ORPHANS HOME.

Goes to Brownwood By Unanimous Vote.

Brownwood is jubilant over its second great plum—the landing of the Odd Fellows Home. A short while ago Brownwood secured the Santa Fe shops, and this latter comes as an acceptable New Year's gift. By the third of March Brownwood has pledged herself to raise about $17,000, which it is thought will be the amount required to secure the land and make the improvements promised. Of this amount $7,000 has been secured.

The Bulletin tells of the landing of the prize as follows:

The Odd Fellows committee met yesterday at Corsicana for the final hearing and decision. The four towns were represented before the committee, Secretary D. F. Johnson, appearing for the Brownwood committee. After going over all the proposals in detail, an executive session was held. There were five members of the committee present. On the first ballot the vote stood for Brownwood and one for Bonham, Mr. Tom Leach of Bonham, a member of the local committee, not voting. Dr. J. B. McKnight of Denison, who voted for Bonham, moved that the vote be made unanimous for Brownwood, whereupon Brownwood received the five votes of the committee.

The committee will make its report to the grand lodge, which will meet in Houston on March 1st, and the report will then be adopted and the appropriation made for the first building. There is no doubt whatever that the report will be adopted, and although there has been some talk of taking the matter to the floor of the grand lodge, this will hardly be done, and would not amount to anything if it were done.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the card of Thornton Lee Melton, teacher of piano. Mr. Melton studied under the late Wilbur McDonald of Fort Worth, who was one of the foremost teachers of the South, and is himself a pianist of considerable ability. If you desire lessons, phone him.

Miss Helen Tetens, one of the active contestants in the Upton piano contest, brought us in a big batch of subscribers yesterday, for which we are duly thankful both to Miss Tetens and those who subscribed.

Hollingsworth-Wolf.

News was received here last week of the marriage in Denton of Mr. T. J. Hollingsworth and Miss Nita Wolf, the marriage having taken place on the 26th. Both young people are well known in Brady, Miss Wolf having made her home here for a number of years, and her sweet disposition and charm of manner endeared her to a large circle of friends, both in Brady and over the county. Mr. Hollingsworth is also quite well known in Brady, having visited here upon numerous occasions, and is a man of splendid character and business ability. At present he is engaged as traveling representative for the U. M. C. Co.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth left for Omaha, where they will make their home.

CHANGE IN TIME TABLE

NEW SCHEDULE IN EFFECT LAST SUNDAY.

No. 5 Arrives in Brady 9:00 A. M.—No. 6 Leaves at 8:00 P. M.

The change in schedule of the Frisco, which has been rumored for some weeks, went into effect Sunday morning, official announcement of the change having been received here Saturday. According to the new schedule No. 5 will leave Fort Worth at 10:55 p. m., arriving at Brownwood at 6:45 a. m., arriving at Brady, 9:00 a. m.; leave Brady at 9:10 a. m., arriving at Menard 10:45 a. m.

Returning No. 6 will leave Menard at 6:15 p. m., arriving at Brady at 7:50 p. m.; leave Brady at 8:00 p. m., arriving at Brownwood at 10:00 p. m.; leave Brownwood at 11:25 p. m., arrive at Fort Worth 6:45 a. m.

No. 3 will leave Fort Worth at 8:45 a. m., arriving at Brownwood at 3:15 p. m., where it will stop.

No. 4 will leave Brownwood at 8:30 a. m., arriving in Fort Worth at 3:30 p. m.

As will be noticed from the schedule Brady will henceforth have but one train a day from Fort Worth, the evening train being stopped at Brownwood. Secretary Hardison of the Commercial club is in receipt of a communication from G. H. Schleyer, vice president and general manager of the Frisco, stating that light business was the cause of the taking off of the evening train, and that it had not been paying expenses. He gave assurance that the change would only be temporary and that the old schedule would be resumed the moment business justified, and hoped to be able to do so by spring. In the meantime, he asked the citizens of Brady to bear with the company during the dull winter months.

The local from Brownwood on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday will be run as a mixed train, and is scheduled to leave Brownwood at 8:40 a. m., arriving in Brady at 12:15 p. m. Returning, mixed train will run to Brownwood on Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday, leaving Brady at 1:25 p. m., arriving in Brownwood at 5:00 p. m.

