SAMUEL J. RANDALL.
Samuel J. Randall, of Philadelphia, who represents the third congressional district of Pennsylvania in the United States congress and who is now supposed to be on his death-bed, is a son of the late Josiah Randall, a man well known, and whose memory is pleasantly preserved in the city of "Brotherly Love." He was for many years a man of influence in Pennsylvania politics, being first a democrat, then an admirer and follower of Henry Clay; but when the wings became largely anti-slavery in their views, he again embraced the democratic faith, and so remained.

Samuel J. was born in Philadelphia, October 10th 1828, where he received a good academic education, pushing his studies with a view to mercantile life. His school days over, he entered the counting room of a mercantile house, but his father's training developed in him a fondness for political life, and the duties of a merchant were performed rather distastefully. In 1856 he accompanied his father to Cincinnati, to assist in the nomination of Buchanan. For four years Mr. Randall was a member of the city council, familiarizing himself with city politics and making the acquaintance which was afterwards to push his political fortunes. In 1858, he was elected to the state senate, of which he was a conspicuous member. When, in the spring of 1861, the civil war began, Mr. Randall was in the legislature, and was also a member of the "First Troop, Philadelphia Cavalry," which took its name from a company formed in 1774. Immediately after the fall of Fort Sumter, the troop tendered its services to the government, and were accepted May 13th, 1861, for the period of ninety days. The troop was attached to the Second U. S. Cavalry, commanded by Colonel, afterwards the famous General, George H. Thomas. They were assigned to the command of General Robert Patterson. Mr. Randall sergeant, acting as quartermaster of the company, but was soon promoted to the position of cornet. He served faithfully for three months, and when the troops returned home it was thanked in letters from the governor of the state and the war department.

In 1862, Mr. Randall was elected to congress from the third district, and has been continuously re-elected since. During his first term he was a member of the committee on public grounds and buildings; his second term he served on three committees, viz: banking and currency, and retrenchment and expenditures in the state department. In the forty first congress, he was a prominent member of the committee on elections and of the joint committee on retrenchment. Having gained considerable celebrity for his parliamentary skill, in the forty second congress he was a member of the committee on rules, his colleagues being speaker Blaine, ex-speaker Banks, General Garfield and S. S. Cox.

In the forty-third congress, when the majority attempted to pass what was known as the Force bill, Mr. Randall, though on the minority side, determined to defeat it. To do this he had to resort to every device for obstruction known to parliamentary law. With invincible determination, he pursued his tactics, and his friends catching his spirit, assisted as best they could, and the bill was defeated. From the moment of this consummation, S. J. Randall was a famous man.

The next congress was democratic and his party out of the house expected to see him elected speaker. By a combination between western and southern members, the chair was given to Hon. M. C. Kerr, of Indiana. Mr. Randall's appointment to the chairmanship of the committee on appropriations followed, which gave him his first real opportunity to impress his views upon the country's legislation. He proved to be a master of details in all departments of the government, and while some of the measures he proposed were radical departures from the existing status, his views were generally acquiesced in at the last.

In the summer of 1876, Speaker Kerr died, and when congress assembled in December, Mr. Randall was selected as his successor. There was a providence in his selection at that time, for his speech when he took the chair indicated that he would be firm and just, and that no revolutionary action would be taken by the house with his consent or connivance. Congress and the people were excited over the presidential question, and even after the electoral commission had decided, there were those in the house who proposed to filibuster and prevent the announcement of the result until congress should expire by constitutional limitation. While he could filibuster when necessary to defeat a bill he considered injurious to the country, he was fully as able to choke off obstruction when the country was in peril from it. Mr. Randall remained speaker until 1881, being succeeded by Mr. Keller, republican, of Ohio. When congress assembled in 1884, Mr.

