ORGANIZATION OF TRUCK GROWERS TO BE PERFECTED

Meeting Scheduled at Chamber of Commerce Tuesday Afternoon, August 5th.

A meeting of truck growers of Kerr County is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, August 5th, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms in this city for the purpose of perfecting an organization to enable the growers to better market their produce.

Truck growers attending the meeting were J. W. Bailey, J. L. Henderson, C. H. Webb and J. W. Mayhugh of the Sunset community; Lee Mosty of Center Point, and Prentiss Swazey, Harvey Mosty and R. S. Hunt of near Kerrville. O. W. Hinds of the U. S. Veterans' Hospital and J. C. Yeary, County Demonstration Agent, were also in attendance, as was a large number of members of the two commercial organizations of the city.

After marketing facilities of the city had been discussed at length by retailers and farmers, Mr. Hinds was called on, as being the purchasing agent for the largest consumer of produce in the community. Mr. Hinds stated that the community was not by any means producing enough to supply the demands at the hospital and that he was compelled to purchase, in addition to what he could get locally, produce from the San Antonio markets amounting to approximately $850 per month. However, he stated the greatest obstacle in the way of producing locally was the fact that the growers in a majority of instances would not contract produce in advance, which would enable him to plan accordingly for his supplies. In other words, the hospital purchases their produce several days in advance of delivery in order to be sure of a constant supply. When he cannot contract these supplies locally, he is of necessity compelled to go to San Antonio markets for them.

After a thorough discussion on the subject, dealing with hucksters and local growers who have been flooding the local market to the detriment of prices, Walter Saenger, who presided over the meeting appointed a committee from the retailers to meet with a like committee from the farmers to go into the proposition more fully and devise ways and means of bettering the situation. Messrs. Pampell, Noll, Yarborough and Yeary from this city participated in this special conference, with Lee Mosty, J. W. Bailey, J. L. Henderson and C. H. Webb representing the truck growers.

The special committee discussed at length the feasibility of a permanent organization among the truck growers for the purpose of marketing their produce, and a temporary organization was perfected with Lee Mosty as president and J. W. Bailey as secretary. County Agent Yeary stated that R. Lancaster, rural organizer of the State Extension Service, would be available for the meeting next Tuesday, and it was voted to perfect a permanent organization of the truck growers at this time. It is planned to have every truck grower and produce raiser in the county present at the meeting if possible.

At this meeting will be discussed the feasibility of pooling all produce under the management of some responsible man selected by the growers and letting him handle all sales of same, shipping the surplus to outside markets. It may be necessary in this connection to utilize cold storage facilities to care for the produce until the market conditions are favorable, but if so arrangements can easily be made for same. An illustration of the value of this method of marketing was brought out in the sale of tomatoes. At the time of the meeting Friday, local market prices on these vegetables were quoted at between 50 cents and $1.00 per bushel, while Fort Worth markets were paying from $3.50 to $4.00 the same day.

A community canning factory was also discussed at length and it is possible that the temporary officials will have some facts and figures from other points where such factories are in operation to present to the meeting next week, as well as copies of constitutions and by-laws of similar organizations.

The truck growers realize that cooperative selling is the only solution that will enable them to market their goods and realize full value on same, as at present oversupply tends to glut the local market and lower the prices. Under co-operative selling, the surplus would be either held and placed locally when it would not break the prices, or would be shipped to outside points.

Little work came up before the retailers outside of this proposition. A resolution was passed instructing a committee to draft resolutions of regret over the death of J. G. Moreno, a member of the association and also of the Chamber of Commerce, which occurred early that morning and whose funeral services were to be held that evening.

Eugene Butt, chief of the local fire department, appeared before the meeting and stated that the fire company needed equipment costing about $300 in excess of that recently purchased by the city. A resolution was passed granting the fire boys permission to circulate a petition among the business men and citizens for the purpose of raising the necessary money, and merchants present pledged their support when the petition was presented. The Bandera road fund proposition came up for discussion and the retailers voted to raise a small balance necessary to complete their pledge of $1,000 toward financing improvements to this road.

SCHREINER INSTITUTE RECEIVES HIGH RATING

Department of Education Grants Full Affiliation With All Colleges and Universities.

President J. J. Delaney of the Schreiner Institute received notification Tuesday from the State Department of Education that the High School Department of Schreiner Institute has been granted full affiliation with all colleges and universities of Texas.

The work of the local school was inspected twice during the past year by representatives of the Department of Education and papers were submitted from every class at the close of the first year June 1. The notification states that the affiliation was granted on the strength of class room work and the high quality of the material submitted. Of still greater importance was the statement that the record made by Schreiner Institute for the first year surpasses that made by any other school since the organization of that department.

This fall the school will take up the first year of college work and the Department of Education has already approved both faculty and courses of study as outlined, thereby guaranteeing the recognition of this work by all colleges and universities at the end of the first year. Heretofore it has been necessary to put in two years of college work before recognition could be secured.

Light Vote Polled in Kerr County Primary
Judge Burney Re-Elected as District Judge—W. C. Baker in Run-Off for District Attorney.

Aside from State and District candidates little interest was manifested in the primary election held in Kerr County last Saturday. The voting strength of the county, as shown by poll tax receipts issued this year, is 2,300, while the vote cast Saturday was only 939.

The election committee will meet next Saturday to canvass the ballots and make their official return thereof to the State Election Board. In the meantime their unofficial tabulation of the results of the election is given on page 7 of this paper. This tabulation does not include the scattering votes cast over the county for different candidates whose names were written in by the voters.

Latest figures from the Texas Election Bureau Wednesday gave the following vote for State candidates. This included reports from 237 counties out of 252 in the State, including 89 complete.