WORK ON NEW RAILROAD.

Corps of Surveyors Ready On Christmas Day.

Relying on the enterprising citizens of San Antonio to complete the $50,000 bonus necessary to secure rail connections between this city and Fredericksburg, and finding it very unprofitable to have his forces remain in idleness for an indefinite length of time, R. A. Love, promoter and builder of the projected railroad began the preliminary work this week. It is his present intention to push the work without intermission until the completion of this line. In discussing the beginning of the work on the road yesterday, Mr. Love said:

"I have put a corps of surveyors to work at what is known as the 'big hill' and they are to have a report ready by Christmas day. On their report will depend whether we shall cut through the hill or tunnel it. The impression has prevailed for some time that it would be better and cheaper to tunnel through this obstruction, but that matter will not be positively settled until the engineers make their final report.

"How long will it be after that report is made before you expect to begin the actual work of construction?" was asked.

"Construction work would be begun in a few hours," was Mr. Love's reply. "I have a large number of teams and men engaged and they would be in readiness to proceed with the work at the hill immediately after notice to do so. The delay has seemed long to me because many of my men are on salary, and the teams are simply eating their heads off. We were assured that the bonus would be raised in a few days and I could see no harm in getting busy with the necessary preliminary work, then by the time the fund is all pledged there will be no delay in starting the actual work of construction. The people of this city will keep faith; there can be no doubt about that."

Mr. Love believes that track will be laid on that part of the line between the Sap road and the "big hill" within the next few weeks in the event there be no delay in receiving material. That section of the road was graded several years ago, and with a small amount of additional work could be made ready for the ties and steel. It will be the first to be constructed, as it will be necessary to operate a work train to carry material along the line, especially to the hill section. The grading of the section between the hill and Fredericksburg is regarded as a short undertaking. The most expensive part of the work and the one that will require the longest time to complete is the cutting or tunneling of the hill.

Much of the supplies for the new road have been ordered, and Mr. Love expects them to be delivered by February 1st.

The balance to be raised on the $50,000 bonus was cut down to $675 yesterday, subscriptions amounting to $200 being reported during the day. This is taken to mean that no more soliciting will be necessary by the end of this week.—San Antonio Express, Dec. 19.

1912 CHAMPION FARMER

CHAS. A. DOSS OF ROCKDALE WINS $1000 PRIZE.

Offered By Industrial Congress of Texas for Best Results on Four Staple Crops.

Farming That Pays.

Chas. A. Doss of Rockdale may well be called the champion farmer of Texas. He won the first prize of $1000 offered by Col. Henry Exall's Industrial Congress of Texas for the best results on four staple crops on ten acres, in two and one-half acre plots as follows:

Cowpeas, 36.48 tons; cost of production, $30.10. Milo maize, 297.82 bushels; cost of production, $45.35; net profit at 40c per bushel, $73.77. Cotton, 3.54 bales, or 1.41 bales to the acre; cost of production, $89.25; net profit at $60 per bale, $123.63. Corn, 186.53 bushels, 74.62 bu. per acre; cost of production, $39.45; net profit at 70c per bu., $191.12.

These figures give Mr. Doss a net profit on his ten acres of $905.62, and on this basis he was awarded $1000. He used no fertilizer. Crops were grown on bottom land, and he carefully read and studied all bulletins issued by the Congress.

That is a little more than $90 an acre net, and it means a living on ten acres.

It is assumed that Mr. Doss cultivated more land than the ten acres and that he made more than $905.62. No doubt the $905.62 was clear profit on the year's operations. That is a fair return upon an investment of $10,000.

Mr. Doss followed the advice of the bulletins issued by the Congress which were based upon government experiments; he practiced "book farming" and it paid. The other prize winners followed similar methods and profited by so doing.

It means much to Texas to have the demonstration of what intelligent culture can do on ten acres. It means not only vastly increased production, but it means profit to the farmer. It means new wealth from year to year and more prosperity to those who create the wealth.

The magnificent results of the efforts of Col. Exall and his associates should encourage further endeavor by citizens and by the state to spread the gospel and to teach the practice of good farming.—Fort Worth Record, Dec. 14th.

