NEW MEXICO CATTLE SHIPMENTS ARE UP

ALBUQUERQUE—Cattle shipments from New Mexico in August totaled 9,559 or about 4,000 more than in July, W. A. Naylor, secretary of the state cattle sanitary board, said Tuesday.

Compared with the shipments in August, 1934, those last month were small. In August, 1934, because of the drought, cattle were being exported in large numbers and shipments totaled 164,384.

Shipments for last month by stations were:

- Springer, 136; Clayton, 497; Tucumcari, 928; Alamogordo, 868; Roswell, 498; Farmington, 76; Deming, 505; Albuquerque, 189; Gallup, 1,054; Santa Fe, 351; Las Cruces, 402; Carlsbad, 460; Lovington, 29; Clovis, 2,169; Magdalena, 269; East Vaughn, 395; Hachita, 424; Silver City, 8; Hobbs, 55; Plano, 90; Reserve, 16; Raton, 140.

Ethiopian Peace Hope Is Fading

LONDON—A worried League of Nations presented its plan for peace to Italy and to Ethiopia last night with advance notice from Benito Mussolini's envoys that Italy won't take it.

"Absolutely unacceptable as a basis for negotiation"—that was what Il Duce's delegation to Geneva called the scheme. It would seek to fashion medieval Ethiopia into a modern nation and would strive to satisfy Italy's fond hopes for expansion, but league circles buzzed ominously with the prediction that Mussolini, when he reads the plan, will turn it down flatly.

McCormick Honored

Wilfred McCormick has just received news of being nominated to "America's Young Men," and a questionnaire to be filled out, that they may prepare his biography.

Hagerman Gin Reports for Week

The gins have just begun their fall season. At the Farmer's gin, James Burke brought in the first bale of cotton in the county. From his 1,345 pounds of seed cotton he had 456 pounds of lint. Six bales have been ginned at the Farmer's gin, five of them on Wednesday.

Health Expenses to Be Paid From Health Fund

SANTA FE—The attorney general's office has held that county health expenses shall all be paid from the health fund and if a levy of less than a mill is insufficient, the levy may be increased not to exceed one mill, provided the total county levy does not exceed five mills.

Highway Bids to Be Let September 20

SANTA FE—The state highway department will ask for bids for the following two projects at a letting Friday, September 20: Grading, surfacing, minor drainage structures and miscellaneous box culvert, 16,975 miles, De Baca county, on U. S. Highway 60, between Vaughn and Fort Sumner.

To Hear Bowden Suit

SILVER CITY—Federal Judge Colin Neblett will hear on October 10th the suit of Dr. A. O. Bowden, former president of State Teachers College, against the board of regents of the school, for alleged unpaid salary amounting to $1,313.30, and $4,483.96 for breach of contract. Dr. Bowden is now an instructor at the University of Southern California at Los Angeles.

Hagerman School Fair To Attract Unusual Interest

"We are making every effort," J. E. Wimberly, president of the local Men's club, declared this week, "to make the Hagerman Community-school Fair among the greatest enterprises ever to be staged in our growing little city."

A glance at the lengthy and attractive premium list, appearing elsewhere in The Messenger, lends convincing proof that a rare treat is actually in store for the mammoth crowd that is expected to pour into Hagerman from all parts of the county on September 27th.

The Men's club committee, consisting of James Michelet, Frank McCarthy and Jack Sweatt, has arranged for a multitude of exhibits, varying from domestic arts to pedigreed livestock, and has raised two hundred dollars in cash to be given for the numerous awards.

World Series To Start Oct. 2nd.

CHICAGO—Unless the New York Yankees come through with a baseball miracle, the world series will open in Detroit on Wednesday, October 2.

This was decided Tuesday at a meeting of representatives of five clubs still having a mathematical chance of victory in the two major leagues, with Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, acting as chairman.

Cattle and Calves To Move Shortly

Several hundred cattle and calves sold for October delivery are expected to move shortly to pasture and to market. Four or five hundred head have been sold in this vicinity recently for October delivery and an equal number of calves and yearlings are expected to move out of Chaves county and into the northern section.