KU KLUX KLAN IS BIG PROBLEM FOR THE PROTESTANT CHURCHES

Churches of Country Hoplessly Split Over Issue, Says Speaker Here Last Friday Night.

Denouncing the Ku Klux Klan as a militant political organization and declaring that if the organization wished to continue to exist the members must purge it of all political activity and make it purely a fraternal and benevolent order, Rev. Walter L. Evans of San Antonio addressed a large crowd at the City Park in Kerrville last Friday night.

The speaker presented his claims in a straightforward and forceful manner and held the crowd until a few minutes before midnight. The only demonstrations of any kind were the frequent hand-clappings which his remarks brought forth and the occasional shout from some enthusiastic listener of "Pour It On." And pour it on he did.

Mr. Evans claimed that he joined the Klan at the beginning of its existence and found at first that its purposes were pure and holy, but declared that the leaders of this movement were not strong enough to withstand the lure of graft—and he bases the downfall of the organization from the moment the leaders fell. When he realized what he was into, Mr. Evans states that he immediately began looking around for an honest way to get out, and the only honest and manly way he could find was to resign his membership and then go out and try to keep others from joining the organization by warning them of what they were getting into.

The speaker stated that the Klan had only three foundation stones: Religious prejudice, politics and graft, and that members of the organization were modern Pharisees, comparing them to the old-time Jesuit Fathers of the Catholic Church. He said that not a single official of the order was known by a Christian or an American name, but that all were names derived from unhallowed sources, citing "Cyclops," "Grand Dragon," "Wizard," etc., in support of his contentions.

Mr. Evans said he held nothing against members of the Klan personally, and that there were many good men in the rank and file of the organization, but he expressed in an emphatic manner his contempt for the leaders of the movement, stating that 99 per cent of them were grafters and crooks.

He declared the Klan to be the most intolerant of all religious menaces and that he was not a Catholic but a Protestant apostate—a problem for the Protestant churches to settle, among which bodies the movement has created a hopeless division, and at the same time given stimulus to the Catholic religion by creating sympathy for them and uniting them more firmly than ever.

The speaker referred to the fiery order as the "Crusade of Hate," exactly opposite to the sentiment associated with the cross on which the Lowly Nazarene suffered for the cause of humanity. The greatest need of the members of the order, according to Mr. Evans, was more charity for others and less brag for themselves.

WATER STREET BEING WIDENED THROUGH DOWN-TOWN SECTION

Nine Feet Nine Inches Being Added From Washington to Sidney Baker Streets.

Workmen began work Tuesday morning on the job of removing the old curbing and sidewalks preparatory to widening Water Street from Washington to Sidney Baker Streets, a distance of two blocks through the most important business part of the city.

Widening of this street is made necessary to care for the rapidly increasing traffic on this street and is being pushed at this time in order to have same completed ahead of the paving work, which will begin on this section of the highway within the next few weeks. Crews are already laying the base for the paving in the lower part of the city and as soon as the necessary curbing can be placed through the business section they will follow right on through with their work.

The Elder Construction Company has charge of the work of putting in the curbing and sidewalks on the two blocks affected by the street widening. It is probable that their part of the work will be completed in about two weeks.

This street widening proposition was taken up by the Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants' Association several months ago. At that time practically every property owner on both sides of the two blocks affected, agreed on the advisability before the permanent paving was put down. It was at first planned to widen then let it angle gradually from the corner of the Schreiner Store to the corner at St. Charles, where the street would be widened by this plan about four feet. This plan was adopted because of the fact that the wool house of the Schreiner Wool & Mohair Commission Company, which was erected many years before any of the other permanent improvements on the street, projected so far out that it was necessary to angle in this manner in order to have sufficient sidewalk space along the front of the building.

A committee of interested business men was appointed to handle the street widening proposition at a meeting of the property owners when the

ONE OF YOUR FRIENDS is quietly building up a snug little fortune. You will be surprised some day and wonder how he did it. But it is a very simple story.

This man does not have a large income. He has never made a large savings deposit in his life. Small deposits made every week is the secret of this man's success. His savings account shows a steady climb for years.

The average man fails to win because he is not willing to make small savings deposits and make them as often as possible.

Most any one can see the importance of making a big deposit—but many fail to understand the value of the small ones.

Think it over.

MANY LOTS SOLD AT METHODIST ENCAMPMENT DURING PAST WEEK

Regular Program of First Season Closed With Camp Meeting Last Sunday Night.

More than $6,000 worth of lots in the Methodist Kerrville Encampment were sold the past week, according to Dr. Arthur J. Moore. This increases the number of lots sold to about 125, representing approximately $25,000. The trustees, of which Dr. H. E. Draper of Beeville is president and Dr. S. H. C. Burgin of San Antonio is vice president, have made improvements to the property this summer amounting to $20,000 or $25,000, and they claim that the property is easily worth $150,000.

The trustees will meet soon to check over the work at the camp this summer and to outline plans for next year. The intention is to erect several more cottages, as there were times this summer when they were cramped for room. A better class of cottages will be built, and it is hoped that a permanent auditorium can be built before next season. In that event the temporary auditorium used this summer will be converted into a dormitory. W. H. Chambers, general manager of the association, is in Europe, but will return in the early fall.

The summer program closed Sunday night with sermon by Rev. W. P. Carmichael of Weslaco. The Sunday morning sermon was delivered by Dr. Frank Smith, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Houston. The old-fashioned camp meeting for 10 days drew good crowds, the preaching being done by Dr. Arthur J. Moore of Austin, while O. W. Stapleton of San Antonio directed the music.