Methods Used By Mr. Doss.

History of cultivation of prize crops by Charles A. Doss, Rockdale, Milam county; awarded first prize in Class A (Four-crop Model Demonstration Farm.)

Cowpeas—My land of cowpeas has been in cultivation fifteen years, had corn grown on it last year. Broke in January six inches deep, then harrowed with section harrow, then April 15, I planted it flat in Georgia field peas, rows sixteen inches apart and three inches in drill. Secured a perfect stand, then plowed once with small shovels, run small wing sweep through middle plowing. The land where these peas grew is very rich bottom land and was not fertilized this year, but lightly last year. The cost of production and seed was $39.75, and it yielded 263 pounds on ten yards square.

Milo Maize.—Land for milo maize is very low and was under water last year, grew up in weeds and burrs. I cut out these with stalk cutter and plowed under. Laid off rows two and one-half feet apart and planted April 2. Secured a good stand. Run a section harrow over it and it came a rain and water stood on it. When the ground got dry, plowed it with small wing sweeps and went through it with a hoe and cleaned out all weeds. Then I run through with big sweep and that was all I could do before it got too tall. I thank the Congress for this experiment, for I will always plant maize and corn. I saved about one-half the stalks, 5100 bundles, and weighed 14,891 pounds of heads. Cost of production and use of land was $45.35.

Cotton.—Very rich cotton land, in corn last year. Broke in January about six or eight inches deep, then laid off with

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

The Brady Standard wishes all its readers a very, very Happy New Year, and trusts that prosperity, health and happiness may be in store for all.

We have much to be thankful for at the close of the year 1912; possibly some regrets; surely we have gained much knowledge and see more clearly than ever wherein we missed opportunities and made mistakes. Let us then profit by the past, doing all things better, more conscientiously and with greater determination, that a greater success than ever may crown our efforts.

Include in your resolutions one to be a better booster for your town and community. Never lose an opportunity to say a good word—you know not when your words may fall upon fruitful ground and bring in rich returns. A good word is easily spoken, and it may light the way in the darkness for some erring wanderer.

HUSBANDS WANTED.

The Bulletin is today in receipt of a communication from two ladies at Fort Worth, who say that they hope it is not too late for them to get a marriage proposal before the public, or, as they express it, not "too late for a leap year plunge." They frankly admit that to wait four years longer is a discouraging prospect for widows, one of whom is "near forty and one past forty." They both express a preference for a country gentleman of age anywhere from forty to fifty-five and invite correspondence. As an evidence of good faith they enclosed their pictures and their addresses. The Bulletin is not conducting a marriage bureau, but will undertake to forward a few letters to the right parties if addressed to "Fort Worth Widows," care Bulletin.—Brownwood Bulletin.

Will some generous-hearted, handsome young man kindly lend us two photos of himself—quick!

Write it '13.

If your New Year's resolutions cannot be kept, they had better never have been made.

A great get-together meeting is needed in Brady. All good citizens should join in promoting the welfare of Brady during the new year, and the best way to go about it is to find out Brady's needs and then make a united effort to fill the want.

HOODOO ALL 'ROUND.

This is the first of the month; the first of the year; and the first jinx year we have had in a century—it's '13. Everybody is invoicing, and those who are not are preparing to invoice and are too busy to even talk. Consequently news is as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. If you happen across any, guard it carefully—it's precious.

MENARD GIRLS A FAILURE.

The leap year is almost gone, but the girls have made such a failure of it that we are willing to try one of the ordinary years.—Menard Messenger.

Happy New Year.

Say a good word sometimes—it costs you nothing.

Congratulations, Brownwood, upon securing the Orphans Home—but where did you get hold of such a big stocking?

The year '13 may be unlucky, but let it be unlucky for the other fellow. Work harder and strive more than ever before, and success will surely be the result.

One of our lady friends—O, she's married—advises us not to get married until we have saved enough to get a divorce on. She says you can't get a divorce on credit. Here's where we will have to save for another whole year.