Probate Clerk

Randall and John G. Carlisle were the principal competitors before the democratic caucus, for nomination as speaker. Mr. Carlisle being chosen, appointed Mr. Randall, chairman of the committee on appropriations. In the present congress, Mr. Randall was assigned places on the committees on appropriations and rules. No one has ever had the hardihood to accuse Mr. Randall of venality. He is a partisan and a hard hitter politically, but he is open and above-board and honest.—Op'ic.

WHITE OAKS R. R.

Last Thursday there appeared in the Herald a local to the effect that on Friday, the directors of the White Oaks road would petition the district court to appoint a receiver for the road. When court convened yesterday the motion was made and after some discussion by the attorneys of the road and other lawyers who, seeing the notice in the Herald appeared in behalf of various creditors of the road, the matter was postponed presumably until this morning, to allow the interested parties to agree upon some one for receiver.

LATER IN THE DAY

a representative of the Herald met Col. Heman, and was told by him that the local in Thursdays paper had caused "the White Oaks people a lot of trouble."

"We were," he said, "fully prepared to have a receiver appointed. We had our man selected and the bond all made out, and the thing would have been fixed up in five minutes, but that little local of your's caused half a dozen jack-leg lawyers to be there with little $20 claims, and so the judge said he would postpone the matter until the parties interested could agree upon a man."

"Well, a receiver will be appointed, won't there, colonel?" asked the Herald man.

"Oh, yes; I suppose everything will turn out all right but you ought not to have made any mention of it."

BUT IT WAS NEWS

and the Herald got it, now for the sequel. The Herald man was at the court house as late as three o'clock and up to that hour nothing had been done regarding appointing the receiver, but later when the "Jack-leg" lawyers were not present, the judge on the second application of the White Oaks attorneys appointed Charles Davis to that position, who qualified in a bond amounting to $120,000, with O. B. Bassett, R. C. Lightbody, C. R. Morehead, James Magoffin and W. J. Fewell as securities, all responsible parties, and probably no better man in the community could have been selected for receiver than the one chosen. To-day, Col. Heman, Judge Davis and Jos.

Magoffin left on the train for Dallas to meet Jay Gould, who it is said telegraphed to them to meet him there, that if they had a receiver appointed he was ready to negotiate with them. And thus endeth the first lesson in the new chapter.—El Paso Herald, 13th inst.

The Grand Army encampment held a busy day of it at Socorro, the 10th inst, and altogether a good time also. The council of administration, at its session the night of the 9th, elected the following officers to fill vacancies: Dr. N. W. Lane, White Oaks, medical director; Lee H. Rudisill, White Oaks, department commander, vice J. H. Mills, deceased.

In the national encampments all past department commanders have one vote; Had not the late Capt. Mills' successor been named this department would have lost one vote, hence the wisdom of filling the vacancy only for a day by the election of Mr. Rudisill.

When the encampment got regularly down to business the following officers were elected to serve during the coming year:

A. M. Watson, Albuquerque, department commander.

James L. Morris, Wallace, senior vice-department commander.

Alexander M. Storey, Hillborough, junior vice-department commander.

N. W. Lane, White Oaks, medical director

Thomas Harwood, Socorro, chaplain.

Council of Administration—Smith H. Simpson, Taos; Frank Buchanan, Socorro; A. J. Fountain, Las Cruces; D. L. Sammis, Albuquerque; Sanford H. Pendleton, Deming.

Delegate to the next National Encampment—A. J. Bahney, Socorro; alternate, Philip Motherhill, Engle.

The next annual encampment will be held at Deming, the Santa Feans failing to muster a sufficient vote to swing it for the capital city.

WHEN, HOW, AND WHERE TO HOLD THE WORLD'S FAIR

Oh! where shall we hold the world's FAIR?

Down east, in the south, or out west? The FAIR must be held; and the point is, where can we hold it the best?

I'll tell you the place that will please All nations e'en down to the Jap, Let all vote it through with a squeeze, To hold the worlds fair in your lap.

And when shall we hold the World's Fair?

