REPUBLICANS ADOPT FIFTY-FIFTY BASIS JOIN PROGRESSIVES

ALBUQUERQUE—By viva voce vote, the republican state central committee last night adopted a resolution approving the principle of equal numerical representation on a united progressive-republican central committee and decided to leave the politics of the party united to be determined by mutual agreement of the two groups. Adoption of the resolution came after failure of a conference committee of eleven to confer with authorized leaders of the progressive party on a republican offer of a 50-50 membership on the republican state central committee should the progressives agree to unite with the G. O. P.'s for the coming November elections. Former Judge Carl P. Dunifon of Silver City, chairman of the committee, reported that an informal discussion of the offer, made after the republicans had rejected a progressive offer to unite with the progressive party on a 50-50 basis, had been held with P. L. Rapkoeh, progressive state chairman; Maurice F. Miera, former progressive state chairman; Major Herman Baca of Santa Fe, and Pleasant Hill of Dona Ana county. Because the progressive central committee, which met Tuesday had disbanded, the republican offer was not made to that body but will be relayed later according to indication. Dunifon said the progressives had no conference committee authorized to negotiate for a fusion. Only a few scattered "noes" were heard when the question of adopting the resolution was put to the committee and the central committee adjourned immediately afterwards. Ed Safford, state chairman, called a meeting of the conference committee of eleven to discuss with them matters pertaining to registration lists for the coming election and other problems. Only one rule seemed to be under fire and considerable debate was heard on that. It involved the method and manner by which a county central committee chairman, named to the post by the county convention, could be removed from office if necessity demanded it. The result was that the rule was amended to read that removal of county chairman elected by the county conventions, can be removed for cause by the county central committee. The report of the rules committee and the new set of rules was adopted as amended by a viva voce vote. Rejecting the progressive suggestion of joining that party, the republican state central committee by a vote of 107 to 16 extended a new olive branch. The substance of it was equal representation in the republican party for the progressives, and a committee of eleven members immediately sought a like progressive committee for conference.

The request completes the general $3,166,000,000 recovery fund suggested by the president in his budget estimates for the 1934-1935 fiscal years. Of the amount requested Tuesday, $940,905,000 would go to general public work relief, $285,000,000 to civilian conservation corps, $75,000,000 for federal land banks, $10,000,000 for a war on boot-legging, and $11,095,000 for miscellaneous purposes.

GENERAL NEWS BRIEFS

June Robles Found Alive TUCSON—Literally buried alive in a sunken tomb, six-year-old June Robles, kidnaped for ransom that never was paid, survived 19 blazing days and chill nights in the Arizona desert to return Monday night to her parents, weak but not seriously harmed. She had not been attacked, but the brutal cruelty of conditions imposed on the slender, olive-skinned little girl by her captors amazed investigators. She was chained to an iron stake, three feet under ground. Her prison was in fact a covered grave and might have concealed her body for months had she succumbed before aid, directed apparently by the breaking nerve of the kidnapers, reached her late Monday. No ransom, the family announced, had been paid—no definite contact with the kidnapers for paying it ever had been made. The demand had been for $15,000. Fernando Robles, her father, succeeding in getting together only $10,000. He offered to pay it privately, with his personal guarantee against any entrapment. The abductors did not appear to claim it, however, and Monday, at the office of Gov. B. M. Moeus in Phoenix, there arrived a special delivery, airmail letter, unsigned, postmarked "Chicago," which gave explicit directions for the finding of June "buried under a cactus," 9 1/2 miles southeast of Tucson. An Arizona highway patrolman sped the letter here. Clarence Houston, Pima county attorney, and Carlos G. Robles, one of his assistants, uncle of June, set out fearfully on the quest. The instructions were complete and accurate, and soon June, pain-wracked, but still sturdy, was released from her tortuous prison. The handwriting of the note received by Gov. Moeur checked with that of the ransom note delivered to Fernando Robles, June's father, two hours after she disappeared April 25. The authorities had for the first time a definite, and an ominous clue.

