THE DOUBLE ROAD TAX

"New Mexican motorists have to pay a double road tax," stated W. C. Davidson, State Highway Engincer, to-day, "and they will continue to pay it until to realize that it is the problem of every man who we can finish our primary road system. I refer to the lives in a country, be he urban or rural. Our problem bad roads tax.'

"In December or January of each year the New out of the soil and allied industries. Mexican motorist pays a good roads tax to his county treasurer when he pays for his license fee," he went on to explain. "With every gallon of gasoline he buys he pays another good roads tax. For these he gets value received. Every time he has to bump along over a bad road increasing depreciation on his car, increasing operating cost and losing valuable time he pays a part of society. bad road tax.'

Some motorists pay out more on a single trip for pull-outs extra gasoline, repairs, chains, cleaning the return. But no matter how true this may be, it is no car, getting their clothes cleaned and other expenses reason for not protesting against inefficiency and waste. than they do for a year's license fee or a year's gas tax, he pointed out.

"Building good roads now means eliminating this tax," he said, "In all the schemes for tax reduction this one is the quickest and surest scheme that can be offered. It offers no field for argument to say that the motorists of this state will pay back to themselves in savings of the bad road tax (which is inescapable except in one way) in one year than the entire interest charge on debentures for a like time. And beside escaping this tax they have the road left when that that a jack rabbit will eat 0.68 pounds of green alfalfa year is over and several more like it.

"The quicker we build good, smooth roads, preferably roughage as a cow. with an oil or hard surfacing, the sooner we abolish the bad roads tax. A major offensive against this tax will start in June with money received from the farm population is the smallest of any time within

MICKIE SAYS—

 She Was Tressady's Girl

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆(Copyright.)

THE girl was a symphony of autumn color—scarlet-sumach lips, eyes dusk with the bloom of ripe wild grapes, tawny-russet hair matching the oak boughs overhead.

A man on watch smiled, saying half I go I will tell all I know about each aloud: "She can ride!" Then after a minute: "Let's see-she must be Tressady's girl-Margot I think her name is. Will we come together, I wonder?"

He was shrewdly handsome--not young but youngish, stoutly made, pure Saxon in coloring, the red showing faintly through very deep tan. He rode quite to match Tressady's girl, but was not quite so well mounted. Abreast of the gate he checked, as though to go through it, but rode on after a slight shake of the head.

He suited his name-Edmund Allison, seeming as solidly commonplace to most people. Yet he had a wide tolerance. Only two things moved him to murderous wrath-malicious lying and cruelty to small children or animals. So when a mile ahead he came upon an ill-looking fellow, beating alternately a small lad and starying pup, he swung down without a word, caught him strongly and slammed him against the roadside.

"I could cut yer heart out-only I'd ruther have the law on ye-villyan that ye are!" the man spluttered, flashing a keen blade as he rose.
"Do!" said Allison. "Law's just what I want. I'll see that you get it -all you deserve." "Oh, I reckin not!" the fellow swaggered, before sending a keen whistle through fingers held over his mouth. Allison knew it for a call to lagging partners.

Instantly he had out a pistol from an under-arm leather holster, saying airily: "Now, my friend, let's go lawhunting. Think I know the way-as no doubt you also do. Major Tressady's the man you want to see-he lives close by. About face. March! Your boy may ride behind me-you take the pup. We want quick justice -and plenty of it."

"I see you gettin' justice when my mob gits here—they won't be long findin' me when I call. Now, shoot and be d-d to ye," the man cried snatching up the child and making a shield of him.

Allison, scrambling to saddle, gave the hunting hallo, thrice repeated. His heart leaped as it was echoed, the keen note undervoiced by galloping hoofs, and shrill sweet cries of com-

Drooping his child the hobo tried to run-he found himself headed off by a mounted pair-Tressady and Tressady's girl were luckily coming out by the back road, instead of the front, and heard the cry.

