SYNOPSIS

The little town of Heron River is eagerly awaiting the arrival of Anna ("Silver") Grenoble, daughter of "Gentleman Jim," formerly of the community, but known as a gambler, whose news of recent murder in Chicago has reached the town.

Phronie had gone on washing the separator. She struggled to thrust back her memories of Jim, to recall only his unfairness, his selfishness. But it was no good. D—n him! D—n him! Why couldn't he have come back, just once? She had wheeled him through the potato patch in his go-cart when he was a year old, and had been spanked for it afterwards.

Now this young Anna Grenoble—Silver, Phronie amended with a sniff—would probably sell her share of the land immediately to one of those concerns in the city that was buying up sections around here for a pittance, against the time when the land would be worth something again.

It was like Roddy that yesterday he should have gone off to Ballantyne in his car, saying only that he had to go. Sophronia had her own ideas as to why he had gone, but she did not press his confidence.

A few summers ago, when the girl was a house guest at a cottage on Twin Deer lake, to the north, she had driven over and spent the afternoon at the farm, and Sophronia had learned then who it was that had become Roddy's ideal at college.

The neighbors did not know where Roddy had gone. It was just as well. They talked too much, anyhow. But had he been here, now he might have prepared himself for Silver's arrival. It would go hard with Roddy if she meant to sell her land for cash.

What they did see was a tallish thin girl in a tailored suit of dove gray silk and a felt hat of the same color—a hat that showed beneath it a white, immobile face and enormous dark eyes, and plainly dressed hair that seemed colorless. For a moment she stood looking uncer- tainly about, and then Sophronia Willard advanced upon her with her black-gloved hand outstretched.

A porter had deposited on the platform two traveling bags of fine black leather, a name stamped on each in silver. Two little boys scampered up to the cases and read the name loudly enough for all to hear.

But just as the two women reached the platform steps Duke Melbank cleared his throat with a long, profound rumble, and then coughed lightly behind his hand. A titter arose. Sophronia, setting down the suitcase she carried, swung about.

"That was you, wasn't it, Duke?" she said in her explosive voice. "Me what?" Duke asked innocently.

"It was him," a small boy piped, and darted behind his mother's skirts. "You know what I mean," Sophronia said loudly. "It was you that coughed."

Sophronia Willard was not one to mince matters. Her long arm shot forward, and her large, bony fist came accurately home just beneath the soft cleft of Duke Melbank's chin. A gasp rose from the crowd. Duke recoiled backward, struck his shoulder blade against the depot wall and uttered a sound half way between a grunt and a wail.

Phronie stood back from him, her face alight with satisfaction. She was about to turn away when Jess Melbank, with amazing alacrity for one of her weight, suddenly stepped between Phronie and Duke.

Her father was completely broken. Her mother had fifty dollars a month of her own to live on, Corinne, who had been one of the Ballantyne smart set, had made efforts to get a position at teaching, even in a country school, but the school boards were flooded with applications.

When, early this morning, Roddy had set out for Ballantyne in his car, he had had the curious feeling that the sun was a little too bright, that he could not see as clearly as he had been used to do, over undulating prairies that he knew as well as he knew his own face.

his hand, she had extended her own and in his huge, hard grasp it had been swallowed completely. He had kept his eyes fastened dumbly upon her face and had seen her lids droop in a way that could have been nothing but deliberate coquetry.

She was the daughter of the banker in Ballantyne. It was something of a wonder that he, Roddy Willard, should have taken her to the movies and to dances a number of times during their college career, a little bewildered, a little uncertain, and very much flattered by the occasional, capricious preference she showed him over all the other admirers who flocked about her.

One summer vacation she had driven over from a house party on Twin Deer lake and had found Roddy on the Willard farm, anxiously ministering to a sick horse in the pasture.

Roddy wondered now why it was that he had never kissed Corinne during those years while he was seeing her frequently. Perhaps it was his own humility. Perhaps it was because he suspected that it was his physical self alone that appealed to her, and that beyond the satisfaction of an established conquest she would have no use for him.

But he knew now that she had been in earnest. A month ago, the local papers had made much of the failure of the bank in Ballantyne, though all had absolved from blame old Edwin Meader, Corinne's father.

A Little Bewildered, a Little Uncertain, and Very Much Flattered.

Corinne, although she was still addressing herself, spoke aloud. "Yes, I could have married Sylvester. Or I could go now and clerk at eleven dollars a week in Ellingboe's dry goods store. And all the girls in town could come in and ask for samples of white satin, and gizzle, and tell me it's for their wedding dresses! No, thanks, I'd rather die than do that."

Damming the White Nile to Irrigate Egypt

The second major link in Egypt's stupendous irrigation project is now under construction on the Nile, 30 miles south of Khartoum, where 8,000 men are at work on the Gebel Auila dam. When complete the fall of 1937, the dam will form a lake 250 miles long and will provide water for 3,000,000 acres in Egypt.