Mrs. John Mitchell Dies

Mrs. John Mitchell passed away last Saturday evening at 7:00 p. m., after only a few hours illness. Funeral services were held from the home on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, the Rev. McGuffin of Roswell the officiating minister and Mason Funeral Home in charge. There were many lovely floral offerings. Burial was made in Hagerman. Pall bearers were Henry Mitchell, Van Sweatt, Carl Ridgeley, Tom Brigan, Jack Pillely and R. B. Bealer. Surviving the deceased is the husband, two daughters, Faye and Thelma, two sons, Melvin and Elmer, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Bogart of Hagerman, one sister of Roswell, Guy Bogart of Hagerman and Slim Bogart of Albuquerque. All except Slim were present for the funeral.

Permanent CCC Plans

Although the regional office of the grazing service, department of interior, has not been advised officially that CCC camps are to be made a permanent federal institution, it is anticipating the possibility by planning a ten-year program for the camps which are under its command in New Mexico, Arizona and southern Colorado.

North Central City to Get Democratic Convention in 1936

WASHINGTON—Men close to the democratic party leadership forecast Saturday that the 1936 national convention will be held in some city of adequate size in the north central states. Minneapolis, Chicago and Cleveland received prominent mention. San Francisco, which had been mentioned as a possibility, has lost ground because of its remoteness. Atlantic City, another possible location, still has a chance.

Austin Ranch Sold Monday

Sale of 5,300 unimproved acres of land for $12,333 and of buildings, personal property and 418 acres for $45,000 marked the public auction of the Tex Austin ranch near Rowe which was held at Las Vegas Monday.

C. C. Stone Dies At Home in Dexter

Cicero C. Stone, 85, passed away late last Thursday afternoon at his home in Dexter. A pioneer of the valley, he came here from Tennessee with his wife and children twenty-eight years ago last winter. He served under the federal revenue service for forty years, being appointed under President Harrison.

Funeral services were held from Roswell Sunday, Schuler's Funeral Home in charge, interment was made in Hagerman.

Two Men Arrested

Officers arrested two men near the Carlsbad Caverns last week charged with forcibly taking a car from an El Paso taxicab driver. They gave their names as A. O. Holderman and George F. Terrill and were arrested near where the abandoned car was found.

Oil Test Located Near Seminole

Announcement the first of the week that a location for a deep test has been made fourteen of sixteen miles northwest of Seminole, in Gaines county, Texas, and that the drilling contract calls for a depth of 5,000 feet unless paying quantities of oil is found at a lesser depth.

The test is to be made by Wahlenmaier Petroleum Corporation of San Angelo and York & Harper of Midland, and will be located on Dr. E. H. Jones' ranch (formerly the Armstrong ranch) in Gaines county. The exact location is 660 feet from the southwest corner of section 414, block G, C. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. Co. Survey, and will be on a block of about 3,200 acres which has been assembled for this purpose.

Millions for the Rural Schools

SANTA FE—If all rural school projects for New Mexico submitted under the WPA are approved, it will mean federal expenditures of about $2000,000 for that work. WPA officials today notified Governor Clyde Tingley.

Oil Control Board Is Cut

WASHINGTON—A quiet movement is under way to scale down activities of interior department oil agencies since invalidation of the petroleum code left them little to do. There were indications Saturday several boards might be permitted to disappear.

Sewer Project Is Submitted To The Allotment Board

Tolly West received a telegram this past week from the Works Progress Administration assuring him that the contemplated sewer project for Hagerman had been approved and was now being submitted to the allotment board.

Nothing definite has yet been learned of the other WPA projects for Hagerman, consisting of parks, curbing, street improvements, sewer projects and other worth-while enterprises that should make our little city very much "dressed up" in the months to come.

THERE'S ALWAYS ANOTHER YEAR

MARTHA OSTENSO

W.N.U. SERVICE

Anna ("Silver") Grenoble, daughter of "Gentleman Jim," formerly of the community, but known as a gambler, news of whose recent murder in Chicago has reached the town, comes to Heron River to live with Sophronia Willard, Jim Grenoble's sister. Sophronia's household consists of her husband, and stepsons, Roderick and Jason. The Willards own only half of the farm, the other half being Anna's. On Silver's arrival Duke Melbank, shiftless youth, makes himself obnoxious. Roderick is on the eve of marriage to Corinne Meader. Silver says she wants to live on the farm, and has no intention of selling her half, which the Willards had feared. Silver tells Sophronia ("Phronie," by request) something—but by no means all—of her relations with Gerald Lucas, gambler friend of her father. Roddy marries Corinne. She has a maid, Paula, who seems to attract Jason. Silver again meets Lucas, who has established a gambling resort near town. She introduces him to Corinne, though against her will. Friendship between the two develops to Silver's dismay. At a dance Duke Melbank insults Silver. Roddy's solicitude brings Silver to the realization that she loves him. Roddy is offered a position at the University farm, but, to Corinne's dismay, he declines it, declaring he is a farmer, not a "white collar man."