Margot took the child and the pup under her protection—her father and Allison rounded up the mob and herded it into the hands of the sheriff. It was almost sundown before they got back to Three Ways, there to find Margot running her sewing machine at top speed making new clothes for the waif thrust so suddenly upon her hands. He had been bathed, clipped, anointed on scars and bruises, then put to bed, where he was still sleep ing soundly. Allison thought he had never seen a face to match Margot's as she bent above the sleeper with quivering lips. The puppy, equally transfigured and even happier than his some time master, lay snug at Mar-

"He'll think he's in heaven-if dogs know about it," Allison said smiling down at the small beast.

"And he'll keep on thinking so," Margot said, over her shoulder, "I am going to keep my findings for Black Mammy to play with and coddle-she needs something now that I'm too grownup."

"See here! I think I need them ever so much worse," Allison interrupted. "A lone bachelor with a big house, and nobody in it. Isn't that a case of real destitution?"

"No! It's all your own fault," Margot flung back saucily. "If you hadn't been so wrapped up in getting to congress, and making a fortune, you might have your house full by this

"I need help-lots of it," Allison said pointedly.

Margot blushed till her cheeks out shone her sumach-red lips, but said gallantly: "I'm sure your neighbors would help you-if you asked them. Have you ever tried it?"

"He has not! You can gamble on that fact-especially after you ask the Widow Dusenberry," Major Tressady called from the next room where he was busy with spoons and glasses.

Margot gave Allison a long re-proachful glance, saying: "I've heard ever since I was a little girl that you were a truthful person. To think of finding you at this late day a real

"I am truthful-truthful as men come," Allison protested. "Come out on the porch and I'll make you believe it in about half and hour.'

"Five minutes is plenty-if you have got anything really to say," Major Tressady shouted. Margot half rose— Allison lifted her to her feet and drew her upon the plazza, saying with his lips close to her cheek: "It might take all that time to tell you—I can show you a lot quicker." Forthwith he kissed her plump on

Under its contract with the United adjoining states, and the fact that States, New Mexico must continue construction of federal aid roads until the entire 3300 miles of its seven been permitted to use practical busiand it must in the meantime maintain the roads constructed with the federal aid up to standard. This is a big contract. Most of the other states are meeting their obligations under the federal aid road law by large issues of bonds payable from property taxes.

The people of New Mexico are fortunate in having a governor and legislators who have provided for taking care of this obligation for the past two years and the next two years by the issue of debentures that will be paid by using only part of the gasoline tax. Motor vehicle registration fees should produce $450,000 for the state road fund for the next fiscal year and it is estimated that the amount will increase eight per cent each year.

Therefore, the gasoline tax and motor vehicle fees will pay off the debentures now outstanding and the $5,600,000 to be issued and there will also be enough money from these sources to take care of maintenance, administration, equipment, emergency and other requirements of the highway department.

The law requires the state treasurer to set aside each month from the road fund receipts enough money to create a sinking fund to pay the interest and to pay the principal of the debentures as they mature.

It seems safe to assume that some motor fuel that comes within the liberal definition of gasoline in the New Mexico law will be used in automobiles for at least the next ten years. Also that if something else be discovered to replace gasoline the legislature will impose a tax upon it to pay the debentures.

It has been frequently suggested that the legislature should appropriate a specified sum of money for each project and purpose of the high-way department, and that the legislature should direct just where and how the money should be expended. That the public is entitled to know just what roads are to be improved and constructed during the next two years and how much money is appropriated for each road.

The difficulty is that the members of the legislature cannot know in advance for two years what amount

Paneled Gable Ends Add to Attractiveness of This Design

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subhighest authority on all these sub-jects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Here is a home in the English style which should make a strong appeal. It is something quite out of the ordinary yet of such good design in every feature that people will not tire of it and it will never go out of style. A house of this type always has a good resale value if it is properly kept up and cared for.

This house is finished in stucco which may be applied over either frame construction or some form of masonry, such as hollow tile or concrete blocks. The numerous gable ends are made attractive by panelfing and the simple, outside fireplace

Roof Is Important for

Looks and Protection In general, the roof is the first part its height above eye level, the roof plays an important part in the appearance of the home. How unfortunate it is to have a dwelling still fresh in appearance, so far as walls and trim are concerned, crowned with a dingy roof after a short period of time! And how unnecessary it is to have an unharmonious element of construction in a home intended to last for years.

