

TO JOIN FEDERAL BUREAU IN OFFICIAL CENSUS

Joining in with other states the Federal Bureau of Mexico is to have a unique census such as the government road bureau highway commission authorized cooperation with this purpose.

The census will be borne partly by the federal bureau and partly by the state. It was declared by high officials. Several other states have notified their intention of joining the government-wide census.

The census takings which the highway men say. It is the accurate census which the sponsor will not only help in studying road capacities, effect on other technical problems and also of aid commercial men whose ventures on traffic rise and fall.

Places Use Name "Pig and Whistle"

"Greenwich Village" has the "Pig and Whistle"—in fact, the "Bohemian" restaurants, America and England, which believe "Pig and Whistle" is the name of a place of which this should be so is a corruption of how two such uncorrelated and meaningless words should be applied to a place of which the expression "Pig and Whistle" is a corruption of the language, which read "Bowling" and "Wassall Cup and Whistle".

English "Wassall" was a sort of English used in drinking with the cup. It was the equivalent of our "To your health".

Old English, the "pig" was a pig or mug. "Wassall" in reality "Drink hearty," achieved a perfectly logical use as a identification for a place in line and toast one another's Kansas City Star.

ON AUTOS REDUCED

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Republished in amending the house yesterday reduced the duty on autos from 25 to 10 per cent, reaffirmed their previous eliminating the existing clause permitting the States to raise its motor tariff to meet foreign levies. The change, trucks valued at $1,000 also would be dutiable 10 per cent, but trucks worth $1,000 and buses intended for ten or more persons would be 25 per cent rate.

Only the countervailing duty cut in the duty decided yesterday, they said, was made was learned that Alvan Tamm, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, urged his position and had the countervailing clause eliminated.

Simple Color Is Best for Room of Small Size

If one is not able to have the services of an interior decorator in completing the home, but must rely on one's own unguided knowledge in color and design, it is a good plan to choose the wall paper first.

From the hues used in it, the general color scheme may be selected, as well as harmonizing materials for drapery and upholstering uses.

Using the wall paper as a basis for the rest of the room is made possible by the care and artistic knowledge which is employed in the planning and designing of wall paper in the modern factory.

Each manufacturer has his artists, expert in their line, to design and plan the colors of his article. His paper is a work of art, and, as such, may confidently be taken as a guide by the inexperienced.

Why Pipe Holders Hurt

Pipe smoking or smoking through a holder is now considered to be one of the habits contributing toward cancer. Prof. W. Blair Bell of Manchester, England, explained recently to a group of nurses that with both the pipe and the cigarette holder the tendency is to hold it in one position constantly. This directs a hot stream of smoke steadily on one part of the mouth, causing an irritation of a pre-cancerous nature.

PRACTICAL PHILOSOPHIES

By J. SCOFIELD ROWE, PRESIDENT, The Metropolitan Casualty Insurance Company of N.Y.

AVOIDING WASTE
Thrift is the sign of careful upbringing—economy the response to that inward monitor which warns us that those who waste shall want.

In the building of a great enterprise economy is of tremendous importance. The business from which we draw our living has every right to demand our best, hence wastefulness of any kind is a serious disloyalty.

Economical management is the ideal of every well-directed business, the text of many disclosures, the subject of much literature; but a program of avoiding waste can be realized only to the extent that each worker makes it his object to practise real economy in his daily task.

To be thoughtless or indifferent in expending company money, to misuse anything of value or to waste part of the time for which we are paid is inexcusable and cannot fail to impair our self-respect. A day of reckoning is always just ahead for the waster.

In a large organization little leakages often creep in unnoticed but the very size of the undertaking can multiply these small wastes into great waste which may convert profit into loss and turn success into failure.

Modern business, realizing keenly the vital need of avoiding waste and lost motion, employs experts to devise means for "cutting the cost," but the real expert is the "man on the job" who should be ever alert to find ways of improving his work.

Conservation for its own sake carries real satisfaction. To develop the seeing eye and the inquiring mind, to take nothing for granted but to learn for oneself if something can be bettered or something saved is to add an immense element of interest to one's task.