of Jason went self-consciously to a shelf and drew down a portfolio of drawings. "Nobody but Paula has ever seen these," he said. The drawings were pastel scenes with a simplicity of line and tone that surprised Silver. "Why, Jason, they are lovely!" she exclaimed. She turned to him impulsively. "Would you rather do this than farm?" He laughed and shook his head, then looked at Paula. "I guess not," he said quietly. "I'm a farmer. But it's because I like farming that I get a kick out of doing this once in a while. Which one do you want, Silver?" After a moment's thought Silver selected a light autumn sketch in grays and browns. "Has Roddy never seen this?" she asked. "No—he hasn't seen any of them. I used to show him some of my things—and he liked them. But after he met Corinne—well, it's none of my business. I never could quite figure it out, myself. D—n it—I feel sorry for Roddy!" Silver tucked the drawing under her arm. "I'll hang this in my room," she said, then started toward the door. "And don't worry about Roddy. When a man falls in love, it does funny things to him sometimes." Jason laughed. "Gosh, doesn't it?" he exclaimed, and looked at Paula. "Shall I tell Silver?" he asked suddenly. "Sure!" she said at once. Jason looked at Silver and smiled. "Paula and I are going to be married in the summer," Jason confessed. "—maybe in the spring. We're thinking of a little dairy farm up north—maybe—we're not sure yet." Silver exclaimed with delight. "Am I the first to hear about it?" "We didn't know ourselves—not until this afternoon," Jason grinned. Tears came into Silver's eyes as she looked at them. Jason and Paula—beginning life together on a dairy farm . . . "Don't say anything," Jason said. "Don't tell the others just yet." "Well, I suppose I ought to wish you luck," Silver said, "but when two people are in love, there's nothing much anyone can say. Isn't that so, Paula?" "It sure is so," Paula agreed, lapsing into an accent she had almost conquered since her advent from the Rhineland ten years ago.

and completing his records, so as to be ready for another season of experimenting with his beloved corn. Roddy's mood was rarely discussed by the others, but Silver knew that beneath their silence lay an intensity of feeling that one day must break the bonds of reticence that held it. She knew, too, that while Corinne's absence had something to do with the way Roddy felt, behind it all was the growing resentment toward herself that had told him of her intention to sell her land as soon as his lease had expired. That had rankled until he could think of nothing else. She knew, too, that the family was aware of it. That, undoubtedly, accounted for much of their restraint. It was a black, blustery night, and Silver put on her old leather jacket and her close-fitting tweed hat. She went out into the inky darkness and started toward the summit of the hill, when a sudden flare of light, like the striking of a match, arrested her attention through the small window of Roddy's workshop in the shelter of the slope. Roddy must be in there, she thought, getting ready for another night's work. The thought of his self-imposed loneliness smote drearily across Silver's heart. Why should she not go to him now and talk to him—beg him not to remain away from his father's house because of her? She stepped to the threshold and paused. "Roddy!" she called softly. He scooped up handfuls of corn. "Well?" "I came over to beg you not to not to stay away from our house because of me," Silver said. "If that's the reason—" He stood up and looked at her. At the painful flush that sprang into her cheeks, he stepped toward her with contrite haste. His feelings were in such confusion now that he could scarcely speak. "I'm sorry, Silver," he said heavily. "It's certainly no time for me to hold out against you—after this. We don't seem to understand each other, that's all."