The trustees have made arrangements to keep the camp open and the cafeteria going during the month of August, and reservations are being made by parties desiring to spend their vacations at the assembly grounds. No further program will be put on this summer, but in other respects the camp will run as usual.

The trustees are planning for a greatly enlarged program for next summer. In addition to the Epworth

LOCAL POST OFFICE DOING LARGE VOLUME OF BUSINESS

Outgoing First Class Mail Handled Through Kerrville Amounts to 30,030 Pieces in 12 Days.

Kerrville is growing mighty fast and along with the growth of the city business handled by the local Post Office is increasing proportionately. Just how much increase this business amounted to was something Uncle Sam was curious about so he set out finding it out.

The local office received orders from the Post Office Department to check all outgoing mail for a period of two weeks. This check was completed last Saturday, and the result showed that 30,030 letters were sent out from Kerrville in the period since July 14. As this amount did not include mail handled on Sunday, the actual checking days of the test numbered twelve, which makes an average of a little over 2,500 pieces of first class matter mailed here daily.

KERRVILLE RECOGNIZED BY THE RAILROADS AS VACATION RESORT

Lady Saves $28 on Ticket From Arizona to San Antonio by Buying Through to Kerrville.

Mrs. Yetta Tieska was in Kerrville Monday to have her ticket checked for the return trip to her home in Globe, Ariz., after a month's visit with her mother, Mrs. F. M. Lay, in San Antonio.

Rather a confusing bit of news at first glance, but Mrs. Tieska says there is nothing unusual about it except that she saved $28 on her round trip ticket by buying to this city instead of to the home of her mother.

When she went to the ticket office in Globe to purchase transportation to San Antonio she learned there was no rates in effect for the round trip. However the agent informed her that she could get reduced rates to Kerrville because of the vacation facilities of this section making it an inducement to the railroads to offer reduced fares.

So the lady purchased to Kerrville and return, and after visiting her mother in San Antonio continued on to her journey's end and then started back home, $28 richer than if she had bought to San Antonio alone.

The Sunday School auditorium had been transformed into a large reception room, with rugs, tables and chairs giving a very home-like appearance to the place. Potted plants, garden flowers and ferns were lavishly used in decorating the entire church.

IT'S TIME TO THINK

Returns of the primary from over the State bear out the surmise that the political issue has simmered down to a straight Klan and anti-Klan fight, with the survival of the Klan and its dominance of the State Government probable if Felix Robertson is nominated in the runoff, and with the downfall of the Klan and the pulling of its political fangs if Ferguson or Davidson is the winner.

Likewise in this county, the Klan survives or perishes with the result of the ballots of the voters—but here the issue will not be determined until the election in November, as the anti-Klan candidates and those candidates who did not care to have their names linked with the Klan doctrines, did not enter the primary but preferred to risk their fate in the general election.

With this situation staring the people in the face it behooves everyone to keep cool. The Klan issue upon religious questions and everybody knows that issues of this nature are liable to precipitate trouble unless people keep their heads. When a hot-headed man of one belief meets up with another of like temperament of the other side of the question there is danger of matters even going as far as bloodshed unless cooler heads intervene.

Kerr County citizens are facing about three months of this Klan and anti-Klan fight and it behooves wiser and cooler heads of both factions to preach discretion to their followers. There are good men on both sides of the controversy, and when this proposition is finally settled, no matter which way it goes, we will still all be citizens of the greatest country on earth—unless we talk too much.

Every since this question has been before the people The Sun has tried to be fair and impartial about the matter. Regardless of their personal opinions on the subject, the editors have felt that their duty to their subscribers and the community as a whole made it imperative that the paper take no sides on the question, but treat the proposition as fairly and impartially as possible, giving either side publicity when happenings in the nature of news stories justified same, and carefully refraining from editorial comment one way or the other.

The editors feel that they have no more right to foist their own personal opinions on their readers than has any other citizen of the county, and The Sun is not knowingly going to stir up more discord and discontent in the county by taking sides in a question of this sort if it can keep out of doing so.

When either side holds public meetings in this city The Sun will try and report to its readers a fair and impartial account of such meeting in order that when the election rolls around in November the voters may be fully informed on the subject in controversy.

And during this time let us all listen, read and reflect so that we may do our duty as citizens and voters when it comes time to vote.

UVALDE ATTORNEY SLAIN IN ELECTION QUARREL

San Antonio Light, July 28th: Fred McKenzie, held in connection with the shooting of Levi Old, 45, prominent Uvalde attorney, was transferred to the Bexar County jail last night for safekeeping, according to Jailer Tom Donohue. Old was shot to death at 7 o'clock Sunday morning in the offices of the Mahaffey Abstract Company, following what is said to have been a dispute over the election at Uvalde Saturday.

Old is declared by officers of Uvalde County to have been a prominent official of the Ku Klux Klan and had been active in politics for a number of years. He was shot four times with a 45-caliber automatic, the fatal shot striking him in the head.

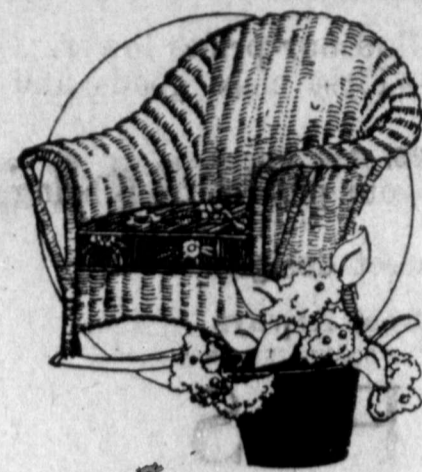

A tense situation developed immediately after the killing and four rangers, Fisher, McConnell, Hollis and Covington, were rushed to Uvalde by Capt. B. C. Baldwin, upon request of the sheriff and mayor of Uvalde. The rangers left here at noon Sunday and returned Monday morning.