Give thought to the saving value of "courtesy, clarity and brevity" in correspondence. Apply the test of rational economy before making long distance phone calls or dispatching hasty telegrams. Don't waste time—your own or other people's. To fritter away our small portion of eternity is to squander the privilege of living.

The intelligent worker whose sense of honor leads him to conserve resources not his own even more carefully than if they belonged to him is the man most likely to attain the responsibilities for which his high conception of duty qualifies him.

URGES REGISTRATION OF EVERY BIRTH AND DEATH

The following letter received from M. W. Steuart, director of census in the Vital Statistics department of the United States Department of Commerce, is self explanatory and follows:

August 1, 1929.
Editor, The Messenger:

The importance of birth and death registration is now universally recognized. Vital records have become indispensable to the adjustment of problems involving heredity, legitimacy, property rights and identity. In certain of our states and territories, the question of citizenship itself may be determined upon the basis of birth records. Federal registration, however, is accomplished wholly through the cooperation of the states in furnishing transcripts of their records to the bureau of the census, the federal government paying for the transcripts at an established rate.

New Mexico, Texas and South Dakota are the only states not now included in the federal registration area. This bureau is now making a test to determine whether birth and death registration is sufficiently complete to justify New Mexico's admission into the area. Post cards like the samples inclosed herewith are being mailed in Washington to all postmasters in the state who will see that they are distributed to all private homes.

To insure a large proportion of returns, it is earnestly requested that you give publicity to the importance of the work. In this way you will render a valuable service to the state of New Mexico and to the federal government.

In each of your articles or references to the test, please request that each family in which a birth or death has occurred during the past year fill out the card and mail it promptly. Please lay special stress upon the fact that we desire the cards to be filled out and returned even though the family knows the birth or death has already been registered locally. Thanking you for your assistance, I am

Very truly yours,
W. M. STEUART,
Director of the Census.

THE MESSENGER

On the Doctor's Orders

By JANE OSBORN

THE second time that Larry Otis went to Doctor Manuel's office, the renowned doctor was out, but the white-capped nurse who was in attendance suggested to Larry that there might be some message.

Larry mumbled words of acquiescence, sat down, and as the pretty nurse stepped into the next room quickly passed a hand over his chin. He hadn't shaved since early morning, and he wished now that he had—wanted the pretty nurse to see him at his best.

She was standing before him and Larry rose. She handed him an envelope. "I hope you can make it out," she said. "You see, he always writes these out himself. I suppose a doctor's advice is too confidential to dictate to a secretary. You don't look as if you had very much wrong with you."

"I suppose I do look fairly fit," said Larry. "I wouldn't have come if they hadn't pressed the matter at the office. You see, I got mixed up with that mine cave-in out at the works—and I dare say I did look a bit haggard—"

"You mean you were one of the three brave men who went down to rescue the men—and you were caught down there those five days—"

"Only three days," said Larry, "and the papers piled it on a bit thick. We weren't actually injured at all—only a little suffocated and half starved—so they sent me over here to Doctor Manuel."

Larry slowly opened the envelope and as slowly drew out the sheet of paper it contained. The message was in thick pencil marks. He read it twice and when half-way through the second time he looked up in great amazement.

"I had heard that Doctor Manuel's conclusions were sometimes surprising, but this beats the Dutch—"

"I suppose you can make it out without any difficulty," she said.

"Oh, it's legible enough," said Larry, "but I'm blessed if I can see how I can carry out instructions."

"If you don't do precisely what he says," warned the nurse, "Doctor Manuel will never consent to give another interview."

In that case, thought Larry, he would never have another opportunity to visit the office and further his case with this charming nurse. He had taken his hat from the table where he had left it and was moving toward the door when with a boldness that seemed to surprise himself more than it did the nurse he said:

"I suppose you will be leaving before long. It's nearly nine. I thought I might take you on your way."