From the numerous endearing epistles received, we take it that we made quite a hit with three of the Menard girls when we sent them each two sticks of six-for-a-nickel stick candy. It is contrary to accepted custom in Menard to give such a present. The boys always give the girls snuff, and the girls always give the boys navy plug.

Thanks be, the agony is over! We have escaped the wiles of those twenty-three Menard beauties, including seven grass and eleven sod widows, and five lonely old maids. The next three years of our life shall be devoted to fortifying ourselves against the attacks of the twenty-three next leap year, when each will be three years older, three years more desperate and three years less entrancing.

F. W. Bader of Fife is trying us for another round of The Standard.

BAIRD DEFEATS GIBBS.

Mason County Votes Off Tie in Sheriff's Race.

In the election for sheriff in Mason county P. C. Baird Saturday a week ago defeated H. B. Gibbs by a majority of 21, the vote being 483 for Baird and 462 for Gibbs. In the general election, Gibbs running as the democratic nominee and Baird as independent, the vote resulted in a tie. Both have held the office of sheriff of Mason county before.

Died at Menard.

The 3-months-old babe of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham died at Menard Friday of whooping cough, and was brought to Brady Saturday for burial in the Brady cemetery. The child had been puny from birth, and at the time of death weighed scarcely more than three or four pounds. Mr. and Mrs. Graham have the sympathy of all in their loss.

The Girl He Forgot

Henshaw laughed when he asked Elizabeth Blake to accept Wharton, whom she had never met, as her particular escort at the theater party which Henshaw was planning to give the following week.

"I'll be delighted," said Elizabeth. "But what's the joke?"

"Jim Wharton's the joke," replied Henshaw. "I don't suppose he ever took a girl anywhere in his life. He boards where I do."

The night of the party Jim's costume was certainly irreproachable, and but for a certain shyness, which troubled him more than it did any one else, his manners were irreproachable. Elizabeth was the most tactful of her sex, so, when she found that her attempts at conversation seemed merely to startle and embarrass her escort, she asked most of the time to Henshaw and Pauline Curtis, who were her neighbors on the other side. Being thus left to himself, Jim was free to enjoy the play.

It was several minutes after the curtain had fallen on the final act before Elizabeth, who had been busily collecting her possessions, looked around in search of Jim and discovered that there was no such person anywhere to be seen. She gave a little gurgle of mingled surprise and amusement. Henshaw turned toward her at the sound, and when he saw the vacant chair he, too, laughed.

"You followed instructions too well, Elizabeth," he said. "I didn't mean for you to obliterate yourself so entirely that he could go beating it off alone like that."

Not until Jim, still chuckling to himself in retrospective enjoyment of the play, took out his watch and began to wind it, which was his first step in the process of going to bed, was he assailed by an unpleasant and all too familiar sensation. He recognized it.

"I've lost something," he said to himself, beginning to feel about in his pockets. He knit his brows and tried to think. It couldn't have been his ticket to the play, for he had been there and come home again. "Great play," he soliloquized. "I don't know when I've enjoyed anything so much. I wonder if Tom—"

Here he struck a clew. "Why, where is Tom?" he asked, thoughtfully. "We certainly went together." Then, like a flash, it all came back in one horrible, overwhelming flood.

When Tom returned and stopped in Jim's room on his way to his own, he found a pale, disheveled, dejected creature sitting on the side of the bed, one large shoe in his hand, gazing wildly into space. Jim turned a haggard face toward the intruder.

"Nee man you are!" said Tom, disgustedly. "Any time I undertake to make a social butterfly out of you again!"

Wharton groaned. "Say," he asked, "what does a fellow do when things like this happen?"

Tom started for the door, smothering a yell of delight. "They don't happen," he said, chokingly, as he disappeared.

About 5 o'clock the next morning Henshaw was awakened by a knock on his door. When the door was opened slightly Wharton's dejected countenance appeared in the crack.

"Tom," he said, "I've hardly slept a wink. I've just got to do something."

Tom reached for a pillow and threw it at the long, sad face. "Go and do it then," he shouted. "But if you bother me again, I'll—"

The door closed on the uncompleted sentence.