It was believed late Sunday afternoon that the feeling had subsided, but owing to Old's prominence in the community, officers feared some kind of mob action and the prisoner was brought to Bexar County.

Old is said to have been unarmed at the time of the shooting. The trouble took place in the abstract company's office, where election returns were being received. A large crowd was gathered outside.

Friends of both men refused to make any statement after the shooting, although officers were told that the Klan issue was back of all the trouble. Bitter feeling developed between the two men some time ago, according to word received from Uvalde.

THE PASSING DAY
Will H. Mayer, Department of Journalism, Texas University

Two hundred and thirty-five members of the Boys' and Girls' Clubs of Shelby County were in Austin recently for a day and two nights. They were making a thousand mile itinerary of Texas and stopped to get acquainted with the capital of their State. Many of them had never been out of their home county in East Texas before starting on this trip. Most of them earned the money with which to pay the incidental expenses of the fifteen-day automobile trip, and most of the food used was grown and canned by the boys and girls. The girls made the clothing they wore.

As an educational tour nothing quite so helpful has ever been undertaken before. These youngsters are of an age when investigation, discovery, is likely to be the keenest interest in their lives. Nothing that came within their sight escaped them; nothing that was said to them was unheeded; everything will be remembered. Not only will they know and love their State better, but they will talk about it to the people back home. Shelby County will hereafter feel it is in Texas, rather than on the border between Louisiana and Texas. The girls and boys will fire the people at home with their enthusiasm, and pride in Texas will be intensified.

The trip provided for a four-day stay at the A & M College to be spent in an intensive study of farm and home problems and in meeting prize-winning boys and girls from all over Texas. What a wonderful opportunity! There several thousand of Texas' brightest young country people will learn from each other something of what the boys and girls throughout the State are doing. The competition for honors will be great, but the rivalry will put the contestants on their metal. The Shelby County contingent, themselves local prize winners, will be fired with an ambition to excel in whatever they do, and the ambition, once thoroughly aroused, seldom dies.

A feature of the trip that attracted much attention was that at each place where the party camped for the night, it served a feast of Shelby County products grown and canned by the girls and boys making the tour. No Texan ever ate a better dinner of nourishing, wholesome, body-building food. It illustrated that East Texas can feed itself with the best food and at slight expense, even through long sessions of drought or flood. All East Texas needs to do is to grow a sufficient variety of easily grown food products, can them, and live in luxury. The soil does its part; the seasons are favorable; it is only up to the people to be reasonably thrifty and energetic.

But the lesson should be worth more to West Texas than to the eastern part of the State. West Texas has periods of drought in which little food-stuff is raised. With sufficient regular rainfall so much is grown that a large part of it is wasted. There is not a county in all that great section of the State in which enough food could not be canned to tide over a drought of several years' duration. But aside from that, it must be nice to go to one's very own pantry at any time of the year and get cans of fresh vegetables and fruits of all kinds, and beef and spring chicken as good as that fresh from the market house. The time will come when most Texas farmers will have on hand at all times at least a year's supply of canned food. In almost every county of Texas barbecues and picnics have been held this month attended by thousands to hear political speeches and empty promises. Even small communities have spent hundreds of dollars in such gatherings. It is good to get the people together even in political meetings, but if one half of the energy spent in political gatherings could be devoted to community improvement, Texas would soon become a most wonderful State. If the people would only take that interest in affairs for their own improvement that they take for advancing the political interests of candidates for office, Texas development would be magical. Let it be hoped that some day Texas citizens may come to regard other things as of at least equal importance with politics.

Do Farmers Stick Together?

Farm and Ranch: It was not many years ago when one would frequently hear the statement that "It is all right for farmers to organize, but they won't stick together." Well, farmers have organized, and although they have made many mistakes, they are sticking together. In the South there are over 1,000 farmers' organizations transacting business of over a billion dollars annually. Their numbers are increasing and their business is growing. Farmers have called the turn on those who did not believe they could successfully conduct co-operative associations, and now, instead of sneering at their efforts, their business and their influence are much in demand.

Co-operative marketing is growing in favor of the producers. It is taking time to iron out the rough places. Managers had to learn by experience, and for a time the overhead more than consumed the profits of pooling. Today, organizations are running more smoothly. Office forces have been reduced and cost of operation brought down to reasonable figures. Co-operative marketing associations are winning the respect of the business world, and channels of trade are now opening to them that were closed during the earlier years of their existence. They are now recognized as important wheels in the business machinery of the country. Farmers are sticking together.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NOTES
By Father Kemper

MEXICAN MERCHANT BURIED
Among the residents of our local Mexican settlement, probably the one who wielded more influence than did Gomez Moreno, who was the oldest store-keeper among his fellow countrymen. Little wonder, therefore, that the transient citizens of "Little Mexico" looked with confidence to Don Juan for advice in their business dealings. His rendezvous was also a sort of employment exchange for the buyers and cotton farmers ready to help any deserving Mexican secure an honest livelihood for their large families.

Universal grief overspread the Mexican colony when Don Juan closed his useful career at Secor's Hospital last Friday at 1 a. m. Distracted with their sorrow at the loss of their unselfish counselor, the bereaved friends overlooked the early morning hour, and dolefully tolled the church bells for more than two days.

That is, any man who has done things that have made his name known, and that this unusual summons may have occasioned to other town-folks.