Sure all gallant men will allow, The best time we should hold the world's fair, Is as long as they'll let us, and now.

And how shall we hold the world's fair? The average man will agree, He don't want any Uncle Sam around there, He'll go it ALONE on the coast, And also in HOLDING the FAIR.

Congressman, Samuel J. Randall died at Washington on the 13th inst. In another part of this issue will be found appropriate mention of his life and services.

The Dona Ana County Grand Jury report the condition of the Probate Clerk's office as to book-keeping, in a fearful condition. They also report 49 indictments, principally against the laws of marriage. We herewith append the following extract from the remarks of Judge McFie to the Grand Jury, which is applicable in a great measure in Lincoln county. Judge McFie says:

"While it is to be regretted that the Grand Jurors found crime to have been on the increase during the past six months, still in this border county, we are, or have been the prey of criminals from foreign jurisdiction, but, from the thorough manner in which this Grand Jury has done its duty, and the swift manner in which justice has been meted out, the criminals indicted at this term, criminals will learn that they cannot, in this District escape punishment for their crime.

As to your report on the part of the United States, I need only refer to that for the purpose of saying something to the most important branch of your work at this term. I regret, indeed, to know that the crimes of adultery and fornication have existed within the Third Judicial District; but I am very much gratified that, as they have existed, you have taken hold of the matter vigorously, giving evidence of a determination on your part, as representatives of the law and the people, to stamp those crimes out of existence. To my mind these are the most offensive crimes that can be committed; they are more damaging in their effect and more serious in their nature, (in attacking the moral foundation of our Government,) than all the other offenses and their secrecy makes them difficult of punishment. You have found a number of indictments for such offenses during this term of court; I congratulate you that you have had the courage to take hold of that matter, as it appears that they have existed for years, untouched, and have dealt with it impartially, and with evident determination. The law, all down the ages and of all civilized nations, has thrown a safeguard around the marriage relations—has made it sacred and has punished the violation of its purity and sacredness; our own nation is far in advance of most of them in this respect and has gone to a great length in punishing crimes of that character, to have the marriage relation disturbed; it should be guarded and must be protected here in this Third Judicial District.

The stream of purity that flows thro' the happy homes of this country are not to be corrupted. You have striven to purify the fountain and to purify the fountain will purify the stream. I sincerely hope that we will never again be called upon to sit in judgment upon offenses in this Judicial District, for the reason that they have ceased to exist. On account of old customs and on account of poverty, it was not considered by some a serious offense but, gentlemen it is a serious offense, and such excuses as these must not be tolerated. All parties must take notice now that they cannot live in crime of that kind in this Territory. It not only destroys the homes of our citizens, but, it pollutes the line of posterity which has ever been guarded, with the hope of keeping it pure; it is painful indeed, to consider the result of these offenses, as bearing upon the poor little ones that are cast upon the world with disgrace bounded upon them. I hope and believe gentlemen, that the result of your labors in regard to this class of cases, will be of lasting benefit and effect, and that all parties will determine to respect the law, and guard and respect the homes and the purity of the homes of our citizens forever.

THE BALLOT REFORM LAW IN RHODE ISLAND.

The principal question of interest in the State election was, of course, the operation of the new ballot reform law, not only as affecting the convenience and dignity of voting, but as tending to remove the elements of corruption and bribery which have too long disgraced the politics of Rhode Island. As has been said, the experiment, made under somewhat unfavorable circumstances as regards the cities, whose wards were not properly subdivided into convenient voting districts, was entirely successful. Not only were the polling places relieved of the gangs of bribers and workers, which have infested their doorways and halls, so that the citizens could deposit their votes with dignity and self-respect, but the returns show that the system, by its secret and demand for intelligent consideration, cultivated and encouraged a discriminating choice as to the character of the candidates of the utmost value in a popular government, and a very great improvement over the habit of voting the regular ticket as a whole under the old system. Not only has corruption been checked, but the power of the caucus in forcing improper nominations received a serious blow, and it cannot be doubted that, with every year of the maintenance of the new ballot system, intelligence and independence will have a more powerful influence in the elections for the benefit of the community and the higher standards of popular government. All that remains to be done for the complete perfection of the law is the subdivision of the wards of the cities and larger towns into voting districts of convenient size, and this should be done by the general assembly without delay.—Providence Journal.

