SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. Occa-sionally he can wish for something ex-traordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, a professor at the University who has little means. the University who has little means. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan that afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room, his eye falls on a marble statu-ette which he dislikes. He picks it up, wishing he could smash it to bits. Sud-denly it is snatched from his grasp as denly it is snatched from his grasp as isible force and burst asur Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed over the mysterious destruction of the statu-ette. The doctor reveals that Ira Jerrell wants to marry Nancy. On the way to a dinner party a car cuts in front of Greeding's. He angrily expresses the wish that the driver would break his neck. An instant later an accident occurs in which this very thing happens. At the dinner the Greedings meet Prof. Carlisle, Dan's father, and his daughter Mary Ann. Instinctively I grabbed for it. My hand missed it, but my hand closed upon a two-inch line fastened to the midships cleat. I bounced from the railing, shot over the side, and there I swayed, now in mid-air, now hurled into the angry water." When Doctor Greeding and Jer-And for a full fifteen minutes Warren hung there, dashed repeatedly against the side of the barge. He tried to climb back up that rope, but it was a slow, painful job. "When the Cable Snapped" By FLOYD GIBBONS

JOU can have your wild rides on bucking bronchos, on runaway trains, and on automobiles gone haywire, but Warren Roop of Orange, N. J., will back an ordinary coal barge against any of them. Maybe you never thought of a coal barge ride as either fast or exciting. Neither did I. But listen to Warren's tale. There are times, it seems, when those slow, easy-going barges can cut up and act nasty.

In 1913, Warren was captain of the barge, Victor, owned by the Peacock Coal company of Philadelphia. The Victor was a 10,000-ton vessel, practically new, and Warren was mighty proud of her. And maybe that's the reason he stuck to her when many another man would have quit the job the minute those November gales began whipping the river into an inferno of water and foam.

The November blow was particularly bad in 1913. A threeday northeaster had turned the water around Philadelphia into a boiling torrent. There were three barges tied up together and the Victor was on the outside. The other two barges were moored with steel cables, but the Victor's lines were of rope, and they were wearing thin.

The Rope Cables Snapped Quickly.

Warren called the office and told them he'd have to have a steel cable. "We've got none," they told him. Warren went back to the Victor and looked at the swollen river. Those rope cables wouldn't last long. The thought had hardly entered his mind when the headlines parted. The Victor's head swung away from the wharf.

"The stern lines snapped like so much macaroni," says Warren, your name and address. 'and the Victor started on a perilous trip down the river, hog wild on the rushing tide, and with four bridges ahead of her. There was absolutely nothing that could be done; for the barge was not power-driven. swim before dinner. Here's your I stood there helpless, while the driving rain beat into my face and the storm seemed to increase in fury.

> "I made my way to the bow, and clung desperately to the capstan. Carried by the tide, the Victor was tearing along at a twenty-mile-anhour clip. She was loaded with ten thousand tons of soft coal, and I wondered what would happen if she struck one of those bridge abutments broadside.

Warren wasn't long in finding out. There came a sudden shock-a thunderous, grinding roar, and the Victor shook from stem to stern. She had struck the Pennsylvania Bridge. She veered around and shot through the draw stern first. Warren yelled to the bridge tender-thought he heard a faint reply. Then he was off, whirling down the stream again.

The second bridge was only four city blocks away. Again the crash -and again the Victor shivered as if she had been torpedoed. She heeled over at a ten-degree angle and went racing through the second draw. twisting round and round like an egg shell. And on she sped-sweeping under the third bridge-missing an abutment by a hair-heading for the fourth and last bridge.

Barge Went Tearing Down the River.

"We swirled into the last bridge with a sickening shudder that I thought would split the barge in two," says Warren. "Then suddenly said irritably: "You're singularly I saw a red and green light looming up ahead of me. The police boat!" dense, sometimes. Jerrell doesn't She took the Victor in tow and hauled her ashore. Warren threw a line out. But the police boat hadn't gone ten minutes when the lines snapped again-and again the Victor was tearing away down the Schuylkill.

"How I ever negotiated those few remaining feet to safety I will never know. What I accomplished after that must have been purely automatic. But the next thing I knew I found myself on the deck, looking over the side of the still lurching vessel."

To this day, Warren doesn't know what gave the Victor that last wallop. He says he can only guess that some other vessel rammed her. It was quite a while later that the Victor was hurled against a dock on the New Jersey side of the Delaware river and a patrolling tug came up and stood by her all night to see that she didn't break away egain.