Artist Sells Shares in Himself

Shares in the talents of young Richard Crist, Pittsburgh artist, shown here in his studio, sold at par of $5. He wanted to go to Mexico on a painting expedition, and to finance his trip offered to bring back a water color or oil painting for each of those who would buy one or more shares in Richard Crist, Inc. This may be the cue for more straggling young artists.

New Deal Badly Hurt by Ruling That AAA Processing Taxes Are Unconstitutional—Democratic Senators Score Schall of Minnesota.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

TWO to one against the New Deal was the week's score in Federal court decisions. The administration suffered severely. The Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati first held unconstitutional the condemnation of land by the PWA for slum clearance. Then the Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston dealt the AAA a terrific blow by declaring unconstitutional the processing and flour taxes.

The one favorable decision was by the Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and was that the Sale of cheap electric power by the Tennessee Valley authority was constitutional.

Harold Ickes, who is PWA administrator, said the slum clearance work would be carried on, though necessarily in a modified form. But Chester Davis, AAA administrator, openly admitted that "the end of the processing taxes would mean the end of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in all its important aspects." He would not confirm that he believed for a minute the Supreme court would confirm the ruling of the court at Boston. He asserted he had expected that decision to be adverse, saying "That section around Boston is a hotbed of resistance to the processing taxes. Why, it's right up there among all those cotton manufacturers." This was most extraordinary comment from a high government official, but the Appeal court in Boston has not yet ruled Davis for contempt.

Uninformed and unbiased people have never believed the processing taxes would stand up under a test. The Guiffey coal bill has similar features so that the debate it should read in the House in the Boston decision is a sobered resistance to the processing taxes. Why, it's right up there among all those cotton manufacturers." This was most extraordinary comment from a high government official, but the Appeal court in Boston has not yet ruled Davis for contempt.

Some is not, as the government intended, whether congress can appropriate funds for any purpose named by congress in furtherance of the "general welfare," but whether congress has any power to control or regulate matters which are state and lay a special tax for that purpose.

Several hundred suits to enjoin collection of the processing taxes have been filed in Federal courts by processors. If they pay the taxes under the act is held unconstitutional by the Supreme court, they will not be able to recover, under a provision of the pending amendments prohibiting recovery suits against the government.

Senator J. HAMILTON LEWIS of Illinois, a member of the foreign relations committee, long has urged that Great Britain be persuaded to cede to the United States her island possessions in the Caribbean sea in payment of her war debt. The other day he was moved to bring the subject up again and delivered an interesting speech in the senate. This time he based his proposal upon the "peace offer" of England to cede a portion of her territory in Somaliland to Ethiopia, which in turn would cede certain territory to Italy with a view of averting the impending war between those countries.

The senator also suggested that England surrender all rights she claims to privileges of constructing a Nicaragua canal, recalling, as a precedent, that England compelled France to yield all claims to territory adjacent to the Suez canal.

George William Russell, known to the world of letters as "AE," is dead at Bourne mouth, England, at the age of sixty-eight. He was one of the brightest stars of modern Ireland. Though famous especially as a poet, Russell was versatile, being a painter, editor, business man, organizer and one of the founders of the noted Abbey theater in Dublin.

Not Constitutional Flies and Black Magic Kilkenny Cats, Again Pickings for Lawyers

In Boston, the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals decides, two to one, that the "New Deal" process tax on cotton is unconstitutional. The judges decide that "the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce does not authorize it to tax products either of agriculture or industry merely because their production may indirectly affect interstate commerce."

Arthur Brisbane.

This important decision, if not upset by the higher courts, will upset, decidedly, the plans of the administration in regard to financing bigger incomes for farmers.

Universal Service says Abyssinia will not take Mussolini, his airplanes and armored tanks "lying down." Abyssinian sorcerers, dealers in black magic, will work against Italy. What is more dangerous than magic, Abyssinian fighting chiefs will use the poisonous tsetse fly against Italian soldiers. These flies, feeding on decayed animal matter caught in the teeth of sleeping crocodiles, get the tsetse germs from the blood of the crocodiles and plant them in the blood of human beings and cattle.

Slow death by "sleeping sickness," leaving the body almost a skeleton, follows the tsetse bite.

Two cats hung over a line must fight. The Kilkenny story proves it. Mussolini has committed himself to war, and once a dictator speaks positively it is unsafe, politically, for him to back down, especially when other nations interfere, as France and England have interfered. To retreat might cost Mussolini his prestige.

Difficult also is the position of Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia. His hold is not firm. Important chiefs, heading various Abyssinian tribes, would like his job. If he should avoid war by yielding part of his territory to Mussolini, as advised by England, resulting complications might include assassination, common in tropical countries.