—Wherever ballot reform has been inaugurated, the Democrats have invariably gained. Notable gains in Indiana, Wisconsin and New York this spring show that with an honest ballot in the North, the democrats have much to gain.

S. J. RANDALL.

In the death of Sam'l J. Randall the democratic party, and therefore the country at large, has suffered a loss which will long be felt and with difficulty be recovered from. While from the very necessity of his position as a Pennsylvanian and the representative of a Pennsylvania district, he differed from the majority of his party on the great subject of tariff reform, yet his friends and opponents alike regarded him as a democratic leader in every particular. He could always be depended upon when the party needed a spokesman of force and action, and his absence from the house for months has been most keenly felt. No one could fail to praise his ability and admire him as a man. He has so often fought battles for his party in the house, oftentimes against great odds and with such wonderful success, that he had come to be looked upon as practically invincible. During the recent contest over the adoption of the new rules Mr. Randall was most sadly missed, and a thousand times a day during that exciting debate members were heard to regret that he was not present to hold the party together and make a concentrated fight, that would have robbed the republicans of much of the honor of their so called victory. In all of the discussion that has arisen since his illness regarding his life and character, the most prominent feature has been the universal testimony to the man's unimpeachable honesty and integrity.

In these times of rampant rapacity and shameless rascality, when the very life of the nation is about to be betrayed for twelve pieces of silver by the Judas Iscariot of republicanism, such a man as S. J. Randall can badly be spared from the councils of the people.—Albuquerque Democrat.

RETRIBUTIVE JUSTICE,

The death of General Thomas C. Anderson recalls the fate of the men who stole the State of Louisiana for Hayes and of those for whom the crime was perpetrated.

Anderson was a member of the Returning Board and acted under the instigation of Senator John Sherman. He was once a rich man but died in poverty. The men for whom he degraded himself forgot him. Hayes could find nothing for him, and his former friend, Sherman, undertook to satisfy him with a subordinate place in the New Orleans customs service, but Harrison refused to aid the old man in his last days and Sherman refused to see him,

What a story of retribution it is! Anderson and Wells are dead. Casanave, another victim of the traditional ingratitude of pals, went to Washington for his reward and was cast out. Some of the others have prospered in small ways, but all have failed of their ambition.

Hayes' purpose was blighted by the blot upon his title. He undertook to put an end to sectional strife, and in a measure he succeeded, but whatever success he had is drowned in the flood of public contempt which is felt for him.

John Sherman himself, one of the most active agents in the robbery of a State and the most ungrateful of all the conspirators, is a political memory. His power in his party has departed. He is the ablest republican in the country, the man whose services and ability should have made him candidate for President; but he will never receive the nomination. In two National Conventions he has been deceived by men very much his inferiors, a gratifying form of retributive justice. At the last Convention even the colored men of the South, the poor African for whom Hayes shed tears, sold him out to Mr. Alger.

No one connected with the stupendous fraud has wholly escaped punishment, but a great political party stood behind the crimes and saved the criminals from ideal justice.—N. Y. World.

Austrian Political Experiments.

In Victoria—the most progressive of the Australian colonies—telegraphs, railways and irrigation works, which, in the United States, are in private hands, are owned by and managed by the state. So far as telegraphs are concerned, this is true of England also, but the rates are much lower in Victoria than in the mother country.

The Victoria railways now pay 1½ per cent on the capital expended, and would make much larger returns were it not the policy of the colony to continually lower fares and freights so as to encourage industries and render service to the people. This purpose is carried so far in New South Wales that school-children are conveyed free of charge on colonial railways, while in Victoria remissions of fare are made to certain classes of students.