If Wharton could have seen Elizabeth's mirthful countenance that evening when she read his name on the card which the maid handed her he would have been tempted to dive headlong out of the window. When she entered the room in which he was waiting for her, however, she was unsmiling enough.

"Good evening, Mr. Wharton," she said, with cold politeness. "Won't you have a chair?"

"A chair?" repeated Jim, looking about wildly. "I—don't believe I need one, thank you. That is, I can't stay but a minute. Miss Blake, I wanted Tom to come with me to tell you what a fool I am. He knew I'd do something awful. He hadn't any business to make me go last night. Miss Blake, I don't know what to say," he went on, cheerlessly. "If there's anything I can do to square myself, I'd be glad to do it. I know there isn't any excuse for a bonehead like me."

Jim was pallid with misery by this time. "I know you can't forgive me and I don't ask it. I just came to say that I wish you'd get somebody to kick me around the block. I can't apologize, for there's no apology that I can make. The only thing I can say for myself, is that you're the first, I may say, the only girl, I ever forgot."

It was not until Elizabeth had dropped upon the piano stool and with her head resting on the piano had very nearly gone into hysterics that Jim realized his blunder. Then he, too, laughed.

Elizabeth's picture now decorates the back of Jim's watch, and underneath, placed there at her request, are the words: "The first and only girl."

long pointed sweep, listed out of this furrow broke out the middle with buster, then harrowed with section harrow across beds. Planted the Egyptian big boll cotton seed April 16 in rows three and one-half feet apart and plant about eight inches in drill. Secured a good stand, planted with riding planter, using thirty inches wing sweep to open, which leveled the ground entirely; harrowed with section harrow, which made it very mellow, then plowed the young cotton with small wing sweep very deep; then run out middle with thirty inch wing sweep. Chopped, then plowed again with wing sweep, then once every week with V harrow until cotton opened. Cost of production was $87.25. Two and one-half acres produced 5,404 pounds seed cotton; 1774 lint.

Corn.—My land for corn was broke in January, six inches deep, then Feb. 27-29 it was laid off with middle buster and then bedded with turning plow; then the middle broke out. March 12 I run a section harrow across the beds; then March 28-29 I planted. When corn was just peeping through I run section harrow over it and got a good stand. I then plowed with small wing sweep, then run through middle with thirty inch wing sweep, plowing five inches deep. I then run V harrow through and plowed with twelve inch wing sweep, very shallow; then run through middle with thirty inch sweep and plowed with V harrow once a week until corn ripened. This land is very rich bottom land, very low and would overflow when the water rises very high. Cost of production, $39.45.

I have gained more knowledge of farming the last two years since receiving instructions from the Texas Industrial Congress than all the other years together. They have helped me make better and bigger crops and still not rob my land of its fertility, but gets richer every year. It has taught me that early breaking, frequent cultivation and harrowing almost or more than doubling my yield.—Rockdale Reporter.

A WOMAN
SCORNED

By LESLIE DAVIS

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"Really, now, you must be serious and help me with this affair. I'm positively worn out with it all." Martha Gardner's voice carried a wistful note, although she laughed as she spoke. "It's been going on all summer and I'm at my wits' end."

"Then begin at the beginning, Martha," suggested her cousin, Reba King.
"We've had only scraps of information so far to work on."

"Very well, but I warn you that it's a tragedy. I met him in June at the Smiths' dinner party. He sat beside me and we got along beautifully together. I liked him from the first and I thought he seemed to be rather—well, impressed himself."

"Omit the modest depreciations, Martha," interrupted Reba's twin sister, May. "You might as well say to begin with that he was hard hit; they all are. I never saw such a girl for conquers."

"Nonsense! Well, he asked to call, and came, and then affairs went with a rush. He took me to plays and out for lovely rides in his little car, and brought books and we had such nice comfortable evenings reading them.
For a miracle, Aunt Ada liked him. I think she really missed him when he stopped coming."

"He stopped coming? Why?"
"I don't know why. Didn't I tell you it was a tragedy?"

"You mean to say that he just stopped without any reason or explanation or anything?"