The Victor was leaking badly by that time, and would have gone to the bottom if she'd been in mid-stream much longer. And Warren agrees that you can have your bucking bronchos. For sheer excitement, give him one of those big, sluggish coal barges in a storm. C-WNU Service.

Blockade of Spain to Insulate Civil War SO FAR as the international non-intervention committee can do it, the war in Spain is now insulated. Representatives of 26 European nations agreed that no more volunteers for either side in the civil conflict should be permitted to enter the Iberian peninsula, effective at midnight February 20; and they laid plans for a complete blockade by land and sea that would prevent the importation of any more men or war munitions. Only Portugal dissented, objecting to establishment of frontier guards on her territory; Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Russia ignored the Portuguese protests and went ahead with the blockade plans, which are to be put into effect by March 6. The decisions were reached after France delivered a virtual ultimatum to her fellow committee members to end their bickering and warned Italy she would not stand for "open invasion of Spain." The French were quick to place guards at all strategic points along the Franco-Spanish frontier. The international naval patrols presumably will not have authority to stop vessels suspected of carrying arms and men to Spain, but will report ship movements to the committee for action and will place observers on the vessels to check cargoes. Supposing this blockade to be successful, it may well be that the Spanish civil war will die of inanition. Then may be brought about that which the international committee seeks-international mediation between the insurgents and the loyalist government.

For the present both sides are renewing their efforts for decisive vic-

The viceroy was only slightly injured but several in his suite, including Air Gen. Aurelio Liotta and the Abuna Cyril, Coptic bishop of Ethiopia, were severely wounded. The attack took place just before the close of celebrations for the birth of a son to the crown prince of Italy. The assassins escaped in the confusion, but the army and police started on a relentless manhunt and soon had more than 2,000 natives under arrest.

Commenting on Sec'y of Navy Swanson the British naval construction program, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations of the American navy, served notice that any foreign nations expanding their navies beyond the standards of recent treaties might expect that the United States would match their construction. He said it was his understanding that this nation was definitely committed to the maintenance of a "navy second to none." To maintain that principle, he declared, it would become necessary for the United States to build new ships if other powers did. The present United States building program calls for start of con-

President Asks Measure to Help Farm Tenants

IN A special message to congress President Roosevelt urged legislation to "improve the present intolerable condition" of 3,000,000 farm tenants, presenting this fourpoint program:

1. Action to open the doors of ownership to tenants who now have the requisite ability and experience. 2. Modest loans, with the necessary guidance and education to prevent small owners from slipping into tenancy.

3. The retirement by public agencies of land proved to be unsuited for farming and assistance to the families living thereon in finding homes on good land.

4. Co-operation with state and local agencies of government to improve the general leasing system.

Real Story of Flood Disaster Is Found Behind the Headlines

Humor, Pathos, Heroism, Suffering Are All Part of Central Valley Saga.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

CTATISTICS about the great flood, the havoc it has wreaked and the misery which lies in its wake are staggering in themselves, merely as statistics. But they do not begin to tell the real story of what it is like to be actually face to face with disaster.

More than a million homeless! Four or five hundred dead-really more than that, it is certain! Hundreds of millions of dollars damage! Great cities threatened with disease! Food and drinking water running short!

Awe-inspiring, indeed, are these headlines. But they are too general to do justice to the spectacle. The way to understand what they really mean is to get down in the flood zone, or in the adjacent areas where the refugees have been rushed to safety. There in the countless individual cases which may be seen first-hand are stories of pathos, suffering, humor, selfishness, generosity and heroism that no statistics could measure

Heroism? Everybody's a hero down here. Heroes are a nickel apiece, and most of them are name less.

Policeman Saves 300.

They are of many kinds. Picking a few out of the hat:

There is the parachute jumper who was determined to rush badly needed medical serums, food and lamps to Paducah, Ky., one of the cities hardest hit. Leaving Louisville he planned to drop the food if possible where the marooned might reach it, then to carry the serum down by parachute. He got it there.

Nobody remembers who the Louisville policeman was who kept 300 women and children marooned in a school from going hungry. He swam three-quarters of a mile through ice-cold waters to seek asBut WSM in Nashville cancelled all programs, at a great loss in revenue, to carry the Louisville bulletins. Yet WSM is WHAS' chief competitor. Heroism was not confined to the saving of human life. Rescue crews often risked their own lives to save dogs, cats and other animals who were floating on debris. One man in a rowboat lost his oars in rescuing a dog from a floating crate. A little while later, the dog, apparently disgusted with an oarsman who couldn't hang onto his oars, leaped out of the boat and swam ashore.