The low fares of the Victoria railways are more surprising because the wages of labor are about twice as high as they are in England and coal costs nearly twice as much. We should add that street railroads in Victoria belong not to private corporations, but to the municipalities.

The eight-hour labor day has been observed throughout Victoria since 1856, so far as artisans are concerned, and in 1886 an early-closing law went into operation, whereby male and female clerks in shops are relieved from duty at 7 p. m. on five nights of the week, and at 10 p. m. on Saturdays.

Altogether, Victoria is the workers' paradise, high wages being combined with cheap food, cheap transportation, and leisure for culture and amusement.—New York Ledger.

J. H. WHITEMAN,

White Oaks, April 16th, 1890.

Last week we made brief mention of the fact that Uncle John Wilson had made a new find in the Silver Cliff mine on Baxter Mountain, adjoining the Homestakes. Since then the strike proves to be a veritable Bonanza. A large body of very rich ore has been struck, and just as soon as arrangements can be perfected more men will be put to work and the ore milled at once by the owner. Uncle John Wilson is always lucky and his latest strike is the best of all. Everybody is glad of it.

Although there was no funeral service at the grave of Mrs. Gallatin, and the day very cold and disagreeable, yet it seemed everybody was present. This fact not only testified to the estimation in which the deceased was held; but was indicative of the generous sympathy of the people.—Banner.

Des Moines, April 15.—The house today refused to suspend the rules for the passage of a joint resolution for a resubmission of the prohibitory amendment. The matter goes over for two years, as this is the last day of the session.

The American mine is working a full force of men and is showing up nicely. Len Puckett has the fifteen stamp mill now on the ground ready to be put up. The company have plenty of water in a fifty foot tunnel made for that purpose, and thus it seems the signs are propitious.—Nogal Banner.

A Fortune.

The wool crop of New Mexico will be greater this year than it has been for several years past. It will also be of better quality. Wm McIntosh will this year clip 150,000 pounds, and it is claimed that his product is of much better quality than it was a year ago when he sold it at 20½ cents per pound. His sale of weathers at $2.90 per head shorn of their coat, which will bring him $1.50 for each fleece, will average the successful sheep raiser $4.40 per head. He sold 5,000 at this ratio. So the total income of this sheep baron for the year 1890 will be $50,000.—Albuquerque Democrat.

The Montana contested election case promises to remain "unfinished business" in the Senate almost as long as did the Blair educational bill. The final result is not in doubt—that was practically settled by the report of the committee.

The pension question is ever with us. This week the republicans of the House tried to suspend the rules and pass a modified service pension bill as a substitute for the dependent pension bill which recently passed the Senate. It failed for lack of the requisite two-thirds vote. In the mean time an Ohio member has introduced a service pension bill which includes everybody who was in the Union army for ninety days.

We glean from Kansas City Railroad News that one thousand cars of new steel rails will soon be in transit for New Mexico. Now let the wise achers guess where it is going. We opine from San Antonio to White Oaks. But we will be in the heart of the city when the boom comes.—Socorro Advertiser.

Mr. Lee: "Why, Addie, you needn't cry about it! I only said Mrs. Allen was a very well-informed woman, and I wished you would follow her example."

Mrs. Lee: "Yes, and last week you said you wished I could manage to look as stylish as Mrs. Allen—and she makes all her own clothes. But she has what I haven't."

Mr. Lee: "What is that?"

Mrs. Lee: "Well, she gets all of her information from the Magazine they take. I admit that she knows all that is going on, and is bright and entertaining in conversation, but I can't do as well as she does if I had the same source of information. She lent me the last number of her Magazine lately, and I have more in one hour's reading, about various social matters and the topics of the day, than I would pick up in a month by my occasional chats with friends. I certainly covers every top of interest from the news of the day down to the details of householding; and everything is so beautifully illustrated, too. Every time Maggie goes over to the Alens' she comes back and teases me to get you to take Demorest's Family Magazine as the stories are so good. Ever the boys watch for it every month, as a place is found for it in all of its prices; and Mr. Allen swears by it. It is really wonderful how it suits every member of the family!"

