TEN YEARS OLDER OR TEN YEARS BETTER?

Here's a good bit of advice to the young men of our community which we clipped from an exchange:

"The next ten years will speed by twice as fast as the past ten years and you know how fast they went.

What we have learned in the past ten years, or failed to learn, will pretty well settle our destiny in Gilda Grey—"The dear that Made this world. Most of us cannot suffer the agony of mous. admitting there is anything we don't know, and this attitude of mind petrifies after awhile, sealing up ambtion and the desire to grow. SOME TOWNS WON'T TAKE TELLING

Not long ago the executive head of a town's leading civic organization, and owner and publisher of the largest newspaper, had called to their attention the fact that among such things, grass was growing in the sidewalks and curbs of their business district. They laugher and said, "Well, I guess that won't keep any crease in arrests but a decrease in business out of town.'

In the same month the officials of another city were reminded that they had no parks or playgrounds SUBSCRIPTION RATES, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE for youngsters or grown-ups, and they replied, "Oh, $2.00 that doesn't mean aything; we have plenty of other things, and a place to play won't keep any factories .75c from coming here."

A large industrial concern, in the final analysis of two accepted towns chose the other in preference to town No. 2, because the report on my desk shows said town had no recreational facilities for employees to whom five million dollars would be paid annually.

In this afternoon's mail there is evidence that because a survey of town No. 3 showed the population 72 per cent negative civically, the town was refused a donation of $250,000 which it had asked of a large

C .- Evidence that the Jones law providing prison sentences and heavy fines for pro-hibition violators had led to an inconvictions was seen recently in statistics of civil and criminal prosecutions made public by the department of justice. The law was in effect four months of the year.

The report showed that 56,786 prohibition cases had been prosecuted in the 1929 fiscal year, an increase $473,000 over a year in which there were 29,114 prosecutions.

Since the Jones law was in operafiscal year, there has been no opportunity to study its workings over a full year.

Board Hinged So That It Will Fold Away in Closet.

(Prepared by the United States Department

When other improvements were being made in the kitchen at the suggestion of the home demonstration agent, one Masachusetts farm woman had her ironing board hinged so that it would fold away into a narrow closet if not in use. A hinged leg provided the necessary support for it at the best height for her to work. The electric plug was located conveniently, and shelves were put below the ironwax, pressing cloths, and other acces-ironing at the hours least subject to interruptions. It is poor economy to have to heat up an electric iron or any other and then allow it to cool while one goes to the door or chats often dry out, and one loses the momentum that comes after one has started well on a definite job.

If laundry work has to be done at home the less ironing there is, the hetter. This point should always be kept in mind in purchasing either household linens or clothing, and in land treasurer Emerson Watts and State planning washable dresses. The flatter and plainer the garments, the more quickly and easily are they ironed.

Sitting down to iron is a good idea, height to permit the comfortable use of the right arm and shoulder. Good light is essential, both from a window in the daytime and from an artificial source on the shorter days. The ironing board should be smoothly padded and should have at least two removable covers of unbleached muslin to be used alternately. A rubber spray head on a medium-sized bottle enables one to sprinkle the clothes lightly, rapidly, and uniformly. A clothes horse nearby and some hangers for freshly ironed dresses will keep finished work from wrinkling and aid in airing and drying it. The electric iron should always be disconnected when it is not in use, even for a short time. The electric iron, or any other kind, should be stored in a clean, dry, cool place. If put away for any length of time it should be greased.

When the water in a kettle Journal. reaches boiling point, steam is given off, and when the space between the water and the top of the kettle is as steam is continually being formed, one of two things must happen. The steam must burst the kettle or escape somehow.

It is the escape that causes the singing. The steam forces its way between the lid and the body of the kettle, and the former vibrates and shakes. The air outside is affected, and also vibrates. This sets up what we call "singing."

Yellow Color Makes Up for Lack of Sunshine

Keep always in mind in the selection of materials for glass curtains that anything having a yellow or golden tone will do much to atone for lack of sufficient sunshine in a dreary or cold room.

This is a fact so widely recognized as to hardly need repetition, but in similar fashion, and not so well known, materials having a rosy tone will lend an atmosphere of warmth and coziness to a living-room or any room where such an effect is desired.

The cheerfulness of the "sunshine tones," as all of the yellows and golds and mellow tans are commonly called, makes them particularly desirable for most living-rooms, but there are times when the subtlety of a faint orchid color for sash curtains in a bedroom, or delicate green in a diningroom or breakfast porch, will produce wonderfully pleasing results.

Telephone

Over 395,000 Lost Calls

"Three Months' Time Lost Daily" in Mountain States

It happens to all of us. Perhaps just once during the day or on some days, several times, you dash to the telephone to find that the calling person had become impatient and failed to give you time to answer. On the other hand you, too, may have been in a hurry and the person you were calling reached the telephone too late.

About 18 per cent of the daily average of 2,207,856 calls in the entire territory served by this company are not completed largely because the calling party abandons the call without allowing sufficient time for an answer, or the called person delays answering. The total time lost daily approximates three months.