N. M. MERCHANTS ARE ORGANIZED TO WORK OUT SALES TAX

Merchants of New Mexico must find their own ways of meeting the sales tax, according to a meeting held at Santa Fe Tuesday of representatives invited from all sections of the state to discuss the matter. The merchants, after being told by the governor, chief tax commissioner and Clinton P. Anderson, state treasurer, that they were representatives of the state in collecting the tax, were told the law did not fix a schedule of tax collections; that the state tax commission had no authority to fix one, and were advised to fix their own with the assurance of the three officials that the state tax commission and the executive office would do all in their power to help them enforce it. The result of the meeting was the organization of the New Mexico Merchant's association, with Morris Ossoff, Albuquerque retail merchant, as chairman, and Chas. H. Restow, assistant secretary of the Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce, as secretary. Ossoff was authorized to name a board of directors consisting of one member from every town in the state. This will be done as soon as possible Ossoff said. The schedule of sales taxes, recently adopted by retail merchants here and other places, was unanimously approved by the meeting as the schedule to be applied throughout the state. This schedule exempts purchases to and including 9 cents.

HAROLD DYE, Managing Editor

THE TIN COW

We ate lunch with a local farmer not so long ago. The cream for our coffee was poured from a tin can, the eggs came in a sack, and fully half the meal was purchased ready done up from the shelves of a grocery store.

Far be it from us to criticize our host, but it seems to us that if that farmer had owned his own cow and chickens, and had produced his own feed for them, and if his wife had canned vegetables out of their own garden, he would be far more prosperous today.

Farmers should leave the curse of living out of paper sacks and tin cans to us poor fools who live in town and can't have his advantages.

STILL A MONSTER

The Lane Liquor Law with its facilities, its impotence, and its general incompetence, is still with us.

In order to properly enforce such a law, it would take a standing army as incorruptible as a United States Supreme Judge.

Why continue such a farce? Its ponderous machinery is practically immovable, and its vast ramifications practically palsied.

The best way to handle the liquor problem is by the old time saloon. Then those people who do not wish to be found in establishments where liquor is sold, can guard against it, and those few remaining mothers and fathers who seek to protect their children from the temptation of drink, could better influence them to safety.

THIRTY MILE MINDS

The trouble with a lot of motorists is that while their cars are equipped with every safety feature, and made to run anywhere up to eighty miles per hour, the motorist himself still has a thirty mile per hour mind.

If a person cannot think as fast as he is driving, he becomes a juggernaut of death to pedestrians and motorists.

A car traveling sixty miles per hour occupies 264 feet of roadway in addition to its own length. How many of us remember that as we whiz down the road a mile a minute?

When motorists learn to think as fast as they drive, we will have fewer accidents.

SCOUT NEWS

It is our purpose to give in the next few weeks some of the things that boys should know and that they learn in scouting.

We give this week The American Creed, taken from Scout handbook:

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible; with liberty and justice for all.

More about the flag next week.

Odd—but TRUE

Mr. Bill Dye, Punkin Holler, Oklahoma. Dear Bill:

Well, since I have written to you last, many things have happened. For instance Johnnie Bowen has a new boy. Johnnie named his youngster Jimmie. They will call him Jimmie for a few years, and then he will start to high school and will be Jim. In a few more years when he begins to get some gray hairs and a bay window, they will know him as James. Then when he runs for office again, he will be Jim. That's the way with a name. You remember my mother tried to give me a name that couldn't be turned into a nickname. It wasn't. But most of the names they call me now can't be printed in a respectable newspaper.

Are you having any kidnappings around Punkin Holler? I don't suppose there is anyone there who could raise a ransom, though. Out here when they kidnap anyone, they send in a note and say they want a bale of cotton or a ton of alfalfa hay. That's the only kind of money in the Pecos valley. This kidnaping business is getting fiercer, but its what we had coming to us. Take away the bootleggers business and turn it over to a high class citizen, and the bootlegger will have to turn his talent to other sources of sweatless revenue.

It is much better to have them kidnaping little girls and boys and killing them than to have them bootlegging. We can get along without our kids but we can't get along without our beer and whiskey, so we will regulate that and let the gangsters go their way unmolested.

I must close for this time, Bill. Your loving cousin, SAM.

some more acorns; but if his nose tips up and his tail end goes down, it is a sure sign that he will do to kill.

"Little George" says Arkansas farmers are expert hog raisers. They have numerous breeds of hogs in the woods of Arkansas which are very interesting to biologists. There is the fish hog, the climbing hog, the saw hog, and the race hog. The latter hog is extremely popular with the farmers because he can outrun the swiftest nigger that ever pestered Arkansas. The climbing hog is a valuable animal because he can climb for acorns, and as he roosts on the limbs a nigger can't reach him without waking him up.