Later, when Roddy thoughtfully returned home, the strong wind beating up the slope against him seemed fantastically like that sudden impact of Silver's cold, slender body. "Good Lord!" he muttered, and ran his hand across his eyes. "I must be crazy." But as he lay in bed thinking over the events of the night, it was the memory of Silver Grenoble's clinging to him that gnawed and worried at the core of his being until at last as he stared up toward the invisible ceiling, his whole life seemed to be tangled in a hopeless maze. He vowed savagely that tomorrow he would do two things—he would write a letter to Neal Anthony definitely rejecting his offer, and in the evening he would drive to Ballantyne and fetch Corinne home. . . . Beneath the cobalt glitter of the sky Roddy found himself driving along at a snail's pace, although he had forty miles yet to go—and fifty miles back home again, with Corinne beside him. Corinne had deliberately prolonged her visit with her mother, as Roddy knew, in the hope that he might finally accept Neal Anthony's offer, if only to please her. She had been affection itself, indeed, and always spoke regretfully of her prolonged absence. But Roddy had had time to do a little thinking about Corinne. She was young and spoiled and wholly untrained in responsibility. But she would grow up in time, Roddy reflected, and the passing months would bring to her a sense of her place in the scheme of things. But there would have to be a change. For one thing, Corinne must be brought to realize that they would have to economize at every turn during the coming year. It was two o'clock in the morning when Roddy returned to the farm with Corinne. She had broached the subject of Neal Anthony. When he told her of the letter he had written that day, Corinne had lapsed into a silence more deadly than any virulent denunciation he might have anticipated. In the house she sank down on the couch in the living room and gazed blankly before her. Roddy came over to her. He drew a chair, seated himself, and took her hands into his own. "Look at me, Corrie!" he begged softly. "Let's not begin like this. You don't know what it means to have you home again. And you can't guess how lonely it has been here without you."

"I know it," she said at last. "I wonder," she said slowly. "It's so easy to sentimentalize." "Listen, Corrie. I'm sorry about that job Neal Anthony threw my way. I wish I could have taken it—for your sake, Corrie. But—I couldn't. And some day you're going to be glad I didn't." Corinne sighed again. "I'd rather not discuss it any more," she said coldly. "You've made your decision."

She Sank Down on the Couch in the Living Room and Gazed Blankly Before Her.

together. I've been thinking about that very thing while you've been away. If we had a baby, you'd find something to live for here. We'd be closer to each other, Corrie—" She sprang up suddenly. "Have you gone crazy?" she cried huskily. "Do you want me to bring a child into a place like this—where we may be starving next year? Or wasn't it enough for you to throw Anthony's offer into my face? You had to think up something more brutal—" "Corinne—for God's sake!" Roddy stammered in despair. "We are not going to starve," he went on lamely, obstinately. "Lots of people are bringing up children on less than we have." It dawned on him painfully that Corinne was not listening. He felt completely lost, floundering about in a gray and chilling chaos. "All right, Corinne," he concluded idly. "I did not know that I was insulting you. I'll not do it again." He got to his feet and turned to find her eyes upon him, widening for a moment with reflective indolence, then closing as though she were shutting him out of her consciousness, shutting herself in with her own resignation and defeat. . . . On an evening in February, Paula had come down from the big house and sat beside the table munching an apple. Sophronia pushed her glasses back into place on the bridge of her nose and shook her head. "There's no use in gettin' yourself worked up into a state over Corinne," she said to Paula. "If you ask me—all that woman needs is exercise. If she'd do a bit of her own housework, it'd be better for her."

Corinne was huddled up in bed weeping stormily. "Corinne!" Silver said sharply. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" Corinne stared at her with wild eyes. "Who sent you here?" she demanded petulantly. "I suppose the whole Willard family has been having a conclave!" "Stop it!" Silver broke in. "No one sent me—and you're acting like a child." Corinne began to weep in earnest. "I—I might have known—you'd say that. This place is driving me mad! The wind—and the cold—and being alone—" "You don't have to be alone," Silver protested. "Why didn't you come down with Paula tonight and—"

"Because they all hate me! I know it. They hate me because I'm not a farm lout—like the rest of them. Roddy hates me—and loves to see me suffer! He's tickled to death because Jason has humiliated me. Paula for a sister-in-law—oh!" Silver took her by the shoulder. "I'm not going to sit here and listen to that nonsense," she said severely. "You've got to get yourself out of this mood. Turn over here! Is your head aching?" "It has been bursting—all day!" Silver ran her fingers gently over Corinne's shoulders. "I used to do this for my father when he had a headache," she said quietly, and began pressing her finger tips into the tendons and muscles that were knotted at the back of Corinne's neck. Corinne turned over on her face and moaned. But Silver continued to ply her fingers until Corinne began to relax at last, and her muffled wailing ceased. "That's better," Silver said. "O—oh—that hurts!" Silver worked more gently. "You ought to get out and see what the world is like around you. I'll tell you—take a walk with me early tomorrow morning, over to the Flathe place and back. You have no idea how good it makes you feel."