On Friday evening about two dozen automobiles were lined up in front of the Guadalupe Church, and after the obsequies were concluded, the mourners proceeded to the old Fredericksburg Road Cemetery.

Portiuncula Devotions
Tomorrow, for the convenience of the Ferguson patients and employees, the Friar Devotion will be held in the Convent Chapel at 6:30 a. m. Those who receive the holy sacraments on this occasion can leave this privilege for gaining the Portiuncula privileges, either that day or on the subsequent Sunday. By request of the Bishop, a collection is taken on First Fridays for the Foreign Mission cause.

Next week Right Rev. Monsignor Kiley, a classmate of Father Kemper, was granted a vacation to visit the missions in Japan and the Far East. Proud of their woman suffrage privilege, some of our Sisters left Kerrville during the past week in order to be at their home precinct in time to discharge their civic obligations. Faculty members of our local school conducted a most successful school Saturday meeting, with all the extra requirements in order to vote.

Mrs. C. Canosa, a wealthy Spanish lady, came here last Wednesday to enroll her only child at Notre Dame, but the young lady became homesick and the mother transferred her to the Incarnate Word College where better provisions are had for summer board-

Several new parishioners and non-Catholics have already secured reservations at Notre Dame for the coming scholastic year.

Miss Louise Colbath, one of our old boarders, came here Sunday to spend the day with the convent girls.

Miss Margaret Doring, another resident pupil, is in San Antonio with her mother and sister, on vacation.

What little "letter" positions are held by Miss Dora Schreiner, is filled by Miss Derieux of Santa Rosa Infirmary.

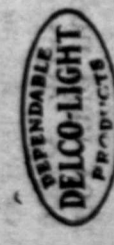

The Notre Dame care-taker, Mr. Farris, was surprised on Wednesday of last week with the premature return of his wife and children, who found the Galveston beach much hotter than Kerrville.

Personal
Will Reno and family, who used to live in Kerrville, camped last week on the Arthur Moseel ranch at Ingram. Miss Rose Dullahan returned to Houston, where she teaches in the Longfellow School with a sister-in-law of Mrs. Arthur Moseel.

At the Lady of the Lake mid-summer commencement, at Holy High School, the following were the recipients of the credits that are usually conceded for the vacation period. She and her two sisters were accepted by Prof. Steinhardt for the new St. Mary's choir.

Blinding Headaches

"For about twenty years," says Mr. P. A. Walker, a well-known citizen of Newburg, Ky., "one of our family remedies has been Black-Draught, the old reliable. I use it whenever I suffer from indigestion, stomach and irregularity. I was subject to headaches when my liver would get out of order. I would have blinding headaches and couldn't stoop about my work, just couldn't go. I used and it relieved me. About eight years ago my wife got down with liver and stomach trouble. We tried all week to help her, but she didn't get any better. One day I said to the doctor, 'I believe I will try Black-Draught.' He said, 'Why not? It should follow directions and to follow directions couldn't eat or rest. She began taking Black-Draught and in two days she was greatly improved and in a week she was up. Try Black-Draught. It costs only one cent a dose. Sold everywhere.' E-99

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

The July attendance contest in the Bible School closed Sunday. The last Sunday and held the honors until next Sunday by the young folks, and the young folks had expected defeat, even when the record for the month closed. When the record for the month closed, after congratulations were extended, a committee was appointed to arrange time, place and manner of treat, and report next Sunday.

We begin an August contest next Sunday. We appreciate the faithful help of Mrs. Middiff in a communication in regard to a new pastor. Wednesday prayer meeting every Wednesday night at 8:15. The attendance meetings are very encouraging. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested to attend these meetings of the church.

Missionary Society Meets

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist Church met in the Dollar-Day meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. T. Moore. Roses and varicolored zinnias adorned the living room and the dining room.

After the devotional service, led by Mrs. L. E. Clapp, a musical program was rendered. Those contributing were Mrs. E. J. Moore, Mrs. Eliza McClendon, Elizabeth Clapp, H. H. Moore and Mrs. McCreaty and Miss Treese. Mrs. McCreaty also favored the occasion with a very humorous reading.

A musical contest and tray contest furnished quite a deal of fun. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. August 5th, the women will have their regular business meeting. This is the time for election of officers for the ensuing year.

STAPLES BOY SCOUTS SPEND WEEK AT METHODIST CAMP

The Staples Boy Scouts, troop No. 1, returned to their home last Thursday after a week spent at the Methodist Encampment, on a general vacation and outing.

The boys were headed by their scoutmaster, W. C. Call, who is pastor of the Methodist Church at Staples. They made the trip in a Ford truck, and camped near the river where there are fishing and swimming pastimes. The boys enjoyed the outing immensely and report that they will return next year with a much larger bunch.

METHODIST CHURCH

The Assembly closed last Sunday night. It was in every way a great occasion. All expressed surprise that so much could be done in the short period of preparation. Much remains to be done for the enlarged program next year.

With next Sunday we take up the regular services in our church. Sunday School at 8:40; preaching at 11 a. m.

Dr. Frank Smith, pastor of First Methodist Church, Houston, will preach for us on next Sunday. Dr. S. H. C. Burgin is to be with us on the second and third Sunday nights in August. He will bring to us his great lecture on "Palestine, Past and Present." Dr. and Mrs. Burgin visited the Holy Land last summer. Announcement of definite date of coming will be made later.

We hope to see all of our members and friends back at Sunday School and Church on Sunday next. We cordially invited to worship with us.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

Rev. C. E. Cook of Laredo preached an excellent sermon for us last Sunday. He took for his subject St. Luke's account of the miraculous draft of fish, emphasizing the fact that when Peter acknowledged his sinfulness and unworthiness our Lord said, "Fear not, I will make you fishers of men, going forth upon the sea."