The back of a saw hog is made like a crosscut saw, and in going through the briars he cuts out a clean path. The fish hog uses his tail for a fishing pole. When he goes fishing, he backs up to the water and casts with his tail, and when he gets a bite, he jerks it out and eats the fish.

A Texas exchange says that once when the writer was a young man, a bill collector tried to collect a bill from him saying that he, the writer, promised to come to the office and pay, to which the writer replied: "I believe the office should seek the man and not the man the office." As a result of his wit he landed a job in a livery stable.

"Do you like the book I gave you for Christmas, Johnnie?" asked the fond aunt.

"I don't know yet," replied the boy. "Mother said I had to wash my hands before I could look at it."

Husband—You women think you need constant new clothes to please men?

She—Not at all, dear—to annoy other women.

Two men met at the public library and fell into conversation. "The dime novel has disappeared," remarked one. "I frequently wonder where it has gone."

The other who knew something of literature in its various phases, answered: "It's gone up to $1.90."

A young lady and a lad traveling on an ocean liner became very well acquainted with each other. The young lady asked him if he had been through algebra.

The lad answered, "Yes, but I didn't see it, we went through in the night."

Little Irene had been visiting her Auntie. Auntie had opened the organ and showed her little guest how to pull out the stops and push the treadsles.

On returning home the child was telling mother about it, and said, "Mummy, the organ had a lot of 'chokes' and two brakes on it."

Valkyries

Valkyries, in Scandinavian mythology, are the maidens, usually nine in number, who attend on Odin. Adorned with golden ornaments, they ride through the air in brilliant armor, order battles, and distribute the death lots according to Odin's commands. They conduct the souls of heroes who fall in battle to Valhalla, where they act as his cup bearers. Two valkyries, Hrist and Mist, are cup bearers to Odin himself.

The Real American Baseball
Formerly the best horsehide from Russia and the finest wool from Australia were used in making baseballs. The test of time has proven that similar domestic materials are as good as the pick of the imported articles. The ball cover, comprising 25 square inches of leather, is stitched and sewed by hand, as attempts to yoke machine ingenuity to that task have thus far failed.

Powerful Pressure Pump Housed in Whale's Nose

The nose of the whale, prized by whalers for its valuable spermaceti oil, is not used for smelling at all, but instead houses a powerful pressure pump and a combination air-conditioning, electro-pressure plant that for sheer efficiency transcends anything on land, sea or in the air.

"The biggest thing about a whale is its nose," two scientists explained in a joint statement. "It is six times as big as the whale's braincase. For instance, if a whale has a head that is 12 feet long and 6 feet high, the nose in this hypothetical whale would be 10 feet long and 5 feet high. Probably one reason the whale's jaw juts out so far is because the nose needs the support of the upper jaw. Another peculiarity about the whale is that its nose, in pushing against its forehead, has changed the latter from straight or convex to one that is deeply concave."

The nose of the whale is composed of bones, fat, oil and connective tissues covered with a thick sheet of skin and blubber, through which runs two gigantic nasal passages. The right passage, according to the scientists, is so big that Jonah could have rested there very comfortably without bothering to make the long journey to the stomach. The two passages lead from a chamber immediately below the blowhole on top of the nose to a great body tunnel which, in turn, is connected with the windpipe.

Postage Stamp History

A revolutionary reform came in 1843, when postage stamps were officially adopted by the cantonal government at Zurich, Switzerland the first philatelic issues of the Continent. On March 3, 1847, the United States Post Office department secured congressional permission to issue stamps. Two denominations were placed on sale—five and ten cent values representing Franklin and Washington, respectively. A new series appeared in 1851, and stamped envelopes in 1852. A registration system for letters was introduced March 3, 1855.

Pan-American Exposition

The Pan-American exposition was held at Buffalo, N. Y., from May 1 to November 2, 1901, in celebration of the progress of the entire western hemisphere during the Nineteenth century which had just come to a close. All the countries of North, Central, and South America were represented in the exhibits. The festivities of the closing month of the fair were cut short by the assassination of President McKinley on September 6, 1901.

Father of Photography Made Discovery in 1822

The name of Louis Daguerre is preserved in the word daguerretype, and that of Fox Talbot is known because he was the first to print from a negative and substitute paper sensitized with iodide of silver for the original silver plate. But the name of the man who actually obtained the first sun-picture and made it permanent, Joseph Nicéphore Niepce, is known to few. Yet he was the pioneer of modern photography. He died a century ago, his great discovery was made in 1822.