The United States Chamber of Commerce objects to the income and inheritance tax program, calls it confiscation. The question involved seems simple: Does the property of the United States, result of thrift and intelligence, belong to the people that created it, or is it only held in trust by them for public use by those that for the time being exercise powers of government?

Owners of stock in Paramount Public Moving Picture company, once selling on the market at $100,000,000 and more, now worth about nothing, learn that in some winding up proceedings lawyers ask for $3,600,000. That seems a good deal, but you must remember that one New York lawyer—he will not object to being mentioned—the skillful Louis Levy, once got more than $1,000,000 for settling a sad misunderstanding between a prosperous gentleman and a certain "little lady."

Figures do not lie, but they surprise you. For instance, in the year 1801 the government of the United States had 120 employees. Today it has 700,000 employees, an increase of 5,000 per cent. The number of congressmen has risen since 1801 from 128 to 531, a little more than 400 per cent, while United States population has increased 2,500 per cent.

The increase in population is due to mothers, the increase in government extravagance is due to politicians.

Austria seems not quite certain that she has had enough of the Hapsburg royal family, that has ruled and misruled an intelligent people for so long. The state council cancels a decree that banished Hapsburgs and took their property. Young Archduke Otto, pretender to the throne, may now return to Austria. He and his mother will find themselves rich, the confiscated imperial property returned.

Young Otto, a handsome boy, with a somewhat peevish conceited expression, may occupy the throne. Self-government is not easily learned.

Washington reports a "whispering campaign" concerning President Roosevelt's health. It will be a very small whisper if the whisperers stick to facts. The President's friends will be glad to know that his health is excellent, has never been better since his Presidential work began. A constitution able to withstand and conquer such an attack of illness as the President has withstood need not worry about a few political annoyances.

EXPERT EXPLAINS HEAVY RAINFALL IN CLOUDBURST

Why a "cloudburst" may yield many times as much rain as all the water in the cloud when the rain begins is explained by Charles F. Talman, well-known meteorologist of the United States weather bureau. In an account for the American Nature association of Washington, says the Baltimore Sun.

Even the densest clouds never contain more than about one part of water to 20,000 parts of air, which is far much less than the water in many so-called cloudbursts, which have been observed and measured, even if every bit of cloud condensed and fell as rain at the same instant. It is a usual experience, also, that the clouds do not vanish during a cloudburst, but are apparently just as thick and dense afterward as before.

Mr. Talman explains that a cloudburst really is an especially sudden and violent thunder storm, in which great currents of warm, moist air from close to the ground rush rapidly a mile or more up into the atmosphere, are cooled suddenly by this rise and give up their load of moisture in the form of raindrops. The rapid up-currents of air may keep most of these raindrops aloft for a while, but presently the upward air currents slacken and billions of the suspended droplets fall as a violent rain.

The water in one of these sudden falls may have been drawn from the low air for many square miles around the spot where the cloudburst happens. What may have been the world's record cloudburst is described as 24 inches of rain falling in less than five minutes, and Mr. Talman is skeptical. The maximum acceptable record is one of about an inch of rain in a minute, which fell in California in 1923.

THE NEW FIRESTONE GROUND GRIP TIRE WILL ENABLE YOU TO USE YOUR CAR, TRUCK AND TRACTOR IN ALL KINDS OF WEATHER

THE body of this tire is built with patented Gum-Dipped Cords, giving it extra strength and greater flexing ability without creating heat, the greatest enemy of tire life. The extra-heavy super traction tread on this tire is scientifically designed to prevent the bumpiness on smooth roads that is so objectionable in other tires designed for traction in soft ground. This heavy self-cleaning tread, required to withstand unusual pulling traction and strains, is securely locked to the cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra Gum-Dipped cord layers under the tread.

These new and unusually effective Firestone super traction tires enable you to operate your tractors, trucks and passenger cars for all kinds of farm work and over ground and roads that could not be traveled with ordinary tires, even equipped with chains.

Students May Obtain Assistance In The College Student Aid Program

Following information relating to students making application under the college student aid program of the national youth administration has been sent from the office of Senator Dennis Chavez and may be of interest to our local readers: (1) The aid provided students is in the form of part-time jobs, which enable students to earn on an average of $15 per month while attending school. (2) There are no scholarships or loans to college students provided by the youth administration, as congress has never authorized such an expenditure of funds. How to make application: (1) Make your application direct to the president of the institution you wish to attend, asking specifically for an assignment of one of the part-time jobs being provided by the national youth administration. In order to secure one of these jobs it is not essential that you attend a college in the state in which you reside. (2) In the event that the college of your first choice is unable to assign you a job, because this quota is filled, you should consult your state youth director as he may be able to suggest other colleges which have not yet filled their quota.