The Lord has work for each of us to do and expects us to quit making excuses, go ahead and do the best we can, whether the task be large or small.

Next Sunday Rev. Arthur Huston of St. Mark's, San Antonio, will preach and celebrate the Holy Communion at the 11 o'clock service. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Kerrville was swarming with grasshoppers last Saturday morning, the insects covering the ground in all sections of the city. The hoppers came in with the north wind Friday night and had evidently flown a great distance as they were sluggish and worn out. They were in everybody's way Saturday morning and thousands were trodden under foot on the sidewalks and run down by automobiles in the streets. Chickens and turkeys also accounted for untold numbers.

We are in a position to quote a low price on sewer connections if we can continue to put them in wholesale. To do this it is necessary that the people co-operate by signing up at once so that groups of properties may be served at one time.

If we have to come back later to put in special jobs it will cost more and we will be forced to charge more.

MUELLER LOSES 2-HIT GAME TO COMFORT BRONCHOS, 5-4

The Comfort Bronchos won a 5-4 decision over Kerrville Athletics Sunday afternoon on the Comfort grounds. The game was the most hectic affair ever played by the Athletics. The Bronchos only made two hits off Mueller in the entire nine frames and scored five times. Errors were the cause of three runs being scored together in the fourth inning by Comfort.

In the first inning it looked as if there would be a good game on tap for a good crowd of fans. Mueller struck out two men in the first and Gudat was touched but fielding saved a hit. In the third inning Kerrville's infield blew-up and two runs came across without a hit. Satcher got on base by an error and Gudat walked. Faltin walked and a score was hung up after a fly to center. Another error let in the other run made in this round.

Rain held up the game about 25 minutes with the bases full in the fourth. When the game was resumed losses fielding and two errors, let in two runs and the bases filled again, and before the inning was over another run crossed the platter. Mueller tightened up and the field work also improved after this round.

In the seventh Kerrville scored one run after two were out on three successive singles by Saenger, Barry and Flory. In the eighth three more were scored on three straight hits. Wilson and Lochte singled and Henke then scored when Karger went to first. It looked as though Gudat was through for the afternoon but fielding ended the round and in the ninth Flory flied to right, and Mueller, after fouling five sent a grounder to first and Wilson was out second to first.

The Athletics were off form entirely, playing loose ball through the third, fourth and fifth innings. In the latter part of the game a shift in the infield improved the work and the Bronchos went out in order in the last innings. There was considerable wrangling over the decision of the umpire, and in the fourth, when several close decisions were called against the Athletics the arbiter was changed and was for a while better.

It was a hard game to lose, but the Athletics hope to make up for it, when the teams meet again.

WHAT TO DO AFTER QUITTING TIME

By Tom Finty Jr.

The following article by Tom Finty Jr. in Commercial and Finance of July 16th, was handed me by Dr. Galbraith. It so well expresses the opinion of the present School Board that I have asked The Sun to give it space.

TOM C. JOHNSTON, Pres.
Kerrville School Board.

Schools cannot be appraised on the same basis as a bank, for their dividends are intangible. But, "By their fruits ye shall know them."

If any confidence could be placed in statistics, it could be said that the schools have done well, for the illiteracy rate in the United States was out 10.7 per cent in 1900 to 6 per cent in 1920.

But various things go to show that there are many spoils among the fruits of our schools. Within the last five or six years voluntary criticisms of the school product have come to me from business and professional men, many of them college trained. These criticisms are summarized thus: The young men and women coming from the schools within recent years do not compare favorably with earlier products; they are lacking in thoroughness and industry, cannot spell, guess at things, seem to think more of sports, amusements and frivolities than of duties, desire to leave their work for amusements, etc., have expensive habits, are impatient for advancement, and have an exaggerated idea of the importance of their educational equipment. Here is a typical statement from the president of a great railroad system:

"Some years ago I became seized of the idea that it would be a fine thing to put picked college trained men in our service with the view of training them for official status. But the experiment is at an end. Nearly all of these young men demanded promotion to official positions at the end of six months. Relying upon college training, they thought experience unnecessary."

It is evident that these young men had believed that college training makes leaders, and also that they had acquired expensive habits.

Among the many evidences of low interest in scholarship among students is the fact that college newspapers are packed with articles relating to athletic contests, society functions, play of various kinds and jokes; rarely is there anything reflecting intellectual interest.

Langdon Mitchell, in a recent article in the Atlantic writes:

"The American family has no intellectual interests. I am under the impression that our college professors will in a measure agree with me that most of our college boys are disdainful of the arts and sciences; that the American student is a fine, upstanding, honest, well-intentioned, athletic and empty-headed fellow; that at thirty or fifty he is still this, and nothing more; and no light matter—that his ideal men are the ideal men of the whole community: Mr. Ford, Mr. Bryan, and others upon whom the professor looks somewhat coldly."

In attempting to account for the lowering in the quality of the school product, I quote indirectly from Dr. Pritchett, who says that parents largely have ceased to perform their parental duties, and the colleges are dealing with flabby young men and women, miseducated, below.

There are faults in the school program throughout, the result in part of unfortunate but generally well-meant efforts to adjust the schools to a changed world. Having gotten numbers and a fat curriculum, the schools are using the factory system and are engaged in mass production. Teachers must deal with children en masse and according to rote. They get about as much joy out of their work as do machine operators in large factories. Personal relations and the personal equation are suppressed. An effort is made to give the pupils a large assortment of knowledge. They get very little that stays with them, and even less of cultural value. As the teaching in the elementary and high schools is "with a view to college entrance," children who leave school early have little that is useful. The emphasis that is given to play and frivolity has created an unwholesome atmosphere. It is distracting. Athletics have become commercialized in many colleges; men are hired to attend that they may play on the football teams, and the money is slipped to them under various guises. The deception is an encouragement to dishonesty. And the craze has promoted extravagance and gambling and lowered the manners of the students.