His first photograph—though he called it a heliograph—was of his house and garden. He was fond of lithography, itself a novelty, and as his son, an artist, had been called up for military training, Niepce, who could not draw, sought a substitute for the pencil and found it in the sun.

He took his first sun-picture on a silver plate on which a solution of bitumen and oil of lavender had been spread. He "fixed" it with the vapors of iodine.

Today photography pierces the flesh and reveals the living skeleton; flashes across the world pictorial records of current events; assists the police; is essential to kinematography; whilst photo-micrography helps the bacteriologist to a knowledge of those microscopic organisms which cause cancer, tuberculosis, influenza, and other human scourges.

Kilt Society Issues Style Rules

Another problem of many years' standing has been settled in Glasgow, Scotland, and all loyal Scotsmen are breathing sighs of relief. The Kilt society of Scotland, harassed by letters and complaints from all parts of the world, has issued a treatise on how to wear the kilt. The rules stipulate that the kilt is to touch the center of the knee cap in front, and that the lower part of the belted plaid should hang below the lower edge of the kilt. For ordinary dress the Highlander's jacket must be of tweed, and his kilt in the clan or family tartan. His stockings must be knitted hose, his shoes black brogues without buckles, and his sporran may be of hogskin, leather or fur, "with out undue ornamentation." Rules for evening dress and costumes for social functions also are given.

Saint's Body Found in Wall

Why nuns of the convent of San Salvatore, in Calatigrona, Sicily, held a mysterious festival every August for 130 years has been revealed by workmen. Each year the church was illuminated and people all over the countryside heard merry bells, but the nuns never divulged the reason for their rejoicing. A chance blow of the workers' pickaxes opened a space in the wall in which was the body of the Roman virgin Gaudenzia who was tortured and martyred during the persecution of the Christians 1,400 years ago. A short time before the French revolution was taken from Italy to the church. Hearing revolutionists would desecrate the body it was hidden in the walls and the hiding place kept secret. It was in a perfect state of preservation when found.—Montreal Herald.

The "Potato Bug Bird"

A gaudily feathered bird is the rose-breasted grosbeak. Seen in the grass, it appears to be a dark and clumsy bird with an unwieldy looking beak. In flight it is seen to have a vivid rose-carmine breast and flush under its wings. Its song is a rich, full whistling carol, generally preceded by a sharp chirp. In some states farmers have christened it the "potato bug bird" since it is especially fond of the bug and its larvae.

First Printers Imitated Writing

Neither the inventor of printing nor his immediate successors were aware of what they had achieved or were doing. They were anxious only to imitate the hand-written book and at first charged as much for their product as for manuscript work in the endeavor to persuade the customer that theirs was no new invention but the same laboriously written script work.

Germany's Prisoners of War

Germany did not during the late war transfer British prisoners of war from Germany to Holland. On the other hand, a considerable number of British officers and other ranks were interned in Holland during the war as a result of their crossing the Dutch frontier. These included, for instance, aviators who were forced down in Dutch territory.

Successful Men and Inspiration

Successful men, in general, supply more inspiration than sound advice to those who follow in their footsteps. And that is as it should be. A boy needs to know that others have conquered discouragement, surmounted obstacles and arrived at last at the rainbow's end. But he must find for himself, in most cases, the road which leads to it.

WELL, N. M.

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR DEVELOPING 8 OIL POOLS IN N. M.

WASHINGTON—Plans for the development of eight new oil pools in New Mexico were approved by Secretary Ickes.

The plans approved, with names of pools, number of wells to the acre, and approximate probable production acreage, include:

Closson, one well to 40 acres, 1,000.

Table Mesa, one well to 10 acres, four wells per year.

Hogback, no definite spacing, drilling for replacement only.

Rattlesnake pool (Lower Pennsylvanian limestone formation), two wells per year. One well to 40 acres.

Compton, one well to 10 acres, 3 wells per year, 640.

Empire, one well to 10 acres, 4 wells per year.

Lucy A. Robertson, temporary, no drilling.

The eight are included in 194 new oil pools, with an estimated probable production area of 81,000 acres in ten states.

The proposed developments were recommended to the secretary as oil administrator by the petroleum administrative board after hearings by the production division of the geological survey of the interior department.

Approval of the new pool development is required of Secretary Ickes under the oil code as a part of the program of balancing production and consumptive demands.

