evening when the conversation turned to absent-mindedness. Several incidents were related, and finally a man who had been an attentive listener broke into the limelight.

"That last story," said he, "reminds me of a friend of mine who was left at home to care for the baby and suddenly remembered that he had to go to the store for kerosene. Taking the baby on one arm and the kerosene can on the other, he went to the grocery joint and—"

"I see," smilingly anticipated one of the party, "he took the oil home and forgot the kid."

"No, he didn't," responded the speaker. "He placed the can on the counter and gently said, 'sit there a moment, dear,' and then, holding the baby toward the clerk, added: 'Fill this with kerosene, please.'"

WHAT'S THE USE OF KICKING?

Writer in Eastern Journal Condemns the Practice, and Asks Above Question.

If kicking would help some it would be worth while, but it does not. On the contrary, it hinders.

Then why do rational, sensible men and women indulge in it?

There is a question that is worthy of more than a passing thought, for it relates to human comfort, prosperity, and success:

Why do you kick when things do not go to please you?

Is it not because you were taught to do so? Didn't your parents, your big brothers and sisters, and maybe the men and women you admired, grumble and complain, or kick, when things did not go to suit them, even when its fault was their own?

And are not your children learning in the same way from you?

Maybe you had no thought of this before? Now that your attention has been called to it, and you have thought about it, if you do not act accordingly you will not be doing right, and to fail to do that which you know to be right is to sin.

Kicking is, therefore, a sign of ill-breeding, and one that young folks should take into account when choosing life partners, for a kicker in matrimonial harness loses the race, besides creating much confusion.—Newark (N. J.) News.

Found $5 in Crow's Nest.

High above the street, in a crow's nest built in the steeple of St. Agatha's Catholic church at Philadelphia, a $5 gold piece was found recently by two steeplejacks. The money was tightly wedged in the nest and had evidently been there for some time. John Hessler and Louis Jennings, the steeplejacks, are tearing down the spire, and in the course of their work they have had to remove all of the many nests found in the crevices. This particular nest was brought to the ground, and the discovery of the gold piece was made by a little girl who was searching for eggs in the nest. How the money got there is a mystery too deep for the steeplejacks. A crow will seldom carry anything to its nest except food.

APATHY WAS NOT OF CHOICE.

Series of Misfortunes Precluded Investment in Bibles Just at That Particular Time.

The auctioneer with a wagon load of books had stopped on a corner in the village and quickly collected a crowd around him, but he held up book after book and failed to get a bid. He finally selected a family Bible, and fastening his gaze on an old man who was vigorously chewing tobacco, he asked:

"My friend, are you a Christian man?"

"I ar," was the reply.

"Do you believe in this book?"

"I dew."

"Have you got one like it at home?"

"No, I ain't."

"Then why don't you give me a bid on this? What's the matter with this crowd that I can't sell a Bible for a tenth of its worth? Don't your religion in this town include the Bible?"

"She does, stranger, she does," replied the old man, "but lemme explain things a little. On Monday we had a hoss race. On Tuesday there was a dogfight. On Wednesday a feller came along with a guessing hog, and yesterday there was a scrap between lightweights for the gate receipts. We dote on the Bible here, but we are also a sporty town, and if porous plasters was selling for two cents apiece there hain't one of us could raise the dough to invest. You'll jest have to wait till we recuperate and get a new hold."

NERVES SHOULD BE TRAINED

Worry, Ill Temper and Overwork Are Simply Bad Habits Which Can Be Corrected.

We hear women talk of "nerves! nerves!" as though they looked upon them as their greatest foes. All the physical pleasures of life are brought to us through our nerves, and even the higher joys of the intellectual and the spiritual life we become aware of only through the medium of feeling, and for this reason alone it behooves one to keep one's nerves in a normal, healthful and responsive condition.

The fact that the nervous system is amenable to training and that its habits can be unerringly cultivated at one's own will, and under one's own direction, or with outside assistance if necessary, is a fact of growing importance. This is so because the recent work of scientific men is showing us to what a minute degree nerve habits can be controlled and also because especially in America, our climate and our modern civilization are making greater demands upon nervous force and contribute to the unconscious formation of detrimental nervous habits.

Worry, ill temper, haste, laziness, overwork, selfishness, egotism and distrust are in many cases bad habits of the nerves.—From the Delinicator.

Never Let Go.

We hear much about forging to the front, taking time by the forelock, seizing the bull by the horns, and the like, and also that the man with the tail hold is entirely ignored. Nine men out of every ten wisely follow and succeed where one does who charges around at the front all the time. If you miss the forelock, seize the tail. It is the hanging on more than the particular hold that counts. The man will go just as fast and nearly as far who has hold of the tail as the one hanging on to the horn; besides, he can hold on better and is in less danger. Young man, don't be too anxious to get rapidly to the front, but hang on to what you have and you will get ahead in the world just as fast as you deserve.—Columbia (Ala.) Breeze.

Disgusted Veteran Author.
Many years ago a youthful man of letters arrived at Etretat with a letter of introduction of Alphonse Karr. He had been particularly told of Karr's passionate love of the sea; and, finding the author of "Genevieve" seated on the beach, mending a net, he immediately began an enthusiastic outburst of commonplaces about the grandeur of the ocean. "Monsieur," interrupted Karr, "I love the sea; we have lived together a long time. But if you have come all the way from Paris to disgust me with it, I can only say it is a wicked thing to do."