As football coaches have become the heroes of the campus, and in many cases receive higher salaries than first rate professors, it has become the ambition of many students to train for athletic careers, and professors are provoked to Bolshevism.

For a dozen years the organized alumni of a certain State University has kept it prominently before the public that "The Shacks on the Campus" are a disgrace; but the first contribution of the alumni to their alma mater is not an edifice to replace a shack, but, instead, is a stadium!

College education has become tremendously expensive. State Colleges, as a rule, make no charge for tuition; but because of the craze for athletics, society and play, living expenses have become very high. The situation is prohibitive to poor boys and girls, except such as are blessed with sensible parents and are richly endowed with common sense and intestinal equipment. The same is true, in a milder degree, of the lower schools.

In 1923 a committee appointed by the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States reported on a survey they had made of intercollegiate athletics. They condemned the contests as now conducted, but leaned to the idea that these might be brought within safe bounds. They showed that one Texas College (name not given) favors abolishing such contests.

A number of educators, some of them heads of institutions, have revealed to me that they are worried over the condition herein described. But they seem to be helpless. The committee above referred to intimates that this condition is widespread, and it ascribes the same largely to the influence of the alumni in associations and as members of the boards of regents. About two years ago a lecturer declared that the parents of this age are the most obedient that the world has ever known. The same might be said of our educators in general.

The so-called enrichment of the curriculum has been a large factor in the impairment of the schools. Many new subjects have been added, and old subjects have been divided. Four or five textbooks and four or five jobs have been caused to grow where only one grew before. Dr. Pritchett declares that vocational training in high schools is a mistake, a farce; that it interferes with more essential work, and even from a practical standpoint it cannot be given in high schools. Trades, he asserts, ought to be taught in trade schools.

These conclusions are in line with my own, except that I believe that criticism ought to apply to colleges as well as to high schools. Departments of domestic science, manual training, business and journalism and military instruction as well ought to be abolished. It strikes me as funny that typewriting should be taught anywhere, ludicrous that it should be taught in a college or university, and tragic that there should be so many schools of journalism. Journalists and other writers are born, not made. And, with consolidation of newspapers, and the growing employment of press associations and syndicates, the demand for newspaper workers rapidly is shrinking, not growing as the students are led to believe.

It is fair to say not all of the students taking the vocational courses are deceived. Many enroll for them because of the obvious opportunity to get "credits" easily and because they have been "wished on to the schools." It is also true that Barkis has been rather willing. These criticisms are largely in harmony with the expressions, public and private, of thoughtful and sincere men and women in the teaching profession, and it is to them that we must look in the main for application of remedies.

If we are to solve the school problem, we must begin with frank recognition of the great social and economic problem that has resulted from the wholesale use of machinery. This problem is two fold. First, jobs must be found for all persons willing to work in useful employment. As it seemingly is futile to think of junking the machine, shorter hours of work are indicated as the only possible way of giving every willing worker an honest job. This remedy applied, of course, would intensify the second branch of the problem, for already abundant leisure would be increased. It is here that the schools ought to serve chiefly, concentrating upon training for the wholesale utilization of leisure, rather than training for work, for money-making. All of us know pretty well what to do in working hours, but most of us are stumped after quitting time.

To solve the school problem calls for an outside job principally, for the schools are in trouble largely because of widespread false ideas concerning them. If the schools are to be redeemed, we must come to an understanding of what schools are for and what education is. We have proceeded upon the theory that educational work is confined to schools, and that it is the mission of schools to furnish knowledge upon many subjects. High authorities say that this is not true; that instead it is the mission of schools to train persons to think. Dr. Arthur T. Hadley says: "Bad education teaches us to know, while good education teaches us to know how."

My own illustration is this: Parents teach their children to walk; they take them out on the footballs, point to the mountain peaks and tell them of their grandeur. If ambition is awakened in these children, they will climb to the top in spite of difficulties.

Also, we have ascribed to the schools a necromantic power that they do not possess; we have believed that the schools alone and unaided can educate men and women. A Texas statesman many years ago asserted that "Civilization begins and ends with the plow." It would be nearer the truth to say that "Civilization and education begin and end with the home." Schools can do little for a child who hasn't been "brought up."

It would be helpful if we would give thought to some of the old sayings, such as that "You can have too much of a good thing"; "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise"; neither a parent nor the State can buy a capacity for a boy or girl; you may lead a boy (or a girl) to college, but you can't make him think; "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear"; one cannot be carried to the skies (even in an educational way) on flow'ry beds of ease; "The love of money is a root of all kinds of evil," and the first need of the schools is not dollars, but, instead, sense—common sense.

The curriculum ought to be pruned, and cultural training ought to be put ahead. Intercollegiate athletics ought to be abolished.

Under such a program, attendance might dwindle. It ought to dwindle. It is wrong to tax the people to support places of amusement, in which it is difficult or impossible to do serious work. The idea that schools can substitute for parents ought to be dispelled, so that parents may be impelled to resume the performance of their duties.

No boy or girl ought to be suffered to remain in a school unless he is there with serious purpose to learn. For a long time I believed that the test of purpose should be a requirement that every student in schools above the elementary grades should work his way through. But now I believe that the Antioch plan provides a better test.