In approving the plans, the secretary stipulated that production should be limited to beneficial use, waste should be eliminated and that in each pool production should not exceed allowable quotas set by state regulatory bodies.

Kitchen Colds

The quickest way to spread a cold or a sore throat through the whole family is to take it into the kitchen. A few germs sneezed or coughed or even breathed into a farm pudding will very quickly brew into a powerful host able to infect all who partake of the meal.

Germs get into the kitchen not only in the noses and throats of those who work there but also on the dishes that are carried in to be washed. Unless they are sterilized the germs on one person's dishes may be brought back to several other people on dishes that seem to be clean.

On May 7th last the state board of public welfare amended its regulations governing food handling establishments by adding the following paragraph to the list of methods by which dishes may be properly sterilized:

"Complete immersion in clean water, containing not less than 100 parts per million of available chlorine, for not less than three minutes."

To secure this strength of chlorine proceed as follows: Take three ounces of chlorinated lime and add to one quart of water. Keep this stock solution in the dark and make it up freshly every ten days.

From the stock solution take two tablespoonfuls and add same to one gallon of water used for rinsing the dishes.

Boiling the dishes for not less than five minutes is another method which satisfies the requirements of the regulations.

When dishes have been sterilized it is better not to dry them but to let them dry themselves. That is from the point of view of hygiene. If they must be rubbed to give them a polish then be very sure that the cloth used is quite clean. Also the hands which hold the cloth.

Keep all flies out of the kitchen. Have the windows screened. Kill the flies which get in through the doorway either with a swatter or with a dose of fly spray. Look at our New Mexico privies. Then you will know why New Mexico flies are especially to be feared.

London-Bound for Love

By KAYE WOODROW

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

HELEN HOLMES didn't feel so happy. She had a romantic nature and she longed for a cozy, rose-covered cottage in the suburbs, a flower garden to cultivate, and a tall, broad-shouldered, tanned man to welcome home each night. It so happened that Helen was really what some old maids would call a model young girl.

Day after day she conscientiously typed away in a Wall Street brokerage firm and calmly refused the dinner invitations tendered her by one of the elder men of the office.

She felt pretty bitter about life in general when a friend, Blanche Young, returned from a cruise to Bermuda with an engagement ring in the proper place. And to make it worse Blanche informed every one that the newly discovered male—one Eddie Williams—and she were to be married within a month.

Here was what she had dreamed of for so long, enacted in real life—but, to somebody else. But after a few days she grew less bitter about it all and decided that if such things did happen, perhaps her time would come before too long. She knew that she was every bit as attractive as Blanche. And she had some money saved, so why not a cruise to Bermuda or some such place for herself?

Blanche Young's luck at catching a good-looking and sensible man had exerted a great influence over Helen. She realized that Blanche had really taken the right way.

So, one day, when she was feeling exceptionally carefree and jubilant, she asked the office manager for a six weeks' leave of absence for a long cruise. As luck would have it, her request was granted. Immediately she withdrew all her savings—six hundred dollars. For two hundred dollars she secured passage to London on a small but respectable merchant steamer.

The first day at sea was ideal. Helen was so happy and relaxed after years of work in an office that she almost forgot the main reason why she had staked her all on the trip to London and back.

Nevertheless, as she shuffled the deck tennis and shuffle-board games on the deck, Helen took accurate regard of all the young men present. Of the ones she scrutinized there were only two, she decided with a woman's intuition, that would take the place of all the Lechmans she had dreamed of. And only one of the eligible males, Helen decided, was the type that would want a home with a pretty wife to prepare his meals. He was a serious looking man of about thirty-five, tanned, well built and genial in appearance. The other man who qualified was busy playing deck tennis. He had all the appearance of a college athlete, in fact upon having a swell vacation at his father's expense. But the fact must be told, that he alone of all the men on deck, had seemed to notice Helen and be impressed by her appearance.

Then, all of a sudden, the other man whose appearance Helen had admired, turned to her and said: "Shall we take the winners on for a game of deck tennis?"

"I'd love to!" replied Helen, saying to herself that Lady Luck at last was her good friend.

As the trip progressed Helen and her newly found, tanned, thirty-five-year-old male acquaintance played deck tennis together every day. He was always polite and courteous—yes, even friendly. But that was as far as things went. Nights, instead of being with the older man, she danced and walked on deck with the young, sentimental college youth.