Mr. Lee: "Well, perhaps I'd better send for a specimen copy; for, if it is anything like what you say it is, it will amuse and instruct the whole family."

Mrs. Lee: "I see that W. Jennings Demorest, the publisher, is just 13th Street, New York, so we can't lose anything, as each number contains a 'Pattern Or'—enabling the holder to any pattern she may choose, and in any size, which alone makes each copy worth 2 cents; and I just want a jacket pattern like Mrs. Allen's. The subscription price is only $2.00 a year; and I must say I can't see how they can publish so elegant a Magazine for so little money."

REVIEW 3.

Anna Katharine Green has written a new book which Robert Bonner's Sons have published under the title of "The Forsaken Inn," which is certain to have a wide popularity, not so much on account of its authorship as because it has, in a greater degree than any story published, the characteristic qualities of a popular novel. It is a story pure and simple. There is no effort to be smart, enigmatical or didactic, but a straightforward narrative of interesting and exciting incidents with such personal and descriptive passages as suffice to furnish the background and medium for the action and development of the plot. The illustrations by Victor Perard are an attractive feature of the book.

The "White House," to most people, means a flat, two-story, unicturesque white house, as the view generally given of it shows the severely plain north front; but there are many other views of the home of our Presidents, and we are indebted to Demorest's Family Magazine for laying them before us. The May number of this popular Magazine literally takes you to Washington and shows you the "White House" from every point of view, as well as its charming surroundings. The seventeen beautiful illustrations will give you a better idea of the nation's Executive Mansion than you could possibly gain by a personal visit; and never before has it been so fully and beautifully illustrated. This feature alone will make the May number of Demorest's Family Magazine have a phenomenal sale; and those who are so fortunate as to possess it, will find in it a fund of information and amusement, containing, as it does, nearly two hundred illustrations, embellishing such articles as "A May Festival in Florence," Transformations of a Butterfly," The Steller Universe," "The Fairies of the Plains," "Modeling in Glass," "Kindergarten Work and Play for the Home," etc. Besides, in this number Ella Wheeler Wilcox commences an intensely interesting story; and two oil pictures, "I Won't!" and "I Will," make it doubly attractive. Published by W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 15 East 14th St., New York.

A Great Popular Cyclopaedia.

The last volume issued of Alden's Manifold Cyclopaedia is fully up to the high standard of the preceding volumes, and readers will be pleased to learn of the rapid progress the work is now making; strong financial allies have recently been secured in the publishing department, two large printing offices are now at work upon it, and the publication is to be hastened to completion with all the speed that abundant resource and energy can give it. People have wondered how a work of such superior merit and magnitude, and so handsomely and thoroughly well got up—a rival of the Britannica, Johnson, Appeton and the rest—could be published at all, at prices so remarkably low, and searchers after knowledge, as well as the publishers, are to be congratulated upon the new promise of success. A 40-volume Cyclopaedia, including an Unabridged Dictionary of language, large type, several thousand illustrations—all for $30.00, and even that in such easy instalments as one pleases to ask, almost, is a great thing for the public; Specimen pages sent free to any applicant, by the publisher, JOHN B. ALDEN, New York, Chicago, and Atlanta.

THE NEW PRIZE STORY

is eagerly sought for, read with pleasure or disappointment, is then tossed aside and forgotten. But ladies who read of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, read it again, for they discover in it something to prize—a messenger of joy to those suffering from functional derangements or from any of the painful disorders or weaknesses peculiar to their sex. Periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhoea and kindred ailments readily yield to its wonderful curative and healing powers. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years. $1.00 by druggists, or six bottles for $5.00.