"Exactly. The last time I spoke to him was at Mrs. Bullard's party. We had several dances together, then I saw him talking to Jerome Holden in the hall, and after that he left. I detest Jerome, but he has persisted in hanging around for the last year in spite of dreadful snubbings. Sometimes I've thought he might have said

"On They Sped."

something to make trouble—anyhow, the doctor hasn't been near me for ten weeks. Reba King, stop giggling!
I won't stand it!"

"Oh, it's too funny!" Reba laughed.
"To think of Martha Gardner in the role of a woman scorned. After the dance you've always led and the damaged hearts lying in your wake, I call it just retribution!"

"It's mean to laugh," objected May, soberly. "Did you say that he was a doctor, Martha? Is he a good man, and all that?"

"Dr. Paul Jeffries is as good as gold!" Martha's head went up with a proud little air. "Everybody speaks well of him. And he has worked hard and has quite a practice. Oh, there he is, passing now! Look! Look!"

All three rushed to the window and peeped from behind the curtain at the automobile darting past.

"It's a dear little car," whispered
Reba.

"He has a nice face," commented
May. "I'd do something, Martha, I wouldn't let it go on this way."

"Yes, but what?"

"A few centuries ago," declared Reba, "you would have sent him a bottle of poisoned wine, taken a dose yourself and ended the affair in that neat way. What a pity that common sense has taken such a hold of modern life! It drives out romance completely."

"The common sense thing to do," suggested May, "is to write a note and ask him what the matter is."

"I won't do that if I never find out!
I've a little pride left, I hope."

"Then persuade Aunt Ada to have a neuralgic attack and send for him professionally."

"He knows she would never have any one but old Dr. Benjamin."

"Give the cook a deadly dose and vow she made you call him."

"He might not get here, and I'm not used to deadly doses; she's too good a cook to sacrifice."

"If we were going to be in town a while, instead of just passing through and lunching with you, I'd plan a campaign of some sort," mused Reba.
"Oh, dear, it's time to start now, if we are going to make that 3:30 train."

"Of course, this is in the strictest confidence," warned Martha, as they parted at the station. "I wouldn't breathe a word to any one else for worlds, but you are more like sisters than I am. Just had to tell

"Of course, agreed Reba, sympathetically. "And if I think of anything I'll write at once. In the meantime, whatever you do, Martha, be practical and daring, humorous if possible.
That's the modern method of doing things, and I must say it seems to be effective!" The twins waved a last adieu and the train bore them swiftly off.

Martha turned away, her mind full of the conversation of the afternoon.
Instead of going directly home, she turned rather aimlessly into a side street. She wanted to think it all out again, though there was not a single part of her dilemma that she had not gone over many times before. She hated to own, even to herself, how much she cared, but she did care very much. She admitted it with a little catch of the heart.

And she was sure that he did, too.
That was the queer part of it all. The man loved her, she knew he did.
There were a thousand little ways of telling. And they had been so happy together, so congenial from the beginning. A sudden moisture blurred her eyes.

Martha winked quickly to clear her vision, turned a corner, and halted abruptly with surprise at what she saw. Dr. Jeffries' little empty run-about stood before her at the curb.
Evidently the doctor was making a call inside the house.

With the sight, a swift idea leaped into Martha's head.

"Practical, daring, humorous. I'll do it!" She looked carefully around to see if she were observed. It was a quiet, unfashionable neighborhood, no one happened to be passing. Martha walked up to the car and seated herself beside the driver's seat.

For five minutes she waited, her heart nearly stifling her with its excited jumping, then the door opened and Dr. Jeffries ran lightly down the steps.

At the sight of her he stopped stock still, and his face went white. Then he gathered himself.

"I'm sorry to have kept you waiting," he addressed her, with a smile.

"Oh, I haven't minded waiting in the least," she returned politely.

He went around in front and cranked
the car, then took his place beside her and they were away.

Calmly Dr. Jeffries drove the little car across the town, past the small houses of the outskirts, and struck out for the country. His face was tranquil, but Martha, stealing a glance from the corner of her eye, noticed that the hand which moved the levers trembled. She herself could not have spoken had her life depended on it.

On they sped, over the country road,
now running beside a scampering brook, now leaving it while they passed through patches of woodland, cool and sweet. The way was familiar to them both, it had been a favorite route for the drives of the early summer.