Students enroll in Antioch college in co-operating pairs. A pair has one place in college and a joint job outside. The two members alternate in college and on the job. The course is six years. In the six years, the young men learn both in school and on the job. At the end of that period they are college-trained men with six years of business or industrial experience.

The prominent school officer to whom I referred early in this paper as saying that "A lot of stuff has been wished on to the schools," added the following: "There is much more of this stuff than you have listed, but what you say and what Dr. Pritchett is saying will have no effect. The people are filled with the idea of 'democracy in education'; they are demanding that every child shall have an equal educational opportunity, and that education shall be free from bottom to top. Much more money will be spent for education, and the Federal Government will contribute largely."

Maybe he is right. I have already said that the solution of the problem calls for an outside job. But I hope and believe that in time the people will come to see that money alone is not solving the problem; to realize that although their children may have equal opportunity, they are not getting good educational opportunity, and that free tuition is nullified by the extra-legal costs at school, caused by the social, amusement and athletic activities. If this hope shall be vindicated, then I believe that it will be found that the motto of the people is "Millions for education, but not one cent for waste!"

WHY FIDO WAGS HIS TAIL?

To advertise! It is his mode of telling the world of that particular mental state known as happiness.

When the baby laughs, when the sun shines, when the flowers bloom, when dinner sends out its inviting aroma—when any one of a thousand other things happen which attract your attention—you are being advertised to.

The whole purpose of any advertisement is to excite your curiosity, gain your interest, arouse your desire; to tell you something you don't know; to remind you of something you have forgotten; to convince you of something over which you have been hesitating; to help you get the best at least cost.

In short, the purpose of an advertisement is, in one way or another, to make you happier. Think it over. Read the advertisements in The Mountain Sun and see if that isn't so.

You'd Be Surprised to Know the Results a Want Ad in THE KERRVILLE MOUNTAIN SUN Will Bring.

term: Smith, 152,947; Nabors, 123,066; Speer, 66,873; West, 53,156.

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court: Cureton, 161,526; Wear, 123,012; Buck, 103,258.

The Election Bureau to date has tabulated 623,494 votes, it was announced.

In the race for State Senator, unofficial sources credit T. H. Ridgeway as receiving the nomination over his competitor, A. D. Rogers. Roscoe Lunge is also ahead of B. J. Stewart for State Representative, according to the best information obtainable.

One of the contests that manifested more interest, possibly, than any other in Kerrville, was the race for District Judge between the present incumbent, R. H. Burney and L. J. Brucks, present District Attorney. Incomplete returns on this race indicate that the Kerrville man is winner by almost a three-to-one majority.

In the District Attorney race David C. Brown is leading with W. C. Baker of this city second and Will Glover running last by nearly 300 votes. Unless official returns materially change the standing of the contestants as given out unofficially, Brown and Baker will compete in the run-off the 23rd of August.

As there were only candidates filed for a few of the county offices and no opposition before the primary against those filed, little interest was taken in this part of the ballot. Out of the 939 votes cast in the primary, the highest number received by a county candidate was 659.

WATER STREET BEING WIDENED THROUGH THE DOWN TOWN SECTION

matter came up for discussion several months ago. This committee announces that the street is to be widened the same width the entire two blocks through the generosity of the Schreiner Wool & Mohair Commission Company, who are contemplating cutting about ten feet off the front of their warehouse in the near future, to afford passageway for the sidewalk. In the meantime the street will be widened the full distance, which leaves only about two feet of walk along the front of the warehouse. It is estimated that the remodeling of the building will cost the Schreiners several thousand dollars, as the building is constructed of natural rock.

One matter of regret about the street widening, especially among the old-timers, is that all the trees along this side of the two blocks have to come down. Most of these trees were planted between 25 and 30 years ago and it is but natural for anyone to hate to see them cut down. However, they are in the way of progress and their removal is another indication of the evolution of the town of Kerrville into that of a city.

Kerrville has been unfortunate during the present summer in that her principal streets, both business and residential, have been torn up on account of the sewer system being installed and the improvements being put in on the water system. As a consequence of these improvements, the dust in the city has been bad all season and has in some instances given visitors a wrong impression when they have failed to investigate the cause of the same.

The city authorities have been attempting for the past several weeks to alleviate this dust nuisance by applying a coating of oil to the heaviest traveled streets. A car of oil was delivered here some three weeks ago for this purpose but was so thick that it could not be spread successfully. However another car of oil of lighter consistency is expected in this week and will be applied to the streets immediately.

The citizens have been at a disadvantage all summer in their attempts to entertain guests of the city, and will be handicapped for several weeks yet, especially in the business section while the paving work is going on, but next season the city will be in shape to entertain guests without any of the dust and dirt they have encountered the present summer.

CHAS. DURRIN SELLS OUT TO A. B. BRADEN

A business deal was completed this week whereby Chas. Durrin sold his interest in the Davis & Durrin Tailor Shop to A. B. Braden of this city. The change in ownership is scheduled for tomorrow, and the new firm will be composed of Mr. Braden and Nelson Davis, who will operate under the name of Kerrville Tailoring Co.

Both Messrs. Davis and Braden are well known in business circles, having been engaged in the tailoring business here for many years. They are both experienced tailors and are putting in additional machinery in their place of business that will enable them to handle all classes of work in a satisfactory manner.

Mr. Durrin is uncertain what his plans for the future are, but states that he has no intention of leaving Kerrville.

A Boston woman with a broad social experience for some years has been inducing girls in a finishing school to observe these five rules in judging a man: See him in work—notice his attitude toward his associates. See him when things go wrong. See how he acts in a trying situation. Determine his attitude toward his mother. And remember—society manners are merely superficial.