Things went along like that until the night before they docked at London. On that night Helen missed her college student-dancer at the farewell dance. Feeling a little disappointed, she retired to the deck where she sat in a deck chair and admired the stars and the moon.

Suddenly from nowhere came "Hello, Helen!" She lifted her glance from the stars to discover who had approached her. And it was her deck tennis partner—the one man who seemed anxious to find a young woman to share his home.

"Helen," he said, as he dragged her out of the deck chair and over to the rail, "I've been looking for you. It's too late for deck tennis—so I thought you might play a game of love. I want you for my partner always."

"Do you like rose-covered cottages with gardens, and with a wife waiting there nights with a home-cooked meal for you?" whispered Helen, as she edged closer to her friend.

"Darned right I do," was his ready response.

"Well, I guess this game of love is all right, then. But let's make it soon."

"Tomorrow we'll be in London, and that's where I'm stationed for a year or so. You won't mind living in London, will you, Helen, darling?"

"Never—you see, I only purchased a one-way ticket."

COMMITTEE TO HELP DRAFT CATTLE PLAN

A committee of twenty-five representatives of the cattle producing industry has been selected to work with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in developing and proposing an adjustment program of benefit to the beef producers of the country, has been announced by Chester C. Davis, administrator of the adjustment act. The advisory committee held its initial meeting in Washington on May 9.

The appointment of this committee is according to the recommendation of representatives of the beef industry who attended a national conference called by the Adjustment Administration in Chicago on April 28. Resolutions adopted at this conference requested the beef cattle section of the administration to appoint such an advisory committee, composed of cattle breeders and feeders.

The committee includes representatives from every cattle producing section of the country. The range men of the west, the breeders and feeders of the corn belt, and producers of the east and south will all have a voice in the development of the proposed national program. The close relationship between dairying and beef production is recognized in the selection of the committee.

The cattle adjustment program which is developed by the administration and the special advisory committee will be referred back to the producers of the country for their approval. A series of regional conferences will provide opportunity for full study and discussion, and for expressions on acceptance of the adjustment plan which is to be formulated.

Under the opinion of E. K. Neumann, attorney general, last week, meats, hides, wools, garden, grove, ranch or farm products are exempt from the sales tax when sold by the grower or producer "in kind" but subsequent sales are subject to the tax.

Neumann advised Dr. L. H. Kent, president, that the exemption applied to foodstuffs grown on the state college farm, or produced by the college, unless manufactured or refined into a by-product by a buyer. Other sales of the institution are subject to the tax, he held.

School books and supplies, if not for a profit, are exempt. If the department is operated for a profit, there is a tax even though the profits accrue to the institution and the tax goes to the state. This applies to the student dining rooms and dormitories, he said.

Tuition charges, matriculation and other fees and athletic admissions or shows are exempt.

Sales of milk and butter by dairymen are exempt, Neumann wrote in answer to the inquiry of Claude Simpson of Roswell.

Neumann holds the law means that farm and ranch products continue to be exempt so long as sold and resold in the original form.

Neumann held that sales to Indians are not tax-exempt unless to tribal government agencies or divisions.

CLINTON ANDERSON TO DIRECT SALES TAX

SANTA FE—Clinton P. Anderson, state treasurer, will direct the sales tax in New Mexico until the state tax commission can take over administration of the law.

Anderson's designation as sales tax administrator was made Saturday by Gov. A. W. Hockenbush with the consent of the tax commission. He will serve without pay until June 10. By that time the commission hopes to have cleared its decks sufficiently of corporate valuations and the like to begin work on the tax, if the commission is not ready by then, R. L. Ormsbee, chief clerk of the highway department, will take over the task until it is ready.

The governor said Anderson will select the sales tax force and if he wants to retain J. E. Waterman, named director by Byron O. Beall, chief commissioner, he may do so. Anderson, however, said he believed Waterman's appointment expired when his own appointment was made.

Governor Hockenbush said he had heard nothing of reports that protests had been made by school people and merchants against administration of the law by Beall.

HOUSING PROGRAM OUTLINED

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt Monday set in motion a housing program which officials expect will free billions of dollars for building, repairs and the refinancing of existing debt.

In a special message to congress asking legislation, he described the purpose of the plan as twofold.

"First, to return many of the unemployed to useful and gainful occupation; second, to produce tangible, useful wealth in a form for which there is great social and economic need."