Finally, at one of the wooded places,
Dr. Jeffries' energy seemed to relax.
The car slowed down, and for the first time its driver turned and looked into the face of the girl beside him.

"Are you really here?" he asked,
slowly. "Or is it all a dream?"
Martha laughed softly. "It's a dream," she answered, with a saucy gleam in her eye.

"Then I hope I may never wake up!" ejaculated the doctor, fervently.
"It is a pleasant dream," agreed Martha, amiably.

"It's heavenly!" Then, after a pause, "Now tell me what part of the dream is the hint that Jerome Holden gave me that you and he were practically engaged?"

"Oh, he didn't really, did he? The coward! Oh, I could almost—"

words failed her.

"Then," persisted the doctor, eagerly, "that hideous nightmare has no place in—our dream?"

"No place at all," steadily.

Dr. Jeffries brought the car to a sudden stop, turned it around, and began to hasten back to town with all the motor's power.

"Why, what are you going to do?"
asked Martha, in surprise.

"I'm going to take you home, where I hope to be invited into the house.
I've some things to say before I wake up. Besides, can a man drive a car and do—anything else?" demanded
Dr. Paul Jeffries.

Making Hades Easy.

Strange wishes are sometimes expressed by those at the point of death to ease their last moments, but few probably have been more strange than that of the son of Erin of whom the Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins told a short time ago in an afternoon speech:
"Pat O'Shaunessy had been told by the doctor that he could live but a few hours," said Dr. Tomkins, "and his wife and assembled relatives and friends asked him whether there was one last wish he would like to have gratified before he died?" "There is," said Pat. "I'd like to hear the village band play once again." Accordingly the village band gathered before Pat's house and discorded airs for several hours. When at last it had played, "Say Au Revoir, but Not Goodby," and had taken its own departure, Mrs. O'Shaunessy, kneeling at her husband's bedside,
asked "Can ye die aisy, Pat?" "Yes," replied Pat. "I can die aisy now. Hades has nothing worse than that."—Balti-

Pay as You Enter.

A young man wearing flashy clothes walked into the Planters' Hotel, and with a flourish of the pen registered as "Ira M. Smart, Smartville, Tenn."
He asked to be assigned to a $5 room.
"I pay as I go," he said rather bombastically. "I regret, Mr. Smart," retorted Chief Clerk Bueneville, "that it is a rule of this house that guests without baggage must pay as they go."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

BRADY ORCHESTRA.

Brady Is At Last to Have An Orchestra.

The need of such an organization has been apparent upon every occasion where music was desired, and it seems strange that so much time should have elapsed before an orchestra was organized.

To Mr. Felix Keller belongs the credit for the new enterprise, and the orchestra was enabled to make their initial appearance at the Lyric theatre
Monday night, where they delighted all who attended. Besides playing regularly at the Lyric, the orchestra will be open

GALLAN CONCOCTIONS FOR MAGNIFICENT MENARD

From the Messenger.

James Bevans came over from Brady Saturday.

The Herald editor says he will never surrender his pants to any woman. The average size woman would have to cut the legs off two or three times to keep them from dragging the ground, and then she couldn't see over the waistband.

We intended getting out a Christmas edition, but the Chicago outfit that prints them wanted cash with the order and would sell only in quantities of one thousand—enough to run us two or three months.

The Herald man is glad the railroads have quit furnishing towels for the public. He says "abody had oughter wash his face before he starts out on a long trip."

Just to prove our unselfishness, every year we let our wife eat all the fruit cake she cooks. The kind she makes will last a long time.

Be a hero—wear the tie she gave you even if the whole world laughs at you, which it will, of course.

We intended getting out a paper this week and skip next week, but the weather turned off so bad we decided to skip both of them.

Frank Slaughter and Fred Napier returned the last of the week from the bear caves of Val Verde county. They killed lots of time and had enough game to make out on.

My, but it is fearful to try to write with a head like this! We wish now we'd kept some of that advice we were handing out so freely a few weeks ago. Right at the time a fellow pities most everybody else, but the next morning he barely has courage to look his bird dog in the face.

Miss Maggie Polk visited in Brady Friday last.