Airplane Is Used In Looking After Ranch Properties

Modern methods of transportation have been increasing at an unbelievable rate in the past ten years. Ten years ago it would have taken fully an hour and a half to have traveled to the Old Mule Shoe ranch, about forty miles west of Artesia. Monday a plane made the distance from Midland, Texas, to the ranch in one hour and twenty-six minutes. The Mule Shoe ranch, purchased by the Scharbauer Cattle Co., several years ago, has been changed to the Figure 5 ranch with L. E. Beyers as ranch foreman. The Scharbauer Cattle Co., has adopted the latest method of travel in looking after ranching interests and when Clarence Scharbauer, general manager of the Scharbauer interests at Midland, Texas (and nephew of Uncle John Scharbauer) inspects ranch properties he does it quick and in the modern way. Monday Mr. Scharbauer, with Elliott Cowden, piloted by Little Jimmie McIntyre, started out on an inspection tour. They flew from Midland to the Figure 5 ranch, located Mr. Beyers with a tanking crew and dropped a note, directing Mr. Beyers to come to the ranch house. At the ranch house they held a conference with Mr. Beyers and shortly after noon were en route home. They planned to inspect two more Scharbauer ranching properties on the plains before returning home and expected to fly into Midland before sundown.

The Western Lamb Crop Is Described As Poor To Fair

Lamb crops for Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and New Mexico ranged from poor to about steady this year, said a report for thirteen western sheep states issued Monday by the department of agriculture at Denver, Colorado. In Colorado the crop was generally poor in the eastern section and fair to good elsewhere averaging less than in 1934. Losses during the winter were quite high in the eastern part of the state. Ranges were reported as in excellent shape except in the southeast district and lambs were developing very satisfactorily. New Mexico's lamb crop was said to be about the same as last year. Ranges were very good in the west-central and northwest sections, but dry with short feed in the eastern districts. Winter and spring losses of ewes were a little above average. The lamb crop for the thirteen western states was reported about 2,000,000 lambs under last year's making it the smallest since 1927. Thomas Jefferson bought Louisiana. Huey Long just took it.

Receipts of State Land Office Total $2,215,666.77

SANTA FE—State Land Commissioner Frank Vesely released Thursday the annual report of his department, showing actual receipts of $2,215,666.77 and an operating expense percentage of .031, the lowest expense figure since the land office was created in 1909. Including a balance of $30,535.17 carried over in the suspense fund, receipts for the year ending June 30, 1935, were $2,246,201.94. Only once before, in 1931, did receipts pass the two million dollar mark, totaling $2,036,727.41 in that year. The report shows an unexpended balance of $215,367.10 in the maintenance fund, the portion which the law allows for office operation. This unexpended balance was distributed to the institutions and schools, Vesely said. Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS. — Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see high and low. Been home with my feet on the ground now for several days, but the air is more interesting. You can just see everything while up there, and travelers are mighty secretive. They don't talk much, so you don't have to listen to some fellow telling how bad things are going for Roosevelt, or what's to become of the Constitution. They all seem to forget that those nine old gentlemen will look after the Constitution, and Mr. Roosevelt will just have to look after himself. He has to do our worrying, but we don't have to do his, so you can just sit up there in the middle of some clouds, or maby fog, and you don't even have to worry. That's the pilots business to do the worrying. We pay for the ride, not for the worrying, so we all ought to sorter stop doing so much worrying for awhile.

Of course I know with lots of folks out of work that's a pretty assanine thing to say, for if you are not working it just ain't human to not worry. It's pretty hard to get a correct line on just how the unemployed list is making out. They ought to be showing some signs of cutting it down by now. But there is so many conflicting stories about it, that it's hard to get any unbiased information.

I was a reading in the papers here lately where Canada was having a sort of a tough time. I hadn't been keeping up with their affairs much lately. I have always had such high regard for the way they generally handle their affairs that I just naturally thought they was going good. That fellow Bennett their Premier always seemed like such a level headed high class man that I could see how he could lose out up there, but I read now that it looks probable. Say this running a Government is kinder like our movie business. You are only as good as your last picture. Things over which they have no control comes along and yet if it happens and it's bad, why cut them off. When all the British Colonies held their Conference, this Canadian Premier was outstanding. They was all talking about him, but maby the poor fellow was put into a story that looked all right before they made it, and now that its not so hot he gets the blame.

Now on the other hand we have just been visited by the Premier of Australia and he is riding the crest. Australia had a terrible slump, in fact earlier and worse than pretty near everybody, but this fellow right out of the common herd is pulling his Country right out, and Australia leans more than pretty nearly any other place to various experiments. In fact it has tried a good many of these of ours ahead of us, but this fellow seemed to have improved things by a system of cutting cost.