The pretty nurse smiled her acceptance, told Larry that she had been ready to leave when he arrived and went into the inner offices for her hat and coat. And when Larry suggested going the longest way round to her boarding house five blocks away the nurse did not protest. It was after they had stopped in front of her boarding house that she hesitated a moment and said to Larry: "Of course, it is none of my business—but if there is anything I can do to help you carry out Doctor Manuel's instructions I will be very glad to do so. I do hope that there is nothing very seriously wrong with you."

"If you knew the advice the letter contains you would probably not have made that suggestion," said Larry seriously. "But the idea had already occurred to me that I might at least ask your help."

Back in his own rooms, still thinking of the girl whose name he had not even asked but who had consented to allow Larry to take her home again the next night, he reread the letter. This is what it said:

"Your case is by no means hopeless. Very strict attention to diet is necessary and well-ordered home life. Marry some girl of a domestic sort and when you have done this call again for diet list. Living as you do in clubs and hotels any attempt to follow it out would be worse than useless."

The next evening Larry discovered that the pretty nurse was named Rose Drake. They drove an hour in the country and then Larry suggested getting a bite to eat at a quiet little restaurant he knew about. After that he took Rose home with a promise she would spend Sunday with him at the lake.

Then when Sunday came Rose met him with an expression of much amusement. "Whatever the message was that Doctor Manuel gave you—it was all wrong. He found the one he intended for you in the envelope of a man that had come in the same day. Poor thing died of apoplexy before he ever had a chance to get the report. Here's the message you should have received." And Larry read:

"Condition hundred per cent. Remarkable recovery from shock of accident and exposure due to good habits and perfect physique. Make no changes in present diet or mode of living."

"It's something of a relief," said Larry, "because in the message I did get Doctor Manuel advised me to marry—to marry a girl of domestic inclinations who could look after me, and I don't know any girls of domestic inclinations."

"I'm very domestic," said Rose. And because Rose made that remark she always insisted that it was she and not Larry who first proposed marriage.

Advice to Husbands

The key to happy married life Is—do your best to please your wife. If she believes that white is black, It doesn't pay to argue back.

And if it's hard for you to see Why two plus two should equal three. So long as SHE believes it so, You might as well admit it, Bo!

And if she cannot prove her claim, That doesn't count. It's all the same. You shouldn't ask your wife, my Son, To prove her case—it isn't done. Her intuition stands supreme However odd her claims may seem. However wrong she may appear, Just say to her—"All right, my Dear."

Just smile at her, and don't be cross, But let her think that she's the Boss— And let her run the domicile To fit her own peculiar style. And though you may not like her hat, Don't ever, ever, tell her that! Although it may not suit your eyes, Be sure to praise it to the skies.

And when she gets a dress that's new Admire it, Lad—whatever you do! However bum the thing may fit, Don't ever, ever, speak of it.

Whatever tact you try to use, To tell her that—you're bound to lose, And if she claims that black is white— Remember this—she's LIKELY right!

A wire basket is a good accessory to have in canning tomatoes or peaches. As these fruits must be scalded to get the skins off, use the wire basket to lower the material quickly into boiling water and out again.

Fried okra is one of the vegetables that can be enjoyed from time to time during the summer. Select young okra, wash it, and cut it cross-wise in pieces between a fourth and a half inch thick. Allow 6 table-spoons of butter or 1 cup of salt pork, diced, for cooking 2 quarts of okra. If salt pork is used, cook it in a skillet until crisp. Then remove the pieces and use 6 to 8 table-spoons of the fat. Put in the okra, cover and cook about 10 minutes, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Remove the cover and continue to cook until the okra is tender and slightly brown. Add the crisp pork and serve at once.

The time-worm theory that "sheep having a covering of wool over their faces are the best," is now being exploded. Studies made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that ewes of the rambouillet breed that are free from heavy face covering yield the heaviest fleeces, both scoured and unscoured.

The only redeeming trait that cockroaches have, according to entomologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is that they sometimes eat bedbugs, but most people don't want to keep roaches for this purpose. Fortunately it is easy to kill them, by sprinkling powdered sodium fluoride or sodium fluosilicate wherever they appear.