In many communities this condition has been eliminated automatically by legislation against inflammable roofs. The familiar wooden shingle departs and in its stead there must be a roofing material that is either absolutely fireproof or at least extremely fire-retardant.

There are several types of fireproof roofing, among which asbestos shingles stand out prominently. Asbestos shingles, which are constructed of asbestos fibers united with portland cement under terrific hydraulic pressure, meet the demand for a fireproof material. but they have other advantages which commend them to all home owners and home builders.

Some of the outstanding advantages are durability. Asbestos has endured the assault of nature for centuries without change, and will endure for centuries more whether in the mine or on a roof.

The dome of the Roman Pantheon. erected 1,800 years ago, is constructed of cement, and good authority testifles that it is in excellent condition today. When a body of a building is crumbling, the roof of asbestos shingles will still be as good as when first laid.

Economy is another point. It is a well-known principle that economy does not end with the initial cost, and that, in many cases, the initial cost does not determine the degree of economy to be effected. With asbestos shingles, economy begins with the first cost and never ends. Possessing none of the irritating characteristics of inflammable roofing, a roof of asbestos shingles pays to the owner's account the amount he would have to pay for periodical roof repairs. Yet the first cost is only slightly higher than inflammable roofing materials.

Convenience is a third point. It is well to consider the ease of laying, assured by the self-spacing holes already punched in each shingle. This feature makes for a neat and trim job. If the job is one of reroofing, the old shingles need not be pulled off, but left on to act as a base for the new roof and as insulation against heat escape in winter and against heat entrance in summer. There is no muss, no

FORMER BUICK DEALER IS NOW AIDE TO HOOVER

Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri is new Secretary of Agriculture

President Hoover's recent appointment of former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri as Secretary of Agriculture, brings for the first time a man from the automobile industry to the cabinet of the nation's chief executive. Secretary Hyde has long been a Buick dealer at Trenton, Mo.

The appointee has established a remarkable record both in political circles and as a business man. Com-circles and as a business man. Com-ing, as he does, from the very heart of the farm belt, Secretary Hyde, through the farm belt, Secretary Hyde, through his long association with problems confronting tillers of the soil, is especially qualified to meet the responsibilities connected with this highly important cabinet post.

Being the owner of three large farms in Missouri, Mr. Hyde has a first hand knowledge of the farm problem. The work confronting the new secretary will be largely of an new secretary will be largely of an administrative nature, and his automobile business experience will be of inestimable value in dealing with the ramifications of the farm question, because it, too, is essentially a business problem.

As a lawyer he administered to chandiser of Buick cars his dealings with them brought him into even closer touch with their financial and domestic problems; as governor of Missouri he became the champion of their cause—and now as a member of President Hoover's cabinet he is to become instrumental in solving one of the most difficult situations confronting the American nation.

fronting the American nation.

Secretary Hyde is an intensely active man. When he practiced law he was eminently successful. Law has always been his central activity, but as time went by he became increasingly interested in the automotive world as a dealer in Buick Motor cars. He has made a remarkable success of his automobile business, which he retained during his tenure which he retained during his tenure of office as governor and in which he still has an interest.

NEW MEXICO INCOME

ALBUQUERQUE—New Mexico is expected to pay around $1,000,000 in income tax to the federal government in 1929, which is the largest amount since the state became a separate district, according to B. C. Hernandez, federal collector.

In 1926 the amount collected was $650,000; in 1927 $732,000; and in 1928, $835,000.

INCREASE IN AUTOS EVIDENCE OF PROGRESS IN ROAD CONSTRUCTION

SANTA FE-In 1914 there were 4,826 automobiles licensed in New Mexico, an old record found in the dead files of the highway department proudly boasts. In 1913, the record recites, there were 884 cars and it is happily stated that "the big increase in the number of automobiles owned and operated in New Mexico constitutes perhaps the best evidence of the progress of the state in good road building."

This same report carries the information that there were five homemade automobiles in the state in the year 1915. These five were amply supported by 187 makes of cars, most of which are only memories to-day.