There ain't much improvement on economy in Government been discovered I reckon. Mr Morgenthau our Treasurer is out now to balance the budget. That looks like a sort of healthy sign. Course this relief thing is a hard thing to balance into your budget. You can sit down a year ahead and figure out who all is going to be hungry. And how many of em there will be. Its like sickness. It can upset the best family budget in the world. A big dose of it on one family is just more than anyone can count on, but that's what the old National Treasury has been up against. Now that things are kinder looking up, why everybody has a remedy. I don't believe anybody knows any more now than they ever did. The whole thing is so big and complicated that pretty nearly everybody that has a remedy has 't according to his own particular case.

We are awful apt in saving the country to save ourselves first. Our solution is that as we are all in the river over our heads the only way out is to swim. We say that because we can swim, but there may be as many more that cant, so the "Swim Out" remedy dident work, only with us.

Record Narrow Street
Parliament street, in Exeter, England, where a broadshouldered man has to turn sideways to walk, is one of the narrowest streets in the world if not the prize-taker itself. It is little more than a yard across at the widest point and the houses' front doors open on it. The story is told that a fat man made a bet with a thin athlete that he could beat him in a short race if he (the fat man) had a start of one yard and could pick his course. He picked Parliament street, and the athlete could not pass him.

Bedtime Story

DANNY IS GLAD HIS TAIL IS SHORT

MANY, many times, Danny Meadow Mouse had envied his cousins, Whitefoot the Woodmouse, Nimble Heels the Jumping Mouse, and Nibbler the House Mouse, because of their long tails. It used to seem to him that Old Mother Nature had been very unfair in giving him such a homely, short, stubby tail. If there was any one thing he would have had if he could, it would have been a long tail. The truth is, Danny used to be ashamed of that short tail.

But he isn't any more. No, sir, Danny Meadow Mouse wouldn't have that tail of his any different now if he could. He had learned one of life's great lessons, which is that those things which sometimes seem the least to be desired are the greatest blessings. He learned it that night when he played hide and seek with Buster Bear, deep in the Green Forest.

Buster Bear is a very clever fellow. There are few who use their wits as Buster uses his. It didn't take him long to realize that never in the world would he be able to catch Danny Meadow Mouse by simply chasing him round and round the trunk of that tree. As soon as he realized it he stopped to think.

BLUE-RIBBON BABY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

BLUE-RIBBON BABY, with stars in your eyes, You are reward enough! You are Life's prize! Some have a cat with a high pedigree; Others have dogs that are noble to see. The loveliest flowers gained awards at the fair, And even a pumpkin wore blue with an air!

Blue-ribbon horses ran races and won! Cattle and hogs gained a place in the sun. All we are proud of in this gorgeous state, We saw as we entered the fair's swinging gate. I, who enjoyed it, looked forward to see The baby who stayed home and waited for me.

Blue-ribbon baby, I never could win A greater reward than my days, Which begin With a baby's blue gaze, and the touch of small hands. And the thousand sweet nothings my heart understands. The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a boy twelve years old, and am in the ninth grade in school. In my English lesson for next week I must write an essay in which I have to use three words, meaning the direct opposite to the following three words: "Misery," "Sorrow," and "Woe." I know the opposite to "misery" is "happiness," and I know the opposite to "sorrow" is "joy," but the other word sticks me. Will you please tell me the opposite to "woe"?

Yours truly,
DICK-SONARY.

Answer: I am surprised a boy of your age doesn't know that the opposite to "woe" is "giddap."

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Would you be kind enough to tell me the best way to remove paint?

Yours truly,
I. STAINESAY.

Answer: Sit on it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Will you kindly settle a dispute for us? In our town there is a strike on the trolley car line and the cars are being run by incompetent men, with the result there have several accidents. What we want to know is this: "In case of an accident, what is the first duty of the conductor and the motorman?"

Yours truly,
VIOLET RAYS.

Answer: In case of an accident the first duty of the conductor and the motorman is to blame it on each other.

PICNIC MEALS

OPEN-AIR meals are in order now until the snow flies. These picnic meals may be of the simplest, but be sure that there is plenty of whatever it is, for there is nothing that encourages appetite like a good long walk and a ride in the fresh air.

The perfect picnic always supposes a fire, where things can be heated or cooked, and there are few Scouts or Campfire Girls who can't prepare one in a short time. The building of a fireplace to roast the potatoes or corn and boil the water for the frankfurters is an accomplishment that most of the youth of today take as a matter of course.

If the fire is to be made on the beach, a trench is dug to make a fire-box. Then the true sportsman will see that every bit of debris and all embers are burned and buried before leaving the campfire.

One may cook bacon on sticks, threading the slices on green twigs, or cook steak in a camp frying pan or on a piece of sheet iron. A few trips will give one a good idea of the things needed and the collection will last for a long time with care.

