Fred P. Mann of Devil's Lake Tells Alfred P. C. Petsch, prominent at-torney of Fredericksburg was among the business visitors here Wednesday. How He Built Wonderful Business

By Advertising.

San Antonio Light, July 31st: Per-sistent and extensive advertising is the secret of success for any retail merchant, says Fred P. Mann of Devil's Lake, N. D., who is in San Antonio and preparing to make six speeches before local jobbers, manu-facturers, retailers and visiting mer-chants during trade week. He is recognized as one of the greatest practical authorities on retail mer-chandising, being known nationally as the man who built up a $500,000 business in a 5,200 population town. During the last year, the compar-ational comparison of the second second second second business in a second second second second second second business in a second second second second second second business in a second second second second second second business in a second second second second second second business in a second second second second second second business in a second second second second second second business in a second second second second second second second business in a second s Fred Mann in Devil's Lake, a town of about 5,200 population with a thinly populated trade territory, did about $500,000 worth of business. Because of this tremendous and unusual amount of business for so small a store in such a small town, attention of merchants throughout the United States is being attracted. Im. mediately every one began to ask: "How did you do it?" When asked this question soon after his arrival in San Antonio, Mr.

Mann replied that advertising was his secret of success. He says a mer-chant has to go out after his business for it certainly will not come to him. His chief advertising medium is his local newspapers. The newspapers of Devil's Lake cover a trade territory for a radius of about 20 miles, surrounding the town. He says he also uses circulars and letters, to which he also attributes a part of the success of his business.

Advertising An Investment "Persistent advertising is an investment and not an expenditure," says Mr. Mann, "for it is bound to bring results if placed and worded

If big jobbing and manufacturing concerns will only educate their retailers to the point where they could realize that advertising was the greatest business investment known, it is safe to say that business would be revolutionized."

Homemade Products

Mr. Mann says he is a strong believer in buying homemade products. He says a town or city should first atively small department store of sell itself to itself, getting the Fred Mann in Devil's Lake, a town people to use homemade products as much as possible. Local people should buy from the firm or man who is going to leave the dollar at home, he says, and then everyone can "get a crack at it." sacrifice, a precious purchase price. And it was accepted. In answer there was given a land as broad as an em-pire, as fair as Italy and as free as the winds of her own fertile plains. Blood is precious. No talent of gold nor crown of diamonds can equal one drop from a patriot's heart. Given so generously, shed so freely, it bought all the future for us—all the future crowned as it is in boundless blessings and infinite interests. Build your cities large and fair; lay your railroads; extend your fields; let the laughter of abounding prosperity rise to heaven, but never forget the sacrifice which has made all this pos-sible. Raise them a monument, right amid the ivy-covered peacefulness of their supreme sacrifice. Write on it, "We Remember Our Patriot Dead." Let the youth of our land come year by year and bending, kiss that bap-tised spot. It will teach them how noble life may be; it will teach them how precious death may be; it will in-spire them to a more fervent patriot-iem. Their souls will flame with the spire them to a more fervent patriotism. Their souls will flame with the passion. Let them there record in passion. Let them there record in solemn vow to live for country, God and home, and if need be, to die that these things might be glorified. From out the glamor and glitter and restlessness of a great city's throbbing life, steal into the hallowed quiet of the old Alamo, O, Texan, and there in revenue and privileged own. there in reverence and privileged ownership of the sacred things about, drench the heart and soul with democracy's fairest offering against the day and hour when you are induced to thing in terms un-American. Feel in health and happiness and security the same hoary walls the makers of Texas felt with blood-stained hands and weary, battle-scarred bodies. Gaze upon vine-clad walls having once proved a sacrificial altar upon which the heart's blood of heroes was spilled that your birthright might be forever secure.

Come once at least in a lifetime, men and women of Texas, to the mecca that is called the Alamo. The pilfor our sake and the sake of those who must follow in our footsteps. The Alamo, set like a rare and pre-cious gem right down in the throb-bing heart of Texas' most beautiful and greatest city, should be visited by exery Texan that these may come to understand the passionate love for our Empire State and all its hallowed tra-ditioner may come to understand the grimage could not be too great a hard-one error. Another tally was added in the sixth on Holchak's triple and Brown's single.

The Giants put over four tallies in the seventh on three hits, two bobbles, a walk and a sacrifice, but the rally failed to make the needed scores to tie things up. Brown tripled in the eighth and Barry scored him with a single, his third hit of the afternoon. The Giants staged another rally in the ninth, but two pinch hitters couldn't put it over and the game ended after two hours and ten minutes of play:

Cox and Barry led the attack with the stick, getting three blows apiece. Holchak took the lead over Henke in their race for batting honors by getting a blow more than did Emmett. The box score:

"UNSEEN" WHAT ABOUT PLUMBING?

It's unseen, but it's there-between walls, under floors, buried in the ground. One-third of the cost of any good plumbing job is for that unseen work.

We believe that no part of a plumbing job is more important than the "unseen" plumbing. We know that unless the "unseen" work is done right the first time, using the proper material and workman-ship, there is sure to be costly trouble later. Our "unseen" plumbing stands the test of time and constant use. Our customers will tell you so. It will be to your advantage to con-sult us about any new installation or remodeling job.

PROGRAM FOR JOINT HIGHWAY CELEBRATION IS ANNOUNCED

time. Every one is to take picnic lunches with enough eats to last over for supper. Plenty of ice water and coffee will be furnished free. One large concession stand will sell cold drinks, ice cream, lunches, etc., and to prevent the customary high prices being charged, a good man has been emoloyed to operate it for the committee in charge of the celebration. A. F. McClellan of Lake Side Park has been secured for this work. R. L. Man-gum, local Delco-Light dealer has agreed to furnish the lighting free of charge. Arrangements are being made to secure a good military band to furhish music throughout the day and for the dance that night. Following is the full program with prizes for the winners:

LET'S PASS AROUND PROSPERITY

My Name Is Old Man Dollar

The grocery man paid me to a farmer for two pounds of butter.

The farmer gave me to a restaurant man for two meals he bought for his wife and himself.

The restaurant man owed for a neck-tie in a clothing store, for which he made me pay.

The clothing merchant bought four quarts of oil for his automobile and gave me to the garage man.

The garage man paid me to the furniture store where his wife had bought a floor lamp on the installment plan.

The furniture man gave me to the barber for a haircut, shampoo and shave.

The barber was in the country and paid me to the farmer for eggs.

> HERE IS THE QUESTION: How many dollars worth of merchandise have I bought, and how many dollars worth of debts have I paid?

Moral: If you pay out more than you take in, you will be hard up. If you continue to do so, you will go bankrupt. So it is with a community, your town, your county, of which you are a part--all will prosper if you put punch and aim into your lazy dollar and spend your money in the community which provides you with your livelihood.