A sort of docility had crept over Corinne. "I'll do anything," she murmured. "Just to get away from the grayness of this hill." For some time there was silence between them, until Silver began to wonder if Corinne had fallen asleep. Presently, however, Corinne spoke up unexpectedly. "Why didn't you marry Gerald Lucas, Silver, when you had the chance?" "I should have been the most unhappy creature in the world," Silver replied. "Why?" "Because—I've seen enough of that life to know," Silver said. Corinne lay still and did not speak. Fear filled Silver's heart as she fixed her eyes upon Corinne and wondered, with something like despair, what was passing in the mind of this girl who was Roddy Willard's wife. Once or twice she felt that she must say something to warn her against Gerald Lucas and the bright disaster that awaited any woman who gave him her love. But the words would not come. At last, with an inner trembling, she got up and spoke softly. "I hope you feel better." Corinne turned over and yawned. "Lots better. Thanks so much, Silver." Silver patted the coverlet on Corinne's shoulder. "Try to sleep now. And I'll come up in the morning, right after breakfast, to take you on our hike." "Perhaps it would be better to postpone it till the afternoon—or maybe another day," Corinne suggested. "I'm expecting a telephone call tomorrow."

Silver regarded her for a moment in silence. "Well, go to sleep now, anyhow," she said, and stole quietly out of the room. Alone again under the cold starlight, Silver found that her ministering to Roddy's wife had had a profound effect upon herself. All that lawless feeling for Roddy that had battled within her for weeks retreated now before a burning pity for Corinne and a feverish resolve to save Roddy's wife from herself and her false sense of values.

CHAPTER IX

IN MARCH, after a prolonged spell of bitter cold and very little snow, a sudden thaw set in. The back of the winter, as Sophronia said, was broken. But everywhere the talk was of the gloomy outlook for the farmer. "A man doesn't know whether to pray for rain or drought. If there's a bumper crop, prices will go still lower—and if you don't plant at all, you get nothing." Roddy reflected. What if he had to sell his last year's grain at practically no profit to himself! He was no worse off than countless farmers whose obligations were staggering compared with his own. He could still give Corinne enough money to buy herself some spring clothes, though she probably would never know how much it meant to him. Well, perhaps things would be better now that spring was here. For that matter, things were better. Corinne had been more like her old self during the past weeks. He was well aware that Silver Grenoble had had much to do with the change in Corinne's state of mind. He had seen very little of Silver, but she and Corinne had become very friendly.

Improved Uniform International LESSON

Lesson for September 22 JAMES (A GREAT CHRISTIAN LEADER)

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:1-21; James 1:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is the man that endureth temptation...

Three individuals by the name of James are mentioned in the New Testament. In all probability this James was the brother of the Lord...

1. James Presiding at a Church Council (Acts 15:1-21).

The controversy in the church at Antioch (vv. 1-5). A most difficult problem confronted the church, threatening its disruption into a Jewish and Gentile division.

11. The Deliberation of the Council (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter speaks (vv. 6-11). He argued that God had borne witness to the acceptance of the Gentiles...

2. Paul and Barnabas rehearsed their experience (v. 12). They told how that God had set his seal of approval on the preaching of salvation...

3. The argument of James (vv. 14-21). He took the fact declared by Peter and showed how it harmonized with prophecy (Amos 9:11-15).

In the case of Buster Bear and Danny, the latter had simply to keep out of reach of Buster. As long as Buster didn't get his great paws on Danny the latter was safe.

4. The decision (vv. 22-29). The mother church unanimously endorsed James' recommendation. They sent a letter stating the decision of the conference.

III. James Giving Counsel to Christians (James 1:1-17).

1. Concerning trials (v. 2-17).

2. The Christian's attitude toward them (vv. 2-4). They were to meet them joyfully because of their beneficial effects.

3. The Christian's supreme need in these trials (vv. 5-8). It is wisdom to meet them intelligently.

4. The blessed reward of enduring the testing (v. 12). The one who faithfully endures the temptation shall be awarded a crown of life.

5. The source of temptation (vv. 13-17). Temptations spring out of human desire. They do not come from God.

Life is not so complex if we do not persist in making it so.