One may eat and digest very hearty foods when out of doors, fried potatoes, boiled wieners or frankfurters cooked in boiling water are so good in bread and butter sandwiches with a slice of mild onion. Eggs scrambled make a nice dish. To roast sweet potatoes one must use the following directions carefully: Wash the potatoes carefully and wrap them in green leaves or wet brown paper, then bury them in hot ashes and cover with coals and burning wood. In 40 minutes try them with a sharp stick. As soon as they are soft remove from the wrapping and eat with plenty of butter while piping hot. This same method is used for Irish potatoes.

Through A WOMAN'S EYES

by JEAN NEWTON

WE'VE GROWN TOO MODERN FOR WIVES TO SELL HUSBANDS

IF MY friends have any doubt that a new day for women has not only dawned but is in full swing, let them hark to this tale from Soviet Russia, where a wife sold her husband for a hundred rubles!

The couple were textile workers. In their thirties, and had three small children. A friend of the wife in the lower social position of a teacher, asked her help in finding a husband. She complained of not having the more fortunate factory worker's opportunities for meeting men and offered the other woman a hundred rubles if she could get her a "kind hearted man with domestic tastes."

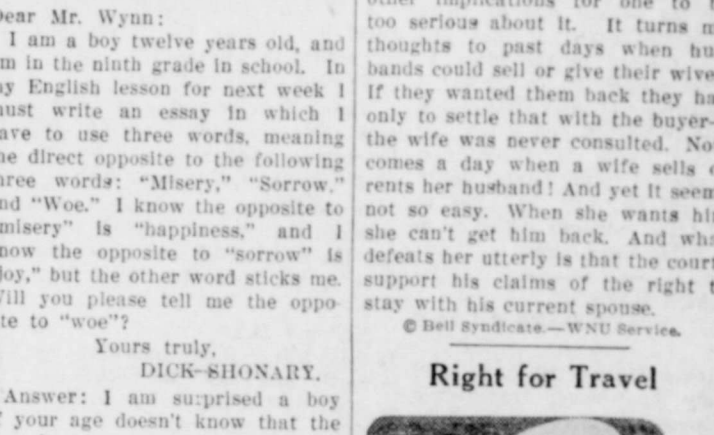

The wife needed a hundred rubles and her friend had never met her husband; so quite ingeniously she conceived the idea, not of selling him, but of renting him temporarily, so to speak. She arranged a satisfactory meeting between the two, and divorced her husband to enable him to marry the other woman. Those are mere details in Russia today, and the plan was to have him return in a few weeks and re-marry her. This is authentic, mind you, the subject of a news dispatch from Moscow; not a fairy tale.

The marriage went off smoothly and the money was paid. The only hitch in the plan came a few weeks later when the wife prepared to re-marry her husband—and he would not go home! And the courts upheld him.

The moral—cheating cheaters? Oh, no. The story is too luscious with other implications for one to be too serious about it. It turns my thoughts to past days when husbands could sell or give their wives. If they wanted them back they had only to settle that with the buyer—the wife was never consulted. Now comes a day when a wife sells or rents her husband! And yet it seems not so easy. When she wants him she can't get him back. And what defeats her utterly is that the courts support his claims of the right to stay with his current spouse.

The geographic center of the steel industry in the United States is in Crawford county, Ohio, north and west of the town of Crestline, 150 miles west of Pittsburgh, according to a calculation made by the American Iron and Steel Institute. Crestline has only two iron foundries. The great concentration of capacity in Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio balanced by the capacity on the Erie coast, some 2,500 miles westward, and by the mills in the Chicago district. Since 1874, the earliest year for which the Institute finds records available, the center of the steel industry has moved steadily toward the West. Sixty years ago it was miles northwest of Harrisburg. —Kansas City Star.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Politics varies little from week to week or from administration to administration. There is much the same reaction to smart maneuvers and much the same consequence when a politician makes a bonehead play. Those who make the mistakes pay the penalties and just now one hears an abundance of discussion in Washington as to whether Mr. Roosevelt has made a political mistake that may cost him dearly later on.

Mistakes Are Costly
It will be recalled how in 1928 Senator William E. Borah of Idaho exacted a pledge from candidate Herbert Hoover that if Mr. Hoover were elected he would immediately call a special session of congress to deal with the agricultural tariff. Mr. Hoover carried out his promise and in so doing brought about his eventual downfall. He asked congress for a specific thing, namely, revision of the tariff affecting agricultural imports so that American agriculture could live. But congress, as congress does so many times, refused to stay in bounds. It got out of hand so badly that when the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill finally was enacted into law it turned out to be a boomerang of the worst kind. It overwhelmed Mr. Hoover and all of those who attempted to justify it.

