Livestock has been added, and a new dairy laboratory has been erected.

Cotton, corn and alfalfa will be the principal crops featured at this meeting, and as work in these crops has been carried on for a number of years, progress will readily be seen by the visitors.

Although a very large crowd atteended the meeting in 1928, an even larger crowd is expected this year. In-1928 most of the visitors were from the southern part of the state, but a number are expected from the extreme northern and eastern portions this year. Also many local people are expected. Lunch will be served on the campus at noon. This date is also the date of the annual meeting of the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association. The seed growers will meet in the morning and adjourn for the field day which immediately follows their

Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then add the egg yolks, milk and banana pulp. Be sure that the fruit is fully ripe and free from all signs of green tins. Beat well and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and then the butter. Bake a little longer on the waffle iron than the usual waffle. Serve with strained honey or sweet lemon butter, made thus:

Lemon Butter .- Cream five tablespoonfuls of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of butter, add three teaspoonfuls of lemon juice and a little of the lemon rind. Serve in balls.

Potato Chowder .- Try this on a cold night and see how the family will enjoy it: Pare four large potatoes and cut them into neat cubes. Chop fine one small onion and a tablespoonful of parsley. Arrange the potatoes, onion, parsley in layers in a kettle, add a pint of boiling water and cook covered closely until tender. Prepare a thin white sauce, using one tablespoonful each of flour and butter and pour over three cupfuls of milk.

Steamed Raisin Pudding .- Mix and sift one cupful each of graham and white flour, one teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of soda. Add one cupful of molasses, one cupful of milk, and one beaten egg. Mix well and add one cupful each of currants and raisins which have been well dredged with flour. SUMMONS SLEEPING FIRE FORCE WHEN ALARM FAILS

When the fire alarm system at the local fire station at Beaver Dam, Wis., failed to function early one Sunday morning recently, Miss Helen Hammer, night telephone operator, resourcefully met the emergency. The operator did not have a list of the firemen, but she called up all the men whom she knew to be members of the department and informed them of the location of the blaze which had broken out shortly after midnight. The siren atop the city hall was out of commission and the fire bell also was frozen, and Miss Hammer's efforts in routing out the sleeping members of the fire department undoubtedly prevented a conflagration.

Simplicity and Dignity Needs of Small Home

Dignity and simplicity are the basic essentials of the successful small house. Fussy and elaborate details not only detract from the architectural merits of a house, but needless ly add to its cost.

The realization of this fundamental architectural principle is slowly being driven home to the American people, with the result that we are beginning to see a great improvement in our domestic architecture.

The increased cost of building that followed the armistice has at least one good effect. It made people give more serious consideration to the materials used in home building and greatly increased the use of the more permanent materials.

People appreciate more than ever that there is little difference between the cost of the cheaper materials and the best, especially when the difference is reduced to a percentage of the total investment. The use of better materials and construction and the growing appreciation of the good in architectural design is adding to the attractiveness of many an American community.

Common Brick Is Best for English Type Home

People who are insistent upon having their English type home reproduce as nearly as possible in appearance and effect the originals beyond the ocean are careful to have co brick specified for the exterior walls

And the rougher, the more irregular. the harder burned and deeper in color they happen to be, the better. For it was of that character of brick that most of the oldest English manor houses were built. Many of them, hundreds of years old, are still standing and in use.

The English mason of the earlier days was not the scrupulously careful artisan that is his prototype of the present age. Nor were the architects so careful to have everything work out to a nicety. In many of the older English houses are found walls that, instead of being plumb and exact, bulge and recede in a manner most inexplicable. Yet even so these walls have stood for centuries and today are serving as models for ambitious architects.

EQUIPMENT BY AIR

When the telephone exchange at Cuyahoga Falls in Ohio was burned on New Years Day and the main switchboard destroyed, an airplane was used to bring the necessary equipment so that service could be resumed with the least possible delay. The telephone service of about 2600 subscribers was affected.