ANOTHER GAME OF HIDE AND SEEK

YOU remember the game of hide and seek Danny Meadow-Mouse played with Buster Bear? You remember what a very dreadful game it was for Danny?

In the case of Buster Bear and Danny, the latter had simply to keep out of reach of Buster. As long as Buster didn't get his great paws on Danny the latter was safe.

Lightfoot Listened and Watched.

Lightfoot Listened and Watched. Lightfoot the Deer is big. He is one of the largest of the people who live in the Green Forest.

Moreover, a hunter with a terrible gun does not have to get close in order to kill. Lightfoot knew all this as he waited for the coming of the hunter of whom Sammy Jay warned him.

1. Concerning trials (v. 2-17).

2. The Christian's attitude toward them (vv. 2-4). They were to meet them joyfully because of their beneficial effects.

3. The Christian's supreme need in these trials (vv. 5-8). It is wisdom to meet them intelligently.

en trees, Lightfoot listened and watched.

Presently over in the distance he heard Sammy Jay screaming "Thief, thief, thief!"

A Merry Little Breeze came stealing through the Green Forest. It came from behind Lightfoot and danced away toward the hunter with the terrible gun.

He was trying to get behind the hunter so that the Merry Little Breezes would bring to him the dreaded man-scent.

So the hunter with the terrible gun walked noiselessly through the Green Forest, stepping with the greatest care to avoid snapping a stick underfoot.

The Arapahoos are one of the typical Plains Indian tribes, belonging to the same language family as the Algonquians.

1. Concerning trials (v. 2-17).

2. The Christian's attitude toward them (vv. 2-4). They were to meet them joyfully because of their beneficial effects.

3. The Christian's supreme need in these trials (vv. 5-8). It is wisdom to meet them intelligently.

Wish I were as big as he! When I'm late I get a look that would slay you!

I am proud of Walter, too. Just as Mother is, I know. Though she scolds the whole day through.

QUESTION BOX by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am in love with a young lady and asked her to marry me.

Dear Mr. Wynn: There's a man lives next door to me who has a peculiar habit.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am a man thirty-five years of age. I am a manager of the hair net department in a 5 and 10c store.

Dear Mr. Wynn: How is it that in some apartment houses you will find when they live above the sixth floor married couples haven't any children?

Dear Mr. Wynn: If "time" is money, why don't

Through A WOMAN'S EYES by JEAN NEWTON

Those gypsies have imagination, haven't they, in their way of making the punishment fit the crime?

Do you conjure up visions of red tape, of laws designed to protect the accused, of a bedlam of witnesses and talk of evidence as to how he hit her and where he hit her?

Not with the gypsies. There was no Gordian knot. The man was brought before the council and immediately sentenced to crawl home on hands and knees.

Hundreds Perish in Hurricane That Hits Florida—Liner Stranded on Reef—Italy Accuses Ethiopia Before League Council.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

FLORIDA was the victim of another hurricane that swept up from the Caribbean across the southern end of the state and then along the west coast into Georgia. The total number of deaths is estimated at more than 500. Of these, 300 were war veterans in labor camps on the keys. They were employed in construction work. All buildings on the keys were demolished. A relief train that had been sent to take the veterans away from the keys was smashed to pieces. The survivors on the islands were without shelter, food, medical supplies, but relief supplies were quickly sent by the Red Cross and other agencies.

Italy's reply to Italy was presented to the council by Prof. Gaston Jeze, a Frenchman. He protested in a dignified way against the brutal wording of the Italian statement and told the council if it considered the expulsion of Ethiopia the league would be setting a precedent of judging member states according to the manner in which they conducted their internal affairs. Some members might find this dangerous, he said.

Jeze ended with a dramatic reminder that time is pressing and this is not the moment for dilatory measures.

"The question is whether there is danger of war, and whether there is danger of an early opening of a war of extermination," he said.

"That is the point to which the council ought to direct its most serious attention."

The council adjourned to study the Italian memorandum.

WHILE the European statesmen were struggling with the Italian-Ethiopian question, Secretary of State Cordell Hull quietly took a hand in the game. He did not in any way involve the United States in the wrangle, but he put an end to the deal whereby Haile Selassie was giving a great development concession to Americans. Officials of the Standard-Vacuum Oil company went to Mr. Hull's office and admitted ownership of the grant. The secretary admonished them that the concession had been "the cause of great embarrassment not only to this government, but to other governments who are making strenuous and sincere efforts for the preservation of peace."