Now to bring the parallel to date, Mr. Roosevelt has asked congress for a three point tax program. It is another one of those specific things. No sooner had his special message landed at the Capitol than house and senate members began going around to see how it could be expanded. Each member had his own ideas and each member began insisting and continues to insist on having those ideas included in the Roosevelt tax bill. From this program will result, a good many observers believe, a flareback on the President and his aspirations for re-election next year.

The efforts to expand the tax bill and a good many of them are going to be successful—represent only the beginning. The thing is like a snowball and snowballs have a way of getting too large to manage. Sometimes they roll down upon the boy who started to make them. When the President first tossed his tax message into what was presumed to be the last stage of the session, he explained that the purpose of the new taxes was ultimately to balance the budget and at the same time to lay a foundation for redistribution of wealth. After the first flurry in which the administration spokesmen at the Capitol tried to rush through a bill, examination disclosed that the schedules he had proposed accomplished neither a balanced budget nor the objective of redistributed wealth. The potential yield of the income tax on the greater incomes failed in any way to produce a wealth redistribution. Nor did the proposed tax on inheritances and gifts yield a great return because in none of the instances are there large sources of revenue to tap.

When the President offered his tax bill he suggested informally that the probable yield would be about $341,000,000 annually. Congressional examination of the schedules developed a conviction among the leaders at the Capitol that the yield would not be in excess of $100,000,000 annually. Then, along came Secretary Morgenthau who expressed various and sundry ideas about taxation, but made no recommendations whatsoever. That, according to the trained political observers here, was another mistake. It left the door wide open and naturally there was forthcoming a perfect deluge of the tax ideas born among individual members after the President's message was delivered.

While it is too early yet to predict the final form of the tax legislation, it appears on the basis of the present circumstances that the new bill will tax the incomes of a great many hundreds of thousands of persons at a heavier rate than they now are paying. They will get the full force and effect of these tax rates next March 15 when the first installment of taxes on incomes of 1935 is due. Thereby hangs the possible political consequences of the President's tax message. People never like to pay taxes, and to pay taxes now, with economic conditions what they are, is much more distasteful than in prosperous days. So, the political observers in their discussion around Washington now contend that Mr. Roosevelt will have much to answer for if the Republicans and New Deal opposition have the ability to utilize the material made available to them. Precisely in these columns I have referred to the possible strategy of the President in seeking re-election through an appeal to the masses. This course has been freely charged by those who contend that the $3,000,000,000 public works-relief

Income tax bill has been suggested informally that the probable yield would be about $341,000,000 annually. Congressional examination of the schedules developed a conviction among the leaders at the Capitol that the yield would not be in excess of $100,000,000 annually. Then, along came Secretary Morgenthau who expressed various and sundry ideas about taxation, but made no recommendations whatsoever. That, according to the trained political observers here, was another mistake. It left the door wide open and naturally there was forthcoming a perfect deluge of the tax ideas born among individual members after the President's message was delivered.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for August 4
JOSIAH
LESSON TEXT—II Kings 22:1-5, 11-23.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.—Matthew 4:10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When a King Read the Bible.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When a King Used the Bible.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Things That Keep God Out.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Our Religion Owe to Reformers.

I. Josiah, a Godly Young King (II Kings 22:1, 2).
"He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left." About one hundred years elapsed between the reformation under Hezekiah and that of Josiah. Sometime during this period the Book of God's Law had been lost. Two wicked kings had reigned in this interval. It was incumbent upon the king to have the Law of God at his command and faithfully to read it. A country's highest well-being can only be attained when it has godly rulers, and rulers and people not only read the Bible, but order their lives and conduct according to its teachings. Not until rulers and people return to God and conform their lives to the standard of his Word can we hope for return of permanent prosperity.

II. The Book of the Law Found (II Kings 22:3-10).
1. The occasion (vv. 3-8). It was while restoring the temple during Josiah's administration that the Law was found. In clearing out the dark corners to make repairs and to find a place to store the subscriptions made by the people, many lost things were found, among which was the Book of Law.
2. The Book read before the king (vv. 9, 10). Upon making a report of the work to the king, Shaphan informed him of the finding of the Book of the Law of the Lord, and he read the Book before the king.

III. The Effect of the Reading of the Law Upon the King (II Kings 22:11-20).
1. He rent his clothes (v. 11). As the Law was read before him he was led to realize the awful extent of the nation's departure from God. The reading of the royal robes indicated the king's penitence and sorrow.
2. The king sent a deputation to make inquiry of the Lord (v. 12-20). He included himself in the guilt before God (v. 13). His sense of sin was so keen that he sent to inquire of the Lord as to whether there was any means of diverting the divine judgments.
3. The message of Huldah the prophetess (vv. 15-20).
a. Confirmation of what the Law said (vv. 15-17). She said that all the curses written in the Law must fall, for the sins had been so flagrant that God's wrath could not be restrained. It was not too late, however, upon repenting, to obtain mercy from God, but the outward consequences of sin must be realized.