There are in the United States more than one thousand dairy-herd improvement associations which provide for the testing and classifying of nearly a half-million dairy cows. The cows entered in these organizations produce an average of 295 pounds of butterfat yearly while the average production of all cows in the United States is but 180 pounds of butterfat a year.

A runaway team can not be stopped with weak reins, nor will weak tugs and straps on the harness withstand heavy work. Harness should be looked over to see that the leather parts have no cuts, holes, brands thin places or other imperfections that impair its strength. New harness leather that shows cracks on the grain side when sharply bent is practically worthless, and cracks in old harness show that it is rotting. Breaks and rips in the leather should be repaired promptly.

A grain mixture for cows on good pasture as a rule need not have as high a percentage of protein as the winter ration. The two following grain mixtures for supplementing pasture, without other roughage, are recommended by the U. S. Why Italics in Bible
In several early English translations of the Bible occasional words not intended to be emphasized are printed in italics. The translators did this because they were unable to find English words equivalent to some of the words in the Hebrew, Greek and Latin texts. Whenever they were compelled to insert extra words to make the translation intelligible to English readers they put these additional words in italics to indicate the insertion.

Why Smoke Colors Differ
Why is the smoke from the cigar or pipe blue, while that from the lips is gray? Smoke consists of minute particles suspended in the air, and its color depends upon the size as well as chemical constitution of the particles. Highly heated particles are bluish in color. The blue smoke, upon entering the mouth, cools, loses its smallest particles through moisture and emerges gray or brown.

TOO RIGID ECONOMY DOES NOT CONSTITUTE THRIFT

By S. W. Straus, president American Society for Thrift.

True thrift is gained neither by too much economy nor by too much spending.

When waste is eliminated, we follow the principles of sound thrift but it must be recognized that over-economy or hoarding sometimes leads to types of waste that are unwise in their results as are results of extravagance.

False economy, carried to the point of hurting the delicately adjusted balances of business, means eventual waste. Loss of trade by the retailer merchant is passed along to the jobber who in turn passes it on to the manufacturer. The result is unemployment, a form of waste that is undesirable for everybody and harmful to all.

Thus under-spending can if carried to excess, produce unwholesome economic conditions that are as depressing as the consequences of over-spending.

Too much spending means at once a waste all along the line. It leads to over-expansion and speculative activities which continue in their natural cycle until they end in sharp reaction and acute business depression.

Thrift consists of prudent saving and judicious spending.

If you are uncertain as to whether a particular transaction is within the laws of sound thrift or economic principles, you can usually determine the solution by finding, in the last analysis, whether your decision will mean elimination of waste.

TEN WAYS TO KILL A SOCIETY

1. Don't come to the meetings.
2. If you do come, come late.
3. If the weather doesn't suit you, don't think of coming.
4. If you come to a meeting, find fault with the work of the officers and other members.
5. Never accept an office, as it is easier to criticize than to do things.
6. Nevertheless, be put out if you are not appointed on the committee but if you are not attend committee meetings.
7. If asked by the chairman to give your opinion on some matter, tell him you have nothing to say. After the meeting is over tell everyone how things ought to be done.
8. Do nothing more than is absolutely necessary, but when members roll up their sleeves, and willingly, unselfishly use their ability to help matters along, say that the society is run by a clique.
9. Hold back your dues as long as possible, or don't pay at all.
10. Don't bother about getting new members, let someone else do it.

Although the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church in New York has laid down these rules for killing a society, they might well be applied to any society or club.

Mrs. Dub Andrus and Mrs. Glen Hardin have left for a two weeks vacation in Los Angeles, California.

Harrington Wimberly and Mr. and Mrs. Burnys Thompson, of Altus Oklahoma, arrived Sunday to visit in the J. E. Wimberly home. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Harrington Wimberly and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left on a pleasure and sight-seeing trip to Las Cruces, El Paso, Elephant Butte Dam and other places of interest.