The oil men thereupon announced their intention of withdrawing from the deal with Ethiopia, and the big concession sensation was entirely deflated. The British government was especially pleased with this outcome and felt deeply grateful to Secretary Hull.

MONTHLY estimates of private forecasters are that, if there are no serious frosts in September, the corn crop of the country will be 2,231 million bushels. This is 854 million bushels larger than last season's harvest when the drought cut returns to 1,377 million bushels. When compared with "normal" production this season's indicated crop is moderately deficient.

In Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio the crop is in excellent condition and the returns promise to be larger than appeared likely a month ago. The situation is reversed in Kansas, South Dakota, and Nebraska. In Iowa, the biggest producing state, the prospects are slightly less favorable than a month ago.

The spring wheat crop was estimated at 155 million bushels. Using the government's last estimate on the winter crop of 432 million bushels, total wheat production this year is placed at 587 million bushels, about 40 million bushels under average annual consumption in the United States.

GERALD B. THORNE, chief of live stock and feed grains division of AAA, says that in order to rectify inequities in corn-hog production it has been decided to permit modification of the base production quotas. The tentative plan is:

Each county now has an aggregate base production of corn and hogs which will be left untouched. Within the county bases, however, machinery will be set up, largely through county committees, by which the bases can be altered.

Thus the farmer who planted less than normal corn in 1932 and 1933 and has a low corn base can be given an increased base. In the same way the farmer who raised fewer hogs for one reason or another in those years than ordinary on a farm of that size may get a larger hog base.

For these increases, however, there will have to be corresponding adjustments downward for other farmers.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL, the English speed demon, satisfied his ambition to run his automobile, the Bluebird, at a rate of 300 miles an hour, on a salt track in Utah. As a matter of fact, he covered the thirteen mile course at an average speed of 301.337 an hour, or more than five miles a minute. Over one measured mile he ran at the rate of 304.331.

EARLY court tests of the Wagner labor disputes act may be obtained, for already complaints have been filed with the new labor relations board against two subsidiaries of General Motors and the Portsmouth (Ohio) plant of the Wheeling Steel corporation. The complainants are the United Automobile workers and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. They are represented by Charlton Ogburn, counsel for the A. F. of L., who says the unions charge that the companies violated the acts fair labor practice provisions.

UNITED CONFEDERATE VETERANS, in annual session at Amarillo, Texas, having been assured that the stars and bars would not be banned, accepted the invitation to hold a joint reunion on Gettysburg battlefield with the Grand Army of the Republic in 1938. Paul Roy, who extended the invitation on behalf of Governor Earle of Pennsylvania, told the confederates they would be free to carry the flag of the South wherever and whenever they pleased.

DR. CHAIM WEIZMANN, veteran leader of the Zionists, was elected president of their world organization at the nineteenth congress held in Lucerne. A resolution was adopted declaring against "systematic deprivation of the rights of Jews in Germany, which undermines their moral and material position."

The German delegation to the congress unanimously voted against the resolution, declaring it did not constitute a "constructive plan" to meet the situation of Jews in the third reich.

NOTEWORTHY among recent deaths are those of Right Rev. Walter T. Sumner, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Oregon, who won fame long ago as a crusader against organized vice in Chicago; George C. Hanson, veteran American diplomat, who shot himself to death on a steamer when returning from Greece; and Charles J. Vopicka of Chicago, who was American minister in several Balkan countries during the World war.

RUSSIA'S reply in America's protest against the subversive plotting of the Communists in Soviet territory was a rejection and a coldly worded re-assertion of the old and more than dubious position that the Moscow government is not and cannot be held responsible for the doings of the Communist International. This was considered for four days by official Washington and then it was decided to let the matter drop with another and rather milder warning. The new note sent to Moscow said:

"If the Soviet government pursues a policy of permitting activities on its territory involving interference with the internal affairs of the United States, instead of 'preventing' such activities, as its written pledge provides, the friendly and official relations between the two countries cannot but be seriously impaired."

SENATOR HUEY LONG crowed a lot about the success of his one-man filibuster which killed the third deficiency appropriation bill, but he didn't add to his popularity among the people who looked forward for help from the agencies that are now hampered by the failure of the measure.