IV. The Reformation Instituted by Josiah (II Kings 23:1-25).
1. The king read the Law (v. 1, 2). He gathered together the inhabitants of Jerusalem, including the priests, Levites, and elders and read to them the Law. What a happy scene it would be if the President of the United States would call the representatives of the people together to hear God's law read.
2. The king made a covenant before the Lord (v. 3). In this covenant he pledged himself:
a. To walk before the Lord. This meant that he would get personally right with God. It is highly important that a ruler first be in right personal relationship to God.
b. To keep God's commandments, his testimonies and his statutes. This obedience was to be a heart obedience.
c. To perform the words of covenant which were written in this Book. The king not only entered into this sincerely but caused all who were present to "stand" to it.
3. The king took away the abominations (v. 4-29). He not only broke down the places of idolatrous worship, but slew the priests who officiated at the altar.
4. The Passover kept (v. 21-23). So fully and heartily did they enter into this reformation that this Passover was unlike any that had been held since the days of the Judges.
5. Workers of the occult driven out (v. 24, 25). All the days of the king they departed not from following after the Lord.

of Josiah was found. It was incumbent upon the king to have the Law of God at his command and faithfully to read it. A country's highest well-being can only be attained when it has godly rulers, and rulers and people not only read the Bible, but order their lives and conduct according to its teachings. Not until rulers and people return to God and conform their lives to the standard of his Word can we hope for return of permanent prosperity.

WISE IS HE WHO PICKS HIS STEPS ON LIFE'S PATH

From his place at the side of the road the Philosopher sees the world go by. One man, with strained face and clenched hands, dashes on, without regard to the rights of others on the road, trying vainly to overtake the happiness that will always elude him. Another, plodding wearily, stooped with the burden of his possessions, looks neither to the right nor the left, seeks only for firm ground under his feet. He is unable to see that the way is pleasant; that the sky is blue overhead, and that from the side of the road friendly hands are outstretched toward him. His Journey is a lonely one. The Philosopher, in his resting place, sighs that so many persons, in their blind search for the Holy Grail of happiness, in their frantic struggle for the great joy that they foolishly imagine is to be found in the great things, fail to grasp the happiness that is to be found all along the way. Some, heedless and careless, dance and sing along the road, and the flowers they pick from the roadside fade and die. In their friendships is little of friendship. When night comes they have no place to lay their heads and no one to comfort them. And finally the wise man passes. He neither hurries nor lingers, but in leisurely fashion makes sure passage; finding time for work, play, and true friendships among those who line the highway. He finds warmth in the sun and coolness in the rain; the flowers and the songs of birds assuage his thirst for beauty. His hardships, being shared by others, become less burdensome, his joys greater because others may find part in them, and the Holy Grail of happiness is always at his hand. The old Philosopher sighs with regret that it is late, and that he may not join this wise man in his Journey.—Detroit News.

Dam Hearing Is Nearing End At National Capitol

Settlement of Texas and New Mexico differences over construction of the Alamogordo dam on the Pecos river apparently depends upon the average monthly flow of the stream during the past twenty years, it was learned at Washington Tuesday.

Richard F. Burgess of El Paso, representing Texas and the Red Bluff irrigation district, told New Mexico representatives Tuesday his state was ready to withdraw objections to construction of the dam if Texas were assured a flow in the Pecos equal to the monthly average of the past twenty years.

His position was set forth at a conference in the office of Dr. Elwood Mead, reclamation commissioner, of Texas and New Mexico representatives.

Dr. Mead immediately instructed his hydrographer at Lake Mead, storage reservoir on the Pecos for the Carlsbad project to check the stream flow and report back to Washington as soon as possible.

Texas' protest against construction of Alamogordo dam was on the basis that the dam would impound waters which should flow into Texas and would jeopardize rights of irrigators on the Red Bluff project.

The New Mexico delegates, including Attorney General Frank Patten and A. T. Hannett, attorney for the New Mexico interstate water board, awaited the report of the hydrographer before committing themselves but indicated they believed a settlement can be reached.

Gas Tax Diversion Blamed For Rising Traffic Death Toll

WASHINGTON—Diversion of gasoline taxes for purposes other than highway construction and maintenance was blamed in part by the American Road Builders association Sunday for a mounting traffic toll of lives and injuries.

William P. McDonald, president of the association, said employment of these taxes for other purposes was an "outright confiscation of the money needed to expand and safeguard the American highway system."

He urged the "25,000,000 automobile and truck owners" in America to wage a "relentless campaign to end the diversion of funds that properly should be used for highways and streets."