Some animals did not fare so Those in the Cincinnati zoo vere starving until the Detroit zooogical park sent two tons of horse meat. All other meat had to be reserved for human beings.

Humanity is for the most part enerous at heart. When the Red Cross made it known that $10,000,000 was needed at once, the response was quick and sympathetic. Even those who were caught in the catastrophe wanted to help. One young nother, poorly clothed, said in a shelter house at Sharpsburg, Pa., "I wish I had something to give those poor people. I know what it's like. Last year the nice dining room niture I got for a wedding gift got smashed to bits. Just little es it was when I went home.'

Kagle, each twenty, of West Hickman, Ky. Rescued from their flooded homes in the Kentucky lowlands, they lost no time in marrying as soon as they reached dry ground in Union City, Tenn. Immediately after the ceremony they joined other sufferers in a refugee camp.

Parrot Speaks His Mind.

Flood victims were the favored guests of their more fortunate brethren. Travelers disembarking from first class accommodations on trains arriving at the Indianapolis terminal from the flood area were forced to carry their own bags. "Red caps" fought to carry the baggage of refugees in the coaches, even though they knew there was hardly a chance for a tip. Refugees had precious little baggage to carry, however.

The type of hand packages being carried by the fleeing hordes was indicated by the piles of belongings found between the rows of some 6,000 cots in the Louisville armory, where refugees had spent the night Mixed in with a pile of sodden blankets were a broken doll, a kitchen pan and a parrot in a badly bent cage speaking slightly warped language. Refugees were wearily searching for their own belongings while trucks waited outside to carry them to places of greater safety. You can't think of everything in

Some of them look as if nature itselt had thrown clusters of flowers on black or navy grounds and in their own graceful way petals and eaves had fluttered down in pretty onfusion. This tendency to depart rom the conventional adds very nuch to the fascination of the new prints One of the charms of a colorful and chic flowery printed silk dress or ensemble is that it breathes the very breath of spring even if snows may not yet have melted out of sight. Then, too, clad in a rapturou gay print you are sure to look lovely regardless of features, avoirdupois or the color of your hair. In the jail at Parkersburg, W. Va., 63 prisoners didn't mind the flood very much. They were eating fancy 'vittles'' they couldn't even call by name, supplied by the city's foremost hotel.

In Cincinnati, rescue crews heard that a woman had been marooned. and set out to get her. They had to chop away part of her house to take her out; she weighed 400 pounds. In Louisville a rescue party took a woman from a flooded house and rowed her three blocks to safety. Then she wanted to be rowed back. She had left two dollars in the home, she said. The boatmen were gentle, but firm, "Not even for two bucks," they said.

Sights to be seen from the rescue boats were not all dismal. There was the truck mired in a ditch beside a flooded highway near Cairo. It was loaded with wax feminine figures clothed in filmy lingerie. A

COTTON LACES IN FAVOR FOR EVENING

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Cotton laces have been popular for a couple of seasons past, but most often these have been associated with the sports and daytime frocks for summertime, and in the sturdy types of laces that suggest fabrics. This season, however, they are seen in great quantity and variety for evening, and are competing in favoritism with the prints crisp types, and are delightfully novel and varied in their patterns. They usually follow simple classic lines, not too formal in cut, and are especially nice for young girls. They are most effective when worn over rustling taffeta slips, and this of course makes them the more descent. It was a queer place. He had never been in such a place before. But Billy knew that where a rat could go he could go, and so he followed, climbing up between the walls of the house until at last he reached the attic.

He could hear the scampering of many feet, and he could hear the squeaks of fright, so he knew that the rats knew he was there. Once in the attic Billy found the rat scent everywhere. It was useless to try to follow with his nose because the rats had crossed and recrossed each other's paths so often that the trail was all mixed up. But if Billy couldn't trust to his nose he could trust to his ears. The sound of scampering feet and the frightened squeaks told him where the rats were. His eyes blazed with the eager light of the hunter, and without even a glance at all the queer things in that attic, things such as he had never seen before, Billy kept on after those rats.

It is seldom we can do anything to help them. In fact persons who talk of their troubles seldom do it to get helpful suggestions. All construction on the Red Bluff powerhouse, including the installation of equipment, will be completed by March 15th, it was announced at Pecos, Texas, last week. With the finishing of the powerhouse all construction at the dam proper will be completed as originally planned. The only remaining projects will be the construction of transmission lines from the power plant through the irrigation districts to bring electricity to farmers living in the district.

March 15th has been set as the date to test the turbines. It is believed that irrigation will begin about this date, giving opportunity to test the motors without wasting any water.