Besides that, it is now admitted that his filibuster rescued the Democratic house leaders from a tight place in the matter of the cotton and wheat loans. Still further, it appears that Huey's domination of Louisiana is going to be investigated by a congressional committee. That committee probably will be headed by Representative William L. Granfield of Massachusetts, for he was the author of the elections investigation bill, which was found to contain a little "joker." This joker gives the committee such wide powers that it can probe into all the facts concerning Long's complete control of election affairs in his state and the methods by which he has attained to the position of a dictator there.

MRS. ANNA WILMARTH Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, was killed when an automobile in which she and three friends were riding was overturned in a ditch at Velarde, N. M. Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, well-known newspaper writer; Ibrahim Seyfullah, secretary of the Turkish embassy in Washington, and Frank Allen of Gallup, N. M., the driver, were severely injured. Allen died later.

Mrs. Ickes, who for years was deeply interested in the Indians of the Southwest, had been inspecting an Indian settlement at Taos and was returning to Santa Fe. Before she went to Washington with her husband in 1933 she was a leader in club work in Chicago, and she served three terms in the Illinois legislature. Among the many notable persons who attended the funeral in Winnetka, suburb of Chicago, was Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President.

How Will Mussolini Fight? Airfields and Live Wires A Teapot Tempest Will Eugenists Explain?

Mussolini fought in the big war as a simple soldier in the trenches, was badly wounded, saw the horrors of war from the bottom.

Now, in command, he will see war from the top. How will he manage it? Dispatches say he must do something in a "quick drive and make big gains" before the rainy season returns, seven months hence.

Mussolini's driving power and efficiency, that have transformed the fever-breeding Pontine marshes into homes for Italian families, should need no "seven months" to produce results in Abyssinia. The thing to do is to concentrate on the "Conquering Lion of Judah," otherwise the Negus, or "Power of Trinity."

Make it clear that modern war means "the ruler of the country first, the little people afterward," and war will not last long. The "Conquering Lion" has expressed willingness, almost eagerness, to die for his country, but that must not be taken too literally.

Near Burbank, Calif., a plane crashes. Three occupants, two pilots and a stewardess, burn to death, after striking a live wire.

It has been said, "Alcohol and gasoline do not mix well," meaning that men should not drive when drunk.

Air fields and live wires do not mix well either. The Department of Commerce, ruling aviation and exercising admirable rules, might include among the latter a rule against exposed live wires near air fields.

There is an unnecessary fuss about American business men having secured in Abyssinia rights to develop oil and mineral wealth. An American should be able to go shopping at his own risk and on his own responsibility, wherever he chooses, as Englishmen do, without having the State department indulge in "fits."

If one of the great American organizations, Standard Oil, Du Pont or another, undertakes to do business in Ethiopia, it will not ask Uncle Sam to send over any of "our boys" to shed their blood.

Strange sight in a New York court—one boy, nine years old, accused of killing a girl by hitting her on the head with a stone because she denied his assertion that he could eat more peaches than she could. Another little boy of twelve, also killer of a playmate, appeared in the same court.

The nine-year-old boy seemed quite unconcerned, except that he thought his dog, "Lucky," would be lonesome without him.

Prosecuting authorities accuse the nine-year-old boy of murder, but hanging or drawing and quartering for children are part of the past.

Will stirpulentists and eugenists explain these youthful crime phenomena?

The sad death of the queen of Belgium proves that the open car is the dangerous car. The queen was thrown from the car, struck her head against a tree, and was instantly killed. Had she been in a closed car, she could not have been thrown violently, and probably would have escaped death as did her husband, who was holding the wheel.

The open car is the ideal car to see the country and the sky, but a dangerous car for those who drive too fast.

San Francisco, as old in the minds of Americans as the word "California" itself, is cheerful. The great bridge that will unite San Francisco to Oakland across the bay is progressing rapidly. And the suspension bridge is already stretching its spiderweb cables across the Golden Gate, where the Pacific ocean comes rushing in to the bay.

Thanks to good management and an excellent engineer, Mr. Strauss, this Golden Gate bridge, with its magnificent span of more than 4,000 feet, will be finished on time and for less than the $35,000,000 guaranteed as maximum price.

England wants no war, with prosperity returning and spoils of the big war not yet digested. But the wing feathers of the peace angel must tremble at sight of British and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean, near the mouth of the Suez canal.

If Britain tries to close that canal to Italy, leaving thousands of Italian soldiers cut off from their base and from food supplies, there will probably be some heavy gunfire.