WHAT NOT TO DO

1. Do not run or exercise any more than necessary.
 2. Do not drink whiskey, as this increases the circulation.
 3. Do not inject permanganate of potash, which injures the tissues and is known to be of no value.
 4. Do not cauterize the site of the bite with acids or caustics.

WHAT TO DO

1. Apply suction to the wound either by mouth or suction cup. If a person's mouth has an open sore, do not "suck" the wound, but massage the bitten member under the tourniquet and away from the heart toward the incised area.
2. Lacerate in a criss-cross manner with a sharp, clean knife or razor blade over each fang mark, or, preferably, to connect the two fang punctures. These incisions should be at least one-quarter inch deep and one-quarter inch long.
3. Secure the services of a physician at the earliest possible moment.

kidnapers of William F. Gettle, oil millionaire, fell into the hands of the law at Los Angeles before police guns and their victim was rescued virtually unharmed.

A sudden raid by police and sheriff's officers on a small house in La Crescenta, north of Glendale, uncovered the hideout of the snatchers and their victim. The kidnapers broke and ran. One was captured and police later seized three men and two women associates as suspects.

"It all seemed like a bad dream," said the worn and haggard millionaire as officers stripped him of his bonds and delivered him to his seriously stricken invalid wife and four children.

"My great worry, while I lay bound hand and foot on that bed was for the anxiety my absence would cause my wife and family," Gettle added. He said the snatchers had treated him well.

It was what officers described as a "stroke of luck" which brought freedom to Gettle, who had been kidnapped near the close of an all-day party last week at his country estate in Arcadia. No ransom was paid.

Police had been watching an apartment house on north Harvard street, suspecting the occupants of one apartment to be bank robbers. Sound recording devices were placed in the apartment.

Last Saturday, Captain Harry Seagar, of the police robbery squad, related, they overheard a telephone conversation in which the speaker said, "the newspapers look favorable." That led the officers to link them with the kidnaping.

Monday the apartment was raided and three persons taken in custody, Jimmy Kirk, 38, Loretta Woody and Joan Burke.

RATTLESNAKE BITES

In safety bulletin No. 7 the New Mexico Relief Administration warns against rattlesnake bites and passes on some valuable information:

"Rattlesnakes are just now beginning to 'come out.' They have 'holed up' all winter, and, while they are sluggish, they are much more aggressive now than at any other time of the year.

Seventy-five per cent of all rattlesnake bites occur on the lower extremities, and they could be prevented by wearing boots or leggings. About twenty-two per cent occur on the hands and arms. This emphasizes the importance of exercising care not to put the hands in invisible places when climbing rocks and to observe carefully when moving logs or picking up objects on the ground or in places obscured by vegetation, brush or rocks. There is no need to fear snake bites, but ordinary care in preventing exposure to these reptiles may save a great deal of suffering with, probably, fatal results.

What To Do

1. A tourniquet, which may be a necktie or any piece of cloth big enough to encircle wounded member, should be applied just above the wound. Pull it down tight, but release it about every ten or fifteen minutes for a minute.
2. Lacerate in a criss-cross manner with a sharp, clean knife or razor blade over each fang mark, or, preferably, to connect the two fang punctures. These incisions should be at least one-quarter inch deep and one-quarter inch long.

RULE ON DELINQUENT TAXES IS EXPLAINED

Interest on delinquent 1933, if unpaid by June 1, 1934, the taxpayer will be at the rate of one cent a month from date of delinquency, although there is no interest if the taxes are paid by that date. It was held by Frank Patton, assistant county treasurer.

If the taxes are not paid by June 15, 1934, the taxpayer is entitled to other advantages of the special session, Patton holds, and further that prior taxes paid by June 15 do not eliminate the interest penalties on the delinquent taxes.

County Treasurer M. J. Tega of Santa Fe raised questions. "If the 1933 taxes were paid by June 15, 1934, would interest do they carry over?" "Should the taxpayer charge at the rate of one cent interest on the first installment from May 1, 1934, and the interest be figured on the second installment from May 15, 1934?"

Patton held the one cent interest should be figured from May 1, 1934, on the first installment, and the second installment is unpaid by June 15, 1934, then the law is to the effect that the interest on the second installment should be figured as though the law had been enacted.

Tourniquet in place must be loosened every fifteen minutes, or bled tightly. It is used to congest the area and reduce circulation. Unless care is taken this matter, gangrene will result which is a decomposition of flesh in areas affected by the bite.