You can help make your own service more satisfactory by waiting two minutes before abandoning a call and by answering your telephone as promptly as possible. A recent survey has proved that when the ringing of the called telephone was continued for an additional minute, answers were obtained in 23 per cent of the cases.

Incompleted calls are a handicap to good service—some are unavoidable, of course, others can be completed with your help-may we have your cooperation?

Celebrating Light's Golden Jubilee

During the past Fifty Years, the tiny glow of EDISON'S light has grown into a radiance which floods the world. This marvelous development has accounted for the growth of immense industries and huge electric light and power companies.

Since the discovery of the Electric Lamp the problem of distribution of electricity for lighting has been the greatest confronting the electrical industry. Today, through research and diligent management, the Electric Light and Power Companies are giving to millions of homes the most economical and reliable lighting service that science has ever developed.

The Electric Light and Power Companies are still improving their methods of generating and distributing electricity, and these improvements mean savings to the consumer.

Your Electric Company on this, the GOLDEN JUBILEE OF LIGHT, pledges itself to the continuance of the wonderful work of Thomas A. Edison, by providing you with the best electrical service at the least possible cost.

Best by Hard Test

A young man consulted a friend of his who was in the lumber business about building a home. They went over the plans carefully, and when they had finished the lumberman turned to the young man and said: "Of course, you will want oak floor-

The young man had not thought a great deal of the floors-he was too occupied with other details. The "of course, you will want oak flooring" seemed so much like a foregone conclusion the young man wondered why he would "of course" want it.

As an experiment he talked with another man who was well known for his business ability and his sound judgment. During the conversation the older man remarked:

"You have forgotten to specify oak flooring."

There it was again, that taken-for-

When the young man built his home his floors were oak, and years later as he looked at their unchanged beauty he knew why if he built again he would want oak flooring, "of course."

That was not an unusual happening. It has been years since the supremacy of oak flooring has been disputed. Oak flooring has grown to be a necessity to the majority of home builders. The permanent beauty and durability of oak flooring, the perfect floor, have made it highly desirable and almost indispensable in the plan of a home.

The reason it has enjoyed popularity, besides those mentioned above, is that it is so easy to keep oak floors in a state of high finish. In the floors lie a great part of the charm of the interior of a home.

Upon entering a room one of the first things that meets the eye and leaves either a favorable or unfavorable impression is the floor. If it is an oak floor that has been given the little, though necessary attention, there will be recognition of its beauty that cannot be described, but is felt by all-a feeling of quality and richness that speaks of refinement and taste. Floors are not only a part of the house, but they are a part of the furnishings as well. Yet they are subjected to daily service far more severe than any plece of furniture. To withstand this service and still look well they must be considered as to material, methods of laying and finishing, and attention given their up-

Everything connected with obtaining a satisfactory floor merely is a matter of doing the right thing the right way.

In the first place, oak flooring, although a highly finished product, dressed to a satiny surface accurately machined and side and end matched carefully, is not perfectly uniform in quality, as there are many companies manufacturing it, but it is as nearly "right" as it is possible for nationally The fact that improper and un- make it. It merely is a matter of following the few but essential rules of laying and caring for the floor that are more or less necessary to any floor. Those rules are obtainable from any lumber dealer and are in a clear, concise form that eliminates worry and study on the part of the home owner. Another aid in the selection of oak flooring is to buy flooring of a well-known and proven brand. However, whether the home owner studies oak flooring or not; as the years pass on oak floors will teach him a lesson in flooring that will keep him marveling at its lasting beauty.

BANKERS DEVELOP NOVEL INSTITUTE

The Georgia Bankers Association in cooperation with the State College of Agriculture has sponsored a series of farmers' institutes in various parts of the State of an entirely new character. The principle feature is a large and comprehensive exhibit transported in four large trucks and set up at each stop. When set up it fills a space 40 by 60 feet and consists of panels, charts, and models on practically every phase of agriculture, including agronomy, horticulture, agricultural engineering, poultry, animal husbandry, soils and fertilizers, home economics and marketing. A large electrified farm model, showing the uses of electricity on the farm, model farm buildings and the ideal layout and landscaping of the farmstead, is one of the most elaborate and attractive exhibits.

Local bankers in each locality visited gave the money to cover expenses for the transportation and installation of the exhibit in their territory and assisted in the preliminary advertising and publicity. The College of Agriculture assembled the exhibit and conducted the tour through its various extension specialists.

HAVE YOU ENOUGH LIFE INSURANCE?

This is a very important question. If you feel that you need more Life Insurance then investigate The Praetorians.

Life Insurance on Legal Reserve Basis Every policy issued by The Praetorians is on a Legal Reserve 4% basis. Accident and disability features in every policy.

Twenty Year Pay Our Leader

The Praetorians write several classes of policies. Our leader is the 20 year pay. Why take a policy on which you have to continue payments as long as you live when you can get a policy in The Praetorians and get it fully paid up in twenty years?

Women Admitted on Same Basis as Men Women are accepted in The Praetorians on the same basis as men. Women should have life insurance as well

We are very proud of our large number of policy holders in The Praetorians who live in Hagerman and community. Ask any of them about The Praetorians. Any representative of The Praetorians will be glad to explain our different plans and special benefits to you.