As to-day, the lowly "flivver" leads the list with a total of 1994 cars to its credit. Buick seemed to enjoy a large popularity in those days with 602 cars registered. Overland was third with 364, Studebaker fourth with 282, Cadillac fifth with 120, Hupmobile 110, and Reo 110.

Among the high price class cars was Pierce Arrow with 8 and Packard with a like number. A car no longer seen but often considered the Rolls Royce of its day was the Pathfinder of which there were 7 in the state.

Then comes a long list of cars which will bring back memories of proud days and dusty careers underneath. Auto Car, Abbot, Detroit, American La France (this was an underslung model,) Chalmers, E. M. F. (which its detractors named Every Morning Fixit,) Flanders consolidated with Studebaker along with E. M. F., Jeffreys, King, which used to boast that no one had the nerve to open "her wide up" it being rumored that the car would travel the unbelievable speed of 85 miles per hour, Metz (chain drive,) Mitchell with the famous red wheels, Moline (one of the first to use the Knight attachment,) National (often used for racing.) There were also the Rambler which in its day was one of the high priced cars, Saxon, at first a "bug' type or in other words a glorified cycle car and the pride of the young blades of the day, Stevens Duryea, as broad of beam as a tow boat and roomy as a pullman car, Simplex, a well known speed demon and favored greatly by the "gentlemen sportsmen," Thomas Flyer, often used in racing, Winton, one of the first sixes to be successfully manufactured, White Steamer whose makers offered $1,000 to anyone who would 'open her up" it being rumored that the car would make a speed of 100 miles per hour and at which speed it was thought no man could live, and dozens of other lost makes.

To-day, a very few of these numerous makes appear on the registraion roles as many of them have been absorbed by big companies and still more have gone the way of all STONE FRUIT TREES thunderbuggies. > STATE BANK DEPOSITS ARE ON THE INCREASE

SANTA FE .- The combined re sources of thirty reporting state banks as of the close of business TAX TO RUN MILLION March 7, 1929, State Bank Examiner Lawrence Tamme announced Saturday were $14,138,289.31, representing an increase of $1,182,162.22 over the call of February 28, 1928.

Loans and discounts increased $1,- 373,849.40 aggregating $7,493,687.2b This increase Mr. Tamme said, is attributed to the resumption of farm activities. Approximately 60 per cent of the total is represented by agricultural loans including loans on livestock while only ten per cent is employed in security loans. There is no evidence, he said, that funds are being loaned by state banks on security markets to the detriment of local credit.

How Glass Can Be Cut.

A method of cutting glass clean and straight without the aid of a glass cutter is given as follows: Dip a piece of common string in alcohol and squeeze reasonably dry, then tie it around the glass on the line of cutting. Touch a match to it and let it burn off. While the glass is hot plunge it under water, letting the arm go well under to the elbow, so there will be no vibration when the glass is struck. With the free hand strike stick or knife. Of course this will leave a sharp edge around the cutting.

F. S. Donnell, Santa abstracter, who was a visitor in the Pecos valley Tuesday, confired a statement made in and associates were preparing to test the right of the secretary of interior to cancel applications for prospecting seven o'clock in the evening and new oil ruling, which would be retroactive in effect.

The decision in the Alling case by the appellate court is as follows: From Federal Reporter, issued April 4th, 1929.

Court of Appeals of District of Columbia.

West, Secretary of the Interior,

United States ex rel. Alling. Argued November 7, 1928. Decided January 7, 1929.

Protecting Paint

By adding a half pint of oil of cedar to each gallon of paint one may combat the very annoying curiosity of flies and gnats to find out for themselves if the wet paint is really wet. Some painters prefer to use oil of citronella in smaller quantities. The effect is the same, the insects will avoid the fresh paint because of the odor.

Helena's Beginning

In 1864 Helena, Mont., was founded by a band of prospectors headed by John Cowan, At first it was called Last Chance Gulch, as they had been looking for gold all through the spring without success and considered this their last chance for that season. On June 15, 1864, an abundance of gold was located.

Ginseng in Commerce

Nearly all ginseng grown in this country is shipped to China for medicinal use. The industry depends entirely on the Oriental market. Ginseng is consumed in negligible quantitles by the Chinese in this country, and the plant has practically no value in the United States or in other countries outside of China.