> COLLEGE RADIO STATION INCREASES BROADCASTING

KOB assures New Mexico higher quality programs, more hours of broadcasting and better reception thru a working agreement with the Eagle Broadcasting Company of El Paso, Texas, and a permit for increasing the power of the station from 10,000 to 20,000 watts.

The Eagle Broadcasting Company handled the commercial advertising of four other stations. The management of the station remains in the hands of the College, and the College programs will be broadcast as before. the Eagle Broadcasting Company will utilize the station for broadcasting their programs at hours when it is not in use for the programs of the State Agricultural College and the ured the soul under the United States Department of Agri-

Such a statement is this is not infrequently heard; it reflects the conat the Carlsbad Caverns, during the ception of thrift as held by many Thrift, however, means more than just saving pennies. Attempting to limit thrift to the saving of money is merely an effort to accept a half-

> Altogether too much encouragement has been given to the false doctrine that the thrifty man is a penny saver. As an effect of this false veiwpoint, harmful resistence to thrift has been created.

It is true that saving pennies is one of the rudiments of thrift. But it is just as thrifty to save moments; to save one's health; to save one's Thrift is efficiency. Thrift is eliminating waste. Thrift is spending wisely as well as saving systematically. Many a successful career and many a great enterprise were founded on penny saving. But to say that thrift consists of saving pennies is as far from the whole truth as to say that the alphabet is literature or that table have mastered mathematics.

Let us have more penny savers, both literal and figurative. Let value of little things. Let us do all we can to encourage the thought that a penny saved means a great deal more than a penny earned. But let us not foster miserliness or encourage the belief, already too prevalent, that there is nothing to thrift but the hoarding of pennies.

Save the pennies, but do not stop there. Money is the symbol of HIGH GRADE ALFALFA wealth, but it is not the symbol of human progress. The value of thrift Choose seed potatoes in the field Experienced stockmen know that as an essential element of individual

Clem Was Doing Field Work

By JANE OSBORN *******

CLEMENT WATKINS, a tall, sandy-haired young man of twenty-two, swung off the fast line bus where the highway intersected the main street of the village of Dawson, glanced appraisingly around the group of stores that clustered near the four corners and walked in the direction which evenly-planted rows of tall elm trees, shading a number of white-painted, old-fashioned houses, indicated as the residential section of the home-like

He walked briskly for a quarter of a mile along Main street until he reached the last house, walked debonairly up to the front door and rang the bell, waited a minute, rang again, and then walked out again to the street. Then he walked back to the next house, turned in there and rang the bell.

No need ringing that more than once. If anyone was home they'd hear it, thought Clem. Someone was in and the someone who answered the door was a very pretty girl.

"I know you are very busy," said Clem, because he noticed that she had a duster in her hand. "But I was in Dawson today and I just thought I'd drop in and have a little talk. Let me see, the name is-"

"Well, I hardly wonder at this time of the morning," said Clem with a smile that looked more assured than it was. "I'm quite content to talk with you instead. Would you mind if I stepped in. You see, I'm a student at Radford college-"

"For pity sakes," exclaimed the girl, depositing her duster on a hall table and coming forward. "And you know my brother Harold." She held out her hand and blushed and giggled a little. "You know me, too, of course I'm Mary-Mary Kirk. I met you at the junior prom

A Buying Power of $200,000,000

Is the Secret of Our Low Prices

Many of our customers say to us, "how can you sell such good merchandise so cheaply?" Our $200,000,000 Buying Power is the answer.

Step into our store and you'll see in a minute that placing orders by the million pairs, and in carload lots, makes a great difference in the cost of things.

We never have to ask a manufacturer to skimp on quality to make a "bargain price." The tremendous orders we place -sometimes the whole output of his factory - enable us to demand the very lowest price.

Giving you better things for less money isn't just a slogan in our store. We've been doing it for over a quarter of a