Patrons of the Brady post-office will have to be patient until we get up charges to have Dave ousted and ourself installed. There is this much good we can say for the Menard girls: It will only require a stick of barber pole candy to fill a Menard girl's stocking should she hang it up for Santa Christmas eve.—Brady Standard.

A really good man like the writer, would observe only the excellent qualities of mind and nobleness of character, but of course nobody has accused Schwenker of being a really good man.

Schwenker writes asking us if we can swap a pair of No. 3 ingrain carpet slippers to one of the merchants here for a pair he can get on. A man with feet like that should wrap them in blankets instead of worrying his enemies trying to get slippers large enough for him.

MASON MAVERICKS.

LIVED ON RAW EGGS

Mr. Richard's Experience With Different Diets. Peaches and Buttermilk for Three Years.

Cecilton, Md.—Mr. George Richards, of this place, during the past 12 years, has probably tried more different diets than the average person would ever use in a lifetime.

What he has to say about his experiments, must therefore be highly interesting to anyone suffering from indigestion or stomach troubles of any kind. He says: "For more than 12 years, I suffered with stomach troubles, and paid hundreds of dollars for doctor bills and medicines. I was also operated on for piles.

I lived on dried peaches and buttermilk for nearly three years. The only thing that would not give me pain was raw eggs. I was a physical wreck, I could not sleep, and was as near crazy as a man could well be.

I must say that after taking two 25-cent packages of Theford's Black-Draught, it did me more good than all I ever spent for other medicines. I have been working daily on the farm ever since, and I am as hard as iron. This purely vegetable remedy has been in successful use for more than 70 years. Try it. But be sure that it's "Theford's."

Pumphrey-Young.

The many friends of the couple will be interested in the following account of the wedding of Mr. Dudley Pumphrey and Miss Charlotte Young. Mr. Pumphrey is a prominent ranchman of Mercury, while Miss Young has had charge of the school at Nine the past two years. The Brownwood Bulletin reports the wedding as follows:

"On Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, the event which crowned two weeks of entertainment took place when Mr. Dudley S. Pumphrey and Miss Charlotte Young were married, Rev. W. H. Matthews of Floydada officiating. The bridal party was composed of the bride and groom and Mr. Charlie Bratton of Rochelle and Miss Nancy Lee Young, sister of the bride, with Sarah Frances Sears and Jessica Imogene Lane acting as flower girls. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. S. Young, on Irma street, with a number of relatives and friends present. Among those from other cities who were present were J. B. Pumphrey, father of the groom, and daughter, Miss Pumphrey, of Taylor; and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sears of Shawnee, Okla., Mrs. Sears being a sister of the bride.

"After the simple ceremony the bride and groom were showered with congratulations and good wishes, and a delightful refreshment course of salad and ices was served. The young couple left on the Frisco Saturday night for Fort Worth and other points in the state to spend their honeymoon, and will be at home on the C— ranch after January 10th.

"Miss Charlotte Young is one of the best known and most popular of Brownwood's girls. She has been reared in this city, and since attaining womanhood has been one of the leaders in the social life of the town. She is an accomplished, interesting young woman and her wedding brings regret that she will no longer be counted among the young people of this city, and her presence will be sorely missed.

"Mr. Pumphrey is well known in Brownwood, though his home is on a ranch in the Mercury neighborhood, and he is highly respected by all to whom he is known."

TEXAS NEEDS GREAT MEN

XXXVI. ASPIRATION

ANNIBAL involved Carthage in a war with Rome and he became the mightiest military genius of any age or race, but his country was drenched with blood, the homes of his people went up in smoke and he died a fugitive from Roman vengeance. Many leaders thirsting for fame plunge their country into strife and dissension by whetting the appetite of the populace with envy and sowing seeds of revolt. There is no greater curse in government than unchastened ambition making a criminal pathway through the land.

HANNIBAL PLUNGING CARTHAGE INTO WAR.

Let those who dash billows of strife against the shores of peace understand that to rise ignominiously is to fall wretchedly; that no pestilence is greater than wretched leadership and no crime against humanity more terrible than chasing panting industry from the land and no scene more appalling than a country sick with strife. Texas Needs Great Men.
