School Notes

Miss Jones, our capable second grade teacher, conducted the second grade students in a very enjoyable program last Thursday afternoon. The children showed that they had excellent training. The program was opened by audience singing "Yankee Doodle," "Darling Nellie Gray," "There is Music in the Air," "The Little Flower," Act I, took place in the shop in which Master Tailor, Little Lewis, and Little Tailor, Little Casabonne, were conversing. II, in the king's palace, brought forth more characters: The King, Kenneth Richardson; Servant, J. E. Kinstry; Door Keeper, Victor...

considerable space in today's newspapers. Our "orgy of crime is not traceable to the failure of the educational system," reported Dr. B. O. Dugan, University of Tennessee. He said that as education increases, criminality decreases, and that one of every 5 persons in the penitentiary today comes from the illiterate 5.5 percent of the state's total population. Agreeing with Dr. Dugan, Sydney B. Hall, state superintendent of schools in Virginia, says: "Education is the best investment business and industry can make. Of 500 prisoners in Sing Sing, 225 left school before finishing the sixth grade. Only 8 of 500 had completed a college education." Addressing the Pennsylvania State Education Association, Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, declared: "The United States is spending $1,500,000,000 a year to incarcerate 500,000 prisoners, while schools spend only $200,000,000 more to educate 26,000,000 children."—School Life.

OUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

Rewards I can't think of a human trait more objectionable than the "what do I get out of it" habit. We become readily suspicious of the person who always says or thinks "what is there in it for me?" And yet aren't we guilty of breeding that into each new generation of society? What else can it be when we, the members of such a club, offer a five dollar gold piece for the best essay on some favorite topic? We give this and that for art contests; trips to the big city to the pupil who is first in something or other. Banquets, sweaters, gold medals, and what not to members of winning athletic teams. Right into the classroom it goes, with prizes for anything we want accomplished.

Little wonder that the individual develops the habit of analyzing personal gain. We encourage him to do just that. As a matter of fact, anyone who knows that if all thought of prizes is removed and no tradition has been established, children just for the love of doing them. Such is child nature. Of course, not all things interesting to adults are attractive to children. We must take age and stage of development into account. But in ordinary school work, children will give their best for a teacher they like. And all the reward they want is a "well done," or "that's fine." It's that word of praise they seek, simply a little human recognition of a job well done, of something into which they put their best efforts.

"I saw you put your arm around my daughter!" "And I suppose you noticed how she struggled?" "The Sheikh: "Thru the Sahara's worst sandstorm I have come to thee, Nellie." "Sheikess: "Aye, Rudolph, surely thou must be a man of grit." "I've decided to become a vegetarian." "Did the doctor advise it?" "No—the butcher. He won't give me any more credit." "Do you like filet mignon?" "I dunno. What race is she running in?" "I sent my little boy, Johnny, for five pounds of apples, and you only sent four and a quarter pounds." "My scales are right, madam. Have you weighed your little boy?" "Where have you been all the evening?" "At the office." "Then you must be made of asbestos. Your office building burned down three hours ago." "How did you make your neighbor keep his hens in his own yard?" "One night I hid a half dozen eggs under a bush in my garden and next day I let him see me gather them. I wasn't bothered after that."

Valley Teams Lose In First Round of State Tournament; Floyd Champions

Both Artesia, runner-up in district 5, and Carrizozo, basketball champions in district 5, lost out in the first rounds of the state basketball tournament at Albuquerque Friday. Carrizozo was downed by the Santa Fe Indians, 23 to 16, and Artesia lost to the Burke Indians 32 to 23, after making a determined stand in the last half of the game. The Artesia lads pulled out of a 3 to 18 hole in the last half, scoring thirteen points in the third period and five in the last, but the Burke Indians made six points in the last minute and a half to pull safely in the lead. Sports writers ascribed Artesia's poor showing in the first half to stage fright, but the boys responded to the pleadings of Coach Barton to play a fast game in the second half. Floyd Takes Championship The fast Floyd quintet lived up to its reputation to take the state championship game from Clovis 35 to 25 to maintain the best traditions of a long line of small country schools. The Clayton Yellow Jackets rallied in the final period to beat House, another small town entry 19 to 15, in the consolation game. In winning the championship game, the Floyd Broncs showed the best teamwork of any seen at the state tournament. A few hours after his mother's death from a heart attack, Curt Stewart of Cattlesburg, Kentucky, killed himself.

The seniors of the 1935 class are presenting their play next week on Thursday night. It is called "Lady Lilac," and promises to be one of the most intriguing and fascinating murder mysteries of the modern age. To offset the tragedy though, there is quite a bit of humor, and some rather burlesque Sherlock Holmes stunts, the characters have been well chosen, as to the character parts, and the evening will be well spent. Be sure to patronize this event.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. BELAND

Director, Physical and Health Education, New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Home Work

Once upon a time I was unalterably opposed to home work for elementary school children. Even the slightest amount of it aroused my indignation. I spoke against it at every opportunity. Indeed, I wrote an article unfavorable to home work for this series.

This isn't a confession of a change of heart, but rather an admission that I hadn't analyzed the situation quite far enough. It was a school principal, a good friend of mine, who pointed out the weak spot. As a matter of fact this principal would oppose the old idea of home work as readily as I do. I know that is true because she is opposed to home work as a substitute for school work. We both agree that evening work at home shouldn't be so many hours tacked onto the school day.

But she pointed out to me this philosophy: Children like to be active. But if the home isn't interesting, if there isn't family unity for an evening of games and music, if parents turn to their own desires, what becomes of the children and this irresistible urge to do something? Many, of course, beg to go out after supper. Older children easily acquire the "corner" habit. They seek excitement and adventure. Or they must have the movies. That is enough to call to mind the well known problem.

If the home isn't interesting, more so than the movie or the gang, can't the school provide something? And there's the answer. Interesting books to be read; art posters to be sketched; collections to put in order; science questions to answer; and things to make. The list can be long. It gives the child something worth while to do. It uses energy; it takes those troublesome hours. And there is educational value. It's a new type of home work and in many instances decidedly worth while.

This compares with a total production of 428,921,000 pounds in 1933, and 412,540,000 pounds in 1932 and 438,328,000 pounds in 1931.

The amount of wool shorn in the fall of 1934 in Texas is estimated at 6,045,000 pounds, compared with 14,850,000 pounds in 1933 and 5,050,000 pounds in 1932. In California fall shorn wool in 1934 is estimated at 2,309,000 pounds compared with 3,389,000 pounds in 1933. The amount of wool shorn at commercial feeding stations in 1934 was much smaller than in 1933. The amount reported by these stations was 1,731,000 pounds in 1934 and 3,834,000 pounds in 1933.

Influenced by the statement from Sen. Smith that the government would not make loans to support the new crop market (1935) as it had done this past year, cotton broke nearly the limit for one day's trading Monday, but rallied before the close to 11.10 for May. The market was very top-heavy with longs waiting for an advance on which to take profits, both actual and spot cotton, and additional buyers were scarce. An over-bought condition inevitably results in a decline just as an over-sold market rallies readily and easily.

With the government (or any senator connected therewith) liable to make unforseen statements such as Senator Smith made on this occasion, it is impossible to anticipate what a market will do, because it is impossible to anticipate what a man will say, unannounced. Therefore, while government influences direct the cotton market activities it is anybody's guess. Cotton seems too low, but it has demonstrated its ability to do what seems impossible.
